The principle of tolls would not be applied to the general system of highways, but only to certain cardinal routes, such as the Pennsylvania Turnpike, which is not only providing fast and relatively safe transportation for a long distance, but paying itself off from tolls. Other states have taken a leaf from Pennsylvania's book of toll roads, it is all right that Texas investigate this method of road-building in view of its great need of more and better cardinal highways.

Thanks to Texas' vastness, we have a greater road problem than any state in the Union and one of the most efficient highway departments. But the cost of construction has reached dizzy heights, like everything else, and Texas has about run of Cleveland, who is Taft's cousin, "that he has the bug."

This caused Senator Taft to remark that the General sent word to him that the only thing that concerned him about the presidential election was his program for Europe. "He indicated," commented the senator, "that if he had assurance of forming policies for the defense of Western Europe, he would not interfere in the campaign and election."

Senator Taft probably doesn't know this, but some of his cohorts already have launched the sme. r-Fisenhower campaign

First attempt to scare the General out of the presidential primarles came from Westbrook Pegler last week when he reported Ike's alleged flirtatio.: with English WAC during the war, and warned that President Truman would use this to wipe up the General if he got into the presidential race. Actually, certain Republicans, not Truman, are more likely to use this against Eisenhower. In fact, they've already started. It happens that Truman and Etsenhower not only are friends, but Truman was deeply grateful to lke for staying out the 1948 race when lke could have had the Democratic nomination for the asking, but when Truman v. nte it more than anything else in this world.

Those who watched the Senate hearings on Ambassador Philip Jessup detected a smear-Eisenhower undertone in that proceeding also. For Jessup is a Columbia University professor who not only served on Eisenhower's faculty, but received a letter from Ike defending him against the McCarthy pro-Communist attack.

Seated across the table 'om Jessup during the Senate hearings was a Republican who has vowed to stop Eisenhower and who has staked his entire political future on Taft-Owen Brewster of Maine.

It was Brewster who led the attack on Jessup inside the Senate committee, though privately admitting to other senators that McCarthy hadn't proved his Senators who listened to Harold E. Stassen stumble through the Jessup hearings say that Stassen apparently didn't count on the State Desertment releasing the full, secret transcript of the round-table conference over Far Eastern Stassen testified, for example, that Jessup brought up the question of recognizing Communist China on the third day of the conference, and that the State Department came out in favor of recognition. The actual transcript however shows that the question of recognizing Communist China was I ought up, not by Jessup but by the State Depar Charles Butterworth, not on the third day but the first day. Furthermore, Butterworth set forth the State Department's position clearly, which was against recognizing the Red regime.

Throughout his entire testimony Stassen twisted the truth in an attempt to reflect on the State Department

"As the conference opened," Stassen testified before the Senate committee, and when I observed the stenotypist I stated that I wished a copy of the transcript of everything that I, myself, said during the conference, and that I would not participate unless I was assured of receiving the transcript. There was some demurring and some discussion, and then it was agreed that I would receive a ranscript of everything I said during the three days "

However, the verbatim copy of the offi-cial transcript, which Starien didn't expect to be released, sho. that just the opposite took place. As the conference was about to begin, the transcript shows, Stassen said: "May 1 ise a ques-tion first? It would seem to me if you are taking a stenographic record, that we ought to have a copy of our own remarks at least, even though we do not have a transcript of the whole proceed-

'All right, sir," replied Francis Russell of the State Department, "We would be glad to do that."

There was no demurring, no discussion. no objection. The blunt truth is that the transcript itself shows Stassen's memory to be extremely bad.

It was Maine's courageous Sen. Margaret Chase Smith who first asked the Hoey committee to investigate a key associate of Democratic Ex-Chairman Bill Boyle.

In a Senate speech she said: "I suggest that the subcommittee call Mr. Daniel J. Hanlon and ask him if he was in any way connected with the legal controversy with the government over the American President Line."

Information in Senate committee files indicates that when the Commerce Department ruled against turning the American President Line back to Dollar, Hanion was hired to represent him in Washington.

Hanlon, a former law partner of Boyle, was listed as an assistant to him in the Democratic campaign of 1948

It's With a Little Sadness That We Note County Fair Is Put Off

Apparently there was no alternative, but we were keenly disappointed when the Howard County Fair Association was unable to hold its area exposition this year. It has been our observation that fairs hold interest for nearly everyone. People who are not particularly interested in any specific type of exhibition will turn out. When people are visiting in a city or town, they are likely to take in the community fair if it is being held during ti ir stay. Maybe the Southwest differs from other sections of the country in that respect but it appears that nearly everyone around here is interested in what his neighbors are producing in the field of agriculture. That, of course, is the primary purpose of the fair-to permit producers to share the satisfaction that comes with achieve-

Each time the state fair dates roll around we recall pleasant hours spent in surveying the awesome exhibits and side attractions. More and more are added us the years go by, of course, but the Dallas fair has been "big business" for years and years. Little fairs like the one held in Howard county may be classified as "little business," but they can give a lot of little people a feeling of pride and satisfaction. They provide an opportunity for agricultural producers of the rural areas and business people of the cities and towns to work as collaboationists:

Worker-Capitalism Rears Ugly Head In West Plywood Industry

By J. A. LIVINGSTON This is the first of two articles on the plywood "co-ops."

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 19. -Out here in the Pacific Northwest-in Washington, Oregon, and northern California- they've got evidence that men work hardest and best when they work for themselves. That's the kind of evidence you seldom get by actual test. But you find it here in the plywood industry-in the form of a

During the 'twenties, the Olympia Veneer Co., of Olympia, Wash., \ .sn't doing too well. The plant laid off men, gradually shut down. An idea was born. The workers subscribed to stock, bought the factory, and became worker-owners. They called a cooperative.

The going was tough. During the depression, they scanted their wages. When they could, they declared dividends to supplement their meager pay scales. But ultimately, the company prospered. Today it has plants at Willamina and Eugene. Ore, and is known as the Associated Plywood Co.

Associated can hardly be called a "cooperative" any longer. Or even a workerowner company. Nearly half of the original 125 shareholders have died or have sold out, often as greatly enriched capitalists. Nevertheless, it was the beginning of the plywood cooperatives, which aren't cooperatives at all. The profits are shared by the worker-owners, often in the form of dividends in their pa; envelopes. Taxes must be paid as in a private corporation.

Original share of Olympia sold for $1,-000-$500 down, $500 later. The Associated stock today is quoted around $65,000 per share. Only two years ago, F. A. John a plywood ope ator, organized the Mult-nomah Plywood Corp. in Portland. Shares cost $2,500, now sell for twice that. Johnson says workers have been getting more than $500 a month in pay, representing combination of hourly wages plus

The Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union, affiliate of the American Federa ion of Labor, looks on some plywood co-ops as "nothing more than a vicious means of eliminating our union and forcing our mbers to buy jobs." According to union leaders, a plywood company will be running out of timber, its sales will be falling off. So, the owners form a new company and sell stock to the younger and more efficient workers.

At the same time, the former owners may stay on as managers or as selling agents, perhaps at substantial commis-Union members have been picketing for

"In that deal, the new outfit offered shares to only 400 out f th. 740 employed by Robinson. Most of the 340 left out are oldtimers they wanted to get rid of." Actually, all employees were offered stocks, but not all sub .. bed.

That's only one side of the co-op story, however. In nine out of en co-ops, the workers built new plants. A man with experience in plywood production, with a yen for managing a firm of his own, will sell : tock among workers . ho have faith in him. He "p. smotes" an ownerworker corporation. The six-fold increase in plywood sales since 1938 hasn't hurt co-op trend

The origin, itself, suggests efficiency. Usually, only workers who have faith in themselves will risk their dough. Once the firm is established, other workers-nonowners-will be employed. Thus, you get this situation: On the same machine, working together, will be an owner and an employee. Naturally, this upsets the union. It cannot easily unionize a plant in which a large proportion of the workers

On one point, there is no argument whatsoever. Productivity per worker in the co-op plants runs anywhere from 25 per cent to 40 per cent higher than in private plants, and you hear claims of as much as 60 per cent more. Thomas B. Malarkey, president of the M & M Woodworking Co., of Portland, one of the largest private forest product enterprises the Northwest, embracing plywood construction lumber, and wooden pipe and

"There's no gimmick. These co-ops really outproduce the private plants. The men work harder and they're more efficient,"

The escape of Mohammed from Mecca, his native city, is known in history as "the Flight to Medina."

There came further trouble in the years which followed. The people of Media were kind to the religious leader, but his old enemies in Mecca remembered him only too well. Gathering into a small army, about 1,000 strong, they marched toward the city where Mohammed was now making his home.

Up to that time, the Prophet had been man of peace. He had taught his followers to pray, but never had asked them to fight. Now 313 Moslems picked up what

Joseph's Part in God's Plan

REMAINING TRUE TO JEHOVAH, HE WAS RAISED FROM CRUELTY AND SLAVERY TO POWER AND BLESSING

Scripture-Genesia 37; 39; $1-47:50.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL THE STORY of Joseph is the most dramatic in the book of Genesis, although the lives, of mighty men of old are narrated there Moses, Joshua, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob. It is the most thrilling story in the whole Bible, aside from the life of Jesus. It is a story with a happy ending, too, while the end of Jesus' life on earth tears the heart, even though we know it ends in resurrection

Joseph was next to the youngest of Jacob's sons, the older of the two born to Jacob's beloved wife, Rachel. He must have had an attractive personality, we assume, as we follow his life to its peaceful close, although it was not charming enough to prevent his brothers from hating him heartily. His own youthful bragging had a good deal to do with their dislike, added to their father's undisguised preference for the boy, and his gift to him of a coat of many colors more approprinte for a ruler's son than a

Joseph told his brothers how, as they were binding sheaves in the field, his sheaf stood up and all the others bowed to it. Then how even the sun, moon and 11 stars made obeisance to him. He told his father about these dreams and his father rebuked him, and his brothers hated him the more, If they had been wiser, had known something about modern psychology — they would have laughed at Joseph's boasting as "kid stuff."

The brothers were primitive folk, however, and their hatred grew so that they plaffned to kill him when they had the chance. It came soon. The brothers went to feed their father's flocks in and Jacob sent Joseph to find them and see that all was well with them. He did not find them where he expected, but a man told him where they said they were going, and he followed and found them. When they saw him coming they said, "Let us kill him." But Reu-ben, the oldest of the brothers— Leah's son-said, "Let us not kill him," but cast him into some pit, and lay no hand on him. Reuben's idea was that, after the rest had gone, he would get Joseph out of the pit and restore him to his

Reuben went away, however, after they had cast Joseph into the pit, and while he was gone some Ishmeelites came along on their way to Egypt with their wares, and the brothers decided that they could make some money by selling Joseph to them, which y did. They took his beautiful t and having killed a goat, y dipped the coat in its blood took it to Jacob, saying that they had found it and concluded that some wild beast had killed his favorite son.

When Reuben came-back, Joseph was gone, and he "rent his clothes." When the brothers brought the blood-stained coat to.

Jacob he was heartbroken. Joseph was carried to Egypt of the Pharaoh's guard named

I Joseph's talents and saw that the Lord was with him, and he made him overseer over his whole household. Joseph's troubles were not over, however, for Potiphar's wife liked Joseph and made advances to him. Joseph, however, refused to yield to temptation, and that angered the woman. She caught hold of his coat as he was leaving her, and kept it to revenge herself. She told the household that Joseph had made improper advances to her and that she had torn his coat from him. Her husband believed her and had Joseph sent to prison, where he was kept for two years.

The prison jailer trusted Joseph, and the Pharaoh's butler and baker shared his imprisonment. Each of them had a dream which they told to Joseph, and he interpreted them. He told the unfortunate baker that he would lose his head, but the butler would soon be handing wine to the Pharach, as before. The dreams came true, but the butler forgot about Joseph until the Pharaoh had an odd dream which no one could interpret. Then the butler remembered his own dream and told the Pharaoh about it. Joseph was summoned to the court and told the Pharaoh the meaning of his dream of standing by a river and seeing seven well favored kine out of it and feed; then seven lean, hungry animals came out and ate the sleek, fat kine.

Again the Pharaoh slept and this time he dreamed that seven good ears of corn came up, followed by seven thin ears, and the last devoured the first. The dream troubled him and so he sent for

Joseph told him that the seven fat cattle and the seven fullfruited corn ears meant that for seven years Egypt would have fine, full harvests; then seven years of famine would follow, symbolized by the scrawny cattle eph said, was God's plan for

Joseph advised the Pharaoh to appoint officers over the land to gather grain during the seven years of fine harvests, and to store it for the coming familie. Pharach appointed Joseph to take charge of the job, giving him full only to himself.

Joseph thus became the second man in the kingdom with a beautiful home and fine chariot. He was married to a priest's daughter and had two sons.

When the famine came, Egypt sold its stored grain to the people of many lands. His own brothers were sent to Egypt to buy grain, for the famine was sore over Canaan.

Joseph recognized his brothers, but they knew him not. The dra-matic story of how he tricked them before he made himself known to them, to make them acknowledge their wickedness and beg his forgiveness, is too long to tell here. It must be read and its

Joseph, who trusted in God and used his talents in His service, died in Egypt where his family had moved, and his last request was that he be buried with his Potiphar. Potiphar appreciated father and ancestors in Cartaan. Based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christian in the U. S.
