Sadat Threatens To Resume War

Demos Demand New Guarantees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Demands grew today among Senate Democratic leaders for guarantees that a new Watergate special prosecutor would not be subject to being fired by President Nixon.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., assistant Democratic leader, said, "I think the Congress ought to insist on legislation vesting authority for the appointment of the special prosecutor in the (U.S.) District Court."

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., regarded as a possible 1976 Democratic presidential candidate, said in a speech to a Democratic gathering in Philadelphia, "It has become painfully clear that no guarantees from Richard Nixon on the prosecutor's independence would be acceptable. The only guarantees that Congress and the American people can settle for are those written into legislation by Congress itself."

Senate Democrats, at a caucus Tuesday night, voted approval of a resolution endorsing proposals calling for reestablishment of the post of special prosecutor — appointed by Judge John J. Sirica — independent of both the executive and legislative branches.

The resolution was sponsored by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee. This followed a suggestion by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield that the committee's life be extended beyond its scheduled expiration early next year, and its mandate expanded to all matters pursued by the office of fired Prosecutor Archibald Cox, not just 1972 presidential campaign activities.

No action was taken on the Mansfield suggestion during the 2½ hour meeting of the Democratic senators, but Byrd, the No. 2 leader, indicated today he did not favor Mansfield's proposal.

Byrd said on the NBC Today Show he felt the committee would have "ample time to go into all matters" before its mandate expires.

The Watergate committee resumed its hearings today into so-called "dirty tricks" in the 1972 campaign, while the Senate Judiciary Committee met for the third day in connection with its investigation of the Cox firing.

Nixon said Friday a new prosecutor would be appointed this week, and said he would have broad independence.

FOR HALLOWEEN

Nation Preparing Tricks Or Treats

By JAMES R. KING
United Press International
Spooks on trick-or-treat raids this Halloween night will coerce residents in California out of $13 million worth of candy and other favors, but in case that is not enough to keep goblins from vandalizing homes in San Francisco, 100 extra police will be on duty.

Local youngsters who go trick or treating tonight were urged earlier in the week by Pampa's assistant police chief George Wallace to be careful and watch out for traffic.

Everyone can have fun and still be safe, Wallace said. He also said the parents of small children should accompany them on their rounds, even if they do not leave their own block.

In Cincinnati, Ohio, and La Canada, Calif., youngsters have sold "Goblin Insurance" for up to $1 per homeowner. And in Cowan, Tenn., hit hard by vandals last year, city officials have imposed a 7:30 p.m. curfew.

There is no Halloween curfew in New York City, but the city's safety council advised trick-or-treaters to make their rounds before dark so they won't get mugged and have to have their parents inspect the goodies they bring home.

New York Health Commissioner Joseph Cimino warned parents to be especially leery of walnuts, saying they could be poisoned. Cimino said a bag of walnuts coated with squirrel poison was stolen during the weekend.

High school students in Cincinnati reported a booming business Tuesday in 35-cent "Halloween Insurance" policies. If the insured house is visited by pranksters, the student seller promises to clean up garbage, eggs, soaped windows or other messes caused by youngsters who take trick-or-treating literally.

Profits will be used by a Maderira High School club which arranges exchange visits between U.S. and foreign students.

"It's much more profitable than I ever dreamed," said Jan Krippes, a German teacher and faculty adviser for the group.

Chamber Leaders Urged To Look To The Future

By TEX DEWEESE

Pampa Chamber of Commerce officials and civic leaders need to think more about what they intend to do than what they already have done, Rex McAnelly, incoming president, told an audience of 600 persons last night as he took over the helm at the chamber's 48th annual banquet in M.K. Brown Civic Center.

McAnelly, manager of Moody Farms, pointed to Gray County's growth in agribusiness from less than $4 million in 1954 to a projected $40 million in 1973 and said:

"I'm hoping in the year ahead we can do some of the things that need to be done and that a decade from now we can look back and say 1973 was the year when we got started."

Referring to Pampa's long-time slogan, "Where wheat grows and oil flows," the new chamber president pointed to the current year's excellent wheat crop and stepped up activity in oil.

"We are fortunate to live here with wheat and oil," McAnelly said.

Other officers who assumed their duties at last night's banquet were Gene Steel, vice president, and Melvin Kunkel, finance director.

Dr. W.C. Newberry, director of student teaching at Southwest State University, San Marcos, was the banquet speaker. He told his listeners that one of the biggest troubles today is that the American people are what he termed "over-problemated."

"We are even creating non-problems — letting creeping tensions bug us, allowing little things to bother us."

"There is much tension and confusion in the world today. The economy is confusing, there is confusion among us about what makes a fine community."

"It is not the size of a community that counts, it is what the individual citizen gives to a community that makes it — and that is accomplished through education. Education is a birth-to-death proposition."

Dr. Newberry said the key decision in life for everyone to make is the decision about God. "I encourage you to make it," he said. "It is either 'yes' or 'no.' There are no problems the American people do not have the talent to defeat if they have the courage and faith to tackle them."

Dr. Newberry, known as the Sage of the Southwest, spiced his talk with a large dash of humor and was well received by the largest audience ever to attend a Pampa Chamber of Commerce banquet.

Another outstanding feature of the evening was the $1.5 million Cowboy Hall of Fame art exhibit brought to Pampa from Oklahoma City especially for last night's chamber guests. It was to remain on public display until 5 p.m. today.

Mrs. Nona Payne of Pampa, a member of the Cowboy Hall of Fame board, was introduced along with others from the Cowboy Hall of Fame including Jasper Ackerman, Colorado Springs, Colo., honorary chairman of the board; Dean Krakel, managing director; Richard Muno, art director; Ronald Rayburn, deputy director; Tom English, curator, and William Wilson, public relations director, all of Oklahoma City.

Entertainment was by the Pampa High School Concert Choir and Stage Band under direction of John Wojcikowski and Jeff Doughten with dinner music by organist Sue Higdon. Rev. Fr. Francis J. Hines gave the invocation.

Guests from Amarillo, Borger, Dumas, Follett, McLean, Miami, Perryton, Tulia, El Reno, Okla., and Boston, Mass., were introduced by vice president Steel.

Members of the chamber staff were introduced and the entire assemblage paid a moment of silent tribute to the memory of Mrs. Marguerite McLeod, long-time staff member who died three weeks ago.

By United Press International
Egyptian President Anwar Sadat threatened today to resume the war if the Israelis do not return to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines, but he said he would restrain his army pending outcome of intense diplomatic negotiations in Washington.

His Cairo statement coincided with the departure for Washington of Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir with the reported intention of pressing President Nixon not to bow to Soviet and Egyptian demands for such a pullback, which would free the trapped 20,000-man Egyptian 3rd Army.

Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger were conferring with acting Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin. Nixon will meet with Mrs. Meir on Thursday and Kissinger will visit Cairo next Tuesday and Wednesday.

At the heart of the current impasse is Israel's demand for the immediate release of captured prisoners of war, an issue so emotionally charged in Israel that diplomatic sources said Mrs. Meir would give it top priority in her Washington talks.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan announced Tuesday there would be an immediate exchange of wounded prisoners, but Sadat said there would be no exchange until Israel pulls back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines.

There also was the fear in Tel

Aviv that Israel's freeing of the trapped 3rd army would enable Cairo to turn a military defeat into a political victory and increase Arab demands for a return to the boundaries that existed before the 1967 Six Day War.

Another issue began taking on added importance — an Arab blockade of the Red Sea to cut off Israel's imports of oil and other supplies from Africa and the Far East. One of the major causes of the 1967 Arab-Israeli war was the Egyptian blockade of the port of Eilat. Diplomatic and defense sources in Britain speculated that the blockade may have been one of the reasons for dispatch of U.S. 6th Fleet ships to the Indian ocean.

French President Georges Pompidou said today attempts by the United States and the Soviet Union to settle world crises such as the Middle East conflict are dangerous and Europe must be allowed to play a role. He called on France's European partners to agree promptly to regular summit meetings — the first to be held before the year's end — to gain a hearing in world affairs.

Sadat told a Cairo news conference the Egyptian army is ready to storm through and "finish off the Israelis" on the west bank of the Suez Canal if they do not return to the Oct. 22 positions. It was his first public statement since Oct. 16 when he announced that his condition for a cease-fire was the immediate withdrawal of the Israelis to the borders that existed before the June 1967 war.

"I am restraining my military men because I am awaiting the outcome of what is going on in Washington now and also the visit of Kissinger to Cairo," Sadat said.

He announced Kissinger would visit Cairo Nov. 6-7 as part of a tour of Middle East countries before he goes to Peking for talks with Premier Chou En-lai.

Referring to the Israeli positions on the west bank of the Suez Canal, Sadat said:

"This is a pocket which is doomed. This is well-known in military circles — but we want peace."

"I am restraining my military men with great difficulty because they want to liquidate this pocket and consider it an easy job. The Israelis themselves know this. They have told some people their position is fragile."

"But I do not want to break the cease-fire."

Sadat said this situation was the reason for Fahmy's visit to Washington.

The Egyptians say that in the two days following the Oct. 22 cease-fire Israeli tanks thrust southward along the canal to Suez City, cutting off some 20,000 troops of the Egyptian 3rd Army on the east bank of the canal from their supplies.

Cates Attends State Meeting

State Rep. Phil Cates of Pampa attended the recent Governor's Conference on Rural Development in Austin, the purpose of which was to assist local governments in providing essential public services for citizens, and overcoming financial, social, and environmental problems.

Several workshop sessions were held to familiarize legislators with problems in rural development. Workshops included economic development, housing, natural resources, transportation, health, education, human resources and general government.

Rep. Cates commented, "Gov. Briscoe is exerting positive leadership through programs such as the Conference on Rural Development. This is impressive that in this day and time, when absence of strong leadership at certain levels of government is rampant, our governor exerts this interest in our rural problems and needs."

Cates will again be in Austin tomorrow to attend the presentation of the proposed new Constitution to the House of Representatives.

TALKS WITH NIXON

Saxbe Could Get Atty. Gen. Offer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Saxbe, the outspoken Republican from Ohio, emerged from an hour-long meeting with President Nixon today and said he was "relatively sure" that he would be nominated as the next attorney general.

put Saxbe said he would welcome the challenge of pulling the demoralized Justice Department together again and indicated announcement of his nomination was simply waiting routine checks.

"I'm relatively sure," he said when asked if he would be nominated. "I don't want to be presumptuous and say I've got it in the bag."

Saxbe, who once said he thought the President had "taken leave of his senses" during the Christmas 1972 bombing of North Vietnam, said he had a candid discussion with Nixon and received assurances that the President's own actions regarding the Watergate affair have been proper.

In addition, Saxbe said he had been assured he would have the independence to do a proper job.

"I'm satisfied any necessary information will be made available from presidential tapes and documents," Saxbe told newsmen in an impromptu news conference on the front drive of the White House.

Saxbe, 57, recently announced he would not run again for the Senate when his term expires at the end of next year, but wanted to return to his Ohio cattle farm. He had served three years as attorney general for Ohio.

Saxbe said he expected a formal announcement on his appointment "in a day or so."

He said he told Nixon he had no particular candidate to be special Watergate prosecutor and "didn't want to be consulted until such time as they select somebody."

City Brush Fire Threatens Los Angeles Neighborhoods

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The worst city brush fire of the season roared out of control today along the fringe of an expensive neighborhood near the Pacific Ocean, leaping streets and roads and forcing the evacuation of hundreds of homes.

Officials said the blaze had eaten through more than 700 acres along a four-mile front. They threw 124 canopies into the battle.

Flames crackled through brush up to 12 feet high, tongues of fire curling 50 feet into the air as the blaze shifted directions several times.

"It doesn't look very good at this point," said Battalion Chief Les Evans.

The fire was driven by hot, "Santa Ana" winds gusting southwestward at up to 20 miles per hour, but in hot spots the fire was generating its own air currents of up to 40 m.p.h., fire officials said.

Ordinarily the wind in Southern California comes off the Pacific, bringing cool ocean air, but the "Santa Anas" reverse the flow, with hot, dry air from the deserts spilling westward

Gray County Commissioners Plan Meeting

The Commissioners' Court of Gray County will meet tomorrow at 10 a.m. in regular session to canvass the results of last week's special consolidation election in the Alanreed and McLean Independent School Districts.

Other items on the agenda include considering bids for a Precinct Three pickup and considering authorizing bids on a pickup for Precinct Two.

Also to be discussed are the approval of a clerk for the district judge and consideration of a salary adjustment for the chief deputy district clerk for October.

Also, consideration of a resolution on constitutional dedication of highway funds to the Texas Constitutional Convention requested by the Texas Good Roads Association, consideration of payment of a refund from the county general fund to the county depository for interest paid in error and consideration of a change in welfare grants as requested by the county welfare department.

A study session on the 1974 budget will begin at 2 p.m. in the Courthouse.

Committee Cautious About Impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee appears ready to move quickly on the nomination of Gerald R. Ford to be vice president, but politics may bog down action on impeachment of President Nixon.

So far the committee has made only procedural moves on the impeachment question, deciding for example to vest subpoena power solely in its chairman, Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., instead of sharing it with Republicans.

Rodino hopes to move quickly on legislation to create a new special Watergate prosecutor, and there may be a final House vote on Ford shortly after Thanksgiving.

Then the committee should be ready to begin a planned "inquiry" on whether formal impeachment moves against the President should go ahead.

But despite many telegrams and letters urging impeachment, it appeared the committee, as well as the full House, had little stomach to proceed with it.

Highway Patrol Issues Figures For Accidents

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 20 accidents on rural highways in Gray County during the month of September, according to Sergeant J.L. Dalrymple, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area.

These crashes resulted in two persons killed and 14 persons injured.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the first nine months of 1973 shows a total of 175 accidents resulting in 14 persons killed and 97 persons injured.

The rural traffic accident summary for the 60 counties of the Lubbock Department of Public Safety Region for September, 1973 shows a total of 601 accidents resulting in 24 persons killed and 364 persons injured as compared to September, 1972 with 561 accidents resulting in 21 persons killed and 335 persons injured.

This was 40 more accidents, three more fatalities, and 29 more injured in 1973 at the same period of time.

The 24 traffic deaths for the month of September, 1973 occurred in the following counties: Five each in Hardeman and Montague Counties; two each in Palo Pinto and Gray Counties; and one each in Cochran, Floyd, Hale, Knox, Parker, Wise, Armstrong, Hansford, Ochiltree and Potter Counties.

Netherlands Limiting Sunday Drivers As Oil Crisis Grows

By United Press International
The Netherlands, coping with a cutoff of oil from Arab nations, has announced a ban on Sunday driving.

The ban, which starts next week, is the second to affect Dutch motorists as a result of Mideast tension. In 1956, they were forbidden to drive on Sundays for 10 weeks because of Anglo-French intervention in the Suez which closed the Suez canal.

There will be exceptions, and Dutchmen have been lining up for special permission to drive on Sundays, but for most motorists the Sunday pleasure trip will be put off for a while.

The Arab oil nations said they were boycotting the Netherlands because of its pro-Israeli stand in the Mideast War.

The Netherlands also is restricting heating fuel deliveries and has a standby gasoline rationing plan ready if other measures are needed.

In Beirut, Arab oil sources said there would be no policing of the boycott of petroleum shipments to the United States. One official said the Western oil companies operating in the Arab world would avoid secret shipments to the United States since they then would have to explain to other countries they are shortchanging where the oil has gone.

Arab nations also have ordered partial cuts in shipments to other Western nations.

U.S. Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton warned that Americans might have to buy long underwear if the nation does not begin producing more of its energy needs.

"The American consumer is going to have to realize that America has no choice but to regain energy self-sufficiency," Morton said.

"We have suggested long underwear because it will be a long winter for some this year," he said.

Bell Demonstrator Gives Program For Kiwanians

Harnessing sound for use by man was the theme of a program presented by Southwestern Bell Science demonstrator Roy Wickerham to the Top o' Texas Kiwanis Club on Tuesday evening.

The program, entitled "The Science of Sound," traced the development of the telecommunications industry from Alexander Graham Bell's early telephone to modern day computers that talk.

Wickerham outlined the basic principles of human hearing and illustrated how these were applied to the development of the telephone.

"The quality of telephone transmission and reproduction has improved tremendously through the years," he said.

"But the basic concept behind electrical sound reproduction is essentially the same today as it was when Bell used these principles in inventing the telephone in 1876 — almost 100 years ago."

Wickerham discussed Bell Laboratories research in the recording industry, pointing out such Bell inventions as the transistor and "talking" motion pictures. One of the latest advances he mentioned is an invention called a harmonic compressor.

The harmonic compressor allows blind people to "speed hear" at 400 words per minute. "The harmonic compressor doubles the recorded speed, while retaining normal voice pitch," he said.

Wickerham told the group that sound research is being applied to making computers "talk." He noted that such computers are being used in some locations to give callers the correct phone numbers when they dial a disconnected phone number.

"We promise to do our best to serve you, and to try to meet — and anticipate — all your communications needs, on an individual, person-to-person basis," Wickerham said.

Gary Stevens, Southwestern Bell manager for Pampa, explained that Wickerham travels the western half of Texas demonstrating Bell System innovations.

"His 15 years' technical experience and his periodic visits to Bell Laboratories make him well qualified to discuss what's happening in Bell System technology today," Stevens said.

36 Residents Vote Absentee

Thirty-six Pampa residents have voted thus far in the absentee balloting for the constitutional amendments election to be conducted Nov. 6. County Clerk Wanda Carter said today.

Deadline for absentee balloting is Friday at 5 p.m. Voters who will be out of town Nov. 6 may vote in the County Clerk's office in the Courthouse.

Mrs. Carter also reminded voters to transfer their registration certificates at the tax office if they have recently moved into the county or from one precinct to another within the county.

Statute requires that such transfer be made at least four days prior to an election in which the voter wishes to participate. Thus, the transfer must be made by 5 p.m. Friday when the tax office closes.

Dear Abby

Minister gives thanks for defending lifestyle

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I want to express my gratitude to you for having the courage to repeat your statement that homosexuality is NOT a "sickness."

I am the director of Adult Ministries for the United Methodist Church in the Hawaii district, and am long past the age when I might appeal sexually to either a female or another male.

Abby, you put to shame some of my so-called "fellow Christians," who have so completely forgotten the teachings of Jesus, that they would deny God's love and compassion for the millions of people who live a lifestyle different from their own.

Thank you, Abby. Whether you believe in Jesus or not, his love shines on you when you write such columns.

FRED R. METHERED

MY DEAR REV. METHERED: Thanks, I needed that!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who has just started to date. I don't go steady with any one guy, but there is one I see more of than the others. I like him a lot, but this dude's hands are quicker than the eye and if I let him kiss me, he'll know I know it, his hands are all over me.

CAREFUL

DEAR CAREFUL: When he gets busy with his hands, tell him to cut it out. And if he doesn't, get busy with your foot, and kick him out.

DEAR ABBY: About the girl who wanted to have her nose pierced over her parents' objections: I say, let her! It isn't painful, and if it is properly done, no infection should result.

I spent two years in India on an assignment, and while I was there I had my nose pierced in order to wear a small gold ring in it. It is the custom for women and girls in India.

After I returned to the States, wearing the ring in my nose, I was the object of curious stares and many rude remarks, so I removed it. However, I still have the tiny hole in my nose, and will wear the ring in it if it ever becomes the fad or fashion here.

HOLE IN MY NOSE IN LONG BEACH

DEAR HOLE: Of course, one never knows, but I doubt if nose rings will ever catch on in the States.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him "T") took his life and left me with three minor children. Before "T" was buried, the vultures moved in to pick the bones.

A friend called the morning of the funeral and said if I planned to sell the house to please give him a chance to bid on it.

At the funeral parlor, another "friend" asked me what I was going to do with T's gun collection. Imagine the insensitivity of this man, knowing that my husband killed himself with a gun!

It's been only a week and I have had offers for everything from his clothes to his garden tools.

Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. I was ready to explode. I don't have to sign my name. Everybody in town knows who I am.

Nutritious Halloween Treats

COLLEGE STATION — Halloween treats can be good for trick-or-treaters — as well as good-to-eat.

"Provide a real treat this year with nutritious snacks such as fruit or cookies," Mrs. Karen Walker, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, suggested.

The traditional treat — candy — is high in calories but low in many other nutrients essential for good health and growth.

"Although a good source of carbohydrates, candy furnishes very few vitamins and minerals. In addition, eating sweets frequently can contribute to tooth decay.

"Growing youngsters — and adults — need protein to build and repair body tissues. Vitamins and minerals help keep the body strong, and carbohydrates and fats provide energy," the specialist emphasized.

"A piece of fruit costs about the same as a candy bar but provides a nutrition bonus of vitamins and minerals.

"Oranges are excellent sources of vitamin C, which holds body cells together and helps heal wounds. Dried apricots, on the other hand, provide vitamin A, which helps a person see in the dark.

"Peaches, plums, grapes and bananas also make good snack stuffers," Mrs. Walker added.

"Cookies containing peanut butter — a source of protein — make good treats, as do oatmeal and raisin cookies. Oatmeal furnishes B-vitamins that aid digestion.

The specialist also offered a recipe for nutritious, tasty homemade peanut butter chews.

Mix together 1 1/4 cup instant non-fat dry milk, 1/4 cup powdered sugar, 1 cup peanut butter and 1 cup corn syrup. Press out one-half inch thick in a pan. Cut into 24 pieces. Chill before serving.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

As avid Western story fans we like to see the desperado get what is coming to him at the end of the story.

Most North-South pairs in the duplicate game reached six notrump and went down one since in all instances West made a safe lead and there was no way for declarer to collect 12 tricks.

Top score went to the South player who struggled into six hearts after a desperado's three-diamond overcall.

We mean struggle. North and South were playing together for the first time. North wasn't sure if his partner's five-heart bid was a response to Blackwood or an effort to show a second four-card major suit, but he did bid six hearts on the theory that if South did not hold four hearts he would go to six notrump.

South won the club in dummy and played dummy's ace of hearts. He assumed that if anyone held four hearts it would be East. When East followed with the 10, South paused a while and then led a heart to his king. East showed out and the heart slam which would have been a lay down against a 3-2 trump break became a tough one to make, but South saw a way out of his troubles.

He simply played his ace and queen of diamonds. West was on lead with the king and for want of anything better to do, led a third diamond. South ruffed; finessed against the jack of trumps; pulled West's last trump while discarding a losing club from his hand and claimed the rest.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:				31
West	North	East	South

Pass	4♠	Pass	?

You, South, hold:

What do you do now?

A—Bid four spades. Since your partner could have raised clubs directly he is showing slam interest and you should be thinking about seven.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner continues to five diamonds. What do you do now?

Hollaway-Winegeart Pledge Nuptial Vows

MRS. JIMMY DALE WINEGEART
...nee Miss Glenda Hollaway

Nuptial vows were exchanged Friday, Oct. 5 at 7 p.m. in the First Christian Church by Miss Glenda Hollaway and Jimmy Dale Winegeart of Miami.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hollaway, 1101 Gwendolyn, Pampa, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.E. Winegeart of McLean.

THE CEREMONY

Officiating for the double ring ceremony was the Rev. J.W. Duke of Hobart, Okla. Mrs. Gary Johnson Amarillo, pianist, accompanied Mrs. Don Dorsette, Amarillo, as she sang, "Walk Through This World With Me," "Take My Hand," and "Whither Thou Goest." Other wedding selections were "Bridge Over Troubled Water" and "My Love."

Church decorations were two nine-branched candelabra with chimney glass over gold tapers flanked by two horseshoe floral arrangements with bronze and gold mums entwined with greenery and ribbon banners inscribed with the couple's names—Pew markers were coiled lariat ropes with corsage styled centers.

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor-length gown of dotted Swiss styled with a high neckline, long leg-of-mutton sleeves and enhanced with tiny satin buttons and a fitted waistline.

The skirt, gathered at the waist, was complemented with a wide ruffle at the hemline. Lace and seed pearls enhanced the neckline, sleeves and hemline of the gown. Her floor-length veil of illusion cascaded from a small bandeau of lace and seed pearls.

The bride carried out the tradition of something old, new, borrowed and blue with a sixpence in her hose, a gift of Mrs. E.E. McDowell. Something old was a gold diamond solitaire ring, belonging to her great-grandmother; her borrowed Bible, which was brought from the Holy Land, belonging to Mrs. H.C. (Red) Payne, aunt of the bride; and wore the traditional blue garter.

Her gown was designed and created by the bridegroom's mother.

The bride presented a yellow rose to her mother as she approached the altar and performed the same courtesy to the bridegroom's mother as the couple left the church.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Chris Caldwell, Amarillo, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in a blue and white empire styled dress of organza, and carried a horseshoe arrangement of miniature chrysanthemums and daisies.

James Davis served the bridegroom as best man and Johnny Winegeart, brother of the bridegroom, and Cecil Newman, ushered. All male attendants wore western attire.

was covered with a blue satin cloth with a white lace overlay. The centerpiece was a three-branched candelabrum with glass chimneys holding gold tapers with miniature chrysanthemums and shasta daisies. The bride and matron of honor bouquets were placed on the reception table depicting the western motif. Nuts and horseshoe shaped mints were served.

The four-tiered white wedding cake was decorated with horseshoes and blue flowers topped with an authentic gold horseshoe arch of a miniature ceramic bride and bridegroom attired in western clothes which was encircled with miniature gold shasta daisies. The cake was a wedding gift to the couple from Mrs. Bill Cook, who designed and made the cake.

Mrs. James Bradley, Canyon, assisted at the punch bowl, and Mrs. Gary Johnson served the cake for the bridal table.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a gold satin cloth and centered with a cactus floral arrangement. Chocolate cake was served from this table by Mrs. Tom Kesterson, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Donna Winegeart, McLean, sister of the bridegroom, assisted at the coffee service.

Miss Dana Martin, Canyon, registered wedding guests.

For the wedding trip to Santa Fe and Taos, the couple wore matching western suits. The bride lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside at Snyder, Tex., at the Hayes Quarterhorse Ranch.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Pampa High School and attended West Texas State University in Canyon. The bridegroom is a graduate of McLean High School and TSTI of Amarillo with a degree in feedlot and ranch management. Both are employed by the Hayes Quarterhorse Ranch.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS

The bride was recently honored with two miscellaneous showers. One in the home of Mrs. Dub McEndree, 612 Lefors, assisted by the employees of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. The other in the parlor of the First Christian Church, by friends of the bride.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the parents of the bridegroom at Dyer's Bar-B-Q.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS

Out of town guests were Mrs. Tom Kesterson and April, Mr. and Mrs. Don Dorsette, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hollis, Rhonda, Robert and Rodney, Mrs. Joe Phillips, Monty, Mike and Greg, all of Amarillo; Mrs. J.B. Martin, Guymon, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. G.W. James, Lefors; Mr. and Mrs. James Bradley, Canyon; Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Hollaway and Mr. and Mrs. Woody Hubbard, Borger; Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Corbitt, Mrs. Myrtle Smith and Mary, Dixie, Alicia and Phyllis; Mr. and Mrs. Sue Marsh, all of McLean; Rev. and Mrs. J.W. Duke, Hobart, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Parsley, Mona and Roy Don, White Deer; and Mrs. Molly Van Metre, Houston.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, NOV. 1

Your birthday today: Finds you scrambling for ready resources and a better spot for doing long-desired experiments. The uneven, sometimes surprising results are nearly all useful long-term. Relationships definitely need consistent cultivation where you want to maintain them. Most of today's natives are many-sided, complex characters who are unwilling to stay put, friendly but bent on pursuing a life course which makes it almost impossible for the crucial experience to be shared.

Aries (March 21-April 19): If you are to get what you most want, you must make a profound effort to understand all there is to know about your own capabilities, and have faith in yourself.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Today is more propitious for seeking advice than for making moves. Very likely you are disenchanted with what you do. Try the best you can, get finished with it, and go on.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Conditions narrow the area of your work to a few troublesome points which you must resolve before proceeding further. Later hours find you beyond this barrier and on your way.

Cancer (June 21-July 21): Social gatherings, at whatever level, tend to turbulence. Keep calm, deal with valid claims. Today's extra energy may as well be harnessed to your favorite project.

Leo (July 22-Aug. 22): For once, discussing your theories is not the thing to do. Neither is acting alone, for whatever reason. Work situations include changes and an element of tentative plans or doubts.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The creative or experimental move is likely to bring prompt results. Where you have acted on sound information, the outcome is very good. Make the evening a pleasant celebration.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Unprecedented combinations exist today. Your opinion is needed, perhaps some definite action on your part. It's important to get back on your normal schedule at the earliest feasible moment.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What may seem unfriendly or aloof behavior is merely preoccupation with matters beyond your knowledge. Have patience. The answers will appear soon enough for you to react properly.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Temporary expedients work well in most areas of action now. Be wary of lasting, specific commitments. Changes of course in business or politics are probable.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Move early to secure special advantage, better conditions for yourself and those you cherish. The practical approach comes into esteem, yourself along with it if you deserve it.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stick to what you know. Surprisingly, however, some of that turns out different than you thought. Expect others to follow their own ideas instead of yours.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Come to some firm decision quietly. Announce what it is only if necessary or you are asked. Ultimately, you must become the sole judge of your own welfare and how best to further it.

WEDDING-ENGAGEMENT DEADLINE

The following deadlines and procedure on wedding stories will be as follows: For a wedding story to appear in a Sunday edition, information and picture must be turned in to the women's editor by 5 p.m. on the Monday BEFORE the wedding. All wedding stories submitted after that time will appear during the week. Engagement announcements must be submitted by 12 noon Wednesday to appear in Sunday's edition.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Thermal windows won't come clean

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Our new home has double-paned thermal windows. I have repeatedly washed both the inside and the outside of these windows but the panes are dirty on the inside so they do not look as if they had ever been washed. How can I get the glass in between clean as there seems no way of removing the panes short of breaking them? —MRS. H. W.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with dirty grocery and department store baskets. No mother wants to put her child in a very dirty cart. The carts are often not only dirty but the baby seats are broken and the wheels do not want to go the same way you do. I cannot see why the markets do not wash and repair these carts just as they do the floors and windows. Such little gestures mean a lot to their customers. —MRS. B. L. H.

DEAR POLLY — Barbara can mend her baby's plastic pants that are split at the seams by sewing them on her sewing machine with the zigzag stitch. They can be patched by using a piece cut from a pair that is past mending. Zigzag all around the patch, turning under the raw edges and then sew on to the right side of the pants so there is no danger of the patch scratching baby. —MRS. L. W.

DEAR POLLY — I read in a baby magazine that rubber pants can be ironed together so I tried it and it worked. Fold a piece of waxed paper over the edges with the waxy side in and iron with a warm iron until the two sides melt together. Do not get the iron too hot. The iron stays clean and the rubber pants last quite a while longer. —MRS. J. S.

DEAR POLLY — I use waterproof adhesive tape (the kind used on bandages) to repair rips in my baby's plastic pants. The one-inch width works best and stays on for the life of the pants, through MANY hot water machine washings. But I do not put them in the dryer. —RITA

DEAR POLLY — I have used so many of the Pointers that I now want to share one of mine with the others. I have just finished doing a job most of us hate and that can take hours to do. I just defrosted my chest-type deep freeze in ONE hour.

Turn it off and then remove everything. I put the food on a table, wrapped in newspaper, except for things like ice cream that I put in the freezer part of my refrigerator. Two kettles of water were getting very hot while I unloaded the freezer. I connected the hose and poured the boiling water down the sides of the freezer and used a clean plastic dust pan to catch the loosened chunks of ice and then emptied the ice into a bucket that I had put in the freezer so I did not have to wait for all that ice to melt. What little water remained was wiped up with a big towel. The freezer was then wiped out with warm soda water, food was replaced and the freezer turned on in just an hour. When returning food to the freezer, I put a large cardboard box in the end farthest away from the motor and in it I put last year's food and then the rest of the space is ready for new products. —JOYCE.

POLLY'S NOTE: Girls, be certain the freezer is unplugged and that you are not working near any electrical appliances that are plugged in. Handle boiling water carefully to avoid burning yourself. Wash interior of freezer with soap and water and follow with the warm water solution with baking soda and rinse thoroughly. Let dry before replacing frozen food. The important thing is to be careful with the electric appliances and with the boiling water.

Washington faces morale crisis

Federal bureaucracy grumbles but does business as usual

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A story going around the bureaucracy is that two middle-management men, one from the Justice Department and the other from Internal Revenue, recently met for lunch. Before he could fork his salad the taxman asked his friend if he knew of any civilian job openings because "I just can't stomach government anymore." The lawyer, dropping his roll, replied: "I was going to ask you the same thing. I just quit."

workday standards. If the wheels of government moved any slower, as they say, they would be going backwards. The problem does not seem to be one of productivity so much as pride. "What breaks my arm," says a long-time official of the Veterans Administration, "is that I deal with millions of former fighting men who gave up plenty to maintain the standards of this nation. Now I wonder if we have any standards. Nixon is a tyrant who leads us from one bad day to another. Agnew is a convicted felon. Thank God I'm retiring soon."

Others in government are not waiting for retirement. John Stark, a congressional staffer on the Joint Economic Committee, says that morale is so bad "I'm getting lots of people coming to me in search of jobs; they say they've had it with civil service." One man from Justice, who has already handed in a resignation, explains: "There's an odor of fascism from the direction of this administration. I'm getting out so I can tell the world." The outrage is not lost on many who are staying in, either. A young worker with the State Department has a photo of the President on his apartment wall, with a swastika replacing the X in Nixon. An FBI agent is rumored to flash a "Nixon Knows" button at parties. Federal parking lots house occasional autos wearing "Impeach" bumper stickers. A handful of fairly high and quite low bureaucrats have marched in recent days with demonstrators at the White House; says one, chief of special projects at the IRS: "I'm a loyal American and I'm completely disgusted."

Certainly, Ragan adds, there seems no worry civil service about two million applications for government employment this year—and may be six million inquiries. Yet despite denials and continued optimism from on high concerning federal esprit de corps, doubts persist. Two of the three largest government worker unions have gone on record lamenting the emotional condition of their members. The American Federation of Government Employees is currently trying to get the federal loyalty oath changed "from loyal to the President to loyal to the Constitution." The American Society for Public Administrators has publicly "condemned" the effects of Watergate on the well-being and self-esteem of public employees. Says Nathan Wolkomir, President of the National Federation of Federal Workers: "It's not just Watergate, it's everything Nixon's done to discredit public workers. His patronage, his cutbacks, his contempt for the civil service rules. I've been in and out of government for 35 years and I've never seen morale so low. It amazes me that government holds together now at all."

To be sure, all things considered, the persistence of the federal bureaucracy has been amazing in these times. Other nations, with no more problems than America in the early 70s, have collapsed because their civil servants collapsed. But the long abused monolith of federal paper shufflers has responded to crisis, in the words of one unionist, "with what it takes."

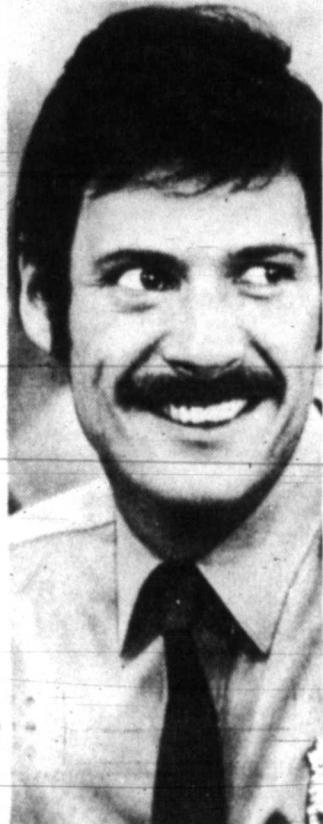

In general, the public workers have been as worried about recent national woes as the public at large. A poll taken last June by the newspaper Federal Times indicated three of four government employees had had their "confidence shaken" by charges against the Nixon administration. Yet the work goes on here, at least no slower or less casually, than before. And though they shake their heads during lunch and perhaps whisper frustrations at coffee time, most bureaucrats seem at their desks quite the same as always, 200 years of always, still handling the business, some of it monkey, of the American people.

How to turn down $1/4 million: It isn't easy, even in Hollywood

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Ron Leibman had a horrible experience the other day. Somebody offered him a lot of money. Leibman is one of the hottest of the new crop of actors. He's only made five films — one still unreleased — but he's made such a big impression that he's as in-demand as sultan lotion in a nudist camp. He's been in "Where's Poppa?" and "Hot Rock" and "Slaughterhouse-Five" and "Your Three Minutes Are Up" and he's co-starring in MGM's big new one, "The Super Cops."

RON LEIBMAN: What do you fellows pay a week?

One thing he hasn't done and doesn't want to do is television. "I'm a perfectionist," he says. "I like having the time to do scenes over. You just don't have time to do that on TV. I've never done any and I don't want to."

mean he'd make roughly a quarter of a million dollars for one season. "I found I was trembling all over," Leibman says. "A quarter of a million is a lot of money. But I turned it down."

Leibman is a New Yorker, the son of a cloak-and-suit, a middle-class kid. But he wasn't happy, for reasons he does not choose to go into. He will say, however, that he was miserable as a boy but considers that an advantage. "Two good things about a miserable childhood," he says. "One is that they leave you alone. And, two, there are always theater tickets around a middle-class house. I went to lots of plays. On one occasion from college — I came to Ohio Wesleyan — I went home and saw 17 plays."

Acting is his life. He only wants to work. He'd like to do only good things but realizes you just can't wait around for a "Death of a Salesman" to turn up. He waited for "The Super Cops." There's talk of it becoming a TV series eventually. But you can bet your bottom quarter-million that Ron Leibman (as of now) won't be in it.

ISTANBUL (UPI) — A snip of a ribbon which officially opened the 3,222-foot span of concrete and steel of the Bosphorus Bridge linked Europe and Asia by road Tuesday for the first time in 2,485 years.

Turkish President Fahri Koruturk cut the ribbon opening the bridge on the second day of modern Turkey's 50th anniversary celebrations.

Farmers Are Urged To Apply Fertilizer

County agent Foster Whaley states that the application of fertilizer this fall, or as soon as possible after harvest, is a matter worthy of immediate consideration and decision.

All reports clearly indicate shortages of nitrogen and phosphate will be with us throughout 1974 and for an undetermined period thereafter, according to Whaley. Contributing to shortages at the dealer level are insufficient supplies of natural gas, fertilizer exports, release of reserve acreage back into production, higher sale prices of crops, and transportation difficulties.

The effectiveness of fall fertilizer application on the heavier soils of the High Plains is well established. On sandy soils, phosphate may be applied in the fall but nitrogen application should perhaps be delayed until spring to prevent possible leaching loss.

use for the next crop. Find out what your soil really needs by having a soil test made on each field. Information on sampling and mailing is available in his office.

Soil test data from the High Plains clearly show that less than half of the soils will respond profitably to applications of phosphate. Applying available material only to deficient areas will stretch the supply without reducing the yield potential.

An appreciable nitrogen carryover may be detected. If this is the case, nitrogen rate can be reduced or in some instances omitted.

Consider using feedlot waste. There is much evidence to indicate that a 10-ton application of "average" manure is sufficient to produce near maximum grain sorghum yields without additional commercial fertilizer.

Plan your fertilizer needs as soon as possible and finalize an agreement with your supplier. Fertilizers have become a major contributor to profitable yields. By keeping the above facts in mind, maximum profits from limited supplies can be realized. Whaley concludes.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite the unsettling influence of fast-breaking news, stock prices generally held their own after the prime rate dropped to 9 1/2 percent from 10 percent, says Alexander Hamilton Institute, Inc. "The decline represents a significant acknowledgement that the long, steady rise in short-term rates has peaked," it continues. The firm advises the investor to commit cash reserves in quality cyclical and money-related stocks.

"The market seems to be proceeding on the assumption that ceasefire can be equated with a free flow of Arab oil," says Standard & Poor's Corp., "but only time will tell if this assumption is correct." Although there is "a huge pent-up demand for stocks and ample funds for investment," uncertainties in the energy picture may impose an element of restraint on the market, the firm continues. "The availability of hydrocarbons will be a key factor in the economic outlook and thus in the investment environment," it adds.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

- Q) Can you deduct contributions to foreign charities?
  - A) No. However, you may deduct contributions to a U.S. organization that transfers funds to a charitable foreign organization if the U.S. organization controls the use of the funds or if the foreign charity is merely an administrative arm of the U.S. organization. Also, contributions made directly to certain Canadian charities are deductible. The organization itself can tell you whether it qualifies.
- Q) Can a foster child qualify as a dependent?
  - A) Yes. A foster child may qualify as your dependent if your home is his principal residence, he is a member of your household for the entire year and the other dependency tests are met, including your furnishing more than half of the child's total support.
- Q) I'm a salesman. Every year, I give each of my customers a little present. Can I deduct these business gifts on my income tax return?
  - A) Expenses for business gifts made to an individual are deductible only to the extent that the total business gifts during the year to that individual do not exceed $25.
- Q) What are the rules for deducting prepaid interest?
  - A) In general, most individual taxpayers who pay interest in advance for a period extend-

Suburbanites Fight Against Farm Life

STERLING HEIGHTS, Mich. (UPI) — Victor Pruehs' dairy farm with its red barn, grazing cattle and earthy smells stand out like an island of the past amid the neat, carbon copy $40,000 homes of his bedroom community.

Pruehs' forebears cleared the land for a homestead in 1872. For the 101 years since, it has been in the family, although the original 80 acres have shrunk to 18 as land was sold to save on taxes.

"I love farming," Pruehs said, his big gnarled hands gently patting the nose of a Shetland pony.

"Watching a heifer calf, the spring crops come up, the seasons change, all that does something to a man. It makes you glad to be alive."

But Pruehs is troubled. His neighbors in the northeast Detroit suburb are unhappy about the farm and the cattle roaming close by to Dodge Park Road and Metropolitan Drive.

Two weeks ago, the city — reacting to their complaints — ticketed Pruehs for "depositing unwholesome substances" on his field.

"They were complaining about cattle manure and I don't know any way you can house train cattle," Pruehs said.

Despite Pruehs' promise to pick up after his cattle, the complaint was lodged in 41st District Court.

Then the city cited another violation — this one when Pruehs installed an electrical fence, prohibited by ordinance.

"Without the fence," said Pruehs, "the cattle would get out of the pasture. It's no harm to anyone."

That ticket was followed last week by another, this one for violating a little-known ordinance which forbids keeping animals or fowl, other than household pets, within 300 feet of a dwelling.

Pruehs said he is convinced the city is forcing him to sell out by a series of harassing tickets. "It's absolutely incredible," he said. "Sterling Heights has been a city for just five years. We've been living on this farm for 101 years."

Police Chief Maurice Foltz said the fact Pruehs' farm existed long before the city was formed "apparently doesn't count. We are bound to enforce the law, whether we agree or disagree."

Pruehs said he, his wife, Kathy, and five children, ranging in age from 20 to 5, are "getting by and that's about all."

The family is not sure what they'll do. They own some acreage near Armada, Mich.

The largest city in Brazil is Sao Paulo.

WORRY CLINIC

Note the coed's aversion to certain classes! Melba's comments should also make many people squirm. For she reveals the subconscious "feeling tone" that can offset a doctor's superb surgery or a manufacturer's splendid merchandise.

CASE Y-557: Melba K., aged 36, is the mother of 3 grammar schoolers.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I have a gripe about my dentist. 'Oh, I'll admit he has a pleasant personality. 'And our children like him very much.

"But he wears a beard and a bushy mustache that droops around the corners of his mouth.

"Such a hairy face certainly doesn't create the impression of sterility or antiseptic surgery! 'So why will doctors imitate the hippie fad and thus alienate good paying customers?"

FEELING TONE

This mother brings out the importance of the proper "feeling tone" in professional practice, as well as in advertising.

Synonyms are words that are "twins" and often capable of being substituted for each other.

But, even so, they have distinctive personalities that often may clash.

For example, you can speak of a "gang of crooks" without violating feeling tone.

Same is true if you talk about a "host of angels."

But note the false note in a "gang of angels!"

Educated Americans abhor a fly in their soup, for they realize that literally millions of germs can attach to the fly's legs as it has crawled over garbage and alley refuse.

Subconsciously, therefore, fastidious folks recoil at the bushy hirsute adornments on the faces of hippies or even doctors.

College coeds also have told me: "Dr. Crane, I almost retch at the thought of being kissed by any man with a bushy mustache or mangy beard and long, unkempt hair!

"Why, I'd rather be kissed through a screen door! 'And you know that certainly would not make a girl feel romantically responsive! 'Why, I can't even enjoy a soda if I am seated across the

TV In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It's a well known fact that television's soap operas have given young performers exposure which often helped their careers.

For example, the distinguished actor Hal Holbrook put in a long stretch in the daytime serial arena.

But network video's religious series have also provided excellent opportunities for performers to hone their skills and be seen.

And this point is stressed by CBS-TV in its announcement that two weekly religious programs on the network, "Lamp Unto My Feet" and "Look Up and Live," are celebrating their 20th anniversary. Both series are presented on Sundays.

"Lamp Unto My Feet" marks its 25th year on the air Nov. 18, and CBS-TV says this makes it "the longest-running religious broadcast on television." And come January, "Look Up and Live" celebrates its 20th anniversary. Both series are presented on Sundays.

And Pamela Iott, director of religious broadcasts for CBS News, says: "Over the years we have displayed the talents of more successful actors and actresses than probably any one dramatic workshop or repertory company in the country."

The network says that the performers who have acted in these series, many in "the early, developmental stages of their careers," include:

George C. Scott, Dick Van Dyke, Steve McQueen, James Earl Jones, Alan Arkin, Peter Falk, Coleen Dewhurst, Arthur Hill, Rod Steiger, Jo Van Fleet, George Segal, Joan Hackett, Warren Beatty and Kim Hunter.

Also: Lloyd Bridges, John Cassavetes, Robert Culp, Herschel Bernardi, Warren Oates, George Peppard, Elizabeth Ashley, Keir Dullea, Jack Lord, Billy Dee Williams, Clarence Williams III, Michael J. Pollard, George S. Irving, Claudia McNeill and Phyllis Newman.

Of the many performers who went on to success, Miss Iott says: "One of the nice things is that most of them remember us. At one time when Mahalia Jackson was making a comeback, I asked her if she would do a program for us. She said, 'Honey, I'll always come for you. You valued me when people thought I was nothing.'"

"Another time," Miss Iott notes in the network's anniversary announcement, "I noticed this gorgeous man uncloak himself and approach my table at Downey's. He said, 'Miss Iott, I don't know if you remember me, but you gave me my first job. Remember him?'"

I'd been bragging about him for 10 years." The man, says CBS-TV, was McQueen.

"Lamp Unto My Feet" and "Look Up and Live" are two-thirds of a trio of consistently fine series that CBS-TV offers on Sunday mornings. The third program is "Camera Three," which concentrates mainly on the arts. When you think that series like these are broadcast on Sunday mornings, while slop like "The Brady Bunch" gets prime time exposure, you begin to believe that the ghost of the mad hatter is guiding too many of the destinies of television.

About one-third of the pollution of Chile is engaged in agriculture but the nation has to import about two-thirds of its food.

Nixon Sponsored Bill For Prosecutor

By GEORGE MARDER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — In 1951, the Truman administration was being rocked by scandals.

The Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee was delving into alleged wrongdoing at the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC).

At least three federal grand juries—in Boston, New York and San Francisco—were conducting criminal investigations.

Internal Revenue Service agents were being suspended and ousted. Reports had it that as many as 60 agents of the IRS and the Justice Department were suspected of irregularities.

Bill Introduced
A freshman member of the investigating subcommittee looking into the RFC scandals introduced a bill to give the chief federal judge in each judicial district the power to name an independent prosecutor at the request of a federal grand jury.

The theory behind the bill: that an administration could not properly investigate and prosecute itself for wrongdoing.

The sponsor of the bill: Richard M. Nixon.

That bill was used in recent days as a model and as justification for congressional moves to get a replacement for Archibald Cox who was fired Oct. 20 by President Nixon.

In the House, the main Democratic measure was introduced by Rep. John C. Culver of Iowa and co-sponsored by 83 colleagues. But moves for an independent prosecutor also drew support from some Republicans, in the House and the Senate.

Culver's Proposal
The Culver bill would limit the authority to the single federal district court now investigating Watergate in Washington. It would give Judge John J. Sirica, or a successor chief judge, the power to name a replacement for Cox.

Sirica is understood already to have the power to name a special counsel for the grand jury. But the Culver bill would transfer to the new prosecutor the Cox files, now in possession of the Justice Department, and would authorize the necessary funds for the independent office.

The Justice Department has already asked Sirica, on its own, to take protective custody of the records.

The Culver bill also would anticipate that Sirica would disqualify himself from sitting as the presiding judge in any trials brought by the prosecutor he named.

The Culver bill is similar to many others introduced in the Senate as well as the House as pressure for an independent prosecutor mounted in Congress just as it did before the appointment of Cox.

The 1951 Nixon bill never was passed, although President Truman did name a special prosecutor, Newbold Morris. Morris, incidentally, also was fired. Then President Truman fired the man who ousted the special prosecutor, Attorney General J. Howard McGrath.

Tom Seaver Won It? No Surprise

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Charlie Finley gives the world a break, decides he'll take a rest for one day, so guess who goes and stirs up another controversy?

Tom Seaver.
He does it without even really trying.

The Mets' clean-cut right-hander doesn't say anything wrong, do anything wrong or even help smuggle anybody on the disabled list. Still, he gets this new controversy going beautifully anyway, and when you get right down to it, his only sin is being named the National League Cy Young Award winner for the second time.

This is the award bestowed annually by the Baseball Writers' Association of America upon the individual they vote the outstanding pitcher in the league. No sooner had the result been made official Tuesday when it immediately produced two diametric factions.

"Tom Seaver won it? No surprise. He's the best there is, isn't he?"

That was from one group.

The bleat from the second was altogether different.

"You mean to say they gave it to Seaver? My God, how could they possibly do that? He didn't even win 20 games!"

True enough.
Tom Seaver won only 19 games for the Mets this year, plus the final and deciding playoff game with Cincinnati, but that doesn't count except at the bank.

What does count is that Tom Seaver pitched 290 innings, which was pretty close to the most in the league, struck out 251 batters, the most in the league, led in earned runs with 2.06 and if all this doesn't add up to the No. 1 pitcher in the league, then I suggest all those who think otherwise go home and do some more arithmetic.

Some people want blood.
The majority of National League hitters will tell you Tom Seaver is the best pitcher period.

Now the Baseball Writers have said the same thing.

I remember Joe Rudi, Oakland's superb leftfielder, making it a point to visit the Mets' dressing quarters 20 minutes after the A's won this last World Series.

He was hesitant when he walked into the room because he didn't know any of the Mets personally. Finally, he spied the man he was looking for—Seaver, sitting glumly in front of his locker.

Joe Rudi bent down to speak with him. He stuck out his hand and said to Seaver:

"It wasn't your fault what happened. You showed us something...all of us. You sure can pitch."

That's only one.
When Dick Williams received the news of Seaver winning the Cy Young Award at his home in Riviera Beach, Fla., he could hardly be happier than had he finally gotten the okay he needs from Charlie Finley.

"I'm delighted he got it," said

Williams. "He's everything they told us he was, and more. He's as good a pitcher as we've seen all year."

Tom Seaver is many things, but he's not insensitive. When he hears such drivel as "Seaver chokes up" and "Seaver never wins the big ones," he never overreacts, but the charges certainly bother him. Naturally they do.

Few people realize how hard he is on himself, how rigidly he disciplines himself.

"If I can give my team a consistent effort every time I go out there, I feel I'm doing my job," he says.

Buddy Harrelson, the Mets' shortstop, is Seaver's roommate. He takes nothing away from Montreal's Mike Marshall, San Francisco's Ron Bryant, the league's only 20-game winner, or Cincinnati's Jack Billingham, who followed in the Cy Young balloting, but he can't see where there's any question about who's the best pitcher in the League.

"Go ask all the other managers in the league," says Harrelson. "Anybody who follows him (Seaver) regularly has to vote for him. He's certainly the most consistent pitcher in the league. I enjoy playing behind him. I know I won't have to play his position. I don't have to worry about charging the balls around the mound.

"Partial? Sure I am. I love the guy. I'd walk a mile for him on nails. I think as much of him as I do my own brother."

Considering that Tom Seaver has taken money regularly from Buddy Harrelson on the golf course ever since the end of the World Series, this perhaps has to rate as the greatest testimonial of all.

Injury Bug Bites PHS

For Buddy Williams' Harvesters, it seems like injuries come in numbers, and this time the epidemic will be keeping five players out of the Borger game Friday.

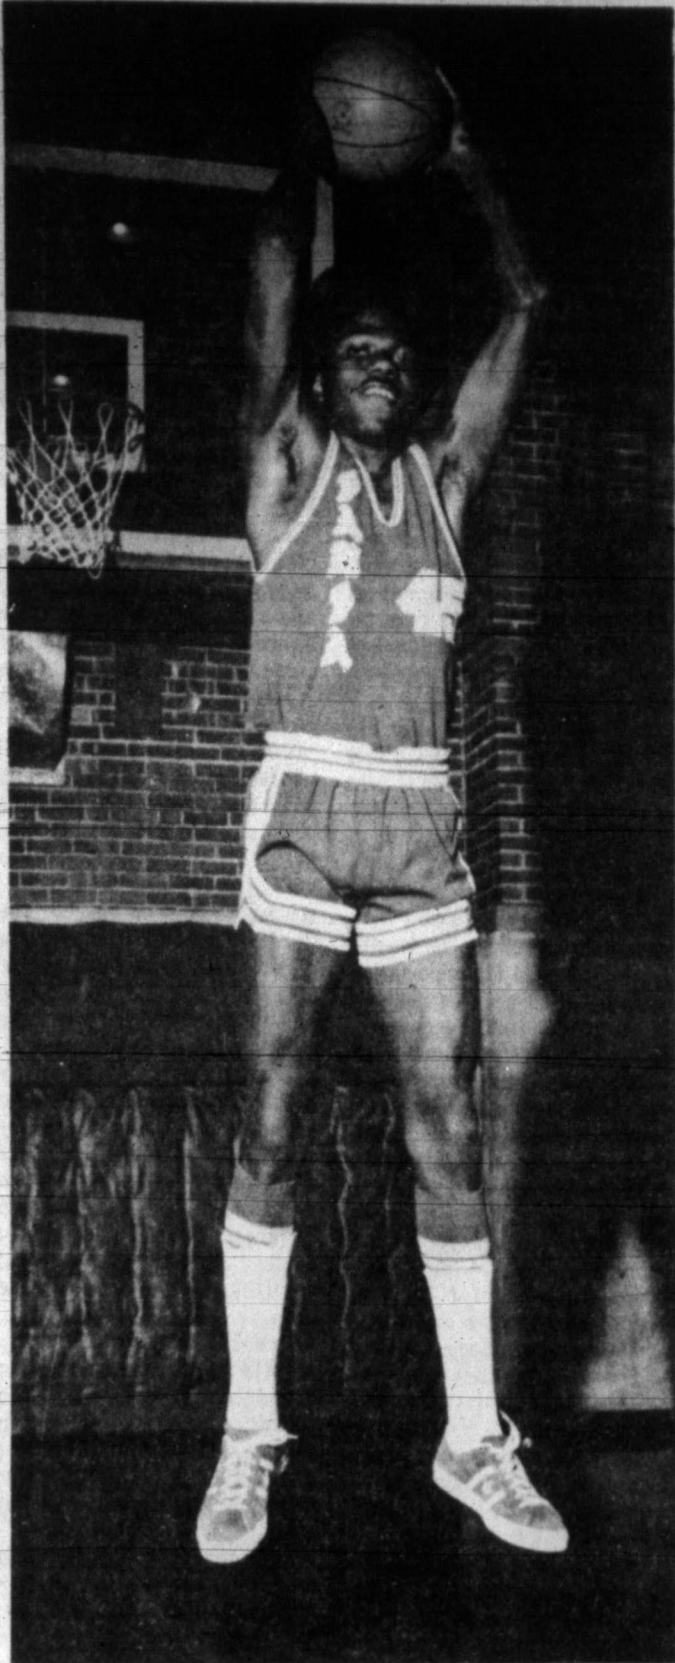

Linebacker David Smith has missed the last four games with calcium deposits in his right arm.

Injured in the Tascosa game Friday were Keith Mitchell, knee; Joe Curtis, ankle and shoulder; Joe Holt, shoulder, and David Hampton, knee. The four are not expected to see action against Borger and their status isn't known for the following two games. Quarterback Chuck Quarles suffered a broken finger on his throwing hand but will start Friday.

Roy Morris will center in place of Hampton. Others who will fill in for the hurt players include offensive and defensive lineman Joe Coats for Mitchell and running back Tim Thornburg for Curtis.

The Harvesters will be going with two new starting linebackers against the Bulldogs — sophomore Frankie Lemons and Coy Freer.

Most birds waterproof the outer layer of feathers by preening themselves with oil taken from a gland near the tail.

MEET A HARVESTER (first in a series) — With Pampa's basketball season fast approaching, Harvesters have been working out afternoons in preparation for it. 6-3 junior postman Billy Wilbon should play an important role in Pampa's hopes of returning to the district throne (co-champs last year with Tascosa). Wilbon started 17 games last season, averaging nine points and over four rebounds a game, while earning Sophomore of the Year honors in 3-AAA. The younger brother of ex-Harvester Freddy Wilbon (last year's Player of the Year in 3-AAA) is described by head coach Robert McPherson as "aggressive, fundamentally sound and one of the best passers on the ball club."

NAMED BY UPI

Ara Best Coach

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — In one respect, three games stand out for coach Ara Parseghian in his 10-year career at Notre Dame.

Saturday's 23-14 victory over defending national champion Southern California is one of them.

The Trojans hadn't lost to the Irish for six years. They went into the game unbeaten in 23 straight games. They had also beaten the Irish in the last three games, denying Notre Dame an unbeaten season in 1970.

Saturday the Trojans fell behind, then moved in front and couldn't hold it against the aroused Fighting Irish.

For his team's performance, for his own part in the decisive triumph, Ara Parseghian was named United Press International's coach of the week.

Then he revealed it took more than 60 minutes of play for his team to win, and he emphasized the word "team."

"I'd have to say it's one of the greatest team efforts that I've ever had," he said. "A team performed for me the entire week of preparation, the student body, everybody on the campus.

The electricity was in the air. There was no question about it that we would be up mentally, and there was a lot of reasons for it, obviously because of what happened in the previous years.

"We'd had our problems with Southern California, hadn't defeated them for three straight years, and we certainly were hopeful of not having it happen for four years in a row."

Still No Passer At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — When Terry Hanratty, grimacing with pain, walked off the field last Sunday after he led the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 20-13 victory over Cincinnati, the first player to console him was the one who hit him.

Linebacker Bill Bergey, who blitzed Hanratty in the third period, put his arm around the quarterback.

"He wanted to know how I felt and he asked me if I thought he had taken a cheap shot at me. I told him he didn't—that it was a clean shot all the way. He seemed relieved," Hanratty said.

"Bill and I have been friends ever since we played on the College All-Star team in 1969," Hanratty said his two bruised ribs on the right side have improved.

"I can raise my arm above my head now," he said. "I hope to start throwing the ball in practice Thursday."

The Steelers have no drills scheduled today and will view films of the Bengal game and of the Washington Redskins, their opponents next Monday night here.

Last year Hanratty saw limited action because he suffered from a hamstring injury. He will start for the first time in two years when he faces Washington.

Hanratty moved up to the starting role because Terry Bradshaw will be out for six weeks with a partially separated right shoulder sustained before he was hit shortly before halftime in the Cincinnati game.

"I don't consider starting a big problem—it's something I must do, it's my job," Hanratty said.

The two Terrys have been roommates on the road for four years and naturally most of their conversation centers on football.

"Bradshaw and I help each other, mostly in the game," he said. "When he comes out of the game he walks over to me and asks 'What do you think? I tell him if I saw any flaws. He does the same for me. You can see better from the sidelines than you can in the game."

"Bradshaw is always open-minded about criticism. I feel the same way—after all we both play for the same team."

Hanratty prefers to throw from the pocket while Bradshaw does not hesitate to scramble if he has the opportunity.

Hanratty said he was fortunate to have good quarterback coaching right along. Tom Pagna, the quarterback coach at Notre Dame, and Babe Parilli, of the Steelers, have helped him.

"Parilli has a keen insight into the game," Hanratty said. "I've picked up certain keys from him and studied his techniques."

Portland Edges Lakers, 114-112

By United Press International
It took them four years but the Portland Trail Blazers and Buffalo Braves each accomplished a first Tuesday night.

Bernie Fryer, a rookie free agent from Brigham Young, sank two free throws with nine seconds to go to insure Portland's 114-112 victory over Los Angeles, giving the Blazers their first regular season win ever over the Lakers after 17 unsuccessful attempts.

Fryer, who pleaded by letter during the summer for a tryout with the Blazers, came off the bench in the third period to spark the Blazers with two steals and two key layups that brought Portland back to life.

Trailing 81-63 with four minutes remaining in the third quarter, Portland cut the margin to 87-79 at the start of the fourth period and finally went ahead 97-95 on a Greg Smith layup with 6:38 remaining.

Geoff Petrie had 26 and Rick Roberson 23 for Portland while Gail Goodrich led all scorers with 35 for the Lakers, followed by Jerry West with 23.

Randy Smith's two free throws with one second left lifted Buffalo past Seattle 105-103, extending the Braves' victory string to four, longest in the four-year history of the team. The victory also pushed the Braves into first place for the first time ever, a half-game ahead of idle Boston in the Atlantic Division.

Accidental deaths in the United States from poisoning by solids and liquids doubled in 10 years to 9,700 in 1972.

17 — Seattle Supersonics

NBA — Pacific Division
1972-73 finish: W 26, L 56 — 4th place

PROSPECTUS: With Bill Russell taking over as coach, there will be sparks in Seattle. "If my players survive training," said Russell, "we'll win." Russell led the Boston Celtics to 11 world championships in his 13 seasons as a player, and won one title in two seasons as playing coach. He says he has this "thing" about winning. Which is obvious. Heretofore, however, the Supersonics have this "thing" about losing, despite having a galaxy of talent. Spencer Haywood is an all-pro, first team. And Jim McDaniels and John Brisker are very highly thought of, individually, at least. It is good to have Russell back in the league. His intelligence and wit make him a joy though he will be missed as television color commentator. Maybe he can announce his own games while coaching. That would be a blue jolt, for which TV is not yet ready.

FORWARDS: Russell plans to move Jim McDaniels here from center, and switch Haywood to center. McDaniels (5'8" a game point average) has an excellent side shot, but motivation has been his major problem. Russell has been brought in to change just such an attitude. Brisker shot better (12.8 a game) but he wasn't terribly anxious to feed either. Another attitude difficulty. Bud Stallworth, Ken McIntosh backups. RATING: B minus

CENTER: Haywood, third in league in scoring (29.2) and 10th in rebounding (12.9), will make successful shift to center. He is a great player. Though at 6-9 he may have trouble defensively with the best of the big men. RATING: A minus

GUARDS: Sore spot. No team leader since Lennie Wilkens was traded away last season. Fred Brown is good shooter (13.5) and could take up playmaking slack. Dick Snyder is rugged backcourt man. Lee Winfield, hurt much of last year, is back and adequate. RATING: C plus

PREDICTION: Will improve though how much depends a great deal on effectiveness of shift of McDaniels and also strength of backcourt. Maybe the year after this will be something for Seattle fans to cackle about, along with their funny-laughing new coach. (Last in series.)

Explain It to Us, Judge

U.S. District Judge John Sirica is entitled to credit for breaking the Watergate case. He imposed 40-year tentative sentences for breaking and entering — sentences so tough that he afterwards offered to moderate them considerably. In the meantime, however, the prospect of 40 years in prison imposed a tremendous psychological burden upon the defendants.

In an appearance before the Senate Watergate Committee, defendant E. Howard Hunt outlined his experiences during six months imprisonment. He testified to the following:

1. Physical assaults upon him.
2. Constant movement from prison to prison, shackled hand and foot.
3. Constant questioning by government investigators representing the Justice Department, the Senate and grand juries.
4. Isolation from his four motherless children.
5. A paralytic stroke.

Before the Senate committee Hunt seemed to be confused. At times he failed to understand simple questions. He certainly was not the same sharp investigator that earlier testimony portrayed him to be.

We believe the U.S. Department of Justice has an obligation to itself and to people generally to supply answers to a few questions.

First, is it true that Hunt was attacked while he was in prison? If so, who did it — officers or other prisoners? What was the extent of his injuries, if any?

Second, if Hunt was attacked, why was the Department of Justice unable to protect a prisoner? What were the circumstances? How many attacks were made upon him?

Third, was the constant questioning by government investigators carried to the extent of an inquisition or of cruel and unusual punishment? Were other pressures employed to break Hunt — denial of food or normal personal comfort items including warmth?

Fourth, if the relatives of common crooks can be visited by their children, why was Hunt isolated from his family?

Fifth, what was the purpose of the repeated shifts from prison to prison?

Sixth, was Hunt afforded proper and adequate medical attention before and after his stroke? Was he subjected to drugs against his consent?

Seventh, was the stroke related to tension brought on by the questioning of government investigators or to the alleged physical attacks upon him?

We submit that the Department of Justice, Attorney General Elliot Richardson, and Judge John Sirica owe to themselves a public clarification because the Department of Justice activities are somehow related to the attainment of justice. If there is testimony — as there has been — that these activities resulted in marked injustice, then the testimony should be answered so that department will not be sullied by suspicion.

On the other hand, members of the public are entitled to a clarification. For if it is a fact that a notorious prisoner was abused, then it is certain that abuse could happen to anyone who becomes confined.

Clark Kent on Wheels

A new development on the technological front holds out promises of being both a sword and a plowshare. It's portable radar capable of "looking down" through concrete and several feet of soil to locate buried objects, nonmetallic as well as metallic.

The penetrating radar was developed by Calspan Corp., formerly Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, in association with Army researchers.

The Army has long wanted something like this since the advent of plastic mines, which cannot be spotted by conventional mine detectors. Such mines, which are inexpensive to manufacture, caused many of the U.S. casualties in Vietnam.

One civilian application, says Calspan, is the detection of buried bodies, a severe problem in law enforcement for which no satisfactory technology existed before.

Another major use will be to map the exact location and depth of underground conduits, sewers and water lines, which could mean reduced digging at busy street intersections, where lines have been buried at various times over a period of many years, and not always where old city maps say they were supposed to go.

One version of the radar, carried on a vehicle, could monitor the subsurface condition of highways. Cruising at 60 miles an hour, it could be used to guide routine maintenance or survey entire highway systems for hidden weakened spots in areas where flooding has occurred.

The less one has to do, the less time one finds to do it in.

Solid Family Is A Must These Days

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — This is a personal reminiscence I want to share. It is my mother's 90th birthday. She is not here to see it, though she very much wanted to. She died in 1972, a bit short of her 89th. She is worth knowing about.

As I look back from this still close vantage point, I see her clearly as the central force which made a true family of her six children and my father, a driving lawyer with eccentricities both funny and difficult, too absorbed in work to play the key role.

Why go beyond private reflection? Because we're all looking for guidance in the choking chaos of 1973. And we can't get it in fullest measure even from the most exemplary, inspiring leadership in the presidency and other high realism.

We also need, I think a special leadership, much closer to our personal lives. From an early time on, I would guess that only a strong family, well led, can supply it. To any in this free-spinning age who would dismiss this idea as old-fashioned and outmoded, I answer that the solid family is as new a need as tomorrow's sustenance — indispensable and enduring. Its aspect changes, but its core does not.

My bright-spirited mother made ours what it should be. She didn't look the part, but her strength and will were of rock. A country girl who came to Chicago from Missouri, she was frail and often beset by illnesses almost to middle age.

Women's liberation militants might have been horrified to observe some of the almost slave-like tasks she took on in running a big household, dealing with my father's routinely unpredictable ways, molding the diversities of two boys and four girls into some sort of workable harmony.

What the militants would have seen was real enough, yet deceptive. For my mother left her treasured haven to follow a self-generated interest in nature and all the arts, and to work constantly with other women in good causes. She was no prisoner of a family fort. She walked freely across the moat as she chose.

Inside, she imparted to us, among many wonderful things, an order and discipline which put useful but not constricting boundaries around our lives. For the young especially, rules chafe and irritate, but they can at the same time be recognized as a welcome refuge from the bewildering which puzzle the developing mind.

Discipline might break briefly, but not for long. A house of many children slips easily into disorder, but sooner or later ours always was set right. The rebellions of youth occurred, yet they never lasted. Miraculously, this reigning-in did not make for rigid, predictable, dull living. Our home for decades was a magnet for friends and relatives, drawn by unforeseeable, innovative excitements — warming and joyous, sometimes deeply serious, often hilarious. Freedom was at the full.

For long years, old friends near and far would see us somewhere and quickly say: "I'll never forget..." As my mother slipped slowly a summer ago, she smiled one day and said: "We always had fun!"

My mother lit the spark she was remembering. Heavy labors never brought her down. She celebrated the year's ceremonies in magical ways, and her whole life was ceremony untarnished. She ruled and gave freedom. She showed that being led well is good, guiding and anchoring life but never smothering it. We need her like by the millions.

Wit & Whimsy

Making a horse trade is one way to get a good nagging.

If you can recall playing cowboys and Indians, you're going to have a difficult time explaining the game to today's sprats.

He'd indirectly given indications he would not bow to demands by some Democrats that he pick a "caretaker" successor without 1976 presidential ambitions. But in the end he buckled and chose a colorless figure who, no matter what his congressional abilities and popularity, will give the appearance of a seat-warming custodian in the vice president's office.

Mr. Nixon remarked the need for strong leadership on this difficult time, and then named a

'TRICK OR TREAT!'

A performance to be remembered

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The night of Oct. 12, 1973, in the White House East Room will be long remembered. A string quartet played. The gathered dignitaries buzzed with agreeable expectancy. When the President and Mrs. Nixon entered to the strains of "Hail to the Chief," he had the air of a man about to offer the nation joyous good news.

One almost expected to see King Faisal of Saudi Arabia coming along close behind, here to tell us that the Arabs and Israelis had settled their long conflict and the Arab nations were pledging 35 per cent more oil production per year to the United States for the next 30 years.

But, into this festive atmosphere, the President had actually come, of course, to advance the name of Michigan's Rep. Gerald Ford, House minority leader, as his new vice president.

As the applause and the cheering rose, one wondered if the scene was being watched by the resigned vice president, Spiro T. Agnew, with his proud frame crushed and his foolish sins confessed. His name was not permitted to sully the bright occasion.

It has to go down as one of the puzzling Richard Nixon's most incredible performances. Five years into his possible eight in the White House, he called the historic moment a "Time for a new beginning." He spoke of the high prospects of peace and an expanded economy, with only quick asides about the Middle East war and soaring domestic inflation.

This man who prides himself as a reader of history told us to set aside the "obsessions of the past."

It was, beyond doubt, another appeal to Americans to forget his own difficulties over the sweeping Watergate scandals, and turn to happier thoughts. Viewed starkly, this could only mean that Mr. Nixon was trying to capitalize upon the sins of Agnew (a man he chose twice with presumed care), using his fallen frame as a hopeful stepping-stone to better times — for himself.

As the President moved quickly along, he left the East Room floor strewn with shattered notions.

He'd made it known earlier that he was polling important Republican leaders for their much impressed by Buu's analysis of the situation in Vietnam. Her personally urged President Nixon to suspend air negotiations until the communists halt their terror campaign. Thus far, the Administration has not responded to this request.

U.S. labor leaders have also asked the House Foreign Relations Committee to hear testimony from South Vietnamese labor officials during their consideration of aid to North Vietnam. Our citizens should write letters to the editor and forward them to their lawmakers about this terror campaign and urge that no aid be given to the brutal government responsible for it.

man without the vital visible signs of it.

Every poll of consequence in this nation shows that the deepest concerns of the American citizenry today focus upon the unruly state of the domestic economy. Yet the President in setting forth the criteria that governed his choosing of Ford, told us that the congressman's sharing of his views on foreign policy and national defense was the critical policy matter for him.

Knowing that his favored friend John Connally's wheeler-dealer image would get a hard look in Congress, the President lacked the nerve to name him. Since this suggests fear of tough scrutiny of Connally at any time, it damages him for 1976, though it doesn't hurt such other aspirants as Govs. Nelson Rockefeller and Ronald Reagan.

H.L. Hunt Writes

NO END TO RED TERROR

In the debate over U.S. aid to North Vietnam, one factor is consistently overlooked: continuing communist terror and assassination in South Vietnam.

Tran Quoc Buu, president of the Vietnamese Confederation of Labor (CVT), recently told U.S. union officials that the "North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong are stepping up their terror activities, including the assassination of union officials, village and hamlet leaders." Since the January 28 "cease-fire," more than a dozen leaders of the CVT, including a vice president of the federation of tenant farmers, have been "brutally assassinated."

Many South Vietnamese are deeply concerned that the U.S. aid to Hanoi will make it easier for the communists to carry out acts of terrorism and sabotage. Said Tran Quoc Buu: "Any U.S. aid to Hanoi at this time will be used to release other funds to increase this terror campaign. By furnishing aid to North Vietnam, the U.S. in effect will be supporting this terror drive against the people of South Vietnam."

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO and a dedicated anti-communist, was very much impressed by Buu's analysis of the situation in Vietnam. Her personally urged President Nixon to suspend air negotiations until the communists halt their terror campaign. Thus far, the Administration has not responded to this request.

U.S. labor leaders have also asked the House Foreign Relations Committee to hear testimony from South Vietnamese labor officials during their consideration of aid to North Vietnam. Our citizens should write letters to the editor and forward them to their lawmakers about this terror campaign and urge that no aid be given to the brutal government responsible for it.

Long-Term Diuretic Effects

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Kindly comment on long term effects of diuretics. A national magazine commenting on reducing diets says they are very harmful, yet they seem to be freely used by physicians for high blood pressure and kidney malfunction.

DEAR READER — Even most good things in life are harmful if used too much or too often. Oxygen is essential for life, but too much causes oxygen toxicity and even death. Diuretics are wonderful medicines when properly used in optimal amounts in the right person who needs them. They can be harmful if used otherwise. There are lots of "scare reports" in the newspapers, a sort of medical equivalent of "McCarthyism," and such reports are usually "half-truths."

The main purpose of diuretics commonly used is to help the kidneys eliminate sodium found in salt — which in turn causes the body to release excess water that is held in the tissues. They seem also to have some further unexplained effect in lowering blood pressure to some degree.

When problems occur it is usually because too much salt has been removed, or a related problem, too much potassium salt has been washed out of the body. These problems are easily corrected. A good-sized glass of orange juice two times a day when taking diuretics usually helps protect against the loss of too much potassium.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please tell me what causes blackheads. My mother tells me it is from not washing your face properly and leaving soap on and drying it with a towel. Also, what could I use to get rid of them and pimples?

DEAR READER — Mothers like to see well scrubbed faces, and it does help to prevent pimples and related problems. But, blackheads are not dirt. They are the normal oily or fatty secretions of the skin glands.

The plug of oil contains chemicals that turn black or brown on exposure to the air as a chemical reaction. If you look carefully at one after it is removed you will see that only the surface is discolored and the deeper plug is not.

The average problem is caused by excessive formation of oily secretions, and the problem is usually worse around puberty and in the teen years. The normal sex hormones that are formed in large amounts with the body changes predispose to excessive oily secretions.

It does help to wash the skin regularly with soap and water. Use a very warm cloth, and hold it over the skin area for a few minutes then bathe the surface and it can often be washed away then. After you are through, wipe the skin carefully with alcohol. This also helps to remove oily material. This won't cure all the problems, but it helps in the mild cases. More serious problems should be treated by a skin specialist.

The fuel crisis as a challenge

By DON OAKLEY
There may be one useful consequence of the war in the Middle East — the attention it has focused on the possibility of an Arab "oil squeeze," and beyond that, on the whole question of energy in an industrialized world.

Surely it is better that both problems be anticipated now, when they are only rumbles on the horizon, rather than be stumbled into a few years hence when they would indeed constitute a crisis.

Any squeeze play against the United States is not considered likely at this time. Even should it be tried, the country could — with not too onerous rationing — ride it out.

Not so in the future, however, if current figures for consumption, for domestic production and for importation of Mideast oil are extrapolated toward the end of the decade.

Thus the United States must take steps now to ensure that it can never be made the victim either of petroleum blackmail or of a dislocation of the world's monetary system by virtue of the immense dollar reserves the oil-exporting countries are accumulating. It must take steps not only for its own security but in the interest of whatever small hopes for peace in the Middle East have not been smashed by this latest war.

The United States will never again be self-sufficient in oil — not as we have become accustomed to using it. Already, John A. Love, White House energy chief, suggests that gasoline rationing may be next in line after government controls on home heating oil, propane and similar fuels. And it has nothing to do with any real or potential Arab oil squeeze.

"I do not see how we can have any increase in domestic fuel supplies for three to five years," he says. "But demand is going to be made to fit supply one way or another."

It's true that there exist significant, untapped reserves of oil and natural gas. According to the U.S. Geological Survey, modern techniques could ultimately find and recover nearly 200 billion barrels of oil and 850 trillion cubic feet of natural gas from seabeds ranging off the U.S. coast from Maine to Alaska.

Yet even should domestic oil production ever again catch up with our continually soaring consumption, the fact remains that oil and gas are simply too valuable as chemical storehouses to be burned. The fact remains that future generations, in this country or elsewhere, will simply not be able to be as prodigal with these resources as we have been.

Rationing, voluntary conservation and accelerated exploitation of reserves are only short-term measures. The ultimate answer lies in the development of new and different sources of energy — nuclear, solar, geothermal, coal gasification, the wind and the tides.

President Nixon recently challenged the scientific community to make the nation entirely self-sufficient in energy — new forms of energy. The challenge is fully as great as that of landing a man on the moon.

That effort was justified in terms of international prestige and national self-esteem. Solutions to the energy crisis are mandatory not only for the continued well-being of this country but to meet the growing aspirations of all the peoples of the world.

So Grows The Seed

The following example shows why it is so highly important that young people at a very early age should learn to live clean, upright, God-fearing lives. The same traits that characterize one's life, will usually show up in the lives of their offspring.

Max Jukes, a well-known atheist, lived a Godless life and married an unsaved girl. Five hundred and forty of his descendants were traced revealing the following findings—310 of them died as paupers, 150 were criminals, 7 were murderers, 100 were drunkards, and more than half the women were prostitutes. His descendants cost the state one and one-fourth million dollars.

On the other hand, there was a man named Jonathan Edwards who lived at the same time Max Jukes did. Edwards married a Christian girl, and 1,394 of his descendants were traced revealing the following—13 of them were college presidents, 65 were college professors, 3 were U.S. Senators, 30 were judges, 100 were lawyers, 60 were doctors, 75 were army and navy officers, 100 were preachers or missionaries, 60 were prominent authors, 1 was vice president of the U.S., 80 were public officials, 295 were college graduates, and some of them became governors. His descendants did not cost the state one cent.

Andrew Murray, minister and writer of South Africa, had 11 children. Five sons were preachers, 4 girls married ministers, and in the next generation, 10 grandsons were preachers, 13 grandchildren were missionaries. "The memory of the just is pleasant, but the name of the wicked shall rot" (Proverbs 10:7).

And now — 'pass the triticale'

By MICHAEL O. WESTER, LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — A new food grain high in protein, a cross between rye and wheat, is producing a new sparkle in the eyes and causing the mouth to water at the aroma of breads, cakes and cookies baking at Texas Tech University.

Triticale (pronounced tri-ti-kay-lee) offers a distinctive flavor different from either of its parents — a flavor at its finest in bread, cake and cookie recipes developed in the Department of Food and Nutrition of the College of Home Economics in cooperation with Triticale Foods Corp. of Muleshoe, Tex. "The only thing better than the aroma of the baked goods fresh and warm from the oven is the taste," said Margarette Harden, assistant professor of food and nutrition at Texas Tech. "Triticale has an intriguing, nutty flavor and has proven to be quite versatile in the kitchen."

Research has shown the grain to contain 16.4 per cent protein — some 40 per cent more protein than some other cereal grains. The quantity of the grain's protein is surpassed only by its quality.

It contains 3.95 per cent lysine and 2.83 per cent methionine, two of the amino acids essential to human growth and body maintenance. "Triticale flour has been tested for baking quality here at the university, and tasty, nutritional baked goods have been produced and recipes developed," said Mrs. Harden. "The flour can be substituted for regular flour in most recipes, but it is recommended that triticale flour be blended with wheat flour to produce attractive loaves of bread."

Mrs. Harden reports successful baking using blends of 30 per cent to 70 per cent triticale flour. "The versatility of the flour leads to creativity in the kitchen," she said. "It lends itself to many foods and allows cooks to try their talents in developing individual recipes of their own."

Available triticale recipes include a tasty loaf yeast bread, biscuits, gingerbread, banana bread and a German fruit cake. Others have been developed and a full scale triticale cookbook is being written.

Recipes are now available from the grain producers upon request. A Triticale Mix is also available. Blends of 100 per cent stone ground whole-grain triticale flour, sugar, leavening and salt, Triticale Mix is used for waffle or pancake type meals.

The home user adds eggs, milk and cooking oil to the mix to produce a batter for pancakes and waffles of exceptional flavor and nutritional value. Triticale grain is the result of nearly 100 years of research. The rye-wheat hybrid was first observed in nature in the 1870s in Europe. At that time, it was genetically impossible to produce fertile seed of the new grain because of a chromosome mismatch between the parent species, Mrs. Harden said. In 1937 a team of botanists discovered colchicine, a natural drug which they used in wheat-rye matings. The result was the creation of the world's first fertile triticale.
