By DOC-QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — January 20, 1961, writes goodbye to an era that tumbled through time for eight eventful years, 1953 through 1960.

Although the man in the White House could not possibly be held accountable for more than a fraction of the soaring achievements, frustrations, and foibles of the period, it probably will take on his name.

For most Americans, "the Eisenhower years" will be a time remembered for manners and morals as well as for the probing space, the clash of ideologies, the march of nationalism and peace.

People affectionately and newsprinters formally, in print-called President of the United States a nickname. And he liked it. They liked him. In a way, it is "the age of Ike." The man from Abilene emerged from the two figures who did not see eye to eye—died. Death came to two working American statesmen; Sen. Robert A. Taft and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, and to the retired George C. Marshall and John J. Pershing.

Adlai E. Stevenson wore a hole in his shoe and lost two elections to Ike.

Marilyn Monroe and Brigitte Bardot did a tandem pre-empt on the ever-popular Mae West in the sex-symbol seat. A whole platoon of woman celebrities succumbed to the urge to tell all—and then some—in biographies.

The American language was enriched by the usage of such words as isolation booth, brush war, defense posture, population explosion, Van Allen belt, fall-out, blast off, I got nooz fa ya, all that jazz, don't bug me, and two, four six, eight—we don't wanna integrate.

The earth turned out not to be round at all. It's pear-shaped.

Statehood for two rounded out the Union and accomplished two things: geographical: Alaska made us a close neighbor of the Soviet Union; the insular quality of Hawaii at one end of the country balanced the insular quality, at the other end, of New York City—only one-eighth of which is on the North American continent.

Memorable names laced the era—Capt. Kurt Carlson, Bobby Greenlease, Roger Bannister, Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, Dr. Bernard Finck and Carole Tregoff, Marine Sgt. McKeon and Ribbon Creek, Schine and Cohn—or was it Cohn and Schine?

Salk triumphed with his polio vaccine. Peron fell in Argentina. Nuclear submarines began their prow—the first vehicles to be propelled by the atom.

Humor and wit suffered a loss in the death of Fred Allen. Violence was the rage of TV, where Destry rode again and again and again. Bing Crosby got married again and fathered a girl.

Eisenhower prefaced his era with his campaign-promised trip to Korea. During his first year in office, the Korean truce ended the fighting and released the war prisoners on both sides. Happiness warmed many homes.

Eisenhower delegated presidential responsibilities, formed a cabinet that included Humphrey at Treasury and Dulles at State as the towering strong men. The Eisenhower personality and method had a welding influence on divisions in the nation.

The McCarthy subversive-influence hearings were on in 1953, and in 1954 there were the Army-McCarthy hearings and Senate condemnation of Senator McCarthy. The Eisenhower manner and conduct were credited with healing some of the passionate rifts of that period and generally with bringing on a time of "good feeling."

The cold war continued. Communism was creeping into Latin America. The Chinese People's Republic consolidated its hold on the mainland, and began to throw its weight around.

On Oct. 5, 1957, Russia toiled the "age of space" over the horizon with the launching of the first man-made satellite—beating the U.S. in the race to be first out of this world. There opened a whole new space and rocket weaponry East-West competition.

On May 17, 1954, the Supreme Court outlawed racial segregation in public schools, and in the next six years integration struggles were among the biggest news stories.

As 1961 began, the President ended the Eisenhower years with a positive stroke: he broke relations with Fidel Castro's Cuba. Now he puts down the burden of what Jefferson called "the splendid misery" of the presidency.

Daniel Asks Payroll Earning Tax To Help Reduce Deficit

THIRD TERM CEREMONY — In a brief inaugural ceremony on the Capitol steps in Austin, Price Daniel, right, is sworn in by Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert to embark upon his third term as Governor of Texas. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Ike Says Nation's Sound

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower said today he is leaving office with the American economy fundamentally strong and likely to resume growing soon.

In his last annual economic report to Congress, the retiring President emphasized the "underlying strength" of the nation's economy and described declines in production and income in the second half of 1960 as "moderate."

He declared the post-war tendency toward higher prices has been largely arrested, although consumer prices went up an average of 1.4 per cent last year.

Eisenhower's generally optimistic assessment of the business situation contrasted sharply with the views of President-elect John F. Kennedy's advisers. They contend the country is in a recession and the economy "has been sluggish and tired."

Eisenhower avoided using the word "recession" in his 214-page report. For the benefit of the incoming president and the public, he stressed his conviction that the federal budget should not be unbalanced at this time.

He also warned against artificially driving down interest rates, which he said would be inflationary.

On the outflow of U.S. gold and dollars to foreign countries, the President expressed guarded optimism that the losses would be cut in 1961. He said "prospects favor a reduction in the overall balance of payments deficit."

Reviewing the years since 1946, Eisenhower found "growth in output, jobs and productive capacity," "strengthening of our enterprise system," improved personal security and welfare, and "greater economic stability."

His own policies, the President said, "have brought the forces of inflation under control." Consequently, he continued, "the economy can now look forward, provided public and private policies are favorable to a period of sound growth from a firm base."

Natural Gas Levy Hike Of 3 Per Cent Urged

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Price Daniel today proposed a broad tax program centered around a 1 per cent payroll-earnings tax to solve the state's financial dilemma.

Daniel, in an address to a joint session of the legislature, called for emergency legislation to retire the state's $63 million deficit. He recommended a 3 per cent increase in the natural gas production tax to help do the job.

The governor revised his spending program to include a $600 teachers' pay raise, and called for a two-year budget of $260 million from the general revenue fund to handle increased spending and erase the deficit.

To help support colleges and universities, the governor recommended a $50-a-semester increase in tuition to state schools.

Daniel also revived his controversial abandoned property act—which would allow the state to take over unclaimed bank accounts—as a means to help retire the deficit.

His plan to erase the $63 million deficit and balance the books included:

—A 3 per cent increase in the natural gas production tax for one year to raise $22.5 million.

—A two-factor formula for computing franchise taxes on interstate corporations to yield $10 million.

—Transfer the financing of the farm-to-market road program from the general revenue fund to the highway fund to save $15 million.

—The abandoned property act to raise $17 million.

The governor said his overall program would drain $478 million during the next two years from the general revenue fund.

Subtracting Comptroller Robert S. Calvert's estimate of revenue for the next biennium of $283,620,395 leaves a total need for new revenue of $206,344,339, or if the estimated deficit of $63 million is included, a total of $269 million.

As an alternative to juggling the farm-to-market road program, Daniel called for a one cent increase in the state gasoline tax. He said this would provide the $15 million needed to help retire the deficit plus $16 million for public schools.

Daniel's new spending programs included:

—A medical aid program for (See DANIEL, Page 3)

—The Board of Regents for state teachers colleges be abolished.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

... eight eventful years

Eight years still the most popular in the country, although a while it was nip and tuck with Godfrey and Paar.

By the nature of the jet age, was the traveling President, his vice president was the slightest vice president. He through three grave illnesses and the country hung on his vital bulletins. He believed in oral diplomacy. He beamed grin and opened his waving to millions in Europe, the east, and Asia.

During the Eisenhower years, thinking began exploring "the we're in," namely space, earth played hula hoop with little orbits. The Russians, in words of historian Dick Mervin, "violated the moon."

These were the rock 'n' roll years. Sideburns and gettars. Vi-coats. Hula-hoops and pizza. The supermarket became man's castle. The move to suburbs reached full tide.

There was an era of teen-age delinquency. Instead of mere children of parents, they became separate entity to which whole hand-dancing lines and camps were directed. Popular culture caroled a dog in the snow, a hound dog, a purple sweater, an itty-bitsy, teeny, yellow polka-dot bikini.

Or, a couple of British agents and a lady doctor crossed the country. Ever-was scaled, and living quarters were established at the South.

He ran a mile in less than minutes, and sprinkled fall on a boatload of Japanese men.

He stopped getting bigger started shrinking. So did the dollar. Thinking machines celebrating in all fields. Buspeaked, recessed, peaked, re-

was a time of the emergence of new nations and nationalism — and of the asp senescence of colonialism. In Africa, at the end of the war, there were four independent nations. At the beginning of 1960 there were 10, at the end of 1960 there were 25.

In London, a queen was "coro-and Britain entered its "Elizabethan era." Prink-targaret renounced a lover, a husband, and lost a Winston Churchill, a formal person and noble prize in literature, gave up the prime ministry at 50. Stalin and Pope Pius 25th, day.

Nikita Renews Berlin Threat

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has pledged continued Soviet help to "inevitable" national armed revolutions throughout the world.

He also has renewed his threat to force Western withdrawal from Berlin, and has claimed the Soviet Union alone stopped England and France during their invasion with Israel of Egypt in 1956.

Khrushchev stated his views in a 20,000-word speech Jan. 6 to members of the Academy of Social Sciences and the Communist Party Central Committee in Moscow. The text was made public Tuesday in the magazine Kommunist.

Emphasizing that the Communists support national liberation wars "fully and without reservation," Khrushchev said "such wars are not only permissible but inevitable."

He said revolutionary wars should not be confused with local wars, such as the 1956 Suez crisis or wars between states.

Khrushchev has stated previously that the historical Marxist doctrine of the inevitability of wars between communism and capitalism.

Proposed changes in Pampa's city charter will be up for discussion tomorrow morning's breakfast meeting of the Legislative and National Affairs Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

The breakfast, scheduled at 11 a.m. in Coronado Inn, will be the first in a series to be held throughout 1961 for discussion of local, state and national affairs, according to Don Beaman, chairman of the committee.

Pampa voters will go to the polls Tuesday, Jan. 31, to approve or reject the proposed charter.

Members of the commission which drew up the new charter form will attend the breakfast tomorrow to discuss the proposed changes and answer questions. The meeting is open to the public and reservations can be made for the breakfast by calling MO4-4321.

Beaman said the purpose of the breakfast discussion will be solely to inform and acquaint the public with the proposed changes.

"There will be no attempt," Beaman said, "to influence the people one way or another in their voting."

The charter commission members at the breakfast will be glad to answer any questions, he said.

Kidnaper's Wife Denies Killing Girl

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Richard A. Lindsey's wife denied through her attorney today Lindsey's claim that she killed a 4-year-old Rose Marie Riddle after he kidnapped and assaulted the child.

Mrs. Dixie Lindsey, 23, mother of three children and expecting her fourth next month, told attorney Eugene McKnight she was beaten when he begged her ex-convict husband to allow the child to return home.

She claimed Lindsey threatened "to do her in" if she tried to stop him from assaulting the blonde, blue-eyed girl.

Lindsey, 30, a former mental patient, claimed Tuesday when Rose Marie's body was found in a field about an hour's ride from here that he raped and choked the child with his wife's consent—and that his wife then killed the child by beating her on the head with a tire log wrench.

An autopsy showed Rose Marie had been hit at least 19 times on the head by the wrench found with an empty whisky bottle at the scene. Two of her front teeth were knocked out by the blows and she had been raped, the autopsy showed.

Lindsey, who has an auto theft record in Dallas, Tex., and a petty theft arrest here, and his wife were both arraigned on kidnap and murder charges Tuesday. Separate attorneys were appointed to represent them.

Deputies said they both appeared calm and unremorseful in telling of the crime.

Mrs. Lewis Heads P-TA Defense Unit

AUSTIN (SpI) — Mrs. James Lewis of Pampa Tuesday was elected chairman of the civil defense committee of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers at an annual meeting of the board of managers of the organization held here. Mrs. Lewis is president of the 19th district.

The board voted to grant four scholarships annually to Texas high school graduates who intend to enter the teaching profession.

A resolution pledging individual support of any tax program agreed upon by the Legislature to pay for quality education in Texas was also adopted by the board.

Fort Worth was chosen as the 1962 convention city and the invitation of Galveston to host the congress in 1963 was accepted.

JFK Has Date With His Tailor

NEW YORK (UPI) — President-elect John F. Kennedy began a low pressure day here today away from the pre-inaugural bustle of Washington and to have a final fitting on his tuxedo coat.

The President-elect did not watch President Eisenhower's farewell address on television, but picked up early editions of the morning papers on his arrival here at 12:18 a.m. to read Eisenhower's speech.

Kennedy arrived by plane from Washington where he had attended a party given by his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Smith.

He scheduled a meeting at his Carlyle Hotel suite with Gov. Luis Munoz Marin of Puerto Rico, which was said to be purely a social call.

It was understood that Munoz wanted to meet with Kennedy sometime after the inauguration for a business conference on Puerto Rican affairs, but was seeing the President-elect today only for an exchange of greetings.

Kennedy also will see Hugh Gaitskell, British Labor party leader, sometime during the day. Gaitskell is in this country for an appearance Saturday night on the television program "The Nation's Future" and to attend Kennedy's inauguration.

The President-elect tailor, Sam Harris, has a date with Kennedy to fit his inaugural clothes for a final check before they are packed off to Washington.

Cash Outlay Proposal Is Tremendous

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Legislative Budget Board today called for a gigantic $2.48 billion state spending program, including $36 million in new spending from the deficit-ridden general revenue fund.

Overall spending from the general revenue fund would come to $358 million over the next two years.

The $2.48 billion recommended budget would represent an increase of $96 million in state spending from all funds if it were adopted by the legislature.

The budget board reported that current comptroller's estimates show that present taxation would yield $146 million for additional spending from all funds.

The budget board report said that net receipts from all state tax programs were estimated to raise $4.58 billion during the next two years.

More than half of the increased spending from the general revenue fund recommended by the board was for educational programs in Texas. This included $4.2 million—the amount the state was short in 1960 in contributions to the teachers' retirement fund.

The second-largest increase called for $12.3 million more for state hospitals for the mentally ill, for the retarded and institutions for juveniles.

The recommended budget called for appropriations from the general revenue fund of $103 million for the hospitals, schools and institutions.

Rayburn's Rules Panel Increase Plan Okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats today overwhelmingly approved Speaker Sam Rayburn's plan to liberalize the conservative-controlled House Rules Committee by enlarging its membership.

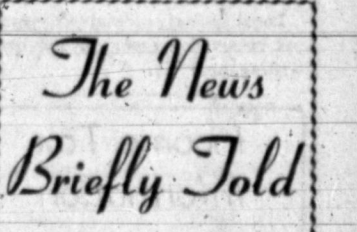

Rayburn has been figuring to lose 30 to 70 votes from the Southern bloc. He believes he can offset this by picking up some Republican votes.

Under today's resolution the committee, which controls the flow of legislation from other committees to the House floor, would be increased in membership from 12 to 15. Its party ratio — now eight Democrats to four Republicans — would be changed to 10 Democrats and five Republicans.

Other congressional news: Nominations: Adlai E. Stevenson was expected to be approved swiftly by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as new U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Commerce Secretary designate Luther Hodges and a number of lower level Kennedy administration appointees also faced confirmation hearings.

BEAUMONT (UPI) — The Beaumont Ministerial Association went before the city council Tuesday and demanded that the council not only clean up conditions of vice exposed by a legislative committee but assure the people it will not happen again.

AUSTIN (UPI) — A person found guilty of selling or giving away brass knuckles or switch blade knives would be subject to penalties of up to $500 fine and one year in jail under provisions of a bill proposed by Rep. Jake Johnson of San Antonio.

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Legislative Budget Board recommended today that the Board of Regents for state teachers colleges be abolished.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Divers made their first entry into the storm-wrecked radar tower off the New Jersey coast today in an effort to recover the bodies of 28 men believed trapped.

HAVANA (UPI) — Private hospital here have protested to the International Red Cross about the Castro regime's emplacement of anti-aircraft and other guns on their premises. It was reported today.

Numbers Game Has Scribe In A Frenzy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's been more than 15 years since I looked at my dog tags, but I can still remember my Army serial number. It was 28229670.

The telephone exchange to which my line is connected has assigned me number 3335. My house number is 1065.

When I dine at the National Press Club, I sign the check with membership number 988. In the American Newspaper Guild, I hold card number 222-1717.

If I am sick enough to go to the hospital, I fill out an insurance form as certificate holder #202301. Should surgery become necessary, it would be performed upon certificate number 5950018D.

When a cop stopped me last week for ignoring a stop sign, he took down the number of my driver's license 400140. Then he handed me ticket number 34220. The fact that I have police press card number 349 did not impress him.

It will exhaust my bank account number 3805 to pay the fine, but I need not worry. Three oil companies will sell me gasoline on credit upon the presentation of cards numbered 437292048, 3472020-720 and 248677015.

And in another 25 years, the government will take care of me under Social Security account number 458058881.

These are by no means all of the numbers that I represent. They are just the numbers that I happen to remember or could find on cards in my wallet.

I compiled this partial list after reading in the new federal budget a proposal by President Eisenhower that we start paying our taxes by the numbers.

"Legislation should be enacted to authorize the adoption of tax account numbers which are needed for mechanical and electronic processing," the President said. I assume this means that each tax-

Handwriting Tested Over C-C Ballots

PERRYTON (Spl) — Handwriting samples from all post office employees and from a number of other persons who requested that their writing also be included have been sent in for analysis.

A postal inspector from Amarillo said the writing samples, actually "scratch outs" on a piece of paper, would be sent to the central laboratory at Cincinnati, O.

The investigation started when a large number of post card ballots for Chamber of Commerce directors were altered.

Alteration of the ballots were made by scratching through a previously checked name.

Using just the scratching on a piece of paper, laboratory technicians can compare them with the original work and determine nearly every time who the original penman was.

Local postal officials have not yet received a report on the handwriting analysis.

Income Tax Information

Every little hole in those 1040A tax forms now being mailed area taxpayers by Uncle Sam has a meaning all its own.

According to Wiley E. Davis, administrative officer, Internal Revenue Service, here, the 1040A card received in the mail is pre-punched with specific data relating to your 1960 tax record.

"Therefore," the IRS representative advised, "use the 1040A that came in the mail unless your income bracket has changed to make use of the simplified form impractical."

payer would be given a number so that his income tax return could be checked by a machine. If the machine found something wrong, the taxpayer would soon find himself wearing a federal prison number.

I want to be the first citizen to go on record as opposing this plan. It would only hasten the day, already close at hand when names will become entirely meaningless.

If the numerical system of nomenclature is inevitable, what is needed is not another number to cope with, but a way to reduce the digital volume that we already have.

Pampa, Borger Realty Boards in Joint Meet

Realtors of America must face the responsibility of representing property owners in a fight against Communist threats and encroachments on free enterprise and individual ownership.

This was the highlight of a message sounded last night by Joe B. Phillips of Lubbock, president of the Texas Real Estate Assn., addressing an audience at joint installation of new officers of the Pampa and Borger Real Estate Board at the Coronado Inn.

Pampa officers installed included Jim Dailey, president; George W. first vice president; Bill Durbin, second vice president; Ben Williams, secretary, and directors Willard Henderson, Paul Corbin and Bill Clements.

Borger officers installed were: Perry Wisenhunt, president; Ed Miller, vice-president and Bill Ward, secretary.

Multiple Listing Service meetings have been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Coronado Inn.

President Dailey said.

Officers said last night's meeting attracted the largest attendance at annual installation affairs. There were 21 in attendance, including 10 from out of town.

William J. Craig fined $10 cost and sentenced him to 30 days in jail.

The worthless check, authorities said, was given to Mary Eggleston amount of $28.50 Dec. 21 last.

Eisenhower Holds Final Press Meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower today holds a well-attended news conference and his final report of the nation's economy to Congress.

His economic report Eisenhower was expected, to discuss current business slump but also a revival of the economy.

He also was likely to urge President-elect John F. Kennedy to avoid red ink government spending.

With Prayer For Peace Ike Leaving Office As He Began

By RONALD H. NESSEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower, ending his administration as he began it with a prayer for peace, urged his successor Tuesday night never to abandon the conference table for the "certain agony of the battlefield."

In a solemn and sentimental farewell radio-TV speech from the White House, the old soldier told the American people to gird themselves for a long struggle against the "hostile ideology" of Communism. He cautioned the nation not to be tempted by what appeared to be some "miraculous solution."

The 70-year-old retiring President, who leaves the White House at noon Friday after serving his country for nearly 50 years, promised to do "what little I can" as a private citizen to find world peace.

President-elect John F. Kennedy, who left his Georgetown home for two glittering parties shortly after the speech, said he did not watch Eisenhower's address.

From his oval office already stripped of most belongings, Eisenhower warned the nation to be ever vigilant against allowing a military - scientific - industrial elite to exert "unwarranted influence" over the government during the struggle with Communism.

He noted that an "immense" military establishment and arms industry have grown up in this country since World War II. While these are imperative to the nation's defense, he said, the country must be alert to their "grave implications" so that liberty is not destroyed in the name of security.

Eisenhower conceded he was putting down the burdens of his office after eight years with a "definite sense of disappointment" that he had not been able to reach a disarmament agreement with Russia.

"I wish I could say tonight that a lasting peace is in sight," he said. "Happily, I can say that war has been avoided."

Without mentioning Kennedy by name, Eisenhower opened his speech by wishing the new President and his aides "Godspeed." He said, "like every other citizen, I wish that the coming years will be blessed with peace and prosperity for all."

Eisenhower, who offered a prayer in his inaugural speech eight years ago, ended his 20-minute goodbye address with a prayer that the time would come when all peoples would "live together in a peace guaranteed by the binding force of mutual respect and love."

Guests were Texas Ranger Bill Henslee and James Bowers.

Daniel

The aged at a cost of $15.8 million over the next two years.

Enactment of the Hale-Aikin school recommendations including a $600 pay raise for teachers instead of a $400 raise recommended by his finance advisory commission.

To raise new revenue to support increased state spending, Daniel called on lawmakers to consider the payroll-earnings tax and as an alternative new and increased selective sales taxes.

Both were recommended by his finance commission.

The payroll tax, to be shared equally after a $1,000 deduction by the boss and his employees, was estimated to raise $217 million.

The broadened program of excise taxes would yield $226 million.

Daniel also urged lawmakers to:

—Enact 24 proposals made by a law enforcement study commission in 1959 to strengthen state criminal statutes, including stiffer penalties for narcotics violators and a paid parole system for juveniles.

—Revise the driver licensing law to permit the state to suspend those drivers with unsafe records, and a new system of traffic courts. He called for 100 more highway patrolmen to boost the state's safety program.

—Reorganization of the State Board of Water Engineers and raising the ceiling on state loans for water projects from $5 million to $15 million.

The governor also called for legislation to carry out a constitutional amendment aimed at eliminating loan sharks, restoration of the state board of insurance on a full time basis, and expanded programs for the mentally ill.

Also equal rights for women, adequate financing of the state program to attract industry and tourists, an increase in the present $28 maximum unemployment compensation payment, and a $177,000 appropriation for operation.

Calcium exerts a steady influence on the nerves.

1961 Plans Viewed By C-C Group

Plans for 1961 were discussed at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Industrial Promotion Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Members of the committee, headed by Floyd Watson, made tentative plans for a trip to Longview and Tyler to study the industrial foundation of the two East Texas cities.

The possibility of publishing a brochure covering an industrial survey that could be used by prospective industries also was discussed. The committee also held further discussion on efforts to locate a helium plant in the Pampa area.

Plans were set up for visiting new industries which have recently located in Pampa. It is planned to make the first of these Friday afternoon.

The Highways and Transportation Committee went into session at the chamber offices late this afternoon to map its 1961 program.

Paul Crouch is chairman of the group.

The Aviation Committee, headed by Ralph Prock, will hold a meeting at 10 a.m. Friday.

Daniel embarked on his third term as Chief Executive Tuesday with a solemn promise to deal with the general revenue fund deficit first as an "emergency matter."

"We should arrange to pay for past commitments and present debts before undertaking new programs and new expenditures," he said in his inaugural address.

He called the state's gigantic financial dilemma "greater in total dollars than any before in our history."

He urged those who believe in states' rights to support efforts to finance adequately the state government.

School Official Talks At Houston PTA Meet

Bert R. Ashworth, superintendent of Amarillo public schools, guest speaker at Sam Houston on Thursday afternoon at 2 in the school auditorium. Produced by L. J. Edmondson, assistant superintendent of Pampa schools, Mr. Ashworth told the assembly and guests "Schools are the society they serve and failures, ascribed to contemporary education, are failures of society as a whole."

His thought-provoking speech, Ashworth outlined a three-fold national responsibility and a ten-point gauge for better citizens of today's schools.

With the role of the school being evermore important and problems more complex, and saying, Ashworth said "The role of the school is to define educational policy, vision, clarity and forceful action cannot be over-emphasized. Education is a preparation for citizenship in its broadest sense. The dual must be economically and socially competent. He must be able to produce as much or in goods and services as he consumes or otherwise add to the welfare to help sustain or improve our standard of living."

He must be politically competent, informed on local, national and world affairs. He should understand our way of life and its institutions and have a deep devotion to America. There to define clearly the role of public schools, we must continually renew and appraise the responsibilities of the schools as they may be viewed as three essentials: such as reading, arithmetic, the second or phases such as vocational education and certain broad outcomes general education concerned our American way of life. Schools have some responsibility for helpful counsel and leadership in the community."

Afternoon's program opened with the flag led by Mrs. Benton. Dona Cornutt introduced D. V. Biggers, Stephen F. principal; Mrs. Carlton PTA City Council president; Cameron Marsh, Pampa School principal; B. R. Nuckols superintendent and Kinnard, city superintendent.

Rev. Russell G. West, pastor of the Church of the Brethren, the devotional. Nuckols spoke briefly on the

Haile-Aiken Bill. The door prize a cake, baked by Mrs. H. B. Taylor Jr., was won by Mrs. D. A. Redus. Mrs. C. W. Stowell's fourth grade room won the room count by having the most parents present at the meeting. At the executive board meeting, held prior to the general meeting, Mrs. Joe Fischer, president, presided as Mrs. Ronald Hubbard, study course chairman, announced that the first study course will be held Jan. 19 from 9 a.m. until 11 a.m. in Travis Elementary School. The topic will be "Are School-Age Athletes Happy?" A nursery will be provided. All members are urged to attend. Mrs. Worth Nelson, City Council representative, announced that the Mothers' March will be held on Jan. 30 with members of all PTA units participating.

Lydia Class of Central Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Pearl Meadows, 821 N. Gray for its monthly meeting. Mrs. Albert Taylor presided at the meeting. Mrs. Ada Stark, a guest, led the opening prayer with the devotion on "Maturity and Growth" presented by another guest, Mrs. Charles Broxson.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. Ray E. Thomas of Houston; Mrs. C. C. Miller, associate member; Mmes. Taylor, Earl Griffin, J. F. Webb, E. B. Davis, T. G. Groves, J. H. Anderson Lois Johnson, D. L. Lunsford, J. W. Holt, J. H. Hackson, Fred Williams, and teacher, Mrs. A. P. Holligan. Mrs. Williams dismissed the group with prayer.

Study Courses To Get Underway On Thursday At Travis

"Are School-Age Athletes Happy?" will be the topic for the first in a series of six city wide PTA courses to be sponsored by the PTA City Council. The first study course will be held Thursday in the William B. Travis school auditorium beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing until 11 a.m. Woodrow Wilson PTA will be the assisting host-school. The program will be a panel discussion with MacHenry Lane, public school curriculum coordinator, as moderator. The panel will be composed of Henry Gindorf, local president of the Breakfast Optimist Club; the Rev. M. B. Smith, Highland Baptist Church pastor; Mrs. James R. McMurtrey, school nurse and Jack Nichols, principal of Robert E. Lee Junior High School. The panel will discuss the pros and cons of athletics for school-age children.

Following the panel discussion, the meeting will be thrown open for a question and answer session. The study courses are to be held each succeeding Thursday for six weeks beginning at 9 a.m. until 11 a.m. each time and will be held in different elementary schools each meeting.

Dear Abby... Pros And Cons Of Mental Illness

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You did a great disservice to the young wife of the mentally sick husband when you advised her to stick with him. Would you have us adopt the ancient Hindu custom which compels the widow to throw herself on the burning bier of her husband and join him in death? We are not Hindus, Abby. And a woman who will put up with a husband who has become a mental case is only making a martyr of herself.

Sincerely yours, NO MARTYR

DEAR ABBY: How dare you compare mental illness with cancer? Cancer affects only the person who has it. Mental illness can destroy an entire family. I knew a lady psychiatrist who said most mental patients who resist treatment are just mean and selfish and use their "illness" to dodge responsibility. She also said she never saw a mental patient who couldn't get well if he wanted to. You should have advised the wife to divorce her husband immediately. Just because HIS ship is sinking is no reason for her to go down with it.

Troop 66 Has Investiture Rites

LEFORS (Spl) — Brownie Troop 66 met in the civic center on Friday night for an Investiture Service conducted by leaders, Mrs. Leonard Cain and Mrs. E. L. Fosbee. Each girl knocked on a door which was answered by Mrs. Leonard Cain, leader. Facing a leaf encircled mirror, the Brownie Scout promise was repeated and Mrs. E. L. Foshee, assistant leader pinned the girl.

Receiving pins were Paula Beck, Rosemary Blankenburg, Marcia Brewer, Debra Boyd, Susan Cain, Sandra Cain, Martha Carlton, Margie Chastain, Vickie Cochran, Elaine Foshee, Diane Hughes, Patricia Mason, and Gaylene Swann. Peggy Cox, a new comer, will join the troop having been pinned in Merkel, Texas. Freda Looney and Fern Hughes will receive pins upon completing four meetings.

Brownies, punch and coffee were served by the scouts' mothers. Guests were Mmes. Francis Cox, Joe Cochran, Irene Aldridge, Ijuna Brewer, Arthur Hammer, Messrs. D. O. Boyd and Alex Swann; and Mmes. and Mmes. E. L. Foshee, W. G. Hughes, Marvin Moxon, Ray Chastain, Aubrey Carlton and W. J. Foster, Misses Doris Jo, Molly and Joyce Ann Carlton.

DEAR ABBY: "Been Through It" disgusted me. In my opinion her attitude is the reason her husband stayed mentally ill for so long. We were married only six years when my husband entered a mental hospital. It took faith in God, good State doctors, and plenty of love, but he hasn't had to go back. He wasn't easy to live with for a while, but I couldn't just leave him to suffer alone and make my own life with the children." We've been married 10 years now. The battle is not completely won, but we're happier now than we've ever been. His illness has brought our family closer together. I'm glad I stuck.

"ALSO BEEN THROUGH IT" DEAR ABBY: My husband has been in psychotherapy for a year. Sometimes he's fine, and other times he's a mean, foul-mouthed drunken animal. This is no atmosphere in which to raise children. His doctor tried to explain his case to me, but I can't buy it. The cost of psychiatric treatment makes a polio or cancer patient's bills look like chicken feed. I am giving him just one more year in which to get well. If he doesn't, then I am leaving. I am not cruel or selfish. I am only thinking about my children.

"GOING THROUGH IT"

DEAR ABBY: Please, ask "BEEN THROUGH IT" if she recalls the vows she made on her wedding day. "I take thee — for better or for worse, in sickness and in health... 'till death do us part." She replied, "I will." But did she really mean it? WIFE OF A MENTAL PATIENT

CAN YOU AFFORD 5c PER DAY?
The average per capita expense for each person's prescriptions is less than 5 cents per day, about $15 for an entire year. Incidentally, if you are an average person you spend each day about $1.31 for food and tobacco, 53c for transportation and 27c for recreation.
CAN YOU AFFORD TO GAMBLE?
Prescription buying by mail is the latest device to entice business. Discounts are being offered. For a dubious saving of a few dollars per year you risk the dangers of delay, loss of your pharmacist's personal interest in your welfare and the necessary immediate contact with your physician that is so often needed.
THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION OPPOSES MAIL ORDER PRESCRIPTIONS. They reported that "It is not in the best interest of the patient." The five to ten day delay can be dangerous. Often a pharmacist must consult with the physician before dispensing to avoid possible error. Firms advertising price savings are under temptation to offer lesser quality drugs.
AVERAGE NET PRESCRIPTIONS PROFIT IS ONLY ABOUT 8% BEFORE TAXES.
That is all that is left after paying cost of ingredients, salaries, rent and all the other expenses needed to operate a good pharmacy. It is possible to offer a discount only if we were to raise our prices. This will not do. Be wise. ## Creative Capitalism

An alert college student, Norvin R. Greene has written an excellent study in "Defense of the Businessman" which item has appeared recently in the National Review Bulletin.

Greene has drawn our attention to the writings of T. V. Smith, a man whose position is sympathetic to ours but whose essays have been neglected by ourselves. Clearly, this is a man who should be widely read and studied.

Greene tells us: "T. V. Smith, for some time one of the foremost critics of traditional capitalism, now asserts in his book, 'Live Without Fear,' that the American capitalist system and the systems of business which preceded it have been misjudged throughout history. Since the days of Plato's Republic, business has been sneered at as too utilitarian by class-conscious and, only too often, unemployed snobs. Scholars have tended to scorn it as somehow 'dirty.' Religious fanatics have spurned its materialistic aims."

Then Greene gives us this gem from Smith: "The truth will slowly emerge, but it will be manifest in the end. Then it will be seen that capitalism does not put its emphasis upon the making of MONEY, but that above all and informing all, it is characterized by the MAKING of money. It is the CREATIVE touch which transforms all. Capitalism is mankind's most creative invention; it creates goods, in surplus; it creates and distributes purchasing power to absorb the goods so plentifully produced; it creates an atmosphere in which men can enjoy not only their products but, most of all, can enjoy their betters without disdain, their inferiors. Capitalism is the creative way of life."

This paragraph is superb and the final sentence, classic. We do not know how to say it any better than this. Materialism can always be discerned in tribal economies managed by primitive people. Under such low voltage societies, preoccupation with material things is mandatory or survival is imperiled. One MUST use all available time, skills and weapons in order to hunt the jungle inhabitants to provide one with the necessary food. Even such necessities as clothing and shelter can be temporarily abandoned in favor of the demands of gnawing hunger.

Here is true materialism. But it is pre-capitalist in structure. When men learn how to specialize and to exchange the surplus products of their specializations they are enabled to move away from materialism by finding spare time for skills rewarded and spare time more generally distributed.

The truly capitalist society is one in which materialism is set aside in favor of the finer and nobler instincts and impulses. Only a strong capitalist society can support costly medical research; charitable hospitalization; enormous educational endeavors; the theater, painting, sculpture, literature and the other arts.

Capitalism breeds the finer things of life by conquering materialism. It places the heel of the victor upon the throat of materialistic wants. It provides such an outflowing of goods and services as to make possible the abandonment of purely materialistic ends or means.

We have actually touched upon this same theme ourselves on more than one occasion but are encouraged by the fine contributions made by Greene and Smith.

When the American people reach the intellectual plateau where they recognize what capitalism has done for them in freedom, a new dawn will come to us. Temporarily, we are trying to escape materialism by turning to the government so that businessmen who are actually paving the way for our escape can be strangled and hamstrung, economically, thus setting up a detour in our civilizing process.

When we learn to trust the market place and the businessman, and to forever hold the politician, the government schemer and bureaucrat in suspicion, then we will have properly corrected our sense of values.

Bonds Not A Good Bonus

We have been among those who are favorably impressed by the American Motors Corporation. We have constantly tried to assert the economic fact that competition does exist unless or until governmental force prevents it.

And the history of American Motors and the Rambler automobile have vindicated our faith in the vigor of open competition.

We have no way of recalling how many times friends of ours have told us that great accumulations of capital, by themselves, eliminated competition. We have stoutly insisted that this was not the case.

But we would have to admit, insofar as the big three of motordom were concerned, there wasn't much to go on to prove our point of view.

Then, suddenly, apparently out of nowhere, came George Romney and that cute little four-wheeled bit of dash. And the big three reeled with the impact, dug in, and only now in 1961 are beginning to gird up their fenders to compete in as rugged a fashion as they know how.

Thus, we shall always feel grateful to Romney for having helped us to prove our argument. The vitality and alan of the Rambler production and sales have more than supported us at the point where a good example was needed.

Having said all this, we are going to object to something. Mr. Romney is doing. For while we strongly support his efforts at competition, we were fairly well upset a couple of years ago when the esteemed president of this motor car company tried to interest the American government in intervening against General Motors.

the Ambassador, not to mention the Nash. But that was a couple of years ago and fortunately the federal government didn't consider the Romney proposal seriously.

But we were concerned then, as the proposal gave some indication that Mr. Romney, in his own way a genius, was lacking somewhere in his economic understanding.

Proof of that Jack is now at hand. He has launched a sales campaign to help promote Ramblers which we are going to have to criticize.

Before we do, let us concede at the outset that Mr. Romney has a right to advertise and sell Ramblers according to any terms he cares to devise. We wish in no way to challenge that right. But he has come forward in such a manner that he could confuse our already confused economy, and we are a little sensitive about anyone's trying to confuse it at this juncture.

What American Motors and its vigorous president are doing is to offer a sort of bonus, or profit-sharing idea, to customers of Ramblers. All you have to do is buy a Rambler during the first months of this new year. Buyers of Ramblers will be permitted to "share" in "profits" by a distribution of government bonds, the size of numbers of bonds to be determined by the overall number of cars sold.

Actually, in doing this, Romney is copying a page from Henry Ford. Way back in 1914 Henry promoted the Ford by a profit-sharing scheme which caused him to make out a check to some 308,213 car buyers for a total refund of $15,410,650.

If Romney would make a cash return to his buyers this would be one way of making customers feel that they were owners of stock. But Romney wants to make the return in government bonds, thereby encouraging the bureaucracy to continue to live beyond its means. This combination of a free mar-

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — Among the gifts strewn like golden sand at the base of my Christmas tree was an undetected package of viruses (vivi, professor?), with the result that while my family made a merry occasion of the holiday I passed the sorely trying hours in a bed of pain and fever, a fate I wish not upon even a dog because I love dogs and have had several in my life.

This all is cited to you not as an abject and somewhat transparent bid for your dubious sympathies, but as proof that our modern world is laden with traps for people who have an arrogant attitude toward the sick. Customarily, I have an arrogant attitude toward the sick. They annoy me. Not being a doctor or a male nurse, this is no major barrier in my life.

This lack of sympathy probably will seem to you to be evidence that I am part fiend and part sadist with a crisp overlay of black heart, but the truth is that I can feel emotions all the way up to a hearty tear over the simplest things, often things too simple for comfort whereas a person who says "I feel terrible" ignites in me a hot wish to say "Well, go tell someone else about it, I'm not interested. It bores me."

Decent recognition of this regrettable frailty has led me in recent years to survey humankind and I have come upon a discovery I pass on to the American Medical Assn. and affiliated psychiatrists without fee. They don't even have to say thank you. The discovery is that creative people of whatever level — say men who work typewriters in newspapers up to the sculptors, playwrights, songsmiths, actors and painters, novelists and poets — are almost always creatures naturally devoid of the quick gust of sympathy normally to be found in the human being.

Is it that creative people, however modest, the creation and the discovery of the talent, feel a superiority as humans and cannot burden themselves with so emotionally costly a surge as sympathy? Does the fact that one is creative, however humble, automatically take from one the decent feel of pity and concern? I think it does. I have been forced by observation and survey to think it does.

One festive Christmas I passed in the home of an American novelist of renown and on the Day Itself he received a telephone call from an otherwise blameless aunt in Portland, Oregon. The old lady wished him well, hail and merry but in a tone so lugubrious, he told me later, that he could not conceal the irritation and impatience this bred in him and he barked: "Why do you wish me Merry Christmas as though you're just reminding your best friend?"

"There was sound from the other end and, later, I discovered that what the aunt was saying was that she had, indeed, been to the funeral of her best friend that morning and was feeling a perfectly natural grief over it. Did the novelist have a stab of conscience and cry out: 'My dear, I'm so terribly sorry. Forgive me.' He did not. He took on the tones of Torquemada when he replied: 'My dear, I couldn't care less. She was a tramp and a bore. I know it and you would, too, if you were honest with yourself.'"

This is not the course of kindness. This is not even humanly decent. Unforgivable. Yet no worse than a sculptor I know, a man with his work in museums, who had a commission to do the bust of one of the nicest, most pleasant and charming and only incidentally richest women in America. She came to him one noon for a sitting and had a horrible cold that had mottled her cheeks and crimsoned her nose and even swelled her lovely eyes a little. She shrugged off the discomfort and managed a light laugh when she said: "I'm fortunate you are not a painter. Else I'm not have come and inflicted all these new commissions on you." Did he soothe her and say she should have cancelled, should be home taking treatment and comfort? Did he say one single word designed to help her?

"It's just as bad coming to me, a sculptor, this way," he said with a icy disapproval. "Your eyes are a mess. I can't work on you when you look so dreadful."

The dossier on the fine hearts of the creative is a large, long document. Such people are by nature — I think by nature — the most unsympathetic persons alive. They simply and plainly care not one whit if you are next door to death. Their only plea is that when you are ill you keep away from them.

ket endeavor with government borrowing is questionable at best. However, if Mr. Romney feels a sense of guilt out of making profits on his cars, so much so that he wants to share profits, he has a ready recourse, which was the same one Ford followed. He can reduce the price of his motor car. And that will be a boon to all, and a great boost to his competitive position.

Actually, we don't think Mr. Romney has to resort to these theatricals to sell his car. From personal experience we know it's a fine automobile. We'd like to see the price come down, of course. But we'd like it done competitively and not by a deal for the sale of bonds thru the government.

Allen - Scott Reports:
Javits, Case Offer Bi-Partisan Cooperation On Medical Care Bill Partly Like Kennedy's

ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — President-elect Kennedy is getting some significant unexpected congressional backing for his proposal to put medical care for the aged under social security.

Republican Senators Jacob Javits, N.Y., and Clifford Case, N.J., are offering to back the incoming Democratic President on that in a bill of their own.

Governor Nelson Rockefeller fully approves the measure they will introduce.

Also, Javits and Case confidently anticipate that eight or ten other Republican senators will co-sponsor their legislation, and that House Republicans will submit it there.

Senators Javits and Case are seeking a conference with Kennedy to urge that he throw his influence behind bipartisan medical care legislation.

They contend that would ensure its speedy enactment. The Javits-Case bill differs importantly in one respect from that generally favored by Kennedy. Under their measure, a choice between two medical care plans would be available for those over 65.

Kennedy advocates a single system of such medical care under social security, to be financed by increasing the social security tax paid by workers and employers.

This formula is one of the two alternatives of the Javits - Case measure.

Under the other, the government would pay up to $60 on the premium cost of private health insurance policies with the states providing a similar amount. This federal-state program would be financed either by a payroll tax, like social security, or by monthly assessments from those not under social security.

Medical care for the aged is high on Kennedy's legislative priority list.

Leaders of the House Ways and Means Committee, where this measure must originate, already have been consulted on it. Also Speaker Sam Rayburn and Democratic Floor Leader John McCormack, Mass., who favor speedy action on the matter.

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President-elect Kennedy is getting some significant unexpected congressional backing for his proposal to put medical care for the aged under social security.

He is the only one I know of who go along with every Congo leader he met. Without exception, all were very enthusiastic about him. I am fully convinced he really could unite that nation.

Everyone laughed, but McGee insisted, "I'm serious. I mean just that. Ted Kennedy was better informed about the Congo than the State Department and other experts who briefed us on it. He knew far more about that country than they did, and everywhere he went he was very popular and made a big hit."

WAIT AND SEE — Both Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., and Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, Ill., are privately insisting there will be a vote this session on the shelved proposal to curb unlimited debate.

That's what they are firmly telling party colleagues. Mansfield told a Democratic group, "I give you my solemn word that the Senate will vote on a change of the rules before it adjourns this year." And Dirksen told a GOP gathering, "I assure you emphatically the Senate will vote on limiting debate before it winds up in the summer."

The wives of the two Republican members of the new Democratic cabinet are being invited to join the Women's National Democratic Club. All the cabinet wives are being asked to do that, and no exception is being made of Mrs. C. Douglas Dillon, wife of the Treasury secretary, and Mrs. Robert McNamara, wife of the Defense secretary. However, no "pressure" is being put on them to become members. Club officers say that is strictly up to each cabinet wife.

ROME, Italy — Ever since I started traveling I have been told that Europeans appreciate Americans making an effort to speak the language of the country they are visiting.

I have begun to doubt this gratitude on the part of the Europeans. I believe it is an old wife's tale with little or no authenticity, and that Europeans would be grateful if those of us who butcher Italian, French, and German would have our requests written out for us, sort of like a prescription.

For example, take a recent case of my own in which I threw an entire salsamerteria into confusion by requesting a jar of jelly or sauce suitable for serving with some birds-a-huntsman-friend had given us.

For 10 minutes, using the type of Italian I have at my command, I tried to get across what I wanted. With typical kindness, all the help stopped doing what they were doing to listen to me.

They showed me everything in the store, or nine-tenths of it, while customers backed up.

Finally, as I nearly always do, I flapped like game birds rising from cover and yelled "Bang! Bang!" with my arms extended as if I held a shotgun.

Then dawn broke among the help. They saw the light. Their faces lit up. They cried, "Si, si," and the manager grabbed my arm, whisked off his apron, and started down the street with me in tow.

Two blocks later he took me into a hardware store and, oblivious to my protestations, ordered, paid for, and handed me two boxes of shotgun shells.

DEAR EDITOR: Let's take a trip and view what has taken place in our city under the guidance and protection as applied under the centralization form of government as applied in Pampa. Let's survey the southside first. We find two of the three commissioners financially interested in its development. They paved the street east from Cuyler to Barnes, thence south to Cuyler. This was expensive concrete paving. It was presumed the city paid most of the bill at about the same time the paving on S. Cuyler was started, and the streets were almost impassable for about two years, during which time most merchants on said street were forced out of business because their customers couldn't get to their place of business.

At this juncture, two of our north side citizens offered themselves as city commissioners, pledging themselves to get us out of this mess as they did. All of the tax dollars were spent in their district. Our people lost faith in city officials. Here is a partial record of assessed values: 1938, $7,196,140.00; assessed value for 1945, a period of seven years, $8,237,920.00. That is a gain of slightly more than $1,000,000.00. 1950 assessed value was $17,458,000.00. Thus, it can be seen we grew almost as much in 5 years under the present charter as we grew in 50 years prior to this adoption.

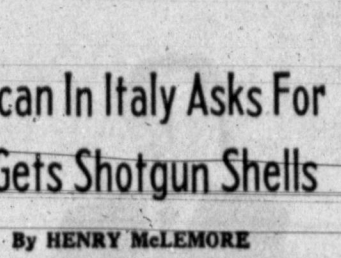

That is only half of the story. The criminal element ran over us roughshod. They fired on our sheriff and he had to flatten in a bar ditch as bullets whizzed over him. Our deputy sheriff was shot down by gangsters. Our sheriff shot a bootlegger. Our ballot boxes were stuffed. We couldn't be sure of an honest election. The above is only a partial account of what happened to Pampa under the centralized form of government, and it appears that those cities downstate that stand indicted for corruption and violence are operating under the centralized form of government such as the one proposed in this new charter.

If it be lawful to call it a charter, it is really a crown of thorns. Our good people have gone to the polls and adopted and defended our present charter twice. Let's make it a trio and say by your vote: Satan get Thee behind me.

I have tried to give a true and comprehensive account of past history of Pampa. My object is to help to make Pampa a clean and healthy place to live and rear our children. What good we do, we must do now for we pass this way but once.

THE U.S. AN UNFIT INSTRUMENT

With the coming of a new administration, the country will face new decisions regarding its involvement with the United Nations.

In particular, Congress will be under heavy pressure to channel U.S. foreign aid through U.N. agencies. This action was sought last year in the Food for Peace Bill (S. 1711) introduced by Senator Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) and co-sponsored by nine Democratic liberals. One of those "liberals" was the then Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

It is to be hoped that the next President will have second thoughts regarding this most unwise action which he supported while in the Senate. Certainly, it is bad enough to engage in foreign giveaways. But far worse is the plan to have these giveaways controlled by U.N. officials, many of them from Iron Curtain countries. It would amount to letting communists help decide how the funds of United States taxpayers will be spent. And, of course, the U.N. officials from Red countries would have only one purpose in spending funds supplied by the U.S. — the purpose of advancing the interests of the Soviet Union.

The do-gooders who push the U.N. cause in the United States have done an effective selling job. They have been able to convince large numbers of Americans that the United Nations is a truly impartial humanitarian organization. It is no such thing.

Let's look at the record! It shows that many of the key officials of the U.N. are hired or appointed by the Secretary General, who is from Red bloc countries. A few are paid from U.N. funds, which the United States pays third.

In Dag Hammarskjöld's immediate entourage, his principal personal aide is Michael Potrubal of Russia. In the Department of Political and Security Council Affairs, the chief executive is Gregory P. Arkadyev of the USSR.

The senior political affairs officer of the U.N. is Vladimir Jelinek of Czechoslovakia, a Russian satellite country. The Department of Trusteeship and Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories has as its under secretary one Dragoslav Prolich of Yugoslavia. That country regularly votes with the Soviet Union in international issues. The chief of the Trusteeship Agreements Section is Fedor Popov of Russia. Acting Chief of the Office for Africa, Middle East and Africa is another Yugoslav, one piece of office of the Fellowship I ment Office is from communist Poland. There are many other Iron Curtain nationalities in other vital parts of the U.N. apparatus.

Nor is the United States in the U.N. secret. The U.S. has received an enormous political build-up in the U.N. has a long history of association with leftist groups. Bunche an organizer of the National Congress, a group which fed communist control. He is an editor of a Marxist magazine. In that period, he declared "white and Negro workers . . . lock arms and march shoulder to shoulder in the struggle for liberation of the masses." This is the man who represents the USA in the secretariat.

It would be tragic if the President, with the approval of Congress, entrusted the spending of hundreds of millions of dollars to the hands of U.S. citizens heavily infiltrated by communist representatives. The nations hope to endive the nations they profess a desire help.

During the next administration and in all the years to come United States must depend on own efforts and agencies to promote its security.

Deadly Monterey Outpaces Harvesters

By ARTHUR MAYHEW

Daily News Sports Editor

Pampa needed a miracle of the first order today to stay in the district race after Lubbock Monterey captured a listless 61-48 victory over the Harvesters last night in a District 3-4A battle witnessed by 1,200 fans in Harvester Fieldhouse.

The victory boosted the Plainsmen into a two-way tie second place with a 3-2 conference tally and left the Pampans in the cellar.

lar with Lubbock — both 1-4 — as the Westerners fell to Amarillo, Palo Duro 69-65, last night.

Pampa, out-shot and out-hustled in the first half, bore no resemblance last night to the band of battlers that almost upset Borger last Friday, losing the ball on bad passes too many times and bypassing good shots.

Pat Carter, Pampa's usual "man of the hour" scored only two points on a driving layup in the third quarter — and fouled out early in the fourth period.

If it hadn't been for a pair of Harvester sophomores — Randy Matson and Gordon Balch — and Senior Allen Wise, the final score might have been even worse. Matson pumped in 15, while Balch and Wise chipped in 10 apiece.

For Monterey, John Holloway paced the well-rounded attack with 17 points while three other Plainsmen hit in twin figures. Second high was Jerry McGuire, a former Pampman, with 14, Danny Harris, 12, and Russ Wilkinson — the third best scorer in the district until last night — had 11.

Pampa led only once last night, 2-0, at 7:35 of the opening quarter when Matson meshed a jumper. Before Balch — playing one of his best all-around games of the year — could hit a set from the side, Monterey was ahead 6-4.

period to cut Monterey's bulge to 13-12, but McGuire hit a long one-hander with two seconds remaining to give the visitors a 15-12 first period lead.

It was Balch again with 3:36 left in the second stanza with looping set shot that cut Pampa's deficit to six — 26-20 — but Monterey went on a seven-point spree while Bill Nealage was the only Harvester to scratch and Coach Gerald Myers' Plainsmen led, 33-22, at halftime.

Pampa could get no closer than six points in the third quarter, 23-35 and 32-38, the latter margin-cutting coming on a free throw by Wise, and the locals trailed 33-44 going into the final period.

Monterey managed to stay long 47 from the outside, 38 per cent.

The Harvesters out-rebounded Monterey, 24-19, with Wise pulling down 8 and Matson, 7.

In the preliminary encounter, Pampa's Shockers moved into at least a tie for first place among the district's 'B' teams with an easy, 58-47, victory over Monterey's Lancers.

Ronnie Chase, 15, Bob Nealage, 12, and Wayne Kries, 11, sparked the Shockers to their fourth district victory in five tries while John Crippen had 14 for Monterey.

Touted Chamberlain Wilts

Robertson Paces West In NBA All-Star Upset

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — The 11th National Basketball Association All-Star classic will be remembered as the game in which Oscar Robertson and Bob Pettit led an assault on 17 records — and Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain flopped.

Robertson won the game's Most Valuable Player award for his brilliant all-around performance and Pettit scored an All-Star record 28 points in the West's 153-131 upset triumph Tuesday night before a sellout crowd of 2,816 at Onondaga War Memorial Auditorium.

This was the best five I've ever seen play together," beamed Coach Paul Seymour of the West squad.

Celtics playing at the same time for the East could deter the West's starting group from breaking open the game with a 28-point lead in the first period.

Chamberlain, who leads the NBA with an average of 37.6 points per game, had one of his most wretched nights since he joined the pro league. Guarded, inactively by Lovellette throughout most of the game, Chamberlain scored only two field goals and eight of 15 free throws for 12 points. Although he played 38 minutes of the game, he did not score a field goal until the third period.

"This was rougher than a regular league game," he lamented in the locker room afterward. "First it was Lovellette, then Pettit and then (Walter) Dukes. All three played harder than they do in an ordinary game."

Lovellette confirmed this. "I played him (Chamberlain) the same way I usually do, except that tonight I think I played a little harder."

Coach Red Auerbach of the East said, "the game was lost in the first period." Asked why he did not remove Chamberlain when it became apparent that the Philadelphia Warriors center was having a poor night, Auerbach replied wryly: "I wanted to see if he could score a field goal."

Robertson scored 23 points, grabbed nine rebounds and was credited with an All-Star game record of 14 assists. He scored 13 of his points during the East's first-period spree. The East's 47 points in that period was one of the 17 records set. The West connected on 17 of 23 field goal attempts for a 60.7 percentage during that torrid first quarter and out-rebounded the East, 27-15. The "cold" East squad hit on only seven of 29 first-period field goal tries.

Russell, Dolph Schayes of the Syracuse Nationals and Paul Arizin of the Warriors led a second-period spurt which enabled the East to narrow its deficit to 15 points at 64-49.

Pettit and Lovellette were sitting on the sidelines during that East rally and as soon as they returned to the lineup, the West rolled into high gear again and sped to a 22-point advantage at half-time. The East never threatened seriously again.

White Deer's streaking Bucks ran their year's record to 20-0 and 3-0 in District 3-A play last night with a sound 68-44 victory over Panhandle. Tommy Lester starred for the Bucks with 20 points while Addington had 20 for Panhandle.

In the girls' encounter, White Deer's Does triumphed 64-32 as Kay Allen tallied 21. The Does are also 3-0 in district action.

In other area games, Perryton slapped Wellington, 64-58, for its second district win in three tries. Harry Drake had 20 for the Rangers while Lacy and White had 16 each for the losers. Perryton's girls won 59-37, behind Ann Acker's 26-point display.

Hedley downed Groom, 55-31, in the boys' battle and 51-24 in the girls' contest last night also. Wayne Kotara paced Groom with 14 although Bobby Roland had 25 for Hedley. Linda Brown had 10 points for the Groom girls.

Lefors split a doubleheader with Canadian, taking the girls' game 33-31, but losing the boys' 11-1, 51-42. Jerry Fitch had 17 for Lefors' boys and Betty Sue Lewis had 14 for the Lefors girls.

McLean ran into trouble away from home, losing a pair to Clearendon. The Tigers lost a heart breaker in the boys' game when James Allen scored with less than 12 seconds to play to give Clearendon a 64-63 win. Jimmy Watson had 21 for McLean and Kathy

'Polio' Game Is Scheduled

Friday's District 3-4A basketball game between Pampa and Amarillo here has been designated as the annual "Points For Polio" game for the March of Dimes, according to MOD Chairman James Gallemore.

Citizens will pledge money for each point that is scored with the money going to the MOD campaign. Pledges may be called in to Denny Waller, 5-5828.

Reaps Triumph In Overtime

Pampa's Reapers stood alone today in first place in the ninth grade division of the Panhandle Junior High School Athletic Conference basketball race but it took a 28-36 sudden-death overtime victory over Borger of Houston yesterday in the PJHS gym to do it.

The Reapers trailed most of the game, outscoring Borger 16-12 in the first half to tie up the game at 33-33. After an overtime which left the score 36-36, the Reaps won the important battle when Kenny Hebert's shot rolled around the rim and an ever-anxious Borger player hit the net and goal-tending was called, giving Pampa the winning two points.

Pampa (8-1), working on a six-game winning string, was paced by Hebert's 14 and Charles Price, 8. Robinson had 14 for Borger. Robert E. Lee kept pace with the Reapers by downing Perryton, 39-33 in Perryton, yesterday and now meets Borger Houston tomorrow in Borger.

Gary Sikes and Mike Bridges sparked the Rebels with 10 each while Rickey Stewart had 9 for Lee. Ivy was high man of the game, however, with 14.

In eighth grade encounters yesterday, Lee won 39-15 over Perryton as David McDaniel scored 15 and Robert Howard 10. Calahan had 10 for Perryton.

Pampa Eighth fell for its fourth time to Borger Houston, 27-12, as Richard Crews scored 5 for Pampa and Cooper had 11 for Borger.

Buckeyes All Alone Irish Knock DePaul From Unbeaten Ranks

And then there was one. Ohio State, unanimous choice as the nation's No. 1 basketball team, also stood alone today as the only unbeaten major college quintet.

Notre Dame, riding along in a 50-so season, "got its Irish up" Tuesday night and jolted previously unbeaten DePaul back into reality by downing the Demons, 61-58, at South Bend, Ind. The victory for the Fighting Irish was their 23rd in a row at home and snapped DePaul's 11-game winning streak.

De Paul, which only this week moved into the nation's "top 10", trailed Notre Dame 27-25 with four minutes left in the first half and could never catch up.

Coach Johnny Jordan threw a collapsing defense at the Demons and it succeeded in stalling the De Paul offense midway through the 1960-61 campaign. The Demons managed only three field goals in 14 minutes during this period which led to their downfall.

Howie Carl, DePaul's 5-9 scoring ace, hit his first four shots from the field but cooled off the rest of the half. Carl finished with 16 points, however, to tie Notre Dame's John Tully for game scoring honors.

Tully also held DePaul's M.C. Thompson to a field goal and three free throws and dominated both backboards to lead Notre Dame to its eighth triumph in 15 starts this season.

Cincinnati, with Paul Hogue and Tom Thacker scoring 16 apiece, defeated Duquesne, 64-53, to record its 12th victory in 15 outings for the 1960-61 campaign. The Bearcats jumped to an early 16-point advantage and withstood a strong second half comeback by the Dukes in a game marred by fisticuffs.

Clyde Arnold tallied 16 points for the losers as Duquesne suffered its fourth defeat against eight victories.

Detroit, which went on the skids after reaching the "top 10" a few weeks back, broke a two-game losing streak in romping over Dayton, 71-57.

Charlie North, who led the Titans with 23 points, scored 18 in the first half to give Detroit a 34-22 lead at the intermission.

Garry Roggenburk's 15 points topped the Flyers.

In a Southern Conference game last place VMI parlayed deadly foul shooting and Don Halberstadt's 32 points to a 93-77 triumph over George Washington. The Keydets were matched from the field but made good on 35 of 38 from the free throw line.

All Talk Not Serene In Contract Debates

By MILTON RICHMAN

United Press International

Baseball may be a sport but outpaw Bud Daley and first baseman Frank Torre insisted today they mean business in their mutual campaign to get more money.

Daley, a 16-game winner for the Kansas City Athletics in each of the last two seasons, said he was paid last winter to "wait another year" before issuing a real salary squawk.

So he waited, and now he's squawking good and loud. Torre, who was sent to Louisville by Milwaukee before mid-season last year, has curly informed the Braves he'll quit rather than take a cut to play in the minors.

Daley, a 28-year-old knuckleballer whom the New York Yankees would like to have, said he had fired his first contract right back at KC General Manager Frank Lane without signing it.

"I was offered a slight raise, but it was so slight that it wasn't worth the paper it was written on," said Daley, who posted a 13 record in 1959 and a 16-16 mark last season.

Daley laughed when told that he had said he expected to confer with him today and that no difficulty was anticipated.

How does he know I'll come in terms when he doesn't know what I want?" said the KC ace. And I'd like to know how he expects to confer with me in the morning when I have another job and won't be home.

over his $30,000 salary of last year. Veteran outfielder Hank Bauer signed for a reported $27,500 with the A's — about what he got last year.

The A's received something of a jolt when they learned that right-handed pitcher Dick Hall suffered a broken bone in his right hand while playing basketball at Salt Lake City. Hall, who said he felt the hand would heal in time for spring training, explained he was playing basketball to stay in condition.

The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates signed rookie pitchers Earl Francis and Tommy Sisk while veteran 38-year-old catcher Del Rice agreed to terms with the Los Angeles Angels. Rice had been a free agent and becomes the fourth receiver on the new American League club.

Pitcher Bob Anderson signed with the Cubs, who now have a total of 21 under contract. Cleveland announced the signing of four players and now has 19 under contract.

Grandmother Eyes Crown

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI) — Mrs. Marion Ladewig, a 47-year-old grandmother from Grand Rapids, Mich., goes after her eighth title in 12 years and Bill Bunetta, Chicago, Ill., tries for his first title as finals play gets underway today in the 20th National All-Star Bowling Tournament.

Bunetta, with 7809 points, entered the finals enjoying a 110-point lead over his closest rival, Earl Johnson, also of Chicago.

Mrs. Ladewig, the only former women's champion to qualify for the finals, with 4898 points had a 41-pin lead over Robbie Frey, Dallas, Tex.

Not One First Draft Choice Lost

NFL top choices cannot sign a pro contract because they have eligibility remaining in other college sports.

In contrast, only 2 of the 8 AFL teams have signed their top draft picks. These are All-America center E. J. Holub of Texas Tech, signed by the Dallas Texans, and end Earl Faison of Indiana, signed by the Los Angeles Chargers.

Holub also was the second draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys in the NFL and Faison was the No. 5 pick of the Detroit Lions.

Besides Holub and Faison, the only two college stars who so far have preferred the younger league to the NFL were Fred Arbanas of Michigan State and Stew Barber of Penn. State. Arbanas, signed by the Texans, was the No. 2 choice of the St. Louis Cardinals; Barber, who cast his lot with the Buffalo Bills, was the No. 3 pick of the NFL Dallas Cowboys.

In analyzing the NFL signings, it should be pointed out that each club in the older league was reasonably certain of corraling its No. 1 pick at the time of the draft.

During the NFL draft meeting last month, before selecting a player, each club telephoned him to determine whether he was committed to an AFL or a Canadian team. If so, the NFL shied away from him.

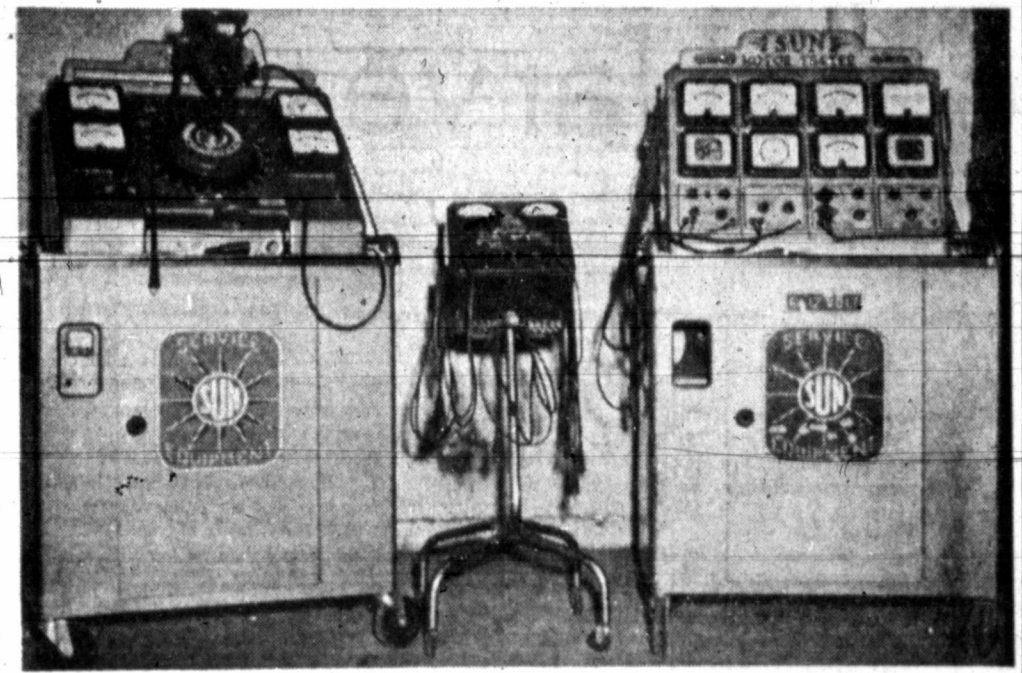

American Football League clubs drafted in November, before they had any indication whether they could sign their preferences.

the Houston Oilers; Joe Rutgens of Illinois, Washington Redskins over Oakland; Bob Gaiters of New Mexico State, New York Giants over Denver; and Tommy Mason of Tulane, whose signing has not been announced yet but is known to have chosen the new Minnesota Vikings over Boston.

Ken Ricp of Auburn has eligibility remaining in another sport and thus cannot turn pro until June. Pro football men feel he will join the Buffalo Bills rather than the St. Louis Cards.

Most of them thus gambled and lost. The Denver Broncos and New York Titans have

THE BEST EQUIPMENT AVAILABLE—One of the reasons that Culberson Chevrolet Inc., 212 N. Get Combines Ready Now, Farmers Told

Culberson Chevrolet Is Prepared To Make Repairs On All Vehicles

It's time for area farmers to get their combines ready for use later in the year and Culberson Chevrolet Inc., 212 N. Ballard, is the place to obtain engine and other necessary repairs.

"We have the equipment to repair combines and other farming vehicles," Perry Franklin, service manager for the firm, said. "And we have top flight mechanics to do the jobs."

Repair of farm vehicles isn't the only expert job the men at Culberson Chevrolet can do. With two Bear front end machines and many other modern pieces of equipment at hand the firm can and does handle all types of automobiles, tractors and trucks of all sizes.

The Culberson Chevrolet Truck Center is one of the more completely outfitted centers of its type in the Texas Panhandle. There Center or in the main shop, it's done well and the customer will be satisfied," said Franklin.

"Our four men in the paint shop are outstanding men in their field. They do the best job in town, you may be assured of that," Franklin stated.

With all the modern devices available to put one's auto or truck in top condition, it's little wonder that Culberson Chevrolet Inc. is the busiest auto repair shop in the city, the place where motorist return throughout the years and leave when the work is completed as well. That's why we are always seeking new and better equipment. When a new method is found to be an improvement, we purchase that type of machinery. For that reason we feel certain that when we do a repair job, in the Truck

XXXII Willis picked up his pen and dipped it in the ink. The first case is the State of Texas versus Indian, George—no surname known—and a man known as Three-Finger Halvorson, charged with unlawful alteration of cattle brands. He looked at the defendants. "How do you plead?" Browning, squatting in the dirt, with some paper on his lap, looked up. "Not guilty, your honor." Willis wrote in his book, and said to Wheeler, "Proceed with the jury." Wheeler took a folded and worn sheaf of papers from his vest pocket. He examined the first page and raised his head. "Stub Miller," he called in a loud voice. A short, bow-legged man with long mustaches stood up in the crowd. "I'm him," he said. Temple Houston, his hat off and his tawny hair gleaming in the sun, asked: "Mr. Miller, are you working on a ranch at the present time?" "I'm ridin' line up on the Caprock for the Double Rafter."

had the outlots surveyed, and have him sworn? Browning glared at Houston. "For a nickel I would," he said under his breath. Houston ostentatiously took his hand from his vest pocket and held out a coin. Browning snapped, "Mr. Miller, it is a well known fact that cowhands are usually paid on the first of the month, is it not?" "I never been paid any other time except on a trail drive." "Now, then, this is the 22nd. Do you mean to tell the court that you had money left over from the first of June?" "No, sir, I drew the dollar to pay for the lot." Browning nodded wisely. "So then the money did not come out of your pocket at all?" "It came out of my wages." "Do you maintain that this lot actually cost you $1 in money?" "Well, not exactly. Everybody who bought a lot gets a one-dollar raise this month." "Mr. Miller," said Judge Willis, "have you been advised as to how long this one-dollar pay raise will be in effect?" "For keeps," said Miller. "They told us it was permanent." Browning, to gain time, said to Miller, "Mr. Miller, tell me how it feels to be a property owner in this glorious part of the world?" But Miller said with unexpected dignity: "Mr. Browning, I mighta thought it was a joke when I bought this here lot, but I don't think so no more. I never owned no land before, and I got to say it makes me feel real proud to say I bought a piece of real estate in Clarendon, real proud to own a little bit piece of Texas. If I'd of known how I was gonna feel, I'd be willing to pay a lot more for it." (To Be Continued)

Yarborough Backs Anti-Poll Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., supported a resolution of a Fort Worth, Tex., American Legion post Tuesday calling for abolition of the poll tax in a Senate floor speech. Yarborough said he cosponsored a bill in the last session of Congress which would have outlawed the poll tax in federal elections. He said he would be glad to support a similar bill to abolish the tax in Texas. Yarborough said the Fort Worth veterans organization urged other election reforms, including replacement of the electoral college by a direct popular vote.

Tuition Fees Are Only One-Fifth Of Universities' Operating Costs

By LOUIS CASSELS

U. S. colleges have raised their tuition charges sharply in recent years. But they still get only one-fifth of their operating income from this source.

It costs nearly $5 billion a year to operate the nation's 2,000 institutions of higher education, with the present enrollment of 4,510,000 students.

A nationwide survey by the U. S. Office of Education discloses that approximately $1 billion of this bill is paid by the students themselves — or their families — in the form of tuition and fees.

The 20 per cent figure is an average for all types of colleges. Public institutions get only 18 per cent of their income from tuition while private institutions get about 33 per cent.

Income from auxiliary enterprises, such as dormitories, dining halls, book stores and student hospitals, account for 19 per cent of the current funds of private institutions, and 17 per cent of the expenses of public institutions.

Appropriations by state legislatures are by far the largest source of funds for public colleges and universities, amounting to 43 per cent of the total. Private schools, of course, receive little from this source. To make ends meet, they must depend on gifts from alumni, corporations and philanthropists, and grants from foundations. Together these sources provide 7 per cent of their total current income.

Contrary to popular belief, endowment earnings are not an important source of income for colleges. Less than four per cent of all private school income comes from endowment earnings, and this is heavily concentrated in about 50 favored institutions.

One rather surprising disclosure of the survey was the important role already being played by the federal government in financing higher education. Both public and private institutions receive about 15 per cent of their income from federal funds, predominantly in the form of research contracts and grants.

If college enrollments climb throughout the 1960's as population projections clearly indicate they will, the annual operating cost of the nation's system of higher education will reach at least $10 billion by 1970.

That sounds like a lot of money, but it actually represents only 1.7 per cent of the estimated gross national product in 1970. Russia is already spending at least 3 per cent of its gross national product on higher education.

There's no question that the United States, as a nation, can easily afford $10 billion a year for higher education. The real question is: Exactly where is the money coming from?

Colleges are encountering resistance to further substantial increases in tuition. But even if their fees are stabilized at roughly the present level, increased enrollment will bring income from this source up to about $2 billion a year by 1970. Income from dormitories, dining halls and other auxiliary enterprises can also be expected to double.

But that still leaves upwards of $6 billion a year to be raised from other quarters.

Public institutions will look to state legislatures for larger annual appropriations.

Private institutions will require much more generous support from their alumni, from corporations and other private sources.
