By WILLIAM ANDERSON
 EOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (I) — The slaying of Patrice Lumumba took on an air of maroon today and United Nations troops alerted their troops throughout the Congo against the possibility of mass reprisals by wing supporters.

The slaying, announced Monday by the Katanga Province capital Elisabethville, brought to a boil a simmering crisis the United Nations has been sitting on since shortly after the Congo declared independence from Belgium eight and a half months ago.

Europeans whispered fearfully a new "Night of the Long Knives" — a phrase that cropped during the Hitler purges of the 1930s and at the start of the Algerian war six years ago.

Belgian officials were particularly worried about eight Belgian businessmen being held in Stanleyville, capital of Orientale Province, where former Lumumba ally Antoine Gizenga and other wingers have set up a revolutionary movement against the Congo government.

Immediately after independence, Africans went on a rampage, attacking white men and raping women. Thousands of Europeans fled.

Opponents of the goateed, bespectacled Lumumba blamed his inflammatory speeches both before and after independence for stirring up the trouble.

Now his supporters were expected to use his death as a rallying cry to try to oust the pro-Western central government of President Joseph Kasavubu.

The Congo is broke, hungry and disorganized. Only the presence of the U.N. force has kept it from disintegrating and Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld has warned he may have to pull the troops out if a civil war erupts.

This would create a vacuum that would suck in military aid from East and West and possibly turn the Congo from a cold-war center to an East-West hot war.

The Katanga provincial government of President Moïse Tshombe, which announced that Lumumba and two aides had been "massacred" by villagers following their jailbreak, continued to push its offensive against Baluba tribesmen in the north.

A government spokesman said Katangese security forces had seized the town of Bukama, north of Luena, and were driving in the direction of Kabondodianda, another town on the Elisabethville-Kamina railway line.

The spokesman said 300 Balubas had surrendered and the others were fleeing.

Moscow Police, Students Clash As Killings Demonstration Flares

MOSCOW (UPI)— Hundreds of Russian, African and Asian students stormed the Belgian embassy and clashed with Soviet police today in a violent demonstration against the slaying of Patrice Lumumba in the Congo.

Two separate demonstrations, sent waves of students surging against a police cordon thrown around the locked and shuttered embassy.

It was the first demonstration against a foreign embassy in Moscow since the 1958 protests against the landing of U. S. troops in Lebanon.

It came after Moscow radio called Lumumba's death "one of the base crimes of the 20th century" and the Communist newspaper Pravda headlined "Punish the Assassins."

More than 1,000 African and Asian students from the Friendship University started the demonstration by marching on the embassy after a meeting protesting the death of Lumumba and his two colleagues.

Western and Soviet newsmen, Soviet police and the Belgian embassy itself had been tipped in advance. Newsmen were on hand when it started.

Several Africans charged police lines to the door. A glass door panel and several windows were broken before police dragged them back. After milling around in the street for an hour they gradually dispersed.

But less than half an hour later 500 young Russians marched again on the embassy carrying placards proclaiming "Shame on the imperialists" and shouting "We want justice in the Congo."

Uniformed police and detectives lined up shoulder to shoulder on the embassy steps and pushed them back. But the young Russians refused to disperse.

WELL, WILL YA? Smug looking Danny Flood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flood, 446 Hill St., put the ancient question "Will You be My Valentine?" to pert Becky Reitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reitz, 1120 Terrace, and from the looks on their faces Danny was successful. The youngsters are both first grade pupils at Sam Houston Elementary School. (Daily News Photo)

Lent Is Little Understood

By LOUIS CASSELS
 United Press International
 (AP) Wednesday (Feb. 15) marks the beginning of one of the least-understood seasons of the Christian calendar.

Lent is called Lent, a name derived from an old Anglo-Saxon word for long time.

Lent is observed by all liturgical churches, including the Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Episcopal and Eastern Orthodox communions. These churches follow an ancient calendar of worship which divides the year into six great seasons — Advent, Christmas, Epiphany, Lent, Easter and Trinity.

The idea is that this calendar provides an annual rhythm for worship, so that each major aspect of Christian faith has its own appointed season for special emphasis.

Many Protestant bodies which formerly ignored the liturgical calendar have begun in recent years to see values in it. One result of so-called liturgical revival is that Lent is now being observed by a number of Presbyterian, Methodist and other Protestant churches.

The date of Lent varies from year to year, because it is tied to the date of Easter. Specifically, it is a period of 40 week days six Sundays preceding Easter. A period was fixed by Pope Sixtus II in 487 A.D., but his decision (See Lent Page 3)

New Public, Private Power Feud Looming

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall has announced resumption of a five-point basic electric power program that may fan new feuds between private and public power interests.

Udall, in a statement to department employees, said Monday the policy declarations of President Kennedy and Congress would be followed, but the foundation would be these five basic goals outlined under the Truman administration in 1946:

1. Federal dams shall, where feasible, include facilities for generating electrical power.
2. Preference in power sales shall be given to public agencies and cooperatives.
3. Power disposal shall be for the particular benefit of domestic and rural consumers.
4. Power shall be sold at the lowest possible rates consistent with sound business principles.
5. Power disposal shall be such as to encourage widespread use and to prevent monopolization.

Udall said "an adequate supply of low-cost power for the homes, farms and industry sufficient to service a dynamic economy" was a matter of basic importance.

Groom School Head Resigns

GROOM (Sp) — Weldon G. Reno resigned as superintendent of Groom Schools at the regular meeting of the school board.

The resignation, effective July 1, 1961, was accepted by the board after it had first offered Reno a new contract by unanimous vote.

Reno served as superintendent of schools at Adrian before coming to Groom in June 1953 and has served as superintendent of the Groom schools for the past eight years.

The school board is accepting written applications for the position vacated by Reno.

Racing 'Terrifying Possibilities' Bill Due In New Soviet Satellite Solons

By PAT CONWAY
 AUSTIN (UPI)— Rep. V. E. (Red) Berry, who so far has beat all comers on his plan to return horse racing to Texas, goes up against his toughest opponent today—the Texas Legislature.

Berry's measure will get its first legislative test at 7:30 p.m. at a public hearing of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee.

The San Antonio lawmaker, who described himself as a "retired, not reformed" gambler, has authored an amendment that would permit Texas voters to decide whether the state should have pari-mutuel betting on the horses.

If adopted at the polls it would permit voters in nine Texas counties to hold local option elections to see if they want racing. The counties are Dallas, Tarrant, Harris, Galveston, Bexar, Midland, Hidalgo, Cameron and Webb.

Berry defeated opponents in both the Democratic primary and general election on his platform for racing.

A poll of the committee indicates a majority of the 21 members will give Berry's proposal a chance for floor action after a short period of subcommittee study.

The Senate State Affairs Committee Monday approved a bill by Sen. Robert Baker of Houston that would make the University of Houston a state supported school.

A similar bill by Rep. Criss Cole of Houston was sent to subcommittee by the House State Affairs Committee.

Both measures would turn the school's $22 million plant and 275-acre campus over to the state in exchange for state aid.

Both bills call for admitting Houston to the state system on Sept. 1.

WASHINGTON (PI) — Chairman Overton Brooks, D-La., of the House Space Committee said today there were "terrifying possibilities" in Russia's apparently successful attempt to send a satellite toward Venus.

Brooks pointed out that the Russian feat marked the first time a rocket had been fired from a space station in orbit around the earth.

"If they can aim this instrument-loaded satellite to Venus, Brooks asked, 'how long will it be before they can aim a bomb-loaded satellite toward earth?'"

Brooks, who has called for a "full discussion" of the Venus shot at a hearing Wednesday, said in an interview he had long agreed with the maxim that those who control space will control the earth.

Besides the possibility of future satellite bombs, Brooks saw the Soviet Union's Venus rocket as being a "major step" toward placing a manned station on the moon.

Space experts have felt for some time that using a space station in orbit around the earth as a launching pad might prove to be the easiest and most direct method of getting man to the moon.

Brooks' forebodings about the Russian achievement were echoed by two other members of the House Space Committee.

Rep. James G. Fulton, R-Pa., said the Russian achievement was "a very big step" toward getting a manned expedition on the moon's surface.

Cops Interrupt 'Girly' Show In Austin Club

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—It was a private party at the Club Petite this Valentine's day, and five little sweethearts were showing their stuff—all of it—to the "for male members only" audience.

Tassy Twist was on stage with only a pair of high-heeled slippers left to go when suddenly six vice squad officers quietly stood up in the midst of the audience and walked to the front. One of them announced:

"Gentlemen, keep your seats. We are taking the girls."

Tassy stopped twisting. Without a word she picked up the various parts of her costume, dropped about the stage.

"That's it girly, put on your clothes," one of the policemen said.

The detectives had stopped the show. But the patrons of this plush club (frequented by legislators and lobbyists) got their money's worth.

Programs Speedup Promised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sam Rayburn said today after a White House conference that the nation's economic situation is at its "most urgent since the great depression" of the early 1930s.

Rayburn's statement came after President Kennedy, the Cabinet and the Democratic congressional leaders held a general discussion of the administration's anti-recession proposals.

The speaker said Congress would "move ahead on these programs as fast as we can now that our committees are organized."

He said no new proposals were made at today's breakfast meeting which lasted less than an hour, but the situation was reviewed by Cabinet members, particularly Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg.

Rayburn said that a statement which Kennedy plans to make at a televised news conference Wednesday evening will "be along the lines" of what the administration has proposed as a recovery program, stressing "the urgency of it and so forth."

"I think it's the most urgent since the great depression... since the late '20's and early '30's," Rayburn said.

The breakfast conference came amid new indications that Senate and House Republicans would fight with every weapon to block Kennedy's "New Frontier" program.

Underlining the determined GOP opposition was the statement today by Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, that the President's "honeymoon" with Congress was just about over.

Brown, senior Republican on the powerful House Rules Committee, said members of Congress were "becoming disturbed" over some of Kennedy's appointments and spending proposals.

Senators See Hope Of Nuclear Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Key senators saw increased hopes today progress toward a nuclear test agreement as part of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's "honeymoon" with the Kennedy administration.

These lawmakers also came from a closed-door session with Llewellyn E. Thompson, U.S. ambassador to Moscow, with the reason that Khrushchev was anxious to reduce tensions—at least temporarily—to enable Russia to concentrate more on economic development.

Thompson and most members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were close-mouthed at details of the two-hour, 15-minute session late Monday.

Dr. Donaldson Slaps Medical Aid Proposals

Dr. Joe Donaldson addressed the Top O' Texas Association of Life Underwriters, Inc. at their regular monthly meeting yesterday in Poole's Steak House.

Socialized medicine for the aged was the theme of Dr. Donaldson's talk. He said the nation's elderly people always have been taken care of without a government welfare program.

In a recent survey conducted by the Texas State Medical Association, the speaker said, it was found that only one per cent of the old folks are behind on their medical bills.

"They feel," Dr. Donaldson said, "that socialized medicine is not the answer to the health problem of the aged. In England where they have socialized medicine there has not been a new hospital built in the last ten years."

Dr. Donaldson charged in his talk that William J. Cohen, who is secretary of Health and Welfare, appointed by President Kennedy, has been a member of three different Communist fronts.

"If most people would take time to check into this free medical program," Dr. Donaldson said, "they would realize that the people paying Social Security taxes are the ones paying for the cost of the program."

40-Foot Span Due On Tignor

Pampa's City Commission today accepted the recommendation of City Engineer Monroe Moore and authorized the construction of a 40-foot wide culvert as replacement for the Tignor St. bridge, taken out of use this week because of weakened supports.

The commission, at its regular meeting in City Hall, approved a motion to call for bids for work to be done on the span. It will include the installation of a corrugated iron pipe across the roadway and the construction of rip-rap headwalls around the ends of the pipe to prevent erosion of the road bed.

The engineer's estimate of the cost of the entire project indicated it would be roughly around $6,000.

The commission also awarded a bid for five 2-way radio units for (See Span Page 3)

Venus Shot's Radio Mum

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Russians kept their Venus rocket on radio silence today but crowded noisily themselves about their cosmic achievement.

As the interplanetary station sped along at 9,112 miles an hour on a journey that will take more than three months, Soviet scientists, journalists and politicians joined in triumphant praise of their communist system which spawned it.

Tass news agency cited it as proof of the superiority of Soviet technological education over that in the West.

"In 1959 the U.S.S.R. graduated 519 engineers per one million population and in 1960 the figure rose to 541," Tass said.

Is There Life After Death?

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK (NEA) — A chimpanzee might get to the moon tomorrow. Nuclear energy could end life on earth in the next 43 minutes. But despite these great strides forward, science is still blocked in what may be its most pressing study: does the human personality continue to function after death?

According to a new primer in the field, "The Challenge of Psychological Research," and interviews with its eminent compilers: Nearly a century of evidence from investigators of unimpeachable scientific reputation yields no conclusive proof — or disproof.

However, possible communication from deceased or disincarnate personalities under experimental conditions seems to warrant further study (especially now when each 43 minutes is so vital). More and more people of status in science and philosophy are turning their attention to this question of survival after death.

But paradoxically, the experts indicate, modern science itself may be partly responsible for the failure to get a solid foothold in the happy hunting ground.

In the first place, the era of the great mediums — those gifted sensitives used in classic-survival experiments — seems to be over. No new one has appeared in the past 35 years.

Why? According to Dr. Gardner Murphy, Research Director at the Menninger Foundation and one of the best-known names in psychological research today, this is an age of professional doubt. Possibly doubt inhibits the development of mediumship, which in turn creates more doubt.

Besides, we no longer live in a time of contemplation, says Mrs. Laura Dale, trained investigator and executive at the American Society for Psychological Research.

"Would we even recognize a genius like a medium if one appeared?" Mrs. Dale asks. "Would we recognize a Beethoven?" Regardless of the reason, without good mediums experimental communication with disincarnate personalities is difficult.

Ironically, the doubt that inhibits good mediumship may also be responsible for today's boom in phony mediums who claim a direct line to your disincarnate loved ones. It is so surprising, asks widely-respected philosopher Dr. Ruth Nanda Anshen, that these times breed confusion and the search for certainty and direction. In the end, the experts point out, we are left with now-yellowing transcripts of classic experiments in survival conducted by men like William James at Harvard and Sir Oliver Lodge in England.

Who can vouch for their methods? Who can say that they did not forget to include something vital? Still unanswered is the "thorn-in-the-flesh" question of what can be believed in a field where the data appear to conflict with the basic assumptions of science.

Serious thinkers say that what is needed is a new way of looking at life and mind and an understanding that the natural and supernatural — like the normal and abnormal — are all part of the same cloth of life.

U.S. Attache's Death In 1950 Still Unsolved

EDITOR'S NOTE: Eleven years ago today (Feb. 14) the fiction-famed "Orient Express" of Eastern Europe was the focal point of one of the great international spy-mysteries since World War II. This dispatch recalls that case, still unsolved today.

By RHODA ACKERSON

VIENNA (UPI)—On Feb. 14, 1950, Simon Karpe, a U.S. Naval attache in Budapest, boarded the Orient Express headed for Vienna, Paris and home leave in the United States.

Karpe reached Vienna, but before he got to Paris he was dead. How he died engaged the best minds of the Allied world's best agents for years. No one knows the answer yet.

Karpe, a friend of Robert Vogeler, the American business man imprisoned by the Hungarian Communists in 1949 on spy charges. The day Karpe boarded the Orient Express for home was just three days before Vogeler was placed on trial in Budapest.

The unobtrusive Naval attache reached Vienna without incident and stayed until Feb. 23. While in the Austrian capital, then still a four-power occupation city, he met Lucille Vogeler who was working ceaselessly for her husband's release. He told her he was being followed. He did not know by whom, Karpe said, but he had been shadowed on the train.

Karpe's trail would not have been difficult to follow. There had been no secret about his home leave or his passage to Vienna on Nanda Anshen, that these times breed confusion and the search for in-the-flesh" question of what can be believed in a field where the data appear to conflict with the basic assumptions of science.

Serious thinkers say that what is needed is a new way of looking at life and mind and an understanding that the natural and supernatural — like the normal and abnormal — are all part of the same cloth of life.

When he resumed his journey anyone within earshot of the desk at the American-occupied Bristol Hotel would have known it. The hotel had made many attempts before it could get Karpe a sleeping compartment for the Feb. 23 trip on the Orient Express.

The next world knew of Simon Karpe was when trackwalkers found his battered body in a dark train tunnel near Salzburg.

Had he been pushed off the train? Had he fallen?

The body and the area in which it was found were exhaustively examined without providing answers. Fellow passengers on the Express were investigated, and re-investigated. They seemed a disarmingly innocent group. . . . an American exchange student. . . . two British couriers. . . . some Swedish tourists. And — what seemed the best lead — two young skiers, apparently foreigners, who boarded the Express before the accident but whose departure from the train had gone unnoticed. Police never found them.

Karpe had not been missed on the train. The Express was stopped at Feldkirch after discovery of the body and the investigation was begun at once. It proved fruitless. There were no signs of a struggle in Karpe's compartment. There were no witnesses on any part of the train who might have seen a struggle and a man pushed off.

More and more, as one investigation after another led nowhere. The possibility of accident was mentioned. But one fact seemed to make that remote.

An hour before Karpe's body was found, Lucille Vogeler said, she had received an anonymous telephone call in Vienna telling her to "take warning from the fate of your friend Karpe." The time of the call as stated by Mrs. Vogeler would have been before the Orient Express entered the fatal tunnel.

All these years later, the Orient Express retains a fascination for the traveler. But it proves, on inspection, to be more a fascination of the imagination.

Louisiana Solons Meet Tomorrow On 'Local Option' Desegregation

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Louisiana Legislature has been ordered into special session on Tuesday to consider the local option approach to school desegregation. This long last-ditch strategy for a South that was confronted with the Supreme Court's 1954 school desegregation decision began in 1955 in Virginia and North Carolina. It spread through a number of other Dixie states. Here is a background dispatch on the subject.

By AL KETTNER

ATLANTA (UPI) — In the days following the 1954 Supreme Court school desegregation decision, North Carolina Gov. Luther H. Pearsall now secretary of commerce-picked a select advisory committee on education to devise a school racial "plan" for that state. The group was headed by a local county legislator, Sen. H. Pearsall. After months of study, the committee recommended to the legislature and passage of what quickly became known as the "Pearsall plan."

Virginia was the first of the sweep-steps to be adopted in the South and it has subsequently become the basic fabric of school desegregation in many Dixie states.

Virginia actually came up with the first program designed to comply with the Supreme Court ruling, but without letting in the floodgates to total integration. But the Virginia plan, which was by a commission headed by Sen. Garland Gray, was set down cold by the General Assembly.

Virginia later returned to almost the same program when in the federal court orders that attempted to close every public school in the state unless desegregation was permitted.

The Pearsall plan, largely identical to the Gray report, provided authority for the general assembly to provide from public funds financial grants to be paid toward the education of any child denied against the wishes of his parents to a school in which the races are mixed—such grants to be available for education only in parochial schools and only in such child cannot be considered.

veniently assigned to a non-mixed public school.

Under the Pearsall plan, North Carolina admitted its first Negroes to public white schools.

There have been variations—notably the "stairstep" idea of timing desegregation grade at a time and the "freedom of choice" tag in Virginia—but the states have turned basically to the Pearsall plan.

Louisiana goes into its fifth special legislative session in an effort to draft new school racial laws to replace strict segregation statutes. The basic new proposal is local option. Under state law, New Orleans—whose schools are now desegregated under federal court orders—could decide for itself whether to keep schools open or close them.

Other desegregation "plans" in Louisiana—The city was restricted in 1956 without regard to race and students were assigned to the nearest school.

Nashville — First to adopt a "stairstep" plan. It began in the first grade in 1957 and is now up to the fourth grade.

Washington, D.C. — Separate school systems for whites and Negroes abandoned after 1954 decision and students began attending nearest schools.

San Antonio, Tex.—In 1955 the 1st, 2nd, 7th and 10th grades were desegregated.

While the board agreed with Examiner Thomas A. Ricci that Borden-Sancken did engage in certain activities to try to block the organization of its workers by Milk Drivers Local 23 of the Teamsters Union, it said the company was on firm ground when it sacked Pennington.

The company said Pennington was fired because he had walked into the company's Columbia S.C. office at the end of the run from Augusta, and grabbed and kissed Mrs. Jeanette Porter, a clerk, against her will.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Valentine's Day notwithstanding, the National Labor Relations Board ruled today that a romantic truck driver may be fired for stealing a kiss from one of his co-workers.

In doing so, the board overturned a recommendation by one of its examiners which would have required the Borden-Sancken Co., Augusta, Ga., to reinstate dairy truck driver Lee Roy Pennington.

'Founders Day' Marked In Wilson PTA Meet

"Founder's Day" was observed by the Woodrow Wilson PTA at a meeting last Thursday in the school.

Principal speaker was Mrs. Howard Graham, history teacher at Pampa High School. Her subject was "History of the Educational Process in the United States — Its Strength and Weakness."

Mrs. Graham stated that as far back as 1533 the foundation was laid for our schools. The first tax-supported school was established in 1639, first public education in law in 1647, first public school as we know it today in 1689.

The first kindergarten was organized in 1856 and in 1902 the first progressive step toward development of schools was taken in 1902.

In comparing English and American schools Mrs. Graham said that in England primary school begins at the age of five years. English schools are nationally controlled and the more assistance asked for the more the schools are controlled.

In Russia, Mrs. Graham said, a child begins school at the age of 7. The same teacher teaches the same group for the first four years. English is a highly popular subject in Russia. School is convoked six days a week. After the fourth grade the school term is extended six weeks longer.

Russian teachers, she said, are well qualified with salaries comparable to doctors and lawyers in the United States.

Mrs. E. L. Henderson presided at the meeting and introduced past presidents in attendance as honored guests.

Mrs. John Brewer gave a City Council report and Mrs. Calvin Hogan reported on the study courses. Two more study courses were to be held, one today in Sam Houston School with the subject, "Are Parents Worrying About Wrong Things?" The final study course will be held at Robert E. Lee Junior High School.

A nominating committee was elected to select 1961-62 officers of the Woodrow Wilson PTA unit. Those on the committee are Mrs. Floyd Smith, Mrs. E. A. McLennan and Mrs. Grace Gibson.

Miss Oleta Martin's first grade won first place in the room count. Mr. Grove's second grade took second honors.

Dear Abby... These Gals Aren't "Thinking"!!!

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: In our office the work day is supposed to start at 9:00 A.M. At exactly 9:00 A.M. in come these three girls who work here, too. They have their hair up in curlers with bandanas wrapped around their heads. They haven't a drop of makeup on. They hang up their coats and go directly to the Ladies' Room where they laugh, talk, comb their hair and put on their faces. They get to their desks at 9:45, fiddle around in their desk drawers and wait until the 10 o'clock coffee break. I've worked in offices for 28 years and have never seen anything like it, but I am told this is typical. Does this go on in offices where the help is supposed to be earning their money?

DEAR CURIOUS: No. Only in offices where the office manager isn't earning his.

CURIOUS

DEAR ABBY: I just found out that my mother's maiden name is on my birth certificate, which means that she was not married to my father at the time of my birth. She is dead now. I know that I am illegitimate, but that's not my problem. I was married at a large church wedding and have four children. I am worried sick over the fact that they are illegitimate because of my history. Where do they stand?

VERY WORRIED

DEAR VERY: You have nothing to worry about. If YOU were married before the birth of your children, THEY are legitimate.

BIRTH COSTS

Average costs of having a normal baby delivery in the United States is $344; it's $419 for complicated deliveries; and $588 for Caesarian deliveries; according to a Federal survey.

DEAR ABBY: If I don't get help with my problem pretty soon, you will be reading about our family in the headlines.

My husband hates our 14-year-old son like poison. (He tells him so to his face.) Our boy has never been in any serious trouble. He's not a very good student, but his father picks on him so much it is no wonder he is always nervous and upset. He is our only child and all this fighting is putting me in my grave.

I love my husband, but if I show any affection toward him in front of my son, the boy gets jealous and hurt. And I don't dare show any love for my son in front of my husband or he gets violently jealous. I feel like a bone between two dogs. Please help me.

DEAR "BONE": The hostility between your husband and son didn't develop over night, and it won't be resolved that quickly. Your husband and son both need therapy. If you can't afford a psychiatrist, get in touch with your local Family Service Association for counseling service.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HOWARD: You've been angry too long. Wash ideal time to "bury the hatchet." What's your problem? For a personal reply from Abby, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Annual Recipe Contest To Get Start This Week

SAN ANTONIO (Spl) — The fifth annual "Texas Experts" recipe contest, a project conducted annually by the Texas Beef Council since 1955, will be officially launched Feb. 17 at the Texas Home Economics Association's annual convention in Houston.

Hugh A. Fitzsimons, San Antonio president of the state-wide beef promotion group, said the first 1961 contest will be open only to members of the home economics association. He hinted another contest sponsored by the beef group might also be in the offing.

"The membership of THEEA is one of the finest sources in the world for good, tested recipes of ways to prepare and enjoy economy beef," the San Antonio rancher said. "We have worked with their membership in the past and they have contributed greatly to the advancement of better meals for lower cost in Texas homes."

First prize in the recipe contest will be an all-expense, four-day vacation trip to Mexico City, Fitzsimons said. There will also be second and third place cash awards.

A panel of four outstanding food experts will serve as judges and will be announced at the THEEA convention on Feb. 17, he said.

Miss Louise Mason, food and nutrition expert at Texas A&M College, currently serving as president of the home economists group, confirmed the association's invitation to the Beef Council president to make formal announcement of the contest's launching at the Houston meeting. Members will then have four weeks in which to submit their entries.

Gagwriters' Quip Theft Poser Didn't Flip Solon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the National Association of Gagwriters laid its problem before Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, there was no danger that it would lay an egg.

Some senators might have missed the point, but not Keating. The New York Republican is one of our more perceptive lawmakers. He is hep to the entire spectrum of national and international issues.

In short, there are very few matters that are beyond Keating's ken.

He is, moreover, uniquely qualified to understand the problems of gagwriters. Because of his own ventures into the quicksands of humor, he has come to be regarded as the GOP's answer to Adlai E. Stevenson.

The problem that the gagwriters have taken up with Keating is an ancient one, as old as some of their jokes. It has been around ever since the invention of petty larceny. It involves the stealing of quips.

Despite the vast network of anti-theft laws extant in this country, no statute has been enacted making it a crime to steal quips. Some of the jokes are crimes, but they can be pilfered with impunity.

The Gagwriters' Association, in an effort to correct this oversight, has petitioned Keating to sponsor legislation to provide quipsters and punsmiths with the same copyright protection enjoyed by serious authors and composers.

As might have been predicted, the senator responded with alacrity. He has directed the Library of Congress to compile a "comprehensive memorandum" on the subject.

Among other things, Keating asked the library to find out what, if anything, is being done in other countries to stamp out plagiarism among comedians.

And among the countries that

Keating designated for this study was the Soviet Union. (I told you Keating could be counted on to go along with a gag.)

The study hasn't been completed yet, but my guess is that the library will find that the Soviet Union has solved the problem by stamping out comedians.

I don't know what will come of this, but I would advise Keating to proceed with caution. Gag stealing may not be ethical, but in America it is a way of life.

Modern Farmer A Specialist

BERNARD BRENNER
INGTONJ (UPI) — Today's operates, almost a third

11 Street In Review

HENRY J. BECHTOLD
YORK (UPI) — When a firm makes up a report

more land, has two-and-a-half times as much invested in his business, and is much more likely to be a specialized businessman than his counterpart of just a decade ago.

This picture of the changing American farmer is drawn from the 48-state summary of the 1959 census of agriculture, released by the Bureau of the Census.

The key word in the report was "change." The bureau's nose-counting on American farms in 1959 showed there had been greater changes since 1954 than in any other five-year period ever measured by a census. There was more progress toward complete specialization in agriculture in the five years than in any 10-year period on record.

The total number of acres in U.S. farms in 1959 was measured at 1.1 billion, down 3.3 per cent from 1954. But with this slight decline in acreage, the total number of farms dropped 23 per cent to 3,703,642.

Part of this decline in farm numbers — 232,000 of the "vagrants" — was a paper change caused by the fact that certain small places classified as farms in 1954 are no longer counted as farms. But most of the decline represented consolidations, and the average farm size rose from 242.2 acres in 1954 to 302.4 acres in 1959, almost a third larger than the 215.1 acre-average of 1950.

The money invested in the average farm has risen even faster because of the growing need for more and more expensive machinery. In 1950, the value of the average U.S. farm was $13,983. By 1954 it had climbed to $20,405. In the 1959 census it was $33,242.

Agriculture Department experts have said that the trend toward fewer, larger, and more specialized farms can be expected to continue in the years ahead. This means the number of farms in the country today is probably down at least 200,000 from the reported 1959 figure, and the current figures for average farm size and value are higher than the census averages.

Signs of growing specialization in farm production popped out of almost every page of the census report.

Total production of many farm products is at record and near-record levels. But farms keeping milk cows declined 39 per cent between 1954 and 1959 as small dairymen gave way to big operators. Farms keeping chickens dropped 36 per cent, farms raising turkeys declined 49 per cent, and farms harvesting cotton declined 41 per cent.

The gap between the big and little farmers grew wider in the census period.

The number of farms reporting sales of $10,000 and over rose 38.2 per cent, while those reporting sales of under $2,500 in farm products dropped 30.2 per cent.

The 1959 census showed 1,200 farms with sales of $500,000 a year. At the other end of the scale were 1,640,000 farms, with sales of under $2,500 a year. Almost half of these small farms were operated part-time by people who spent most of their time on non-farm jobs.

TAXES HIS PATIENCE
PETERSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Charles Goolsby stuck at a grade crossing for 39 minutes Monday while a freight train passed, drove to a police station and swore out a warrant charging the Seaboard Airline Railroad with blocking "free passage of a city street."

Easily Remembered Inaugural Talk Line May Be Forgotten

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The most easily remembered and likely the most quickly forgotten line of President Kennedy's inaugural address was this:

"Fellow Americans, ask not what your country will do for you, but what you can do for your country."

President Cleveland expressed the same idea many years before when he told the voters that it was not for government to support the people but for people to support the government. The idea didn't catch on.

If the idea now prospers under the Kennedy administration there will have to be a reversal of a smooth trend. The February 25th of the First National City Bank of New York illuminated the question somewhat in the following quotation:

"There is no confirmation in the federal budget record of the claim that it is so often made that, while people are 'affluent,' the public (governmental) sector of the economy is being starved for money."

"The most striking acceleration of federal spending since Korea (1951-53) has been in benefits conferred as governmental services owing to the public under the actions of commerce, housing, space, agriculture, labor and welfare, natural resources and veterans' services and benefits. "Since fiscal year 1954, budget outlays for benefits have climbed 17 per cent, twice as fast as the national product. Over these years, benefits have expanded 17 per cent of the total budget to 26 per cent at present."

The New Jersey Taxpayers Association comes up with some figures related to the foregoing but more specifically intended to answer two questions about federal aid to state and local governments.

"Who," the association inquired, "is aiding whom?"

"Who's selling these federal good bricks to New Jersey?"

The association reports that New Jersey taxpayers put up $2.47 in federal taxes for every $1 returned in federal aid, a loss of $1.47 on each dollar's worth of assistance.

There are 14 others among those classified by the association as "aid-ing" states. Delaware, for example, pays $2.09 in federal taxes for each $1 of federal aid received; Connecticut, $1.82; Indiana, $1.69 and so on. Virginia is last among the aiding states, with a $1.10 tax to $1 aid ratio.

The others are aided states. Proud Texas, for example, gets $1 in federal aid for each 94 cents of taxes. The association does not challenge the idea that this is a good deal for the 34 aided states. It argues, however, that the "aid-ing" states are being had, with New Jersey taxpayers getting the worst deal of all.

If the record of past experience is a useful guide, there will be more of this, instead of less, despite Presidents Kennedy and Cleveland.

Confusion Tactic

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Young French actress Yvonne Monlaur, co-star of "Terror of the Tongs," uses an unusual technique to discourage wolves who ask her measurements.

"I am 89-56-89," she tells them. "If they persist, and many do, she tells them that's her figure in medication comes up with some figures."

"Before I recite my piece, will all the talent scouts in the audience please raise their hands!"

Only 30, Texan Plays In Major League Of Bridge

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Despite being only 30 years old in the towering bridge-playing world of the Jacobs and Goren, Curtis Smith of Austin has played with the best in fine style.

As a matter of fact, Smith and Oswald Jacoby are collaborating on a book about their partner style of play that won them the National Bridge Tournament open-pair competition.

The 30-year-old Smith is making a living out of bridge. The operator of the Austin Bridge Studio explains that professional bridge is no windfall directly, but brings in good money indirectly. Smith says pros don't win cash prizes for bridge victories, but do get their name and fame before the public, and as a result people go to their studio for lessons or to buy their lesson plan.

The young professional started playing when he was 16 — the age when his contemporaries were learning to soup up hot rods or bang-out a base hit. By the time he had gone through the University of California, studying mathematics, Smith decided he would try bridge for a career.

And about two years ago he decided to put his and Jacoby's bidding system down in writing so others could learn.

"It's something we came to over a period of year," Smith said. "I had played with probably the best players in the country, and I have tried to use their ways of doing things in my methods."

Smith, who thinks Jacoby is as great as any bridge player, believes there's more to good bridge than sitting down with some friends and learning from the book.

"All good players have an apparent feel for cards — they have a card sense."

He says that with that card sense, a good memory, and some imagination, a person stands to get into the big leagues of bridge playing.

Whether the explanation is too long or Smith wants to keep trade secrets at home until he can publish the book, he is not too wordy about the Jacoby-Smith system. He says it involves basically "very aggressive bidding."

"By the end of the second round of bidding," he said, "one or the other of the partners will have limited the size of his hand, so that the hand opposite, which makes the limit bid, can determine the level at which it should be played."

Smith believes the really good bridge players in this country total from 200 to 250. He thinks American players generally don't come up to the French and Italians.

Although he hedges a little when asked whether men or women play better bridge, Smith thinks men have the edge.

"A woman can't concentrate as well," Smith said. "men are somewhat more aggressive."

A little of his reticence to bring up the man-woman question is caused by the fact that his wife, Jerry, helps Smith run the Austin Bridge Studio.

Smith says his son has been a bit slow to take up the game, and is far from being a professional. The son, David, is only 3½ years old.

The child was named, by the way, after Dave Carter, a bridge player Smith admires.

Morris' Money

Gouverneur Morris introduced the word "cent" into the American language in 1782. He suggested a monetary system for the United States in which 144 cents would be worth a dollar.

White House Data

JFK's Press Talks May Resemble Ike's

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: There's a strong hunch in White House circles that President Kennedy's news conferences for the most part will revert shortly to the format followed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

If this reasoning is right, there will be an occasional conference in the early evening carried by "live" television and radio, but most of the meetings with reporters will be filmed and tape-recorded for later broadcast use.

The new administration originally planned to offer all Kennedy news conferences for instantaneous broadcast. After the first two, there began to be hints from some of those close to the Chief Executive that the wide-open policy might be changed. There was some thought that the President might be appearing on TV too much.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger was not at all satisfied with the many technical involvements that cropped up last week when the conference was televised and taped, but not released for showing or broadcast until the session ended.

The President recently passed the word at a Cabinet meeting: Departments and agencies should acknowledge all letters from members of Congress within 24 hours after receipt. This is part of a determined administration program to keep Congress happy.

A government bomb disposal truck has been parked near the White House almost continuously since the Kennedy administration took office. This may reflect the high volume of "hate mail" that descended on the White House about the time of the inauguration.

The President, in continuing Camp David as the name of the White House retreat in Maryland, seems to reflect a basic preference for maintenance of tradition.

Another example: Blair House is Blair House again. Workmen last week took down the Eisenhower era sign calling it "The president's guest house."

This would have pleased another Democratic president, the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. Regal as he was, FDR disliked over-commercializing the presidency. He once told friends he disliked the word "presidential" when applied to an object such as a train, an automobile or a house. He said this struck him as "too fancy."

Kennedy, in the manner of former President Harry S. Truman, likes to swing a walking stick when he goes for a stroll. But there is this difference: The current President is shy about being photographed with his cane.

On two recent Sundays, he went walking with friends after church swinging and twirling a brown cane. On the first such outing, no cameramen were near, but on the second Sunday, the President spotted a photographer by the White House gate.

Gruver, Bucks Favored

White Deer Enters District Cage Play

STINNETT — With district winner Gruver and runnerup White Deer garbed in the favorites robes and host Stinnett considered a good darkhorse bet, the District 1-A tournament opened here this afternoon.

Gruver won the round-robin title with a 9-1 record, its only loss coming last Friday to White Deer, 44-40, a win that gave the Bucks an 8-2 mark in district.

Rebel Seventh Topples Borger

Robert E. Lee Seventh, leading only 13-7 at halftime, exploded in the last half yesterday to defeat Borger Houston, 36-49, and run Lee's 1960-61 basketball record to 7-0.

Teddy Bird and Gary Crossland sparked the Rebel win with 10 points apiece. Loftis had five for Borger.

mark, are the favorites in the bracket. Today's schedule will pit Sunray against Panhandle and Stinnett against Stratford in the boys play, while Stinnett meets Gruver and Stratford plays Panhandle in the girls bracket.

After an offday Wednesday, action will resume Thursday when White Deer meets the Stratford-Stinnett victor at 4:15 and Gruver plays the winner of the Sunray-Panhandle battle in the boys side of the tourney. The Does will meet the winner of the Stratford-Panhandle game at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Finals in the girls bracket will be held at 7 p.m. Friday while the boys championship will be decided at 8:15.

Should Gruver win the tourney, it will represent District 1-A in bi-district play; however, should the Greyhounds lose, they will meet the winner of the tourney to decide the 1-A bi-district representative.

Prior To Defeat

Ingemar Claims He Was Doped

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A grim-faced Ingemar Johansson admitted today that he thought he was doped when he lost the world's heavyweight championship back to Floyd Patterson last June.

"In my opinion, something definitely was wrong," said the Swedish iron man who will try to regain the title at Miami Beach Convention Hall on March 13.

Whitey Bimstein, his veteran trainer, backed him up with the assertion that "he looked goofy" the night of the fight after losing six pounds overnight.

"I'm not accusing anybody," Bimstein bit off, "but he ate the night before the fight in a place frequented by gamblers. The big boob trusts everybody and he might have had something in a cup of tea or something."

Ingemar acknowledged that he had conferred with doctors in Sweden on the possibility that he had been doped and they confirmed that in a drugged state he would have been more susceptible to Patterson's punches.

"I can't say myself that I actually was doped," Ingemar cautioned. "But if you are doped, you feel good. That's why people take dope. Well, I felt good but I felt funny. I felt too good. And Patterson never before knocked out anybody with one punch."

Johansson pointed out that in the bout he "acted entirely different" than he ever had before.

"I was laughing at people beside the ring for no reason at all," he said. "Even between rounds I would look down and laugh at strangers. I was acting entirely different than I ever had before. And then there was the way I was fighting. I didn't move."

Looking over slow motion films of the bout, Johansson pointed out that in the second round, when he staggered Patterson, he did not follow up his advantage but stood watching his opponent.

"What was wrong with me?" he asked rhetorically. "If I follow up right then if I could, the fight is over. You tell me, how could I miss such a chance?"

Breaking with boxing custom, Johansson shunned seclusion and went to New York the night before the last bout and appeared on a television show. Then he had dinner at a mid-town restaurant.

"He could have eaten something bad," Bimstein admitted, "but he also could have been given something in his food, or in something he drank. That's what we think happened."

Bimstein emphasized that, in all his years as a trainer, working with such as Jimmy Braddock and Max Baer for title fights, he never had seen a fighter lose more than "two or three pounds" overnight.

"They dry out a couple of pounds," Bimstein declared, "but Ingemar lost six pounds. He looked like a ghost and he didn't have diarrhea. For one, I'm sure somebody must have slipped him something."

Johansson, listening tight-lipped, nodded agreement.

Pee Wees Play Today

Six teams will turn out in quest of victories in today's make-up schedule in the Kiwanis Optimist Pee Wee basketball league action at 6 p.m.

Today's sixth-grade slate will find Austin at Travis, Wilson at Lamar and Baker at Mann; in the fifth grade, Travis is at Austin, Lamar at Wilson and Mann at Baker.

Today's games are games of Feb. 23 which have been moved up to make room for the annual Pee Wee tourney, Feb. 23-25.

GROUND — Sir William Pigott-Brown, Britain's favorite rider, is thrown heavily to the ground as Blackheath takes a nasty header in the Littlemore Handicap race at Newbury, England. Sir William and his mount had just cleared the last hurdle in the two-and-one-half mile race when the accident occurred. O'Connell, the eventual winner, is alongside.

Ohio State Holds Lead In UPI Cage Rankings

Lower Teams Shuffle Under Three Leaders

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State, St. Bonaventure and Duke held firm to the No. 1, 2 and 3 spots in the United Press International college basketball ratings today but there was a good deal of shuffling for the other seven positions.

Ohio State, voted the No. 1 team each week since the start of the season, rolled up two more victories last week to run its perfect record to 18-0, and as a result was picked first by 34 of the 35 coaches who rate the nation's teams for UPI.

Bonnies, Ohio St. Nab Wins

The only other first-place vote went to St. Bonaventure (18-1), whose only loss was an 84-82 decision to Ohio State last December in New York. Thus, Ohio State had 349 points, one short of perfect, and the Bonnies, named second by 34 coaches, had a total of 318 points.

Duke, which lost to North Carolina State and beat Wake Forest last week to run its record to 17-2, lost some points but remained a solid third with 205 points.

But from there down through 10th place there was a good deal of switching spots with St. John's (N.Y.) rejoining the top 10 and Iowa dropping to 11th despite a surprise 74-67 victory over Indiana last Saturday.

Southern California (16-3), sixth week ago, moved up to fourth; Bradley (16-4) dropped from fourth to fifth; Cincinnati (17-3) moved up from a tie for ninth to sixth; North Carolina (13-4) slipped from fifth to seventh; Kansas State (15-3) dropped a notch to eighth; St. John's (13-4) moved up from 13th to ninth, and Louisville (17-4), tied for ninth last week, dropped to 10th.

The second 10 this week was made up of Iowa, Kansas, Utah, UCLA, West Virginia, Memphis State, Wichita, St. Joseph's (Pa.), Indiana, Ohio U. and Providence, Harlandale.

Texas Cage Playoffs Clear Up

The state schoolboy basketball playoff picture is far from cleared up but quite a few basketball districts have already decided who will represent them in state championship play.

A United Press International survey found that at least seven teams in Class AAAA had won district championships, six others in Class AAA, 11 in AA, five in A and 10 in Class B.

The deadline for the district champions to be decided is Saturday night.

The only state champion to assure itself another chance in the playoffs to the state tournament so far was the Lamesa Tornados in 3-AAA.

Beaumont South Park, last year's AAAA titlist lost District 11-AAAA to Beaumont High; Linden-Kildare, the AA champ last year, is in a playoff in 14-AA with Hughes Springs; Huntington's Class A champs are now in Class B and are leading 61-B but haven't clinched the title. Class B titlist McAdoo faces a playoff for the 8-B title.

In a 6:15 preliminary battle Coach Dean Evans' Shockers will be trying to snap out of a three game losing streak against Amarillo's Yannigans.

Evans probably will start Lark Miller, Bob Neslage, Darrell Dotson, C. E. Cantrell and Keith Swans against the Yannigans.

Sandstorm, Pampa Vie In Armory

By ARTHUR MAYHEW
Daily News Sports Editor

AMARILLO — Pampa's Harvesters conclude the last phase of an exhausting three-game road trip against three of the top four teams in District 3-4A here at 8 tonight against Amarillo's tall but stumbling Sandies in ancient Amarillo Armory.

Elsewhere in the district, Berger points for a first-place shot down Thursday against Palo Duro with a game tonight with Lubbock Monterey, tied with Borger for second place, hikes to Plainview at Palo Duro and Tascosa bumps heads in an all-Amarillo contest.

Amarillo has already given Pampa a 70-50 lesson, the Harvesters' worst conference defeat of 1961 year, but otherwise have been let than brilliant, despite being picked for the 3-4A title in a pre-season poll.

The Sandies have a disappointing 7-5 record, yet possess the best, most experienced team in the district. Their inability to win big games, especially those at home, have haunted Coach T. Hull all season long.

The Sandies will be headed by Harold Denny, a 6-7 senior who ranks second in 3-4A scoring with 198 points, well behind Palo Duro Steve Carter who has 237 in 10 games. Denny scored 18 points in his first encounter with Pampa, of which came in the last half. Amarillo was held to a 33-31 margin at halftime.

Flanking Denny will be Wayne Rivers, 6-5; Johnny Garcia, 6-6; Louis Ridings, 6-4; and Bob Dyer, 5-10. All the starters are freshmen and Denny, Rivers, Garcia were starters last season.

Pampa Coach Terry Culley counters with a team headed by sophomore star Randy Matson, 6-5 15-year-old, who pumped in 18 points against Monterey last Friday, yet slipped a notch to six place in scoring as Monterey's Russ Wilkinson's 25 points moved him to fifth with 173 points, 10 point better than Matson.

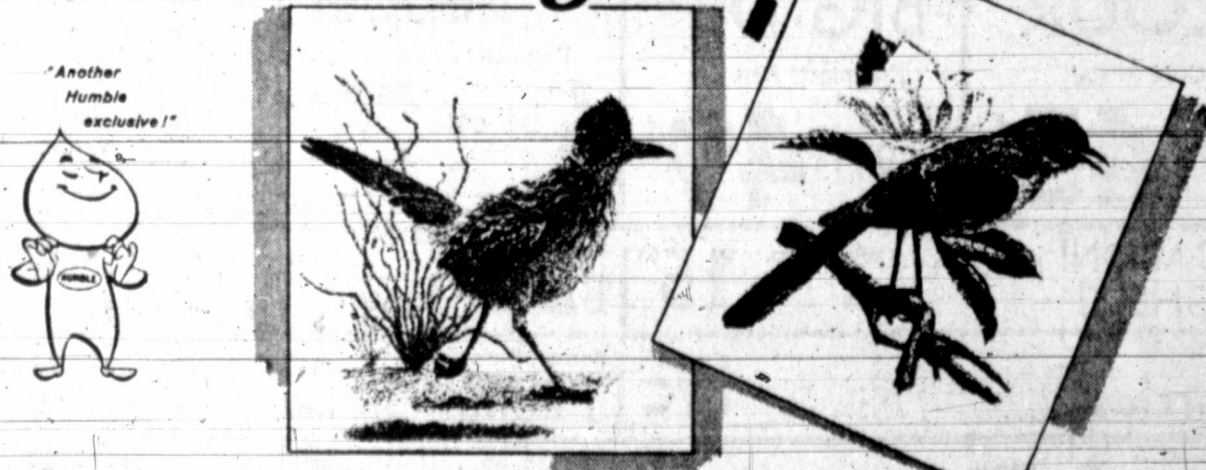

Wayne Kries, a 6-0 sophomore, may have cracked the starting five for tonight's game after his 13-point performance against Monterey. At 5-10, Kries possesses a good shot, evidenced by his 5-0 field goal completions against the Plainsmen.

Rounding out the top five will be Pat Carter, playmaking sophomore who leads the season-long scoring with 358 points; Gordon Balch, another sophomore at 6-6; and Allen Wise, 6-3 senior postman who pumped in 16 against Monterey and played one of his best backboard games.

In a 6:15 preliminary battle Coach Dean Evans' Shockers will be trying to snap out of a three game losing streak against Amarillo's Yannigans.

Evans probably will start Lark Miller, Bob Neslage, Darrell Dotson, C. E. Cantrell and Keith Swans against the Yannigans.

Novel Experiment Watched Closely

Eight Cub Coaches Vie For Manager Election

By MILTON RICHMAN
By United Press International

The Chicago Cubs tried it with a manager and everything worked out perfectly — without a gripe or without a hitch — for the first day anyway.

Baseball's novel experiment got off winging Monday at sunny Mesa, Ariz., where Cub owner Phil Wrigley was among those who watched eight coaches lead 26 pitchers and catchers through the opening day of spring training.

No strategy was involved so there was no sign of any crossed signals among the eight coaches who merely had to direct such simple chores as calisthenics, pepper games, warmup throws and conditioning sprints.

The session went off like clockwork and at the end of three hours, the eight Cub coaches, Charlie Grimm, Harry Craft, Edwin Tappe, Rip Collins, Vede Himsel, Verlon Walker and Goldie Holt told the perspiring athletes, "That's all for today!"

One of those eight coaches will be "promoted" shortly, however. Before the Cubs open their exhibition schedule next month, a vote will be taken among the players and coaches to elect a manager or so-called head-coach. And if that's confusing to you, how do you think the eight coaches feel?

The New York Yankees opened their advance training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., the old fashioned way — with a manager. First baseman Jim Gentile, outfielder Carl Robinson agreed to terms with the Baltimore Orioles, who have satisfied 19 of their 36 players.

Gentile, who drove in 98 runs and hit 21 homers in his first season as an Oriole last year, was given an estimated 30 per cent raise that boosted his salary to $15,000. Robinson came to the Orioles from the Los Angeles Dodgers organization last December. He batted .375 with Spokane in the Pacific Coast League last season.

Dale Long signed his contract with the new Washington Senators, revealed he had been negotiating that R.C. Stevens would get the first base job, and said, "My body is going to play first base for the Senators except Dale Long."

By ART MAYHEW Borger Scribe Fires Salvo At Officials

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Arnold Palmer, the man who blankets the golfing field more than Ben Hogan did in his prime, went on "vacation" today.

He's through with competitive golf for a whole week — and he plans to "rest and practice." The "rest" will be to fly one night stands for personal appearances for the next few days en route to Florida. When he'll get a chance to practice no one knows.

He must be back at Baton Rouge, La., next week to defend one of the nine crowns he currently wears — or face a $500 fine.

He flew out here after whipping Doug Sanders in the playoff for the $30,000 Phoenix Open championship Monday — on the same course where he started his professional career.

Palmer fired a scintillating 67 at the struggling Sanders in the playoff to pick up first money of $4,300. Sanders got $3,000 for second place. They also split between them half of the money from the gallery and they may pick up another $2,000 each that way, because about 3,000 fans apid $3.00 each to witness the playoff.

In the line of statistics, here is the current Palmer record:

Palmer Fires 67, Captures Phoenix Playoff Victory

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Plans Week 'Vacation'

—In seven playoffs, he has won five times.

—He has won two of the six tournaments played this year. (The other victory was in a sudden death playoff with Al Balding for the San Diego crown).

—He has won 10 of the last 29 tournaments he has entered.

—He now has won 24 tournaments.

—With the $4,300 he picked up here, he climbed into second place in this year's money-winning race with $12,724 to his credit. Gary Player leads with $14,242.

In Monday's battle he knocked in a birdie putt on the second hole and never was headed. He was two up at the end of nine holes with a two-under-par 32 against 34 for Sanders. He went three up at the end of 12 holes and his only scare came on the 18th when he hit his tee shot into a tree.

But even with the one-stroke penalty, he got a par and held his lead.

"I played good golf out there," he said after the round. "But I'm not playing as well as I did last summer. It's early in the year yet. But I played well."

I hit three traps and got behind a few trees. But my recoveries worked out."

His only bogey came on the first hole. After that he played like "Mr. Golf" should — and Sanders didn't have a chance.

For Doug it was a bitter disappointment. He had set a course record of 62 in the final round of regulation play to tie Palmer. But the head-to-head match found him out-hit off the tee by as much as 50 yards.

Men, Women Golf Pros Tangle At Palm Beach

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—A select field of golf's men and women professionals set out on a 54-hole, par-three journey today with $10,000 in prize money providing the impetus to decide the long-debated question as to which group has the better short game.

Slamming Sammy Snead and long-hitting Mickey Wright led a field of 24 men and women stars into the first round of a 54-hole tournament at the Palm Beach par-three golf club with two more rounds Wednesday to settle the issue.

Firing for the touring male professionals in search of the $1,200 first money for men are Snead, former PGA champion Dow Finsterwald and Chick Herbert, former U.S. Open champion Lew Worsham, little Bob Toski and handsome Shelley Mayfield.

Battling them too will be six home pros, including course record-holder Clyde Usina, former U.S. Open champions Johnny Farrell and Tommy Armour, former PGA champion Henry Picard, and Bobby Cruickshank and Dub Pagan.

Joining Miss Wright from the Ladies pro ranks with another $1,200 at stake for the female

Rebs, Reaps Battle Foes

Pampa's Reapers will find themselves in the unusual position of rooting for city rival Robert E. Lee today as the Panhandle Junior High School basketball conference enters its concluding week.

Lee, out of the conference race with three losses, can put Pampa back in the title picture today when the Rebels host district leading Borger Houston in the Lee Gym at 4 p.m.

Houston stands 4-1 in PJHSC play, one game ahead of Pampa (4-2) and a loss to Lee while Pampa was defeating Phillips in Phillips today would throw the race into a two-team affair and would almost insure the Reapers of the co-championship.

In the event of a tie between Houston and Pampa, both would be declared co-champs and no playoff would be held.

In order for Lee to pull the upset, Coach Joe Perryman will have to find the answer to stopping John Robinson, the 6-2 Houston ace.

In other games, today, Pampa-Eighth, which has tasted victory but once this season, will meet Phillips 8th and Lee Eighth will be going for its second win in a row against Borger Houston.

Raiders Meet Deadly Aggies

By United Press International

Texas Tech's surprising Red Raiders go into the lions den of Rollie G. White Coliseum in College Station tonight with a chance to knock the Texas Aggies, one of their strongest rivals for the Southwest Conference basketball title, completely out of the championship race.

The Red Raiders could stretch their win streak to six straight and their conference record to 8-1 with a win over the Aggies.

Such a win would leave A&M at 5-4, three full games behind the lead and for all practical purposes out of the race.

And Arkansas and Texas, tied with the Aggies for second place, make war in the hills at Fayetteville. A Tech win would leave only one of the three second-place clubs in position to seriously challenge the Raiders.

Steel Is Competing

We haven't always been able to look at the world picture in steel with a cheer over the way the steel firms of the nation have handled their own particular brand of in-fighting. Notably, when it comes to battling labor bosses we think steel's position has been frequently that of a softer ally.

But "Metalworking Week," a magazine put out by and for the big operators of the steel industry, for the week of September 5, 1960 has belatedly reached our desk. And this time we feel that a cheer is in order.

This magazine takes a tough look at the world picture in steel. It comes up with this picture: 1956 imports . . . $12.6 billion 1959 imports . . . $15.2 billion Import rise . . . $2.6 billion 1956 exports . . . $17.3 billion 1959 exports . . . $16.3 billion Export decline . . . $1.0 billion Total loss to U.S. . . $ 3.6 billion

Having read this far we heaved a sigh and prepared for the worst. Tabulations of this sort in a number of areas of our economy are common. Next in line is usually some statement by an "expert" that the only way to handle this program is to protect the American manufacturer and industrialist by slapping some kind of a tariff on all imports and thus provide a shelter for the domestic operation.

To our intense glee, the steel magazine didn't make that suggestion. It almost, but not quite, made it appear that we should keep the tariffs we have and let it go at that. But while some steel men suggested a hold the line sort of approach on the matter, George Romney of American Motors commented that he'd like to see tariffs reduced. And this is the best observation we've heard from him in some time.

But when all the big men had had a chance to state their own cases, the magazine summed up the picture with a positive, dynamic program of world competition which, we venture to say, if generally adopted and put into practice by the steel men, will be remarkably effective all the way around.

First and foremost, the steel men reasoned, we are in a world

Lobbyists Prepare

With organizational and procedural problems of the 1961 session of Congress mostly out of the way, Washington's ever-present coterie of lobbyists is anxious to get the slow-starting legislative machinery into high gear.

For each lobby group, the real signal to move will be provided by the Kennedy administration when it sends specific legislative recommendations to Capitol Hill for action. Most of the pressure groups have their own legislative programs they would like to see enacted. Now they are waiting to see exactly what the new President will propose, particularly in five major fields (health care for the aged, education, housing, minimum wage and depressed areas) designated by Mr. Kennedy shortly before he took office.

Medical care for the aged through the Social Security system was stressed by Mr. Kennedy throughout his 1960 campaign. Lobbyists active in this field, for the most part, will be continuing campaigns begun in 1960 when the issue received a thorough airing in Congress. The AFL-CIO and many of its affiliate unions, particularly the United Auto Workers, are busy trying to build up "grass roots" pressure for a plan that would finance a health-care plan through the Social Security system.

The chief opponent of such a plan is the American Medical Association. An AMA spokesman in Washington said the association planned no new lobbying tactics in 1961 but would pursue the same course it followed in 1960. Last year, the AMA opposed Social Security medical care through a series of "educational" conferences in major cities, newspaper ads and letter-writing campaigns.

Legislation to provide federal grants to states for school construction and teachers' salaries is also subject to intense lobbying

Bathtub Fish Shoot May Be Hazardous

ROME — Now that he has bagged a tiger in India, the Duke of Edinburgh is ready for a more advanced and hazardous sport — shooting fish in a bathtub.

This is a favorite pastime of the Maharajah of Ucutnents in northern India, and he has a bathroom especially designed for this diversion.

The tub, unlike the ones in the other 98 bathrooms, is on the small side, measuring no more than four feet in length. (It was longer, but was shortened when the Maharajah's aim was impaired by an accident suffered while shooting caged robins, another sport of which he is very fond.)

The fish — perch are usually used, although goldfish are sometimes substituted for V.I.P. guests — are placed in the tub several hours before the shoot is to begin by bearers wearing platinum gauntlets for protection against fins.

The water in the tub is very shallow. Deep water was ruled out years ago when a fierce perch cleared the soap dish in one gallant leap and savagely attacked a belted Earl with his thrashing tail.

The lavatory in the bathroom is exceptionally large, for it is on its sides that the sportsmen stand for safety and an unobstructed view of their target. There are safety straps for the unsteady, and occasionally a timid shooter is suspended high in the air, just above the medicine chest.

When he has guests, the Maharajah of Ucutnents does not engage in the shoot himself, but acts as master of ceremonies. It is he who gives the signal to fire. The signal is normally the simultaneous sounding of the horns on his 24 Rolls-Royces and a blast from the whistle atop the silo where the Maharajah's jewels are stored.

The shoot is quite a sight, as those who have enjoyed it can testify. Guns blaze, perch and remains of perch are blown clear to the ceiling. Crystal chandeliers sway and tinkle. Smoke fills the room faster than it can be fanned away by liveried bearers.

As fast as the fish are killed they are replaced and the shooting goes on until the gun barrels are too hot to handle. On one occasion, when the lavatory sides were packed with 10 sportsmen, and three swung above the medicine chest in safety belts, 47,765 fish were killed.

This is much more hazardous than a tiger hunt, especially the hunts of several hundred years ago when the moguls staked out goats loaded with opium for the tigers to feed on. Loaded with opium-flavored goat, the tigers would curl up for a nap, offering easy prey for the moguls as they rode by on elephants.

Tiger hunts today are not entirely safe. The tree in which the hunters perch might be struck by lightning, and a tiger might sprout wings and fly into the tree to maul the gunners.

Association, are working together, keeping businessmen in cities and towns throughout the country alerted and ready to pressure their local Congressmen into opposing a minimum wage bill.

Completing the five fields of legislation assigned priority by President Kennedy is a program to "revitalize the Nation's growing number of depressed areas — pockets of chronic high unemployment and underemployment." Again, organized labor is providing much of the support for the approach that probably will form the nucleus for the administration's plan. In addition to lobbying on its own for a "depressed areas" bill, the AFL-CIO is working through an agency known as the Area Employment Expansion Committee. The committee is dramatizing the plight of workers in the depressed areas and hopes to generate a flood of letters and telegrams to Capitol Hill calling for enactment of an area redevelopment bill.

Much of the opposition to area legislation comes from business firms in highly industrialized areas of the country. Through the National Association of Manufacturers, these firms argue that a federal program channeling plant loans and grants into depressed areas will result in the "pirating" of industry and skilled labor into these areas, unless extensive employee training programs are undertaken prior to the opening of new plants.

Another Tiger Hunt

ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Robert Kennedy has still another solar plexus blow in store for those electrical equipment companies and officials who were heavily fined and sentenced for anti-trust violations.

On the basis of those convictions, the Justice Department chief will shortly file a damage and false claims suits totaling more than $80 million.

Foremost among the corporations slated to be on the receiving end of this new legal barrage are General Electric, Westinghouse, Allis-Chalmers, McGraw-Edison, and T-E Circuit Breaker.

These multi-million dollar suits will be filed under a law enacted in 1955.

Sponsored, as an amendment to the Clayton Anti-Trust Act, by Representative Emanuel Celler (D.N.Y.), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and a militant monopoly investigator, the statute authorizes the government to seek damages due to price fixing and other monopoly operations.

These cases will be the first brought under this five-year-old law. It has never been invoked before.

But now it is also going to be used against other industries.

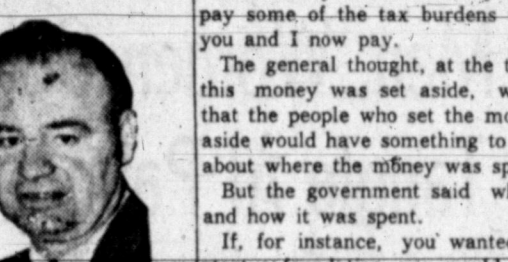

High on the list being considered by Justice Department trust-busters are drug manufacturers, whom Senator Estes Kefauver (D.Tenn.) has been investigating for several years. He is planning further hearings on new charges against them.

These contemplated damage claims are based on the government's purchase of large quantities of drugs at reputedly secretly-fixed prices.

The total of these suits may run into tens of millions of dollars.

This is indicated in an inner Department memorandum saying in part, "Also being studied is the possibility of bringing Section 4-A damage suits against a number of other anti-trust violators. . . . Decision on that will be made in the near future."

The memo also states the claims against the electrical companies will be predicated on the ground the government was overcharged for equipment for public power projects, transmission lines, defense contracts and other supplies. These will be enumerated in each suit.

GOLFING AND GIFTS—An estimated 7,500 gifts have been sent to President Kennedy and his family since his inauguration. They range from hand-knit booties for 2½-month-old John Jr., to works of art and edibles of all kinds. The job of sorting the gifts is just being tackled, and no decision has yet been made on their disposition.

Mrs. Kennedy favors distributing as many as possible to children's institutions, hospitals and charitable organizations. . . . The President has decided to retain his predecessor's famous putting green on the White House grounds. . . . Whether it will be used "depends on developments," according to aides.

SENATE CHANGES — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, (Mont.) will give up the chairmanship of the Rules Committee later this session, after the hearings on the long-pending rules changes. Mansfield is telling colleagues he is too busy as Majority Leader and as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee to head the Rules Committee.

Slated to succeed him is Senator Everett Jordan, (N.C.), who has been in the Senate only since April 1958. Jordan's winning this important chairmanship is a big feather in his cap. . . . Senator Maurice Neuberger (D.Ore.) was warmly lauded by an unexpected source. When Senator Mansfield complimented her "skill and efficiency in presiding over the Senate," Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, (Ill.), heartily echoed this praise. Said Dirksen, "I enthusiastically concur in those sentiments. And I want to add that in addition to the distinguished way in which the able junior Senator from Oregon presides over the Senate, she fairly subdues this chamber with her charm and removes from some of the exchanges the severities and aspersions which sometimes mark our deliberations."

The American Way

By M. V. EGGLESTON

CO-EXISTENCE The Russians talk much about peaceful co-existence out of one corner of their mouths while out of the other they prove they don't believe in it.

There are some Americans who believe that the Russians Bear and the American Eagle can lie down together in that so-called "peaceful co-existence." We can co-exist peacefully with the Russians temporarily if we concede, a little bit here and a little bit there, to their demands — if we appease Khrushchev as England's Chamberlain appeased Hitler prior to World War II.

Chamberlain and the English people learned that you can't avoid war by appeasing a dictator whether he wears the "Swastika," or the "Hammer and Sickle." There are two things that we must do, if we are to avoid war with the Reds: (1) Keep our powder dry; and (2) Concede absolutely nothing further to the Reds, as every concession we have made to Russia so far has strengthened the Russian Bear and weakened the American Eagle.

The possibility of peaceful co-existence with Red Russia, otherwise is a delusion, which the following story serves to prove: Visitors to a zoo were amazed to see in a cage, labeled "Co-Existence," a lion and some lambs. However, the zoo director cleared up the mystery. Said he: "It's a cinch. There's nothing to it. All I have to do is add a few fresh lambs every now and then."

The big difference is that the government can direct your money into channels not permissible by the federal government. An example: Eric Johnson headed a committee to raise money to propagandize the support of more foreign aid. Mr. Johnson was appointed by President Eisenhower to this job.

All the people or corporations who contribute to this fund can mark their contributions as tax deductible. Now I happen to belong to an organization that was opposed to federal aid. We asked the federal government if we could get the same tax deductions. The collector of internal revenue informed me that this could not be done because, in their opinion, what we were doing was propaganda. They claimed that what the Johnson committee was doing was educational.

FOUNDATIONS HELP GOVT THWART LAW

(The American Statesman) One of the evils that is a direct outcome of the 16th Amendment is where our government has permitted the wealthy people of this country, such as the Ford Foundation and other foundations, to set money aside so it can't be taxed. This money would normally help pay some of the tax burdens that you and I now pay.

The general thought, at a time this money was set aside, was that the people who set the money aside would have something to say about where the money was spent. But the government said where and how it was spent.

If, for instance, you wanted to start a foundation, you would find that you had to follow the orders of the federal government. If you attempted to give a ny money to an organization that is fighting for the freedom of the American people or fighting for the defense of our Constitution, the federal government will not permit you to do this.

You can only spend your money on government approved "Y's m's." This is exactly the same as if it were tax money and the government was using it.

The big difference is that the government can direct your money into channels not permissible by the federal government. An example: Eric Johnson headed a committee to raise money to propagandize the support of more foreign aid. Mr. Johnson was appointed by President Eisenhower to this job.

All the people or corporations who contribute to this fund can mark their contributions as tax deductible. Now I happen to belong to an organization that was opposed to federal aid. We asked the federal government if we could get the same tax deductions. The collector of internal revenue informed me that this could not be done because, in their opinion, what we were doing was propaganda. They claimed that what the Johnson committee was doing was educational.

As you see, anyone who wants to spend money to defend the Constitution cannot deduct the expense from their income tax. This is in my opinion an example of rank injustice and an example of what occurs when the Congress of the United States gives unconstitutional power to a bureau of government to exercise the law in a manner in which the bureau decides is best and not according to law.

Our country is founded upon a belief in government by law. We should all be able to know what the law is. Each of us should have the same protection under the law. But our government says to men that YOU can make the laws and YOU can make the rule.

This guarantees injustices by men. There is no appeal possible from the rulings of these men. This is not equal justice for all. —J. Bracken Lee

Oil Industry Did Well In Some Cases In 1960

By MAC SEBREE

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—The petroleum industry — pictured as somewhat tempest-tossed on a troubled sea of restrictions, regulations and competition—did pretty well on some fronts in 1960.

On the basis of preliminary and sometimes estimated earnings for 1960, many of the larger integrated oil companies did very well indeed.

One firm — Phillips Petroleum Co., Bartlesville—set a new income record.

Of 14 companies reported 1960 actual or estimated earnings so far, all posted increases over 1959. Due perhaps to special conditions, a few firms reported massive increases in business.

There were, of course, minus signs in the 1960 petroleum picture, too. Cash dividends by oil refiners — including integrated companies—were $1,442,500,000 in 1960, compared with $505,500,000 in 1959, by Commerce Department figures.

Phillips estimated net income for 1960 was $1124 million, or $37.7 a share. This compared with $104,639,000, or $3.05 a share in 1959.

The Atlantic Refining Co. reported an increase of 34 per cent in 1960 earnings, with net income for the year amounting to $46,566,000 compared to the abnormally low $30,174,000 in 1959.

Other earnings reports posted by key petroleum companies:

Standard Oil Co. of Indiana—net earnings up 4 per cent in 1960 to $144,750,000 compared with $138,597,000 in 1959.

Soco Mobil Oil Co.—Earnings up 11 per cent to $182.5 million, compared with $164 million in 1959.

Tidewater Oil Co.—Earnings in 1960 totalled $35 million, up from $33,941,000 in 1959.

Texas Pacific Coast and Oil Co.—Up 8 per cent over 1959, at $7,777,894 in 1960.

Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, Inc.—Estimated last half year of 1960 earnings were $8,465,000, a big increase over the $3,501,000 posted in the like period of 1959.

Texaco, Inc.—Estimated 1960 net profit 10.6 per cent higher than 1959 with 1960 net earnings of $391,750,000 against $354,346,232 in 1959.
