But Keep Fires Banked

Sunshine Due In Panhandle

By United Press International

Sunshine was expected to return to snow and rain weary west and southern Texas today, bringing at least a temporary end to the winter weather that has plagued those areas. The U.S. Weather Bureau said a mass of dry air was pushing in from the west, which left the majority of the state shrouded in clouds. Police Chief Jim Conner said the 12 auto accidents have been investigated since Saturday, noting the extremely slippery conditions of streets, urged motorists to drive with care. The low pressure system centered in the Gulf of Mexico which triggered the heavy rains and snow was moving eastward, and dry air followed on its heels.

Snow and ice covered a huge portion of the state this morning, but the sunshine was rapidly melting the accumulation. Rain still fell in the southeast and east, but no new snowfalls were reported. The weatherman said the precipitation would continue in the eastern half of the state the remainder of the day, gradually ceasing and turning fair as the dry air pushed through.

Dallas and Fort Worth both were covered with three inches of wet, slushy snow and an accumulation of five inches was reported at Wichita Falls, four at Abilene and Hamilton, three at San Angelo and one at Dalhart and Alpine. Ranged between 14 degrees at San Angelo and 40 at Beaumont. Early morning temperatures ranged between 14 degrees at San Angelo and 40 at Beaumont.

The Weather Bureau reported six inches of snow has fallen in Dallas so far this winter, the most since six and a half inches fell in the winter of 1928-1927. Normal snowfall for the Dallas area averages 2.3 inches.

Moisture pumped up from the gulf over the mass of chilly air that covers most of the state was causing the snow. It fell in blinding flurries in some sections of central Texas during the night.

At Junction in Southwest Texas and in parts of Central Texas the snow was so wet as it fell, it didn't flake, but rather clustered together in blobs described by one person as like "slushy snowballs falling from the sky."

Several schools in West Texas were also closed because of weather. Abilene Christian College postponed its basketball game with Midwestern University.

Nearly four inches fell in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, and it caused a minor accident Monday night at Dallas Love Field when a Delta DC8 with 109 persons aboard skidded on a runway and bogged down in mud just off the strip. None of the persons was injured, the airline reported.

The heaviest snow of the night was in the North Central Texas area, and extended up through eastern Oklahoma into western Kansas.

Snow and sleet peppered San Antonio, Hondo, Castroville, Fredericksburg, Llano, Camp Bullis and areas north of San Antonio all the way to Austin.

Polaris Failure Laid To New Part
CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A top-secret piece of equipment getting its first test may be blamed for a failure which turned an advanced model Polaris missile into a 15-ton "Roman candle" and damaged its launching pad Monday.

Men Say 'How Much?'
HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — The two freckled-faced kids need help. And the men behind bars — many of them without hope, with little or nothing to live for — asked one question. "How much?"

Vicki Erler, 13, a pretty little girl with soft brown hair, and her brother, Vaughn, Charles, two years younger, were the first children ever to visit the maximum security unit at Huntsville State Prison.

Vaughn, they call him Bubba, wore a sweater with a big "W" on it. He's quarterback for his school's pee-wee football team. He looked the picture of health. He did his sister.

But the kids, children of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Charles Erler of Mesquite, Tex., need blood transfusions every week or two because of a rare disease called Mediterranean anemia.

Bubba has had more than 250 transfusions. Vicki has had more than 300. The disease is characterized by an inability of the victim to reproduce red blood cells.

Panel Questions Loyalty Of Negro Housing Choice

STICKING TO HIS POST — A New York City patrolman stands knee-deep in snow as he telephones his station house during the weekend blizzard that paralyzed the nation's biggest city. Some 17 inches of snow fell on Gotham and the surrounding area in a span of 24 hours, to create scenes such as the one above.

School Buses Use It

Tignor Street Bridge Condemnation Sought

Investigation of a rickety, wooden bridge on Tignor St. was asked by City Commissioner Leon Holmes at today's meeting of the City Commission in City Hall.

Holmes charged that the narrow bridge on Tignor, near McCullough, is in a dangerous condition and is partly rotted away. The commissioner said at times water passing through the draw goes completely over the bridge and that it has been in a weakened condition for some time.

"It is endangering lives," Holmes said.

The commissioner said that school buses cross the bridge daily.

"If we don't do something about it," he said, "one of these days a school bus is going to crash through it with a possible loss of life."

Holmes asked that the bridge be condemned or blocked off.

Mayor Ed Myatt asked City Engineer Monroe Moore to immediately look into the matter and make a report back to city officials for action in the matter.

The commission had a number of bridge matters on the agenda today — the widening of the N. Duncan St. bridge, between Sunset and Georgia, along the east side of Central Park.

This matter, Mayor Myatt said, has been hanging fire for five years. Voters approved a $43,000 bond issue for the improvement in 1956.

After a discussion of the matter today, Wayland Merriman, consulting engineer, was authorized to submit plans for widening the bridge and approaches by Feb. 28. If present plans are carried through bids would be advertised the first week in March and opened on March 21 in order to get the work included in this summer's street improvement program.

The present bridge at that point is 24 feet wide, narrowing down from a four-lane highway. It was pointed out that in bad weather only one car can cross the bridge at a time, creating a serious and dangerous traffic bottleneck.

Returns of last Tuesday's City Charter election were canvassed and approved by the commission. (See Bridge Page 3)

Engine, Two Cars Derailed Near Miami Today

The westbound Santa Fe Chief passenger train No. 1 was held up about five hours today due to the derailment of the engine and two cars of an eastbound freight one mile east of Miami this morning.

Santa Fe officials said the derailment happened at 6:30 a.m. No one was injured. The derailed engine and cars spread across the tracks and blocked the way for the Chief, due in Pampa at 8:52 a.m. R. A. Wycoll, agent in the Pampa Santa Fe office, said shortly before noon the delayed passenger train was expected in Pampa around 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Missile Gap Is Untrue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The dread missile gap has failed to materialize, according to an administration study.

Contrary to predictions of Democratic critics during the Eisenhower administration, the United States is not now lagging behind Russia in numbers of intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Nor is there now expected to be a period when there would be a dangerous gap between U.S. and Soviet military power — a period when the balance of destructive power would be heavily on Russia's side.

These conclusions were reported to have been reached by President Kennedy's defense high command. They apparently are at the heart of the administration's current reappraisal of American military policies.

The findings were in line with the assumptions of the Eisenhower administration on missile strength, which drew sustained and bitter criticism from congressional Democrats.

In a Senate speech in August, 1958, for example, then-Sen. Kennedy said, "The gap will begin in 1960." He said that the most critical years of the missile gap apparently would be 1960-1964.

Last June, in another Senate speech, he called for stepped-up missile development to "close the gap."

It had been predicted in Congress that Russia would gain a 3-1 majority over the United States in ICBMs in the early 1960s.

The Eisenhower Administration told Congress last year Russia was likely to produce more ICBMs at times in the early 1960s, particularly in 1962.

But it argued that there would be no "destruction gap" — a period when Russia would have superior power to wreak destruction.

Guantanamo's Water Supply Grab Explained
HAVANA (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro's official radio said today government seizure of the water company supplying the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo was "designed to regulate rather than disturb" its operation.

The broadcast described U.S. fears that Castroite authorities might cut off the base water supply were "hysterical." It assailed U.S. newspapers for "jumping to conclusions" about the action.

JFK Asked To Vouch For New FHA Boss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman A. Willis Robertson, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, refused today to start hearings on the nomination of Robert C. Weaver as federal housing administrator until President Kennedy vouches for the New York Negro's loyalty.

Robertson, a Virginia Democrat who has already announced his opposition to Weaver, called the committee into executive session and cleared the room. He announced that he was unable to start the hearing unless he received a letter from Kennedy giving assurance of Weaver's loyalty.

Robertson said he has made repeated attempts since Jan. 30 to get a written word from the President giving the results of any FBI investigation and report on the New York housing official.

"I regret that despite all efforts I have made since Jan. 30," Robertson told the crowded hearing room, "it (the letter) has not come and I have repeatedly stated I could not proceed until it does."

Robertson added "I have received a number of complaints touching on his (Weaver's) loyalty. In fairness to him I felt I should bring that to the attention of the President."

Last month Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., said on a television program that there was some gossip current about Weaver's past associations. Chairman Francis E. Walter of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said that his group had no record of any subversive or "front" organization memberships by Weaver.

Robertson, after saying that he was reluctant to do so, released the contents of the letter he wrote to the President on Jan. 30.

Two other southerners, not committee members, also said they would vote against the New Yorker when the nomination reaches the Senate, probably this week. They are Sens. Lister Hill, D-Ala., and Allen J. Ellender, D-La.

Weaver, however, has strong support from both Democrats and Republicans on the committee and in the Senate.

Real estate and builders' opposition to Weaver faded with the announcement that Neal J. Hardy would be deputy housing administrator. Hardy is director of the National Housing Center, Washington headquarters of the building industry.

Weaver, 53, has been serving as vice chairman of the Housing and Redevelopment Board in New York which directs and administers the city's urban renewal and middle-income housing program.

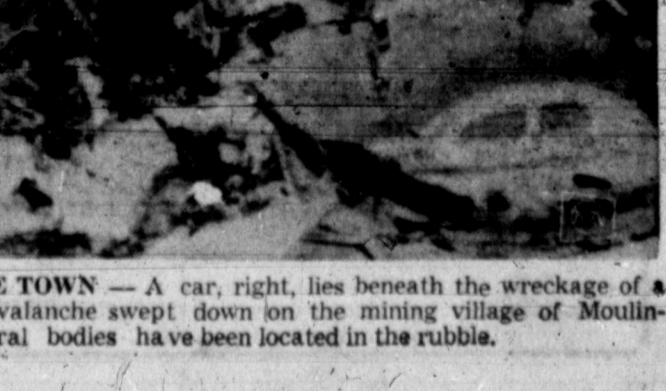

Weaver, who has been identified with housing and urban problems for 25 years, entered government work at the start of the New Deal in 1933 and has held a variety of federal posts.

Last year he was elected to the board of directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He has been serving as chairman of the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing.

Pay Scale Boost Plan Due Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy was ready to send Congress today details of his proposal to increase the $1-an-hour minimum wage to $1.25. Chance for congressional approval of the wage floor boost is expected to be one of the topics discussed at the President's breakfast meeting with Democratic legislative leaders.

A 25-cent increase in the federal minimum wage law and coverage for additional millions of workers is one of Kennedy's five priority legislative requests. The President's proposal called for raising the wage floor to $1.15 this hour for the 24 million workers already covered. His would go up to $1.25 next year.

Kennedy also wanted to extend coverage to about 4.5 million additional workers, mostly in large retail and service establishments. They would start with a $1-an-hour minimum wage and work up gradually to $1.25.

The Senate last year approved a 25-cent hike in the wage floor and the House voted a 15-cent boost. The Senate bill would have brought more additional workers under minimum wage protection at the House measure.

But the legislation died when Senate and House conferees could not agree on a compromise.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

From the foreign news cables: NATO secretary general: Observers say a possible long shot choice for NATO secretary general to succeed Belgium's retiring Paul-Henri Spaak is former U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson. They point out that the Soviet Union's economic and political offensives have gotten up such a head of steam that the United States may throw its weight around to get an American at the head of the NATO council as well as having an American general in command of its military forces in Europe. They note that Britain's Lord Ismay successfully built up the NATO military machine to face the Russian threat. But they also note that Spaak was unable to get agreement on such innovations as aid to under-developed countries — including NATO's own Greece, Turkey, Iceland and Portugal. This and other aspects of the latter-day race against Russia, some pundits claim, may bring an American into the top NATO job — particularly since Britain doesn't seem interested. Acheson is considered a likely choice, especially by a Democratic administration.

Salazar strengthened: All indications are that the hijacking of the liner Santa Maria by a band of rebels will strengthen the hand of Portugal's Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar. Reports from Portugal indicate there wasn't the slightest sputtering of the revolt which insurgent Capt. Henrique Galveo apparently hoped to touch off by seizing the ship off South America. Any real sympathy on the part of Portugal's man-in-the-street faded out during Galveo's prolonged haggling with Brazilian authorities before he let his captive passengers ashore in Recife.

Khrushchev delay: Communist diplomats are hinting that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may delay his trip to the reconvened United Nations General Assembly in New York until late in March. The idea is to meet both Kennedy and Britain's Premier Harold Macmillan. The Assembly resumes March 7, and Macmillan is to visit Washington April 3. Instead of showing up at the beginning, it is being suggested that Khrushchev may prefer to wait until the Assembly gets fully under way and the United States plans for disarmament become clearer. With Macmillan in the United States at the time, Khrushchev then would have an opportunity to discuss with the two major Western leaders the issue of a nuclear-test-ban-in-person. Talks at a lower level on a test ban are scheduled to resume in Geneva by the end of March.

Japanese salmon: Japan's fish catch in the north Pacific is expected to be cut further this year as a result of Soviet demands. The Soviets claim that available salmon resources in the area are declining, and they want them conserved. While the Japanese government is expected to counter Russia's demands in Soviet-Japanese fishery talks expected to begin soon in Tokyo, observers say it may be forced to accept the Soviet demand.

Police Shoot Convict As He Attempts Break

MONTREAL (UPI)—A 22-year-old convict who held a woman hostage for 14 hours and wounded another person in a desperate effort to make good a prison break, is being held under guard, his escapade ended by a police sharpshooter.

Donald Pollock was felled by police bullets while trying to reach a getaway car from the home of the woman he was holding hostage. The woman also was slightly injured.

Pollock had less than three months to serve of his three year term at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary when he escaped Saturday by leaving an outdoor hockey game under the pretense of returning to the prison yard.

He grabbed a .403 rifle from a guard and then raced to the home of Roland Cyr, 50, a prison warden. Cyr and his daughter escaped, but Pollock held Mrs. Cyr hostage and threatened to kill her if police tried to capture him. He wounded one passing motorist with a shot.

After forcing prison officials to bring him a chicken dinner and cigarettes, he made them park a "getaway" car near the Cyr home.

Beaumont Gets New Police Chief

9-Thousand Deaths In Texas In 1960; Heart Disease Ranks As No. 1 Killer

AUSTIN (Sp) — Texas deaths during 1960 showed the most substantial increase in 25 years according to provisional estimates compiled by the State Health Department's Records and Statistics Division.

Deaths for 1960 were seven per cent above the 1959 figures with comparative death rates of 821.2 per 100,000 population for 1960, and 790 deaths per 100,000 for 1959. Over two-thirds of the increase in Texas deaths occurred during the first three months of 1960. This was during the peak period of last year's influenza outbreak.

On the credit side was the noticeable drop in the motor vehicle accident death rate from 26.9 per 100,000 in 1959 to 24.5 per 100,000 population in 1960. All other accidents showed a slight rise in the death rate over the preceding year.

Dear Abby... Pop's Talking Through His Hat!!

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My father is my problem. Pop is 73 and insists on wearing his hat in the house, restaurant and everywhere else he goes. I say he should take his hat off when he's indoors. He says all newspapermen wear their hats indoors and he used to be a newspaperman. Is this correct, and what should I tell him?

all wind up in the "wog-sooh" (which is "hoosgow" spelled backwards).

DEAR ABBY: I recently returned home from a TB sanitarium and was told my health was excellent and that I should lead a normal life.

My problem is how to convince my friends and neighbors. During the holidays people actually LEFT Christmas gifts for the children at our door because they were afraid to come in. This hurt the children terribly. As they are old enough to understand the situation, I would rather they had not received those gifts at all.

AT ODDS WITH POP

DEAR ABBY: Newspapermen go by the same rules of etiquette as everyone else. Elderly people can become as spoiled as children. So handle him with firmness and affection and tell Pop to take his hat off indoors because he's her'n'ing to talk through it.

My problem is how to convince my friends and neighbors. During the holidays people actually LEFT Christmas gifts for the children at our door because they were afraid to come in. This hurt the children terribly. As they are old enough to understand the situation, I would rather they had not received those gifts at all.

DEAR ABBY: Just before Christmas our mother got a ticket for speeding. It cost her $25, which upset her terribly because it was her first offense in 32 years of driving. It also took a hunk out of her Christmas fund.

Abby, are we living in the 20th century or the stone age? Are people so ignorant that they think former TB patients released from a sanitarium will contaminate them? Please, please print my letter. If you can educate just a few, it will save so much heartbreak for former TB patients and their families.

My brother and I wanted to cheer her up, so we typed a letter saying she had been "overcharged" by the Highway Department and we enclosed $20. We signed the letter "Captain Redmug" (which is our name spelled backwards). We thought she'd catch on, but she didn't. Now she is showing the letter all over town believing it really came from the Highway Department.

What's your problem? For a personal reply from Abby, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Our problem is whether to let her believe this or to tell her the truth. We don't want her to find out later and feel foolish.

In observance of "Parade Of American Music", sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs during the month of February, Treble Clef Club will present a program of All-American music on Tuesday evening in the City Club Room.

Although the National Federation promotes and presents American music throughout the entire year, it anticipates that more than 5,500 member organizations, clubs and other musical organizations will present at least one all-American program during the month of February. The "Parade" is designed to encourage American composers to give their works a wider hearing and to impress upon the American public that its culture equals that of other countries. This is the seventh successive year for the observance of "Parade of American Music".

Youthful Social Whirl Topic For PTA Study Course

"Are We Rushing Our Children Into A Social Whirl?" will be the discussion topic for the fourth in a series of six study courses sponsored by the PTA City Council. The study course will be held Thursday from 9 a.m. until 11 in Stephen F. Austin school auditorium.

Mrs. Tom Braly, City Council study group chairman, will introduce Mrs. Ruby Capps, Pampa Junior School counselor, who will moderate the discussion. Members attending will be divided into small groups with one person designated as leader; the group will be given a question related to the topic to discuss among themselves. After each has had the opportunity to express her views on the question, the leader will report the viewpoints that were made in the buzz group to the entire assemblage.

Following reports from each leader, the meeting will be thrown open for a question and answer session. Two more study courses are planned for consecutive Thursdays to complete the series of six. The next course will be held in Sam Houston School on Feb. 18.

Annual National Children's Dental Health Week Observed Feb. 5-11

(February 5 through 11 is the 13th annual National Children's Dental Health Week. As part of the observance, the Pampa News in cooperation with the Panhandle District Dental Society today begins a series of typical questions asked about dental health, and the authoritative answers.)

Are there any special foods I should give my child so that he will have good teeth? A diet adequate for general health is adequate for dental health. Such a diet includes the building materials needed during the years the teeth are developing in the jaws. But, with the exception of flourides, no element in the diet has been proved to help develop decay-resistant teeth.

To some extent it can really be the foods your child does not eat that are most important in protecting his dental health. Bacteria in the mouth act on sugars to form acid; which attacks the enamel of teeth. Eventually, as the result of these acid attacks, decay begins. Therefore, cutting down on sweets is one way of protecting teeth from decay.

Why do dentists warn against giving sweets to children between meals? Since an acid attack follows each consumption of sweets, it is especially important that they not be eaten as between-meal snacks. Frequency of eating more than amount eaten determines the damage.

When should my child start brushing his teeth? As soon as your child's first teeth appear in his mouth, you can begin cleaning them with a piece of gauze after meals. As soon as he has all of his teeth, he should begin brushing after every meal. At first you will have to help but eventually he will be able to take over the job completely. Brushing his teeth regularly is part of the necessary dental care for his first teeth; also habits formed as a small child are likely to be kept throughout life.

Brushing after every meal is the dental health rule suggested because brushing removes food particles from the mouth. If these food particles, especially sugars, are not removed, bacteria acts upon them to form acid, which attacks the enamel of the teeth.

Rusk Has One Advantage Over Three Before Him

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dean Rusk, the new secretary of state, has at least one advantage over the last three men to hold that post.

He doesn't have to spend as much time in the barber chair. Unlike Dean Acheson, John Foster Dulles and Christian A. Herter, all of whom had various amounts of hair to cope with, Rusk begins his tenure nearly denuded of cranial upholstery.

Considering the demands made on a secretary's time, this can be important. It means that he will be able to guide the ship of state with both hands on the tiller and no motion wasted on comb and brush.

Moreover, when his hairline disappeared over the horizon, it left Rusk with a virtually unlimited expanse of forehead to wrinkle in thought.

Judging from the number of problems in the world today, I would say that he probably will need every inch of it.

Rusk gave his views on some of these problems Monday at his first news conference since taking office. He inspired my confidence right away, not only with his baldness but with the way he conducted himself and what he had to say.

The conference was held in the new State Department Auditorium, the same place where President Kennedy already has been blazing trails to the New Frontier by holding televised seances with the press.

Rusk, however, reverted to the old fashioned format, with "live" cameras barred. This gave the affair a homey touch that helped put everyone at ease.

I mean, it was nice to be able to sneeze without 60 million people saying "gesundheit."

Even so, the environment was too much for one reporter. He addressed Rusk as "Mr. President" instead of "Mr. Secretary."

Although he is new at his current job, Rusk showed that he is not lacking in diplomatic training. He greeted us by paying respects to our experience and competence in reporting governmental affairs.

Should our quest for news occasionally clash with the department's desire for secrecy, then he hoped the ensuing tug-of-war would be a friendly one, he said.

I wouldn't say that his praise of the press corps disarmed anybody, but there did seem to be an unusually small percentage of loaded questions.

Rusk also was exceptionally frank for a government official.

Wintertime Is Good House Hunting Time

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nippy winter weather may not foster enthusiasm for house hunting, but it is the wise home-seeker who bundles up and goes out looking anyway.

The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association (GAMA), notes that the heating system of a home may account for as much as 10 per cent of the purchase price and says cold weather house hunting will give you a better opportunity to judge the performance of a heating system than you would have during warmer weather.

GAMA advises that you check on thermostats, making sure they are located on inside walls, away from drafts, TV sets and other influences on heat control. It also suggests a check to see that there is a source of heat near house entrances. A radiator or register near the front or back door, it notes, can be an important fuel saver.

What type of fuel is most satisfactory for heating? Most manufacturers of heating equipment say the type of fuel has little effect on the overall efficiency of the heating system. The experts generally agree that if a heating plant of high quality is properly engineered, installed and economical in operation, no matter which type of fuel is used.

The better heating-cooling council says the homeowner's primary concern regarding fuel should be what it will cost each year to heat his house with one type of fuel compared with another.

France To Build Prison With Swimming Pool And Studio-Like Cells

MURET, France (UPI) — A "good guy" and a "bad guy" prison — with the good guys living like gentlemen farmers with a swimming pool at their disposal — will go up soon in this little French town.

Construction will begin this year on the ultra modern prison which will combine reformatory measures with rewards for "good" prisoners. The prison will be built on a 24-acre site and will cost $3 million.

The decision was taken to build the jail after French technicians and architects went all over Europe and the United States studying the most modern prisons.

The main ideas of the new prison will be to ally security and reforming measures with a modern and decent life for long-term prisoners.

The jail will be open only to those who have received a sentence of at least 10 years.

The outside appearance will be somber, with an 18-foot-high concrete wall, on top of which small walks will enable guards to patrol day and night.

Inside it will be like a dream house, at least for those prisoners who have good conduct privileges. The inside will be divided into two main quarters, the first reserved for "good" prisoners where they will live like gentlemen farmers, and the second where the "toughs" will have a harder life.

The main novelty for a French jail will be the prisoners' cells. They will look more like studios, each of them equipped with running hot and cold water and central heating.

Shower rooms will be plentiful. A large library along with reading rooms, television rooms and a cinema will be available.

A chapel also will be built in the prison. A modern stadium with sports instructors and a swimming pool will be at the disposal of prisoners.

A modern farm will be installed in the prison and the prisoners will produce a large part of their food. They also will test new ways of farming.

A small hotel will be available to visitors. The small town of Muret, which has only 5,204 inhabitants, has been famous so far only because former President of the Republic Vincent Auriol was born there.

The jail is expected to be finished in three years, replacing a prison in the Loire Valley built in 1804 in a former convent dating from 1099 which the government wants to restore as a historic monument.

Police Tighten Security To Balk Angola Violence

LUANDA, Angola (UPI)—Police tightened security measures yesterday to prevent further outbreaks of the rioting and violence that claimed 20 lives in this Portuguese African territory over the weekend.

Four persons were killed and seven others were wounded Sunday when gunmen fired into a crowd at a policeman's funeral.

Sixteen persons were killed Saturday when mobs attacked jails in Luanda, a security police barracks and the city's official radio station.

Europeans and Africans from neighboring territories were among the mob which rioted Saturday in what Portuguese newspapers said was a badly synchronized phase of the abortive Santa Maria revolt by Portuguese exile Henrique Galvao.

The victims included nine rioters, six policemen and an army colonel, officials said. At least three other policemen were reported injured seriously.

Producers Urged To Take Part In Pricing Hearings

HOUSTON — The vital importance to natural gas producers of participating in forthcoming "pricing" hearings to be conducted by the Federal Power Commission was stressed here by D. L. Connelly, president of the Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn.

Connelly encouraged producers, regardless of the size of their natural gas operations, to plan to take part in the hearings.

FPC has announced that the first of these hearings will involve Permian Basin gas sales.

The hearing itself has not been scheduled, but a pre-hearing conference will be held in Midland Monday, March 6.

Small producers in particular have expressed the hope that the hearing itself will also be held in Midland, Mr. Connelly said.

"Many of these operators could not afford either the time or the expense of making a trip to Washington," he observed, "so they will not have an opportunity to be heard unless the area hearing is held in their own locale."

Connelly said nearly 300 producers have been made parties to the proceedings by the FPC. These are producers who are involved in general rate investigations, who have had price increases for Permian Basin gas suspended by FPC, forces opposed to Premier Fidel Castro.

participate, i.e., a statement of position; presentation of evidence, type of evidence to be presented, number of witnesses, etc.; and his representation, whether as an individual or as a representative for an association, group or segment of the natural gas industry, or of ultimate consumers.

Producers who have not been made parties to the Permian Basin hearing, but who wish to participate, must also have on file with FPC by Feb. 15 an application to intervene, as well as a statement of position.

Mr. Connelly emphasized that the documents must have been received by FPC by Feb. 15.

"Having them postmarked by the 15th is not acceptable," he said. "I would urge every producer who is not already a party to the proceedings to file an application to intervene." Mr. Connelly said, "as there is some question of whether the producer will waive his Constitutional right to appear if his application is not in Washington by Feb. 15."

Cuba-Bound Texan Winds Up In Jail

MIAMI (UPI)—A Texan who said he wanted to have a fling before going to Cuba to fight with the rebels, landed in jail here during the weekend, police reported.

Detectives said James C. Parke, 30, of Midland, Tex., used a credit card to run up a $1,000 bill for food, entertainment and rental of an expensive car. They said he also used a bad check from a Midland bank to open a checking account here.

He was charged with misusing a credit card and writing a bad check. Detectives said he told them he had been planning to leave for Cuba shortly to join forces opposed to Premier Fidel Castro.

$1 Billion Deficit Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicts the government will run up the present fiscal year deficit to a $1 billion deficit instead of a surplus forecast by the Eisenhower administration.

Furthermore, Mansfield said the deficit for the next fiscal year will be about $2 billion and the government can't do anything to "approach a balanced budget" until fiscal 1963.

Shortly before leaving office, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower estimated that the government would end the present year on June 30 with a $100 million surplus. He said his estimate was based on a "justifiably realistic view" of the economy.

Eisenhower also sent Congress a fiscal 1961 budget providing for a surplus of $1.5 billion. It included spending in the year ending July 1 at $89.9 billion and revenues at $82.3 billion.

The Eisenhower 1962 surplus was based at least in part on the fact that the country would pull out of the business slump, thus increasing tax receipts, and on the fact that Congress would raise fuel gasoline taxes and postal rates.

Mansfield, appearing on a TV program with Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., said Eisenhower overestimated tax yields.

"The revenues just aren't there," he said. "A too rosy picture has been painted."

House Approves Social Security For Lawmakers

AUSTIN (UPI) — For the second time, House members yesterday approved a measure to give lawmakers social security benefits and the bill's strongest opponent urged members to vote for its passage.

Rep. Ray Bartam of New Braunfels, who fought the Senate approved bill when it was first passed last week, urged members to vote for it yesterday so that a two-thirds majority vote could be recorded to put the bill into immediate effect.

The bill today was approved, 123-23, and sent to the governor.

The bill stipulates that lawmakers are state employees and entitles them to federal social security benefits. The state will contribute some $20,000 a year in withholding payments for legislators.

"Well, how can I get to understand you, if you only take me out once every three weeks?"

Man And His Dog Go Fishing, But They Get Caught

DALLAS (UPI) — William J. Whitehead and his shepherd dog, Count, got caught on the same fishhook Sunday night.

It happened like this: Whitehead had a trot line, with big fishhooks on it, in his garage and Count chewed the trot line. A hook got caught in Count's mouth. Whitehead cut the line on the hook and while trying to work the hook loose rammed it into his finger without freeing Count.

A policeman came, took a look and called the fire department's rescue squad. Thirty minutes after Whitehead got caught, a member of the rescue squad snipped off the shank end of the hook.

He was thus able to free Count's mouth of the hook and Whitehead's finger. But the hook was still in Whitehead's finger. A surgeon at Methodist Hospital cut it out.

Paronto will serve as an agent in the Pampa area for the company.

Special Income Tax Rules For Sale Of Homes

The sale of a personal residence is subject to special federal income tax return rules, Wiley E. Davis, administrative officer, Internal Revenue Service, Pampa, reminded taxpayers today.

The general rule, Davis explained, is that any profit from the sale of your home, or any other personally owned item of property such as an automobile, furniture, securities or real estate is subject to tax.

On the other hand, federal tax law does not permit a deduction for the loss from the sale of a home or other personal asset which was not held for the purpose of producing income.

The Internal Revenue Service representative added: "There is, however, a special rule which allows you to defer paying a tax if you sell your residence at a gain and, within either one year after or one year before the sale, you buy and occupy another residence costing as much or more than the sales proceeds of your old residence."

"The same rule applies, if instead of buying, you begin construction of a new home within one year before and one year after the sale of the old residence and occupy it within 18 months after the sale."

"If the sales proceeds of your old residence exceed the cost of your new residence, the gain on the sale is taxable to the extent of the excess. For example, if you paid $10,000 for your old residence, sold it for $15,000, and invested only $13,000 in a new one, you would pay tax on a gain of $2,000 ($15,000 minus $13,000)."

"The sales proceeds are computed by deducting any sales commissions and any expense of redecorating and fixing-up the property for sale. The work of redecorating and fixing-up must be performed within the 90-day period before the house is sold, and must be paid for within 30 days after the date of the sale."

Taxpayers with questions on this subject may get Document No. 5107, Selling Your Home, by contacting the Internal Revenue Service office.

Hodges Seeks Hike In U. S. Production

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges has challenged labor and management to increase productivity to help U.S. industry compete with more efficient foreign businesses.

Hodges said some free world nations—namely Japan and West Germany—were "running rings" around the United States in modern production methods in some fields.

As a result, he said Sunday night on the television "Meet the Press" show, U.S. firms already have been priced out of the export markets for such items as soft goods and electronics components.

To reverse this, he said, is "going to challenge labor for cutting out featherbedding and restrictive practices of other kinds, and doing a better job of productivity."

Hodges said he had this advice for labor: "You have some leaders and you have some people who are simply trying to get all they can for themselves and their own groups, without any regard for the good of the country."

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The city council Monday turned down a proposal to license horses when it was pointed out that it would cost $7,500 to collect a $5 tax on each of the city's 1,100 horses.

matter of FACT

Ironically, it was on April Fool's day of 1861 that William H. Seward suggested he relieve the "green" President Abraham Lincoln of his duties. Seward was secretary of state in the Lincoln administration and fancied himself a more qualified leader than the strapping Illinoisan. So he wrote a memo offering to take over the real operation of the government; with Lincoln as figurehead. But Lincoln refused to become a puppet.

Operation Foulup' Opens

By ARTHUR MAYHEW
Daily News Sports Editor

GER — Pampa, riding the tide of a two-game winning streak, launches Phase One of "Operation Foulup" at 8 p.m. tonight with Lubbock Monterey in an important District 3-4A basketball game.

The military objective is to demolish, no easy task—especially the Dogs' own court—and late Coach Tex Hanna's hoop from the conference race. Bulldogs are 7-3, one game behind Amarillo Palo Duro (8-2), a loss would remove one contender from Palo Duro's hair. Other games tonight, Monterey (7-3) tries to stay in the running when it goes to Tascosa (4-6), Palo Duro hosts Plainview (3-7) and Amarillo (6-4), all but out of the title picture, goes to Lubbock (2-8).

Should Pampa (3-7) upset Borger tonight and the other favorites win, only Monterey will remain Wednesday morning as the chief threat to Palo Duro and the Harvesters will attempt to shoot down Monterey Friday in "Foulup" Phase Two.

Borger has defeated Pampa three straight times over the past two years, a modern record, and will be going for its fourth in a row over the Harvesters tonight. In their first meeting this season, the Bulldogs eked out a narrow 58-55 victory, running up their winning margin in the last three minutes of play.

The Harvesters will take a late-rising young team into tomorrow night's fray where they will find themselves 10-point underdogs mainly because of Borger's home-court advantage.

Leading the invaders will be Randy Matson, the 6-5 sophomore who has lived up to all advance billing. The young giant is Pampa's leading scorer in district play with 129 points, a 12.9 per-game average.

Backing Matson up will be two other Harvesters with better than 12.0 averages in conference warfare, Allen Wise (12.5) and Pat Carter (12.1).

Pampa Coach Terry Culley probably will round out his starting quintet with Gordon Balch, 6-0 soph, and either Bill Neslage, 5-11 senior, or Ronnie Chase, 5-7 soph. Chase scored six points in the 55-53 win over Lubbock last Friday, four of them coming in the catchup fourth period and fed Matson a perfect pass to enable him to score the winning goal.

Hanna will seek the "must" victory with Ronnell Shockley, 6-5 senior, and Joe Castleberry, 6-3 junior, at the double post; Jeff Levine, 5-10 senior, Vernon Welch,

6-0 senior and either Gail Simpson, 5-11 junior or Warren Bell, 5-10 senior, on the outside.

Welch is the Dogs' high scorer in district play with 128 points, although Bell came off the bench Friday night to score 12 points and pace Borger's 56-55 win over Amarillo.

Pampa's Shockers (16-7) hope to regain their winning ways in the preliminary game against Borger's

Bullpups. The Shockers fell to Lubbock's Cowhands, the only district team to defeat them twice, 54-44, Friday night while Borger was defeating Amarillo's Yannigans, 100-78.

Coach Dean Evans probably will start Darrell Doss, C. E. Cantrell, Larkin Miller, Keith Swanson and Bob Neslage. Jim Stephenson, a former Shocker star, is the key man in the Bullpups' attack.

Light Heavy Bout

Oldtimer Seeks Comeback Win

AMI BEACH, (UPI) — Harold Johnson, an aging pro with jambed dreams, meets Jesse Bowdry, a youngster in the first of success, tonight for the Panhandle Boxing Association's version of the world light heavyweight championship.

Amateurs have set the 32-year-old Johnson, of Philadelphia, a 3-1 favorite in the scheduled 15-round bout at Convention Center at 10 p.m.

Motorer Chris Dundee has presided over a near-sellout crowd of 8,000 and an estimated gate of $60,000. There will be radio or television coverage.

For Johnson, who has known heartbreak in a boxing career that began in 1946, a victory over Bowdry, 23, would take away the sting of frustration surrounding his last try to capture the 175-pound title.

In 1954 Johnson challenged patriarchal Archie Moore for the crown. Johnson was leading on points through 13 rounds but Moore knocked him down in the 14th and the bout was stopped.

Johnson has beaten Moore but once in five meetings, and had the opportunity for the title now because the NBA lifted Moore's championship last year for failure to defend and matched Johnson and Bowdry in an elimination contest.

Johnson, a long-armed counter-puncher with terrific power in either hand, has won 63 fights and lost eight in 71 outings. His ring experience is far greater than Bowdry's, who was only eight years old when Johnson began fighting.

The round-faced slugger from St. Louis has fought 34 times since turning pro in 1955, kayoing 23 victims and losing eight. But a reluctance to train forced manager Eddie Yawitz to farm out Bowdry to a meat packer and last year refused to line up bouts for him.

Bowdry returned, contrite, and Yawitz hired fistic immortal Henry Armstrong as trainer. Armstrong changed Bowdry's mental attitude and taught him his two-fisted, close-in attack. Bowdry used it in the fight that got him the title shot, an upset decision over speedy Willie Pastrano here Dec. 27.

Pat Olivieri, Johnson's manager, thinks the odds favoring his fighter are not wide enough.

"It ought to be 5-1, or more," said Olivieri, a wealthy Philadelphia restaurateur who takes nothing from Johnson's purses.

"Harold will knock him out in three rounds."

Each fighter has an added incentive to win. Miami Beach cafe owner Sam Sterling and others have offered a $250,000 guarantee for a bout here between tonight's winner and Moore.

Baseballers Sign With Pleasure, Pang

Friend, Howard Agree To Raises, Contracts

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

There are a hundred different ways to sign a major league baseball contract.

You can sign it with pleasure, like Bob Friend, Frank Howard and Dick Williams did Monday because they all received a boost in pay.

You can also sign it with a pang, as Herb Score, Don Blasingame and Ronnie Kline did because each suffered through a poor season and won't get rich this year.

Or you can sign and get the thrill of a lifetime, as rookie pitchers Gerald Heintz and Roland Sheldon of the New York Yankees undoubtedly did because they were affixing their signatures to the first major league contracts of their careers.

Friend, obviously happy over his salary increase, said it took him "only 10 minutes" to come to terms with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The 36-year-old Friend compiled an 18-12 record last season and regained the cut he was forced to accept a year ago after losing 19 games in 1959. He was the 17th member of the Pirates to agree to terms.

Howard received a $6,000 raise from the Los Angeles Dodgers which will bring his salary to an estimated $14,000 this year. The six-foot, seven-inch outfielder earned the boost with 23 homers and 77 runs batted in that succeeded in winning him the National League's rookie-of-the-year award.

Williams also got more money than last year from the Kansas City Athletics, whom he led in batting with .288, including 82 runs batted in, 31 doubles and 12 homers. Williams played first base, second base and the outfield last season.

On the other side of the fence, Score couldn't expect any increase from the Chicago White Sox for whom he posted a 3-10 record last season after being ob-

Bonnies, Duke Win To Advance Upward

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — St. Bonaventure and Duke moved into the No. 2 and No. 3 spots behind top-ranked Ohio State today in the United Press International college basketball ratings and Cincinnati joined the top 10 group.

For the first time in five weeks, Ohio State was not a unanimous choice for the No. 1 rating. One of the 36 coaches who comprise the UPI Rating Board switched his first-place vote to St. Bonaventure and picked the Buckeyes second.

Hot-Firing Pair Crack 100-Circle

By GARY KALE
United Press International

Ohio State and St. Bonaventure, the top two collegiate basketball powerhouses, may have to utilize next month's NCAA tournament to decide which is the best in the nation.

Both teams prepared for a possible tourney showdown by going over the century mark Monday night. The No. 1 Buckeyes ripping Indiana, 100-65, and the second-ranked Bonnies gaining a 104-87 decision over Tennessee A&I, the country's small college basketball leader.

The measure of difference between Ohio State and St. Bonaventure so far is the two-point victory the Buckeyes hold over the upstate New Yorkers this season.

The Ohioans, trying to shake the relentless Bonnies in the national rankings, turned in their 22nd consecutive victory, longest winning streak in basketball circles to date.

Indiana felt the brunt of an Ohio State attack that was revenge for the last loss suffered by the Buckeyes a year ago. And the triumph was reaped in a concerted team effort as Jerry Lucas scored 34 points, Larry Siegfried netted 27 and John Havlicek poured in 22.

Walt Bellamy, Lucas' Olympic teammate, led the Hoosiers with 19 points as they became the seventh straight Big-Ten victim for the unbeaten Bucks.

St. Bonaventure, which never seems to lose at home, won its 17th game in 18 outings this season over a Tennessee A&I squad that stepped out of its class once too often.

Sophomore Fred Crawford tallied 36 points and Tom Stith collected 33 as the Bonnies whisked to an 18-4 lead and stretched the margin to 54-39 at halftime.

Rough Slate Faces Pampa

The hour of decision comes this week for Coach Roy Kieval and his Pampa Junior High Reapers as they face two district foes, one of them the Panhandle Junior High School conference co-leader, Borger Houston.

Pampa, 12-2 for the year and 7-1 in district, plays Perryton today and then meets Borger Houston Thursday in a game that should decide the district championship.

The Reapers hopes were temporarily derailed last Tuesday when Lee of Pampa downed them, 35-31, but the Reapers bounced back with a victory over Dumas on Thursday.

Lee likes to Dumas today in a non-conference affair, then meets Perryton here on Thursday.

Raiders, Hoos Battle Tonight

By United Press International

Those rampaging Red Raiders from Texas Tech, riding the crest of the Southwest Conference, invade Arkansas tonight for a run-in with the Razorbacks in a game that could go a long way in picking this year's champion.

But it's only one of three crucial games among the full slate on tap for conference clubs tonight.

The Texas Longhorns, on top of the heap with the Raiders until a weekend meeting with unpredictable Rice, moves to Dallas against Southern Methodist, Texas A&M plays host to Rice, and the Baylor Bears play Texas Christian at home in Waco in a bid to win their first league victory and to pull the Horned Frogs down along side them in the cellar.

Baylor and TCU are out of the title picture. But for the other six teams, a slip could be fatal.

Racing Slate Snow Clouded

By United Press International

With Bowie still closed by the recent snowstorm and Santa Anita and Sunshine Park dark, Monday's slim racing calendar was limited to action at Hialeah and Fair Grounds.

Fred W. Hooper's Fading Star, leading all the way, won the featured $5,000 Wisteria Purse at Hialeah by three-quarters of a length over Appreciation.

The victory was the first of the year for Fading Star, ridden by Herberto Hinojosa over the six furlongs.

As the odds-on choice, Fading Star quickly stepped to a two-length lead. Appreciation cut the margin in half at the top of the stretch, but couldn't complete the wire dash rally as Fading Star responded well to Hinojosa's urging and outlasted her challenger at the finish.

Fading Star completed the course in 1:11 2-5 and paid $3.40.

Baylor Sparks Laker Triumph

By United Press International

The folks who "knew him when" turned out Monday night to see Elgin Baylor and the Los Angeles Laker star didn't disappoint them one bit.

Baylor turned in 35 points, took 15 rebounds and was credited with seven assists in leading the Lakers to a 110-101 triumph over the Cincinnati Royals at College Park, Md. Baylor, who played college ball at Seattle University, starred at Spingarn High School in nearby Washington, D.C., as a youth.

Oldsters Can Produce

The social scientists have been telling us for a long time that ours is an aging population. That even as our total numbers boom, upward the proportion of elderly people among them is rising more sharply.

As has been well and often noted, this trend has many important effects on current and future American life, not the least being its impact on the make-up of the country's work force.

With the gradual coming of age of the persons born in the great baby boom of World War II and its aftermath, the expectation is there will be a veritable flood of job demands.

Young people entering the labor market want not only jobs, but opportunities for advancement. For the most talented, the prospect of going all the way to the top must be held out. Without that, many companies and other enterprises could not hope to attract the needed people of ability.

All kinds of enterprises build vast investments, in the broad sense of that term, in the individuals who comprise the work force. As they advance through life, many become virtual storehouses of skill and knowledge.

To cast them aside, to end their working days automatically and arbitrarily, is to create great waste both economically and spiritually.

For all its growing numbers, this nation is not so heavily endowed for the colossal struggle with communism that it can afford to toss away its investment in trained, able people.

We should be trying to do everything imaginable to enlarge, not diminish our reservoir of skills and knowledge. We may need every drop in the "great pool."

In 1961 we need business and government policies which conserve and enrich the national stockpile of talent. To waste it could be fatal to freedom.

We Welcome Adversaries

Every now and again we receive a letter which indicates that our policy in respect to keeping the columns of the News open for discussion isn't always understood.

Now and again someone will write to our Clearing House column, in which they indicate they are in disagreement on some point we have tried to make, but are simply saying it to us as they KNOW we wouldn't dare to run their observations since they are hostile to us.

How wrong they are! This is the very kind of letter of which we are always in search. And you can be very sure that we will publish a letter which is locally produced and out of harmony with our views.

Of course, we may not publish libel or slander and we try to keep comments, both pro and con, in good taste. But we have a great hope that those who differ from our point of view will write in and let us know where they differ and why. Letters of this sort are always welcome.

If there is a letter which we might be inclined not to publish, it would be a letter which simply praised us, "battered us" as it were, because the writer found himself fully in accord with something we had said.

We have run occasional letters of this sort but we are not overly fond of them. Again, however, we do appreciate a letter which is in agreement with us if it isn't something that gushes praise but has some valid points in it. In other words, we favor a letter which says something. If it agrees with us and says why, we will always publish it. If it disagrees with us, we will always publish it even if it may not be too clear on its reason or disagreement.

Why are we so willing to hear the other side of the argument? We believe, primarily, that our point of view is correct. This may shock some who have become accustomed to the idea that no one should ever assert with positive men that he is correct. We think we are correct. We spend a great deal of time and effort, reading, studying, mulling over issues, and reaching conclusions.

We know some editorial writers who seem to believe there is virtue in never reaching a conclusion. We disagree with them. The purpose of reading and studying is to come out with something solid in mind. To simply read and read and to become less and less convinced of anything is, we believe, self-defeating.

To repeat: we believe in what we write and we say so. But this is why we hope those who differ with us will believe enough in their point of view to want to say so, too. We want to be in a position to defend our point of view. But we wish to make it possible for our intellectual opponents to defend their point of view, also. We don't intend to shut them off without a chance to say what they believe and to tell us why they believe it.

This is why we always welcome letters which have something to say but which are antagonistic to something we have said. We want these people to speak freely and state the case as they believe it to be.

But there is a second reason. It is possible that our conclusions are in error. Naturally, as we stated above, we don't think so. Indeed, would we not be reprehensible if we published opinions in which we ourselves didn't believe?

So, we state our case with the full conviction we have reached in our studies. And then we hold the door open, not only to give our opponent a chance, but to give ourselves a chance if we are wrong.

In other words, we want to be correct. We believe in our conclusions as stated. But we believe far more in the vast nature of truth and hold that in spite of what we now believe to be true, there are many more things to be known.

Sometimes a critic can teach us where we are wrong. And this is terribly important to us, because we do not want to be wrong.

So, on both these grounds we always welcome letters from readers who differ with our point of view. We want such a reader to defend his viewpoint. And we wish to be shown that we are wrong if we are.

Naturally, we do not take a position lightly and we do not surrender it lightly. We have good reasons for every statement we make. But we learn most from those who differ with us. And, of course, we keep in mind that it is always possible that those who differ with us may also learn.

JOB-MAKING & GROWTH CLIMATE (Economic Intelligence U.S. Chamber)

Man seems to "need" problems; if he has none he will invent some or stumble into, or fumble for them. Having found a problem or two to capture his interest he starts wrestling for "solutions."

An alleged deficiency in our rate of economic growth gets much attention, but objective scholars are not convinced that it really is a problem. Possibly we are getting the rate of growth which we want. Similarly pockets of unemployment (depressed areas) have received much attention.

Long before we started talking about "growth" in current terms as a problem and about depressed areas, we enjoyed much growth and much change. Formerly the capital and labor in depressed areas migrated to greener pastures—usually without a "national plan" or an assist from government. This helped both the migrants and our national rate of economic growth.

But now when a problem gets a wide discussion, the easiest thing to think of is a "government plan" (with funds, of course). The basic causes of the difficulty are rarely diagnosed. The roadblocks are not removed because it is so much

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — Some scientific Johnny has come out with his personal gift to horse players in the form of a simple computer designed to sell for somewhere between $14.95 and under $5 (the more expensive one already is on the market) and give the horse players accurate advance information as to what horses positively will win where. I don't believe a word of it.

I am not knocking the science man's laboratory over when I say I don't believe a word of it. I am simply saying that horses, particularly sensitive horses, in the racing breed, are unpredictable, as are unpredictable as stage stars or movie stars and twice as subject to fits and moods.

You can have the form on a given horse for eight races past, have him all charted up nice and neat and the beetle will wake up that day of the ninth race as sore as a bull at his trainer, his jockey, his stable boy and the world and say to himself: "I won't try today. I just won't try. Let's see how they like that."

The inventor of the gadget says you slip the form figures into the machine and it will grind away in its tubes and transistors for a few seconds and come up with the word that Joe Goniff, in the seventh at Hialeah, will positively or not positively win. You can't be that accurate with horse-flesh, as a large, fearful group of bitter horseplayers can testify.

You can't even be that accurate with an electronic computer. While Sands, Cape Canaveral and Pennsylvania Ave. are not as mentioned Redstone Arsenal in Alabama, still goggle at they remember the scientists with a sense of humor who thrust this type sentence into a $20,000,000 super-computer just to see what would happen: "The spirit is willing but the flesh is weak."

The lights went on and winked, the tapes ran, the innards of the machine growled and this came out: "The whiskey was good but the meat was lousy."

Having worked (in the drama or high dome departments) on a racing paper for 28 years, I am in a position to know that neither man, beast nor $14.95 computer can lay it on the line positively and in any horse race anywhere at any time. If man could do it, my colleagues would be rich, which they aren't. If beast could do it, man still would be rich because he'd follow what the beast indicated. If a computer can do it, the $20,000,000 jobs would have been making the slide rule boys rich long ere now.

Actually, I have known a few mental whizzes in my time who were horseplayers. They were very good horseplayers, in that at the end of the year they hadn't been bruised much and at the end of the year the bank didn't foreclose on their houses. About four years ago, trying to prove to a passionate horseplayer I knew that no matter how expert he was he'd have to wind up not much better than even and probably a lot behind, I bought him a book in which day by day, carefully, honestly and accurately we entered every bet he made, the amount of it and the result in plus or minus cash. We started on Jan. 1, this being the kind of horseplayer who bet them wherever they were running, and on Dec. 31 we closed the book. He found he had bet exactly $2,000 and drew through the year and was out exactly $5.40. He had had a year of fun and magic and action for a total loss of only $5.40 — but it was a loss and he was truly an expert handicapper.

"I telephoned him to describe this new machine to him just to see what would happen. I described it, detailed its functions and said: "What do you think, Joe?"

"I think what I always have thought," he said. "I think that scientists are daffy. I also think that man wasn't made to beat the horses. He was made only to have fun, trying to beat them. I wouldn't want a sure-thing machine, even if it worked. All the chance and, therefore, the fun would go out of it."

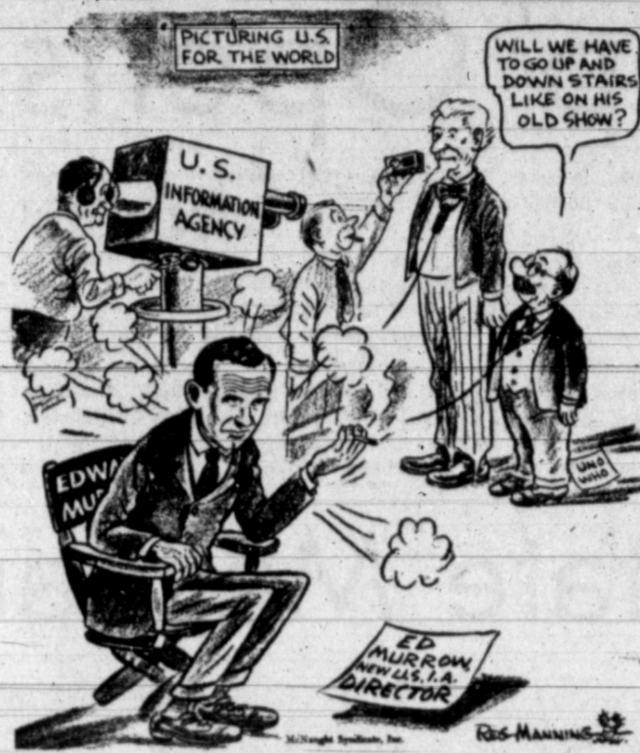

"But look how rich you could be," I insisted.

"Who needs it?" he sneered. "Can you let me have five bucks until Tuesday?"

In the political campaign of 1960 these issues were widely discussed; a major difference was that one side emphasized massive government intervention in the problems of growth and depressed areas, and the other side saw an essential but much more modest role for government along with heavier responsibility for individual and local effort. But nearly three years ago, after extensive hearings and studies the Subcommittee on fiscal policy of the Joint Economic Committee reported that it had "found no necessary relationship between the amount of federal expenditures and the rate of economic growth over the long run." (Jan. 23, 1958).

This does not mean that government is of no consequence. Government has a key role to play both in growth and employment, but not a major role.

People To People Program

WASHINGTON — The Senate Anti-Trust Investigating Committee, which has made numerous headlines probing high drug prices, fixed prize fights and other activities, is split wide open over a staff report that is highly critical of state regulation of insurance companies.

The study, based on two years of extensive inquiries under the direction of Senator Estes Kefauver (D. Tenn.), chairman, flatly charges that many states are "lax in their regulation of insurance companies, especially in the matter of rates," and forcefully calls for a "drastic review of state laws and regulations in order to effect better controls over insurance company operations."

With these general findings, the report then recommends the following major proposals to state officials: —Laws to provide more competition in insurance rates. —Elimination of statutes and regulations that obstruct the cutting of insurance rates by "independent companies."

—Removal of requirements that compel insurance companies to be members of private rate bureaus. Such membership should be solely voluntary. —Imposition of tighter controls over insurance trade associations and their operations.

While vigorously urging these far-reaching state measures, the study strongly disapproves of federal regulation of the insurance industry. However, it does warn that the states do not effectively perform that function.

The report's opposition to federal control is the only point on which the probers are agreed. They are split 5 to 3 over publication of the explosive study.

Siding with Kefauver are Senators John Cartoll (D. Colo.) and Philip Hart (D. Mich.).

Strongly opposing them in the backstage wrangle over releasing the report as an official committee document are three Republicans and two Democrats — Senators Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.) Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), Roman Hruska (R., Neb.), Thomas Dodd (D., Conn.) and William Blakely (D., Tex.).

The last two are new members on the committee Dodd's state, Connecticut, is known as the "insurance capital of the U.S." Blakely, a wealthy oilman, has been an official of insurance companies.

Outcome of this clash is conjectural. Insiders are saying Kefauver has offered to "moderate" certain drastic portions of the study in an effort to get it published. If that fails, he is credited, with planning to release it as a minority report.

The Tennessee investigator is also preparing to introduce a bill for a "model system" of insurance regulation for the District of Columbia. This measure would put into effect the various recommendations of the report, stressing particularly those affecting insurance rates.

MORE PROBES — A new series of hearings on drug prices will be conducted by the Kefauver Committee. In a memorandum to other Committee members, the Tennessee states, "Information in our files reveals the existence of certain financial activities and interconnections of leading drug firms which are properly the subject for thorough scrutiny."

Senator Wayne Morse (D., Ore.) has asked the Committee to "investigate merger activity and the trend of concentration in the Douglas fir industry." A report on this is being prepared by Dr. Walter Mead, head of the University of California at Santa Barbara, for the U.S. Forestry Service. Morse has told by Kefauver he will ask President Kennedy to turn over this report to the committee "as a basis for determining the desirability of a full investigation."

Numerous complaints have been made to the committee by small steel fabricators charging "monopolistic profiteering" in nickel. Senator Kefauver, in a report to committee members, states these claims are based on "profiteering through speculations involving the sale of nickel to the government for stockpiling purposes, then purchases from this stockpile are resold to small producers of stainless and alloy steel at artificially enhanced prices."

PARIS BOUND — Lieutenant General James Gavin (ret.), brilliant World War II paratrooper battle commander and former Army research chief, will be named Ambassador to France. President Kennedy has persuaded Gavin to accept this major diplomatic post, largely because he is a close friend of President DeGaulle. Kennedy wanted to appoint Gavin Secretary of the Army, but he declined.

Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), new chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, has decided that it will take too much of his time and energy to continue as head of the House Democratic Study Group, consisting of more than 100 liberals from all parts of the country. Holifield was selected to head them last fall when Representative Lee Metcalf (D., Mont.) was elected to the Senate. But Holifield now finds he has his hands full running the Joint Atomic Committee. Leading possibility as Holifield's successor as chairman of the Study Group is Representative John Blatnik (D., Minn.).

Hankering

ROME — In a mild way, Topsy has turned Rome topsy-turvy. Topsy is the English cat—whose drawings are now on exhibit in London and for one of which a Canadian dealer has offered a thousand dollars.

Rome newspapers have given Topsy's talent front page play and the result has been a marked increase in the interest of Rome's cats, thousands of which live in and about ancient ruins.

The regular patrons of the cats — those who go every day to feed them scraps and watch them frolic and fight amidst the tumbled temples — have now been joined by citizens with a mercenary purpose.

These newcomers are on the look-out for a cat with artistic talent. They believe that what an English cat can do an Italian one can do, especially a cat whose ancestry goes back to the Caesars, and which has been surrounded by beauty and culture all its life.

There was an unusually large crowd at the Forum today, whose ruins are a favorite hang-out for hundreds of cats of all sizes, shapes, and colors. The center of attention was a large tom seated on a column of the Temple of Venus Genetrix. He was missing an ear and I heard one of the men who was trying to entice him within reach say: "He looks a great deal like Van Gogh in his self-portrait. I'd like to put a brush in his paws and see what he could do."

But the Van Gogh tom, like all the older cats, would not come within grabbing distance. Kittens could be caught, but no one seemed to want them. The people were out for mature, adult artists, and not beginners. Kittens were too big a risk. After months of feeding and pampering, they might well prove to be more interested in mousing than in palette and brush.

Topsy, in case you missed reading about her, works with a crayon on a string. She manipulates it with her paws. Her studio is a sunny back room in the home of her owner, a Dr. George Cooper, himself an amateur painter.

Topsy's acknowledged masterpiece to date is a delicate but full of life sketch of a man on horseback. It was this picture that drew the thousand-dollar offer from a Montreal dealer.

Dr. Cooper is said to have tried to interest Topsy in oils by placing an opened can of sardines in front of her, and a sheet of paper with in paw reach. But so far Topsy has done nothing but eat the sardines and then return to her crayon. Oil — olive oil, anyway — either doesn't interest her or she feels it a bit beyond her.

Mary and I have been feeding cats since we have been in Rome. There is a large colony of them in the Villa Sciarri only a block from our apartment. They are as wild as mountain bobcats, and I suspect that if one knew how to detect them one could latch onto a really good primitive painter.

But would it be worth it? An artist cat around the house could be a lot of trouble, what with temperament, bringing in Bohemian friends for all-night catnip parties, and yawling when inspiration struck.

Still, a man could put up with a lot from a cat capable of knocking off a thousand-buck painting between naps.

Everybody's Money

By MERYL STANLEY RUYEKSER

The marooned commuters Westchester County and New York City are now in Connecticut counties were granted Secretary of Labor Arthur Berg, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, the federal mediation service ending the work stoppage on major railroads entering New York City.

With heavy snow on the ground and icy roads, the relief was come. But it should be recognized the agreement was really onerous, with the major control referred to a federal five-man board.

The issue, which caused the men's strike, was the dispute the proposal to reduce crews five to three. In order to pressure on railroads which of tugs, pickets were thrown at Grand Central Station, and rail terminals.

The principle involved in this conflict has deep economic roots. In the face of new competition on the ground, on water in the air, the railroads have since moved out of their monopolistic status in transportation.

Many of the work rules embedded into management contracts in an earlier era during World War I when railroads were in a stronger position. These antiquated work rules on top of general subsequent wage rates generally, impose railroads' costs, which narrow their profit margin and in extreme cases threatened corporate survival.

In management lingo, the work rules are characterized "featherbedding," which incite the allegation of being paid work either not performed or necessary.

In the circumstances, rail management has to go continuous for the Interstate Commerce Commission and the state regulatory bodies to ask for through chronic increases freight rates and passenger fares. To a degree, this has created vicious cycle, tending to pressure some of the railroad services of the market, and to vitiate economies of big volume.

It is strange that in these years no stockholder has brought a suit in the courts to challenge the right of paid executives to pair the assets of a corporation through assenting to economic waste and "feather bedding."

In California some years ago Southern Pacific spearheaded campaign in a public referendum to deal with alleged "featherbedding" — the railroad efforts — successful, and in my opinion, the basis of the accomplishment was the skill in which the rail brought to the attention of ordinary citizens that "featherbedding" is subsidized by him in freight charges and passenger fares than would otherwise be necessary.

With the current effort in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut to salvage the commuter roads, there is talk of hidden subsidies through tax relief and preferential treatment.

Before acting on such desperate remedies, taxpayers and citizens have a right to know whether railroad cost sheet has been dentally managed.

The same issue of work was raised a year ago in the strike. Finally, with the intention of former Vice President on, the strike was "settled" on basis of referring the broad question of revision of work rules presidential fact-finding committee, and the matter apparently still hanging fire.

Meanwhile, the steel industry has been dragging at around 10 per cent of capacity.

As new forms of competition arise, business survival depends continuous improvement of operating methods and techniques.

In steel, foreign competition become keener since, under Marshall Plan and other schemes, we helped former belligerent nations to rebuild their industrial facilities along advanced lines. Accordingly, for the first time, their technology is as efficient as our own, if not more.

This deprives the United States companies of the earlier unassailable ability to transmit high wage rates into low unit cost. The foreign competitors have created our ingenuity in cost-reducing techniques. In addition, in Europe the six-nation common market and the outer seven giving a counterpart to the African advantage of having a big summing market.

In the light of competitive changes, industrial management overseas has been reviewing operations with an idea of reducing cost without impairing American wage and living standards.
