Commission To Meet Friday

No Action On Request

The Pampa City Commission today received a detailed account of varied items to be taken into consideration in the request of Southwest Public Service Co. for a rate increase for electrical power to city-owned facilities, but tabled the problem until a meeting Friday with Gordon Lyons, district manager for the utility. This will be a regular meeting of the commission, since all members excepting Commissioner Hershel V. Wilks will be at Galveston for the annual Texas Municipal League Convention, Oct. 2-4.

Wilks told the panel that he could make the Friday meeting but pressing business would force him to forego attending the convention. The lengthy discussion on the utility's request covered just about every angle to be determined from the breakdown of costs of operation which the city requested of Lyons in justification of the requested increase of 40 per cent. However, in the end the commission decided to have Lyons meet with it to go into the matter more completely.

Another tabled matter was accepting of bids for trash containers. This issue came up when Sid Patterson Co. of Norman, Okla., bid $8,600 for 10 (12-cubic yard) containers, and the Buffalo (N.Y.) Metal Container Corp. proposed a bid of $8,414.

Patterson, who has done business with the city on numerous occasions since 1954, attended the meeting. He said that the Buffalo firm had done business in the east, and that it had entered into a contract at Ft. Knox, Ky., to sell a number of its containers to the military post. "But officers at Ft. Knox contacted us and asked that we remodel them since they were non-workable in their present state."

"We refused, and Ft. Knox let a bid to a Louisville, Ky., firm for the remodeling of the containers, and it cost them money; more money than our (Dempster Bros.) containers would have cost them if they had purchased from our firm."

Patterson told the commissioners that one of his firm's officials will be at the Galveston convention and that he would have letters and memoranda to support what he had told them about the Ft. Knox incident for the commissioners to see if they wanted to. With that, the panel decided to wait until after the Galveston session before approving a bid.

The city officials also moved to clear up a confusing street situation in the Overton Heights section.

It changed 24th street to 25th street and 25th street to 27th street. These changes were made so that streets in the section will be uniform with those adjoining on the west.

The commission also closed out business for the fiscal year 1959-60 with payment of bills totaling $4,662.19. A breakdown of the bills payment saw $1,013.54 paid from the general fund, $3,630.26 from (See COMMISSION, Page 3)

Cuba Wants U.S. Out Of Navy Base

Castro Has Been Seeking Means

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro has had lawyers working for months to determine if Cuba can legally force the United States out of the Guantanamo naval base through the World Court at The Hague, informed sources said today.

The bearded Cuban revolutionary leader sounded his most definite threat against the base—the United States' largest in the Caribbean — in a 4-hour 28-minute anti-American tirade before the U.N. General Assembly Monday night.

Castro had high praise for his new-found friend, Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, and endorsed the entire Russian diplomatic program.

He lashed out at the United States and its political and military leaders, repeating every denunciation he had ever made in his anti-American diatribes in Cuba.

Bee Stings Kill Hewitt Farmer

HEWITT, Tex. (UPI) — Henry Burton Jones, an 83-year-old retired farmer, was killed by a swarm of bees Monday at his home near Hewitt.

Jones' wife found him lying near four beehives he kept in the back yard. He had been stung several times on the face and neck.

Jones was wearing a heavy coat and had a paper sack with eye holes cut in it over his head as a protective mask, but the bees apparently got inside the sack through the eye holes. (See COMMISSION, Page 3)

No Child Need Go Without Daily Milk

(This is the sixth of seven articles dealing with agencies that receive funds from Pampa-Lefors United Fund.)

By ED HAYES WILSON

One of the vitally necessary foods a child needs is milk. However, if it were not for a group of volunteers a number of children in Pampa would be without this body builder much of the time.

The Pampa Milk Fund committee, headed by Ivy E. Duncan, provides milk for many needy families, but it doesn't hand out the foodstuff without investigation.

If it comes from a hardware store, we have it. Lewis Hdwe. Adv.

"We ask the Salvation Army, the Red Cross or the Gray County Welfare officer to investigate families which are brought to our attention. If they are approved we provide one pint of milk daily for each child in the family," said Kirk Duncan, who aids his father in operation of the project.

"It isn't much, we all know that. But, at the same time, we know it helps," said the younger Duncan.

Funds to operate the project come from the Pampa-Lefors United Fund. This year, as it has in the last several years, the request is for $2,000.

This, officials pointed out, isn't a vast sum, considering the fact that other agencies request far more to conduct their operations. But it is money well spent, and

Candidates Take Issues To Voters Via Television

By ORBERT IRVIN
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI)—The two major presidential candidates, in their first TV debate, took summations of their campaign stands on domestic issues directly into the homes of millions of Americans Monday night.

John F. Kennedy, speaking first, said he felt that America was not doing enough at home to keep ahead in a world of great pressures. Richard M. Nixon, speaking second, said he believed America was "ahead of the Russians" but would have to keep working at it.

It was the "great debate" carried by four major television and radio chains. Whether there was a winner, or will be after the three succeeding debates, will be determined only at the polls in November.

The principals seemed happy with the show. Nixon: "It was a good sharp exchange of views."

Kennedy: "A very useful exchange of views."

One political observer compared the show to the early rounds of a prize fight with the opponents boxing carefully and feeling out each other's strength without getting into a real slug-fest.

Nixon's advisers said they expect to be getting reports within the next few days indicating the impact their candidate carried and how his campaign pitch is being received.

It was the first time in the nation's history that two presidential candidates had appeared together to debate campaign issues. This one was to be confined to domestic affairs. Of the three to come two will deal with general subjects and the last with international problems.

The only comparable clash between two top political leaders occurred in this same state of Illinois 102 years ago when Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas, opponents in a contest for a

Nixon-Kennedy Talk Winds Up In A Draw

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Snap judgments from politicians in both parties suggested today that neither was hurt very badly, if at all.

Campaign managers in both parties had suffered from a case of nerves as they awaited Monday night's radio-television debate between Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican presidential candidate, and Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee.

Both sides breathed more easily after the debate, in which the candidates sparred cautiously and seemed somewhat nervous lest a slip of the tongue bring disaster.

"If the fight had been judged on points, Nixon might have had the edge," was one Democratic comment.

A Republican wanted to give Nixon points for asserting that the Democratic platform would inflate the federal budget by 13 to 18 billion dollars a year compared with increased costs of 4 to 5 billion dollars for the GOP program.

These Nixon estimates drew no direct reply from Kennedy, who did argue, however, that a faster rate of national economic growth would yield more tax revenue to finance the programs he favors.

Nothing was said or asked about the religious issue growing out of Kennedy's Catholic faith—an issue which may have great impact on the outcome of the election.

Perhaps the biggest surprise came in Nixon's estimate of the cost of the rival party platforms. Kennedy never asked how the GOP proposed to finance the additional four to five billion dollars the vice president said his own program would cost.

Arbiter Of Social Grace Dead At 86

NEW YORK (UPI) — Emily Post's philosophy on etiquette was simple.

"Etiquette is the science of living," she once said. "It embraces everything. It is the code of sportsmanship and of honor. It is ethics."

This was the thesis for her book, with the title "Etiquette: The Blue Book of Social Usage," which has sold more than a million copies in 80 printings since 1922 and made her name synonymous with good manners.

Thousands wrote to ask about such things as the propriety of doughnut dunking or the correct fork or spoon for a meal.

The lady with the prompt, sometimes spur-of-the-moment answer, is dead.

Miss Post, 86, died Sunday night at her Manhattan home following a long illness.

She was a successful novelist before she began writing on the social graces, prompted by a friend's book in 1922 which Miss Post felt was full of erroneous advice. She set out to put the record straight and the result made her name a household

Red China Given Boost In U.N. Bid

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic called today for a face-to-face meeting of President Eisenhower and Premier Nikita Khrushchev to ease world tensions.

In his first speech before the U. N. General Assembly Nasser demanded the admission of Communist China to the United Nations and followed the Communist bloc in demanding that leftist Premier Patrice Lumumba be restored to power in the Congo.

With Khrushchev sitting in the hall and Eisenhower represented by U. S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, Nasser said:

"We suggest that the General Assembly recommend that the two great leaders should, under the standard of the United Nations, meet either by themselves or together with whom you select among those who are present here in order for them all to put, under the aegis of the United Nations, guiding rules for a new attempt toward disarmament."

"We—the non-aligned nations—are entitled to make the call for peace," Nasser said.

"Subsequently, we cannot hesitate to participate in laying down general rules which can lead us to fruitful results."

"We cannot help to call for the removal of military bases. We cannot help to demand that an end be put to the nuclear weapons test and that the big powers get rid of the huge piles stored in their dumps."

"We cannot help to urge the establishment of a system of controls conducive to tranquility and security. We cannot help to call for a continuous reduction of the armaments budgets."

Urge U.N. Get Busy

Macmillan, Ike For Work Slate

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan called today for "full support" of U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold and urged the United Nations to get down to "serious, sober and constructive work."

The President and prime minister, together for 2½ hours, urged the assembly to go to work on the problem of disarmament. The White House news secretary James C. Hagerty, speaking on behalf of himself and British spokesman John Russell, disclosed determination to resist the utmost Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's demand that Hammarskjold be ousted and his place taken by a three-nation committee composed of one Communist, one neutralist, and one Westerner.

The British-American statement said the President and prime minister "were in complete agreement as to the vital role of the United Nations, particularly in the Congo crisis and the need to give full support to the secretary-general in his task."

"They greatly hope that after a stormy start, the general assembly will now be able to concentrate on serious, sober and constructive work, notably in the matter of disarmament."

Weather? Four Kinds For Texas

By United Press International

Cool, cloudy and damp weather covered the eastern two-thirds of Texas today while the rest of the state had clear skies.

Another cool front dipped into North Texas and the U.S. Weather Bureau said temperatures would remain cooler-than-normal during the week.

Five-day forecasts called for temperatures around 19 degrees below normal for wide areas of Texas.

Fog formed around Amarillo today, but most sections of the Panhandle and South Plains and the El Paso area reported clear skies.

From the Midland-Childress area eastward through North Central and Northeast Texas today skies were overcast and light rain or drizzle was falling. Texarkana reported a thunderstorm before dawn today.

In coastal sections and in South Central Texas skies were partly cloudy to cloudy early today.

State forecasts called for temperatures this afternoon to be generally in the 70s and low 80s across the state. Lows tonight were forecast to vary from the

Lumumba Maneuvers To Get Back In Power

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba maneuvered today to unite warring political factions in the Congo in an attempt to regain power.

The Soviet-backed Lumumba announced unexpectedly Monday night he had invited opposition leaders, including secessionist-minded Moise Tshombe, president of Katanga Province, to attend a "national reunion conference" aimed at stabilizing the Congolese government.

The ousted premier said: "Patrice would be put at the disposal of the military to bring opposition members from the provinces."

30 Killed In Plane Crash Near Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI)—An Austrian Airlines plane with 37 persons aboard crashed in fog and rain near Moscow Monday night, the Austrian embassy announced today. Thirty persons were killed. Of the seven survivors, two were American.

The British-built Viscount was on a routine flight from Vienna to Moscow with 31 persons and a crew of six when it crashed into a wooded area near the village of Krukov, 12 miles from Moscow, broke apart and caught fire.

The American survivors were Lt. Col. Edward Wooten, of Wilmington, N.C., the assistant U.S. air attaché in Moscow, and Maj. Willis H. Knipe, of Kokomo, Ind., the assistant U.S. military attaché. Both were hospitalized in Moscow's Vishnezky clinic.

Wooten was described as in good condition, although suffering from burns on the left thigh and arm. Knipe suffered serious burns.

Burglar Shot By Watchman

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Charles Dyer Fuller, 38, was in poor condition at a hospital today with a bullet wound suffered Monday night during what police called an attempted safe burglary.

Jeff Atteberry, 36, detective agency patrolman, said he shot Fuller as Fuller and another man tried to burglarize a machine company safe in Fort Worth. The second man escaped.

United Southern Voice For New Era Called For

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI) — A veteran industrialist today urged Southern governors to create a "new South" Confederacy and lead in telling America's "true story" to the world.

G. Hamilton Moses, former president of the Arkansas Power & Light Co., told an industry forum of the Southern Governors' Conference that the region has great industrial potential, but that it "must get off the defensive."

"This world today cries for some new voice, some dedicated leader... some new rainbow in the sky that can put the world and America back on the right track," Moses said.

He told a meeting, shared by Georgia Gov. Ernest Vandiver, that the nation will have a trillion-dollar economy in the next 25 years and that the South, making up one-fourth of the country, is on the threshold of "the greatest industry-building campaign history has known."

He said the region has a "crying need" for both business and political leadership.

North Carolina Gov. Luther H. Hodges told the session that Southern manufacturing output increased from $33 billion to almost $80 billion between 1954 and 1959 and that 18,000 more industrial plants are in Dixie today than at the end of World War II.

Hodges called for "vigorous objective leadership... to help dispel ignorance and misunderstanding" throughout the nation about the South.

Moses, a law partner of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., called the South the last stronghold of democracy and urged that Southern traditions and heritage now be used "as a springboard to greater achievements and not a hitching post for the dead past."

"Some success must come forth with courage to get off the defensive and get on the offensive

PICKLERS GIVE ADVICE

CHICAGO (UPI) — Presidential aspirants Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy had been urged to "keep as cool as a cucumber" during their TV debate Monday night.

Shortly before the debate went on the air both candidates were presented with a gallon of pickles from the National Pickle Packers Association.

with the superior philosophy of life," he said.

"Why can't this governors' conference become a united Southern voice and resolve itself into a new Confederacy—not in criticism or factionalism, but in confidence and respect—and go forth to tell this country's true story to all earth's confused and fearful?"

"For the past 100 years our nation has been disunited. Now is the time for the South or some other section to take the lead and re-establish the principles upon which your forefathers founded this government."

ment anything. All it did was allow the National Park Service to accept gifts of land and money for the park. (The original bill, calling for $12 million worth of highways and land purchases, was killed by the House.)

You see, the Post wanted the readers to know that Rogers was aware of a practice that has been going on up here for some time. This practice consists of asking for everything you hope to get. If that fails, then you are supposed to come back and ask for just a little bit in the nature of an authorization. If this second attempt is successful, then you can come back to the next Congress or the next year. "Mr. Congress, you authorized this project and placed your stamp of approval on it, so it is your moral responsibility to provide the funds that should have been provided in the first place."

The reference to the 12 million which, incidentally, would only be the beginning) was undoubtedly due to the desire of the Post to be fair, plus the fact that the Post would not want anyone to think that it did not know what was going on.

The Post was also good enough to quote me as follows:

"Proximity to the federal treasury shouldn't be the basis for handing out appropriations."

It also pointed out the $300,000 that was spent in the restoration of the Old Stone House in Georgetown against my vigorous opposition. Too bad I didn't have the power at that time that the Post credits me with now. The Post also was most generous in reporting on the incident. I told them about when the six soldiers held off some Indians at the Battle of Buffalo Wallow in Hemphill County, for which each of the soldiers received the Congressional Medal of Honor. One of the soldiers was killed and had to be decorated posthumously. The generosity of the Post came in the number of tribes held off. I told them that there were four, but they graciously increased this to half a dozen which, of course, made the odds much greater against the six soldiers.

However, I am afraid some of the readers did not get the indirect praise that was obviously intended by the article. One particular letter which I received from a Washingtonian (a native, I suppose) referred to me in some rather uncomplimentary terms, indicating that I had not only injured the country but that I was failing to realize that the capital of the U.S.A. was Washington, not Austin. He didn't advise me how he had made this discovery.

For fear that a few others might mistake the article as one of condemnation rather than of praise, I felt that I should arm myself with some statistics to support my contention that the District of Columbia and its environs were receiving preferred treatment in federal expenditures. Hence, I picked up the interesting information that public building construction underway during fiscal year 1960 in the District of Columbia and nearby areas (exclusive of municipal construction by the District of Columbia and military construction) involved a total estimated cost of $189,682,900. This included a federal office building at a cost of $14 million, a National Library of Medicine at a cost of $7,300,000; a Museum of History and Technology at a cost of $36 million; a State Department extension and remodeling program costing $52,320,000; and the new headquarters of the Central Intelligence Agency costing $54,500,000 — plus a number of lesser items. Another item expected to be completed in 1962 is Dulles International Airport costing $84 million.

You, of course, understand that the above figures do not represent all of the federal money spent in the District of Columbia and the nearby areas by a long measure. For instance, there are several bridges across the Potomac under way at the present time that will involve substantial expenditures out of the federal treasury. There are many other items which could be included. Some time ago I asked a native Washingtonian why it was that so many people around here consistently condemned the federal expenditures and federal interference in local governments, yet never failed to run to the federal treasury for every conceivable kind of a project or program. His reply was, "I guess it's because it's so convenient."

Walter Rogers Reports

Rogers Given A Pat By Washington Post

The Washington Post, a few days ago, carried headlines which read as follows: "Death of Bill Creating Canal Park Laid Largely to Texas Congressman." The story began as follows:

"When the token bill creating a park along the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal died last week, for the second time in as many Congresses, it was largely the work of one man.

He is Rep. Walter E. Rogers, a Democrat who represents the Texas Panhandle."

The entire story was an excellent example of journalistic adeptness. It did not directly praise me for the great service which it indicated I had rendered, but did it in a subtle indirect manner. This indirect approach was probably due to the fact that the Washington Post is not notorious for praising members of Congress who refuse to underwrite every possible expenditure for the District of Columbia and its environs. However, the reader, by reading between the lines, could tell that the Post was very grateful for the services of this Texas Congressman. For instance, it pointed out that the Senate had passed the bill and that all of the leaders in the House were for it. "But Rogers twice prevented the bill from coming out of the Interior Committee and onto the House floor, where it almost certainly would have passed." I submit that this must be recognized as praise, because it attributes to me power that many would desire (perhaps the Washington Post) but which no one actually possesses. Another splendid bit of finesse was exhibited in the paragraph which read as follows:

"Rogers was reminded the bill would not cost the Federal Govern-

Astronauts Arriving At San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—The first three of the United States' seven candidates for a space ride to the stars arrived at the School of Aviation Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base Monday for an extensive battery of physical examinations.

The other four astronauts in Project Mercury are due to arrive later this week for the same tests.

Maj. Donald J. Slaton and Capt. Leroy Cooper of the Air Force and Marine Lt. Col. Don H. Glenn were the first to arrive. The Air Force said they will be given three days of the most extensive physicals they have taken since they entered the program.

The school will make electrocardiograph tape recordings under varying physical stress conditions, and use them to train medical monitor teams for observing the status of pilots in manned space flights.

Project Mercury is the first step in a progressive build-up of experimentation and flight tests in the manned space flight program of the National Aeronautic Space Administration.

Waco Murder Trial Begins

WACO (UPI) — Testimony was to begin today in the murder trial of John Junior James, a Walnut Ridge, Ark., man accused of shooting down an elderly supermarket customer who tried to prevent the store from being robbed last Jan. 29.

The man killed was John M. Blackford, 66, of Waco.

Attorneys in the case completed jury selection Monday by agreeing on 11 men and one woman from a panel of 110 veniremen. Seventy-seven prospective jurors were disqualified, most of them because they were opposed to assessing a death penalty.

James, 29, is being tried in Judge D. W. Bartlett's 54th District Court. Dist. Atty. Burney Walker has said he will seek the death penalty.

James' younger brother, Loyd Lavon James, 24, received a 99-year sentence for his part in the robbery and Blackford's murder. He has been returned to Waco from the state penitentiary at Huntsville to testify at his brother's trial.

Texas Automotive Dealers To Hold District Meeting In Pampa

Texas Automotive Dealers Association President F. D. "Bud" Mitchell and Executive Vice President H. C. Pittman will be featured speakers at a dinner meeting of all factory-authorized new car dealers in this area at the Coronado Inn Oct. 4 at 6:30 p.m.

Pampa, in announcing the meeting, stated Pittman's talk will be entitled "How Far Is It To Austin?" A former executive assistant attorney general and chairman of the Texas Industrial Accident Board, Pittman will report on tax trends of the forthcoming Texas Legislative session as well as the status of car dealers under the federal Wage and Hour Law. A well known after-dinner speaker, he joined TADA last June.

Presidential Candidates In Quotes

By United Press International Vice President Richard M. Nixon

(In Washington, in outlining his aid-to-education plan): "We are living in a civilization and in a world and at a pitch of crisis that put an ultimate premium on sheer brainpower — fully developed and unstintingly applied. We dare not waste it; we dare not misapply it; we dare not be satisfied with standards of mediocrity."

"Because the blunt fact is that anything less than performance at sustained level of excellence will endanger for all all time to come the fulfillment of our goals and our dreams."

(In opposing any aid funds for teachers' salaries he explained): "We must avoid the danger of rigid federal control over who teaches and what is taught."

(In summing up his program): "I do not claim either that it is exhaustive or that each element in it must be adopted in one precise form — that nothing more or less will do. Clearly, it will be the job for the executive and the Congress to work out details, to estimate costs and to make precise outlays for the period of testing ahead."

(In Chicago Sunday night on being met by 2,000 airport greeters.) "With a gathering like this I thought the White Sox had won the pennant again. I will be back in Chicago at a later date. We intend to really campaign in this state."

Sen. John F. Kennedy: At a Cleveland rally: "The forgotten man of 1960 is the American consumer. The forgotten woman is the American housewife. In 1952 (the start of the Eisenhower administration) they were promised lower prices. They heard endless Republican commercials about a stable dollar and a cheaper market basket. "But under eight years of Republican rule, the cost of living has gone up and up, and Republicans have done nothing about it."

"Finally, last year, the Republicans decided to do something bold. They appointed a committee."

(Referring to the price stability committee headed by his opponent, Nixon): "The committee met and talked and studied and, as a result, they acted. They didn't bring prices down. They didn't send our growth rate up. But they did file a report."

(Noting that the Republicans have had much to say recently about experience, but) "somehow that committee was never mentioned. But I intend to mention the high cost of living every week of this campaign."

(In Chicago at an airport greeting): "The Republicans say 'maybe' to everything when they are asked about prospects of solving the nation's problems over the next 10 years. I say we can solve them."

Fined For Liquor Sale On Sunday

Jerome Henry, owner of the Busy Bee Drug Store, 412 Maple, signed a plea of guilty yesterday before County Attorney Don Cain on the charge of illegal sale of liquor on Sunday and paid a fine of $100 and $32.20 costs. Clyde Crain, State Liquor Control Board officer, said administrative action will be taken in the case.

Many Democrats In California May Spell Victory For Kennedy

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edgard G. Brown shed his coat and shoes, loosened his tie, settled back in the seat of his Air National Guard transport "grizzly" and summed up California's presidential election prospects this way:

"All we have to do is switch 303,767 votes to make Kennedy a winner — and, I think there are many Democrats out here who don't like Nixon but did like Ike."

The Democratic governor's size-up was made to this correspondent after Sen. John F. Kennedy's recent whistle-stop tour of California.

The Republican view of Nixon's chances in California is that GOP unity will prevail over a divided Democratic party.

Brown's feeling, shared by several far western Democratic leaders, is that Richard M. Nixon lacks the bipartisan popular appeal of Dwight D. Eisenhower. They do not discount Nixon's capabilities or his skill as a campaigner. But as Brown put it: "Nobody is neutral about Nixon. People are for him or against him. I hope there are enough of them against him to put Kennedy over."

Kennedy, however, faces no easy task in California. Despite a 3-to-2 edge in Democratic registration, the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket won in 1956 by 607,533 votes. Nixon is popular in his home state and he has a dedicated organization here; skilled in political campaigns. He also enjoys considerable newspaper support and strong financial backing.

Nixon is well known as a native son while Kennedy's Boston accent marked him in his tour through the farm areas as an Easterner.

The Republicans feel, and they cite as the authority Kennedy's brother, Ted, that California Democrats are not solidly behind Kennedy. The Republican Organization on the other hand, was and is hand-picked by Nixon and Republican voters and, barring a handful of Rockefeller supporters, appears to be with him all the way.

Ted Kennedy recently described California and New York as the two key states in the presidential contest. While conceding that there are intra-party splits in California, Kennedy said he felt the various elements would unite if for no other reason than the common ground of their dislike of Nixon.

The division in the Democratic party in California was apparent to the entire nation at the Los Angeles convention when the state's delegation split almost 50-50 between Adlai Stevenson and Kennedy. Brown supported Kennedy but he couldn't carry his own delegation with him.

Nor was the nomination of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson as Kennedy's running mate an unequal-ized success with the liberal element in the party, notably the California Democratic Council (CDC), an organization of 50,000 grass roots Democrats whose influence has been increasing in the past five years.

But the mutterings and grumblings over the Democratic ticket appear to have subsided and there is now at least a surface show of unity behind Kennedy.

Nixon's problem in capturing the state's 32 electoral votes appears to lie in the fact that there has been a pronounced Democratic trend in California since 1956.

Two years ago, Brown swamped Republican William F. Knowland in the gubernatorial fight by more than a million votes.

Both houses of the Legislature, Republican for 20 years, now are controlled by substantial Democratic majorities. And the state's congressional delegation, 18-11 Republican in 1952, now stands at 16-14 Democratic.

However, Republicans claim the pendulum is swinging back, that Brown's personal popularity has decreased during his two years in office and that Republican fortunes are on the upswing.

Los Angeles City and county is the major target in the campaign. There, Nixon has an edge. He was raised in Los Angeles County, where 40 per cent of the vote is, and it was there that he waged successful campaigns for Congress, the U.S. Senate and twice for vice president.

Kennedy, in his first major sortie into his opponent's backyard, packed the Shriners Auditorium for a speech. He had the help of such entertainment stars as Frank Sinatra, Gene Kelly, Tony Curtis and Ella Fitzgerald.

Nixon, delayed by a knee infection from launching his campaign, did not hit California until after Kennedy's whistle-stop tour. Then, he drew 40,000 persons to San Francisco's Union Square.

While leaders of both parties confidently predict victory for their man in November, their off-the-record assessment adds up to the fact it is a toss-up right now in the Golden State.

Barring the injection of a stimulating issue in the next few weeks, the California campaign boils down to a popularity contest.

As one wag put it: "The winner in California will be either John F. Nixon or Richard M. Kennedy."

Artful arrangement brings out the beauty of brilliant autumn flowers. Flowers bunched in tall vase, left, overpower table, and color and shape are lost against busy background. At right, floral arranger Audrey Jocelyn makes each gladiolus and chrysanthemum show to best effect in the simple, effective, triangular arrangement in the low, green bowl.

Take Some Hints From A Flower Arranging Expert

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Staff Correspondent

The brilliance of color and abundance of bloom in autumn gardens are a gift from nature to the woman who would like to know how to arrange flowers.

Why struggle to achieve better flower arrangements? "Adaptness in this rewarding art is a social asset to any woman," says Mrs. Hodges.

Mrs. Hodges Leads Mission Study Topic

D. S. Buckner Circle of Harrah Methodist Church met in Fellowship Hall on Thursday morning for the fourth lesson of the current study, "One World, One Mission" led by Mrs. Dallas Hodges.

Participating in the program were Mmes. Ray Akers, Vernon Willard, W. J. Duncan.

Burgin-Detter Wed In Panhandle Rites

GROOM (Spl) — Mrs. Novella Burgin and Loomis Detter of Newton, N. C. were united in marriage on Friday afternoon in Panhandle. The bride and bridegroom were former schoolmates in North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Detter left for a trip to California, where they will visit relatives and friends, and will return to Groom, before moving to North Carolina to make their home.

Audrey Jocelyn, consultant to the Florida Flower Association.

Lovely as flowers are, the difference between an "arranged" and an "unarranged" bouquet is easy to see. For example: using essentially the same flowers, a bunch of gladioli and mums, cut the same length and thrust into a tall glass vase makes a monotonous bouquet.

To brighten the picture, Miss Jocelyn has placed the gladioli inside a triangular design to give height to the arrangement and cut the chrysanthemums to varying heights to give a full low focal point, making each flower contribute to the whole composition.

To become more adept in this art, Miss Jocelyn has some pointers for us. First have the proper tools. These are: a sharp paring knife or flower cutter to cut stems cleanly; stout shears to be used for cutting heavy stems and wire; floral wire to strengthen some stems; holders to keep flowers in position; a needlepoint holder and modelling clay in a shallow container; crushed chicken wire in a deeper vase, and a container. This can be almost anything that can hold water as long as it is simple in color and design.

Here are her specific reminders when selecting flowers:

The color combination determines the mood. A pastel arrangement denotes daintiness and sweetness; a simple, mellow-toned bouquet spells charm.

Combinations should be limited to three or four colors. More may be confusing. Colors should be grouped in clusters. Red, orange and yellow flowers give a feeling of warmth; blue flowers are "cool

I never use colors in equal amounts. A good combination is one-third stronger and two-thirds quieter color. Colors should blend with or accent room colors if possible.

Our instructor also advises us to combine "line" and "form" flowers, avoiding extremes in size. Like or spike flowers (snapdragons, gladioli, delphinium) create the basic shape of arrangement. Form flowers (carnations, chrysanthemums, asters) complement the line flowers. Filler flowers are baby's breath, ageratum, pom-poms.

Don't, she reminds us, cut all the stems the same length. In all arrangements it's easier to start with the tallest flowers in height and then fill in.

Always have a focal point in your arrangement. It is usually low in the center, made of a group of form flowers which are heaviest, brightest or darkest, Miss J. says. Use the foliage of flowers to lead the eye.

A point to remember which we often forget: keep in mind the background against which flowers will be seen. As Miss Jocelyn says, a complicated or busy backing detracts from your arrangement or may over shadow it completely.

The size of the table on which you place your flowers is also important. A small table will look unbalanced under an overpowering mass of a large or tall arrangement.

If you use dusting powder after your bath, you will find it easier to slip into your undergarments and hose. It will provide all-day comfort, too.

Dear Abby... Sever Tight Rope Before Its Tied

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The girl I go with has been putting the pressure on me to marry her. I can't even think of marriage until I finish college and get a job, but she keeps talking about "our home" and "our children". I like her more than any other girl I've ever gone with, but I haven't gone with many. When she tells me how much she loves me, I feel like a heel.

Her home life isn't very happy she can't wait to get away from her parents. She loves my parents and they like her, but they don't want to see me married yet. How can I chill her without throwing her into a tailspin?

PRESSURED

DEAR PRESSURED: A frank talk is long overdue. Tell her you think it is unfair to ask her to wait indefinitely for you, so you think you should both start dating others. (Then prove you aren't bluffing by doing so immediately. She'll follow suit.) When a young man dates one girl exclusively, he usually gives her his so much rope he soon finds himself roped in.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Syracuse, picking up where it left off last year, gained a narrow lead over Mississippi today in the first weekly major college football ratings of the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The defending national champions from upstate New York, who opened their season with a 35-7 victory over Boston University last Saturday, totaled 326 points to 311 for Ole Miss.

Mississippi, with two easy victories under its belt, garnered more first place votes than Syracuse. The Rebels were the No. 1 pick of 16 of the 35 coaches while the Orangemen had 14 first place votes. Syracuse, however, took the early season lead by outpolling Ole Miss, 19-12, in second place ballots.

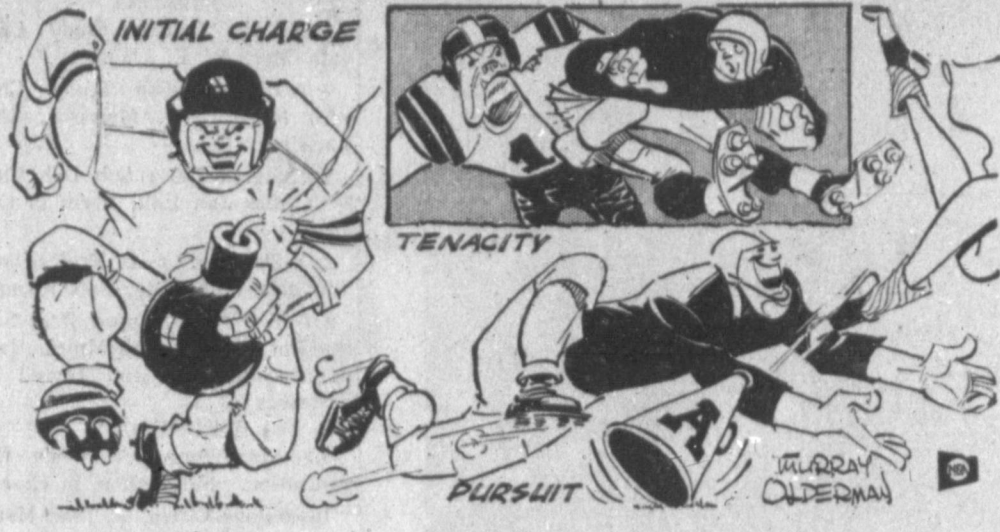

Washington, the defending Rose Bowl champion, was third with three first place votes and a total of 233 points. Illinois followed with 183 points and Kansas was fifth with 134.

Northwestern, a 19-3 victor over once-mighty Oklahoma in its opener last weekend, was sixth with one first place vote and 130 points. Rounding out the top 10 in order were Ohio State (67), Iowa (61), Georgia Tech (52) and Clemson (48).

Versatile Linemen Must Possess Various Talents (?)

Win 10th Straight Game

Yankees Roll On

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

The New York Yankees are picking up a little something for the Pittsburgh Pirates — momentum!

It's all Casey Stengel's idea. He sat down and figured out that all the Yankees have to do to become the new baseball champions of the world is win their next nine straight games.

They've won 10 in a row already. That leaves only five more to go on the regular season schedule and if they could win the next four after that, they would be free to start concentrating on their 1961 spring training.

Casey says he doesn't expect to rest many of his regulars although the pennant already is clinched, nor does he expect the team to rest on its laurels. He needn't worry. They aren't.

Call it a stretch run or a dry run, the Yankees are playing each game now as if it's the deciding one of the World Series. Monday night's 4-2 victory over the Washington Senators in 10 innings was typical.

Bob Cerv opened the 10th with a double and Roger Maris walked with one out. That brought up Jim Pisoni, but hold everything—Casey wanted a pinch hitter.

He picked Hector Lopez, who in turn picked on one of Pedro Ramos' pitches and singled to drive in the tie-breaking run. Dale Long singled home another just for insurance.

Long homered in the second inning and the Yankees scored an unearned run in the sixth, but Harmon Killebrew belted his 31st homer with one on in the seventh off rookie Bill Stafford to tie the score. Duke Maas hurled the last two innings, allowed only one hit, and won his third game. The loss made Ramos' record 11-17.

In the battle for second place money, the Chicago White Sox moved into a tie with the idle Baltimore Orioles by defeating the Detroit Tigers, 6-3. The Kansas City Athletics topped the Cleveland Indians, 6-1, in the only other scheduled American League game.

BACK WITH PATRIOTS

BOSTON (UPI)—Ger Schwedes, traded by the Boston Patriots to the New York Titans several weeks ago, has been re-signed by the Patriots. Boston also announced the signing of Billy Wells and the release of Al Richardson and Walt Livingston.

Espectador Cops Race

Belmont Park opened its 24-day fall meeting Monday with a "south of the border" touch.

Argentine-bred El Espectador and Panamanian jockey Braulio Baeza combined for a three-quarter length victory in the $29,900 Long Island Handicap.

It was the first stakes victory in the United States for the 5-year-old son of South American champion Yatasto, who rallied in the stretch to overtake the front running General Arthur. Quiz Star finished third, trailing General Arthur by a half length.

El Espectador paid $26.70 for $2 and was timed in 2:18 3-5 for the mile and three-eighths. The triumph, his second straight and third in 12 starts this year, was worth $19,435 to El Espectador's owner, William C. Partee.

Harvesters Prep For Rough Rebs

By ED HAYES WILSON
Daily News Sports Writer

Pampa High School football Coach Babe Curfman, thoroughly disgusted with seven fumbles that six times cost the Harvesters the ball in the game last Friday night with Fort Worth Arlington, set the team down Monday to a rigorous training schedule for Tascosa.

"You don't stand a chance to win when you lose the ball six times on fumbles," was the way Curfman summed up the Harvesters' third straight loss without a victory.

Fumbles hurt, but a couple of major penalties also helped put the blacks to any chance the Pampans had of winning the contests.

The Harvesters had seven major penalties levied against them. Of these, the coaches definitely questioned two; one was a clipping call on a kickoff, and another on a play in the line. Both came at a time when it hurt the worst.

"But," Curfman said, "it's over and done. We're going to get ready for Tascosa. And we've a lot of work to do."

From scouting reports, the Harvesters do face much preparation if they expect to win. The Amarillo team, 6-14, loser to Midland last week, averages 178 pounds on defense and 176 on offense. It sports seven seniors in the starting lineup, with two juniors and two sophomores rounding out the first team.

Curfman singled out two backfield men from Tascosa who will bear watching. Quarterback Hugh McKnight and Fullback Tim Elkins.

"This McKnight is an accurate passer, handles his team well, and is alert as any quarterback we'll see. The fullback, a 165-pounder, drives hard. We'll have to pay close attention to them," the mentor said.

Tascosa is a seasoned ball club. It has 14 lettermen back from the squad that posted an 8-2 mark last year, including four players who have earned two letters. The Rebels have eight men, up from the B-team of 1959, and the rest are ups from junior high.

Working out of a winged-T with floaters and flankers being used on various plays, the visiting Amarilloans should prove an interesting ball club to watch.

Frogs Ready For UA

By United Press International

Coach Abe Martin takes a dim view of using the "wild card" rule for sideline generalship.

But you can bet your boots he'll use every trick in the books and take personal command too, if necessary, when Texas Christian tangles with Arkansas this weekend in a go-for-broke tussle.

When the Horned Frogs played Southern California last weekend, Coach John McKay announced he would call every play from the bench, and he did. One sports-writer said the result, TCU 7, USC 6, just proved that Sonny Gibbs and Don George are better quarterbacks than McKay.

Martin commented that this only makes "robots out of quarterbacks" and they might as well put a coach in a tuxedo so he'll look real nice and let him join the huddle to "call every play right out there in front of everybody."

Texas Christian, which lost to Kansas before bounding back at Southern Cal, goes into the game a slight one-point favorite although the Razorbacks have won both of their games handily.

In other games around the conference, Texas rules a 13 1/2 point favorite to whip Texas Tech at Austin, Rice has a three point edge over Tulane at Houston, and Baylor is a one-point favorite over Louisiana State at Baton Rouge.

Texas A&M is a heavy favorite to whip Trinity at San Antonio, but no odds were quoted. Southern Methodist has a breather this weekend after two straight defeats.

At Austin, Coach Darrell Royal gave his first three units a rest about equal time in the 34-0 victory at Maryland. He credited the majority of scoring in the game on punt exchanges and punt returns, and singled out linemen Monte Lee, Scott Mann, Bill Laughlin and Buddy Falls for special praise along with halfback Drew Morris.

Texas A&M reserves scrimmaged Monday while Coach Jim Myers had the first two units in shorts. Myers said sophomore fullback Leroy Catey may miss the Trinity game because of a rib injury suffered against Tech, and that Daryle Keeling has earned the starting quarterback post because of his showing against the Raiders.

baseball since trying to purchase the Dodgers and keep them in Brooklyn. They were moved to Los Angeles shortly after he made his bid.

Roberts also has tried his hand at purchasing a major league team, with the same result. He said last week he had made a "definite offer" to buy the Athletics, but his independent bid was not accepted.

Evans has had little to do with

Assembly Must Find Money For Congo Before U.N. Goes Broke

By GARE KAIMOWITZ
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — Two weeks after the Republic of the Congo became independent, the U.N. spokesman said, "it went broke."
"The various U.N. agencies at work in the Congo are giving the Congolese 'pocket money' as they need it."
Even with outside assistance to the Congo (10 million dollars from the U.S. along) the world body's budget could one day be taxed to a practical limit.
This is one reason why Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold is pushing for early discussion in the General Assembly of how to finance U.N. operations in the Congo and restore the Congolese economy.
Because of the "pocket money" relationship, bookkeeping is at a minimum. U.N. officials themselves find it difficult to figure the total aid to the Congo.

money could be used to pay the U.N. peace force. Nations that contributed troops are paying their own men currently.
But even that $70 million is insufficient to meet the Congo's deficit which could run to $100 to $200 million by the end of 1960. To keep the economy functioning, Hammarskjold would like to see $100 million forthcoming in voluntary contributions from member nations. It would be spent through the U.N. and his office, if a working government could again be established in Leopoldville.
The only alternative would seem to be a Soviet resolution to do the same thing without the auspices of the U.N., but dealing directly with some Congo government.
U.N. officials say what no matter how expensive the first road is, the world body can ill afford the results of the Soviet Union plan.

The expense is likely to be greater than even U.N. estimates. The $100 million figure is based on an assumed pace of recovery in the private economy. It is also dependent on the assumption that the Republic will be united and taxes will bring in a reasonable amount of revenue within the nation itself.
But most Security Council representatives find no government in the Congo capable of collecting taxes at the moment of maintaining any type of financial transactions.
With everybody wrangling, few are working in the Congo. Unemployment runs from 50 to 100 per cent. But as the U.N. spokesman says:
"There is no such thing as a nation without an economy. They have to keep going."

Dems To Aid Oil Industry, Solon States

BONHAM (UPI) — House Speaker Sam Rayburn believes the oil and gas depletion allowance has a better chance of surviving if Texas goes Democratic at the polls this November than it would if Texas voted Republican.
A plank in the Democratic platform opposes the 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance, which, Rayburn said, at least 103 products enjoy in addition to oil.
"Some of our oil people seem very much disturbed that the word 'depletion' is used in the Democratic platform," Rayburn said in a statement issued at his home here.
"Some people forget there are at least 104 products that enjoy depletion. For several years, some of these are supposed to be loopholes (for taxes). I have never heard of the 27 1/2 per cent oil depletion allowance being considered a loophole. I trust that oil people do not consider it to be."
"The Texas delegation in the Senate and House for years has stood up for and protected the 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance for oil and gas. I think we can do that in the future unless Texas goes Republican and depletes our influence in Washington both in the Senate and the House

There's Always A "But"

At a time when there is great pressure for more federal aid to the states for schools, housing and almost everything else, we turn our attention to once - merrie England, which is still struggling to clear the debris of some years of galloping welfare statism.

Arthur Bryant in the London Illustrated News has written two articles protesting the infringement of human decency and rights which have taken place under supposedly humanitarian programs.

In one case, a 90-year-old woman of independent means and sound mind was committed to a government hospital over her protests because bureaucratic dogooders thought she was too feeble to look after herself. Then, to add to the audacity of this immoral imprisonment, they billed her 500 pounds for unasked-for care in the hospital.

The other case involved the transit authority, a state monopoly. As more Britons acquire cars, more Britons have been forming car pools. They share the costs as we do here. But the transit officials claim that their monopoly makes even this common and sensible practice illegal, say it is costing them fares, and insist that the car pools be "stamped out." This means fines or even jail terms for ordinary people behaving in ordinary ways.

In another instance we read of after the British government adopted a TVA-like power program, some farmers were denied the right to use wind-powered electric generators so the farmers would be forced to patronize the government power agency.

We are told here that federal aid to schools will not mean federal control. Yet the federal government already has taken steps to control local schools with or without federal aid. Federal bureaucrats also control state and local welfare practices, and various other local endeavors once federal contributions are provided. Apparently what the advocates of federal aid mean is that federal aid won't mean federal control until the politicians in Washington find an excuse for controls.

Americans still are — comparatively speaking — free of federal controls. But if we are to retain or regain our liberties we must realize, as the founding fathers did, that the threat to liberty lies in all - pervading government. When we look to government to provide for us, we must allow the government to make the rules. Government also becomes the interpreter of those rules.

As the British have learned, this may mean that "protection" becomes protective custody — a polite term for imprisonment. Or subsidized transit or power or schools can mean that one must partonize only the government agency, regardless of his desires.

Selling our birthright of freedom for a mess of bureaucratic pottage is a poor bargain.

Plenty Of Room

Even today it is still true. There are more top jobs going begging than there are top people to fill them. Self-improvement is the unvarying highway to achievement, and the man who is the best in his field does not have to look for a job, it will search for him.

Reform Via Force

One of the major differences between a socialist and a non-socialist is that the former will not hesitate to get what he wants by government force. A non-socialist will shy away from using the government to obtain his objectives.

There is a marvelous article by Dorothy Thompson, herself a former socialist, which appears in the September issue of Ladies Home Journal. The subject of the article relates to education and is called, "The Educators' need Re-Educations."

But what has attracted us is more than her well-worded and frequently-scathing assault of the government school system. Her prologue, before she actually comes to grips with her subject, is almost pathetic in its honesty and unspoken plea for forgiveness.

Miss Thompson was a reformer, in the grand socialist sense of the "muckrakers" and radicals of the 20's. Even here she sheds a tear of remembrance for Walter Rauschenbusch, and ardent socialist, Lincoln Steffens and Ida Tarbell, pro-socialist writers, and Jane Addams, a social reformer.

She states that these people and herself among others were "driven... by intense dedication to freedom and democracy."

They wanted to promote "the dignity of the individual." So, they called upon government and upon unions to bring these reforms into existence by force.

It is almost with a look of innocence that Miss Thompson appears to ask, "What went wrong?" These earnest reformers via a coercion were the forerunners of the New Deal and of rampant racketeering unionism. If we may believe Miss Thompson, they didn't really "plan it that way."

She claims they could not foresee the dire results which have undoubtedly descended upon this nation as a result of their reforming efforts. And we are almost moved to moist optics as we think of these noble souls trying to change mankind into something akin to their own image, via the vote, the law, the cop and the picket.

Without seeking to belabor the point unduly, we must advise Miss Thompson that her efforts and those of her pinko compatriots were all ill-starred, not because of the ends they sought but because of the means they employed.

Most people want to see human dignity established. But how do you establish it by making people first the dependents of big government, and ultimately the dupes and slaves of a monstrous bureaucracy? And in what way does a union, which employs goons, bricks, dynamite, terrorism and murder, enhance the stature and dignity of its trembling and suppliant membership?

Sure, there were lots of things wrong in America in the early 20's. But we are old enough now — at least some of us are — to begin to see the cure of the socialists was worse than the disease. The appalling ignorance of economic truths led scores of socialists into a program of enlarging agencies of force and violence to the absolute destruction of the dignity of the individual.

What socialists then and now can't seem to realize is that the market place cannot be administered, it must be left alone.

Of course there are people who will try to take advantage of market place conditions. But when economic laws are grasped, we will discover such exploiters have but a brief period in the sum of success. Market place rules in a FREE market inweigh against the sharper and the cheat. Success stimulates the desire for serving best.

Competition and total freedom in an unencumbered market would have long since cured the evils which moved Miss Thompson and others to early connivance with evil.

Never have we seen a more poignant reminder that the end does not justify the means. No one could properly claim the socialists were not nobly motivated in some respects. But the devices they employed to attain their ends were always vicious, brutal and deceptive. In the end, they deceived themselves most of all.

THE PUZZLE OF FARM POLITICS

(The Wall Street Journal)

For a generation or more the farm program has been, inevitably, an election issue; today it is a national scandal. Unfortunately neither candidate seems prepared so far to offer any useful suggestions for dealing with it. And this is strange, because practical political solutions are possible today as never before.

It is perfectly true, as the Democrats charge, that the costs of the Federal agricultural program have skyrocketed in the years of the Republican Administration; that Federal surpluses have increased enormously; and that, despite all the outpouring of money from Washington, total net farm income has not improved.

But these statements do not mean much unless it is asked why matters have turned out so disastrously. The principal reason is the continuation of the high price-support policies designed to spur maximum production as a World War II emergency measure. Secretary Benson has succeeded in getting through Congress some modifications of this, but Congress has balked at significant changes that stand indicted for the farm chaos.

That responsibility, one might suppose, would impel the Democrats in particular to search for common - sense solutions. Instead we find in the party platform and the statements of Senator Kennedy an appalling intellectual poverty.

As though high price props were not the root of the trouble, the Democrats would make them worse by restoring them to a rigid 90 per cent of parity.

Vice President Nixon, for his part, has yet to provide details of his approach to the farm problem. But he has already talked alarmingly enough, of massive aid without regard of budgetary considerations.

There is no mystery, however, about the right approach. It is a progressive lowering of price supports to a point where domestic and foreign markets are able to absorb farm produce without these monstrous Government surpluses. Objective agricultural experts know this; farmers themselves say it over and over. The trouble is that this approach is considered politically unrealistic.

A couple of facts, it seems to us, strongly suggest that even the politics of a sound farm program is far less formidable than the politicians profess to think. One is that the bulk of price support payments goes to the growers of a very few crops which account for the worst surpluses. Some of those growers are wealthy — are, indeed, corporations. What is politically so suicidal about opposing huge Federal handouts to corporations for the purpose of piling up costly Government surpluses?

Another fact is that a large segment of the farm population embraces people who are not properly speaking farmers. These include people with other jobs or income who have taken up farming on the side to get in on the Government gravy. Politicians hardly need to shed public tears for these.

In addition, are the so-called marginal and largely unsubsidized farmers who add practically nothing to the national product and can't make a decent living at farming. Under the guise of preserving "farming as a way of life," the politicians demand that these people be kept at it by subsidies which could not make them efficient producers. What is so noble about condemning them to continued and needless squalor?

That is not humanitarianism. The humanitarian thing is to encourage marginal farmers to get into productive work. Where needed during a transitional period, the Government might well spend some of the money it is wasting on farm millionaires helping train these erstwhile marginal farmers in industrial or other work that would enable them to share in the general prosperity.

A further, and powerful, political fact is that the farm population is declining despite all the solicitations of Washington; the tremendous increases in productivity per man and acre have decreed that. It should be a source of pride rather than a cause for rebuke, as when the Democrats charge that three million people "have been driven" from the farm since 1952.

Whatever the validity of that particular statistic, the decline has been notable for decades. Its political meaning is that the farm bloc is no longer so potent in an increasingly urban America — particularly when farmers are also dissatisfied with the Democratic policies which the Republicans have performed.

Over a year ago, Mr. Benson said: "The economics of the farm dilemma is simple — it is the politics of the problem that is baffling. What farmers want and need is less Government in the farming

The Allen-Scott Report

BREACH UNCOVERED BY HOUSE PROBERS — SECRETS IN FLORIDA DUMP
WASHINGTON — The House Un-American Activities Committee investigation of the super-secret National Security Agency has turned up another serious breach in that agency's secrecy.

The Congressional probers, acting on an anonymous tip, have learned that a number of secret NSA papers were found mysteriously discarded in a Florida dump earlier this year.

The secret NSA documents were discovered along with several boxes of "Classified" papers containing information about the Navy's POLARIS missile project operations at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The Committee has been informed by the Defense Department that full details of the incident are still secret and have been turned over to the Justice Department.

From other sources, the Committee has learned that the department's Internal Security Division, which is investigating the case, is considering the filing of a complaint under the "gross negligence" section of the Espionage Act.

Under this provision, government employees can be prosecuted for failing to properly safeguard secret documents and papers entrusted to their care.

So far, Justice Department officials have refused to tell House probers what their investigation shows or the nature of the secret NSA documents that were found discarded.

All that these officials have told the Committee is that there is no link between the recovered documents and the case of the two NSA employees, who defected to Russia.

Note: In their probe of the NSA defectors, the House investigators have uncovered two more sexual deviates in the agency.

DANGER SIGNALS — Seven out of ten Americans ignore cancer's known "danger signals" instead of consulting a doctor.

That's the shocking situation shown in the American Cancer Society's first report on its cancer prevention study.

In a report to the National Institutes of Health, the government's top health research agency the society revealed that interviews with 45,000 men and women show:

Only two men in ten and three women in ten saw a doctor about a complaint regarded as a cancer danger signal.

Nearly 50 percent of the women who noticed a lump in a breast — sometimes as sign of breast cancer — failed to see a doctor about it.

Only 36 percent of those who reported "a sore that does not heal" saw a doctor about it.

Only 30 percent of the men who noticed blood in their urine went to a doctor.

These findings were called "surprising" and "shocking" by Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, American Cancer Society statistician.

business-less politics in agriculture. But the politics, it seems to us, need no longer be such a hopeless hurdle, if the candidates would show the political sense to state the honest facts and draw the plain conclusions.

Down South

By THURMAN SENSING

The Actual South And Its Problems

With the opening of another school year, the American reading public will be subjected to innumerable newspaper and magazine articles that purport to describe what is taking place in the South.

Writers will be swarming into the southern states because the South is on trial before the nation. One section, of course, has no right to try another section, especially one like the South that has given scores of great men and millions of soldiers to defense of this country. Nevertheless, the trial which is, in fact, a kangaroo court proceeding, will be carried on in the "liberal" press.

Donald Davidson, long-time professor at Vanderbilt University and one of the great writers of the South and the nation, has written an essay in "National Review" which touches on this trial. In this essay, entitled "The New South and the Conservative Tradition," Prof. Davidson discusses the continuing struggle in which Southerners are involved as they seek to defend the high conservative principles of the American Republic.

Prof. Davidson cites the term "the New South" as one which is but a blunt instrument to inflict damage on this region.

This "New South," he says, "is the North's wishful image of what the North wants any present South to become; and this is, presumably, a South that accepts or submits to Northern views and becomes as much like the North as possible, no matter how great the injury in southern beliefs and principles, no matter how extensive the cost in material and social terms."

The terms "New South" and "Old South" are but straw men that enemies of constitutional government erect with the sole purpose of knocking down, thereby hurting a region that sticks to sound ideas of government.

Southerners, as Prof. Davidson reminds his readers, are enemies of the power state. They are wedded by history to the conviction that American society is not a creature of an all-powerful government; it is a servant not a master of men.

Holding these views southern conservatives have much in common with the new conservatives of the North and West. Only the straw man erected by the "liberals" prevent a common front by conservatives in all regions. Nevertheless, such a front is gradually taking shape.

In the meanwhile, the South remains the bulwark of constitutional government in the United States. It is the storehouse of sound ideas about the way people can live together in state and nation. Prof. Davidson well describes the unique southern contribution.

"The actual South that I know," says Prof. Davidson, "is not enslaved by any theory of the past; but as a somewhat traditional society it retains continuity with its past without being encumbered by it. It is not enslaved by any theory of the future, and in particular it does not accept the kind of futurism which holds that the present must be determined by a distant and unpredictable future. It is therefore quite natural for this actual South to wrestle with problems new and old in an earnest, tough-minded, pragmatic way, for that is indeed the way the South believes it should be avoided."

This term "the actual South" is one all southerners should remember. It means a region that looks to economic progress both on the farm and in industrial communities, while at the same time seeking to preserve faith in limited government and the rights of the individual to determine his way of life without dictation by any federal bureaucracy or leftist oligarchy in judicial robes.

Santa Fe, N. M., founded in 1610, is the oldest state capital in the United States.

Sharp Political Notes Dulled By Profusion

We have only one request to make of the next President of the United States, be he Nixon, Kennedy, or some longshot we haven't heard about yet.

We would like him to forbid the State Department to issue any sharp notes, as they are called, to Russia or any of the other Red countries.

In the past ten years, the State Department has issued thousands of sharp notes, and if any of them have produced happy or fruitful results, the Department has never said so. They are written, made public, mailed, and that's the last ever heard of them.

Notes have been sent to the Reds about almost everything. There have been blockade notes, prisoner of war notes, and notes concerning the shooting down of unarmed planes. Also notes dealing with the grabbing of American property and American citizens, the shipping of arms, the suspicious presence of trawlers over underwater cables, and the ruthless crushing of freedom-seeking people.

The Reds pay about as much attention to these sharp notes as a tiger would to a slap on the wrist, or a cat to his own purr.

They file them and forget. Either that or they write a sharper note of their own to the U.S., and then go on about business as usual.

If the State Department doesn't send sharp notes, then what shall it send?

I say anything. Send dull notes. Send long, windy, boring notes. Send bread-and-butter letters. Anything is to be preferred to these ineffective sharp notes. Send the Declaration of Independence engraved on the head of a pin, or a pound of butter, or a set of place mats — but don't send sharp notes.

The U.S. must have spent millions of dollars on stationery for these notes, thousands on ink, and more thousands on diplomatic couriers who deliver them. All for nothing. All a waste of money and effort.

To make a sharp note any good, it must be backed up. The receiver must be given to understand that behind the note is a country which means what it says, and is willing to take firmer action if ink and paper is not sufficient.

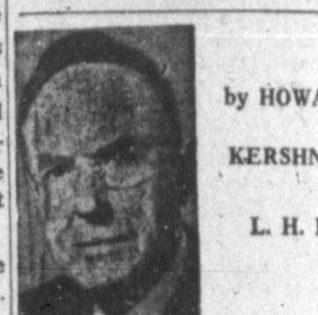

I often wonder what the United States plans to do if Castro seizes, say, our naval base in Cuba, for which we hold a legitimate lease. Will he get the customary sharp note of protest and nothing else? Will we let the base go by the boards after protesting to the UN and asking the other Latin American countries to go on record as saying Castro is a naughty boy with a beard?

If this country is in a battle for survival, as both our leaders and our enemies say we are, isn't it time to forget chivalry every once in a while, and get down to the business of surviving?

The days when promises meant something appear to be dead.

As is the day when a country could play the role of the fine,

It's Up To You

Christians Set School Goals

The early Christians would not send their children to the pagan schools of Rome; but insisted on creating schools of their own. They also prepared literature for their children that, of course, proclaimed the true God and His son, Jesus Christ, and avoided all mention of the current pagan gods of the time.

It is doubtful that Christianity would have survived had not the early followers of Christ made this great sacrifice in order to provide the right kind of education and Christian training for their children.

Surely this devotion is a lesson for us today. In many cases our schools have become pagan. Not long ago a speaker of our acquaintance was admonished not to mention God or Jesus Christ in his high school talk. Another was told that the pledge of allegiance to the flag was no longer made in the high school in which he was speaking because the authorities objected to the mention of God in the pledge.

In many of our schools there is no Bible reading, no prayer, no singing of hymns, not even Christmas carols. In other words, many of our schools have been paganized. Under such conditions, Christian civilization will survive. We are losing respect for the moral law of God without which free institutions and free government are not possible.

Unless men practice the Golden Rule and refrain from coveting, stealing and exploiting one another free government cannot succeed. For men to practice these virtues they must have careful and persistent training in early childhood. If children are not so taught in the five-day school week it is difficult to convince them on the other two days that Christian concepts are important. Action speaks louder than words and if this important part — the most important part — of education is omitted from their school work we can hardly convince them of its supreme importance.

Institutional Buying Seen For Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spear & Staff, Inc. feels that the low point for the decline will come in the 500-550 area and that institutional buying will be attracted there. Noting that institutional buying has propped up the market previously, Arthur Weisenberger & Co. says the time will come, and may have arrived, when buying of this sort will prove insufficient to stem a wave of acute and insistent liquidation. If this is true, Weisenberger says, we probably face a period of still lower prices and the probability of a good short-term buying opportunity for an intermediate term rise — perhaps late next month prior to the elections.

S. B. Lurie of Josephthal & Co. thinks that a speculative case can be made for Chrysler around 42 on grounds that an excellent job has been done in cutting costs to fit the present product mix. If the new cars catch the public fancy, 1961 profits could markedly exceed 1960 results of better than $4 a share, he says.

Massachusetts investors growth stock fund reported a 5 per cent increase in per share value in the third fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31 of a year ago. During the quarter new investments were made in American Photocopy, Connecticut General Life Insurance, Fairchild Camera, Middle South Utilities and Mites Laboratories.

NORFOLK, Conn. (UPI) — John Van Antwerp MacMurray, 79, retired career diplomat who served as ambassador to China, Turkey and the Baltic states, died Sunday.

LONDON (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Ismail Ibrahim Chundrigar of Pakistan died Sunday night of a heart ailment. He was 63.

News Briefs

WEATHER NETWORK READY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first stage of a global weather communications network will go in operation April 1. It will link New York with Moscow, Frankfurt-Offenbach, Germany, and New Delhi, India. Tokyo will be tied in next spring to complete the Northern Hemisphere hookup.

SMUGGLING BRINGS FINE
CALCUTTA, India (UPI) — The American owners of the Liberian-registered freighter Ruth Everett were fined more than $350,000 Monday for smuggling 17,000 ounces of gold on the ship from the Far East.

Hitchhiker Slashes Two Dallas Cops

DALLAS (UPI) — A 35-year-old Columbus, Miss., man who hitched a ride to Dallas Love Field in a police car suddenly pulled a knife and slashed two patrolmen across the back of their necks last night. The man then leaped from the car and fled, but he was arrested a short time later and taken to jail for psychiatric examination. The two patrolmen wounded were Harvey Barham, 28, and Thomas H. Willingham, 25. They were taken to Baylor Hospital for treatment. Hospital attendants said Willingham had a severe laceration across the back of his neck. Barham was less seriously wounded. Police said the man had "plenty of money" to buy his plane ticket, but when Willingham and Barham took him to the airport, he told them he had changed his mind, explaining he was afraid of airplanes. A few minutes later he pulled a pocket knife and slashed them. No charges were filed immediately.

Elected with him were Winifer Nowlin, vice-president; Barbara Halley, secretary; Betty Williams, treasurer, and Betty Sue Lewis and Doug Burrell were named to the student council. Mickey Archer was elected president of the junior class. His officer panel includes: Joe Clarke, vice-president; Alma Lee Clemmons, secretary; Barbara McDowell, treasurer, and student council members Karen Priest and Kenneth Miller. Sophomores chose Anthony McCool, president; Karen Carruth, vice-president; Amy Earhart, secretary; Doris Halley, treasurer, and Ann Stubblefield and Rodney Arrington, member of the student council. Shires Cable was elected president of the Freshman group. His aides are Caron Terry, vice-president; Don McCool, secretary and Terry Bromlow, treasurer. Fire Prevention Week Announced

LEFORS (Spl) — Fire Prevention Week at Lefors will be held Oct. 9-15, Paul Blankenburg, fire marshal, said this week. Plans for the week were discussed at Thursday night meeting of the Lefors Volunteer Fire Department. At that time it was decided to prepare fire prevention displays at the fire department. Painting of fire hydrants and street curbs will be the next project of the organization. Fred Cullen, drill master, talked on proper ventilation, stressing the fact that proper ventilation can cause a fire to do little damage, while improper ventilation may create a major blaze. Blankenburg reported on the Panhandle Fire Convention which he attended Sept. 13 at Hereford.
