Georgia U. Students Given Warning

DROP IN THE BUCKET — Maggie Sautsberry is shown as she stopped her car to place some money in the bucket of Lynn McGee of the Pampa High School Key Club, while Sterling Price, also a Key Clubber, tilts his bucket to show her how much money he had obtained for the March of Dimes during yesterday's Bucket Brigade drive for the MOD. The 11 participating organizations solicited in excess of $1,709.83, James Gallemore, general chairman for the March of Dimes said, noting that a count of some of the funds of the PHS Seven - Eleven Club has not been received. ### Purge Near In Russia

LONDON (UPI)—A major purge of prominent Soviet officials and possibly public show trials appeared in the making Saturday as a result of Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's attacks on the sagging Russian farm program. Soviet affairs experts said Khrushchev was looking for scapegoats on whom to pin the blame for the embarrassing failure of his pet scheme to grow grain on the "virgin lands" of Kazakhstan Republic. His announced ambition is to surpass American farm production with a seven-year program. A "little purge" has been in progress for the last few months. Some 30 party officials of various standing have been removed from their posts. About half of them were fired for falling down on the job in the agricultural program. The sharp personal attacks Khrushchev has been leveling at high farm officials during the Communist Party central committee meeting in Moscow this week indicated more drastic purges were imminent. Sources said the purge could affect premiers of the various "farm belts" Soviet republics and their regional party chiefs. Khrushchev has singled out for particular criticism officials of the Ukraine, Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan. A "top to bottom" shakeup appeared indicated according to diplomatic dispatches.

Negroes To Return To Classes; Demonstrators Will Be Expelled

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — University of Georgia officials issued a stern statement to all students Saturday warning they will be suspended or expelled if they take part in any demonstrations when two Negroes are readmitted to the school Monday. The statement was signed by Dean of Students Joseph A. Williams and also advised members of fraternities and sororities they would be jeopardizing their charters by attending or taking part in any such demonstrations.

Higher Education Costs In Texas Due To Jump

AUSTIN — Like practically everything else, the cost of higher education in Texas is going up. At least, that's the way the planners would have it. Gov. Price Daniel and the Texas Commission on Higher Education have recommended increases of about $12,000,000 a year for the next biennium to keep the state's 19 colleges and universities in business. And the boards of directors of the state schools are in full agreement that the appropriation recommendations "represent real progress toward giving Texas the kind of system of higher education it must have." The words in quotes were put together by J. M. Odom of Austin who is chairman of the Committee of Governing Boards of State Colleges and Universities following a meeting of the committee here Friday. "We are encouraged by the fact that two major offices of state government, making independent studies, arrived at practically the same conclusion on the minimum needs of higher education in Texas," Odom continued. "Approximately half of this increase will be absorbed by increased enrollments and the balance can go for improved quality." The committee agreed that most of the funds for improved quality should be used for improvement in teaching and research staffs. The additional money would make it possible to hold top people now on Texas faculties, giving merit awards to teachers of unusual promise and obtaining more outstanding staff members for both teaching and research, it was pointed out. A committee report on its study of the needs for the 19 state schools was given at a combined meeting of all boards of directors held in Austin last September. Findings of the committee also were discussed with interested citizens at a series of luncheons and dinners in 18 Texas cities in October. Jim Lindsey of Midland, a committee member, said of the recommended increase: "The day of depending on our natural resources and agriculture to maintain Texas economy is gone. Today's industrial development is based on technology, and demands facilities for research and the best of trained manpower for its environment. If we want to compete for this new type of industry, we will have to compete first in education." Committee member Reagan Houston III of San Antonio said: "This is a start in the right direction for all of Texas, not just for higher education. We have been taking a beating in recent years in the competition for new industries. California, particularly has been getting industries we might have had, simply because California has a system of higher education and academic research geared to the needs of industry." The committee of Governing Boards is made up of one representative from each of the 10 boards of regents or directors of the fully state-supported state colleges and universities. It represents the 99 board members who govern the 19 institutions.

Thieves Create 'Side-Splitter'

The four bottles of whiskey in a window at Jim Trout's Corner Drug Store in Lefors was too much of a temptation. Thirsty burglars smashed the plate glass window, grabbed the bottles and took off. That was at 3 a.m. yesterday. Owner Trout heard the crash and started to give chase. According to Deputy Sheriff D. L. Day, who investigated the case, Trout wasn't too successful. Running through the store, his feet caught in the rungs of a chair and he sprawled on the floor. Meanwhile, back at the ranch — or, rather, out on the street — the burglars got away. What they didn't know when they smashed the window and learned later — was that the four bottles they grabbed were empties, used for display purposes only!

Two Soviet Astronauts Said Killed

HONOLULU (UPI)—Two Russian astronauts have died in attempts to be the first men into space, an Army spokesman said. Lt. Col. Paul D. Hickman of the Armed Forces Industrial College staff said the United States had the information on the unsuccessful attempts unofficially but very specifically. He told a national security seminar meeting Friday that one space attempt took place during Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the United Nations last September. He said that at least one Russian was killed when the space vehicle burned up in the earth's atmosphere. He said the other "unsuccessful attempt was made about a month earlier." He said the United States even knew the name of one of the Russians killed in a space attempt.

Kennedy Briefed On Russ Missile Shot

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President-elect John F. Kennedy was briefed Saturday on the Russian missile shot on which he received a private briefing from the Defense Department. Other news developments at Kennedy headquarters: The President-elect will confer in New York Wednesday morning with Gov. Luis Munoz-Marin of Puerto Rico. There have been reports that Munoz was offered the post of assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, but turned it down. Robert J. Burkhardt Jr., director of the New Jersey Democratic state central committee and currently executive director of the inaugural committee, was picked to be assistant postmaster general for facilities. Burkhardt, 44, is an engineer by profession but has spent recent years in politics, serving as executive secretary to New Jersey Gov. Robert B. Meyner, 1954-57. The new secretary, named after

Army Secretary Named

By MERRIMAN SMITH
PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Vis J. Stahr, president of West Virginia University, Saturday was named by President-elect John F. Kennedy as the new secretary of the Army, succeeding Wilbur Brucker. The Stahr appointment came as Kennedy and Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson discussed the possible implications of the latest Russian missile shot, on which

Motorists Asked To Aid In Pampa Traffic Survey

In an effort to estimate future highway needs in the Pampa area, a two-day origin and destination traffic survey will be conducted Tuesday and Wednesday, G. Reading, state highway supervising resident engineer in Pampa, announced yesterday. The survey, Reading said, will be made in cooperation with Pampa and Gray County officials, to obtain data on movement of vehicular traffic through the Pampa area. Results of the State Highway Department study will be used to help plan for Pampa's future highway improvements. The survey will be made under normal traffic conditions and in the event of severe weather it will be postponed. A 30-man team including flagmen and interviewers will make survey under supervision of K. Crawford of Austin. The resident engineer said a number of automatic traffic counters will be placed at strategic points throughout the city. Traffic entering and leaving Pampa will be stopped at 13 inlet stations between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. Drivers will be asked to give state of auto registration, origin of trip, destination and the way used in entering the city. The trip originated in Pampa, driver will be asked his street address. If a stop was made in Pampa, the place, purpose and length of the stay will be asked. Every effort, Reading said, will be made to minimize any inconvenience to motorists. The city's cooperation to help Pampa plan for the future will be appreciated.

Like Issues Gold Buying Restrictions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower today prohibited American citizens from buying or holding gold in foreign countries. The order also applies to aliens and other persons under U. S. jurisdiction. The action was aimed principally at preventing wealthy Americans from hoarding gold in speculation against the dollar and stemming the critical drain on Treasury gold reserves. The President directed citizens and firms with gold holdings in other countries to dispose of them by June 1, 1961. In his executive order, Eisenhower expanded a 1933 ban imposed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt which made it illegal for Americans to buy and hold gold in this country. Eisenhower extended the prohibition to purchase and holding of gold anywhere in the world, saying such uniform applicability was "reasonable." A White House statement said "It is not believed that a large amount of gold is being held abroad in this manner." A Treasury spokesman also said the amount was "small." But he declined to say how much on grounds the Treasury didn't really know. He said the amount was believed "small" because "Americans have not been gold conscious."

CRMWA Funds Are In Ike's Budget Which Goes To Congress Tomorrow

An official request for funds which to commence construction of the Canadian River Dam project will be included in President Eisenhower's budget message to Congress tomorrow. The request sets up planning only for fiscal 1961 and $1,450,000 in funds for the fiscal 1962 program. It provides for acquisition of land and land rights for Sanford Dam to be located about nine miles northwest of Borger. It calls for completion of designs and specifications and the awarding of the construction contract, permanent operating facilities and housing facilities for use first as a field construction headquarters. The request from the President also will provide for surveys, studies and collection of design data to be initiated on the aqueduct system. The plan of development for the $94 million project provides for a multi-purpose reservoir on the Canadian River and the dam northwest of Borger. The lake when full will cover approximately 26,000 acres. The aqueduct system will deliver municipal and industrial water to Pampa and ten other Panhandle cities and provide flood control benefits. Pampa already has authorized its contract with the government through the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority. This followed approval of the project by Pampa voters last November. Other member cities in the Water Authority include Amarillo, Borger, Plainview, Lubbock, Slaton, Tahoka, O'Donell, Lamesa, Brownfield and Levelland.

Skidded On Gravel Road

John Andrew Harnly Killed As Car Flips

John Andrew Harnly, 17-year-old Pampa High School senior, was fatally injured shortly after Friday midnight when the car he was driving skidded on a gravel road and flipped over into a field near his home, 12 miles northeast of Pampa. State Highway Patrolman Stanley Schneider, who investigated the accident, said young Harnly apparently lost control of the car in the gravel and it went into a skid. Schneider said Harnly was thrown from the car into a ditch and the automobile turned over a few feet away in the nearby field. Time of the accident was fixed at approximately 12:30 a.m. yesterday. Harnly was returning to his home on Rt. 1, Miami, after attending the Pampa-Borger basketball game in Pampa Friday night. Harnly was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Harnly. The boy's father is a prominent rancher and farmer and formerly taught school in Pampa and Miami. When their son failed to return on time from Friday night's basketball game his parents became concerned for his safety and started a search for him. Patrolman Schneider said the father found the boy's body only a quarter of a mile from home shortly after 8 a.m. yesterday. Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. tomorrow in the First Methodist Church in Pampa. Rev. Carl Hudson, pastor of the Miami Methodist Church will officiate, assisted by Rev. Russell G. West of the Church of the Brethren. The body will lie in state at the Harnly home after 2 p.m. today. The youth was born Jan. 21, 1943 in Pampa. He was a member of the Pampa High School senior class and Miami Methodist Church.

Series Of Bills Due To Improve Migrant Farm Worker Conditions

By FLETCHER ROBERTSON
Daily News Special Correspondent

AUSTIN — A preview of what is to come in the way of social legislation for consideration of the 57th Legislature was enacted here this week at a State Conference on Domestic Migrant Farm Workers.

Egon R. Tausch, executive director of the Texas Council on Migrant Labor, said bills designed to alleviate problems on health, education, housing, transportation and sanitation would be introduced. The Texas migrant labor force numbers about 105,000, Tausch said.

Bob Sanchez, McAllen attorney, told the conference foreign labor in a large measure, was to blame for the existing conditions of domestic workers.

"We don't need braceros," Sanchez said. "I can get all the workers you want if you will pay a living wage."

Jerry Holleman, Texas AFL-CIO president who has been named assistant secretary of labor by President-elect Kennedy, was another speaker. "Social conscience requires that we do something for the migrant farm worker," Holleman said.

Jimmy Davis, a Lubbock farmer, had a few words to say about the employer's case — the man responsible to pay the bills.

"The farmer has been made to look pretty bad here today," Davis began. "But in my opinion he gives migrant workers a pretty good deal."

Davis said he employs about 50 migrant cotton pickers who earn an average of $40 to $50 for a four-day week. He said they live in double-unit houses which cost from $1,500 to $2,000 each and are furnished free electricity, gas and water.

"And not one in a thousand pays Social Security or income taxes," Davis added.

Somebody in the audience said, "Amen!"

The conference was attended by about 100 persons.

But That Figured

It wasn't about to happen any other way. The first thing members of the House did last week was vote favorably on an appropriations bill to pay their own salaries. But that figured.

They had to dip into two special state funds to get the money, a neat $2,850,000. And that also figured.

The bill didn't get by the Senate because a quorum wasn't present when the matter came up for consideration. However, the upper House is sure to take care of the item — probably tomorrow.

Oh, Come Now

The floor of the House of Representatives is loaded with pretty gifts. Each member is allowed one and one-half secretaries and the whole secretary (one complete girl) usually sits by her boss at his desk. Half secretaries do the typing in another room.

Most of the girls are neat and trim and eager to get ahead. News-men got a big laugh the other day when they spotted a comely girl leaning back in her boss's easy chair while her boss sat erect in a straight-back number.

"That kid," a correspondent observed, "is going places, and fast."

Inaugural Plans

A Bible, about 125 years old and which once belonged to the Republic of Texas, will again be used in inaugural ceremonies Tuesday when Gov. Price Daniel and Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey take the oath of office. The old book of Scriptures has been used in the inaugural of Texas governors since shortly after the turn of the century.

It will be the third time Gov. Daniel has placed his hand on the Bible and sworn to uphold the laws of Texas and the nation and an unprecedented sixth time around for Lt. Gov. Ramsey.

The ceremonies will be held at high noon on the south grounds of the Capitol. Robert W. Calvert, chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court, will administer the oath of office.

Both the governor and lieutenant governor will make inaugural speeches.

A reception will be held from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium. Then comes the big blowout: the inaugural ball. Claude Thornhill and his orchestra will furnish the music for dancing. The ball will be formal, no less.

Incidentally, more than 46,000 invitations — that's right, 46,000 — have been sent out to faithful Democrats and a few Republicans to attend the party. However, only about 3,000 or 4,000 are expected to be at the ball.

The whole thing will cost approximately $10,000. Austin businessmen pick up the tab.

Late Judge Cited

A resolution honoring the memory of the late Federal Judge James V. Alfred was unanimously adopted this week by a rising vote of the House.

The resolution described Judge Alfred as a "judge with a heart" and a man who "tempered justice with mercy" from the bench.

Commissioners Will Open Bids

County Judge William J. Craig said yesterday bids will be opened at a meeting of county commissioners at 2 p.m. Friday, Jan. 20, for the purchase of a motor grader for use in Gray County. Pet. four.

Perryton Man Jailed For DWI

Joseph Milton Tate, 43, of Perryton, is being held in Gray County jail under $1,500 bond following his arrest Friday on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Tate was arrested in the 1400 block of N. Hobart by Patrolmen T. E. Bailey and R. Alquist who decided Tate was driving too close to another car.

He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. W. Graham and ordered held for action of the Gray County Grand Jury when it reconvenes Friday.

Well-Rounded White Deer Cagers Post Enviably Basketball Mark

TOM LESTER ... he scores

By ARTHUR MAYHEW
Daily News Sports Editor

Take a coach who is accustomed to winning, blend with a well-balanced team on which five boys have scored more than 120 points each and add a large sprinkling of desire and you have the sports recipe that has enabled White Deer's Bucks to run up a 19-game winning streak, one of the longest in Texas this season.

ball coach, Moore's teams have compiled a 37-8 record, losing to Lefors, 46-42, in a district playoff last year. As coach of the girls from 1955 to 1959, Moore's teams went to the regional finals in 1959 and 1960, finished third in the state tournament in 1958 and won the district title in 1957.

"We don't have any what you would call individual standouts, but we always have three or four boys in double figures. If one boy has an off-night, then there are two or three ready to take up the slack."

names to area football fans last year as they provided the backfield spark that paced the Bucks to a 9-1 record, their only loss coming at the hands of Stinnett, state Class A semi-finalist.

Moore still feels the path to the district championship is overgrown with pitfalls, namely Gruver and Stinnett.

Should White Deer not win the district title—a pretty far-fetched idea at this point—it will have another shot at the right to represent 2-A at the district tournament, Feb. 14, 16-17.

Terry Culley, Pampa High School basketball coach, today probably felt like the condemned man who had been retrocuted, only to wake up and find out that he was leaming and was still scheduled to be strapped into the air the next day.

With Friday's 58-55 loss to district-leading Borger still fresh in his and the Harvesters' minds, Culley now must set a way to stop Lubbock Monterey, a team Culley calls one of the best offensive clubs in the district.

Monterey Coming On
Monterey, after an uninspired non-conference record, now stands at 2-2 in district, beating Amarillo, 42-40, and toppling Amarillo Tascosa out of a tie first last Thursday, 45-26, in a reference eye-opener. Losses have sent district-leaders Amarillo to Duro, 60-52, and Borger, 58-56, neither of which could be convincing defeats.

Culleys Lose Game, Coat
The officials are supposed to take a time out in such a situation immediately and while I didn't see a technical foul, I would have taken one to get the play stopped before Borger scored, they added.

BOSTON (UPI)—Paul Pender of Brookline, Mass., co-holder of the world middleweight crown, floored challenger Terry Downes of England once Saturday night and left-jabbed his face into a bloody mess for a technical knockout in the seventh round of their title fight at the Boston arena.

Downes, who was giving Pender a tough fight, was floored for a mandatory count of eight by the straight right in the first round. The gallant brown-haired English challenger began bleeding from the right brow in the second round, from the left in the third and from cuts on the bridge of his nose and the inside corner of his right eye in the fourth round.

Laos Will Be First Of Many Little Wars If Red Chinese Can Help It

By LEON DENNEN
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — (NEA) — The illusion that Red intervention in Laos is a "local war" is as dangerous to the free world's survival as the view once held by wishful thinkers that Mao Tse-tung was an "agrarian reformer" and Fidel Castro a misguided idealist.

What we are witnessing now is a classical piece of Communist diversionist strategy. It is designed to pull the wool over the West's eyes while Red China and Communist North Viet Nam tighten their grip on Laos.

The strategy is simple: accuse your opponent of the aggressive act you yourself intend to commit. Such tactics have been used by all dictators.

Thus, at the exact moment that the U.S. has to defend itself in the U.N. Security Council against Castro's fantastic charge that American Marines are about to invade Cuba, Red forces are actually invading Laos.

It seems clear the Communists' newest armed attack in Southeast Asia is really the first sortie of the Asian (Chinese) branch of the reestablished Communist International.

At the recent Moscow conclave of Communist leaders from 81 countries, the global roles of Russia and China were carefully defined. Khrushchev, to lull the West into false security, will continue to preach coexistence and even seek "friendly" contact with President-elect Kennedy. Mao's task is to break up the "imperialist powers" by striking at their weakest links.

This was spelled out in the manifesto issued in Moscow. With all the confidence of Karl Marx writing the original "Communist Manifesto," the document adopted states clearly:

"All the people still languishing in colonial bondage must be given every support."

"Colonialism" is now the Communists' favorite name for the U.S. and the non-Communist nations. "Every support" obviously implies military aid.

The Moscow manifesto leaves no doubt on this score. The creation of "independent national democracies" — a category which can be stretched to include not only Laos but also Cuba under Castro, Egypt under Nasser and even the Congo under Lumumba — is now the primary objective of the Communist International's policies.

The stakes in Laos are high and time does not work for the free world. The fall of the little kingdom to the Communists would put tremendous pressure on pro-Western South Korea, South Vietnam, Cambodia and Thailand. It might make untenable the whole Western position in Southeast Asia.

The attack on Laos, coordinated with Castro's anti-U.S. action in the U.N., is obviously only a prelude to a rash of "national liberation wars." If Khrushchev and Mao are convinced that an atomic war can be avoided there is nothing to stop them from exploiting Western weakness also in Africa and Latin America. They can back Red fifth columns to a degree that is compatible with their interest to avoid an atomic conflict.

In this way Moscow and Peking can retain the initiative. But they could also withdraw or pull back should they find themselves at a tactical disadvantage.

Will history repeat itself in Laos? Britain and India have doubts about the wisdom of all-out U.S. military aid to the pro-Western regime of Prince Boun Oum, hey believe that unless the legitimate Laotian government broadens its structure by including neutralist and even Pathet Lao (Communist) element no solution of the Laotian conflict is possible.

Memories of the wishful thinkers are, unfortunately, short. It was the suggestion of a similar "solution" in China — the inclusion of Mao and his agrarian reformers in Chiang Kia-shek's government — that preceded the Red takeover of the Chinese mainland.

Is there any reason to believe that the Communists would act differently in Laos? Indeed, how long would it be before the neutralists and Pathet Lao Communists, with Mao's help, would dominate Boun Oum's government and convert it into a full-fledged communist regime?

New Officers Are Named At Tuesday Meeting Of El Progreso Study Club

Mrs. Carlton Nance was hostess for the Tuesday afternoon meeting of El Progreso Study Club with Mrs. John Gill, president, presiding during the business meeting.

Officers for the 1961-62 club year were elected as follows: Meses. Jess Clay, president; Glen Radcliff, vice president; Charles Lanehart, secretary; D. V. Burton, treasurer; J. F. Curtis, parliamentarian; Verl Hagaman, reporter; V. J. Drew, federation counselor; John Gill, Council of Clubs delegate.

Mrs. J. G. Lyons presented the program on "Our New State, Alaska" pointing out interesting facts about the growth of Alaska from the time it was purchased by the United States from Russia to the present date. She stated that the natives of Alaska were the most unique in the world, but that tribal life is largely shattered; although a decimated population still occupies some villages.

"Alaska lay neglected until the Gold Rush," she said and continued by giving highlights of the discovery of gold in the Klondike in 1896 and in Nome in 1899, where silver, copper, iron, oil and coal were found.

"A new government era began with the establishment of a local government in 1912. Then followed the first Alaskan railroad; fishing became a major industry, but the greatest boom started with the approach of World War II, when the United States defense bases were built. The population more than tripled."

With Alaska's post-war growth, Mrs. Lyons continued, "and development of its natural resources, there was an increasing interest for statehood both in the territory and the United States until that became a reality in January, 1959."

Members attending were Meses. D. V. Burton, Jess Clay, J. F. Curtis, V. J. Drew, W. R. Ewing, Elmer Fisher, John Gill, Verl Hagaman, George Hrdlicka, Knox Kinard, Charles Lanehart, J. G. Lyons, J. G. Morrison, Tom Perkins, Glen Radcliff, and Harold Wright.

March Of Dimes' Got Its Start At White House Meet Back In '38

By ROBERT J. SERLING
WASHINGTON (UPI)—It was years ago that the dimes started marching. The current "March of Dimes" is for medical research funds, its beginning at an informal conference of White House officials in 1938.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt had just given permission to the Polio Foundation in his birthday with a funding campaign for polio research. And some of his aides were discussing how best to publicize the drive.

It was suggested that such stars as Eddie Cantor and the Ranger might appeal to the public to send dimes to the White House.

The suggestion almost created a Frankenstein monster. The cowboy and the comedian sent their appeals. Two days later, disappointed White House officials added up the "take" — $17,500.

On the third day, postal workers dumped 30,000 letters into the White House mailing room. The fourth day another 50,000 letters and cards arrived. On the fifth day, the normal daily total was only 5,000.

The White House hastily summoned 50 extra clerks from the Office Department. They didn't even make a dent in the letter avalanche. Some high-ranking officials, such as President's chief speech writer, found themselves in the mail room opening envelopes.

The Executive Department almost stopped functioning. Mrs. Roosevelt was expecting replies to her letters for a formal White House dinner. The replies finally came up two weeks after the first.

Hundreds shipped birthday cards with dimes inside. Each card had to be cut apart to find the money. One man put hundreds of dimes into wet cement, hardened and then shipped the blocks to the White House. It took hours to chop it up.

First, mail clerks tried to count the money. They gave this mammoth pile up in a hurry and turned the chore over to the Treasury Department. More than 2½ million dimes rolled in over a three-day period.

FDR's death finished the White House as a target for the March of Dimes. But no matter where they're marched these days, the Polio Foundation instead of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. But this the polio foundation has collected more than $622 million in its successful fight to conquer one of man's cruelest diseases.

The following year, the White House wisely asked donors to send their dimes to the National Polio Foundation instead of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. But this the polio foundation has collected more than $622 million in its successful fight to conquer one of man's cruelest diseases.

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

By Noel M. Loomis

case you want to shoot a snake."

It was 14 miles to the L.J. without going around by the Quarter Circle J.B. and he decided to take the short cut. He was jogging along, only an hour from the L.J. when he saw dust on the prairie to his left front, and stopped long enough to identify Stella Harding's chestnut gelding, traveling in the general direction of Xenophon Jones' camp of the night before.

He put the black into a gallop as soon as he got a little distance away from his stopping point, and now he began to use his spurs. The black was a big horse, fast and with plenty of bottom, and he had no doubt it could outrun the chestnut by considerable over a stretch.

Bart cut her off with the black in 10 minutes of hard riding. He rode up alongside and grabbed the chestnut's cheek strap and brought it down to a halt.

Stella was furious. "What do you think you're doing? Who gave you a right to stop me?"

"I took the right," he said. "Where you going?"

Her black eyes were defiant. "For a ride."

"Ride back to the ranch with me."

"I don't want to ride with you."

She held a six-shooter in her hand.

He smiled. "It's not in position to shoot," he told her, and in one smooth motion seized the barrel. He turned the cylinder and pushed out the cartridges, then gave it back to her. "Remember to load it the next time you go somewhere, in

She struck at him with the empty six-shooter. He dodged, and the gun hit the cattle, and the front sight slashed a furrow in the leather coveasing.

The black jumped forward, but Bart turned it and circled behind her. "Stella," he said. "I hope you get control of your temper before we reach the L.J."

She rode for a while in sullen silence.

"Do you expect a bunch of farmers to beat men like Xenophon Jones and Stud Murphy and Piggie Benson?" She looked at him with new fire in her eyes. "Those men are killers!"

He smiled wryly. She thought it was as simple as a stand-up and shoot-down fight. "They have yellow in them too."

"Not if they know what they're going up against."

"And you were going to tell them tonight," he observed. She swung back, again furious. "You tricked me!"

Bart, however, was counting up the deadly results of the information she had intended to give them. If they should know definitely that the ranchers were depending on Bart Wagner, their course would be simple: to converge their fire on Bart and take him out of the fight immediately. In such a case, Bart would never know the outcome, for he would be dead beyond any question.

They rode in silence for a hundred yards. "What are you going to tell them at the ranch?" she asked.

"What would you have told them?" Bart replied.

"That I went for a ride," she said.

"I'll tell them you were lost and I found you."

"They will know better."

He shrugged. "They probably know you're not out riding aimlessly, too. Hector knows where you were the other night."

Her face contorted.

He met Tom Harding after Stella disappeared in the house. "Have a drink, Bart?"

"I'm a little dry," Bart admitted.

They had the drink inside. "No liquor allowed on the place as far as the hands are concerned," said Harding. "I keep it here and I use it, like all the other ranchers in the Panhandle, but there's no drinking and no gambling among the help. Saves a lot of trouble."

Bart leaned back against the barn, watching the house, his hands locked behind his head. "You better keep an eye on Stella. It won't be too good for her to go out today, with that gang coming down from Tascosa. They will all be liquored up and wild—and they might figure she knows something and try to get it out of her."

"You're right," said Harding. "I'll speak to Hector."

Bart said easily. "She might see Hector because he's your foreman. You better pick somebody else she won't notice."

Harding sighed. "She's a high-spirited girl. I don't know how I'll ever make her satisfied out here on the ranch."

Bart paused. "It will work out," he said.

"She was always a little willful."

"Things like that are hard to get over," said Bart.

"I thought it would settle her down to live on the ranch, but I guess it hasn't helped."

Probe Of Earth's Interior Due

By MAC SEBREE

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—One of the most important scientific undertakings of modern times—Project Mohole—will begin in April, using techniques borrowed from the oil industry to probe into the earth's warm interior.

Dr. Detlev Bronk, president of the National Academy of Sciences—National Research Council, says the probe will reach new and totally unknown regions of the earth.

The probe holds promise of telling man not only about the make-up of the bulk of the interior of the planet, but also recover a continuous life history of earth that has been laid down since its birth.

Global Marine Exploration Co., Los Angeles, will tow its rig, the Cuss I, into position near Guadalupe Island in the Pacific Ocean, off Mexico's west coast and drill into the ocean-bottom sediment more than two miles.

The first job under the $738,750 contract will be a test probe to develop new ways to dig later through the sediment to the earth's crust and into its interior, or mantle, Bronk said.

Picking the site off Guadalupe culminates a year's search for a favorable spot to make borings. Wind and current had to be at a minimum and the water could not be too deep.

Still, the rig will encounter some stiff problems. The 260-foot drilling barge will be on the floor into which it must drill. Until now holes have never been dug under more than a few hundred feet of water.

The very weight of the nine-inch diameter metal drilling stem and bits, hanging more than two miles from ship to bottom, will be enormous.

Ordinary anchoring will not do, since the usual mooring lines would drag it out of position. The ship must be kept under power constantly in a technique called "dynamic mooring"—must be made to hold still at sea, some no ship has ever been designed to do.

Digging beneath the sea—the crust is thinner—also has advantage of bringing up a ment which contains the record of the earth's existence through years of climate change and beginning of life, Mohole scientists explain.
