

Burriss Cites 'Liberalism' Trend In New Administration

America has shifted from moderate conservatism to acknowledged liberalism in governmental thinking at the presidential level, Ed C. Burriss, executive vice president of the Texas Manufacturers' Assn., told a Congressional Action breakfast audience in Coronado Inn this morning.

Burriss said the top level government administrators under President Kennedy have shifted from the ranks of businessmen to labor-liberal-minded men.

"I am most disturbed," Burriss said, "by the fact that we have moved from 'government of the practical' to the 'new frontier' theories."

The Houston business executive listed a number of proposals with which he said businessmen should be most concerned.

These included:

Federal aid to education. Burriss charged the administration's plan seeks to give the government more power to move into the schools and gain control of the educational processes.

"This," he said, "always marks the first step toward a dictatorship. Controlling the teachers moves into control of the minds of children and leads to complete government control of education."

Aid to the aged in the field of health. This, the speaker said, would be tied in with social security under the Kennedy administration plan.

"Why," he asked, "should employers be responsible for this program?"

Minimum wage law proposal. The administration seeks to raise the minimum wage from $1 to $1.25 an hour. It also is designed to include some 5-million persons not now under its provisions.

"This would definitely contribute to an inflationary trend in the national economy," Burriss said.

Aid to depressed areas. Here again, Burriss stated, the federal government would be injected into industry control.

"This plan would not provide more jobs as they would have you believe," Burriss said. "It would merely give the government power to pull industry from one area into another. While it might help one district it would leave another without employment. Nothing would be gained except a shift of location. The same would hold true with government control over the placing of contracts. All this plan would tend to do would be to subsidize inefficient operation."

Public housing program. Burriss said the new administration's proposals on public housing with federal aid in construction is unnecessary.

"In my travels throughout Texas and the nation," he said, "I find that the private construction industry is doing very well in the housing program and you have only to look at our cities here in Texas to see what is being done without the help of government agencies."

Right to work laws. In this field, Burriss stated, the administration's plan calls for the repeal of every right to work law now in effect.

"They seek to take away from every state the laws whereby an individual reserves the right to work where he wishes and under conditions which he believes to be right for the individual."

Burriss also went into other major issues pending in Congress under proposals by the Kennedy administration.

These he listed as unemployment compensation, public power financing and deficit financing, all of which he said can become inflationary with the resultant effect on the economy as a whole.

Burriss also touched briefly on a state issue relating to the current effort to get a congressional redistricting bill under the 1960 federal census.

"The figures show a definite trend for shifting of the Texas population to the South and West," he said. The speaker cited changes in the population figures since the last congressional redistricting bill was adopted in 1933.

"The question now is, can we get a fair redistricting bill," he said. "If we do you will find that you will get a more equalized vote. It is to your interest to get to work and discuss with your state representatives and senators the necessity of fair legislation in this respect."

Roy Sparkman, a member of the Legislative and National Affairs Committee of the chamber of commerce, presided at this morning's breakfast and introduced the speaker.

Sparkman announced that Louise Evans, Amarillo political writer, would be the speaker at the next breakfast session in two weeks.

Announcement also was made that the regular monthly luncheon has been set for Feb. 22 when Leon Hill of Amarillo, representing the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, will be the speaker. Hill's topic will be "The Canadian River Dam."

Navy Chaplain Served The Most Remote Parish

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI)—Lt. Cmdr. E. R. Weidler, a Navy chaplain, believes he has had the most remote congregation in the world.

Weidler, a minister of the Church of Christ, just spent a year in the Antarctic and preached once at the South Pole.

He said he was the first Protestant services at the Pole, although a testant clergyman to conduct services at the Pole, although a Jesuit priest said Mass there in 1937. The critical weight factor of polar flying limited transportation of chaplains, he said.

Weidler explained that about 20 persons, most of them scientists, stay the year around at the Pole, where the temperature set a new record low last year of 127½ degrees below zero.

The chaplain spent only three days at the Pole, and was stationed most of the year at McMurdo Sound in the Antarctic. There the temperature rises as high as 38 degrees during the summer.

Winter readings at McMurdo get as low as 59 below zero, Weidler said, and the weather is very changeable.

"In a few hours it can go from normal to condition zero — which means you stay put," he said. "No one can go outside, and the winds rise to 70 to 80 knots."

Weidler was one of 138 persons who "wintered over" at McMurdo. During the summer the population rises to around 500.

"Morale there is excellent," the chaplain said. "Most of the men are typical sailors who manage their own problems and get along well with others."

He conducted religious services every Sunday at the chapel. The church also housed a lounge and library and Weidler kept it open daily.

Weidler talked with his wife and five children in Texas almost weekly by shortwave radio while serving with Operation Deep Freeze 1960. He had been chaplain at the U.S. Naval Hospital at Corpus Christi for two years before the Antarctic assignment.

JFK Prods Congress On Aid To Jobless

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has prodded Congress to approve his anti-recession program as soon as possible to ease the plight of 5.5 million jobless workers and restore vigor to the ailing economy.

The President told his news conference Wednesday night the administration would cooperate with Congress, state governors and all government agencies "because we want to see the American economy get back on its feet. We want to see these people working again."

He listed a number of old and new administration steps to spur business and increase jobs.

Kennedy said growing unemployment and other reports of slumping business added up to a recession, no matter what milder terms others might use.

"If you are unemployed, you think there is a recession," the Chief Executive told reporters and a nationwide radio-TV audience.

Kennedy noted that the House Ways & Means Committee has started hearings on his proposal to extend the duration of unemployment payments for jobless workers who have exhausted their benefits. He said 600,000 workers already had used up their unemployment compensation.

"I am hopeful that we can move forward this winter so that some relief can be given to our fellow Americans," he said.

To win support for this and other proposals, Kennedy said he would cooperate with Republican as well as Democratic congressional leaders and would seek the backing of lawmakers of both parties.

"We don't want to find ourselves in the winter and the spring and the summer debating about whether we are in an economic recession and finding at the end of the congressional session that no action has been taken," he said.

He announced the administration had wired the 50 state governors Wednesday night asking them to speed their highway construction programs. He said $734 million in federal highway construction aid funds would be made available to the states this month.

He also said the Post Office Department would rush the construction of post offices already authorized by Congress.

In addition, he said the administration had moved to make more small businesses in depressed areas eligible for defense contracts.

Listing previous actions, Kennedy noted that he had ordered increased variety and quantity in government surplus food packages to the needy and had proposed an increase in the federal minimum wage, increased Social Security benefits and federal aid to distressed areas.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chief champion of the U.S. foreign aid program in the House pleaded with his fellow lawmakers today to open their hearts also to the unemployed at home.

The appeal was made by Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, who represents a district where 15 per cent of the workers covered by unemployment compensation are out of jobs.

Morgan voiced strong support for President Kennedy's proposal to extend jobless pay benefits as the House Ways & Means Committee went into its second day of hearings on the legislation.

"A compassion for the physical suffering of the families of millions of workers is in my opinion sufficient reason for enacting this legislation even if there were no other," he said.

The administration bills would: —Extend the duration of unemployment compensation benefits up to 39 weeks with employers paying the tab through higher taxes.

—Make available federal-state public assistance for needy children whose parents are unemployed. Needy children qualify for such aid currently only if their father is dead, disabled or has deserted his family.

Morgan, in a statement submitted to the committee, cited the hardships being faced by steelworkers, coal miners and other workers in his southwestern Pennsylvania district.

For the past several years he also has been the champion of assistance to other lands through the U.S. foreign aid program. Morgan always directs the fight on the floor for the annual foreign aid measure.

Two Cabinet officers testified Wednesday that the President's proposals would ease hardships and pump about $1.3 billion in buying power into the sagging economy.

Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg and Abraham A. Ribicoff, secretary of health, education and welfare, told the Ways & Means Committee the proposals were vital to Kennedy's anti-recession program.

8-Year-Old Cub Scout Continues Fight For Life

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Eight-year-old Joey Bonfilio, who achieved his fondest wish and became a Cub Scout before undergoing a delicate brain operation last month, today was in the midst of a series of X-ray treatments.

Joey came through the operation in good shape Jan. 12, but doctors said they had been unable to remove the entire brain tumor because it was in "an extremely unfavorable location."

Since his release from Childrens Hospital Jan. 27, Joey has been regaining his strength at his home in nearby Van Nuys. His father, Carmen Bonfilio, is a film studio worker.

Joey had deeply wanted to become a Cub Scout and had been scheduled to join at the regular pack meeting. Doctors said the operation couldn't wait.

Scoutmaster Lee Zuckerman called a special pack meeting at Joey's home where he was inducted with full head-dress ceremony.

Since going home, Joey has been regaining his strength and is able to be up and around home. He is driven to the hospital for his X-ray treatments five days a week.

The Gray County group worked 121 accident-free hours. Their award was accepted by G. R. Bag-foreman.

Cooler Air Chases Rain Out Of Texas

By United Press International

Spring-like thunderstorms boiled up across West and Central Texas today, bringing showers but cool weather slipping in from the Panhandle was expected to chase them out of the state by tonight.

The rains were torrential at Waco, however, and dozens of streets lay beneath up to eight inches of water until overworked storm sewers could carry it away.

Policeman Hobert Howell said the rains washed a hole "big enough to hide an automobile in" in Riverside Drive, which skirts the Brazos River.

But there was more thunder than shower in most of West Texas.

Pampa's high temperatures yesterday fluctuated in the mid-60s. The overnight low, registered early this morning was 41.

The water was six inches deep for a while in front of the U. S. post office in downtown Waco, where more than 1 1/2 inches fell in less than one hour.

The U. S. Weather Bureau measured only 73 of an inch of rain in Waco for the 24 hours ended at 6 a. m. but the recording was at the airport.

Other rainfall measurements for the same period included: San Angelo .06, Abilene .32, Fort Worth .11, Dallas .32, Austin 1.01, San Antonio .07, Brownsville a trace, Corpus Christi .21, Victoria .02, Houston .01.

Dalhart recorded the overnight low of 41 and 87 was the lowest it got at Brownsville and Laredo.

Meanwhile, moderate temperatures were expected to remain the rule today and tonight with maximum readings expected to climb up to the mid-80s in southern sections and range in the 70s and 80s over most of the rest of the state.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was favored for the 1964 nomination by nearly 11 per cent of the delegates who replied.

Answers were received from 780, or 58.6 per cent, of the 1,331 delegates to the Republican convention last summer.

ed the committee to send a proposed corporate income tax bill to the subcommittee.

The group took no action on his request, but suggested that Stevens go before the subcommittee with his proposal.

A parade of witnesses told the committee Texas is on the brink of taxing big business out of the state.

One opponent of the measure, Herman Combs, tax manager for Champion Paper and Fiber Co., told the franchise tax was based on "perverted logic" and "a vicious concept."

He said the levy has "reached its limit as a source of revenue." Opponents recommended a general sales tax. One, Curtis H. Hendenhead, representing Lone Star Steel Co., called for an income tax.

He and Raymond W. Hedges of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce said they didn't believe they were bearing enough personal tax.

Rep. Franklin Spears of San Antonio, sponsor of the bill, told the committee the new formula would not affect Texas corporations doing business entirely within the state.

He estimated the tax would hit 7,000 corporations in interstate business.

"As it is now," Spears said, "a company could have its expensive plant and capital improvements in state and sell all its goods out of the state and get away with most no taxes."

He cited a gas pipeline company with $6.6 million net profit in 1958 that paid only $313 in franchise taxes.

A third part of Daniel's anti-tax program—a 3-per cent one-time increase in the gas production tax—is scheduled for public hearing Friday.

Fruit Dumplings Click In February Debut

Lard is known for its great "shortening power."

In addition to this quality, lard also possesses many other outstanding attributes. It's readily workable at refrigerator as well as at room temperatures, it adds to the nutritive value of the foods in which it is used and to the budget-minded homemaker, lard is also economical.

If you're looking for an all-around shortening, lard is one of the most versatile cooking fats available.

CHERRY DUMPLINGS—serve 'em just once topped with either whipped or regular cream and you'll find that they're an excellent-dessert choice. What would be more fashionable than cherry dessert in February?

There's only one way to describe this fabulous dessert... pretty to look at, easy to prepare and yummy to eat!

Without a doubt this recipe for Cherry Dumplings will turn the heads and command the attentions of all interested spectators.

Planned as a bounteous dinner finale or as an afternoon coffee entree for the ladies, these Cherry Dumplings win friends with little coaxing.

You might surprise your family or guests by informing them that these delicious cherry gems are actually prepared in a frying pan.

As the name indicates, the batter for the dumplings is literally dumped or dropped by spoonfuls into the boiling cherry sauce. After being covered tightly, and the heat reduced, the dumplings are allowed to simmer approximately 20 minutes.

They are served hot—directly from the frying-pan, topped with whipped or regular cream.

A major point to consider when preparing any type of homemade baked products is the shortening. There are many kinds of shortening on the market today, all vying for the individual homemaker's attention.

As any homemaker realizes, the shortening in the baked product is the ingredient which makes cakes light; pastry tender—and flaky; fritters and croquettes crisp and biscuits fluffy.

As you read over this recipe, you'll note that lard is the recommended shortening.

French Fries Star In Avocado Soup

There is almost no limit to the variety of potato soups that are served around the world. Each country has its own delicious specialty. Although ingredients and seasonings may vary, thrifty homemakers long ago learned that hearty, savory potato soups add flavor, nutrition, and often excitement to the family meals.

One of the most interesting versions of this popular food is potato-avocado soup from the Andes mountain region of Ecuador. We are not sure that Ecuadorian homemakers have tried frozen French fries in this delectable soup... but we did... and are delighted with the result: a creamy, flavorful, hearty soup which can be the main course of a family meal. It's quick and easy, too!

AJIACO SOUP (Potato-Avocado Soup From the Andes)

- 1-3 cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- Dash of pepper
- 3 cups milk
- 2 packages (9 oz. each) or 1 1-pound package frozen French fries
- 1 cup shredded process American cheese (about 1/4 lb.)
- 2 eggs, beaten slightly

1-avocado, peeled and cut into 1/4 inch slices.

Saute onion in butter or margarine. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk and cook, stirring until heated. Add cheese and frozen French fries and allow to heat, stirring carefully occasionally. Stir a small amount of hot soup into eggs; add eggs to soup; blend. Serve topped with avocado slices.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

New Tuna Casserole!

Lenten meals a problem? Not when you have a deliciously different casserole recipe like Tuna Tetrazzini tucked in your recipe file. This hearty main dish combines everyday ordinary foods in a superbly flavored cheese sauce. A dash of oregano adds a real Italian touch!

Even though this is a meatless dish, it has plenty of protein from fish and cheese—and instant nonfat dry milk. Cooking with dry milk gives you the calcium, protein and vitamins of milk, without fat. Just mix the dry milk with the flour and seasonings of the zesty cheese sauce.

Tuna Tetrazzini is a meatless casserole that will please your family anytime. Try it soon!

- 1/4 cup Butter or Margarine
- 1/3 cup finely cut Green Pepper
- 1/3 cup finely cut Onion
- 4-oz. can Mushroom Stems and Pieces, well drained
- 1/4 cup all-purpose Flour
- 1/2 teasp. Oregano
- 1/2 teasp. Salt
- 1/4 teasp. Pepper

Turn on oven and set at 350 (moderate). Melt butter or margarine in a 10-inch skillet. Add green pepper, onion and mushrooms and cook until lightly browned. Remove from heat and gradually stir in a mixture of flour, oregano, salt, pepper and instant nonfat dry milk. Gradually stir in water. Return to heat. Cook and stir over low heat until thick. Do not boil. Stir in cheese until melted. Remove from heat and add tuna and spaghetti. Pour into a 1-1/2-quart casserole and top with buttered crumbs. Bake near center of oven 30 minutes, or until bubbly hot. Makes 4-6 servings.

Good Breakfast Is Important To Your Day's Work

If you fall flat in mid-morning like a sour note from a short-winded tuba player, you, like he, are suffering from power loss. You give an off-key performance. Have a weak fortissimo. And uneasy breathing in the works.

Your power loss can come from too little breakfast or too much. So concluded two scientists at the State University of Iowa who studied the reactions of junior high school boys, oldsters, and college men and women. Too much breakfast and their subjects all felt sluggish. Too little, and they could not work up to ability. The ideal breakfast, they found, supplied about one-fourth of the calories needed each day. This research denies a widely held belief: that breakfast should furnish as much as one-third of the day's calories.

You accomplish most — and feel like doing it — if you have your first meal within minutes after you roll out of bed, whether you are dedicated to a three-meal plan or a six-meal plan for the day. Eating breakfast is good insurance for plenty of life in morning and a solid step to controlling your weight.

No food is specially sacred breakfast. You may want to your day with a sandwich — it, if you like — and fruit keep your power and not run before noon, make your selection for breakfast from essential groups recommended for day's eating: Enriched or grain bread and cereal, milk, cheese, egg or food that alternate with it, fruits and vegetables.

Ohio's flag is different from every other state flag in the U.S. that it is of a swallowtailed-nant shape.

Chiffon Pie Makes Most Of Wafers And Tasty Egg-Nog

We find dairy eggnog such a versatile dairy food to use. It's particularly wonderful in dishes calling for a blend of whole sweet milk and eggs. Velvety smooth and creamy, seasoned with just a modicum of spices, you'll find it the perfect ingredient for this delicate chiffon pie that's based on a crust of buttery vanilla wafers.

EGGNOG-APRICOT CHIFFON PIE

8-10 servings

Pie plate, 10-inch

Preheated 350 degrees oven

VANILLA WAFER CRUST:

1 1/2 cups fine vanilla wafer

1/4 cup sugar

1-3 cup butter, melted

FILLING:

1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatin

1/4 cup dairy-eggnog

1 1/2 cups dairy eggnog

3 egg yolks

1/4 cup sugar

3 egg whites

1/4 cup sugar

1 cup pureed apricots

Combine crumbs and sugar, add butter and blend lightly. Press into pie plate; bake 10 minutes. Cool thoroughly. Soften gelatin in 1/4 cup eggnog. In saucepan heat 1 1/2 cups eggnog. Beat together egg yolks and 1/4 cup sugar; gradually stir into the warm eggnog. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until custard coats a spoon; add gelatin and stir until dissolved; cool. Beat egg whites until foamy; add 1/4 cup sugar and continue beating until stiff. Fold egg whites and pureed apricots into cooled custard. Pour into prepared crust, chill until set.

Simplicity Keynotes Lenten Days Menu

For the Lenten days ahead, try scallops cooked in a wine-garlic sauce, served with creamed macaroni shells. A tossed green salad and fresh fruit served with cookies for dessert round out the meal with simplicity. The beverage—tea, of course.

DELUXE SCALLOPS AND MACARONI SHELLS

(Makes 4-6 servings)

2 1/2 cups cooked macaroni shells

1/2 pound creamed cottage cheese

1/2 cup sour cream

1 egg

1/4 cup sugar

1 pound scallops

Salt and pepper to taste

1/4 cup butter

1 garlic clove, crushed

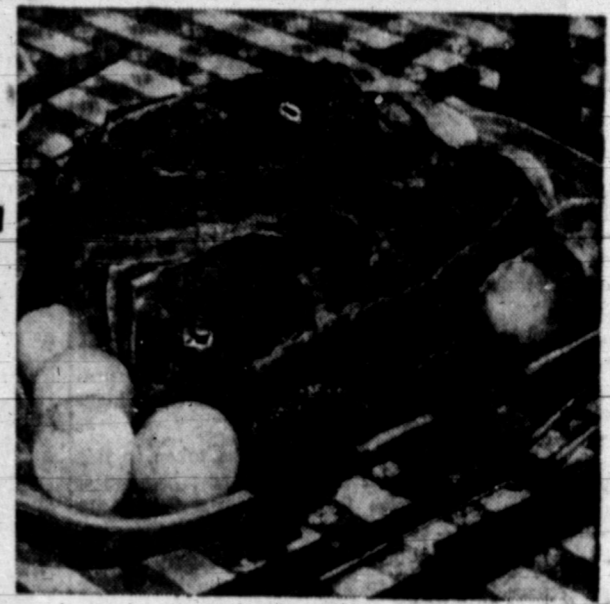

1/2 cup cooking sherry

Blend together, cottage cheese, sour cream, egg and sugar. Stir in cooked macaroni shells. Turn into a well-greased casserole. Bake in moderately hot oven 375 degrees F. 20-30 minutes, or until done.

To prepare scallops, sprinkle with salt and pepper. In large skillet melt butter, add garlic and cooking sherry. When mixture is hot, add scallops. Cook, uncovered, over low heat 10 to 15 minutes or until scallops are done. Serve immediately with macaroni shells.

SAFEWAY features new "light-dark meat" idea:

"Pork 'n' Beef" Roast

"Give me a slice of light and a slice of 'dark' need not be limited to turkey time! Your family can make the same request with this new meal idea... it offers great taste rewards. This "twin" roast idea pairs a pork cut and a beef cut in the same pot. The beef imparts a succulent goodness to the pork. In turn, the beef acquires delightful flavor from the pork! Pot roast the cuts together (or oven roast them, covered) and serve slices of each for the first meal. Then use the pork and beef separately for delicious planned-over meals. Save time and money! Air Cargo Develops Into Boon To Business

By JOHN D. LOWRY

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Air cargo is developing into a boon for people who enjoy fancy eating as well as those who want to avoid the cost of long-time storage.

This is the consensus of business and airline men who have watched the growth of this steadily developing field.

Sam Dunlap, vice president in charge of cargo operations for Trans World Airlines, noted that air cargo will eventually make it possible for his company to deliver within 72 hours fresh fruits and vegetables to any part of the world.

A nine-ton shipment of turkey eggs recently was flown from California to Iowa in the winter for early nesting. Strawberry and asparagus shippers already have used air cargo to ship their produce to shortage areas for a higher return.

Businessmen have taken to this brand of air transport because it helps them eliminate the costly warehousing of their merchandise.

A sign of the expansion of such cargo traffic is the number of non-jet commercial planes which are being converted to freight use.

TWA put 12 idle Super Constellation cargo use when jet planes replaced them.

The Super Constellations are capable of nonstop flights across the United States and over the Pole to Europe.

The fastest and lowest cost distribution of goods was recently discussed at two meetings of the American Management Association.

Special emphasis was given to "piggyback" service, containerization and coordinated transportation, to eliminate taxation on stored goods.

The Raytheon Co. determined that for a minimum cost a new distributor could go into the electronic products business with no inventory beyond what he had in the showroom.

The firm now is able to deliver overnight a product which is ordered by wire.

The swim suit manufacturers, Cole of California, discovered that suits manufactured on the West Coast on a Monday could be modeled and sold in New York City on the following day.

Question Of Fact

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A student organization committee at the University of Texas settled a question of FACT when it ruled both the Forty Acres Change Time political party and the Foundation for the Advancement of Conservative Thought could keep their identical initials without hurting each other.

Chicken Who Lived Like A Dog Is Given Funeral Like Human

EXTON, Pa. (UPI)—Dear Boss: I was late for work and I'm sorry. But the fact is that I've been sitting up with a mortally sick Oo-ee.

I'm forgetting, though, that you don't know what an Oo-ee is. That's my small-fry's name for a chicken.

Her real name was Mehitabel, though, and let me tell you, she was a character and a revelation to a guy who previously only thought of Oo-ees (pronounced ooooo) as birds that looked nifty taken apart and surrounded by mashed potatoes and string beans.

To begin with, this Mehitabel was a maverick. She was, I think, a type called a red cross, and she probably fell off a truck back there in the summer of 1955.

Anyway, that was about the time she showed up at our place and began bumming handouts. She got pretty bold about it, too, coming to the back door and rapping for attention and even walking into the kitchen if she had a chance.

In those days she lived in a thicket of lilac, but later as she got older she moved into the woodshed to stay out of the snow in the wintertime. But last year she moved out to the kennel because by that time she was convinced she was a dog.

She'd spend hours leaning—literally—against the kennel fence chatting with the dogs, or getting in their runs and trying to play with them. And, of course, she ate dog food with an occasional hand-out of bread or wild bird food. She'd come when called and while she wasn't exactly obedience trained, she would follow us around the acreage out to the orchard or to the garden or to help us burn papers in the incinerator. She did everything but work.

Mehitabel's color began to fade last spring and her comb faded to a light pink. Age was catching up with her, but she refused to admit it until one day a couple of weeks ago when we had our first cold snap.

I was out in the kennel doing some chores one evening when she came to the door and asked to come in. Don't ask me how, but she did—there was no mistaking it.

So I opened the door for her and she walked in. I put her in one of the inside heated runs, put out a menu and let it go at that. But the handwriting was on the wall. She became progressively more feeble until finally she dragged herself to one side of the pen, braced one wing on the food dish and the other on the water dish, and put her checks back on the rack.

We had to have a funeral, of course, although it was a simple one. The ground was almost too frozen for digging.

So that's why I was late for work boss. We wouldn't have wanted it any other way, now would we?

Fraternally,
Bill Engelke

Adenauer Faces Challenge From Young Germans

WELLINGTON LONG
 (UPI) — The generation are the brunt of the second war has chosen 1961 as the year to challenge 84-year-old Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's leadership in West Germany.

Brandt, born the year the world war started and now mayor of West Berlin, is the instrument of the challenge.

Brandt, the top candidate of the opposition in the elections scheduled for September, is soft-pedaling criticism of Adenauer's policies.

Adenauer has countered that the younger men must be given the reins of power, and that the logical successor to Adenauer is one who has refrained from naming an heir apparent.

EA Liberalization Aid Poses Real Fight

FLETCHER ROBERTSON
Daily News Austin Correspondent

AUSTIN — Powerful pressure is for and against — have an lowering the boom on a bill which would liberalize the authority under which the Rural Electrification Administration functions in Texas.

Donzo W. Jamison Jr., Denton, author of the measure, predicts a fight between private power companies and the co-op people. Neither side wants to give an inch, Jamison said.

Basically, the bill would permit REA to continue serving areas which it now operates and in areas in municipal government territory to determine whether service should be provided by a co-op if he wants to. Existing law prohibits the private power from making the switch.

The measure also gives the user private power the right to generate and buy electricity in a co-op if he wants to. Existing law prohibits the private power from making the switch.

Private power companies don't like the idea of the subsidized REA moving in on their territory. They are trying to keep the co-op in the rural area which it set up to serve.

The co-operatives are equally determined to stay where they operate and maybe move in a little on private enterprise, which the bill would permit them to do. Lobbyists for both sides are at work and a real donnybrook in the House seems to be shaping up over the long haul, Jamison said, the bill is of tremendous significance to both the private power companies and the REA. Here's how he sized it up:

"A great deal of territory now served by the REA will be taken over by cities over the next 10 years and the co-operative people would like to get their position established."

The power companies would like to get their position established too, they want the Legislature to put stop — once and for all — to the continual attempt for the REA move into cities and compete with free enterprise.

Here's what several West Texas lawmakers think about the bill: Rep. Grainger McIlhenny, Wheeling — "Usually I am friendly to the REA idea of the REA."

Rep. George Cook, Odessa — "I'll be against it unless the REA people come up with something to make me change my mind."

W. E. Snelson, Midland — "Right now I have an open mind on the matter. I'd like to look into provisions of the bill before coming to a decision."

Senate Swim Pool Nearing Completion

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
WASHINGTON (UPI)—That new Senate pool is coming along—er, uh—swimmingly.

Progress on the remodeling project now has been confirmed by an on-the-spot inspection of the sensitive area.

Normally, newsmen are not permitted behind the doorway of Room 116 in the Old Senate Office building. The gymnasium facilities behind the door are off-limits. A sign on the door reads:

PRIVATE SENATORS ONLY

However, a UPI inspection team—disguised as workmen with a wheelbarrow full of cement—rolled through the door Tuesday and almost fell into the pool, still empty but apparently near completion.

Despite a furor which greeted disclosure of the project last spring, the pool proved to be a modest undertaking, not at all out of keeping with standards of the Senate, sometimes called the world's most exclusive club.

Described as 20 by 20 feet in Senate debate last summer, the $44,000 pool will give senatorial swimmers a little additional room at one gently curved end.

The color scheme is two-tone blue with the darker tiles at the top.

Cotton Price To Be Aired By Freeman

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman said Tuesday he plans to announce the 1961 Cotton support price this week.

There were strong informal hints from other sources that the price would be close to the rate paid in 1960 to growers who complied with basic government planting allotments.

If 1961 supports are continued at the basic dollar-and-cents rate, there would be some increase in the open-market price. This is because in 1960 the government purchased cotton grown under the basic control program and resold it at a price about two cents a pound below the basic support.

No plans for cut-rate resale of the domestic market have been announced for 1961.

Freeman met Tuesday for three hours in a closed session with leaders of the National Cotton Council and the administration's own Cotton Advisory Committee. They reviewed proposals for the 1961 cotton program and long-range cotton plans.

The same committee, in a report drafted in an earlier meeting by 10 of its 19 members, advised President Kennedy two weeks ago that 1961 cotton supports should be set at the basic 1960 rate.

In 1960, growers who complied with basic allotments got 32.42 cents per pound for one inch middling cotton. This amounted to 75 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity price.

To give growers a price of about 32 cents again this year would result in a support rate of about 80 or 81 per cent of parity because the cotton support formula changed this year.

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Memorial Museum inaugurated a new mailing series of pamphlets with a bulletin on "Myohyus Nasutus, Long-nosed Peccary of the Texas Pleistocene," a type of hog, and received this somewhat misspelled note from a recipient included, by mistake, on the mailing list:

"Sirs: You made a mistake send me that pig paper. Why do people wait there time that away. The only hog bone I'm interested in is a pork chop."

GOSH, ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN IS OUT OF MY LINE, MISS JOE, BUT THERE MUST BE SOMETHING WE CAN DO!
SAY! MAYBE I'M REACHING WAY OUT IN LEFT FIELD, BUT I JUST THOUGHT OF SOMETHING!

Card parties with a national theme offer a gay change of pace for winter evening entertainment. An Early American whist party (left) carries out the theme in red, white and blue decorations. Hostess in striped apron ladles apple cider from glass punch bowl; The Irish game of Spoil Five teams up (right) with Shamrock green decorations and frothy Irish coffee to set the stage for a St. Patrick's Day fete.

Card Parties Offer Gay Change Of Pace

Card party with the game, refreshments and decorations tied to a national theme is just what the director might order for the who wants to expand her horizons.

It's determined to make more effort this winter to introduce new neighbors to old friends, now more personally newcomers to our church, to meet the hands and families of women worked with in organizations.

Party-throwing experts are apt to advise you to gather interesting people, serve good food and off conversation that will all be entertained. In my home gambit usually winds up with men in one corner discussing averages and women in an exchanging child-care hints, surprising as it may seem, the amount value of card games confined to a bridge four or Saturday night poker. There are literally hundreds of games, many with national ties suggest party themes. Less familiar games are a challenge to and they don't give quite an advantage to the person used to one game.

Textbooks on the subject a paperback copy of Hoyle's rules and a slim pamphlet "The World in 20 Card Games." The pamphlet suggests refreshments, and suggestions of 20 countries and a tells you how to play these dozens of others. Anticipating stress dilemmas, Hoyle's obliges categories games as "hilarious," "social" and "studious."

Early American whist party, example, sounds fine for a winter's evening. Whist, an century favorite thatched Edmond Hoyle as an expert in card games, is a forerunner of bridge and played with a table.

is classified as "studious" and tests are young and giddy, you want to substitute All Fours "itch" ("social").

Victims could be written on parchment scrolls. Decorations centered around bean pots of ears, ears of bright Indian corn topped pencils for scoring and a Yankee Doodle hat for the dealer at each table.

Appropriate refreshments include New England clam chowder, baked beans and brown bread, Indian pudding and cold apple cider ladled from a glass punch bowl.

Or, doff your hat to St. Patrick's Day.

It's a safe bet that the "youngest" older women you know have a lot in common. Isn't it true that they don't find the younger generation shocking? They don't talk about the past to the exclusion of the present and the future? They refuse to be bossed by their grown children and firmly go about doing as they please? They have a keen interest in what is going on in the world and keep themselves well-informed on world affairs? They make light of their troubles and much prefer to talk about pleasant subjects than about depressing ones? They have plenty to do to keep them busy? They are sympathetic and understanding instead of being highly critical of others? They have a sense of humor and can even poke fun at themselves? They have a "let's not get excited" attitude toward life's little misfortunes, for having seen big troubles they aren't too impressed with small crises? They can get ready to go anywhere in nothing flat — and so have plenty of opportunities for companionship? They all take pride in doing something exceptionally well? They get real pleasure out of helping others? They are always looking forward to something? It must be more than coincidence that the young - in - heart share so many attitudes. Could it be that their particular attitudes toward life and living would help anyone young?

UNITED CHURCH OF CHRIST

Services to be held at 7:30 a. m. on Friday in the First Methodist Church and at 10 a. m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

In Columbia there is a great reservoir of good will toward the United States, mixed in smaller degree with the resentment common among Latin American nations because of U.S. preoccupation with Europe and Asia.

Dear Abby... Old Enough To Know Better!!!

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am ashamed to tell you how old I am. Let's just say I am old enough to know better. I've been a widower for six years and have grandchildren. I got myself involved with a divorcee who is determined to marry me. I am NOT RICH. In fact, she can buy and sell me many times. We saw a lot of each other last year and then I realized I couldn't take her in large doses. She acts like she owns me. New Year's Eve she had a big party. She'd bought herself a great big diamond and told everybody I gave it to her. Weddings usually follow engagements. She is pressuring me. How do I get out of this?

DEAR OLD FOOL: Look her straight in the eye, apologize for taking so much of her time and tell her the "engagement," which was never on, is now off. Finally, don't date her again or you'll find yourself in the same old corner.

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear friend who is 48 and thinks she is pregnant. She is quite sure but not positive. She had her last child when she was 43. Her worry is that people will make fun of her for having a child at that age. Does this happen to many women? I would like to be able to tell her it does, so she'll feel better. Thank you.

DEAR FRIEND: Tell her that it happens to many women. And they are the first to admit that the little dividend, delivered long after they thought the production department had closed down, was the greatest blessing of all.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me what you think of women

'Johnny's I. Q. Comes Under Close Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Mothers, when children's school marks are not up to snuff, are you prone to muse: "Poor child, he's not to blame. His father's folks were just the same."?

Seriously though, you do give thought to the question of your child's intelligence — and that one word can stir up a rash of questions: What is intelligence? How is it measured? Are intelligence and talent the same? How do schools use test results? Does IQ change? Foremost educators have been giving those questions searching scrutiny. Results of their most recent research are now available for teachers to share with parents through a booklet being distributed by the National Education Association.

Its title: A Briefing for Parents: Your Child's Intelligence. Educators agree that intelligence is a term hard to define because "it is a variety of mental abilities that may be balanced in infinite ways." The dictionary definition: "The power or act of understanding" does not suffice — too general. A successful mathematician, for instance, may have the ability to reason mathematically, yet be poor in simple arithmetic. Another example is the person unable to express himself fluently, yet who possesses a large vocabulary and understands complicated prose easily.

The experts say that intelligence is a combination of differing abilities and that each "intelligence package" — in this case your child — varies just as much as every person differs from another. The value emerging from intelligence tests, however, is a "mental profile" of the child. This, the booklet points out, is of more worth to teachers and guidance counselors than an IQ rating.

Tests do measure tasks believed to require intelligence, which cannot be measured directly. Generally educators say, these tests measure a child's ability to learn what he is supposed to learn in school. They are inconclusive, however, in that they are not a complete index of his brain-power nor his intellectual capacity.

The IQ test measures the mental age of a child in relationship to other children. The booklet gives this example: "If Tommy, 7, gets the same score as the average score of children aged 8½ years old, he has a mental age of 8.4. The intelligence quotient is obtained by dividing mental age by chronological age and multiplying the result by 100." Ninety to 110 is considered normal; scores upward of 130 imply superior intelligence.

An important distinction is made between achievement tests which measure what a child has actually learned and intelligence tests which measure a child's ability to see relationships between things, to reason, to manipulate, compare and contrast.

Of the intelligence-talent link, research shows there isn't much relationship between creativity and academic ability. The youngster with a high IQ actually may have little talent or may score poorly in creative tests.

Results of all the tests become part of the child's permanent record — the cumulative file which guides a counselor in answering such questions as: "Should I go to college?" and "What kind of work am I best suited for?"

Harvesters, Plainview Tangle In District Finale Here Tonight

By ARTHUR MAYHEW
Daily News Sports Editor

Pampa's Harvesters, perhaps still dazed from Tuesday's last second 63-62 loss to Amarillo, conclude an up-and-down season here at 8 p.m. today when they host Plainview's Bulldogs in a District 3-4A battle at Harvester Fieldhouse.

In their last meeting, Plainview triumphed, 58-36, on two free throws in the last two seconds, just one of many such squeakers the Green and Gold has seen go against them this season.

And, despite Pampa's 10-16 record and 3-10 in district, the Harvesters will be favored to repel the Bulldog invaders tonight and thus set up the possibility of a fifth-place tie with Tascosa (4-9) which meets Amarillo's Sandies (8-5) tonight also.

However, the most important game of the district campaign looms in Amarillo tonight where Palo Duro — already assured of at least a tie for the 1961 crown — hosts second place co-holder Borger in a do-or-die finale.

Palo Duro is 10-2 and Borger and Monterey are 9-3. Should Amarillo upset the Dons and Monterey repeat an earlier victory over Lubbock, Friday morning would find all three tied for the title.

In such case, officials of the three schools would meet for a coin toss Friday morning with the odd man meeting the winner of the first round for the title. The games will be played on Friday and Saturday, most likely on a home-and-home basis.

As for tonight's game here, the Harvesters will be going for a victory that would not only put salve on some of the latest one-point wounds but would also give them an 11-16 record, far better than the most hopeful Pampans visualized at the season's beginning.

In order for Pampa to wrap up its year on a happy note, Coach Terry Cully would like to string together another team game similar to Tuesday's where four Harvesters hit in double figures, led by Wayne Kries' 16 points.

Kries, a 5-10 sophomore who has come on with a rush to score 29 points in the last two games, has an even more amazing shooting percentage, hitting 10 of 12 from the field and 9 for 12 from the free throw line in the last pair.

Along with Kries, Cully probably will go with Pat Carter, the calm 5-10 senior who almost pulled out the victory over Amarillo with two free shots in the last three seconds to put Pampa ahead, 62-61; Allen Wise, who hit 15 against Amarillo; and either Ronnie Chase or Gordon Balch, both sophomores.

Coach Bob Clindaniel will bring a Plainview team to Harvester Fieldhouse that has been riddled with misfortune upon misfortune after being picked for a third place finish.

Heading the Bulldog aggregation will be Jackie Swanner, a 6-3 junior who is one of the top players in the district — including the winning free throws — and third in district scoring with 203 points.

Flanking Swanner will be Tommy Aday, a 6-3 senior another good shot; and juniors Danny Taylor, 5-9, Nicholson, 5-11, and Don Ford, 5-9.

Plainview is tied with Pampa and Lubbock for place in 3-4A, all with 3-10 marks, and a loss by either will drop it into the cellar for good.

In the 6:15 preliminary battle, Pampa's Shockers were out to end its season with a victory and bring their district record to 9-5. In the first meeting, the Shockers 54-51.

Skate Show 'On' Despite Tragedy

By United Press International

The show will go on — minus any United States figure skating team, which is likely to be missing from the winner's circle in Olympic and international competition for the "next three or four years" as a result of Wednesday's air tragedy in Belgium.

Organizers of the World Figure Skating Championships announced the events will be held as originally scheduled, Feb. 21-26, in land, George Haesler, secretary of the International Skating Union, said the championships would be cancelled "as a sign of mourning for our sports comrades."

Later, however, Ludwig Uhler, chairman of the Czech organizing committee, said in Prague all members of the committee discussed the tragedy "for about one hour and then decided to stick to our plans and stage the event."

Claunch To Miss Big Meet

FORT WORTH (UPI) — At least five new champions will be crowned in the 25th annual state Golden Gloves Boxing Tournament which opens a five-night stand at Will Rogers Coliseum tonight.

Three 1960 champs—heavyweight Henry Harris Jr. of Houston, welterweight Gary Watt of Amarillo and lightweight Reggie Davis of Sherman—were in the field, but Davis has dropped into the lightweight division.

Between 100 and 115 boxers will compete with full eight-man teams from Corpus Christi, Dallas, Houston, Odessa, Waco and Fort Worth and seven-man teams from San Antonio and Sherman.

Odessa is reported to have a strong team on hand to defend its team trophy, but competition is expected to be heavy from Corpus Christi, Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Amarillo and Waco.

The Amarillo Region team, considered as one of the stronger threats for the team title, received a severe jolt with the news that Pampa heavyweight Johnny Claunch would not fight.

Claunch, one of the two former champions in the tournament—the other being Bobby Wilhelm of Pampa who is fighting for Corpus Christi — came down with the flu earlier this week in Pampa along with an infected arm but medical treatment failed.

Claunch won the light heavy title in 1958 and had been a favorite to meet Harris in the championship finals.

Another Amarillo regional winner, Manny Perez of Amarillo, encountered some difficulties in Amarillo earlier in the week and wasn't expected to make the trip. In his place, the region picked Watt, who was defeated by Perez in the finals of the Amarillo tournament.

However, Perez was reported enroute here today and speculation was aroused as to which fighter—Watt or Perez — would be named as the Amarillo entrant. The rules committee proposed in event that both fighters showed that an opening night elimination bout be held but that far all plans are in the first stage since neither boxer has arrived.

Wilhelm, son of the Pampa coach Ollie Wilhelm, won the state welter weight crown in 1958 but is fighting in the middleweight division this time. He qualified at Corpus Christi while fighting for Corpus Christi University, where he is enrolled on a boxing scholarship.

Charles Snider, the other Pampa representative on the Amarillo team, was expected to make a strong showing also. Snider went to the 1958 state tournament as an alternate but lost his first fight.

This time Snider is going on his own and will be shooting for the 160-pound title. With a good right, he is considered a good bet despite his short (5-8) stature and can put anybody away if he connects.

Miss. Southern Advances

Tennessee A&I Loses Ground In UPI Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mississippi Southern, with only a loss to major college Memphis State in 20 games this season, moved to within 13 points of Tennessee A & I's shrinking first-place lead today in the United Press International small college basketball ratings.

The Southerners, who whipped Florida Southern, Spring Hill and Christian Brothers last week while Tennessee A & I was losing two of three games, drew the first-place support of 11 coaches, while the Tigers were the top pick of 15 coaches.

Tennessee A&I, which has led the weekly ratings now for 10 straight weeks, lost to major schools St. Bonaventure, 104-87, and Georgetown (Ky.), 85-81, before beating Kentucky State, 77-55.

A&I had 328 points and Mississippi Southern had 315. That represented A&I's smallest lead since the start of the season. Last week the Tigers led Southern by a comfortable 52 points.

Prairie View A&M, adding two more victories to its perfect record (21-0), drew less support than a week ago for third place but edged a bit closer to the top two with eight first-place votes and 268 points.

Hofstra (N.Y.), which trailed Prairie View by only three points a week ago, dropped back 30 points this week while holding onto fourth place. Then came Southern Illinois, which snapped Tennessee A&I's 18-game winning streak on Jan. 31, Wittenberg, Grambling, Kentucky Wesleyan, Maine and Northern Michigan to round out the top 10.

Miami, Briscoe Fems To Clash

MIAMI — Miami's girl basketball team, 1961 District 11-B champions, meet Briscoe's girls, winners of the district tournament, at 8 p.m. Thursday in Canadian to decide the district champion and bi-district playoff entrant.

Miami's Warriors have already won the 11-B boys title and will meet the winner of the Hedley-Samnorwood battle in the bi-district contest at a date and site yet to be determined.

Duke, Cincinnati Strive for Crucial Wins Tonight

Rusty's One Regret: Loss Of Bobby Layne

By United Press International
 Duke and Cincinnati each can take another giant step toward their respective conference championships when they meet league opponents tonight.

Duke, leveled into a first-place deadlock with North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference when the Tar Heels defeated North Carolina State, 62-56, Wednesday night, can move to the front again by beating Maryland tonight. A victory is a near must for the Blue Devils who would like a soft cushion beneath them when they tackle North Carolina Feb. 25.

The Tar Heels, who have nowhere to go in this year's college basketball picture because of an NCAA probation, put the pressure on Duke with a come-from-behind triumph over their arch-rivals from Raleigh. North Carolina State led, 32-24, at halftime and stretched this to 10 points early in the second half before the Tar Heels caught fire.

Further complicating one of the weirdest races in recent ACC history is the suspension of two North Carolina players, Larry Brown and Don Walsh, and Duke star Art Heyman. The trio was declared ineligible Wednesday when the conference's executive committee upheld a ruling to that effect by league commissioner Jim Weaver.

The suspensions were the result of a fight when North Carolina played Duke Feb. 4.

The players will be eligible to compete in the ACC tournament starting March 2, but this means little to Brown and Walsh since North Carolina already has declared it won't bother sending a team to the playoffs.

'Young' White Takes PGA Senior Tee Lead

DUNEDIN, Fla. (UPI) — The first round Tuesday when more elderly of the oldsters teed off in the second round of the PGA Seniors golf championship bracket, took the lead with a 67 today, seeking to beat a course record 63 set by "youngster" Buck White of Greenwood, Miss.

White took the first-round lead with his nine-under-par 63, the best competitive card ever turned in on the PGA national course here.

White, playing in the 50-54 age group, just turned 50 Feb. 7 and may be the youngest man in the vast field of more than 300 golfers who turned out for this 22nd Seniors event.

His 63 was three strokes better than the next best, Leonard Ruck of Sylvania, Ohio. And it was the four-strokes better than the best of the four-strokes better than the best turned in during the first half of

Louisiana's Ellender Performs Three Rites

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During each session of Congress, in addition to his other duties, Sen. Allen J. Ellender, a Louisiana Democrat, world traveler, penny-pincher and gastronome, performs three rites.

He concocts, with magic powders and incantations, a delectable creole gumbo, which is served to a favored few at private lunches in his hideaway office in the Capitol.

He stages, on the day the Senate is lading out money to its committees, a foredoomed attack on the high cost of legislating.

And he reports, at length, and in detail, on the trips he makes during the congressional recess as an emissary of the Senate Committee on Appropriations.

This was the week for the last of these rituals and Ellender, it seemed to me, was at the top of his form as he boxed the compass pointing out weak spots in our foreign operations.

In printed form, the report on his 1960 odyssey covered 35 countries and 1,150 pages, much of it in small type. Although this was his ninth trip, Ellender's powers of observation obviously remain undiminished.

Each section opens with a geographical description of the country visited, proving that Ellender, unlike some congressmen on study missions, knew where he was at all times.

"Switzerland," he writes, "lies in the heart of Europe, surrounded on the north by the federal republic of Germany, on the east by Austria and the principality of Liechtenstein, on the south by Italy, and on the west by France."

On the other hand, Yugoslavia "is strategically located on the middle Danube, bounded on the west by Italy and the Adriatic Sea; on the north by Austria and Hungary; on the east by Romania and Bulgaria; and on the south by Albania and Greece."

The report, in addition to being a critique of our far-flung operations, is part travelogue, part guidebook and part diary. In each country, Ellender tells us who met him at the airport and what the exchange value of the local currency is.

In India, he found that Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, although able to speak perfect English, "was not very talkative." In Amsterdam, he reports, "traffic was brisk."

Nepal, Ellender discovered, has 158 holidays a year and a workday that runs from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with time out at 1:30 p.m. for a siesta.

I gather that Ellender agrees in some measure with the "Yankee go home" campaigns in some countries. He said Pakistan "is swarming with Americans" and that West Germany has "entirely too many" U.S. personnel.

Moreover, he thinks it would be a good thing if Russia started sending more aid to more countries. That, he said, is the only way Russia will learn "how grateful people can become."

Three new officers have been elected by the Christian Rural Overseas unit here.

Elected during the CROP meeting last Thursday were: the Rev. Jack Riley, publicity chairman; Mrs. W. R. Dunn, secretary, and Gerald Sims, treasurer.

The Rev. Norman A. Sundwall, state director for CROP, was guest speaker for the Gray County unit's meeting. He discussed the problems and needs of the poverty-stricken people of foreign nations, and showed the film "The Sounds of the Earth," a movie that points up the hunger that is ever present to some 150,000 youngsters in Hong Kong.

Those attending the session that was held in the Gray County Agriculture Bldg. included: the Rev. Mr. Riley, the Rev. Woodrow Adcock, Paul Bowers, Foster Whaley, Joe Lewis, Stanley Friend, Bob Black, Mrs. Evelyn Mason, Mrs. Dunn and Nick Nichols.

North America, with about 20 per cent of the earth's cultivated area, has 7.5 per cent of the world's population.

Each section opens with a geographical description of the country visited, proving that Ellender, unlike some congressmen on study missions, knew where he was at all times.

"Switzerland," he writes, "lies in the heart of Europe, surrounded on the north by the federal republic of Germany, on the east by Austria and the principality of Liechtenstein, on the south by Italy, and on the west by France."

On the other hand, Yugoslavia "is strategically located on the middle Danube, bounded on the west by Italy and the Adriatic Sea; on the north by Austria and Hungary; on the east by Romania and Bulgaria; and on the south by Albania and Greece."

VACCINATED HERSELF — She just wanted to kiss her cousin's vaccination "to make it well." And Michelle Keith, 3, of Cleveland, Ohio, wound up with her own vaccination on her nose. No harm done, except her parents are worried that she may be left with a scar on her face.

CALI, Colombia (UPI) — In Colombia there is a bitter jest that Latin America should import 50 million Communists, and then it would receive the same attention which the United States now gives to Europe and Asia.

An educator tells of the need to reduce Colombia's greater than 90 per cent illiteracy, and he recalls standing beside a Colombian air force man who watched with pride an American-built Colombian jet fighter streak through the skies.

"I thought of the cost," he said. "One million dollars. For that I could have operated the university for one year."

A businessman tells how Colombians followed the United States elections.

"Every radio in Colombia was tuned to the results," he says. He hopes the new U.S. administration will recognize that Colombia in particular has been a faithful U.S. ally but "last in consideration behind Europe and non-Communist areas."

A coffee grower asks U.S. help in stabilizing coffee prices whose fall has led to a cut in imports of U.S. machinery.

A sugar grower asks a part in the U.S. quota for Colombia's growing sugar industry, just now reaching the export level.

These are not necessarily conflicting interests.

Rather they are representative of a Latin American nation in a hurry.

Colombia is attempting to carry out a controlled economic and social revolution, not far to the left as in Cuba, nor under the same political pressures as in Venezuela. But, as in all of Latin America's undeveloped nations, it is a revolution with problems urgently needing a solution.

Discussions with business and educational leaders disclose general agreement on Colombia's problems—a one-sided economy based on coffee, with illiteracy and low health standards.

But solutions take time and are not easily come by.

TOKYO (UPI) — Nineteen years ago Gen. Hideki Tojo, the wartime premier of Japan, outlawed the English language.

"It's not patriotic," Tojo shrieked in his high pitched voice. "From now on we will use Japanese words."

The bespectacled military man who rode to power on the "Greater East-Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere" ticket excluded only German and Italian from his ban. Other foreign languages were forbidden.

He put out the order just after sending bombers to Pearl Harbor. Because so many English words had crept into the Japanese language, it posed a major problem in the field of day-to-day communication. Japanese linguists estimate that more than 1,000 English words have been incorporated in the Japanese syllabary which utilizes one consonant and one vowel to form the individual syllable.

In fact, one of the three Japanese alphabets is devoted entirely to foreign words.

For example, the Japanese word for camera is spoken ka-me-ra. Radio is pronounced rajio.

When Tojo rewrote the dictionary, camera became "truth copy machinery." If that seems like a jawbreaker in English, it seemed so to the Japanese.

After the war, when the militarists and their stuffy rules were ousted, the Japanese went right back to their customary English words.

They didn't like calling a radio "electric receiving machinery." Most figured that by the time they had pronounced typewriter as "instant printing machine" they already had forgotten what they were talking about in the first place.

The word "large passenger self-moving wagon" became just plain bu-su (bus) once the war was over.

But the real trouble came when the umpire had to call strikes at a baseball game — something Tojo endured because he claimed it was a Japanese invention like the airplane and electricity.

"Striku" had to be called "good pitch," a ball was a bad pitch, else the ump faced the prospect of a visit by the dreaded Japanese secret police.

There was one area, however, that Tojo couldn't invade in his trespassing on the Japanese language. That was the field of sounds in which the Japanese are unique.

Believe it or not, Tokyo dogs don't say bow-wow. They go wew-wan. Cats make a nyago-nyaho sound to the Japanese ear and pigeons coo a strange po-po.

In a country where social customs are rigidly defined by one's status, even laughing is classified according to source and motive.

Like Americans, just plain Joe lets go with an ordinary ha-ha. Women have their own special niche. Her ho-ho is considered more demure and befitting the weaker sex.
