

Stephen Paul Curtis Is Pampa's First Baby Of 1961

A husky young gentleman checked into Highland General Hospital at 1:24 p.m. yesterday to collect a jackpot of prizes for being the first baby born in Pampa this year.

Curtis. The other children are John, five; Charles, three, and Debra, two.

Stephen was the first baby to arrive on the second day of the year and still gain the "First Baby of the Year" honors.

As for Pop, well, he's doing as well as could be expected.

Young Steve collected more than most people do in a lifetime. Here's the way he stacked up the prizes:

from Sears-Roebuck and Co.: a floral arrangement from Clayton Floral Shop; a pair of baby shoes from Lad & Lassie Children's Shop; mother's choice of a case of baby milk from Heard - Jones Drug; one case of Gerber's strained baby food from Ideal Food Stores 1-2 and 3; a $10 gift certificate from Furr's Super Markets; a one-quart sauce pan from Monarch Hardware Co.; a $7.50 gift certificate ($5 dry cleaning, $2.50 laundry) from Your Laundry and Dry Cleaners; a Silf Skin girdle to Stephen's mother from Behrman's, Pampa's Fashion Center; a $10 gift certificate from C&M Television; merchandise worth $5 from Safeway Stores; and a $5 gift certificate from Levine's baby department.

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

By Noel M. Loomis

XIX

The sun had gone down when he turned the last corner and saw the Quarter Circle J B spread out before him.

He made out a yellow light in the window of the sod house, and let the black slow to a trot. In 15 minutes he was near the house and saw a dark bay horse ground-tied near the front door. He frowned, but he knew it was not an outlaw's horse, so he took off the black's saddle and threw it over a low limb of the cottonwood tree. The black was sweating hard from the evening's run. He patted its neck and sent it on to graze. Then he walked to the house.

Catherine was standing with her back to the stove, laughing at something that had been said. The man at the table was 35 years old, small, slender, black-haired, and wore a small black goatee.

Catherine looked at Bart, and the sight of him seemed to remind her of something that sobered her instantly. "Bart, this is Captain Arrington of the Texas Rangers."

Even for a veteran lawyer, Arrington's name was one to inspire respect. But Bart sensed something wrong. "Heard about you," he said.

Catherine's back was turned while she poured coffee.

Arrington took the cigar out of his mouth. "Lot of people have," he said. "Not always pleasantly."

Catherine sat the cup across the table from Arrington. "Captain Arrington was telling me stories about the war. He was in—what was it, Captain?"

"Mosby's Guerrillas," said Bart, sitting down.

District Court Date Scheduled

First jury week in Pampa for 31st District Court has been set to open at 10 a.m., Monday, March 6.

District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich yesterday called the court docket in its entirety and set 13 cases for the first jury week. These include compensation and damages actions.

Yesterday on the opening day of the January term of court a new grand jury was impaneled and after a brief organizational meeting adjourned subject to call.

The new grand jury will serve until the second week of June.

C of C Luncheon Plans Are Pushed

Plans were going ahead today for the first 1951 membership luncheon of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce in the Coronado Inn next Monday noon.

Chamber officials said today reservations are coming in and can be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce office at 4-3241.

Principal speaker at the luncheon will be G. W. Cox, assistant to the president of the Santa Fe Railway Co., Chicago.

Chamber Manager E. O. Wedgeworth pointed out that the luncheon will be open to the public as well as members.

C-C Work Groups Move Into Action

Seventeen Pampa Chamber of Commerce work committees are moving into action this week to start plans on projects for the coming year.

E. O. Wedgeworth, C. of C. manager, said today all committees have been completed and letters have gone out to individual members.

Wedgeworth said a series of meetings during January have been set up and the various committees will begin outlining their work for the year.

Bids Scheduled On Pampa Hotel

Bids were to have been opened at 1 p.m. today in the Gray County Courthouse for the sale of the Pampa Hotel, one of the city's landmarks which was opened in 1927.

A similar auction was held last month but the high bid of $150,000 was under the minimum wanted and a second bid was called.

Make Under $10,000? Use Tax Form 1040A

Taxpayers whose 1950 income was under $10,000, singly or jointly may generally use the midget size income tax form 1040A, according to Wiley E. Davis, Administrative Officer, of Internal Revenue Service in Pampa.

"Those who itemize deductions and those with income of $10,000 or more must use the longer Form 1040," Wiley said. "And be sure, if eligible to use the 1040A that you use the pre-punched card that you receive by mail."

Original manuscript of the diary of Samuel Pepys, in six volumes, is at Magdalene College, Cambridge, England.

"How?" Bart inquired.

"Dig up the body."

Bart finished his coffee and shrugged.

"Before we go any further," said Arrington, "who was shooting what?"

Bart said, "I had a pair of 44's."

"And she had the big Sharps?"

Bart hesitated. "I fired the Sharps too," he said.

"But—" Catherine was wide-eyed.

Arrington got up. "If the bullet went in from the front, it will help," he said. "And if it was a Sharps slug, it might have come from either of you. In that case, we might assume it was fired by Mrs. Lewis, because nobody could prove otherwise, and I think a jury would not blame her. But if it was a 44 slug, I'll have to take you along, Bart." He bowed slightly to Catherine. "In spite of the fact that Mrs. Lewis has vouched for you."

They were up at daylight, and Catherine had breakfast ready. Arrington finished, and said to Bart: "I hate to make you dig him up after you worked so hard to bury him."

Bart stopped abruptly. "I'm not digging up one shoveful, Captain Arrington, unless the state of Texas agrees to pay me for it."

"I'll ask you to take turns with me."

Bart took a deep breath and looked at Arrington. "Asking is different."

"I should have known that," Arrington sighed. "I'll flip a quarter to see who starts."

The quarter came heads, and Bart picked up the shovel and started for the grave. "What was this home-bred name?" he asked.

"Tex-Mex was all the name I ever knew. He used to be down at Fort Concho."

Parlor palm, far right, presides over a collection of house plants in the browsing corner of a family room. They're right at home with the foam rubber lounge chair and ottoman.

House Plants Easy To Grow If You Know How

KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The current enthusiasm among fashionable interior decorators for masses of greenery within the home will strike many homemakers as pretty funny.

They can't imagine a home without a sunny window full of cheerful flowers and greenery tucked wherever possible, fashionable or not.

But the fact remains that the emphasis on plants as important decorative accessories has spurred some of us to test the green thumb and look with new interest on ferneries and plant stands.

My own attempts to produce that lush look of tropical splendor so acclaimed these days have not been a complete success.

Then I met the parlor palm and a hardy ivy that restored my self-confidence. The parlor palm, I am convinced, will grow anywhere under any conditions — a splendid plant for me.

In the interests of better educated "green thumbs," the gardening experts of a national association drew up these reminders for us:

Light — Plants that will bear flowers or fruit need direct sun for best development. Most foliage plants do well without direct sun but must have strong natural light (or artificial light) to grow properly.

If you use sun-loving plants to decorate a dim part of the room, move them into sunlight for three hours daily.

Temperature — Most plants thrive best in rooms heated no higher than 70-75 degrees by day and 65 at night. Some plants can stand higher temperatures than others; let your plant dealer or florist advise on this point.

Humidity — Plants like high humidity. Offset dryness of rooms in winter by setting potted plants in trays or saucers of pebbles, and keep a constant water level just below base of pots. In planters or decorative cache pots, put a layer of pebbles about inch in the base, set porous clay pots on pebbles and fill in around them with peat moss and keep moss damp.

Water — Each plant needs individual attention. Touch topsoil with fingertip. If soil feels dry, sink.

Fresh Air — All plants must have fresh air every day. They will do better if not subject to drafts (thank heavens, the parlor palm can't read). A preferred treatment is to open a window in an adjoining room for 15 minutes every day.

Cleanliness — House plants with glossy or leathery foliage should be washed every week with clear water. Use a small laundry spray or the dish spray in your kitchen sink.

Dear Abby...

Tiny By Any Other Name Still Everett

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter married a nice young man whose Christian name is Everett. I think Everett is a lovely name, but nobody calls him that. They call him "Tiny," which is ridiculous because he weighs almost 300 pounds.

We feel that now that he is 27 and married, they should put that nickname aside and address him by his correct name. We tried to get the ball rolling, thinking others would soon follow suit, but it didn't work. When we call him "Everett" everyone (including our own daughter) looks at us as though we are out of our minds. Are we wrong? Are they? What can be done?

EVERETT'S IN-LAWS: I've yet to meet the 300-pound man who wants good-humoredly called "Tiny." A nickname is not easy to shed, so call him "Tiny" and don't make a mountain out of a 300-pound mole-hill.

DEAR ABBY: A child wrote to you saying her father sent her away from the table without her Thanksgiving dinner because she suggested he say "grace" before starting to eat. You took the father's part and said, "Honor thy father."

When parents are wrong, they do not deserve to be honored. I know you were quoting the Ten Commandments, but you should have quoted Matthew, 11:37: "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me."

AN ABBY FAN: I received a blizzard of protests (including a petition from students at Texas A. and M.) expressing the same opinion as yours. In my eagerness to uphold parental authority I bent over backward too far and broke my spiritual back. My apologies. The father was wrong.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my husband, who is an executive with a large oil company, purchased a rather expensive gift for his private secretary. I found out about it when I intercepted the bill.

When I confronted him with it, he told me he had given the gift to his secretary as a "prize."

The company offers "prizes" occasionally to employees, but they are paid for out of company funds. Why should my husband have to give his secretary a "personal" prize?

"PRIZE FOOL (?)"
Could it be that your husband is rewarding his secretary for services performed above and beyond the call of duty?

CONFIDENTIAL — SHIRLEY: Horse sense is what keeps a woman from becoming a nag.

Johnson Leaves Senate

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson will take his oath of office today for a new Senate term, then resign immediately, according to Senate parliamentarian Charles Watkins.

Johnson, a Texan, won another six-year Senate term in the Nov. 8 balloting at the same time he was elected vice president.

One reason Johnson decided to wait until the opening of the 87th Congress today to resign from the Senate was to give his staff workers a few weeks extra pay.

Watkins said he had received a letter from Texas Gov. Price Daniel notifying the Senate that he had appointed former Sen. William A. Blakley to succeed Johnson effective after the vice president-elect's resignation.

Assistant Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana was slated to take over Johnson's job as Democratic leader.

Johnson served for 11 years in the House before being elected to the Senate in 1948. He became assistant Senate Democratic leader in 1951 and moved up to the top job two years later.

He is considered one of the hardest working and most politically astute Senate leaders in many years. His particular skill was an ability to persuade opposing factions to agree on compromises. He did much of his persuading in the Senate cloak rooms and offices and by telephone, rather than on the floor.

Johnson will be without a job until he takes his oath as vice president on Jan. 20. In that post he still will work in his old haunt, as presiding officer of the Senate.

Blakley, a lifelong Democrat who supported President Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956, served a brief interim Senate term, in 1957 to replace Daniel who resigned to become governor.

The 62-year-old Blakley is a millionaire lawyer and financier with extensive oil and ranch holdings. He was born in Miami Station, Mo., but has lived in Dallas for more than 30 years.

Space Industry Must Be Handled By U.S.: Stennis
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States would lag behind Russia in space communications development if it handed leadership in the field over to private industry, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., warned.

"I am seriously concerned over the recently announced executive policy that would take the government out of leadership in the program," said Stennis.

"We need the full resources of government to give the necessary push to the space communications program," he said. "And military necessity requires that we have a fully developed system at the earliest possible date."

Demo Senate Leader Takes Post Serious

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield views his job in the 87th Congress opening today as President-elect John F. Kennedy's chief representative in the chamber.

The Montana senator said Monday night he felt a majority party leader should represent the President in the Senate, if that party controls the White House.

He acknowledged that this was a "minor" disagreement with the approach to the post taken by the last Senate majority leaders to serve under a President of the same party — Sen. William F. Knowland, R-Calif., during President Eisenhower's administration.

Knowland held that he was the leader of Senate Republicans, rather than Eisenhower's personal representative.

Mansfield's immediate predecessor, Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson, D-Tex., held the job of majority leader only under a GOP President. Johnson resigned the leadership post earlier and arranged to vacate his Senate seat today.

But House and Senate Democratic leaders insisted that Kennedy's program would pass in some "satisfactory" manner.

Here is what Kennedy wants first from Congress:
— A medical care plan for the

Congress Geared To Give JFK's Anti-Recession Program Support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 87th Congress convening today is geared to throw its first full effort behind President-elect John F. Kennedy's anti-recession program with prospects of substantial success.

But Asst. House GOP Leader Leslie C. Arends, Ill., predicted the new Democratic President would not get his five-point priority program passed "just the way he wants it."

Arends said there was a big "question mark" in the outlook for enactment of a medical aid program for the aged tied to the Social Security system.

This bill must originate in the House, and some legislators feel the House Ways and Means Committee might only hold hearings this session, putting off a showdown until the 1962 congressional election year.

But House and Senate Democratic leaders insisted that Kennedy's program would pass in some "satisfactory" manner.

Here is what Kennedy wants first from Congress:
— A medical care plan for the aged within the Social Security program.

— A hike in the 51-an-hour federal minimum wage.
— Expanded government housing programs.
— Federal aid to education.
— Help for areas suffering from chronic unemployment.

Beyond these priority bills are others with uncertain futures.

Most of the Kennedy administration's troubles will come in the House, as things now stand.

Arends said the House probably would resist adding federal aid for teachers' salaries to school construction funds in an education bill.

He said the House would stick to the 15-cent boost in the minimum wage it approved last year and would insist on more limit coverage than the 25-cent hike the Senate passed in May.

Senate — 65 Democrats and 34 Republicans. (There were 64 Democrats and 34 Republicans at the opening of the 86th Congress.)

There are two more senators and one more House member than at the start of the last Congress because Hawaii has since been admitted as a state.

They include a farm bill which will be worked out even in general terms; a variety of government reorganization plans, including creation of a new department of urban affairs and housing; foreign aid, unemployment compensation expansion and possible civil rights bills.

Tempest puts safety-minded performance in a gas-saving 4!

(Range of horsepower choices from 110 to 155)

Take a Tempest out on the highway and put it through its paces. This car is a whiz at moving into fast-stepping company on an expressway. Takes you from a standing start to a safe operating speed in seconds... gets you up a steep hill in high gear.

Run the Tempest over the roughest road you can find. It rides like the big ones because it's balanced! The engine's up front—the transmission's in the rear. And it's got independent suspension at all four wheels. Tires dig in firm on curves and turns. Full 15-inch wheels make car look big. Tires last. Brakes run cooler.

Before it hit the market, Tempest had 3,000,000 miles of testing by engineers, pro drivers and a team of teenagers. Its reliability checked out 100%. Owners have rolled up millions more. The only kick is the one it puts back in driving. Try it!

Ever since that fateful day when Neanderthal Man scribbled his predictions for the big dinosaur race on a stone tablet, sports scribes have taken upon themselves the weighty problem of predicting the outcome of sporting events. Few past of all the athletes or coaches involved—put much on the prognostications, and yet they are as much a part of sports as the games themselves.

Bigger Strong Again

BORGER — Although Coach Hanna is missing seven of last year's team that finished in the state, he nevertheless has come up with another contender. Borger has three good players in Jeff Levine, Vernon and Warren Bell and although the Bulldogs will be shorter last year, they have good and — as usual — will be near impossible to beat at. Borger has a 3-3 record the Bulldogs lost three non-conference games last year before the 3-4A pennant.

Long Year For Lubbock

TASCOSA — The Rebels, whose highest point production in three years has been 57 points, are expected to continue their control, low-scoring offense. Coach McCrary is the only regular and Coach Acker will have to come up with another ace to stay in the race.

Ylor, Oscar Keep Up

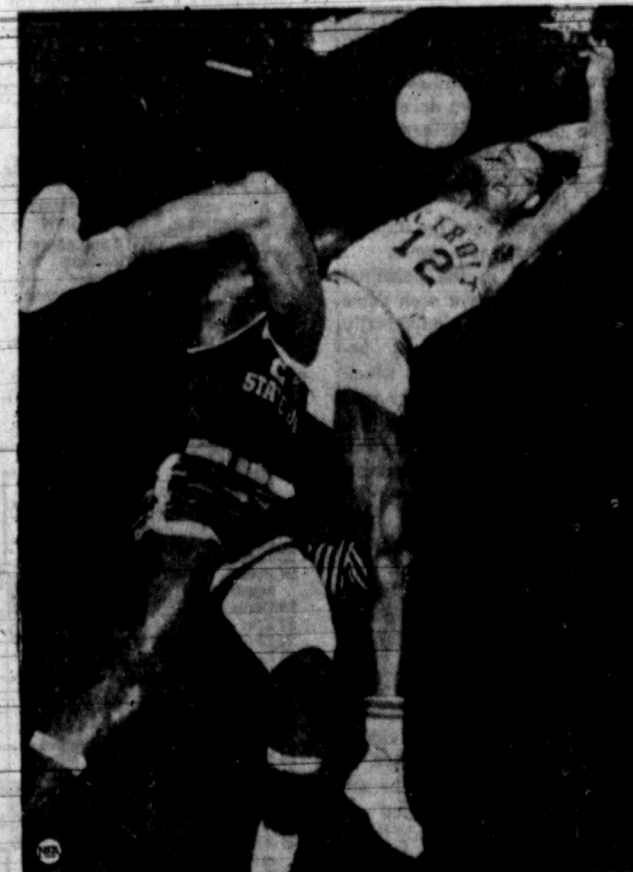

CHAMBERLAIN — Elgin Baylor and Oscar Robertson combined to 144 points Monday night in a furious race for the National Basketball Association championship.

CHAMBERLAIN broke his own single game record for the Convention Hall in Philadelphia when he scored 36 points in leading the Lakers to a 131-115 victory over the New York Knickerbockers.

Ohio State Keeps Grip On Ratings

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ohio State, which remained undefeated by winning the Holiday Basketball Festival in New York, missed a perfect score in the United-Press International ratings by a single point today for the third time this season.

Following the Buckeyes' tournament victories over St. John's and St. Bonaventure, two strong Eastern teams rated among last week's first five, 34 of the 35 coaches who comprise the UPI rating board again voted Coach Fred Taylor's defending national champions No. 1 in the nation.

One coach, however, cast his ballot in favor of runnerup Bradley and picked Ohio State No. 2. That gave the Buckeyes 349 out of a possible 350 points. Until this season, no team ever had scored that high in the weekly UPI ratings. Ohio State now has led the nation five straight weeks.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United Press International college basketball ratings (with first-place votes and won-loss records in parentheses):

Pampa (7-6) and Amarillo Palo Duro (7-2), the two hottest teams in the conference with a combined 11-game winning streak, tangle at 8 p.m. today in Harvester Gym in the highlight District 3-4A opener that could well decide the district crown darkhorse.

ARKANSAS AND TEXAS, two of the top title contenders, tangle at Austin Wednesday night. Although both the Ponies and the Red Raiders figure as dark-horse contenders, their game will bring together the two top point-producers in the league.

'Lonesome End' Beats Arkansas

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—Duke's "lonesome end," Tee Moorman, was really lonesome without an Arkansas man around him when he caught the nine yard pass which upset 7-6 victory over Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl.

It was such a neat bit of Blue Devil trickery that Duke's Don Altman pulled on the usually quick-witted Razorback that Arkansas was sucked into defense of an outside reverse running play, leaving Moorman—the nation's No. 1 receiver—all alone in the end zone.

Big Curve
By DICK WEBER
BPAA Doubles Champion
If you happen to be one of those fellows who draws oods and aghs because of a sweeping hook ball, but can't average more than 150—then listen!
The way lanes are finished today (slick and smooth as glass), a big curve is a highly inconsistent scoring ball. Professionals roll a line ball that breaks across only from five to eight boards.
We do this by making certain that our thumb come out of the ball in a position equivalent to 10 or 11 o'clock on a watch dial. The big curve results from letting the thumb slip from its hole down around 9 o'clock.
Move it up an hour or two and begin getting results.

Mental Inertia

We were listening to the discussion of a couple of brainy men the other day—and they were comparing the natures of human beings with the physical properties of matter. It was a dandy discussion. And the gist of it was that all matter is inert until force is applied either from within or without. Comparably, the human brain is inert until something occurs, either from within the brain or from the outside, to get the brain to function.

Mental inertia is something that is fairly prevalent these days. And we thought the two intellectuals who were discussing the idea came up with a pretty good way of illustrating the point on which they both agreed.

The suggestion was that a large (about 500 pound) cannon ball of solid iron or steel be provided. This ball would be suspended from a beam by the strongest steel wire known so that the ball would be, as nearly as possible, suspended freely in space. Piano wire would be used because it is flexible and also fine, thus cutting down wind resistance, while at the same time retaining sufficient strength to support the weight of the solid metal orb.

Then, the two savants went on to suggest that they would obtain the services of the mightiest man alive. They wanted someone of the calibre of a lumberjack, a man accustomed to swinging an axe or a mallet; a man with enormous back muscles and biceps, someone who could deliver a blow with a sledge hammer with a thrust of staggering impact.

It was the consensus of the two that if the strong man were equipped with a heavy sledge, say about a 15 or 16-pound affair; that if he hauled off and struck that iron ball, suspended in free space by a slim piano wire; and that if he struck the ball with all his might, the result would probably be a broken handle for the sledge and possible bruises and contusions for the strong man, but

Meanwhile, the iron ball, which would represent the bottom part of a giant pendulum, would probably quiver, and vibration would set up and down the piano wire. But to all intents and purposes

We Are Committed

There are certain actions which we can take, but after that we are committed irreversibly. Some things we start to do, find ourselves in error, correct ourselves and continue on without having revealed our original mistake.

Thus there are, in life, reversible and irreversible courses of action. Fortunately for us, the element of freedom and liberty within the human is so strong that opinions and attitudes are always subject to reversal. One can always learn. True, one can learn too late for any practical result to come. Still, one can learn. And this in itself is a great comfort.

Let us take two examples. A man drives into a strange part of the country. He takes a wrong turning. He becomes lost. He can wander around for some time. But finally, if he inquires, he may discover where he went astray and then he can correct himself and finally arrive at his destination.

But now let us take a man who steps out of an airplane without a parachute. One second later he can recognize his mistake. But the action is irreversible. There is no way he can change his mind to halt effectively his plunge. No amount of inquiry or ardent wishing can change the speed or direction of his descent.

In the first case, the action of the man is reversible. In the second, the action is irreversible. The American people, it would seem, are now committed to an irreversible plunge, equivalent with painful precision to the second illustration.

Our nation is committed to inflationary ruin. We do not believe it will be possible for anything else to come of our present financial situation. The place where we stepped out of the airplane, figuratively, goes back to the setting up of the Federal Reserve System. And the

The Doctor Says:

By Dr. HAROLD T. HYMAN

Last of three related columns. You must recognize the paramount importance of understanding and discipline in the prevention and treatment of constipation and hemorrhoids.

Perhaps you can adapt the following recommendations to safeguard your own comfort and well-being and the comfort and well-being of others in your household whose daily activities have also suffered the consequences of having to wait until evening before getting rid of accumulated fecal waste:

Get up one-half hour earlier than usual. Immediately prepare enough boiling water to fill two cups for each person. Flavor the water with lemon juice, tea or instant coffee. Sip the chosen beverage slowly before it cools. In the case of an obstinately constipated individual, replace the flavoring with a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda to each cup.

Before completing the morning toilet or dressing program and eat a simple breakfast consisting of fresh or canned whole fruit in season (not fruit juices), a cold or preferably a quickly prepared hot cereal with sugar and milk, buttered toast with a sweet spread (if desired) and a beverage (milk or cocoa for youngsters, tea or real coffee for grownups).

Reserve use of the bathroom for those who will need to evacuate immediately after breakfast. If there's a traffic jam, stagger the toilet and breakfast call at 10 to 15 minute intervals next morning. Request mentoik to shave before any convenient mirror. Ask nonbathers to wash up in the kitchen or wherever there is a convenient tap and basin.

Keep a supply of rubber finger cots and a large jar of an inexpensive, nonmedicated ointment, cream or jelly in the bathroom. For economy, buy the finger cots by the gross.

If the evacuation causes local burning or discomfort, apply lubricant with the index finger protected by a finger cot.

If there is protruding membrane or a developing hemorrhoid, use the protected finger to replace either or both well beyond the purse-string muscle that closes off the lower end of the intestinal tract. Repeat the maneuver if the condition recurs. Then, if possible, lie face down for a few minutes to make sure the protruded tissue remains in place.

A final word of caution. Do not continue home treatment if your efforts are unsuccessful, if the condition frequently recurs, or if there is brisk or persistent bleeding.

Each of these conditions suggests the possibility that some more serious or basic medical condition may be the cause of your difficulties. And you owe it to yourself to visit your physician for a complete examination without further delay.

Frankfurter Again Hinting To Friends He May Resign After Court Session

ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — It begins to look as if President-elect Kennedy may have the chance to fill a Supreme Court vacancy early in his administration.

Justice Felix Frankfurter may finally resign. That is what the 77-year-old jurist, oldest member of the tribunal, intimates to close friends. He is dropping hints this session of the court, which ends in June, may be his last.

This is not the first time Frankfurter has talked that way. In 1959, after recovering from a heart attack, he told intimates his work was proving burdensome and he was seriously considering "calling it quits."

But it turned out there was a big string attached to that. Frankfurter, in effect, wanted to name his successor.

His hand-picked choice was Henry Friendly, one-time general counsel of Pan American Airways, who had been named to the federal circuit court in New York by President Eisenhower.

Friends' possible elevation to the Supreme Court emphatically did not sit well with New York's senior Senator Jacob Javits.

He had a choice of his own, and let it be known he wanted to be consulted before any decision was reached on a selection from his state. From the Justice Department Javits received firm assurances he would.

Whether this backstage development or some other factor caused Frankfurter to change his mind is not known. But he remained on the high bench.

From time to time he has indicated two other former Harvard Law School students of his who would be "eminently satisfactory" to him to take his place on the Supreme Court.

They are Federal District Judge Charles Wyzanski, Boston, and Harvard law professor Paul Freund, editor of an official history of the Supreme Court now being written.

Freund was President-elect Kennedy's choice for Solicitor General, under his younger brother Robert as Attorney General. But Freund declined on the ground he wanted to complete the court history.

Appointed by President Roosevelt in 1940, Frankfurter has been eligible to retire with full pay ($35,000) for years.

Federal judges can go on the "inactive" rolls at 65 after 15 years service, or at 70 after 10 years on the bench. While Frankfurter is the oldest justice, Justice Hugo Black, 73, is the senior in tenure, with 22 years on the tribunal.

Black, a vigorous tennis player, is in excellent health, and has never shown any intention of retiring. Since Frankfurter's heart attack he has considerably curtailed his court work. He writes few decisions, although he tosses off dissenters frequently. He now has two law clerks assisting him.

Ear-Muff Cap Delays Tots Learning Of 'Befana'

By HENRY McLEMORE

ROME, Italy — One of Megan's Christmas presents was a little hat with fur ear muffs, and she hasn't had it off her head for more than ten minutes since she unwrapped it.

She would like to have it off more, but I won't let her. I clap it back on her head as fast as she takes it off, making certain that the ear muffs are in the proper place and snugly adjusted.

I am not particular about the hat because of the climate for Rome, while a bit on the raw, damp side this time of year, isn't particularly cold. Nor do I keep the hat plastered on Megan from morn till night because she looks especially fetching in it. It doesn't look bad, but she has hats more becoming.

I keep that hat with the ear muffs on because of Befana, the good witch who rides her broomstick on the night of Jan. 5, the eve of Epiphany, and slips down chimneys to place presents in the stockings of good Italian children and chocolate imitation "coal" in those of the naughty ones.

Baba-Natale, the Italian name for Santa Claus, is a comparative newcomer to Italy, as are Christmas trees and window decorations. Ten years ago, before the impact of television, Italian children depended solely on Befana for gifts, and trees belonged to foreigners.

Now, with Baba Natale and Befana both working, Italian children can look forward to double presents. Befana is losing ground to her happy, smiling, fat friend, Baba Natale, but it will be quite a few more years before Italian kids are satisfied with 'gifts on Christmas and none Jan. 6.

Fortunately, Megan has yet to learn of Befana. She is before the reading stage, and most of her playmates have been American children.

That's why I treasure the ear-muff hat. I don't want Megan to hear of Befana, and how she comes down chimneys on Jan. 5 and leaves presents. If she does, there'll be no end of appeals to Befana for what she didn't get Christmas.

One Christmas is enough for one set of parents. I remember the days when I was not a father, and thought how foolish it was to give a child more than a few toys on Christmas. I often gave long lectures on the subject to friends who lavished presents on kids.

But that was before Megan arrived in 1958. She changed all my opinions. Now I don't believe there is any such thing as giving a child too many Christmas gifts. Had I the money I'd buy a toy store and a clothing store and two or three more stores.

If she does hear about Befana, I don't know what I'll do. I have no countering machine that makes lira, banks are too mysterious over here for me to case successfully, and you have to wear a skirt to make anything of shopping.

So the hat stays on. Ear-muffed Megan will be until Jan. 7. Then we'll have an unveiling ceremony — but not a minute sooner.

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

Here is news, surprising and very significant news! The small garden plots cultivated by the collective farmers in the USSR and the individual gardens cultivated by city workers supply most of the high protein animal foods, potatoes and vegetables produced in Russia.

According to a statistical handbook on agriculture just published in Moscow, 82 percent of Soviet egg production, more than two-thirds of the output of potatoes, almost half of the meat and milk production and about 455 per cent of all vegetables were produced on these small, individual plots.

Moreover, in spite of determined government effort to reduce the size of private gardens and to fully socialize agriculture, the production of these important foodstuffs is still increasing.

Private enterprise, working under three million tons of meat and animal fat products in 1960 as compared with 2,500,000 tons 10 years ago. Milk output has increased 15 per cent in the last six years.

The average size of the collective farms in the USSR is about 12,000 acres and they are operated by an average of 343 families. Even so, the tiny, one to two acre plots, which the collective farmers may operate for their own families or for sale in the market, plus the output of the gardens of city workers, have produced the impressive results mentioned above.

In Russia and in the principal satellite states we have seen these small, well-cultivated, individually operated plots and can well believe the impressive figures which we have mentioned. They are well tended and in excellent condition as compared with the sloppy appearance of the collectively operated fields.

There is no substitute for private enterprise and the incentive it offers but it is surprising, indeed, to find the USSR publishing the proof that its own scheme of socialized agriculture is a failure and admitting the fact that its principal source of vital foodstuffs, is still the individual owner who has some incentive to produce. If such results can be accomplished from the operation of these small parcels of land, think of the abundance the Russian people might have if her farmers were permitted to own and operate all the vast agriculture lands of that great country.

Our courts work with two sets of principles in meeting out justice — those of "law," and those of "equity."

Under "law" a court declares the parties' rights and duties and sets money damages for harm already done — as when someone goes back on his contract with you, or injures you in an automobile crash.

But under principles of "honesty, equity, and conscience," for example, a court seeing harm on the way, may forestall it and enforce its orders by fine or jail terms.

England used to have two kinds of courts to hear cases under law and equity. But today both England and America use the same judge to hear both kinds of cases.

How did these two systems arise? Long ago the English king called upon the "chancery" — then largely made up of churchmen, (the keepers "of the king's conscience") to give "relief" where the older common-law courts, grown rigid, might fail.

Weather Warming In Texas

By United Press International Fair skies held and temperatures began to warm up a bit today in the northern half of the state.

But in southern sections of Texas, it was cloudy to partly cloudy overhead and the Weather Bureau said the cold, dry air mass that showed through the state Monday would keep readings depressed through Wednesday.

The warming trend moved into Northwest Texas early this morning, and began showing across the top of the state, raising temperatures to the mid 40s and low 50s.

Light rain and fog covered the Brownsville sector. Rainfall amounts for the 24-hour period ended at 6 a.m. today included .05 of an inch at Brownsville.

Pre-dawn temperatures dipped to 14 degrees at Dalhart in the Panhandle. Brownsville had the overnight high of 52 degrees.

Highest readings Monday ranged from 41 at Amarillo to 62 at Brownsville.

Urban Renewal Has Impact On Small Business

DALLAS (Sp) — The impact of urban renewal projects on small business is summarized in a publication now available at the Dallas regional office of the Small Business Administration, Chris W. Ferguson, SBA regional director for this area, announced today.

The summary is a condensation of a small business management research study, "The Impact of Dislocation from Urban Renewal Areas on Small Business," prepared by the University of Connecticut under a grant from the Small Business Administration.

The report said urban redevelopment and urban renewal programs now embrace 661 projects throughout the nation affecting nearly 100,000 firms, most of which are small businesses. By 1970, the report estimated, at least 50,000 more firms will be dislocated under the public improvement programs.

A business which is faced with moving under these programs can increase its chance of successful relocation, the report said, by following the study's four recommendations:

Work closely with redevelopment authorities and ignore rumors; carefully re-evaluate location and space needs; utilize available financial and technical assistance when needed and prepare to act independently, if necessary.

Plane Rains Leaflets On Cuban City

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — A small plane swept undetected over Pinar del Rio Sunday and dropped thousands of leaflets urging Cubans to overthrow the government of Premier Fidel Castro.

Anti-aircraft batteries sighted the aircraft when it returned northwards from the province west of Havana and fired at the plane, but failed to bring it down. Cuban authorities said the plane apparently turned off its engine and glided over the city of Pinar del Rio.

Castro's regime celebrated the second anniversary of its increasingly radical revolution New Year's Day with an ostentatious show of military strength.

The government warned of an "imminent military invasion" from the United States and put on a show of strength with modern equipped militiamen and revolutionary army units.

Thousands of Cubans, who were urged by the Castro regime to "honor the date" of the overthrow of Fulgencio Batista's government, responded with a record turnout for a huge parade and mass rally in the municipal square Saturday.
