BAD LUCK? SO WHAT? — Since this is one of those rare days — Friday the 13th — a day in which one is supposed to be especially careful not to walk under ladders, avoid black cats, not break mirrors for fear of seven years of bad luck and the like, The Daily News photographer came up with this "fractured" picture of Marian Neslage, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neslage, 1341 N. Russell. Marian didn't appear to mind the broken mirror for, as you can see, she's smiling through it all. (Daily News Photo)

Peak Peacetime Defense Budget Is Due Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The new estimates for the current fiscal year. But it falls short by close to a billion dollars of providing what the armed forces believe they need to carry on the stepped-up defense effort that Eisenhower ordered last summer.

Re-Routing Of Highway To Be Talked At Lefors

LEFORS (Sp) — A committee of landowners, property owners and businessmen will meet tomorrow afternoon to continue work on a proposal for re-routing State Hwy. 273 through Lefors. The project was brought to a head last night when some 100 townspeople met with the mayor and city council and state highway engineers from Pampa in the Lefors school cafeteria.

Port Arthur In Turmoil Over Probe

PORT ARTHUR (UPI)—City all remained in a turmoil today without a police chief and still plagued by the Jefferson County scandals that rocked Port Arthur and Beaumont administrations as well as county and some state officials.

Pampan Is Jailed On Rape Charge

Officers of Gray County sheriff's department late yesterday afternoon arrested Sylvester F. Martin, white male, 47, of Pampa on a charge of statutory rape. The charge was lodged by District Attorney Bill Waters after questioning of a 14-year-old white girl. Justice of the Peace J. W. Graham today denied bond for Martin, who remains in the Gray County jail awaiting action of the Gray County Grand Jury. District Attorney Waters advised that the grand jury will convene Jan. 20 to consider the case.

State's Fiscal Problem Is Believed 'Artificial'

By PAT CONWAY
AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas lawmakers had plenty of time today to ponder the conviction of former Speaker Waggoner Carr that the state's fiscal problem is artificial, the "product of political refusal to change."

LBJ Bit Stirrs Ire Of Solon

By FLETCHER ROBERTSON
Daily News Special Correspondent

AUSTIN — Sen. Hubert Hudson of Brownsville got his opinion of Vice President-elect Lyndon Johnson on the Senate record here Wednesday.

Summed up, it's this: He (Hudson) doesn't think much of him (Johnson).

Here's how the incident came about:

Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo introduced a resolution extolling Johnson and asked that the signatures of all Senate members be affixed to the document. The author of the penezyric poured it on pretty thick. Among other things, the resolution said:

"Johnson... by reason of his ability, energy, integrity and devotion to duty was chosen as majority leader of the U.S. Senate in which capacity he exercised those qualities of leadership which gained the respect of all his colleagues and reflected credit upon himself, his state and the nation, and—"

"Whereas, during his long and successful tenure as Senate majority leader his cooperation with the administration, of a different political faith, demonstrated his patriotism, his capacity and his desire to serve the best interests of his country."

It was too much for Senator Hudson. He voted against the resolution and asked that his name not be affixed to the document.

After the Senate recessed, Senator Hudson said:

"It (the resolution) was awful. I don't stand for what Lyndon stands for. I never have and I never will."

Hudson played it single-O in opposing the resolution. Everybody else in the Senate voted for the motion.

Pampa Is Host To Workshop For Tax Group

City, school and county tax officials were in Pampa today for a day-long workshop being held by Region 1 of the Texas Association of Assessing Officers in the Coronado Inn. Some 84 delegates had registered by noon.

Local tax officials and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce are entertaining the visiting delegates from many of the 34 northern Panhandle counties which comprise Region 1.

Pampa Tax Collector Aubrey Jones, in charge of arrangements for the session, said today's meeting was for officials interested in the advancement of tax administration.

The program, which opened at 9:30 a.m., was presided over by R. E. Cross, Plainview tax assessor-collector, who is Region 1 trustee.

A welcome address to the visitors was given by City Manager John Koontz, Assistant City Tax Assessor.

World Trouble Spots Due Lengthy Review

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—President-elect John F. Kennedy and his secretary of state meet today to decide on remaining top-level appointments that will pull their foreign policy organization into its final shape.

Secretary of State-designate Dean Rusk also was expected to discuss the continuing crises in Cuba, Laos and the Congo with Kennedy. The new administration must have action policies ready immediately after the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Ouster Of Cat Angers Workers

SEMPULVEDA, Calif. (UPI)—Labor and management are involved in serious grievance sessions at the Pacific Mercury Electronics Corp. — over a cat.

The union, Industrial Local 1002, Carpenters, AFL-CIO, wants Mister Tom the cat to remain at the Los Angeles suburban firm.

Management is reluctantly backing a new security officer who ordered Mister Tom to go on the ground that his house-keeping methods aren't the tidiest.

"If necessary, we shall submit the matter to the State Conciliation Service for arbitration," Local President Charles Powers, 38, said today.

"Mister Tom is a regular part of the company and he's a terrific moral builder," said Powers. "Everybody loves Tom."

The union took its first action Wednesday after about 300 of the firm's nearly 600 workers signed a petition called "Operation-Save Our Cat."

Rusk later planned to have lunch with Kennedy before flying back to Washington in the afternoon.

Although the Kennedy staff professed no knowledge of such plans, Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson had reservations for a group of 10 at the Palm Beach Tower Hotel for today.

Rusk arrived Thursday night shortly after Kennedy released a series of special task force studies of foreign policy, one of which suggested that the new President keep quiet about disarmament until the new administration can force a firm and coordinated policy.

Rusk said he had reviewed abstracts of the reports dealing with disarmament, Africa, the U.S. Information Agency, foreign economic policy and State Department operations. But he shied away from any comment on the recommendations. The final decision on such suggestions, he said, would be up to Kennedy.

The President-elect, meantime, today announced the selection of Thomas D. Morris as assistant secretary of defense for supply and logistics. Morris, 57, is now assistant director for management and organization of the Bureau of the Budget. He is a native of Knoxville, Tenn.

Kennedy also reappointed Joseph Charyk, a native of Canada, undersecretary of the Air Force, a post he has held since Jan. 28, 1960.

The President-elect Thursday night tapped Edward Gudeman, Chicago investment banker, to be undersecretary of commerce in the new administration. Gudeman, 54, was picked for the post in consultation with Secretary of Commerce-designate Luther Hodges. He was a long-time executive of Sears, Roebuck and Co. before joining Lehman Brothers, the New York and Chicago investment banking firm, as a general partner in 1960.

Little Lida Ann Gudgel is resting "quite comfortably" in Baylor Hospital at Dallas, officials of the hospital said late yesterday, despite having undergone surgery to remove patches of "dead" skin which will soon enable her to receive skin grafts.

"Lida Ann's a very cooperative patient," one of the nurses told a reporter for The Daily News.

The young miss who wrung the hearts of all Pampanians by her courageous fight for life since she was severely burned last Dec. 9 when her housecoat caught fire as she played in her home with a neighborhood friend, was flown to Dallas earlier this week by private plane.

Pampanians who rallied to her support following a story in The Daily News which told of her plight and her struggle to overcome it, arranged for the trip and for the advanced treatment her physician said was necessary.

Lida Ann's mother accompanied her and will remain at her side until she returns to Pampa.

She is in the Children's Ward, room 7022, Baylor Hospital, Dallas, and has requested that her school friends write her.

Other plays are "Balcony Scene," "Overtones," and one unnamed special. The entire thespian group of the school will participate in this MO'D attraction. Miss Helen Schaefer, school speech and drama instructor, will be in overall charge. Admission prices are 50 cents for adults and 35 cents for students. (Daily News Photo)

Lions Preparing For Minstrel

The annual Lions Club minstrel show will be held in the Pampa Junior High School auditorium Feb. 23 and 24. It was announced today by Max Presnell, director of the production for the civic club.

At the same time Presnell announced rehearsals for the show will start at 8 p.m. next Tuesday in the music room of the downtown junior high school.

Presnell also said he is sending out a call for talent. Anyone wishing to take part in the annual amateur production is asked to report at the Tuesday night rehearsal.

A chorus of 80 voices will be needed and will include both men and women. The cast also will include a Dixie Land band, six blackface end men and specialty acts.

"Anybody with talent is invited to come out for the rehearsals," said Presnell.

Interlocutor for the show will be Calvin Whatley. Carl Thomas has been named business manager.

The Lions Club show through the years, Presnell said, has gained the reputation of being one of the most professional-like amateur shows staged anywhere.

"Pampa has a great deal of talent," he said, "and we are looking forward to this year's two-night show to be one of the best."

Rehearsals will be held twice a week, he said, at 8 o'clock on Tuesday and Thursday nights for the next six weeks.

Light Breakers Out Of Action

All was quiet last night on the street light front.

Police Chief Jim Conner said there were no reports of lights being shot out. During the past week some 40 street lights were shot out with a rifle. The deppeds were reported in various sections of the city.

Foreign Commentary

PARIS (UPI)—After more than two years, French voters still believe that President Charles de Gaulle is their miracle man.

De Gaulle, in effect, made last Sunday's referendum on the future of Algeria a vote of confidence in himself. More than 75 per cent of France's 27 million voters turned out to register formally their belief that the man who had given France a stable government, who had halted disastrous inflation and who was restoring France's place in the sun, also could solve France's greatest problem of all.

That problem was the war in Algeria.

De Gaulle's referendum victory was all the more impressive because he has not been an easy taskmaster with the French people, who traditionally resist restraints on individual freedoms.

With impartial severity he has dealt with farmers resisting a cut in their government subsidies and with labor striking for higher wages.

In the labor district of Paris, even many Communists defied the dictates of Moscow and voted "yes" on De Gaulle's plan for an Algerian Algeria.

The French repudiated another national hero, Marshal Alphonse Juin, who was dropped from the supreme defense council for his opposition to De Gaulle. Another who was repudiated was fiery Jacques Soustelle, her of the French resistance who broke with De Gaulle after 20 years of close association.

There is a different feeling in Paris from three years ago. Then, amid falling governments and problems which seemed too great for any man to solve, to a visitor the French appeared discouraged and sullen. One of the first sights to catch the eye en route from Le Bourget airport to the city were scrawled anti-American signs and overpasses and on stone walls.

The French, in search for a scapegoat, were turning on the United States.

'Police Action' Problem MATS Lacks Troop Carrier Jets

By WARD CANNEL
SCOTT AFB, Ill. (NEA) — What if it's not a supersonic atomic war at all? What if it's a police action in Southeast Asia or a matter of carbines and grenades in the Caribbean?

A quick look at our defense machinery reveals one gaping hole — time necessary to answer an emergency call.

Only three military transport aircraft in our Air Force are powered by pure jet — and those three are assigned to Washington to move top military and government officials.

The remaining 447 transports are propeller driven — and most of them 10 to 12 years old.

Communications systems on board are as old and as limited.

In real life this means nearly 24 hours to move troops from Hickam Field, Hawaii, to — let's say — Bangkok, Thailand, or 12 hours from McGuire Field, N.J., to Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba.

During last summer's emergency in the Congo, what a Belgian jet airliner could do in hours took days for the U.N. troops in a U.S. military transport plane.

And with old communications systems, these planes were out of touch with the ground command for most of the African leg of the journey.

According to commander Gen. Joe Kelly, our military Air Transport Service, headquartered at Scott, is about $2 billion and eight years away from up-to-date status.

Why?

Since 1948 when MATS was set up as an independent command of the Air Force and given the responsibility of the Berlin Airlift.

was done to replace old equipment with new. Only a few months ago the matter settled. MATS was granted survival, but appropriations to update MATS equipment must still be voted by Congress.

TIME FOR VIOLENCE
By Noel M. Loomis

XXVIII
Jones hesitated, but in the end his fear for his life overcame his mammoth egotism. He broke. "All right, Murphy. Do what he says. And having made the first move, he glanced again at that big black hole aimed at his heart, and became a nervous wreck. "Don't make any wrong move," he said. "He's crazy but he'll do it. I see it in his eyes. Drop your gun and go outside."
Murphy's face turned dark in the light of the coal-oil lamp. The cords knotted in his thick neck; obviously Murphy had had his own ideas about the woman. "The next time I meet you," he said harshly, "it'll be on different terms."
"Yes," said Bart. "They might be even, for a change." Murphy's eyes were filled with the rage of frustrated lust—but he was not the one who had the .44 aimed at his heart. He dropped both of his six-shooters on the table, and Bart permitted himself a full breath. He was standing with his back to the door, and actually he had a good chance to get two or three of them, but that was not enough. If shooting started, he was bound to die. And there would still be Catherine and two or three men left.
"One at a time," said Bart, holding his .44's motionless, both pointed at Jones.
Jones nodded, almost hastily. Another man dropped his guns on the table and went out a third time.
Only Jones was left.
Bart breathed a little more easily. "All right, Jones. You have almost got a reprieve from a bullet. If you make a move now, it's far too late."
Jones tossed his guns to the table, and Bart began to feel weak inside. One wrong move—one man who might suddenly have decided it was a good chance to get rid of Jones—and for a few seconds fire would blaze until the cabin would be as light as day; lead would smash its way into every corner; and afterward the acrid smoke would fill the room and for a few brief moments hide the holocaust of blood and death. But Jones went outside, and it was all over for the time being.
He crouched in the open for a second and saw two men walking toward the horses. The moon was coming up. He got a dipperful of water and went back to Catherine. He heard her faint voice: "Bart!"
"Yes. Don't worry. We'll head out for the JA until this is over."
They reached the JA ranch about midnight, and the foreman, Lee Jasper, got out of bed to listen to Bart's story. He called Goodnight, who was furious when he heard about it.
Bart told him about being in jail at Mobeetie, and Goodnight laughed. "Just keep out of his sight. Arrington is too high. If he knew what we're planning, he would buck like an eight-year-old steer with a heeily under his tail, but after it's all over, he'll say he couldn't help it since he didn't know anything about it, and inasmuch as it turned out all right."
"Do you think it will—with out a general shoot-out, that is?"
"It's your idea, isn't it?" asked Goodnight.
He was awake the next morning for breakfast. Since it was Sunday, they did not get up as

Democrats Say Ike's 'Message' Too Rosy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congressional Democrats complained today that President Eisenhower's picture of the state of the Union was too rosy. They said he actually was leaving the Kennedy administration a maze of serious unsolved problems.
But Republicans defended the President's final State of the Union Message, read to the House by a clerk Thursday, as a realistic summary of the Eisenhower administration's accomplishments. The Senate, which did not meet Thursday, will hear the message read by a clerk today.
President-elect John F. Kennedy had no immediate comment on the message, in which Eisenhower conceded he was leaving the new administration with some explosive foreign and domestic problems. The President said Kennedy could solve these if he tackled them with "steadfast resolution."
Eisenhower's generally optimistic message said the nation had reached "unprecedented heights" during the eight years of his administration.
Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., said recent evidence showed that the national position at home and abroad is "far worse" than even the gloomiest prophets had forecast. "None are so blind as those who will not see," he said.

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark. of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said "the incoming administration is confronted by as difficult a set of circumstances as any administration since the War Between the States."
The private remarks of many Democrats were even more critical than those they had for the record.

Wilson Enters Senate Race

By United Press International
Atty. Gen. Will Wilson entered the special Senate election race Thursday, and the burgeoning list of candidates may rise to a baker's dozen before the next week is out.
Wilson's entry, expected by most political observers for some time, brought the total announced candidates to 12. Only a few have actually filed for office with the secretary of state to run for the post vacated by Vice President Lyndon Johnson.
Former Congressman - at - large Martin Dies of Lufkin will make an announcement Jan. 18 whether he plans to run in the crowded race.
Her brown eyes were open and frank. "Yes, I do. I've tried to tell you, but you have turned it into something else. Ben sold me to Xenophon Jones," she said.
He stared at her, shocked by what she had said, reproachful of himself for having made her say it. Then he nodded slowly, although she was staring at the ground.
"He started out by saying Jones was younger than he was, and more suitable as a husband. But I told him he was all right. I married him and I intended to stick to him. He suggested I live with Jones for a month, and I got pretty mad. Finally he said he had promised."
"Ben insisted I had to go meet Jones up at the spring, but I had refused. He said then that he had already taken the money and he had to do something about it, and I shamed him. And finally Ben said, he absolutely wouldn't try to force me; he'd pay the money back, but he wasn't turning me over to them. Jones and Murphy both shot him together. Then they drug him to the house and left him in the back yard."

Doris E. Wilson

Pampa News Women's Editor

As we sat and watched Bob Hope's television show on Wednesday evening, as he hopped around from armed force base to armed force base in the Caribbean, we thought about the only other people in the world, who had such a busy schedule were the mothers of small children on Christmas Day.

We have a poem which vividly illustrates what the average mother of small fry went through on that day. It was written by Mrs. Nate Turnbo, 321 N. Gray, mother of Jonathan, 7, Fawn, 5, and Angeline, 4. At the peak of the day, instead of collapsing, Mrs. Turnbo channeled her thoughts into a poetic vein and the following poem speaks for itself:

It's Christmas morning at the Turnbo house,
And much too noisy for a little old maid,
One cement mixer with a real mixer head,
And a set of drums that go straight to the head.

I'm drinking my coffee and my baby is four,
But a Tiny Tears baby needs changes galore!
Look out for that missile, get out of the way!
I'm happy, I'm joyous, ye gods, what a day!

I'm glad that old Santa thought of the pills;
Take one for a headache, take two for the chills,
There's a real bowling set and a Buzz-Around Bee,
And a little ole puppy keeps barking at me.

A robot so strong and a real extrovert,
His eyes get so red as the smoke he does spurt,
There's dollies galore and dishes and stuff,
A miniature kitchen, ye gods, that's enough!

I wonder where Santa mislaid all my gears?
They say I can get a replacement at Sears.
Let's see, what's for dinner? A kineex you need?
Just run-on-and-play, it's not gonna bleed.

Fawn, keep your shoes on, Angeline clean your nose,
Brother, don't pester, and so the day goes.
I'm happy, I'm joyous, but I just want to say
"When Santa ascended, he forgot his ole sleigh!"

Miss Kay Massey, Jerry Mayo Say Vows In Seven O'clock Rites

CANADIAN (Spl) — Miss Kay Massey and Jerry Mayo repeated wedding vows in a service performed at 6:30 p.m. on December 29 in the Central Baptist Church.

Miss Massey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Massey of Canadian. Mr. Mayo's parents are Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Mayo of Miami.

The maid of honor, Miss Carol Kent, a cousin of the bride, and the bridesmaid, Gail Wilson of Amarillo, also a cousin, wore identical dresses of light blue organza over lace. They carried bouquets of white carnations.

The flower girls were Karla Kay Mayo of Pampa and Veronica Massey of Abilene, nieces of the bride and bridegroom. Jimmy Massey and Larry Mayo, brothers of the bride couple, were candlelighters.

Serving his brother as best man was Theo Mayo of Amarillo. Ushers were S. E. Mayo of Pampa, brother of the bridegroom, Lewis Rogers, and William Clark of Miami.

Rev. Vernon Cline read the double-ring ceremony under a satin archway decorated with green fern. Blue candles and baskets of white mums flanked the altar.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mary Evelyn Jones. "Whither Thou Goest" was sung by AdaLeen Cook, accompanied by Linda Henderson.

Following the ceremony the reception was held in the H. H. Massey home given by Mrs. Elmer Garrison.

The table was laid with a lace cloth over blue. Serving were Barbara Schaefer and Jonnie Lou Oswald of Borger.

A graduate of Canadian High School, the bride attended Draughon's Business College in Amarillo. Mr. Mayo graduated from Miami High School and attended college in Denver, Colorado. He is employed on the Bill Stocksill ranch at Miami.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a light orchid suit trimmed in fur. Mr. and Mrs. Mayo are at home west of Miami.

Among the courtesies extended the bride was a shower in the home of Mrs. W. R. Hines. Hostesses for the affair were Mmes. C. E. Brown, Lonnie Selby, Doris Ward and Miss Melba Johnson and Miss Frances Spruell. The serving table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink flowers.

Roommates of the bride-elect honored her with a "Going Away" shower. Hostesses were Misses Barbara Schaefer, Jonnie Lou Oswald and AdaLeen Cook.

Curved Bars Are Attained By Scouts

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — In an impressive candlelight ceremony conducted by Mrs. A. W. Shubring, Intermediate Girl Scout Troop 48 received curved-bar awards, which is the highest award attainable in Intermediate scouting.

Scouts receiving the awards were Misses Sandra Biggers, Lana Sue Brown, Linda Burgin, Janice Greenway, Nan Harmon, Paulette R. Hinton, Linda Johnson, Judith McKernan, Wanda Moore, Sharon Ogle, and Myrna Shubring.

Also included in the ceremonies was a first-class rank pin received by Miss Linda Crawford and an investiture service for Miss Brenda Freeman.

Mrs. Marian Osborne, executive director of Quivira Girl Scout Council, as special guest discussed Senior Girl Scouting.

To conclude the ceremony, scouts joined in group singing accompanied by Miss Myrna Shubring on the piano.

Cooking in Liquid
Here are some easy directions for better results when cooking meat in liquid. (1) Brown meat on all sides in own fat or lard.

Some larger cuts, such as cured pork, corned beef or fresh or cured tongue, are not browned before adding liquid. (2) Season with salt and pepper unless meat is cured. (3) Cover with liquid, cover pan, and simmer (cook below boiling point) until tender. (4) Add vegetables just long enough before end of cooking time to be cooked.

Dear Mrs. Picken: How can I shorten a bubble-type skirt?
M. W. J.

Dear M. W. J.: Pin a tuck in the lining. If your skirt is two inches too long, pin a tuck one inch deep. Try dress on. Be sure length of skirt is even — hand sew or slitch tuck. If bottom edge is uneven, then make the tuck deeper in the places where skirt is long.

Age can show in the way a hem is made. If the hem is too deep, people may think you are putting money in the bank for the time when skirts might become longer. If the time ever comes that you long to lengthen a shorter skirt, it is better to face the hem. An overly narrow hem is the mark of an inexpensive garment. A hem two to three inches is ideal.

Many skirts have no seam binding. If you use a seam binding, be careful that it is not too tight at the top of the hem. Many dressmakers pink the top edge of the hem, slipstitch and carefully press it so that no hemline is visible. Why not try this method next time you use a nonravel fabric?

Don't let your age show in your hems. Examine every dress, skirt, coat and negligee you own today. Turn all to a fashionable length for you — and thus push age up and out!

Dear Abby...

It's Never Right To Be Late!!!

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am confused about one thing although I am 16 and have been dating quite a while. When your date comes to pick you up, aren't you supposed to be ready?

I always am and my mother says that is correct. My girlfriends say if you make your date wait a while (say about 15 or 20 minutes) it will show him you aren't overanxious and he will appreciate you more. I'd like your opinion.

ON TIME
DEAR ON TIME: Your mother is right. I once knew a young lady who made a habit of keeping her date waiting in the parlor because she wanted him to "appreciate her more." He learned to "appreciate" the company of her younger sister so much that he asked her out and eventually married her.

DEAR ABBY: My wife came home the other day with a purchase that provoked an argument. She bought several pairs of men's briefs with an elastic panel in front that looks something like a lady's panty girdle. When I protested she said, "Don't be silly, if it's all right for women to hold themselves in that way, why shouldn't men? Most men get pearshaped after 40 anyway."

Whose side are you on?
PAUNCHY
DEAR PAUNCHY: I'm on the side that holds 'em in front.

"Who pays for what?" Send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., for Abby's pamphlet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding."

DEAR ABBY: My problem is so embarrassing I can't talk to anyone about it, so I'm writing you. My husband is 47 and for the past year he has been hoarding the most objectionable pictures of half-dressed and naked women. He carries a billfold full of them and I've found several bunches hidden under the mattress and in his workshop. He promised he'd quit it, but he continues. Now I found he has been trying on my undergarments. I think there is something wrong with his mind. Should I call a doctor? Or will the condition cure itself in time? I am afraid to live with him.

MOTHER OF SIX
DEAR MOTHER: Your husband is sick. Ask your family physician and arrange for the treatment your husband needs. This condition is not uncommon and it doesn't cure itself.

DEAR ABBY: This might help the little lady who signed herself "TROUBLED CONSCIENCE": Six years ago I was troubled because I found out my husband was lying to cover up for his buddy. But this didn't bother me half as much as when I found out his buddy was lying to cover up for him.

Hemlines Can Often Show Costume's Age

By MARY-BROOKS PICKEN

NEA Enterprises

Almost all women you know well, who are wearing last year's dress or suit, apologize by saying, "My skirt is too long."

"I've been aiming to shorten it," "I should not wear it again."

When a skirt is too long, one is bound to look unfashionable wearing it.

Just as your age is showing when you wear an enormous hat when smaller ones are the vogue, or carry an immense handbag when fashion has shaved them down to half the size, age shows in your skirt length. Nowhere in a costume does age show so much as there.

A great writer said a half century ago: "You might just as well be off the earth as out of style."

I do not advocate extremely short skirts unless your "set" wears them and then only if you have beautiful legs and knees.

There is a happy skirt length for every woman. To find the right length for you, practice in front of a full-length mirror. Breathe deeply, lifting your rib cage and your skirt. Look front and back — and shorten as short as becomingness allows.

A full-skirt can be one inch shorter than a narrow skirt, and a medium full skirt one-half inch shorter than the narrow one. Why? Because a narrow skirt works up around the hips. After you have worn a tight skirt for an hour or so, you may find it is too short for comfort or fashion. That is why it is better to make it a little longer.

Age can show in the way a hem is made. If the hem is too deep, people may think you are putting money in the bank for the time when skirts might become longer. If the time ever comes that you long to lengthen a shorter skirt, it is better to face the hem. An overly narrow hem is the mark of an inexpensive garment. A hem two to three inches is ideal.

Many skirts have no seam binding. If you use a seam binding, be careful that it is not too tight at the top of the hem. Many dressmakers pink the top edge of the hem, slipstitch and carefully press it so that no hemline is visible. Why not try this method next time you use a nonravel fabric?

Don't let your age show in your hems. Examine every dress, skirt, coat and negligee you own today. Turn all to a fashionable length for you — and thus push age up and out!

Shortage Of Clergymen Stirs Laymen's Thoughts

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
Bad things sometimes have good effects.

This axiom is being demonstrated today in America's churches.

The bad thing in this case is a shortage of ordained clergymen. It is already serious in nearly every denomination, and it seems to be getting steadily worse. Seminary enrollments were down about five per cent during the past year.

The good effect is that conscientious Christian laymen are being compelled to do some fresh, hard thinking about what the church is, and how it is supposed to operate.

In the past, there has been a strong tendency for laymen to think of the church in terms of a neighborhood club. Its primary function was attending to the spiritual welfare of its own members. These members, the laity of the church, were expected to pay their dues, serve on committees, and help out in various house-keeping tasks. But the club had a hired hand—the pastor—who was supposed to do most of the work, and who was primarily responsible for the success of the whole enterprise.

This concept of the church is far removed from that of the New Testament. The early Christian church described in the Acts of the Apostles and the letters of St. Paul was a fellowship of men with a mission. The mission was reaching out to the world, proclaiming the good news of Christ to those outside the church who had not heard it or (the modern equivalent) had not really understood it.

The members of the early church had various duties. Some were assigned to preaching, some to teaching, some to caring for the sick and needy. Others worked to earn money for the support of themselves and those who were giving full time to the church. But they had a common responsibility for the basic mission. In the words of St. Paul, all were equally called to be "ministers"—that is, to serve in the name of their Lord.

Revolutions in deep-seated attitudes occur very slowly and gradually, and there are undoubtedly very many laymen who still think of the church as a club-with-a-hired-hand.

But there is unmistakable evidence that the New Testament concept of the church is being rediscovered in our day. There is a growing realization among laymen that the church has an enormous mission; that this mission is being sorely neglected because there aren't enough professionals to do the work that needs to be done; and that laymen, who constitute 99 per cent of the church's manpower, must step into the breach.

The prospect of massive reinforcement is exceedingly welcome to the overburdened men who serve in the "thin black line" of the ordained ministry. In the Catholic Church, and in many major Protestant bodies, moves are underway to open new opportunities for Christian service to laymen.

Next month, the Catholic Church will begin actively recruiting laymen—single men and women and married couples—for volunteer mission service in Latin America and in rural areas of the United States. These lay missionaries will be given special training and will be sent out in teams as teachers, catechists, youth workers and nurses.

In the Episcopal Church, a new organization called "Laymen International" has been formed. It seems to make part-time Christian missionaries of the thousands of American Episcopal laymen who are now living in far corners of the world as oil drillers, businessmen, Fulbright scholars, diplomats, engineers, or members of the armed forces.

Lutheran churches are exploring ways to use professionally skilled lay church members for short-term or post-retirement Christian mission service in underdeveloped countries.

'Life' Is Sermon For Scientists; Golden Text Set

How true health and harmony are established will be brought out in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Life" at Christian Science churches Sunday.

Included in the Bible readings is this statement from Deuteronomy (3:23): "Ye shall walk in all the ways which the Lord your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess."

This passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will also be read: "Our proportionate admission of the claims of good or of evil determines the harmony of our existence,—our health, our longevity, and our Christianity" (167:7).

The Golden Text is taken from John (5:11): "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son."

Churches Send Funds To Congo

NEW YORK, N.Y. (Sp) — To meet increasing emergency needs in the strife-ridden Congo, American Protestant churches have advanced $50,000 to the newly-formed Congo Protestant Relief Agency, which is representing all Protestant churches and mission boards in the Congo.

The $50,000 is part of a half million dollars being sought through the American dollar international appeal for the Congo launched by the World Council of Churches.

Announcement of the grant was made by Bishop Frederick B. Nevel, acting executive director of Church World Service, cooperative overseas relief agency of major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches in the United States.

Through Church World Service the churches have sponsored active relief programs in the Congo both before and during the present emergency, and in the last few months have shipped nearly a half million dollars worth of drugs to assist civilian victims in the war-torn area. Most of these have been contributed by American pharmaceutical manufacturers.

Ambulance Hits Truck, Two Killed

Killed instantly were Cecil Brownlee and Carol Wayland, employees of Millers Ambulance Service.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

By R. M. Marsteller
Pastor of the
FIRST PENTECOSTAL HOLINESS CHURCH
Alcock and Zimmers

"Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." Matt. 24:42.

God always does things on time. He is never too early; He is never too late. He came to Noah and spoke to him about the wickedness of the world, declaring that He was going to destroy the earth. He told Noah to do two things: he was to build an ark and he was to preach repentance. The years went by and Noah spent his time in obedience to God. I am sure that often as he rested in the cool of the evening he would hear sounds of revelry and sin and he would say to himself, "I wonder when God is going to do what He says." But God took His time. When the cup of sin was full, He struck. He sent a flood to destroy the world. God always acts on time.

Abraham and Sarah were old people. They often prayed for a son, but it seemed that their prayer would never be answered; but God had promised that Abraham would be the father of a great nation. Is God going to keep His word? Will God remember? Surely Abraham and Sarah often must have said to each other, "I wonder when God is going to send us a son." But God took His time. Finally, when Abraham was one hundred years old, God kept His promise and sent a son into the home. God always acts on time.

God told Israel when they went into Canaan that if they forsook Him and went into sin and worshiped false gods, He would punish them by sending them into captivity. But men have always failed God; their hearts are desperately wicked and deceitful. Israel did just the thing that God had commanded them not to do. The prophets of God went up and down the land crying out for the people to repent, but the people paid no attention to them. Instead they stoned and killed some of them. Surely, these prophets as they looked out upon the gross sins of the people, must have cried often, "How long, O Lord, how long?" But God knew what was going on, and He knew what He was going to do. When the hour came, He raised up a cruel nation to come in and take Israel into captivity. God knows His business; He acts on time.

For Centuries now God's prophets and ministers have been crying for people to repent for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand. They have been warning the world that Jesus is coming soon, but mankind has paid no attention. They say, "my Lord delayeth his coming." "Of that day and hour knoweth no man, no not the angels of heaven, but my Father only." But be sure of this one thing, He is coming again and He's going to be right on time. ARE WE READY?

GG Tournament Resumes Action; Finals Tomorrow

Pampa's district Golden Gloves boxing tournament, after a one-night respite, returns to action in the square ring at 7:30 tonight with a 20-fight card that will be featured by a heavyweight scrap between two Pampans. Finals in all divisions will be unreeled tomorrow night, starting at 7:30, to be followed by the presentation of awards.

Tonight's headline will match the hardy puncher of the old Hugg and Herman Giese, pair of Pampa Optimist heavyweights who will be facing each other for the first time.

Hugg, the harder puncher of the two, is expected to be in top form for tonight's scrap, having fully recovered from a broken hand received in a training mishap two months ago.

Tonight's heavyweight winner will advance into tomorrow's finals and will cross mitts with Billy Beck of Liberal, Kan., who drew a bye into the finals.

Other top attractions on tonight's card will be the pee wee scrap between two Lefors 65-pounders who slugged out wins in Wednesday's opening night; Dale Finney and D. D. Lofton.

Neither boy has developed enough to display too much poise, but the pair make up for that in duplicate with a free-swinging style that left Wednesday fans limp with excitement.

In a high school tangle that looms as a keynote, Pampans Johnny Mathis—who boxes as well as his famous counterpart sings—is expected to move past Wade Hudson of Hereford in a 126-pound fight and advance into tomorrow's finals against Jim Reeves, a slugger 126-pounder from Perryton.

In tomorrow night's finals, the focal point will shift to the high school and open title scraps, and the final night's card is dotted with blockbusters.

James Webb, the Pampa crowd-pleaser who plays football in season, will be going for the 175-pound crown when he tangles with Flo West of Borger.

Webb moved into the finals with a crunching decision over Equal Perry of Hereford Wednesday. The tall Pampans was in command the whole bout, once catching Perry in the ropes and almost pounding him into the ring side seats.

Dickie Wills will make his Pampa tournament debut tomorrow against James Morse of Borger in a 147-pound open championship bout.

Wills drew a bye into the finals while Morse chalked up an impressive TKO at 46 seconds of the first round over Wayne Martin of Perryton to move into the finals.

In a 160-pound open skirmish, Pampans Glen Ward will be a home-town choice to defeat Russell Buck of Liberal, Kan. Tomorrow's fight will be the first for both boys in the Pampa GG tourney.

Jimmy Storms Selected For 'Fighting Heart'

By ARTHUR MAYHEW
Daily News Sports Editor

J. T. King, a Texas farmboy who rose from an Oklahoma high school coach to head mentor at Texas Tech, mixed a warm brand of humor and sincere words of wisdom as keynote speaker before 400 well-fed listeners last night at the annual Harvester - Shocker football banquet at the Robert E. Lee Junior High School cafeteria.

But King deservedly took a back seat to Jimmy Storms, 147-pound senior end and 1960 co-captain who was awarded the 1961 "Fighting Heart" award by Babe Curfman, head Pampa High School coach.

Storms, hurt early in the season when he ran into a blocking sled and yet finished out the year with his injured leg almost completely taped, was presented the coveted award after Curfman first pointed out that his year's decision—made by Storms' teammates and the PHS coaches—was the hardest since he had been here.

"Despite his bad leg, Jimmy was one of the finest players in the district at the end of the season," Curfman said. "And, I guarantee you, a fine boy also."

In another banquet highlight, Margaret Burns, junior cheerleader, was crowned the 1960 football queen and received—besides an appropriate crown—a too-short

Women's Keg Play To Start

With early registration figures already hitting a record mark, officials of the Women's Merchants Bowling Tournament—which opens at Harvester Bowl Saturday—have extended the entry deadline to noon tomorrow.

Irene Greer, tournament director, reminded area bowlers today that they may still enter the two-weekend tourney by calling 4-2775 after 6 p.m. or calling Maxine Hawkins at Harvester Bowl.

A record-entry list of 75 teams already entered in tomorrow's opening round easily tops the 1960 mark of 68, which 200 doubles and more than 100 singles players have already registered, also a new mark.

Bowlers from 11 cities in three states will vie for prize money totaling more than $1,600 plus individual trophies in the four-day keg event.

The Dairy Queen team of Pampa, last year's winners, will be back to defend its crown and shoot for the $150 first prize team money.

Cash awards and trophies will be given to the winning teams, and singles and doubles and all-events winners in five divisions: A, B, C, D and E.

Starting times for Saturday's play-team only are 4, 6:30 and 9 p.m. On Sunday, the singles and doubles participants will go into action at 11:30 a.m., 1, 3:15 and 7 p.m.

Towns and number of teams entered are Pampa (42); Borger (16); Amarillo (8); Spearman, Dumas and Woodward, Okla., (4 each); Tulsa and Liberal, Kan., (2 each); and Dimmitt, Garden City, Kan., and Pratt, Kan., one each.

The tournament will end Jan. 22.

Celts Keep Slim Pace

By United Press International
Bob Cousy shows no sign of let-up and neither do the Boston Celtics.

Cousy led the Celtics to a 124-118 overtime victory over Syracuse Thursday night after the Nats had rallied from a 17-point deficit to force the game into an extra session.

The victory kept the Celtics two games in front of the second-place Philadelphia Warriors in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association. The Warriors, who had defeated the St. Louis Hawks, 111-102, and Detroit defeated Cincinnati, 124-112, in the other scheduled games.

Cousy, who led Boston with 35 points, opened the overtime session with a field goal and made good on three free throws before the game ended. Dick Barnett paced the Nats with 33 points.

Wilt Chamberlain and teammate Al Attles were the big guns in Philadelphia's victory over St. Louis.

Chamberlain scored 27 points while Attles registered 21 in addition to giving a brilliant exhibition of ball hawking and feeding. Clyde Lovellette was high man for the Hawks with 29.

Bailey Howell scored 33 points in leading the Pistons to their victory over the Royals at Fort Wayne, Ind. The Pistons came on to win after trailing 83-68 during the third quarter. Oscar Robertson led the losers with 31 points.

Lamar Teams Notch Wins

Lamar Sixth and Lamar Fifth kicked off their 1961 Pee Wee basketball play yesterday with twin wins over Baker.

Lamar Sixth downed Baker, 24-20, as Butler scored 12 points, 10 in the first quarter. Strickland had 12 for Baker. In the fifth grade contest, Lamar triumphed, 18-16, over Baker.

Tomorrow's sixth grade schedule calls for Baker at Austin; Mann at Houston and Travis at Lamar, while the fifth grade slate is Austin at Baker; Houston at Mann and Lamar at Travis, at 10 a.m.

Texans Top HS All-Americans

NEW YORK (UPI)—The state of Texas landed more youngsters on the 10th annual All-America high school football team selected by scholastic magazines than any other.

And two of the seven prep school gridders from Texas were picked as standouts on the squad of 78 players from 36 states and the District of Columbia.

These are Ernie Koy Jr. and Bert Gravit, a pair of backs who scored 34 touchdowns between them during the past season.

Koy, the son of the former University of Texas football star and major league outfielder, Ernie Koy, averaged 9.9 yards per carry, scored 35 touchdowns and punted for a 41.6-yard average as a fullback at Bellville.

Gravit, a Denver City halfback, ran for a 9.3-yard average and completed 27 of 66 passes.

Others named to the team are halfback Budgie Ford of Taylor, end Lawrence Elkins of Brownwood, tackles Bill Belew of Sweetwater and Bobby Smith of San Antonio Burbank, and center Vernon McManus of Baytown.

Monti Takes Narrow Margin At San Diego

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—It's Friday the 13th—and this may spell double trouble to Eric Monti, first round leader in the $20,000 San Diego Open golf tournament, and possibly bring a spot of luck to Arnold Palmer—leading money winner of 1960 and early bust of 1961.

Monti, 42, noted for his fast starts and slow finishes, fired a five-under par 68 Thursday to take the first round lead. Meanwhile, Palmer, who blew out of contention with a wild-fire 12 on

Rebels Down Lefors, 59-43

Robert E. Lee's Rebels downed Lefors' B for the second time this season, 59-43, yesterday at Lefors as Gary Sikes pumped 21 points through the hoop.

Sikes was supported by Mike Bridges and Rickey Stewart, who had 14 and 10, respectively, and Larry Gregory who hit for 8 points. Arrington had 12 for the losers.

Houston Nips Braves With Stunning Upset

By United Press International
Don't tell the Bradley Braves you can strike out in Houston, they've been struck by lightning twice down there.

The University of Houston's basketball squad provided the striking force Thursday night by knocking Bradley, rated No. 2 in the nation, from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 60-59 victory.

The Cougars' triumph also snapped Bradley's two-season 18-game winning streak as well as its 12-0 record this year. It was on the same Houston Coliseum court a year ago that the Cougars upended Bradley before the Braves went on their winning streak which included the National Invitational Tournament title.

Some solace for Bradley, shooting for the Missouri Valley Conference title after finishing second for the last four years, may be that Houston has dropped from the league this season, thereby keeping the Braves' 4-0 conference mark intact. Jim Lemmon's free throw with 35 seconds left was the margin of victory after Houston struck back from a 10-point halftime deficit.

Neither team scored a field goal in the last 3½ minutes with the score tied, 59-59, as Houston went into a freeze.

In rugged Missouri Valley play, Tulsa stunned highly-regarded Drake, 81-69; Cincinnati walloped Wichita, 80-57, and St. Louis trimmed North Texas State, 80-40.

AFL Slaps Senior Bowl TV Coverage
HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Expansion and the possibility of Los Angeles being shifted to San Diego will be the main topics of discussion today at the mid-winter meeting of the American Football League.

The infant league, which just completed its first season of play, is set for a broadside at the National Broadcasting Company's coverage of the Senior Bowl Thursday.

AFL owners protested what was called "flagrant violations of normal reporting procedures."

NBC President Robert Kinter was telephoned by AFL owners that "literally hundreds of persons have commented to us about the unbelievable disregard of fair play in mentioning the names of National Football League teams which had signed various players and constantly refraining from linking the names of our players with our teams."

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association, which mixed mercy with discipline during its 55th annual convention here, turned today towards legislation and certification.

The 18-member council remained here Thursday to put the finishing touches on a certification system which it resurrected from a system in effect five years ago.

WELCH is complimented by Jeff Levine, 5-10 senior, who is ninth in conference scoring with 37 points. Ronnell Shockey, 6-5 senior, Joe Castleberry, 6-3 junior, and Gail Simpson, 5-10 junior.

For the whole year, Borger is 11-4, losing to Midland, Odessa, Dumas and the Sandies.

Pampa, happy to be home after a near-fatal two-game road trip to Tascosa and Topeka, Lubbock, should be in top shape with Gordon Balch, 6-0 sophomore, back in the starting lineup after a one-game layoff.

Balch, one of PHS' best defensive men who will probably have the "honor" of guarding Welch tonight, hurt his ankle in the Palo Duro game over a week ago and he saw only limited action in the Westemer loss.

However, Pampa's hopes for a possible upset will rest in the accurate hands of Pat Carter, 5-10 senior, and Randy Matson, 6-5 sophomore who rank fifth and eighth, respectively, in the district scoring race with 45 and 39 points.

Carter, who has yet to miss a free throw in 15 district attempts, is the key to the Pampa attack from the field while Matson and Allen, Wise, 6-3 senior, combine to lead the Green and Gold in rebounding.

Bill Neslage, 5-11 senior who has come on in recent games to boost his point total to 119 points—compared to 22 for the whole season in 1959-60—will open at guard opposite Carter.

Last year, Borger won both district encounters, 39-38, and 61-54, one of the few times that Borger has ever swept a two-game series from the Harvesters.

In the 6:15 p.m. opener, Pampa's Shocks will attempt to start another winning streak after Lubbock's Cowhands stopped the Shocks' 65-49 Tuesday. The loss snapped the Shocks nine-game win string and left them 2-1 in district play.

Borger's Bullpups (1-2 in conference warfare) are paced by Jim Stephenson, a former Pampans, who has been the Pups leading scorer to date.

Safety At The Celanese Plant

Officials and employes of the Celanese Chemical Co. Pampa Plant can justly be proud of their safety program and the resultant safety record it has established.

As pointed out by H. V. Wilks, plant manager, the safety performance and achievements of the Pampa plant last year resulted in an accident frequency rate far below that of American industry in general.

A record of this kind cannot be set without team work. The safety program can be outlined but it takes the cooperation of every employe — and there are 270 of them at the Celanese plant — to make it work.

Under the capable direction of Safety Engineer John Gentry that has been accomplished. Because of its 1960 record, the Pampa plant already has become eligible for four safety awards.

Now, they are awaiting announcement of the coveted award given each year in the corporate safety contest conducted by the Celanese Corp. of America in all its domestic plants.

The officials and employes of the Pampa plant believe they have a good chance to win the Harold Blanche award this year. We hope they do. But, even if they don't win it, they have a right to be proud of the record they have established and to receive the community's congratulations on a job well done.

Thinking And Doing

Paradox: Most of us can do more than we think we can. But, most of us do less than we think we do.

To Pay And To Volunteer

There were giants in the earth, moral giants, in the days of the American Revolution. Take for example this bit of evidence as to the moral size of the Marquis de Lafayette, Washington's great friend during the trying days of our first fight against unjust taxation.

Said Lafayette: "After the sacrifices I have made, I have the right to expect two favors; one is to serve at my own expense—the other is to serve, at first, as volunteer."

There is a moral concept. And the young marquis uttered it in 1777 when he first came to this country to link his fortunes with the tottering expectations of our freedom-loving forefathers.

In view of the temper of the times one can almost stare at that statement with disbelief. Today's idiom would probably put the matter in the following way: "Sure, I don't mind doing my bit... but what's my cut? What do I get out of it, see?"

Not that we decay self-interest. Self-interest is as vital to the well-being of the individual as to the race. But the young Frenchman had the wit to see that his well-being was bound up in the cause of freedom. Thus, he was asking for a favor, quite selfishly and with his own best interest in view.

He wanted posterity to know that he was not a mercenary, come to these shores merely in the hope of being a skilled and highly paid butcher. Hence, it was important to him to set the record straight. He came expecting to pay his own way. (And we might add, to pay the way of a considerable body of the men he brought with him, as well.)

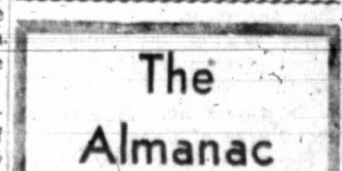

More than this, he wanted it understood that he was too much of a man to make the effort simply in obedience to some draft call. He volunteered. And this was important, that he be permitted to volunteer. For if he came under duress, then there was no nobility to the act. And if he came for money, the nobility was gone, too.

He came for far deeper and more selfish reasons. The youthful Lafayette was thinking in terms of the future... the real future, not of himself but of the species.

Might it be possible to establish on this sad old earth at least one place where men would not be empowered to tax and coerce other men? He thought such a place might be created. He thought such a place might be America. And in the hope and expectation that such could be done, he volunteered.

We would term his action selfish in the highest sense. For the young man caught a glimpse, some way, of what life on this planet might be like if there were no big governments and big kings, and big bullies in various places to rob and beat and coerce and nullify. And, selfishly, he wanted to be identified with this thing, which was bigger by far than he was.

If one cares to explore the real meaning of his statement, one might see hidden in the phrases the real cornerstones and purpose of America. Two concepts are there: 1. That a man will pay his

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The evening stars are Venus and Mars.

On this day in history: In 1733, some 150 English colonists arrived at Charleston, S.C., with a charter to establish a settlement in what is now Georgia.

In 1834, Horatio Alger, author of "rags-to-riches" stories, was born.

In 1884, American composer Stephen Foster died in New York's Bellevue Hospital, with 35 cents in his pocket—all the money he had.

The American Way

By GEORGE PECK
What in the name of heaven has happened to our American citizenry? Have we, the people, lost our love and respect for our flag "The Stars and Stripes"? And if in losing that love and respect for the emblem which "we once so proudly hailed" have we abandoned our national spirit?

You will recall an incident that occurred in New York City when Castro paid his visit to the United Nations to vent his spleen upon this nation in a lengthy, intemperate tirade. The incident transpired the morning after his arrival when the manager of the hotel at which Castro was a guest, attempted to put up our American flag — a daily custom that had been followed for many a year. The manager was stopped by the N.Y. police, acting under orders. And why? Because they were afraid it would desecrate "Shaggy Whiskers."

This really calls for language which we dare not use in this column. We must content ourselves with asking: "Just who cares a hoot as to what pleases or displeases the 'butcher of Havana'?" We wonder what would have happened that morning had a former New York City police commissioner still been holding that job. We refer to a fellow named Roosevelt (Theodore that is, not Franklin). Few will recall that this was one of the steps "Teddy" took on his way to the White House. History records that he built up the morale of the N.Y. City police force by substituting a system of appointment and promotion by merit instead of political favoritism. He rewarded bravery and devotion, he punished negligence and venality. He enforced the laws regardless of "pressure," and the politicians of both parties hated him.

Well, what do you think "Teddy" would have done in N.Y. City last September? Would this man who had no patience with a "peace at any price," have tried to placate Castro? Teddy was noted for his advice to "Speak softly but carry a big stick." This would have been one time when the hero of San Juan Hill would have spoken "loudly," and if necessary would have "swung the big stick." You can bet your last dollar that there'd have been no interference with that N.Y. City hotel manager in raising the "Stars and Stripes" in front of his hostelry.

This almost unbelievable flag incident came right on the heels of another flag abuse. On September 17, 1960, on the eve of Khrushchev's arrival, also to attend the U.N. session, President Eisenhower ordered the flag of Panama to be flown with our American flag in the Canal Zone. This was definitely in disregard of the rights of our people to govern themselves without dictatorialship.

Congressman Daniel J. Flood (Dem., Penn.) was quick to express his disapproval of this order of President Eisenhower. On September 21, 1960, he issued a statement which read in part: "... It is a cowardly yielding on the part of the Executive... to the pressure of mob rule in Panama comparable to hoisting the Soviet flag on U.S. territory. The ill-advised step, taken with the hope of placating Panamanian radicals, can only incite them to increase their demands. Furthermore, it is a contemptuous defiance of the Congress and a flagrant ignoring of the advice of the Executive departments most directly concerned with the heavy responsibilities of maintaining, operating, and protecting the Panama Canal — the lifeline of our country."

In his statement Congressman Flood cited that "the House of Representatives, on February 2, 1960, in H. Con. Res. 459, passed by the overwhelming vote of 381 to 12, took the stand that according to Panamanian demands for display of the flag in the Zone would be a 'major departure from established policy' and 'SHOULD NOT BE ACCOMPLISHED THROUGH EXECUTIVE FIAT.'"

The Pennsylvania congressman pointed out that in the 1903 Hay-Bunau-Varilla Canal Convention, Panama granted to the United States, in order to induce the U.S. to construct the Panama Canal and maintain it, the "occupation and control of the Canal Zone IN PERPETUITY."

Criticism of the unwarranted action of President Eisenhower was not confined to members of the Democratic Party. Senator Styles Bridges (Rep., N.H.), Chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, stated he was "surprised and deeply shocked" and saw "no valid reason" for the flag flying order.

In conclusion we repeat: Have we, the people, lost our love and respect for the STARS AND STRIPES? Those of us, and we are sure that the vast majority of us, who resent these insults to our flag should make our views known to President-elect Kennedy at once and to our Senators and Representatives immediately the 87th Congress goes into session — even if it displeases the bearded butcher of Cuba.

How To Forget A Headache

Pegler Says: Spies Still May Be On The Loose Around Fort Huachuca

By WESTBROOK PEGLER
TUCSON — John D. Kim, 35, of Tucson, died of a heart attack recently. He was born in Nogales, Ariz., right on the Mexican border, was graduated from Tombstone High School, spent some years of his youth on the cavalry post of Fort Huachuca and served as an aerial gunner in the Second World War. After that he was a flight instructor at the Marana Air Force Base training fliers for Korea. There was a requiem High Mass at S.S. Peter and Paul Church in Tucson.

Kim's father was Mar Kim, who somehow, after an interval of years, fell heir to an unwritten concession to run a restaurant for cavalry officers and their civilian guests but never for enlisted soldiers on Fort Huachuca. This privilege originally was granted about 1882 by some post commander to Sam Kee, a Cantonese laborer who had come over the desert from California to provide muscle for the building of the Southern Pacific, which brought civilization to the bloody desert. Where William Jay Schieffelin made the silver strike up the hills north of Huachuca, Sam Kee started a laundry, a restaurant and a fan layout in Tombstone. Schieffelin called his strike Tombstone because some other prospectors told him he would find his tombstone at the end of the trail. The commanding officer of Huachuca lured Sam Kee down to the post by offering him a monopoly on the same activities there. Chinese occupied an inferior social status in the West then. The '48ers in California seriously argued that it was no crime to kill a Chinaman—but no crime, either, especially if he was Cantonese. They were big fellows and hearty fighters.

There is a tradition now petrified into historic belief that Sam Kee paid off the Huachuca garrison on two or more occasions in the '80's when Congress forgot to appropriate the money, and again when the wagons did not get through on time, if ever, with the gold coins. The only paper money floating in those days was the private issue of an ancestor of Bill Secordoff, the New York "castle" architect, who ran a big trading post in Tucson and issued his own currency. Sam Kee carried on until his health began to fail in 1919 and he hit for home obedient to his religious belief that it was fitting to die and be buried in China.

The late Colonel Lee Davis, an infantry soldier and the perfect model of the American regular officer and gentleman, had heard that on one occasion when Sam Kee paid off the troops he won most of the money back in 48 hours in his fan tan studio. They got $13 a month and were raised to $15 but then were docked $3 for a soldiers' home which is still theoretical.

Colonel Davis had the 25th U.S. Infantry, a Negro regiment of mixed renown, honorable, tragic and highly controversial.

After Sam Kee lit out for China, various persons unknown ran his concessions until 1934 when Mar Kim, his nephew, drove his wagon with his kettles and stuff onto Huachuca with the 25th Foot, which had been shifted up from Camp Little down near Nogales. Camp Little then was surveyed out. Mar Kim took sovereignty over the old family stakeout. He dealt a beautiful spread of Chinese food soon after Pearl Harbor to which I was bidden by Colonel Davis. The occasion called for the grand ceremonial Chinese crockery, which aroused sweet memories of two-bit chop suey in Chicago long ago. This was the last decent chop suey in this world.

Mar Kim retired about 1951 and started a grocery in Tucson. He was well respected.

The 25th was a snappy outfit but in 1906 President Theodore Roosevelt stupidly ordered three companies into Brownsville, Tex., against warnings that someone would push someone some night and daub blood on the moon. When it happened, there was one civilian, dead so Roosevelt tried the three companies by a board of officers and dismissed the whole detachment "without honor" for refusing to equal on individuals. Mark Twain accused Roosevelt of persecuting these soldiers to appease Southern politicians who were indignant because he had invited Booker T. Washington to lunch at the White House.

Everybody's Money

By MERYLE STANLEY
RUKEYSER

An overeager independent insurance adjuster, seeking to earn a fee, picked up the telephone at 8 a.m. in New York to talk to a New York broker who was visiting in the Pacific Northwest. With the difference in time, the New York broker was awakened from his sleep at 5 a.m. Pacific Time.

Certainly the adjuster unreasonably invaded another man's privacy. Telephone manners are an important adjunct to successful business operations.

The late Orlando F. Weber, builder of Allied Chemical Co., with far-flung global activities, jealous of his privacy, made a company rule that he was not to be personally contacted after 5 p.m.

As an interviewer, with personal contacts with the Great and the Near Great, I have always instructed my secretaries to watch their P's and Q's in telephone contacts. My instructions are: "Never ask at the other end whether Mr. Jones is in. That is none of our business. Mr. Jones may be in, and may not be in a mood to speak to me. Perhaps he is in a conference, or engaged in dictating an important letter, or otherwise occupied. A more courteous approach is to ask: 'Is Mr. Jones free to talk to Mr. Rukeyser?'"

S. Whitney London, vice president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., goes a step further in telephonic politeness. Even when he gets a close friend on the telephone, he invariably asks: "Is this a convenient time for you to talk to me?"

The wonderful tool—the telephone—can degenerate into a nuisance if ill-bred persons abuse it. It is a misuse of the telephone per se to make an unsolicited call about a business matter at times outside of business hours.

It is usually an intrusion to make uninvited phone calls to government officials and other public personalities at their homes. The busy executive is entitled to have a civilian, dead so Roosevelt tried the three companies by a board of officers and dismissed the whole detachment "without honor" for refusing to equal on individuals. Mark Twain accused Roosevelt of persecuting these soldiers to appease Southern politicians who were indignant because he had invited Booker T. Washington to lunch at the White House.

At Huachuca, the remaining battalions of the 25th provided cadres for three entire regiments of Negro infantry for the Second World War. The regiment is now extinct, except on paper, but if it ever comes to life it will be a checkerboard outfit.

The restaurant of Sam Kee and Mar Kim is almost forgotten. Huachuca is now the great electronic proving ground of the Signal Corps, possibly lousy with spies of the Fort Monmouth type whom Joe McCarthy and Maj. Gen. Kirk B. Lawton tried to expose.

An independent insurance adjuster, who represents the policyholder in the event of a serious loss from a fire or other casualty, must sell himself on the basis of professional competency and know-how. An overeager ambulance chaser, who phones at 5 a.m., is likely unwittingly to stigmatize himself in the eyes of the prospect as a shyster.

The time to create good will with insurance brokers and others is during business hours through personal visits or direct mail appeals.

The first law of salesmanship is to put your selfish objectives into the background and to concentrate on what will be valuable and appealing to the prospect.

A sale is made when the prospect feels that he will benefit more from the product or service offered than he will from retaining the money involved in the transaction.

The payment to the salesman must not be brought forth as the end-all and the be-all of the transaction, but as a mere incident to doing something beneficial for the customer.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self-addressed envelopes should be sent in care of this newspaper. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Hankering

By HENRY McLEMORE

ROME, Italy — One of the first things I do upon arrival in a foreign country is to ask about their horses.

Are they being improved? Where is the nearest track? Do the pari-mutuel clerks speak English?

How does one get to the track? Since getting to Rome I have made several generous, genuine efforts to improve the breed of Italian horses. The improving ground known as the dell'ippodromo Capannelle, is on the New Appian Way, only a few miles out of town, and no more than 20 minutes' drive from my house.

In my desire to raise the standard of the horses I have even found a short cut via the Old Appian Way and the Catacombs and, after what happened to me the last time I went to the races, I wished I had gotten lost in the Catacombs.

The Rome track is a small and modest one by American standards but there is nothing immodest about the means of extracting money from the patrons. One has the choice of bookmakers and machines and, along with the daily double, there is a quintella on each race, the latter's being a device which requires the selection of the first two horses to cross the finish line.

Picking a winner in English has always been a difficult enough task for me, and in Italian it has proved well-nigh impossible. The horses look smaller than ours at home, the jockeys bigger, the races are run clockwise and over grass, and the form charts, most bewildering of all, are printed in Italian.

Yesterday, in the first race, I fancied a horse named Topazia. This was after watching him in the paddock and taking note that he had only three of his four legs bandaged, seemed a bit bigger than his rivals, and was to be ridden by a jockey only a shade stouter than myself.

To reinforce my choice I looked him up in the form chart, and it was very encouraging. It had this to say about Topazia: "C. B. 3. 65. Si pone in discreta evidenza e dovrebbe lottare per la vittoria."

The "C. B." obviously meant Bay Colt, the "3" that he was three years old, and the "65" the weight he was carrying. (I was correct in the latter, only it was in kilos, not pounds, so his impost was close to 145 pounds. (Quite a load.)

I read the "Si pone, etc." to mean that this pony was evidently discreet, had a dove-like temper.

Picking Horses In Italian Is Tougher Than In English

By HENRY McLEMORE

What else could a man want? Even tempered, discreet and willing to do his best for food.

I did business with the boy on Topazia and went to the track with a confident smile. The fellow wouldn't lack pasta tonight, meat sauce, too.

Topazia was all I had hoped for at the start, but in the stretch, when the field disappeared a hill and behind a quarter-mile-long stretch of trees, a thing happened. I don't know. Maybe the jockey dismounted a shoeless. Whatever it was, he was in the lead when he beyond the forest, emerged a dazed togas' length behind the

When Topazia approached final hurdle — it was a steeplechase — something told me never make it. He was weary the jockey looked as big as a safe. Horse and jockey went together, but they didn't come that way.

Topazia got up most discreetly in his jockey, and walked correctly. I walked away and ed for the Catacombs.

SAFETY PAYS — One just doesn't mosey around in fire without the proper equipment, but in this case Harold Andrews, Celanese Corp. safety inspector at the Pampa plant, shows it can be done when wearing an aluminized-asbestos rescue suit as he walks around in a pit of burning oil as shown in the photograph at the upper left. In the upper right photograph maintenance department employe Earl Wallin is shown using the proper protective face shield and respirator while turning out one of his expert grinding jobs. The lower picture was taken last year as Glenn G. Fleming of Charlotte, N.C., corporate director of safety and plant protection, presented Hershel V. Wilks, Pampa plant manager, special awards commemorating the local plant having topped the one million man hour mark without a disabling injury. (Celanese Photos)

Two Million Man Hours Without Disabling Injury

Celanese In Line For Top Safety Award

By TEX DEWEESE
Daily News Managing Editor

Employees at the Celanese Chemical Co.'s Pampa plant are keeping their fingers crossed these days in the hope of winning national recognition in the corporate safety contest conducted by the Celanese Corp. of America in all its domestic plants.

The Pampa plant employs some 270 workers. The thing they are proud of is the fact there has not been a disabling injury among any of these employes since June 30, 1957.

At 5 p.m. last Dec. 29 the Pampa Celanese plant completed two million man hours without a single disabling injury and is now on its way to the third million, according to Safety Engineer John Gentry, in-charge of the safety program at the local plant.

The record of Celanese employes has enabled the Pampa plant to become eligible for the following awards:

Celanese Corp. of America's Sixth President's Certificate of Commendation; National Safety Council's Fifth Award of Merit; Manufacturing Chemist's Association Fifth Certificate of Achievement; and American Motorist Insurance Co.'s Third Certificate of Award.

Now the Pampa plant employes are looking ahead to the latter part of this month when the coveted annual Harold Blanche Award, named for the former president and chairman of the board, is given to the Celanese plant or laboratory in the United States which has the best safety experience and record of accomplishments.

With no disabling injuries during 1960 and with a number of specific accomplishments to strengthen the safety and fire protection program, the Pampa plant is considered a strong contender for the award.

Gentry said the winning plant is expected to be announced by the corporation contest committee about Jan. 20.

To give an idea of the safety record accomplished by the employes at the Pampa Celanese plant, to work two-million man hours, 30 men would have to work 30 years at an average of 2,250 hours per man per year. This accomplishment is an indication of the importance the men and women of this petrochemical plant place on safety. H. V. Wilks, plant manager, said.

While the present record is the highest level ever reached at the plant without a disabling injury, safety has always been taken seriously. Since the plant went into operation in October of 1952, a comprehensive safety and fire protection program has been in effect. As the plant has grown, the organization and services incorporated into the safety program have been expanded to meet the increasing needs.

Safety Engineer Gentry said the safety program includes education of all employees in the prevention of accidents both on and off the job, the elimination, or at least reduction, of hazards; treatment of injuries; emergency procedures and employe health.

First aid treatment for minor injuries is provided in a modern dispensary by qualified personnel. Almost half of the people at the Pampa plant have been trained in the Standard First Aid Course sponsored by the American Red Cross. In addition, six members of the Plant Protection and Safety Groups are accredited instructors for this course.

While the plant has never experienced a major fire, a trained fire brigade is at the plant around the clock ready to provide assistance should a fire start in any area of the plant.

Remember Alf Landon? Well, At 74 He's Doing Comeback As Author

By WARD CANNEL

TOPEKA, Kan. — (NEA) — Nervous? Man, you just don't know about nervous until you watch Alf Landon sweat, it out in Topeka.

"It's the waiting," Landon said, lighting a cigarette. I thought I knew all about waiting. Why, I never lost a night's sleep over an oil well or a presidential nomination.

"But waiting for galley proofs on your first book seems to be an entirely different kind of waiting."

At 74, the Sunflower candidate who lost the presidency to Franklin Roosevelt in the biggest landslide in U. S. history is back in national politics with a book called "For the New President and the American People."

And if you want to find out how old you are — and why he's nervous — ask the younger generation-and-a-half who Alf Landon is. That election was lost 25 years ago.

"There are a number of compensations for staying out of the public eye," he said.

"The most important thing is your family. I'm not so sure you're giving your children any advantage by being a well known father.

"And besides, you don't have to sleep in hotel rooms and train compartments if you stay home. I haven't been away from home in years — except to drill a few oil wells."

And he wouldn't be on edge now if he hadn't succumbed to an invitation to visit New York last May and speak at a rally for the Sane Nuclear Policy Committee with Mrs. Roosevelt and Gov. G. Mennen Williams and Walter Reuther.

"Before I knew it," he said, "I had promised to write a book. So there was nothing to do but come back to Topeka and start."

According to Landon, the book is a series of notes and memoranda of his thoughts and suggestions about politics, policy and organization. But according to publisher Rudo Gleason, the book is going to knock more than a few eminent Americans and ideas off their equilibrium (and the galleys will be ready any day now).

"But," Landon said, lighting another cigarette, "I just don't know why the waiting should be so difficult."

"I've seen my words in print thousands of times. I've been interviewed so often that — well, I'd know enough not to engage in a televised debate with an opposing candidate.

"And as for making speeches, why I own several radio stations in Kansas and they keep complaining that they have to read what I say in the newspapers."

"But I've never been this excited about anything like this. I wrote to Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. because he's had a lot of experience writing books. He wrote back and said it was natural to feel this way and not to worry.

"But I don't think I'll write another book. I couldn't go through this again."
