Ike Hits Deficit Theory

Terms Advocates Political Cowards

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)— President Eisenhower today attacked advocates of deficit spending as "political cowards" and said it would endanger U. S. security more than military weakness.

The chief executive declared that "nothing can more surely weaken our nation at home and abroad than such irresponsible spending."

His remarks were a thinly veiled thrust at Democrats. Eisenhower used the same language to denounce Democratic-backed legislative proposals during the last Congress.

He also offered fiscal commandments to preserve a healthy economy, in a speech to the 73rd annual convention of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

"The security and influence of America depend as much on a sound and expanding free-enterprise economy as they do upon a strong military establishment," the President warned in a stop while enroute to New York.

The President's commandments for "responsible" government:

1. "It must not use the taxing power to weaken or tyrannize the private economy.

2. "It must not delude the people into taking the deceptively easy road to deficit spending, unbalanced budgets or inflationary fiscal policies.

3. "It must not use the power of appropriation falsely to offer the people something for nothing. New programs should provide the necessary supporting revenues."

"RECONCILIATION" AGREEMENT — Deposed Congo Republic Premier Patrice Lumumba displays, in Leopoldville, a document which he says is the text of a "reconciliation" agreement between him and his political opponent Joseph Kasavubu. President Kasavubu denies he signed such a statement.

Navy Is Firm On Cuba Base

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, said today the United States "would fight back" if Cuban Premier Fidel Castro attempted to seize by force the U.S. base at Guantanamo.

"We would react very fast," Castro knows that," Burke said. "If they would try to take the place by force, we would fight back."

He did not spell out what kind of action this country might take, but added that "we wouldn't have to move off the base."

Burke, in a copyrighted interview in the weekly magazine, U.S. News & World Report, discounted threats by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to come to the aid of Cuba with nuclear rockets.

He declared Khrushchev "is not going to launch his rockets. He knows he will be destroyed if he does."

The 58-year-old admiral conceded all the military services were concerned over U.S. - Cuban affairs — "Not about our base at Guantanamo, but about the whole Cuban situation."

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India was one of the first big neutrals to support Hammarskjold against the Soviet attacks and met with Hammarskjold before the speech.

Xhrushchev pounded so hard it sounded as if his desk would be destroyed and kept it up till the half minute ovation subsided. Nehru turned around and regarded him with complete astonishment.

Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, sitting behind Khrushchev, did not applaud.

But the wild applause of the other delegates showed plainly Khrushchev's proposals were very, very unpopular with most of them.

Hammarskjold said the secretary general must be guided by principles of independence and impartiality in any world dispute.

"Such an attitude which has found expression in the U.N. charter may at any stage become an obstacle for those who work for a particular aim," he said.

He said if the office becomes a "stumbling block" for any country or group, criticism will result.

Harlem Negroes Fed Up With Castro's Hypocrisy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harlem's Negroes are getting fed up with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Harlem's acknowledged Negro leader, charged Sunday night that Castro's swift move from the upper class Hotel Shelburne to the Hotel Theresa in the Negro section was "sheer hypocrisy."

Another Harlemite was more to the point: "I'd like to cut off his beard and hang it to that flagpole. And maybe him with it."

A near riot was averted Sunday night when foot and mounted police prevented almost 8,000 Pro-Castroites from attacking 50 opponents of the Cuban leader. The anti-Castro group had leaped out of cars and began swinging baseball bats at the pro-Castro crowd. At least two persons, including a woman, were injured.

Earlier in the day nine persons were arrested when supporters of Castro started throwing eggs, hitting newsmen and police who increased their strength from 300 to 500 men. The Castroites shouted, "Yellow press, cha cha cha."

Dag Refusal To Quit U.N. Post Greeted By Ovation

Khrushchev Incoherent With Anger

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press International

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold today rejected Soviet pressure to resign and received thunderous applause from delegates who rallied to his support.

Hammarskjold also spoke out against Premier Nikita Khrushchev's suggestion that the post of secretary-general be abolished and replaced with a three-man Soviet-style "presidium."

He said he would rather see his office "break" while upholding impartiality in world affairs than "drift on the basis of compromise."

Hammarskjold delivered a surprise address to the General Assembly today after a weekend in which Western and neutralist leaders aligned themselves on his side.

When Hammarskjold finished speaking, Khrushchev, livid with anger, began pounding his desk in fury to express his dissent. Members of the Communist delegation joined in.

In minutes the Communist pounding sounded like an anvil chorus.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India was one of the first big neutrals to support Hammarskjold against the Soviet attacks and met with Hammarskjold before the speech.

Xhrushchev pounded so hard it sounded as if his desk would be destroyed and kept it up till the half minute ovation subsided. Nehru turned around and regarded him with complete astonishment.

Candidates In Headon Exchange

Debate Series Begins Tonight

United Press International
By MERRIMAN SMITH
and WILLIAM THEIS

CHICAGO (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy confront each other face-to-face tonight before a nationwide television audience in the first of a series of 20th Century debates that will add steam to the presidential campaign.

Their head-on exchange of basic policies, an electronic suggestion of the famous debates 102 years ago between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas, will take place in an air-conditioned studio of the Chicago outlet of the Columbia Broadcasting System, WBBM-TV.

The hour-long program dealing primarily with domestic issues starts at 8:30 p.m., CST, and will be carried by the National Broadcasting Co., American Broadcasting Co. and the Mutual Radio Network, as well as CBS which is serving as host for this first of four Nixon-Kennedy appearances. They will have an audience estimated by the broadcasting industry at between 60 and 100 million Americans, plus millions more overseas via the government's Voice of America and the British Broadcasting Co.

As far as open conflict is concerned, Kennedy and Nixon have been skirmishing lightly thus far in the campaign for the White House. There has been some sniping and counterfire over Nixon's feeling that Kennedy should not discuss American shortcomings with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in the country, but this has been somewhat intermittent.

Both candidates are polished off-the-cuff speakers and are confident they will make a good showing even though no notes will be allowed during the debate.

Three more debates will be held next month. The fourth will deal with international problems while the second and third broadcasts will be general in nature, similar to a news conference.

In tonight's debate the candidates will stand facing each other before slender wooden lecterns, separated by moderator Howard K. Smith, chief Washington correspondent for CBS News.

There will be no studio audience only two newsmen and two photographers will be allowed in the studio during the debate.

Four other network newsmen—Robert Fleming of ABC, Stuart Novins of CBS, Charles Warren of MBS and Sander Vanocur of NBC—will constitute a panel to question the candidates.

Tonight might change that situation.

Kennedy and Nixon regard the first debate as critical to their campaigns, but probably not decisive.

Kennedy's advisers first considered the debates as a make-or-buy factor in the campaign. But now, bolstered by large crowds on the campaign trail, Kennedy's advisers feel the debates are somewhat less monumental.

Nixon's aides feel the debates may have particular impact on the great unknowns of 1960—the undecided voters. They feel the face-to-face meetings aren't likely to sway many voters who already have decided on the candidates they will support.

Soviets Set Off Guessing On Space Try

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Russians set off a wave of new speculation today by announcing that they plan to mark Tuesday as an important day in the history of the world.

No one seems to know quite what they are up to, but the result has been a spate of guessing that includes everything from the possibility they may shoot a man into space to the disclosure they may already have one there or on the moon.

Or they may just be playing another one of their propaganda games to fit into the hoopla surrounding the current visit to the United Nations General Assembly of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and his Communist satellites.

For days now, Radio Moscow has been pointing to Tuesday, Sept. 27, as a day to be watched.

Last week amateur radio operators in Cleveland, Ohio, received messages from Radio Moscow telling them to pay attention to Tuesday. The Russians said they are going to make it "a day in the history of the world."

Dr. A. C. B. Lovell of Britain's vast Jodrell Bank radio-telescope satellite tracking station, said he would not be surprised if his telephone rang and he was told "the Russians have a man in orbit."

"Although I expect them to get a man into space, I also expect them to embark on some fresh feat of space technology connected with the moon or the planets," Lovell said. "Which they will do first from the point of view of prestige, I don't know."

At Glen Cove, N.Y., Khrushchev said Sunday the Soviets were able to put a man in space but had made no attempt thus far.

Two Ordinance Readings On Tap

City Manager John Koonitz also noted that opening of bids for street trash containers and water works mains fitting and valves will be on the agenda.

Air Service Request Testimony To Capital

Direct testimony in support of Pampa's request for airline service has been forwarded to the Washington, D.C., office of the chief examiner for the Civil Aeronautics Board, E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, said today.

Statements by Mayor Ed Myatt, Hershel V. Wilks, president of the chamber; Hugh Burdette, vice-president and general manager of Southwestern Division, Cabot Corp.; Floyd Watson, vice-president of the First National Bank; Frank D. Smith, owner of Smith's Quality Shoes; Clayton Husted, grading and construction contractor; Jack Miller, Railroad Commission district supervisor; W. L. Fain, chairman of the Gray County Airport Board; Jack T. Simpson, vice-president of Hughes Companies, and Wedgeworth, were included.

"We are of the opinion that we have a good case to support our request for direct airline service," said Wedgeworth.

Those who made testimony will meet with the chief examiner, Herbert K. Bryan, on Oct. 12 in Amarillo for further discussion on the matter.

A final decision on the matter is not expected for some time, Wedgeworth said.

Advance Gifts Total $7,565

The advance gifts division of the United Fund has reached $7,565 in its drive, it was announced this morning by E. Roy Smith, advance gifts chairman.

There are, according to Smith, 32 workers in this division responsible for about 140 cards in the $100 and above classification. Smith urged all those workers who still have cards to work, or follow-up on, to do so this week because this group is scheduled to be completed by September 30.

Pampa-Lefors United Fund Story

Year Of Scouting: 151,000 'Boy-Hours'

(This is the fifth of seven articles dealing with agencies receiving funds from the Pampa-Lefors United Fund.)

By ED HAYES WILSON
Daily News Staff Writer

If residents of Pampa don't go to the polls Nov. 4 in droves it won't be the fault of Boy Scouts. And that's just one of the many ways Boy Scouts work to promote various activities and good government in Pampa and throughout the United States.

They are being taught, among other things, the value of having those in office whom they believe are the most qualified to establish their laws and run their government, locally or nationally.

They are not taught that they must vote for either of the major parties. But they are taught that good government comes through placing those in office who will better operate the government.

Pampa Boy Scouts will need $18,000 to conduct the many programs planned for the boys this year. That is the request presented to the Pampa-Lefors United Fund. They'll get every penny of it, too, if you, the citizens, donate the sum the United Fund has established as its 1961 goal—$68,746.

So, whatever the Boy Scouts do in the coming year depends upon how the people of Pampa react to the fund drive which begins Friday.

There is not enough time and space to elaborate fully on what Boy Scouts do. But there is one thing that all scout officials will point toward with pride—scouting brings boys and their families

This is easy to explain, for when a young fellow receives an award in scouting his parents are invited to be on hand when their son receives his badge for say, church work, or one of the many service awards in the scouting program.

In pointing up the program prepared for Scouts, Brantly Hudson Jr., executive scout officer, summed it up in this manner: "Scouting is a program designed to supplement the home, the school and church. Its basic purpose is character building, citizenship training and physical training for boys and young men."

Dear Abby... Father's Weakness Daughter's Strength

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I started having my dates pick me up at my grandmom's and I'd spend the night there because I was (and still am) ashamed of my father. He is always drunk. I am 19 and am very serious about a young man I'll call Joe. I told Joe I live with my grandparents, but I can't keep lying to him forever. I know it's wrong to hide your parents from your friends, but I can't bring myself to let Joe meet my father in his normal stone-drunk condition. What should I do?

ASHAMED: Tell Joe your father is an alcoholic who hasn't the strength to help himself. If your Joe is as wonderful as you think he is, he won't think less of you for your father's weakness. "Lying" is a weakness, too, you know.

DEAR ABBY: Why is shaking a rug or mop-out of the window considered such a terrible breach of etiquette? Recently I married and moved to a larger community than the one I grew up in. Though we were not "top drawer" at home, we were not far from it. All my family has been fairly well educated with several college degrees and I know that back home almost everyone used a back window to shake out the dust.

If no one is underneath and there is no danger of shaking the dust on anyone, what is so wrong with it?

DEAD SERIOUS

DEAR DEAD: There is nothing actually "wrong" with it—but it looks bad. Sorry, but that's the way the mop flops.

DEAR ABBY: Why must the American public pay for a business owner's payroll? If restaurant owners, cab companies and beauty shop owners really don't make enough profit to pay a decent living wage, I wish they would raise their prices a little, so their employees wouldn't have to stand there with their hands out. I tip for the same reason everyone else does. Because I know it's expected and I'm ashamed not to.

"NO GUTS"

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad "PROUD" (that beautician who considered a "tip" an insult) can't speak for all beauticians. I know lots of hairdressers who have raised families on those "insults".

ONE, TOO

Worthwhile Club Hears Tips On "Family Business"

Mrs. Ed Juenger was hostess to Goodwill Home Demonstration Club on Tuesday morning 9:30 in her home, 1918 Christine.

Miss Lou Ella Patterson, Gray County Home Demonstration agent, presented a program on "Keep Up With Family Business" in her talk. Miss Patterson suggested that small materials for keeping records be kept in cigar or spool boxes. "By using good business methods," she said, "it helps save time and prevents costly mistakes and loss of money. Records may be kept in desks, old furniture, such as cabinets, tables or chest of drawers that have been converted to desk use."

"Valuable papers," she advised, "should be kept in safety deposit boxes or a fire-proof safe. A filing system should be used in the home to file farm, home and family records". She concluded by demonstrating a filing system that might be used in the home.

Those present, in addition to the members mentioned above, were Mmes. A. P. Coombes, W. E. Autry, Leland Diamond, Donald Nienstiel, Lee Jackson, Ray Frazier, C. B. Hicks and Marvin Rowan. It was announced that the next meeting will be on Oct. 4 at 9:30 a.m. with Mrs. Donald Nienstiel, 2217 Duncan.

Rolls Way Into Jail

Marvin Morris Cox of Cookville, in a sense, rolled his way into Gray County Jail this morning when he was booked by police for theft of an item valued at more than $5 and less than $50.
Cox is charged with stealing a truck tire and rim from a truck belonging to L. D. Deholl 611 N. Wynne, who had parked his vehicle in the 700 block of S. Cuyler last Monday.
Chief of Police Jim Conner said today that Patrolman Bob Crouch, who was off duty at the time, saw Cox rolling the tire towards a service station and didn't think anything about it until a report noting its loss was filed at the police station.
Chief Conner said that Cox had been hard to find, since he had no permanent address and had been living in an abandoned auto near the downtown section of the city.

After 33 Years, Jubilant Pittsburgh Rooters Whoop It Up

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The 33-year pennant drought finally was ended. And the joy that accompanied this fact simply swamped downtown Pittsburgh Sunday night.

The air was saturated with that sweet smell of success, and throngs choked the sidewalks and streets to inhale it as they awaited the arrival from Milwaukee of their heroes—the 1960 National League champions—the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Police Superintendent James Slusser said that estimating the size of the crowd was nearly impossible. But he said that, according to police reports, some half-million persons turned out to welcome home the victorious Pirates.

Fans were lined along the sidewalks more than a dozen deep in most places and they ranged for blocks starting from the "Point" to the base line of the Golden Triangle.

People began converging on the area shortly after the Pirates officially clinched the pennant—when the Chicago Cubs eliminated the St. Louis Cardinals in the Windy City.

By 8 p.m., EDT, traffic was forced to inch forward through milling crowds who chanted: "Beat 'em, Bucs." By 9 p.m., motorists just gave up trying to maneuver their cars through the streets choked with joyful fans.

By 10 p.m., the downtown section was a combination of V-J Day, a presidential nomination and New Year's Eve.

Automobile horns honked incessantly, firecrackers exploded and noise-makers kept up a constant wail. Thousands waved the ever-present "Beat 'em, Bucs" signs and pennants. Huge signs screamed out a challenge to the New York Yankees, the blase opponents of the Pirates come Oct. 5 in the World Series.

"Bring on the Yanks," "The Yanks Are Next," "Yankee (you'll) Go Home," sprang up on homemade signs throughout the good-natured mobs.

The motorcade of open convertibles bearing the ballplayers finally arrived in the Golden Triangle at about 11:15 p.m., EDT.

Cheering and roars greeted the players and Pirate officials. The shouts rolled down the lines of packed humanity as the motorcade moved along slowly. Exhausted police officers couldn't hold back the thousands that swarmed around their heroes.

Pirate announcer Jim Woods, who accompanied the team on the flight from Milwaukee, said everyone connected with the club was soaked with champagne, beer and anything liquid.

"Nobody had his shirt on by the time we left County Stadium (Milwaukee)," Woods said. "Some of the players had to get dressed all over again when we got back to the plane."

"There were crowds out waiting for the team from about 10 miles outside of town," Woods said. The Greater Pittsburgh Airport is about 16 miles from the downtown section.

Mayor Joseph M. Barr, who displayed his confidence of a Pirate victory last week when he posed with a giant pennant in front of the City Hall, praised the Bucs on their "team victory."

"I am too limp to go on and will conserve what energy I have left for the rousing reception which has been planned for our wonderful Pirate champions," Barr said.

Some enthusiastic fans still felt the job wasn't finished.

Joe Blatrac, 65, a retired railroad worker, wants revenge for the 1927 World Series when the Yankees swept the Pirates in four games.

"I'm glad those Yanks won on their side," he said.

"It's been a long time, but now I figure we'll pay 'em back."

Casper Takes Portland Golf

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Billy Casper tore apart his favorite golf course again Sunday and became the first professional of the year to repeat a tournament victory.

At the sunny Portland Golf Club course, the Apple Valley, Calif., shotmaker walked away from the field with a final round of 65 and a 72 hole total of 266.

It was three strokes better than his winning score a year ago, and two strokes ahead of his nearest competitor, Paul Harney of Worcester, Mass., who was runner-up for the second week in a row.

Don January of Dallas, Tex., who started the final day only a stroke behind, caught Casper twice but the defending champ shook him off on the second nine by firing five birdies in a row.

Casper's first prize money of $2,800 pushed his 1960 earnings to $25,350, although it was his first victory in 20 starts.

CASEY STENGEL
... pennant no. 10

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

The New York Yankees took it in stride and the Pittsburgh Pirates took it any way they could get it.

That was perfectly understandable.

For the Yankees, Sunday's 4-3 pennant clincher against the Boston Red Sox marked the 25th American League championship in their history and their 10th during Casey Stengel's 12 year tenure.

They were bound to be a bit ho-hum about it, even though the completely dedicated Stengel commented, "It gets tougher and tougher to win 'em every year."

It was a different story with the Pirates, however.

This was their first National League pennant in 33 years and they should have really whooped it up, but something of the edge was taken off because they felt they had backed into it.

The minor calamity came about when the Chicago Cubs mathematically eliminated the second-place St. Louis Cardinals, 5-0, and the Milwaukee Braves beat the Pirates, 4-2, on Eddie Mathews' two-run homer in the 10th inning.

Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh saw no reason for any gloom though.

"Any club that wins 92 games in this league doesn't back into any pennant," he said.

The twin clinchings by the Yankees and Pirates overshadowed the rest of Sunday's baseball schedule, of course. For the morbidly curious, however, Baltimore beat Washington, 3-1, Cleveland blanked Chicago, 4-0, and Detroit edged Kansas City, 6-5, in the AL. Over in the National, Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati, 7-1, and San Francisco downed Los Angeles, 13-9.

Ralph Terry, 24-year-old bridegroom-to-be who killed the Orioles' hopes by pitching a two-hitter against them a week ago Sunday, was credited with Sunday's win for the Yanks against Boston. Terry had a four hitter until the ninth when the Red Sox put together three singles for one run and knocked him out.

Mathews' game-winning blow against the Pirates was his 38th homer of the year and it came off loser Roy Face, who relieved starter Harvey Haddix in the eighth. The victory went to rookie Ron Piche, who took over for Warren Spahn in the ninth.

France came from behind at half-time to edge Finland, 2-1, in a soccer world championship qualification match Sunday.

Colts, Browns Win In Openers

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press International

Johnny Unitas can beat an opponent more ways than a riverboat card sharp... The Giants still have that superb defense... The Browns have the best two-man running threat in the NFL... and the crowds keep coming.

So what's new in the National Football League?

Unitas was held in check for nearly one half before he switched tactics and guided the Baltimore Colts to a 20-0 victory over the Washington Redskins; and the New York Giants threw up one of their patented goal-line stands in the dying minutes to preserve a 21-19 triumph over the San Francisco 49ers.

In the other games on Sunday's program, Bobby Mitchell and Jim Brown combined to gain a total of 309 yards on the ground as the Cleveland Browns welcomed the Philadelphia Eagles, 14-24, and the Chicago Bears rallied to beat the Green Bay Packers, 17-14, on John Aven's 27-yard field goal with 35 seconds left to play.

Crowds totalling more than 260,000 turned out to watch the six-game weekend schedule that opened the NFL's 41st season. The founding American Football League out-drew the NFL in the first attendance showdown at Dallas, where the two leagues played games on successive days.

But off the opening NFL turn-outs, it appeared unlikely that the new pro league could make much of a dent in the older circuit's attendance elsewhere. Sunday's NFL crowds totalled 56,303 at Philadelphia, 53,818 at Baltimore, 44,598 at San Francisco and a 32,150 sellout at Green Bay.

In the AFL a crowd of 16,421 at Houston watched the Oakland Raiders score their first victory when Tom Flores' 14-yard pass in the final period beat the Oilers, 14-13, and an estimated 40,000 fans saw the Dallas Texans whip the Los Angeles Chargers, 17-0.

Texas, Hogs Show Way

SWC Returns To Winning Form

By United Press International

All three members of last season's defending Southwest Conference tri-champions swing into league action this week, after most not redeeming themselves for lack of luster season opening performances with solid wins last weekend.

Two of the three, Texas Christian and Arkansas, collide at Fort Worth in the top attraction, while the third, Texas, will play host to the Red Raiders of Texas Tech in Memorial Stadium in Austin.

Other conference clubs will continue the battle against intersectional opponents with the exception of Southern Methodist. The Ponies take a week off to lick wounds suffered in two straight defeats.

Texas and Arkansas led the attack last week end to regain some of the pride and prestige lost on opening day. The Longhorns looked a bit more like the powerhouse they were supposed to be in literally running over a solid Maryland team 34-0.

And the Razorbacks showed considerable more polish offensively in crushing outmanned Tulsa 48-7.

Texas Christian showed flashes of offensive brilliance, but still had to rely on sophomore quarterback Sonny Gibbs and the kicking talent of R. E. Dodson to gain the 7-6 nod over tough Southern California.

Baylor's running Ronnies—Stanley, Goodwin and Bull—went to work early on Colorado to pace the Bears to a 26-0 win. Texas AM battled back twice to earn a 14-14 tie with Tech, as the Red Raiders played their first official conference game.

Rice showed offensive balance and defensive ruggedness, but still fell before the opportunists of Georgia Tech 16-13 on the strength of Tech's three field goals, a blocked point for a touchdown and a one-point conversion.

Southern Methodist continued to upset no one except Coach Bill Meek by losing again, this time to Ohio State by a 24-0 margin.

Fix Story Revealed

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—The smart money boys thought it would be easy to fix the Florida-Florida State University football game last Saturday. Although others had tried—and failed—it had almost worked several times in the past.

The big problem confronting the gamblers was finding someone on the Florida team who could be bought. The game site, Gainesville, was made to order. A small college town with a police force to match, and located near a large enough city (Jacksonville) to hop a plane if things got hot.

The fast-money crowd knew it had to be a Florida player—the Gators were certain to knock off their smaller, intra-state rivals from Tallahassee.

Somebody noticed Jon MacBeth, the big senior fullback. Big Jon led Florida in rushing last year, but wasn't quite as competent in the classroom. And, the gamblers noticed—on the tip of one of MacBeth's fraternity brothers—the kid was usually broke.

But Jon MacBeth's honesty wasn't for sale.

The next morning he turned the money over to Coach Ray Graves and told him the full story. Graves went to Dr. J. Wayne Reitz, university president. Reitz got in touch with law enforcement officers and SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore.

They asked MacBeth to play along with the gamblers. He agreed, and Friday night the pair gave MacBeth his instructions and Silber's accomplice gave MacBeth 15 $100 bills.

MacBeth turned the bribe money over to police and gave them the license number of the car. Officers traced the car to a Jacksonville automobile rental agency. Wagner was nabbed at the airport Saturday after buying a ticket to New York. Silber was arrested in his fraternity house.

MacBeth carried the ball on Florida's first play from scrimmage Saturday afternoon. Florida won 3-0 on a second period field goal. MacBeth gained 29 yards in five carries and sparked defensively.

Woodward Stakes Makes

'Dancer High Active Earner

By United Press International

Sword Dancer's victory in the $112,200 Woodward Stakes at Aqueduct Saturday made him the top money winner still in training.

The 4-year-old chestnut colt clipped two-fifths of a second off his own track record in scoring a one and one-half length triumph over C. V. Whitney's dotted Swiss, Cain Hoy Stable's Bald Eagle, the 9-10 favorite, finished third, more than two lengths far back.

With Eddie Arcaro in the saddle, Sword Dancer moved from sixth at the top of the stretch. He picked up the winner's share of $71,370 and raised his all-time earnings to $818,590 which also moved him to seventh among the all-time money winners.

Sword Dancer paid $8.30 for 2 and carried 126 pounds over the mile and one-quarter in 2:01 1-5, bettering the mark he sent in the Suburban Handicap, July 4.

Teacation, ridden by Panamanian jockey Braulio Baeza, won the $28,850 Pageant Handicap by a half length over Be Cautious at Atlantic City. Funny Bone finished third.

Carrying high weight of 120 pounds in the field of 10 fillies, Teacation turned in a 1:44 1-5 clocking for the one and one-sixteenth mile grass test and paid 10.

The victory, the fifth in nine starts this year, earned Teacation $18,752.50.

At Hawthorne, Heroshogala, a 3-year-old colt, set a track record for a mile and one-sixteenth in winning the 30,150 Illinois Owners Handicap.

Ridden by Herberto Hironosa, Heroshogala paid $10 after covering the distance in 1:41 2-5. Pri-poly finished second and Little Tytus was third.

Era Over As Williams Ends Playing Career

BOSTON (UPI)—Ted Williams, who brought more glamor and hitting ability into baseball than any half-dozen other players over the last 20 years, will play his last game next Sunday against the Yankees at New York.

Ted's decision to call it quits at the age of 42 was made definite Sunday with the announcement he would retire as an active player at the end of the year but continue with the Boston Red Sox as a batting coach. The announcement was made appropriately by Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey, for whom Williams has played since coming into the American League as a gangling, 20-year-old rookie in 1939.

The controversial "kid" from San Diego, Calif., will retire as six-time American League batting champion with a lifetime mark of about .344. But the feat that will live longest with fans is the .406 batting average he turned in during his third season in the major leagues.

Ted was only 22 at the time. He was batting over .410 most of the 1941 season but dipped to .396 with a one-for-four performance on the next to last day of the campaign.

He could have sat out the final A's. When the day was over Ted had six hits in eight times at bat and an average of .467.

Sanction Of The Victim

No one wants to be victimized. But in the interests of truth and decency, it is time for us to speak up boldly and proclaim that we have been victimized, in those instances when it is true.

No one likes to admit that he has been "taken." It hurts his pride. But if victims will stop trying to pretend they are not victims, it is possible that something can be done.

The whole thing relates to what we could call sanction. And, of course, it relates to politics.

All government operates on the sanction of the people. Whatever the government does, people must sanction it. And with the years, most people become so accustomed to sanctioning everything the politicians do that sanction is virtually automatic.

It is not that most people agree with what the government is doing. It is that they translate governmental failure into the failure of some particular politician or some particular politician's party.

Thus, American voters go right along with the game, out of sorts with some particular person or party, but nonetheless sanctioning the whole procedure, anyhow.

Most people know that stealing is wrong. It is not difficult to prove. Most people agree that even a little bit of stealing is wrong. It isn't the amount of the theft which proves evil, they say, it is the principle of the thing.

Curiously most people also know (when they stop to think about it), that government operates its huge edifice thru looting, plundering and stealing.

Five minutes spent to examine the taxing structure, the passage of laws, regulations, codes, and so on, can convince even the most stubborn case that governments are so constructed as to exist on the basis of theft.

But we have become so accustomed to legalized plundering we have been plundered. If we own up that we really don't enjoy it when government loots us, then we have to admit that we are NOT running the affairs of government but, rather, that government is running our affairs — and soaking us plenty for the unwelcome and unwanted service.

But this would turn us into the victim of government. And it is so nice to go along day by day imagining that we are really the boss of government and that when we have been victimized, we really want it to be that way.

Actually, of course, we don't. It is a monstrous lie, but we like to tell it to ourselves for it justifies everything that is happening.

We like to throw out our chests and say: "Government is my friend. It's necessary. It gives us lots of benefits. We are the boss of government."

Not a word of this is true, but it sounds so good and it puts us in a good mood.

One of these days we may be far enough along to slavery to recognize that we are the victims not the beneficiaries of big government. When we realize we are the victims, we may begin to withhold our sanction of the governmental process.

If and when the American people ever do withhold their sanction of the evil governments always do, then the governments will have to stop doing those evil things.

The only reason governments continue today doing the horribly immoral and destructive things they do is because the very people who are looted and plundered and robbed and regimented and enslaved, continue to go along with the program, however much they have been injured.

And thus encouraged, why shouldn't the politicians come back for more? If their victims LIKE what they are getting, why shouldn't the politicians, please get them? All it takes is to get the victims to keep from realizing that they are the victims.

It's a great confidence game.

Clear Field

Freedom, to have meaning, must relate to your right to pursue your own good in your own way, while at the same time disciplining yourself so that you leave a clear field for others to do the same.

One Nation Wants Out

Colonel Frederick Buechner is on a fact-finding trip in Africa. He has recently written from Johannesburg to say that people in the Union of South Africa are now thinking seriously of withdrawing from the United Nations.

It appears there is less and less reluctance in this direction. To begin with, a number of government officials voiced an objection to getting out of the U.N. simply based on the idea that the Union of South Africa was one of the first to get into it. And it would seem a little strange if one of the original endorsers would be one of the first to duck and run.

Actually, however, this desire to withdraw, which is a perfectly proper desire, will undoubtedly arise in the minds of those who have been longest connected with this shady international trouble-making agency.

We have noticed countries who were early in the race to adopt communism or socialism are also among the first to try to pull out of these silly ideological patterns in an effort to regain something of value.

The Russian nation, committed to socialism in 1917 by the second (October) revolution, pulled away from socialism in 1921. Although a second effort was made by Stalin to achieve Marxist socialist goals via the five-year plan route, since 1933 Russia has been moving further away from socialism.

Red China's political dialectic is equally visible. Although the move toward socialism in China began with the Chinese rebellion of 1911, it was not until the end of the Korean war that the full spirit of that socialist objective came to sit on the shoulders of the Chinese people.

Since then, they have been living in barracks-like communes, regimented more thoroughly and probably more viciously than any other people in the world today. The problem we face from China is our propensity to get into their problem and try to solve it for them. What we should do is to get back out of the way and let the Chinese solve the riddle they have created for themselves. Assuming a free hand, Red Chinese will re-belt against their communist regime within a relatively few years. If we intervene, we will simply delay their reaction.

Britain went into socialism at the hands of its labour government which gained power during World War II. Already, British subjects are on the run from socialism, although the aftermath of this experiment may rise to plague them over a long period.

If American foreign aid had been discontinued, the British people would have had to face up to their folly much more quickly than they have. Even so, their progress away from socialism has been relatively rapid.

Thus, when we learn the Union of South Africa wants to pull out of the U.N., we can only shout hurrah and hope they do not dally.

"We hesitate to withdraw from an organization of which we were one of the first members," one official in Africa remarked. "But we have seen such lack of understanding, such emotional outbursts on the part of spokesmen from countries we considered our friends, that we are beginning to wonder — perhaps we would be better off out of that body?"

Parliamentary members have pointed to the spectacle of the Soviet Union openly flouting the aims of the U.N., while at the same time making use of it as a screen for its ideology. And this has gone on while Ghana, and Guinea offer military assistance to

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK—The coming of autumn, in the country, is in the care of Nature. In the city, it is man's season and he dominates it. Fall, in Sea Cliff, as in so many waterside communities in the United States, was a thing of burning leaves mingling with salt air to give a tang to breathing. It was a tinge of falling leaves and damp dawns, of a sun visibly losing its bite and power. It was, too, a thing of kids, now in wool instead of bright summer cottons, trudging up the hill to school in polished new shoes that would be scuffed in a week.

There was a tang in the air the other morning, in the city. An odd, penetrating sort of chemical odor that suggested that somewhere down in the railroad yards bordering the Hudson River a tank car had ruptured a plate in its side and loosed some noxious concoction on the fresh autumn air. There was an unusual whine of cars and squeal of brakes and the hump onto concrete sidewalks of something heavy. I used to hear the squeal of sailboats being pulled up onto sticks for the winter, the rusting rails of the yacht-ward screaming in protest as the boats slid on them. This time, the squeal was the brakes of station wagons and, like the swallows in Capistrano, the Day seemed to be upon the city. The Day and Date, inflexible, fixed unwavering. The This-Is-It-Day. A day for three things to happen:

The odor was fuel oil. Up the avenue, as far as the eye could see, beside the topest towers of this version of Ilium, the tank trucks stood pouring their liquid treasure into holes in the sidewalks. Each apartment house was thus being served and it was almost ritualistic: this day and no other shall thou deliver fuel oil to West End Avenue.

In the spaces between the bulked trucks, the station wagons stood and they represented two layers, or groups, of city society: the just-a-little-bit-motored-but-walks-to-school-in-the-morning house was thus being served and it was almost ritualistic: this day and no other shall thou deliver fuel oil to West End Avenue.

Not a word of this is true, but it sounds so good and it puts us in a good mood.

One of these days we may be far enough along to slavery to recognize that we are the victims not the beneficiaries of big government. When we realize we are the victims, we may begin to withhold our sanction of the governmental process.

Washington Bureaucracy Infested With Odd Types

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

A day may come when we may discuss openly and with knowledge our delivery into the thrall of international communism, but thus far the Roosevelt reign and the Truman and Eisenhower regencies have corrupted history with mocking success.

Henry Morgenthau holds priceless knowledge, as the expurgated Morgenthau diaries prove. But neither he nor Felix Frankfurter ever has been examined under oath as they should be.

Not as a justice of the Supreme Court but as a political manipulator who seeded his proteges such as Alger Hiss and Lee Pressman into the regime and picked cabinet officers, including Stimson, for Roosevelt, and forever stuck his twitching snout into foreign affairs, this leering meddler ought to be called to account for the sake of the record.

Eleanor Roosevelt's immunity is based on a degrading popular superstition that she is, if not divine, then at least miraculous, but heresy is beginning to murmur in the mails.

Morgenthau was hailed before the Senate to tell the truth about the origin of lend-lease, which was actually the writ that put us into the war. That was his personal desire as well as Roosevelt's.

The Senate wanted to know whether this proposal originated "On The Hill," meaning in Congress, or "down town," meaning in the "Administration." Morgenthau knew that. And though it cannot be charged that he lied, he certainly did not tell the truth. Throughout his testimony, the two treasury lawyers who had holed up in the Treasury for an entire weekend, drafting the bill, sat in the hearing room and kept quiet. Their names are Oscar Cox and Ed Foley. Foley himself told me all this and pointed out that Senator Hiram Johnson somehow had failed to put Morgenthau under oath so that he could be held accountable.

As to the conduct of lawyers in refraining from telling the truth though they were not subpoenaed, a lawyer might have an interesting opinion. Who was it wanted us in the war? Why? What is the story, anyway?

Morgenthau could tell, but this time he should be sworn.

Frankfurter has given testimony under oath, but only in restricted matters. First, he showed up with his mouthpiece, Dean Acheson, whom he later made secretary of state, to defend himself in the hearings of the judiciary committee on his fitness for the bench. Later, he volunteered as a character witness for Alger Hiss, but nobody thought to demand a character witness for Felix. Thus the picture was missed.

La Boca would be a gold mine of skulduggery dating from 1933, although on matters before that and back to the Russian Revolution she would be worthless, having no education and little experience in public affairs before she set up shop in the White House. The Morgenthau diaries show that the FBI tailed her secretary, variously known as Thompson and Scheider, and that Roosevelt stopped that and turned the duty over to Morgenthau's secret service after a fracas in New York.

The current excitement over Dr. Maurice Halperin, William H. Martin and Bernon F. Mitchell, all absconders to Moscow with secrets

Down South

By THURMAN SENSING

The short session of Congress which was supposed to be a showcase for the "liberals" ended in a heartening victory for the conservative coalition. Of the five principal "must" items that spenders said were part of a "New Frontier" in governmental activity, three met well-deserved death and the other two were markedly changed before the final passage.

Expiring at the close of the session that was billed as Senator Lyndon Johnson's legislative field day were three measures that had already gained a majority in the Senate and House but could not be settled by a joint committee.

These welfare state proposals were: (1) An aid to education measure that would have put the federal government into an area of state authority and resulted in serious damage to the principle of local control of schools; (2) a bill requiring a $1.25 an hour minimum wage, thereby attempting again the old socialist nostrum of creating prosperity through legislation; and (3) a giant federal housing bill authorizing a large-scale program of public housing, with the effect of hurting the private home construction industry in hundreds of communities.

Fortunately, the American people have been spared these experiments in socialism that would have further weakened the free enterprise system that provides a high standard of living in this country.

It was not possible to completely halt the drive toward a federal medical care service that has been such a basic error and boondoggle in Great Britain. However, the extremist bill that Senator John F. Kennedy sought — a bill that would have attached care to the Social Security system — was sidetracked. Instead, Congress agreed to increase aid for medical programs through the states. This modification at least has the virtue of not turning vast sums over to Social Security administrators, who would have had much of the authority and political influence of WPA administrators in the New Deal.

Approximately $500 million was removed from the foreign aid bill, which indicates the beginning of public reaction against wasteful spending overseas. Much remains to be done to convince the public that the gift of capital to foreign lands could be a fatal drain on American resources. A job for conservatives in the next Congress is to urge that aid to foreign countries take the form of encouraging private companies to make investments. One of the tragic situations of the session was the gift of $5 million to the communist-infiltrated Congo in the same week eight American airmen were beaten by a Congolese mob. To say nothing of appropriating a $100 million installment as our share of UN expenses for occupying the Congo Republic — an occupation that could last ten years!

Refusal of the House to authorize economic sanctions against the Dominican Republic also was encouraging. While Americans may not like all the domestic features of the Dominican government, it has been pro-American. Senator Ellender (D-La) rightly pointed out that the U.S. should not take strong action against a friendly regime while refusing to crack down on the pro-communist government of Cuba.

While it would be pleasant to record a string of positive conservative achievements in the short session, it is not reasonable to think that such could have emerged. The Dealers were in control, and looked for a political triumph that they could use against conservatives on election day. The liberal-left failed abysmally to make political capital of the session. They revealed themselves as overzealous seekers after grab-bag measures that had only one end — votes of greedy groups in the nation. Prevention of sizable new excesses by spenders was a fitting achievement for conservative resistance forces. They deserve the applause of the taxpayers.

Life is just like golf. You no more than get out of one hole when you're holed for another.

Series Tops Manhattan 'Nightmare'

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—It was a day on which Fidel Castro reportedly got advice from Nikita Khrushchev to "quit acting like a clown or people would not take him seriously."

A day on which the Communist traitor of the Hungarian revolution, Janos Kadar, roamed like an unnoticed tourist around New York—visiting the Empire State Building, Wall Street and Times Square.

A day when the radio at police headquarters reported with full seriousness that Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia was walking slowly past "bush No. 13" in Central Park.

It was an Alice-in-Wonderland Sunday in New York, literally the greatest show on earth. It could have been almost hilarious were it not being played against a background of deadly menace.

The greatest assemblage of leaders the world has ever seen was still growing. President Eisenhower joins them again today. The prime ministers of India, Great Britain and Canada flew in and their arrival caused scarcely a ripple.

Khrushchev stood in a Long Island meadow and, in off-the-cuff banter with reporters, remarked that the Soviet Union now has everything ready to put a man in space.

An egg smacked squarely into the side of the black limousine carrying the Russian premier back to his residence Sunday night. What once might have been an international incident was ignored.

A Salvation Army band marched past the Harlem hotel headquarters of Castro and his Cubans, playing "Onward Christian Soldiers." They were followed by a pro-Castro group equipped with bongo drums, playing the "Yellow Press Cha Cha."

paper Neues Deutschland, describing the problem posed by a fictional teen-ager who was a good worker but made such errors as complaining that there was no freedom of speech.

"The problem was that he might either go to another job, thus shifting our responsibility (to correct him) to the workers there, or he might go to the West, and being directly under dangerous influence might even join the NATO army."

Metric Measurement Use Eyed With Alarm; Crimps Hubby's Style

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Some of our heavy thinkers have been agitating again for adoption of the metric system to replace what ever system it is that we now use to measure distances.

They point out that the meter is used as the standard in many countries and that our own scientists use it, as do their brethren throughout the world.

Furthermore, they note that the millimeter, the centimeter, the meter and the kilometer all have a logical relationship to each other, whereas the inch, the foot, the yard and the mile do not.

I am willing to concede that there is some merit in the proposal to put the United States on the metric system. This would have been helpful, for instance, during the recent Olympic Games.

I, for one, had a deuce of a time keeping track of how far the Olympians were running and jumping and throwing things in contests that were measured in meters. I suspect it handicapped our athletes, too.

It seems reasonable to assume that a racer who spent his youth running yards might have trouble adjusting to meters. Possibly this accounts for the poor showing our guys made in some of the events.

Despite the possible advantages, however, as chairman of the Society For the Preservation Of the American Cliche (SPAC), I will have to go on record as opposing any move to change measurements in mid-stream.

It would destroy, for example, the only comeback that we male drivers have when our wives hysterically accuse us of almost hitting the cars in front of us. We couldn't very well smugly re-

Time Change Into Effect

By United Press International

The Far West and some scattered Midwest areas set their clocks back one hour Sunday, returning to standard time for the winter.

But in the East Coast and other Midwest regions, daylight or "fast" time, will remain in effect until Oct. 30.

The early clock changing widened the time lag between the two coasts from three to four hours.

In Indiana, the clock setting brought confusion. For five months the whole state has been on the same time. But despite state laws, some towns and cities while nearby communities re-switched their clocks Sunday while nearby communities remained on daylight time. Still other Hoosier towns planned to stay on "fast" time through the winter.

In Ohio, 10 cities including Wooster and Salem switched to standard time. The rest of north-eastern Ohio, including Cleveland and its suburbs, was waiting until Oct. 30.

The western great plains, the Rocky Mountain area and the South never adopted daylight time.

Wall Street In Review

NE YORK (UPI)—The Value Line Investment Survey said today that the hoped-for fourth quarter business upturn now seems less likely to materialize.

Cutbacks in the durable goods sector of the economy have spread to other areas, it reported. Although the business outlook is clouded and the international situation has been at fever pitch, the technical position of the market remains strong, according to Goodbody & Co. It is quite possible that the greater part of the decline has been completed even the present rebound is over, Goodbody believes.

Walter K. Gutman of Stearns & Co. says that his recommended Chance Vought has been weak because of speculations that the dividend will be cut at the next directors meeting. Another check with Chance Vought management by Stearns & Co. has reaffirmed that directors feel "comfortable" with the $2 annual rate, Gutman reports.

Corn is planted and harvested in every one of the original 13 states.
