Flood Misery Increases

Surprise Snowstorm Hits Midwest; Snarls Traffic Throughout Ohio Valley

By United Press International

Major floods in the storm-ravaged South Saturday led more than 8,000 persons from their homes, and a surprise snowstorm battered the Midwest and Ohio Valley, cutting scores of emergency services in Indiana.

Hundreds of motorists were stranded on snow and drifted Indiana highways. Travelers were advised to abandon their autos and seek shelter.

The storm dumped up to 6 inches of snow over most of Indiana. Several cities declared states of emergency as power and communications were disrupted.

Air fields were closed by the snow and drifts. Numerous sporting events, including sectional basketball tournaments were cancelled or postponed.

Gaylord Charles Boswell of Indianapolis was one of several persons who declared snow emergencies. Boswell ordered cars owned to get their vehicles off main highways and streets, and appealed to motorists to stay at home and give snow removal crews a free hand in clearing the heavy snowfall.

The Indiana storm hit as several other sections of the nation battled floods, rain, tornadoes, dust and winds.

Wind gusts of up to 80 miles per hour slammed across the Rockies into the plains, reducing visibilities over Colorado, western Nebraska and northwest Kansas. The winds forced the Colorado Highway Patrol to ban the moving of house trailers on highways.

At Portland, Maine, the U.S. Weather Bureau issued preliminary flash flood warnings when heavy rain and a warming trend brought sharp rises on all of Maine's rivers and streams.

No relief was in sight for Dixie, where maverick streams and rivers forced more than 8,000 persons from their homes and derailed a train in Alabama. New trouble spots popped up almost hourly throughout the Southland, which counted at least eight deaths since the floods began a week ago.

The hardest-hit area appeared to be Mississippi, where more than 7,000 persons were homeless.

Today's Lenten Message

By THE REV. THOMAS B. MATHER
Pastor, Central Methodist Church, Kansas City, Mo.
(Written for UPI)

The spirit of God touches men like the moving current of a great stream. Responsiveness to the unseen is the great driving power for strong living. Many of the things we are most concerned about now are but the things of the hour and in five or 10 short years will be entirely forgotten, yet there are values behind them that will last as long as time itself. We are able to drink at the fountain of life and feel refreshed. There are certain rules that we must follow if we would enjoy the power of God. Obviously there must be a willingness to be in on this power. There must be a quietness. When you are all tied up in knots you cannot appreciate the inspiration of a picture, a poem or a symphony. There is far too much of the world with us, and we must be able to shut it out. If we would receive this power, it must be put to some use. It can be used to make us better people, to serve our fellows. We need to yield ourselves to the fellowship of God, to His power use.

God has given us the spirit of power to master, the spirit of love to win, and the spirit of sound mind to dare.

Bill Would Set 14-Day Minimum Oil Production

Pampa News Austin Correspondent
By FLETCHER ROBERTSON

AUSTIN—Gen. Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, doesn't think much of the House bill which would restrict oil production below 14 days a month. As a matter of practical fact, he says it's impractical and would foul up the industry.

The bill, authored by Reps. George Cook of Odessa and Tom Andrews of Arkansas Pass, is in the legislative hopper and should be in the first order of business when the legislators start work at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

General Thompson said Texas fields will produce 2,800,000 barrels in March under the 10-day allowable. "And that's all the U.S. market will absorb — everywhere," he added.

"We have the capacity to produce a million barrels more than the March allowable," the general went on, "but we couldn't sell it if we did and there's no point in producing more oil than we can get rid of."

"The tragic part of something like this would be that these people would get their tanks full of oil and wouldn't be able to move it. Then they'd have to go out of business."

General Thompson also said no (See PRODUCTION, Page 3)

Two Billions Needed To Bolster Defenses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy conferred Saturday with Sen. Richard B. Russell on the administration's new defense policies which reportedly will call for a $2.1 billion increase in the present defense budget.

The Georgia Democrat, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said afterward that "I don't think it would be possible, of course, to increase the strength of our defenses without an increase in spending."

Russell spent an hour at the White House along with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Russell declined to say whether the group discussed a possible increase in the $41.8 billion defense budget proposed by former President Eisenhower for the fiscal year which begins July 1. This is the largest U.S. defense budget in peacetime history.

The senator, however, said he didn't think the American people would mind spending money for national defense as long as they believe they are getting value for the dollar.

The new plan is said to call for speeding missile production, increasing the number of jet bombers on a 15-minute alert, and boosting the size of conventional forces for "brushfire" wars. This would add an estimated $2.1 billion to Eisenhower's budget.

Ike Foregoes His Favorite Pastime

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Former President Dwight Eisenhower satisfied himself Saturday with light exercise and continued relaxation, foregoing his favorite pastime — golf — until completely free from lumbago.

The lumbago followed a cold about 10 days ago. The ex-President tried a game of golf about a week ago, but the ailment proved somewhat troublesome. However, he has been able to do some "sneak" shooting and hopes soon to return to the course.

The Eisenhowers continued a policy of politely declining hundreds of invitations to attend various events in Southern California, and stuck to their informal daily routine.

2 Bodies Taken From Wreckage Of Jet Bomber

HURLEY, Wis. (UPI) — Two unidentified bodies were recovered Saturday from the wreckage of a B47 Stratofortress bomber that crashed in wild northwoods country 10 miles southwest of here. Two other crewmen were still missing.

"The extremely rugged and inaccessible terrain in the area has hampered search operations," said Col. John G. Benner, commander of the 343rd Fighter Group at Duluth Air Base.

An Air Force spokesman said it was reported the bodies were being removed from the wilderness by caterpillar tractor. He said the wreckage was "pretty well pulverized...in small pieces, spread out over a half mile to a mile area."

The plane crashed on a routine practice bombing run.

Red Troops Take Over Capital

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Pro-Lumumba troops buoyed by the bloodless capture of the capital of Kasai Province fanned out through the bush country Saturday in an apparent attempt to cut off the rival army of Joseph Mobutu from its capital of Leopoldville.

The precision and speed with which the supporters of slain ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba moved out from their Stanleyville stronghold in Oriental Province indicated outside support. There was speculation Communist Czech or United Arab Republic officers were helping them.

The Lumumba troop commander technically is Gen. Victor Lundula who was a medical corps sergeant-major before Lumumba elevated him last summer.

Reliable sources said a column from Stanleyville seized Ikela in Equator Province, the home territory of Mobutu who has concentrated many of his 17,000 men at Bumba, 135 miles north of Ikela.

The advancing column split at Ikela, according to dispatches, and one fork headed for Boende on the road to the provincial capital of Coquilhatville. The other branched out for the north Kasai town of Lomela.

Strength of the columns was not known, but some 200 Lumumba men took the Kasai capital of Luluabourg Friday without firing a shot. The 80-man garrison surrendered to them.

New Congolese Premier Joseph Ileo gave the U.N. command until sunset Saturday to get the Lumumbists out of Luluabourg, or else he would send troops to do the job. But the U.N. command did not take the ultimatum seriously. The deadline passed unnoticed.

The Lumumbists under the regime of Soviet-backed Antoine Gizenga in Stanleyville now control three of the six provincial Congo capitals: Stanleyville, Luluabourg and Bukavu, capital of Kivu.

Murder Charge Hurlled

'Krusch' Labels Hammar skjold Chief Assassin

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI) — Nikita S. Khrushchev bombarded the world with letters Saturday denouncing Dag Hammarskjold as the "chief assassin" of ex-Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba and raising again Soviet demands on the Congo which were defeated in the U.N. Security Council this week.

The apparently identical 12-page letters from the Soviet premier accused the West of trying to revive Theodore Roosevelt's "big stick" policy and insisted that U.N. forces in the Congo be pulled out.

Khrushchev called again for support for the pro-Lumumba government of Antoine Gizenga in Oriental Province. He bitterly attacked Hammarskjold on grounds the U.N. secretary general "pursued a policy of base treachery" toward the Congolese people.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry reported the letter had been sent to leaders in Africa, Asia, Latin America and Europe.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain was reported to have received one, but there was no mention of any letter to President Kennedy.

Khrushchev again called for Hammarskjold's diplomatic scalp, demanding his ouster as U.N. chief.

"To put it bluntly, it was in essence Hammarskjold who murdered Lumumba," Khrushchev wrote. "Whoever held the knife or revolver is after all not the sole murderer. The chief assassin is the one who handed him the weapon."

"Such an individual has no right to hold a leading post in the United Nations. We cannot reconcile ourselves to the fact that the secretary general has sullied himself by a foul murder."

The entire U.N. operation in the Congo, he charged, "is an attempt to implement in our time a well known principle... by Theodore Roosevelt who coined the phrase about talking softly but with a big stick in his hand."

Khrushchev defined the modern-day big stick as "subjugation of weaker nations by force of arms."

Cuba and Panama were victims of big stick colonial policies, the Soviet leader said in an indirect attack on the United States.

Russia he said, "also has a big stick," but "relies on its policy or reason" instead.

"... The interests of the Congo's independence as well as those of the United Nations require the immediate termination of the so-called Congo operation and the withdrawal of all foreign troops," he said.

Two more candidates have entered the race for trustee in the Pampa Independent School District.

R. D. Wilkerson, 910 E. Brown, and John Gikas, Pampa restaurant owner, filed yesterday for the April 1 school board election. The two board posts to be filled are the currently expiring three-year terms of E. L. Green Jr. and Demaris Holt.

Gikas has lived in Pampa 14 years and prior to coming to Pampa was a resident of Borge.

In a statement to the News, the 39-year-old Gikas said he is running independent of any individual or group and, if elected, will do his best to serve impartially the best interests of the school district.

Wilkerson, part owner of Builders Plumbing Supply Co., has been in business in Pampa for 15 years. He is married and has two children, one in elementary school and one in junior high school.

Wilkerson issued the following statement yesterday:

"I would like to take this opportunity to announce my candidacy for member of the school board of the Pampa Independent School District. It is only after the urging and consultation of many friends and much careful consideration on my part that this decision has been reached."

"Through the efforts of the present school board and the many boards preceding it Pampa has achieved a high standard of excellence in its school system that we can be proud of. We have the resources, administrative personnel and faculty to maintain this high standard and improve it."

"If elected to this board I will work diligently, honestly and to the best of my ability to maintain or exceed this standard."

Previously Ott Shewmaker, Pampa insurance broker, and Holt, the present board member, filed their candidacies. Holt is seeking reelection.

Mau Mau Again On Rise, Kenya Officials Report

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—Government officials easing Kenya toward her first nationwide general election warn the Mau Mau secret society is active again. Internal Security Minister A. C. Swann said the movement believed stamped out by government security forces in a bloody, four-year emergency, has sprung up again in the past 10 months.

Mau Mau has a new name—the Kenya Land Freedom Army, he said. But it still apparently has the same aim—expulsion of white settlers from their farms and homesteads and complete control over African tribal life. So far, government officials have been reluctant to publicize their uphill fight to destroy the resurgent oath-taking organization in Nairobi and Central Province. But one indication came during a court hearing recently when a high-ranking police officer said: "Mau Mau is rife."

Swann confirmed the officer's statement. But he said that while young people of the Kikuyu tribe—major recruiting ground of Mau Mau—apparently were reluctant to join, former known Mau Mau fanatics were going back in. It is known here that oath-taking ceremonies have been taking place in the Rift Valley Province. The old Mau Mau, allegedly led by gossiped Jomo (Burning Spear) Kenyatta, terrorized African, Asian and European communities between 1950-54. Many Europeans and hundreds of Africans died in fanatic Mau Mau jungle knife raids.

Kenyatta, convicted of managing the society, served a seven-year jail term. He is in enforced exile in the arid northwest border lands. But his name and influence still are powerful factors in present-day Kenya politics. Rival African groups jockeying for power repeatedly have demanded his unconditional release from exile. The most powerful, the Kenya African Nationalist Union (KANU) is led by Kenyatta's onetime top aide, James Gichuru, who was allowed back into politics only last year. Many European settlers are convinced there is a link between KANU and the new Mau Mau, at least at rank-and-file level. They point to a document allegedly found in one Mau Mau's possession, which spoke of a "meeting which was arranged between army leaders and KANU together."

The document added, "With what I have observed and found out (they) were supposed to speak with one voice because people not in one head are conquered by one blow."

Federal Reserve Board Abandons Old Policy For 'Easy Money Plan'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—This essay will award to President Kennedy highest honors for prophecy in a hazardous field. Late in the presidential election campaign, candidates Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon were asked a tough question by the Scripps-Howard Newspapers. It was: "Would you attempt to influence the policies of the Federal Reserve Board in any effort to reduce interest rates? Or for any other purpose?"

George Bancroft, then val Academy in 1845. The U.S. dollar of today compared with the 1939 buck is worth a few cents less than 30 cents, half of its purchasing power destroyed in 22 years. Any past or future cheapening of the dollar must be at the expense of each citizen who has one. An "easy money" policy is a dollar cheeper. Immediately beneath the surface of these dull facts is a bread and butter political issue, a so-called pocketbook issue. This issue is important to every American whether he lives shabbily on a too-small wage or whoops it up on inherited millions.

Navy Hard Put For Polaris Sub Crews

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The much-vaunted Polaris missile submarines which cost more than $100 million each are easier to procure than the crews to man them, the Navy reported Saturday.

Navy sources said they are going to have to raid the already depleted ranks of the non-commissioned officers aboard surface ships to man the five Polaris subs on which construction is being speeded under President Kennedy's expanded defense program.

This will create another squeeze, since American destroyers on the average are already operating with only 41 per cent of a full complement of non-coms, one official said.

The five subs are to be completed in 1963 instead of 1964. Since an average of 42 months of training is required to qualify men for duty on them, the use of recruits as prospective crew members is out.

In each 100-man Polaris crew there must be 89 men with petty officer rating, and three-fourths of these must have skills in electronics or other fields that are listed by the Navy as "critical" throughout the fleet.

In addition, each nuclear-powered submarine must have two full crews for alternate duty to keep the vessels in almost constant operation. This is an endurance feature, greatly increasing the value of the submarines but complicating the personnel problem.

Labor Asks Tax Change

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The AFL policy-making body, called Saturday for a revision of present tax laws that have resulted in the "exporting of U.S. jobs."

The council issued a lengthy statement reviewing the field of international trade and giving its views on the United States' present unfavorable balance of payments position in the world market.

It urged the government to adopt a more flexible approach to trade and cautioned that "the U.S. cannot afford to misconceive its role as that of an isolated, benevolent, but fearful Uncle Sam."

The council said that present tax incentives for U.S. firms investing abroad have benefited nations already highly industrialized, while doing little for such needy areas and nations as Africa, Asia and Latin America.

It said that "special tax devices to encourage U.S. industry to invest in industrialized countries should be withdrawn, and proper incentives for investment in under-industrialized countries retained or adopted."

The council said "at very least" tax laws should be amended to "provide immediate application of full U.S. taxes on profits earned from sale of products shipped back to the United States from their overseas operation."

At present, such profits are tax-free so long as they are kept out of the country.

The council said that while the nation needs international trade for economic growth, "it cannot afford to allow competition from specific imports to cause undue hardships to American workers or American industry."

U.S. And Mexican Officials Meet, Pledge Friendship

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI)—The annual Washington's Birthday Celebration opened in Laredo Saturday, with officials of the United States and Mexico meeting in the middle of International Bridge to exchange greetings and pledges of friendship and international understanding.

Included in the groups of officials were the governors of Tamaulipas state and Texas and the mayors of Laredo and Nuevo Laredo.

Texas Gov. Price Daniel praised U.S.-Mexican relations and said the international border was "one of the finest examples of the good neighbor policy to be found throughout the world."

Daniel praised the cooperation between city, county and state officials at the border and called the Rio Grande "not a line that divides but a symbol that unites us."

Winter Storm Rolls Out, Warm Weather Rolls In

By United Press International Temperatures soared into the 50s Saturday as a fast-moving winter storm that lashed the state with snow, sleet and high winds slipped out of the state as quickly and quietly as it arrived.

The swift-moving storm rolled across the state from the Texas Panhandle late Friday, bringing sleet and snow to the northern

Triple Attack Aimed At Birth Control Law

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A triple attack on Connecticut's 1879 birth control law by a married couple, a doctor and a wife comes up for argument Monday in the Supreme Court.

The law makes it a crime for anyone to use "any drug, medicinal article or instrument for the purpose of preventing conception."

A doctor who prescribes a contraceptive may be prosecuted as if he himself were the offender.

Persons found to have violated that law are subject to a jail term of at least 60 days to a year and a fine of not less than $50, or both.

The court has set aside three hours to hear complaints that Connecticut is offending the Constitution by depriving the doctor and his patients of their "life, liberty or property" without the "due process of law" guaranteed in the 14th Amendment.

The physician is Dr. C. Lee Buxton, a gynecologist and chairman of the department of obstetrics at Yale University school of medicine. Buxton told the high court that the "best and safest treatment" for his two women patients is a device to prevent future pregnancies. If he gives such advice, however, he will be prosecuted.

JFK Praises New Orleans Educators

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy strongly endorsed Saturday efforts of educators, parents and other citizens who are trying to carry out court-ordered integration of New Orleans public schools in the face of violent opposition.

He praised them for "quiet intelligence and true courage" and firmly declared: "This is no time for schools to close for any reason, and certainly no time for schools to be closed in the name of racial discrimination."

Kennedy's wired statement to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission's third annual conference on schools in transition at Williamsburg, Va., was an obvious follow-up to his recent pledge to "use the moral authority" of the presidency in school desegregation disputes.

It also came on the heels of the Justice Department filing a civil contempt action to compel the state of Louisiana to release $350,000 in federal funds withheld from the New Orleans school board since September.

The civil contempt action was filed against Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of public education, on orders by the president's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The President said Saturday of those in New Orleans who have tried to carry out the desegregation order: "The whole country is in their debt, for our public school system must be preserved and improved."

"Let me also pay tribute to the school children and their parents, of both races, who have been on the frontlines of this problem," Kennedy said. "In accepting the command of the constitution with dignity, they, too, are contributing to the education of all Americans."

AROUND THE WORLD

HORSE SENSE—Just for once, horsing around was permitted in a classroom by teacher Eleanor Thornell, in Highland Park, Tex., a suburb of Dallas. The strange creature invading her classroom is a Trojan horse, built by five teen-age pupils. It was made to illustrate the class' study of the ancient Greek war against Troy.

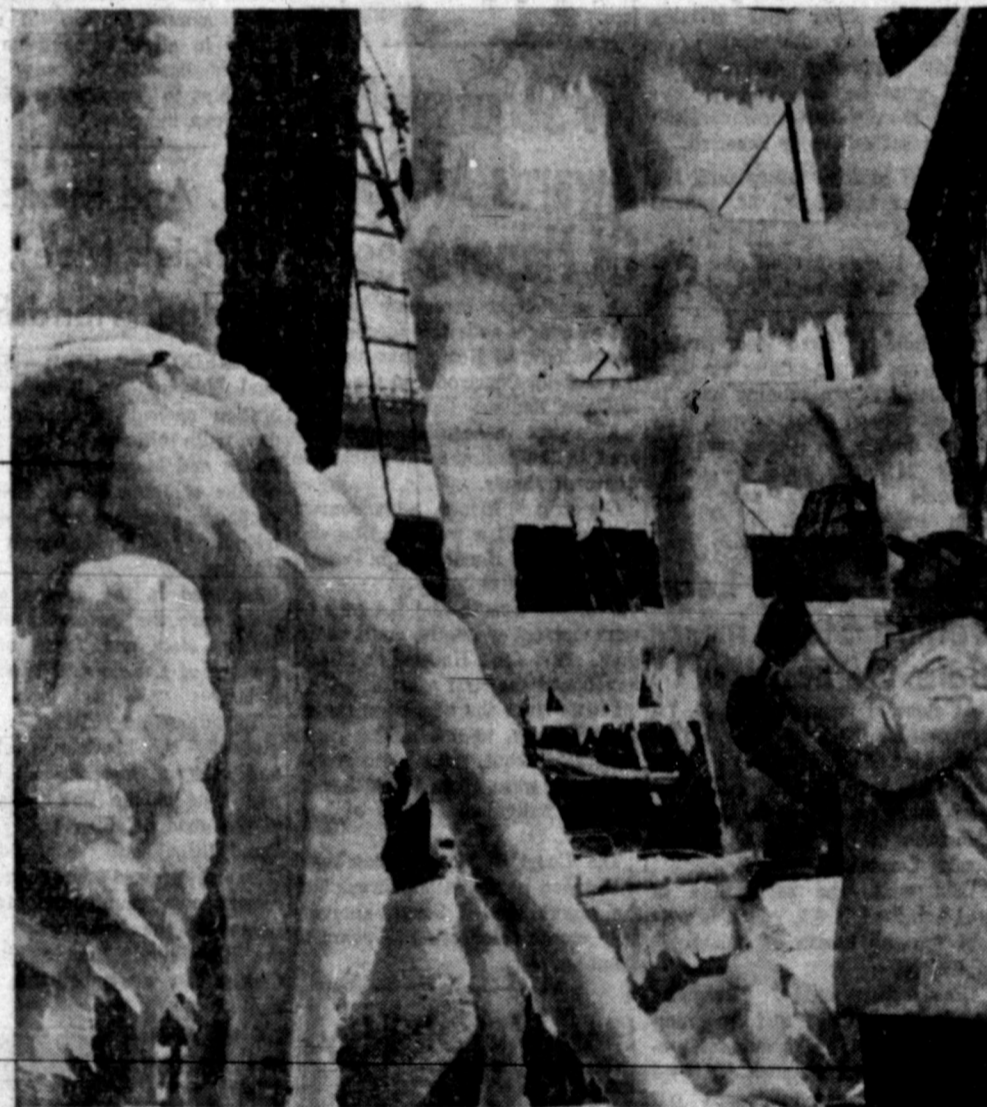

BOW TO THE QUEEN—Getting ship-shape once more, the mammoth liner Queen Elizabeth rears her knife-edged bow under a dry dock in which the vessel is undergoing a periodic checkup in Southampton, England. Workmen in small boats are providing the necessary scrubbing.

PIER OF THE REALM—A modern treatment for seaside fanciers, the new amusement pier at Scheveningen, the Netherlands, will look like this when completed in June. Replacing a pier built in 1901 and destroyed by the Germans in 1941, the structure will be 40 feet wide and extend 1,220 feet into the North Sea. It will end in three fun "islands."

THE VERY LATEST—Toes get a square deal in these new shoes created for the house of Christian Dior in Paris by designer Roger Vivier. A startling change from the currently pointed toe vogue, the new footwear is done in brightly colored leathers and fabrics and is for "comfort."

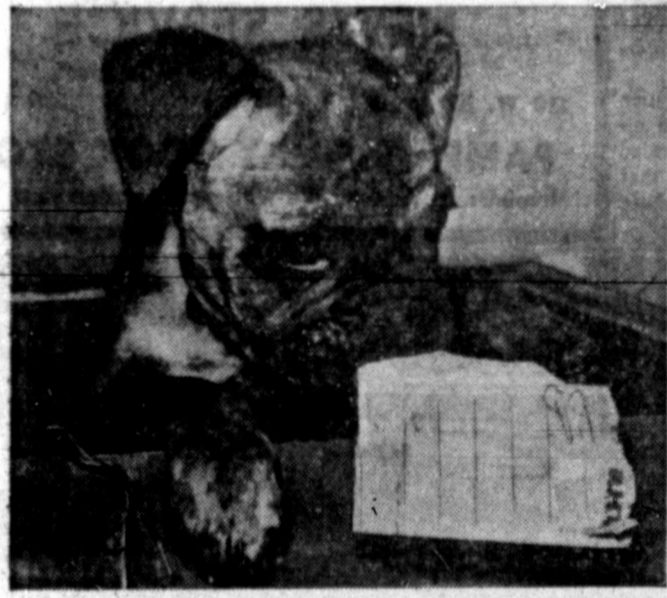

LOT OF EFFORT—Tony Aribo, mate aboard the fishing boat "Faith of Good Voyage," is facing a mighty cold task as he tries to clear the rigging of ice after the boat arrived at the Fulton Fish Market in New York. The city had been inundated with the winter's worst snowstorm, and docking any vessel wasn't the easiest thing in the world.

THEY'LL BE THERE—Cynthia Brooks, a Texas-born lovely, will preside as Queen of the 1961 International Flower Show at New York's Coliseum early in March. Anne Purves, the 1960 Queen, is formally crowning her successor at a party in Manhattan.

SHE'S HAD IT—While finishing work on the filming of "El Cid" with Charlton Heston in Madrid, Spain, actress Sophia Loren fell and broke her arm. A doctor is shown trying to make her comfortable before flying back to Italy.

ALMOST DIDN'T MAKE IT—A two-month-old English bulldog, shipped from San Antonio, Tex., to Bedford, Mass., arrived in good shape, but there was a hitch. His delivery took a bit longer than usual because the mischievous fellow had chewed the address off his shipping tag.

HAPPY LANDING—Like a landing officer on an aircraft carrier, one St. James Park bird raises his wings in a "cut your motor" signal as his feathered friend comes in for a landing in London. Their "flattop" is a sign urging visitors not to litter the pretty park.

WINE AND DANDY—Playing peek-a-boo through a pattern of bottles, Nina Funari boosts the merits of a special wine at an exhibition in Rome. The celebrated vino comes from a village near Rome, and is in such demand that customers can buy only limited amounts and must place their orders a year in advance. Such popularity must be deserved.

DIGGING OUT—Not too small to give daddy a hand, Beatrice Diehl, 5½, joined in the big snow shoveling job outside her home in Middletown, N. Y. It took a bit of doing to clear a path through all that uninvited white stuff.

IT'S A RECORD—Cast members of "The Threepenny Opera" had a good reason to toast that drawing of "Mack the Knife" backstage in New York. The off-Broadway musical had just played its 2,249th performance, making it the longest-run musical in American history.

SPECIAL SERVICE—In remote sections of Virginia, a huge trailer truck known as the Artmobile acts as a traveling art gallery. In Richmond, visitors are shown lined up to see its contents. Its aluminum sides can be opened to shelter those who arrive to view the treasures from the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts.

Vatican Lays Plans For Visit Of British Queen

By ERNEST SAKLER

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican officials said today Queen Elizabeth's planned visit to Pope John XXIII is certain to further improve relations between the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches.

A high Vatican source, noting that the climate for such a visit was unusually favorable, said the British monarch and her husband, Prince Philip, would be welcomed with all the pomp and pageantry of the Pope's court when they arrive May 5.

Buckingham Palace announced in London Thursday that the royal couple would pay a courtesy call on Pope John at the end of a trip to Italy. The queen is the head of the Protestant Church of England which broke away from the Roman Catholic Church in the 16th Century.

It had appointed a liaison officer to the Vatican, Canon Bernard Pawley. This was believed a direct result of the meeting last December between the Pope and Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, retiring primate of the Church of England.

Vatican circles expressed hope that the queen's visit would cause undue criticism from British Protestants who have objected to similar meetings in the past.

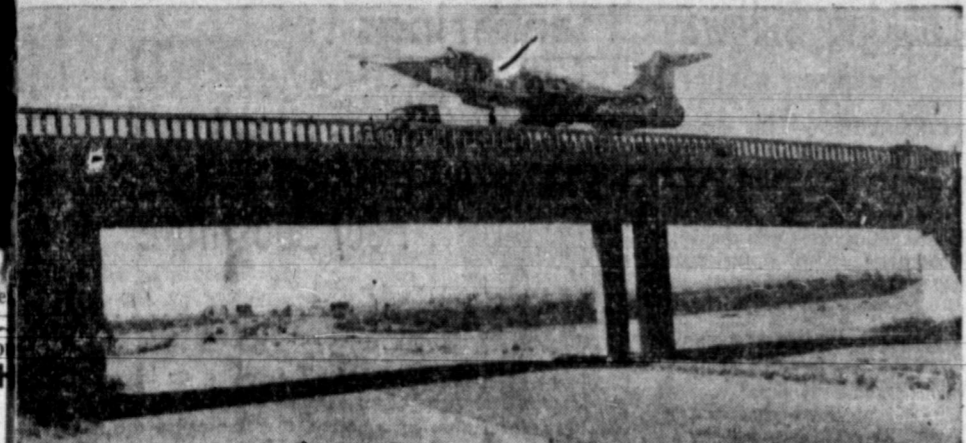

"It is only a courtesy call but it is certain to strengthen good relations," a Vatican spokesman said.

He Can't Read Or Write, But He's $62,000 Richer

LONDON (UPI)—If the lines in British post offices are today, it's because Wil Pratt, who cannot read or write, has just won $62,000 in the lottery. Today is the deadline for mailing entries for Saturday's games and a post-order is the only acceptable method of payment.

demonstrated was that luck, not intelligence or skill, is the magic ingredient. For instance:

—In 1957 Jock Lindsay won $84,000. He is permanently confined to the Ipswich Mental Hospital.

—A woman who won $210,000 (entrants can remain anonymous if they so (specify) explained her system: "She sat by a window looking out on the street. If a man walked by she marked a 'one,' victory for the home team on her sheet; if a woman, a 'two,' victory for the visiting team; if a child, an 'X,' a tie. She had never seen a football game.

—Last December Paul Cox, 18 months old, made some crayon marks on a sheet of paper his father had left on the floor. His father, Norman, a worker on an automobile assembly line, picked up the pool sheet and roughly transferred his son's choices to another entry blank. On a one farthing bet he collected $121,192.

Football betting is legal and winnings are exempt from income taxes. Three firms, Littlewood, Vernon and Sherman, do about 80 per cent of the total business.

Perilously, and with many a pitfall still to be avoided, prospects continue to brighten for a negotiated peace in Algeria.

If an end to the fighting which has gone on for more than six years and cost more than 100,000 lives is achieved, it will be a tribute to the patience and determination of President Charles de Gaulle, with a strong assist from another who has managed to remain on friendly terms both with France and the Algerian rebels.

That other is President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia.

last agents of imperialism among Arab leaders. To this, Bourguiba replied that his interests were with the West and would remain so.

As De Gaulle moved toward his ultimate goal of an "Algerian Algeria," and Bourguiba urged Moslem cooperation in the referendum by which De Gaulle sought approval of his independence program, Nasser and other Arab and African leaders met in Casablanca to condemn it.

The referendum could in no way commit the Algerian people, they said.

But as the referendum passed successfully, and as Bourguiba persisted in his plea for moderation on both sides, the prospects for peace suddenly brightened appreciably.

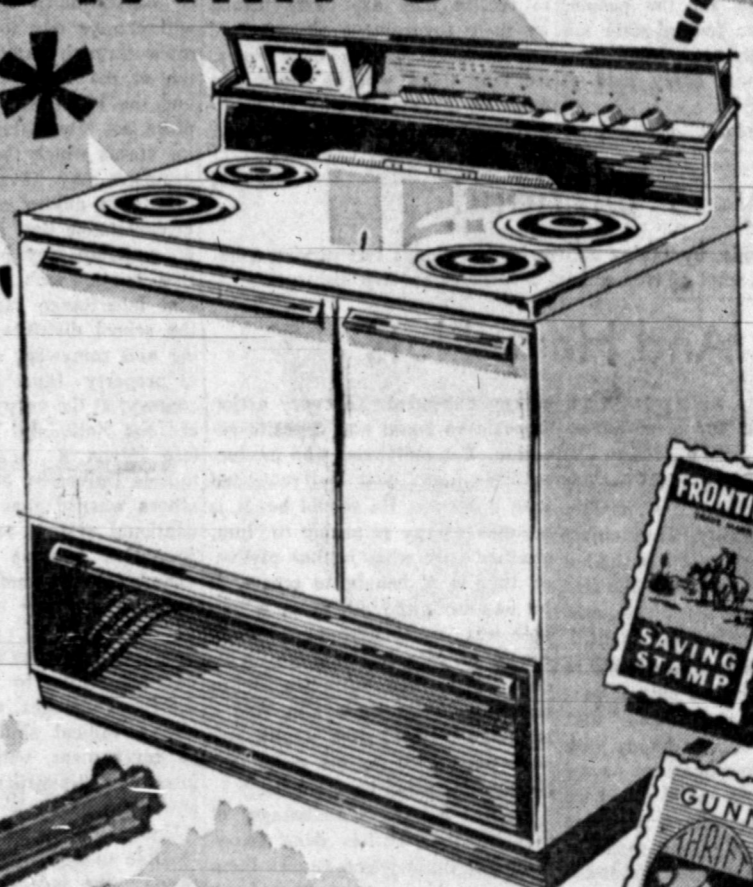

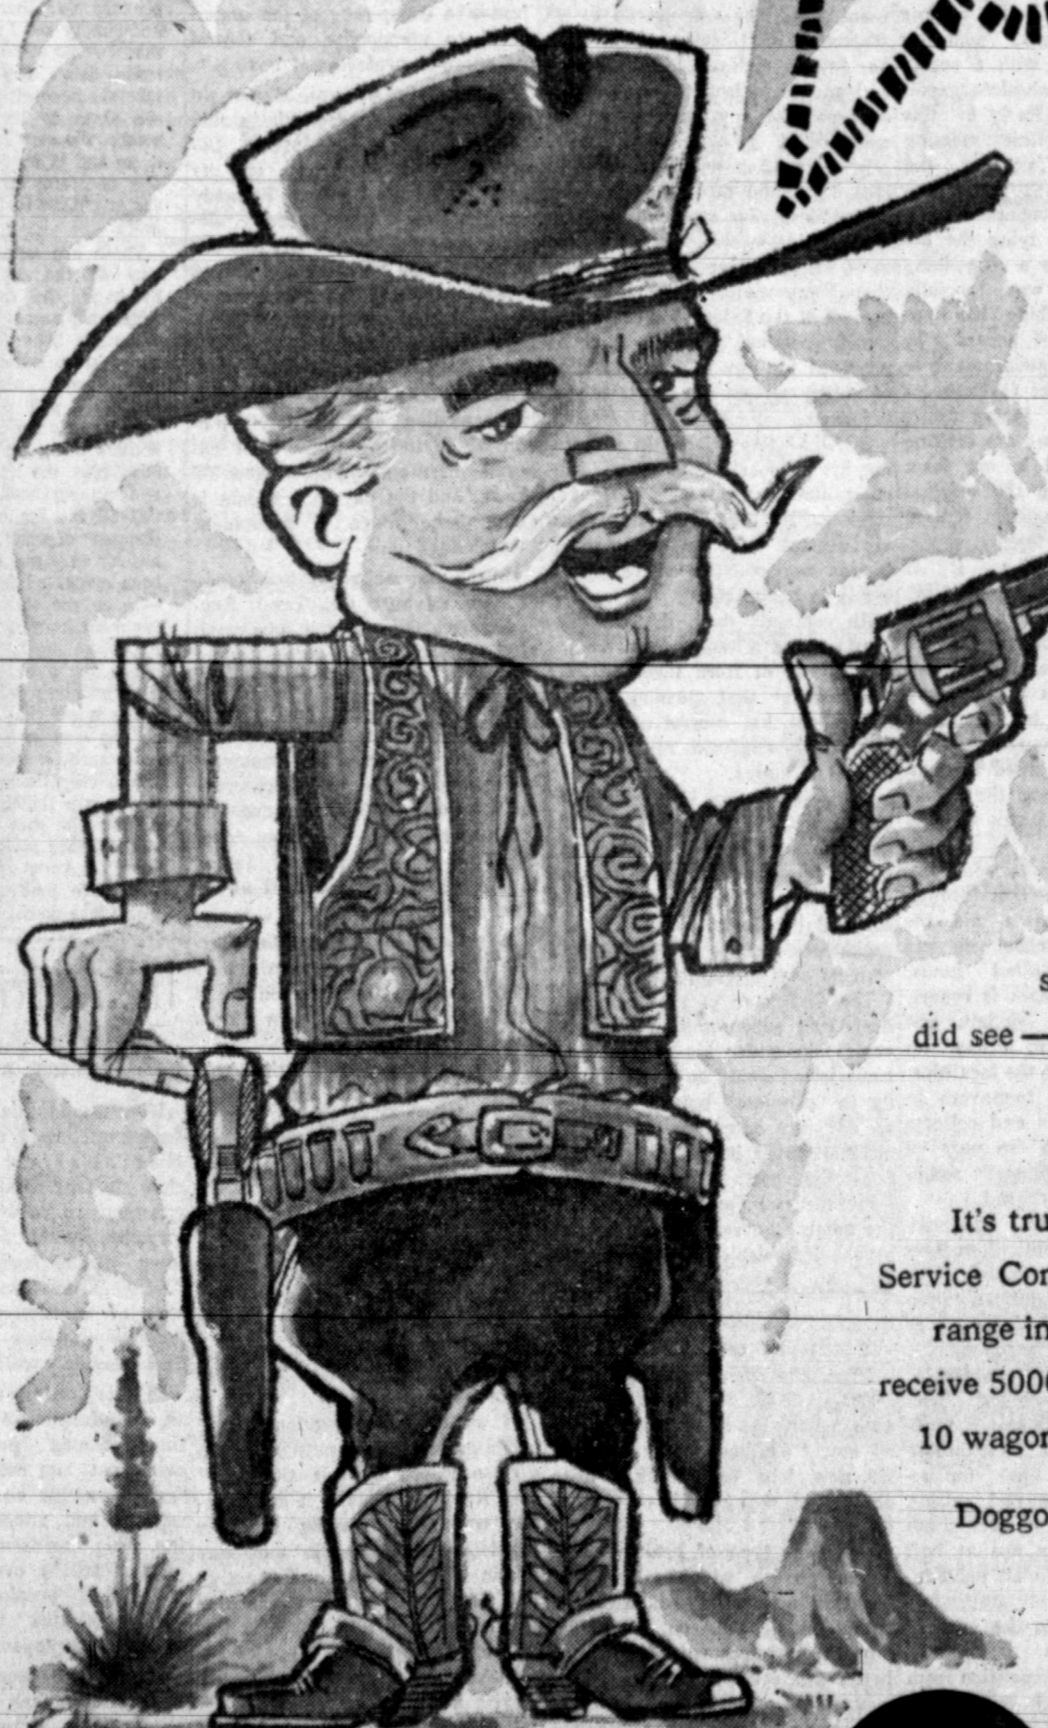

Cautious conferences between French and Tunisian leaders appeared this week to be opening up the possibilities of an Algerian cease-fire with no loss of face either to De Gaulle or to the rebels.

Art Lover Wants To Change Scenery On Walls Of 1,400-Ft. Senate Subway

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate subway is approximately the color as one of the Senate's lemon-meringue pastries.

When you reach the end of the line you are feeling rather as if you are in a tunnel, I suspect, accounts for the decided disposition of some of the senators, and I gather that Carl T. Curtis, a Nebraska Republican and art-lover, has had the same conclusion.

In any rate, Curtis laid before the Senate this week a proposal to decorate the walls of the 1,400-ft. tunnel with paintings depicting "the scenic beauties or historical sites" of the 50 states. Turning the tunnel into an underground gallery, he said, would enhance the utilitarian purpose of this corridor, and make it another delight for those who come to see our national Capitol.

He also suggested that senators who found themselves "frayed after a trying day" could, by gazing upon the paintings, "rekindle a zest for comradeship, and be helped in leaving behind our lesser natures."

These certainly are laudable objectives and Curtis should be commended for trying to achieve them. More important, he seems to have hit upon an entirely new concept in the way of art museums.

The Guggenheim Gallery in New York has managed to fracture museum tradition in a mild way by having people look at paintings while descending a circular ramp.

But for sheer originality and daring, the Guggenheim wouldn't be in the same class with the subway museum.

Just imagine for a moment what it would be like to look at paintings while breezing along at 17 miles an hour in a subway car. You couldn't get that kind of perspective at the Guggenheim even if you roller-skated down the ramp.

Under Curtis' plan, each state would be permitted to hang in the tunnel one or more paintings of its own choosing. This could create some interesting situations.

Suppose, for example, that Georgia sent a picture of the siege of Atlanta during the Civil War; Montana provided a painting of Custer's Last Stand at Little Big Horn, and Arizona selected a landscape of its most famous tourist attraction.

When seen from a moving subway car, this would give you a kaleidoscopic view of Confederate soldiers chasing Sitting Bull over the rim of the Grand Canyon.

It is possible, I suppose, that Curtis was thinking in terms of looking at the paintings while walking through the tunnel. That, however, would make the exhibit less attractive.

There are few art works in the Capitol today that wouldn't look better if passed at 17 miles per hour.

Stage Set For Showdown Fight On Fund Deficit

AUSTIN (UPI) — The stage has been set for a showdown fight on the floor of the house over Gov. Price Daniel's program for erasing the state's estimated $63 million general fund deficit.

The time-table calls for his package of four bills to be taken up by the lower chamber when it goes back into action this week.

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee wound up its hearings Thursday on the governor's anti-deficit proposals with Daniel making a personal appearance. The committee postponed making its recommendation on the package. It still has to hear reports from sub-committee, and they are due when both House and Senate return to work Monday.

Rep. George T. Hinson of Minola, chairman of a subcommittee, said his group plans to recommend that Daniel's "abandoned property" bill, one of the most controversial of last session, be enacted exactly as introduced.

TYLER (UPI) — Federal agents arrested Edward Leon Waldon Thursday and charged him before U.S. Commissioner Joe D. Huffstutler with embezzling $9,520 from the Farmers State Bank at Center, Tex.

Coltex Employee Honored At Party

LEFORS (Spl) - Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Miller were guests of honor at a retirement party of Coltex Corp. employees in the civic center recently.

Miller has been with the company 24 years and will work his last day Tuesday, Feb. 28. After retirement the Millers will move to Dawnsville, La.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller lived 15 years in Rodessa, La. before moving to Lefors, where they have spent the last seven years.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller have three sons, Clint, who is principal of the elementary school at Shreveport, La., Milton, who teaches history and is assistant coach at Boys Ranch and Cleud, who is a horticulturist at Louisiana State University.

E. D. Nolan, plant Superintendent was master of ceremonies and gave a farewell speech in honor of the retiring couple.

About 20,000 heard him proclaim from a balcony of the Bates House in Indianapolis at the end of the first day.

"I will only say that to the salvation of the Union there needs but one single thing - the hearts of a people like yours."

The second day of the trip was his 32nd birthday and he was riding across southern Indiana not far from the grave of his mother, Nancy Hanks, whose death when Lincoln was a child made an everlasting impression.

Cincinnati came next, where the German-Americans greeted him with band music and a memorial, then Columbus, O., where he told the legislature:

"There is nothing going wrong... there is nothing that really hurts anybody."

The phrases set of the editorial writers.

"Nothing going wrong... Seven states had seceded, formed a separate nation and seized about $12 million worth of forts, arsenals and other U.S. property."

"Nothing that really hurts anybody... The puzzled editorial writers gave up on that one."

Then came Pittsburgh, Cleveland and around the shores of Lake Erie into New York.

On this leg of the trip a load was lifted from Lincoln's mind. A telegram from Washington informed him that a joint session of Congress had canvassed the November vote and certified his election.

Lincoln had been worried about the canvass, fearing that Congress might not be able to muster a quorum or that southern

In parting, Lincoln told his partner, "If I live, I'm coming back and we'll go right on practicing law." That evening, Lincoln roped his trunks and labeled them: "A. Lincoln, The White House, Washington, D. C."

About a thousand persons waited in the rain when the presidential party arrived at the station. As the locomotive bell clanged, Lincoln spoke the extemporaneous words that have become famous:

"My friends, no one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place, and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century, and have passed from a young to an old man. Here my children have been born, and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when, or whether ever, I may return, with a task before me greater than that which rested on Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him, I cannot succeed. With that assistance I can not fail. I bid you an affectionate farewell."

The 12-day trip was Lincoln's first ordeal of the presidency and he was far from being at his best. Bounded by the fact that he had no real power until he took the oath of office March 4, he also faced the grind of 20 major speeches and dozens of impromptu talks in big cities and whistle stops.

All the way across the country he revealed nothing of his plans in his speeches and little, if anything, in private talks.

Big crowds greeted Lincoln at every stop - most of them enthusiastic.

Lincoln had been worried about the canvass, fearing that Congress might not be able to muster a quorum or that southern

In parting, Lincoln told his partner, "If I live, I'm coming back and we'll go right on practicing law." That evening, Lincoln roped his trunks and labeled them: "A. Lincoln, The White House, Washington, D. C."

About a thousand persons waited in the rain when the presidential party arrived at the station. As the locomotive bell clanged, Lincoln spoke the extemporaneous words that have become famous:

"My friends, no one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place, and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century, and have passed from a young to an old man. Here my children have been born, and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when, or whether ever, I may return, with a task before me greater than that which rested on Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him, I cannot succeed. With that assistance I can not fail. I bid you an affectionate farewell."

The 12-day trip was Lincoln's first ordeal of the presidency and he was far from being at his best. Bounded by the fact that he had no real power until he took the oath of office March 4, he also faced the grind of 20 major speeches and dozens of impromptu talks in big cities and whistle stops.

All the way across the country he revealed nothing of his plans in his speeches and little, if anything, in private talks.

Big crowds greeted Lincoln at every stop - most of them enthusiastic.

At 20,000 heard him proclaim from a balcony of the Bates House in Indianapolis at the end of the first day.

"I will only say that to the salvation of the Union there needs but one single thing - the hearts of a people like yours."

The second day of the trip was his 32nd birthday and he was riding across southern Indiana not far from the grave of his mother, Nancy Hanks, whose death when Lincoln was a child made an everlasting impression.

Cincinnati came next, where the German-Americans greeted him with band music and a memorial, then Columbus, O., where he told the legislature:

"There is nothing going wrong... there is nothing that really hurts anybody."

The phrases set of the editorial writers.

"Nothing going wrong... Seven states had seceded, formed a separate nation and seized about $12 million worth of forts, arsenals and other U.S. property."

"Nothing that really hurts anybody... The puzzled editorial writers gave up on that one."

Then came Pittsburgh, Cleveland and around the shores of Lake Erie into New York.

On this leg of the trip a load was lifted from Lincoln's mind. A telegram from Washington informed him that a joint session of Congress had canvassed the November vote and certified his election.

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

By MERTON T. AKERS
United Press International

The weather was cold and drizzly the morning of Feb. 11, 1861, in Springfield, Ill. A special train of three cars and a locomotive waited at the Great Western Station to carry Abraham Lincoln to Washington and inauguration. It was due to leave at 8 a.m.

But at 7:30 came and went and the politicians waiting in the lobby of the Chenery House to escort the president - elect to the train grew impatient. They sent Hermann Kreismann, German-American politician, to Lincoln's room to see what was keeping him. There Kreismann found Lincoln sitting on a chair and Mrs. Lincoln lying on the floor, obviously distraught.

"Kreismann, she will not let me go until I promise her an office for one of her friends," Lincoln said.

Kreismann stood by in embarrassment as Lincoln, as usual in such cases, gave in to his temperamental wife. Then the party started for the station.

The Lincolns had stayed the night at the Chenery House because the white frame family dwelling on 8th St. had been leased. The cow and horse had been sold and the Lincoln boys' dog was farmed out to a neighbor.

The afternoon before Lincoln had taken leave of Billy Herndon, his law partner.

In parting, Lincoln told his partner, "If I live, I'm coming back and we'll go right on practicing law." That evening, Lincoln roped his trunks and labeled them: "A. Lincoln, The White House, Washington, D. C."

Plainview Seniors To See Premiere As College Guests

PLAINVIEW (Sp.) — With the current interest in the Civil War Centennial, senior classes and their sponsors from the Plainview area have been invited as special guests of Wayland Baptist College for the premiere performance Mar. 2 of "Once in a Nation," written by Wayland professors Dr. Henry Eason and Dr. Eugene Jones.

The original drama deals with one of the most thrilling episodes in American history, the impeachment trial of President Andrew Johnson. Curtain time is 8 p.m. both nights.

Dr. Eason, head of Wayland's department of speech and drama, is directing the production, with Dr. Jones, chairman, division of social science, assisting. The two professors united talents to research and write about a little known segment of history in the aftermath of the Civil War. Both have had extensive experience in college theater productions, and have done much research into the styles of the Johnson era so the drama will be authentically staged and costumed.

Dr. Jones, who originated the idea of the play, first became interested in a dramatic production of the trial of Andrew Johnson while doing his doctoral dissertation at University of North Carolina in 1955.

Actors Told Legitimate Tax Breaks

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The thought of spring and its income taxes makes many people sad but not actor Stephen Chase, whose hobby is showing young players how to be sure that Uncle Sam gets no more than he should.

Chase, who has been playing character roles since 1922, said he became interested in income tax methods several years ago.

"Most actors I know are not much in the way of businessmen," he said.

"Of course, once he gets into the money an actor has someone else to handle his affairs, including his taxes, but the actors on their way up are the ones I get a kick out of helping."

Chase, now appearing in the television series "Death Valley Days," said he had compiled a list of items peculiar to the acting profession which the government is glad to allow an actor to deduct from his income — if he does this in the right way.

"I've worked out a list of things worth keeping records of, and I've even got it down to the point at which I can deduct a pair of shoe laces," he said.

"I've had it all checked by experts and it's all above board."

He said that cold cream was an item worth listing as tax deductible.

"Most studios provide makeup for pictures or TV," he said.

"But many times an actor has to furnish his own cold cream."

Other things Chase kept accurate records of: telephone calls, even from booths — a subscription to trade papers, wardrobe rental and entertainment expenses.

"This entertainment really has to be kept accurately. It's one field that's always up to question and many of the top names have gotten into trouble over it," he said.

"I also suggest that the young actor keep a couple of suits or dresses to be used exclusively for jobs and personal appearances. You can deduct the depreciation of the garments — and this also applies to special shoes and the shoelaces."

Office supplies were also on his list. He said that these included stamps and stationery used in applying for a job.

Some Big Names Absent As Majors Await Spring Training

By DICK JOYCE
United Press International

All major league baseball teams will be fully engaged in spring training in only a few days—but a number of big-name signatures are missing from contracts.

Lew Burdette, Joe Adcock, Nellie Fox, Luis Aparicio, Ron Hansen, Harmon Killebrew, Jim Lemon, Camillo Pascual and Dick Stuart top the list of 45 big leaguers holding out as of noon Saturday for more money than their owners think they're worth.

The Minnesota Twins, who've been more successful so far in adjusting to their transfer from Washington than in signing players, head the majors in holdouts with 10. The Milwaukee Braves are next and lead the National League with eight unsatisfied players.

Home-run sluggers Killebrew and Lemon and pitchers Pascual and left-hander Jack Kralick and six rookies comprise the Twin holdouts.

Both the Baltimore Orioles and the Chicago White Sox are missing the signed contracts of their flashy double play combinations, Hansen, 1960 "rookie-of-the-year" as the Orioles' shortstop and second-baseman Marv Breeding, who also made the grade as a rookie last year, and the White Sox' veteran duo of Aparicio and Fox are among the absentees.

Other Orioles unsigned are pitcher Steve Barber, 10-7 after making the jump from Class D ball, outfielder Chuck Essegian, recently obtained from the Los Angeles Dodgers, and first-year man Jerry Adair, a shortstop who batted .266 for Miami last season. Infielders Billy Goodman and Tony Roig and pitchers Bob Shaw and Turk Lown are other unhappy Chicagoans.

Hector Lopez, utility infielder-outfielder, is the only New York Yankee who has not come to terms. Lopez hit .284 and drove in 42 runs compared to 93 rbi's the year before.

Frank Lane's only unsigned member of the Kansas City Athletics is pitcher Ray Herbert, the A's second best hurler last season with a 14-15 mark in 37 appearances. The Detroit Tigers have yet to get outfielder Charlie Maxwell, a .237 hitter last season, and rookie outfielder George Alusik, up from Denver, into the fold.

The new Washington Senators need only outfielder Joe Hicks, who split his time between the White Sox and San Diego in 1960, to complete their list. Pitcher Barry Latman, acquired from Herb Score last season, is the lone Cleveland Indian holdout.

The Boston Red Sox and the Los Angeles Angels have already signed their complete roster. National League teams with all contracts in tow are St. Louis, Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Chicago. Burdette obviously believes his workhorse efforts as a starter and a reliever merit more money than general manager Birdie Tebbetts has offered. First-baseman Adcock also thinks his .298 batting average, 25 home and 91 rbi's rates more consideration. Rookie catcher Joe Torre, brother of Frank and Merritt Ranew, outfielder Wes Covington, and infielders Billy Martin, Andrew Rodgers and Felix Mantilla round out the Braves absentees.

Dick Stuart is the only member-of the World Champion Pirates who is unsatisfied with his $100,000 salary, the job with Rocky Nelson last season, fell off a batting .260 and hitting runs in 122 games.

Juan Marichal, latesting star, has not signed contract with the San Francisco Giants.

Seven Philadelphia holdouts. They are first baseman Frank (Pancho) Terrero, Tony Taylor, Ted Ben Amaro, outfielder and pitcher Ruben Marcellino Lopez.

NFL Point Title Goes To Hornung

NEW YORK (UPI)—For the second straight season, Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers won the National Football League's scoring title, according to final official statistics released Saturday.

Hornung, who runs, passes and kicks for the Packers, won the 1960 scoring title with a record 176 points, easily beating the old mark of 138 points set by another Packer—Don Hutson in 1942.

Hornung, a former Notre Dame star, who won the scoring title in 1959 with 94 points, compiled his 176 points in 1960 on 13 touchdowns running, 20 passing, 41 extra points without a miss and kicked 15 of 28 field goal attempts. He scored 10 or more points in all but two of the 12 games he played in.

Denton's Smith Heads Class 4A All-Staters

By United Press International

Dan Smith, Denton's high-scoring 6-6 center, was a repeat performer on the Texas Sports Writers Association's Class AAAA all-state schoolboy basketball team announced Saturday.

Smith, who averaged 26.8 points per game in district play as the Broncs swept into the state playoffs, was one of six players named to the mythical team by the Class AAAA committee headed by Charles Holmes of the Dallas Times Herald.

The others honored were forwards Charles Dishman of Midland and Steve Carter of Amarillo Palo Duro and guards Dickie McCarroll of Austin S.F. Austin, John Chatfield of Harlandale and Larry Johnson of South Houston.

Dishman, a 6-2 sharp-shooter with a 53.1 completion percentage from the floor and an 84.1 per cent from the foul line, led the voting with 29 out of a possible 30 points. Dishman had one string of 27 straight extra-points in district play for a team that placed two men on last year's all-state team.

Smith polled 15 points, while Carter, a 6-0 playmaker with a very credible 23.4-point scoring average, polled 13 and the three guards tied with 13 points each.

McCarroll is a veteran of state play, having been the key man in his team's upset of Borger in last year's tournament. The 5-11½ senior is rated one of the best forward men in the state despite a lack of exceptional speed.

Chatfield, a 6-1 stringbean, has deceptive speed that often allows him to get the jump on his rivals. He averaged 23 points in district play, and specializes in outside shooting.

Johnson, at 6-2, started his third season for South Houston this year and was labeled by Texas A&M coach Bob Rogers as "the best high school player I've seen this year."

The second team also was an all-senior outfit and included center John Paul Fultz of Dallas Samuel, forwards Hank Wendorf of Fort Worth Arlington Heights and Tim Timmerman of Houston S. F. Austin and guards Bobby Carpenter of Tyler John Tyler and Jay Baker of Aldine.

The second team boasted the height with only one man under 6-3½. Carpenter stood 5-11. Fultz stretches 6-8, Timmerman 6-6, Wendorf 6-4 and Baker 6-3½.

PHS Teers Cop Second

ANDREWS — Amarillo Tascosa captured the Andrews Invitational high school golf tournament here Saturday with a 36-hole total of 618, beating second place Pampa by 15 strokes.

Tascosa also took medalist honors as Bob Wood fired a 151. Tascosa's Jim West was second with 152, barely edging Pampa's Leonard Hudson (154) and Bobby Howard (155).

Pampa's individual scores were Hudson (79-75-154); Howard (79-76-155); Johnny Hatcher (82-78-160); David Pattison (84-80-164), and Brian Prigmore (88-88-176).

Team scores were Tascosa (618); Pampa (633); Palo Duro (639); Big Spring (645); Midland (649); Monterey (653); Odessa (657); Amarillo (659) and Lubbock (688).

Dischinger Sets Big Ten Record

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Terry Dischinger set a Big Ten scoring record Saturday night with 32 points to pace Purdue to a 85-74 big ten basketball victory over Michigan State.

Dischinger, a 6-7 junior center who played on the U.S. Olympic team, eclipsed a conference scoring mark of 48 points set only two weeks ago by Jerry Lucas, his Olympic teammate from Ohio State.

Double Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Walter Johnson, who had a 25-20 record in 1916, was the last major league pitcher to win and lose 20 games in the same season.

Palmer Takes Stroke Lead At Baton Rouge

BATON-ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer, insulated from chilling winds, fired a three-under-par 67 Saturday to continue a hot pace in the $20,000 Baton Rouge Open Golf Tournament.

Palmer's 132 total for 36 holes was one stroke lower than Jackie Burke, who tied Palmer for the lead Friday at 65.

Palmer, defending champion at the Baton Rouge Open, sank a 65-foot putt on the eighth green for his best play of the day.

But Bobby Nichols, playing out of Midland, Tex., bettered Palmer's score with a 66 and managed to birdie duce on No. 2 with a 75-foot pitch to the cup. Nichols' 36-hole score was 135, three strokes off the pace.

Play began Saturday with temperatures in the 40s and a brisk wind sweeping the course, pushing scores higher than the soggy first round. But the wind and a bright sun cleared the course of any remaining water hazards.

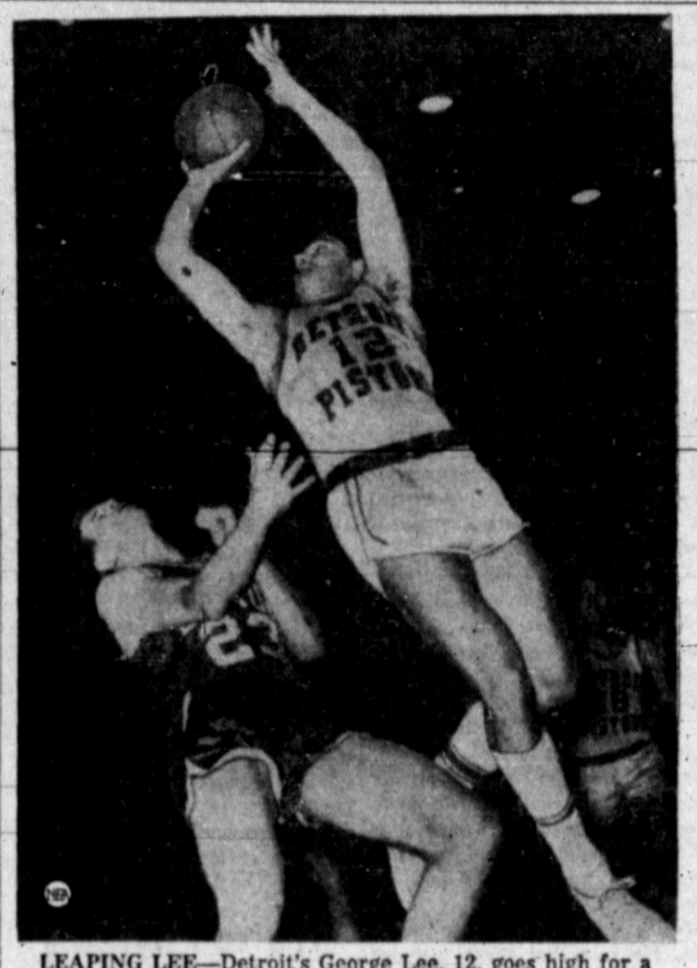

Strung out behind the leaders were Wes Ellis with a 68 Saturday for a 136, Lionel Hebert and Frank Boynton at 137, and George Knudson, Huston Leclair, Gary Player and Buster Cupit, bunched at 138.

The field was cut after the second round to the low 60 pros and 10 amateurs, and that mark was 147—seven over par. Palmer's usual partner, Howie Johnson, was two strokes over that, still troubled with putting. Johnson won the Baton Rouge open two years ago.

Amateur Dave Hill, winner of the Tucson Open last week, skidded to 80 Saturday to go above the cut at 152.

Winds played havoc with another former champion, Sam Snead. He double bogied the first hole by driving out of bounds and wound up with a 74, 11 strokes back of Palmer.

Second-running Burke began his string of birdies with an approach shot to within one foot of the cup on No. 2. He had 20-foot putts on the third and 17th greens.

Bucks Down Farwell For Class IA Title

LUBBOCK — White Deer's potent Bucks broke open a tight game in the fourth quarter here Saturday night to defeat Farwell's Steers, 60-41, in the Class IA finals of the Region 1 basketball tournament here.

The Bucks joined Amarillo Palo Duro, 67-59 victors over Midland in a 4A regional battle, and Dumas, who beat Seminole, 56-53 in the 3A title game, as representatives in the tournament next weekend in Lubbock.

Coach Bob Moore's Bucks sent another well-organized team as four Bucks hit figures: Tommy Lester, Bichsel, 14, Carl McAdams, Dickie Hanna, 10.

Benji Dail was tops for White Deer with 12 points, most of which came in the first half.

White Deer trailed early in the game, finally tying the game on a jumper by McAdams fall behind 8-6. However, scored on a one-hander side to move White Deer lead it never lost, although well once out the score late in the second quarter.

The Bucks upped their halftime lead to 43-37 the fourth quarter when turned from its ball-control into a fast-breaking offense.

However, the Steers were match for the Bucks at White Deer's own game and White Deer exploded for 17 points while Farwell could manage only 4 and the Bucks won going away.

Earlier in the day, White Deer had defeated Iraan, 60-52, to move into the finals while Farwell had defeated Plains, 58-38.

The twin wins boosted White Deer's seasonal mark to 31-2 and established them as one of the top contenders at the state meet which begins Thursday.

Dons Rap Midland

LUBBOCK — Amarillo Palo Duro, held to a 29-29 halftime tie, exploded in the last two quarters to defeat Midland's Bulldogs, 67-59, in the Class 4A quarterfinals here in Lubbock's Coliseum.

The victory sent the Dons to the state tournament for the second time. Palo Duro won the state 3A title in 1956, the first year the school was opened.

All-Stater Steve Carter and teammate Toby Hall paced the Dons' victory with 18 points apiece, although Midland's Knox Nunnally took high-game honors with 21 points. Midland All Stater Charles Dishman was held to 16 points.

Palo Duro leaped to a 17-11 lead at the end of the first period with Carter leading the way, but the Bulldogs came back to knot the game at intermission as Nunnally scored from in close.

Palo Duro opened the game up in the third quarter, rolling up 21 points to Midland's 10, as the Bulldogs made repeated floor mistakes while the Dons relied on their rebounding power.

Boston Eclipses Broad Jump Mark

NEW YORK (UPI)—Olympic champion Ralph Boston of Tennessee A&I broke the world indoor record for the broad jump Saturday night with a magnificent leap of 28 feet, 6 1/4 inches, in the national A.A.U. track and field championships.

The skinny Olympian smashed the record on his final jump, eclipsing by 8 3/4 inches the accepted world mark of 25-9 1/2 set by Bo Roberson in this same meet last year.

Boston, who had an earlier leap of 26-2 1/2 this winter still pending, was given a rousing ovation by a standing room only crowd of 16,000 at Madison Square Garden.

Russia's Igor Ter-Ovanesyan also broke the existing world mark with a leap of 26 feet even to finish second. The Russian made his best jump on his third of six attempts and looked like the winner until Boston zoomed down the Garden boards and pulled off his stunning record leap.

Defending champion Robertson had to settle for third place with a leap of 25 feet, 4 1/4 inches.

The meet opened with an upset when Bob Backus of the New York A. C. regained the 35-pound weight throw title he lost last year to Harold Connolly. Backus turned in a winning toss of 66 feet, 6 inches. Connolly, who set the world record of 71 1/2 in this meet last year, finished second, this time with a 65-10 toss.

Hayes Jones, the Olympic bronze medal winner from Ypsilanti, Mich., equalled the world record of 7.0 seconds in winning the 60-high hurdles for the second consecutive year. It was Jones' seventh straight victory of the current indoor season.

Elias Gilbert of Winston-Salem, N.C., the 1959 winner, was second and Bill Johnson of the University of Maryland finished third.

Tech Grabs Portion Of SWC Banner

By United Press International The Red Raiders from Texas Tech today laid claim to no less than one-half of the Southwest Conference basketball crown, and were considered a shoo-in for all of it.

But it looks like Carroll Broussard, the Texas A & M whiz kid, is going to have to break a leg to give Tech a chance at any of the league's individual scoring honors.

Del Ray Mounts and Harold Hudgens, Tech's Mutt and Jeff hot shots, had a chance at the scoring leadership until Friday night, but is a mighty slim one now.

There's only two games left, and the 37 points Broussard poured in Friday night pushed his season total to 492 with 293 in the league and a 24.4 average. Hudgens, who has played six fewer games, jammed in 25, for 248 in the league race and a 20.7 average, while Mounts, with 24, dropped to 473 overall, 246 in the conference and a 20.5 average.

Tech humbled crippled Texas Christian 101-76 before 9,900 fans at Lubbock, Texas A&M knocked Texas out of contention 86-69 at College Station, Arkansas kept slim hopes alive routing Baylor 76-48, and Rice sneaked past Southern Methodist 64-62 at Houston.

Tech boosted its league record to 10-2, and will have to lose its final two games, against Rice and Texas, to share the title. The Aggies and Arkansas are lumped in second at 8-4, and they close out against each other at Fayetteville.

If they win their next game, their final battle will be for second, or a share of the title depending on the unlikely chance that both Rice and Texas will upset the Raiders.

The land given in exchange for the capitol was valued at not less than fifty cents and not more than $1.50 per acre. As we have told you before Senior Center is growing!!!! B. C. Rogers, a newcomer to the Center this week told an Altrusa Club member, "I had been reading in the paper about your activities down here and I was afraid I was missing something. So I decided to come down and see what it was all about." We have it on good authority that Mr. Rogers enjoyed himself very much and found 90 other Senior Citizens enjoying themselves, too! Other "first-timers" were H. C. Little, Mrs. Anna Mortimer, Mrs. L. G. Groves, Mrs. Nellie Burt, Mr. and Mrs. Ennis Jones.

The following is a poem, submitted by Mrs. Lillian Brunelle, which she and other Senior Citizens have found inspirational and which we want to share with you: I have to live with myself and so,

I want to be fit for myself to know,
I want to be able as the days go by,
Always to look myself in the eye.
I don't want to stand at the setting sun
And hate myself for the things I have done.
I never can hide myself from me.
I see what others may never see.
I know what others may never know.
I never can hide myself and so
Whatever happens I want to be Self-respecting and conscience-free.

Maggie Speal, 617 N. Carr, was notified Friday morning of the death of a favorite uncle, G. M. Thomas, who died Thursday in Wichita Falls. Funeral services in the Hedley Cemetery, Mr. Thomas is survived by two sons, Fred and Ted Thomas and one daughter, who lives in Panhandle.

Iva Ward had an uninvited guest for several days this past week. A big and beautiful Collie came to her home, 415 Browning, and just made itself at home. Mrs. Ward was sure that it was someone's beloved pet but it just wouldn't leave. The story has a happy ending, though, for the owners of the Collie finally came to claim it.

See you Senior Citizens next week. Love, Mrs. Norris.

Morning school devotionals are really the key to a wish. Teenagers learn that if it were not for prayers, they really wouldn't know where to turn for guidance. Those school devotionals are not meaningless; they help you to master life. Listen carefully and you will find a source of blessing and inspiration for building a firm foundation in knowledge and wisdom.

How would you like to have a beauty treatment while you are downtown shopping or making up a foursome around a Bridge table? And all the while you are receiving the beauty treatment, you are confident that you are looking well-groomed. Sounds impossible? It isn't. Research scientists, who play as important a part in keeping mild-looking beautiful as they do in launching a man into space, have put their minds to legs and have come up with a cosmetic stocking that will prevent chaffing during the winter months.

Most of us take great pains to use moistening creams and lotions on our face, neck and arms, but hesitate to use the more or less expensive creams on our legs and feet. As a result, our legs often suffer from flakiness and dryness as the natural oils disappear in over-heated rooms and in blustery weather.

The solution is being offered by Beautique Stockings, Inc. of Paducah, Ky. They have developed a stocking that will prevent a red, scaly appearance of the legs. The hose, which look like any other nylon hose, have been bathed in a secret formula of cosmetic oils that gives the feet and legs a beauty treatment, while the stockings are being worn.

Five precious cosmetic oils, mink oil, turtle oil, royal jelly, lanolin and sesame oil, in addition to several basic oils that work to soften the skin and prevent dryness caused by the weather or from shaving and depilatories have been blended by research scientists.

The formula also contains CXS, a secret solution, which hastens the effects of the oils and a special fixative that retains the lotions in the hosiery through-washing after washing.

It was proven, during laboratory tests, that it takes only a matter of days for the hose to improve chafed skin.

It, also, has been proven, by the manufacturers, that the hose should wear about as long as any other nylons. While they look the same and feel the same as other hose, the wearers will notice that the cosmetic hosiery has a very sweet scent, which will probably lessen with washing.

Just as soon as we have a pair, we plan to make an application as a contestant on Garry Moore's television show, "I've Got A Secret."

Children's Play To Be Presented By AAUW

NIGHTINGALE — Princess Mai-Lee, played by Miss Vivi Paul, listens as the little nightingale sings for her in the National Children's Theatre Ass'n production of Hans Christian Anderson's famous fairy tale, "The Chinese Nightingale" to be presented by the American Association of University Women on Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the Pampa High School auditorium.

The American Association of University Women, in association with the National Children's Theatre of New York, will present the famous Fairy Tale "The Chinese Nightingale" at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Pampa High School auditorium. The date of this play has been advanced a month; having originally been announced for Mar. 28.

"The Chinese Nightingale" one of Hans Christian Anderson's most colorful and charming fairy tales, has been dramatized by Marion DePew Ostrander and staged by Edwin Child with all the oriental charm and color of long ago China. Children will delight in the beautiful dances and the comic actions of the Grand Wizard and the Music Master.

The National Children's Theatre has assembled a cast of professional actors from New York City, including Miss Vivi Paul as the little Kitchen Maid; Edwin Child as Emperor Wang-Lou and Dyland Ross as Wu-Hu, the funny little Music Master. Guy West plays the Grand Wizard and Emily Dunlap will be seen as the Royal Housekeeper.

The Chinese Nightingale tells the story of the little grey nightingale that lived in the forest near the Palace of the Emperor of China long ago and sang so beautifully that people came from near and far to listen to his song. The only person in the Palace who had ever heard him was the little Kitchen Maid, as the Emperor and his staff were much too busy to ever journey outside of the Palace. One day the Emperor received a letter from a Prince who had visited him telling how he had enjoyed listening to the nightingale while walking through the woods. The Emperor demanded that the nightingale be brought to court to sing for him. After many others had failed to catch the nightingale, it was the little Kitchen Maid who finally brought him to court. Emperor Wang-Lou was very sad because his little daughter had been stolen from him years ago, but when the nightingale was placed in a golden cage and sang his beautiful song, it brought tears of happiness to the eyes of the Emperor.

One day the Emperor of Japan, having heard about the famous nightingale, sent a beautiful mechanical singing bird, all covered with precious jewels to Wang-Lou. The Emperor enjoyed the mechanical bird so much he neglected the little grey nightingale and never asked to hear his song, so the little nightingale decided he was no longer needed to bring happiness to the Emperor, so he flew away to his home in the forest. Then suddenly the mechanical bird flew all to pieces, wheels and screws flew all over and no one in the kingdom could put it back together again. This made the Emperor so sad he began to think about his missing daughter again and he became very ill.

Everyone searched for the little grey nightingale, but no one could find him. The Grand Wizard thought that the little Kitchen Maid had killed him, so he had her thrown in the dungeon. Then one day the nightingale heard about the Emperor's illness and just as Death appeared to take the Emperor away, the nightingale arrived at the window and sang so beautifully that Death became homesick for his own lands and went away. Emperor Wang-Lou at once regained his health and was so happy to have the nightingale back he promised him any request he might ask. The nightingale asked that the Kitchen Maid be released from the dungeon and brought to the Emperor's room and when she arrived the nightingale revealed the most startling news.

What the nightingale told the Emperor will be discovered when you see this famous story Tuesday at 4 p.m. at the High School. Those who do not have season tickets may purchase single tickets at the door on the day of the performance for 75-cents.

Distributed exclusively by, and endorsed by, Reed and Barton, is Hagerty Silver Foam silver cleaner. McCARLEY'S JEWELRY has this wonderful silver cleaner here in Pampa. This foaming cleaner was developed in 1895 by the Hagerty family of South Bend, Indiana from an old silversmith's formula. It contains no abrasives or chemicals to irritate hands or harm fine silverware. In 1958 leading women editors voted Hagerty Silver Foam the finest of all 96 silver polishes they tested. Before this it had been custom blended and sold by the gallon to America's leading families — since then it has been available in stores. A moist sponge or cloth containing a small amount of the rouge-colored foam produces a lather that cleans and washes when rubbed lightly onto the silver. A quick rinsing and drying produces a rich hand-rubbed lustre comparable to a butler finish. I have tried this polish, and find it to be the best and easiest to use that I have run across. No wonder famous maker of fine silver, Reed and Barton, recommends the use of this cleaner. It has been used for years in the White House, too. It is available at McCARLEY'S JEWELRY 106 N. Cuyler.

Have you taken my advice and had a look at the new Ceramaflex floor tile at PAMPA GLASS AND PAINT? The tiles are Roman-Spartan unglazed one inch square tiles permanently bonded into flexible rubber grid. The unglazed mosaic surface is sealed to protect against water, in of dirt and grime. It is easily installed over most smooth sound subfloors, and gives you beautifully tiled floor, easily stalled. The rubber grid reduces noise and is comfortable to walk on. The ceramic surface is not harmed by alkalies, grease or household cleaners, and needs no damp mopping for care. The colors are Mediterranean rich — pretty in browns, tans, blues; a grays with wonderful names such as Livorno, Milano, Cordoba, G nada, and so on. This is a real advance in flooring — really new! CHRONIC DEEP-SEATED PAIN GIVEN FASTER-LONGER RELIEF... RICHARD DRUG Joe Tooley—Pampa's Synonym for Drugs 111 N. Cuyler MO 4-5747

ABBY: What do you do to your husband who chews? I only on Sundays and I can talk to him because his is so full. When we go for and I ask him a question, to stop the car. Let me see other wives who have chewing husbands. I am and of my rope.

CHEWER'S WIFE WIFE: A tobacco chewer up his wife before he will his cud. If he chewed when married him and you planned to surrender. If this thing new, beg, bribe, pun or kill him with kindness, him know how much you this habit—and pray he up.

ABBY: I have a daughter from marriage. The man I also had a daughter by marriage. (His wife when introducing the girl, oper for me to say, "Meet fighter and my step-daughter think it sounds terrible, will people know which mine and which one is his? MOTHER IN DOUBT

DEAR MOTHER: It is not proper to identify one of the girls as "your own" and the other as a "step-daughter." On introducing them, say, "These are OUR daughters." If anyone has the bad manners to pry into their parentage, you can explain.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a terrible time trying to convince my mother that her old-fashioned ideas about dating are not right for this day and age. She says if a boy asks you to a school dance and you tell him you are going out of town or something, you can't show up with another fellow. This means a girl has to accept the first boy who asks her, whether he's a drip or not, or else stay home. Abby, please tell my mom in your column that times have changed.

A MODERN GIRL DEAR MODERN: "Times" may have changed, but the feelings of people remain the same. If you don't care to go with a boy, thank him and say you are "busy." His feelings will be spared and you will be free to go with someone else, should you be asked. If you say you'll be "out of town or something," you'll prove yourself to be a liar—and a pretty sneaky one at that.

DEAR ABBY: You are to be commended for the letters on mental illness you ran in your column. In those letters I saw so clearly the attitude of society, which makes it so difficult for the emotionally disturbed to recover. I had ten years of emotional trouble and was one of the lucky ones whose family stood by me. I wonder how many people know anything of the dark and horrible in. There are no words to describe the fear and terror. And then the hurt they receive when trying to recover and they become aware of the strange things they did during their illness.

Society has done a good job in making the mental patient ashamed. Too much cannot be said about the attitude of the public concerning mental illness. If ever a human needs understanding and patience, it is the one who is in the dark and lonely world of mental illness. I lived there—and I know. WITH GOD'S HELP "RECOVERED"

Yes, Abby will answer you letter personally if you write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

★ Polly's Quiz ★

By Polly Cramer Lowly bed ticking has infinite decorating possibilities. Oddly enough, it's seldom used by the home decorator on a budget. Top-flight decorators, however, put it to stylish uses. Often, they cover walls with ticking (applied like wallpaper) and then have curtains made to match. The popular navy-and-white stripes will last just about forever. Try ticking slip covers if there are children in the family and other fabrics soon wear thin on the arm.

A word of caution: thoroughly shrink every inch of this material before it is made up. Ticking with a glossy finish (almost like chintz) is available in most large department stores. It comes in stripes of white with either cranberry red, green, gold, pale lemon yellow or cocoa brown.

Dear Polly: I'm forced to agree with what you say about a canopy bed being very feminine. This poses a problem. I have a canopy bed in my 6-year-old son's room. I plan to do the walls either white with Wedgewood blue woodwork or all light powdery blue. I will use a red bandanna handkerchief fabric for the canopy ruffle and cafe curtains on heavy brass rods. I plan to paint his bookcase red. For a masculine theme, I'll use prints of prize-winning dogs framed in red. George Washington slept on a canopy bed. Are they then taboo for the 20th century male? I'm anxious for your opinion even though you can see that I like the bed.—Mrs. M. C. Dear Mrs. M. C.: Try dressing that son of yours like George and see what happens. He probably won't object to a canopy bed now but just wait a few years. I think that most 20th century males have little desire to return to the ways of George Washington's day. White walls and blue woodwork would be more fitting for a boy's room than a "pale powdery blue." Do paint his bookcase to match the woodwork. Your use of the red bandannas is an interesting idea.

Dear Polly: We are now in the process of doing over our small living room. So far, the walls and ceiling are oyster white. Off-white drapes are a nubby texture. Our new sectional and hostess chair are to be made up in a royal blue. But where do I go from here? What color should rug and one other chair be?—Mrs. J. W. L. Dear Mrs. J. W. L.: Shop for a well-covered print fabric in blue, green and white which you can use to slip cover the other chair.

"Critics from inside Russia point out certain failures in the system; people are competitive in spirit, interested in material things, hungry for private gain, insensitive to the glory of hard manual labor, but these appear to be proof of the success of Stalin's education program." "Mrs. J. Bradner says, "Mrs. Harvey concluded, "Critics on the outside particularly those of us who think of education in terms of a democratic society, are prone to optimism in the ultimate results of Russian education. The Russians, as a result of their educational system, are superbly trained cogs in the Big Red Machine. But whether or not such education or training with emphasis on science and technology will produce eventually disaffection with a system, which does not allow the fullest development of the individual is moot. With collective leadership abroad and at home. With acceptance and respect as a leading force in the international society of nations acquired through this technical superiority may come

Flowers Improve Neighborhood, Help Protect Real Estate Value

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — A seedy idea for your home and community comes from Andy Pinkerton. The head of the National Garden Bureau has beauty in mind when he recommends that the nation's families pretty their homes and towns with flowers. Pinkerton said in an interview that planting programs in two upstate New York communities proved to the bureau that the sprouting of posies about even a tract home improves the neighborhood, protects real estate value and helps neighborliness to develop. The two towns that prettied up are Tonawanda and North Tonawanda. In the towns more than 60 social, business, and academic groups merged their green thumbs. Pinkerton said even the children got into the growing movement. The Junior Chamber of Commerce built and painted more than a hundred window boxes for decorating the commercial areas. "In the various residential districts," Pinkerton said, "homeowners associations met periodically for gardening discussions, lectures and demonstrations." When the program blossomed, the business district sprouted flower boxes up and down the main streets. "A planted wheelbarrow decorated the front of the local hardware store and petunias were blooming in tire gardens in gas stations," Pinkerton said. "A pot bellied stove full of petunias prettied the front of the local diner. Rowboats full of flowers graced both entrances to the bridge over the canal connecting the two cities. Even the leading plumber put out a bathtub planted with annuals." Pinkerton said that the experience in the New York towns moved the bureau to draw a blueprint for home and community beautification programs via flowers. "The National Garden Bureau has set up regional committees around the country to function as liaisons in arranging for professional gardening help on a local level," the expert said. Easternmost town in the United States is Lubec, Maine.

MATURE PARENT

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear M. Lawrence:
My son is my 13-year-old girl. She is very fresh to me. Last night she made me feel like two cents in front of a neighbor. We had stopped our conversation because she was talking on the telephone. When the call went on and on, I asked her to hang up. She turned around and told me to mind my own business. It sounded so fresh. I do not claim to be a perfect mother but God knows I have done my best. ANSWER: She hurt you, didn't she? She made you angry. Why didn't you let her know it? These days many parents find it hard to register the hurts they feel because of mistreatment by their children. Though hurt is our first, immediate response, it's so quickly overwhelmed by other considerations that we are barely conscious of it. We hear the rudeness, feel the flash of hurt—and the next moment we lose the feeling amidst secondary ones like embarrassment, a sense of obligation to "understand" the child's emotional state, hesitation over the kind of required discipline, depression, despair. So the child doesn't see us experience the hurt he has inflicted. He doesn't see it change to indignation. He doesn't see the consequence of his behavior. I have known such a parent. She is so used to being bullied by everyone from her older sister to her husband that she has become anesthetized to her daughter's insolence. When this girl once made a cutting remark, this mother turned to me to ask, "Mrs. Lawrence, what do you think of a child who talks like this to her mother?" She was so disconnected from her hurt indignation that she wanted to conduct a conversation on rude

Central Baptist Circles Meet For Mission Studies

Ladies of the Central Baptist Church Woman's Missionary Society met in members' homes Wednesday morning at 9:45 for mission study. The following is a report by circles:
HELEN TISDALE CIRCLE met in the home of Mrs. L. R. Tyson. Business was led by the chairman and prayer led by Mrs. Tyson. Mrs. Bob Hulsey was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. Charley Thomas completed the current mission study book.

MARY ELLEN WARREN CIRCLE met with Mrs. Gerald Beatty, south of the city. Business was conducted by the chairman, Mrs. Gene McClelland. Mrs. Bob Ratliff read the calendar of prayer and Mrs. L. G. McDaniel led in prayer. Mrs. Fred Clark Jr. gave the mission study. Others present were Mmes. Elmo Thompson, Ralph Tyler, and Lelia Gomer.

Other members present were Mmes. C. B. Liles, J. C. Forsman, and Elbert Wayt. Mrs. Ralph Prock dismissed with prayer. LILLIE MAE HUNDLEY CIRCLE met with Mrs. Rex Spence, 512 Magnolia to complete their mission study on Latin America. So I suggest that you try to recover your first, simple, immediate response of hurt to rudeness by your child. Then speak out. Say, "You have hurt me and I don't like it." It is as important for a child to see the consequences of a too-sharp tongue as it is to see the connection between his carelessness and the vase he has broken. In another column I am going to speak more of the importance of expressing our indignant hurt to sharp-tongued children.

for a prayer circle remember the Latin American one which were studied in the lesson. SARAH BETH SHORT Circle met with Mrs. J. H. Reeve. Mrs. George Long read the calendar and Mrs. E. Capitol Hostesses Anxiously Wonder

Will That Invitation Draw A Kennedy 'Oui'?

By JERRY BENNETT

WASHINGTON (NE A) — The Washington hostess who denies hopes that President John F. Kennedy will show up at one of her parties is taken about as seriously these days as the chainmaker who plans to quit tomorrow.
For the new President's tradition-breaking habit of accepting invitations to private parties has every gal who can afford a caterer secretly daydreaming of the evening when the Kennedys con to dinner.

Those who have the best chance of pulling off the deluxe model of social coups fall into four categories, say authorities on Capital society. They are:

President and Mrs. Kennedy's personal friends, who entertained them when he was a senator. Kennedy has already made it clear that he intends to see old friends socially.
Big contributors to the Democratic Party and people who worked on the Kennedy campaign.
Worthy cause sponsors who get Jackie Kennedy to take part in their fund raising drives. She is already helping to raise money for the Heart Fund, Cancer Society and others.
Women who have already made names for themselves as hostesses. White House officials say the President receives about 120 invitations a day to cocktail parties, dinners, diplomatic receptions, baptisms, weddings, conventions and conferences.

So far, though, the ones he has accepted have been extended verbally by the person tossing the affair or through an intermediary. Each affair has been given by close friends of the President and his wife.
Hostesses who know how to throw small dinners with liberal quantities of good conversation have a better chance of having the President show up than those who specialize in massive stand-up affairs. Friends say he prefers dinners with no more than 10-12 guests.
Kennedy's enthusiasm for parties since taking office is expected to catch on throughout both of the official and unofficial Washington. Caroy Hagner Shaw, publisher of Washington's social register and perhaps the number one authority on Capital parties says:
"The goings-on at the White House usually set the pace for social life throughout Washington. The way things have started with this administration, I think that there will be more entertaining in town than usual."
Social arbiter Mary Stuart Montague Price foresees New Frontier parties as characterized by youth.

Drilling Rig For Moon Developed By Oil Co.

A "drilling rig" capable of boring a hole through dust or solid rock in a vacuum and under temperatures ranging from 200 degrees above to 200 degrees below zero on the surface of the moon, has been developed by a U.S. oil field equipment company.

The new device is part of a project begun by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to study the moon's surface, and is directed by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of California Institute of Technology. Target date for the moon probe is sometime in 1963.

The unit itself is in sharp contrast to the normal oil drilling rig, which weighs thousands of tons and often stands more than 100 feet.

The lunar rig is about five feet tall. Made of light, exotic metals, it weighs 60 pounds on earth and about 10 pounds on the moon.

At present four aircraft companies are working on designs for the space ship that will carry the drill and recording instruments on the long trip to the moon. Each company is submitting plans for craft capable of carrying 600 to 800 pounds of payload. The drill and other instruments will be moved from the ship and placed in operation by electronic command.

Current plans call for the device to be shot to the moon aboard the unmanned space craft. Then, powered by cylinders of gas, the drill will bore a hole into the moon's crust and obtain core samples.

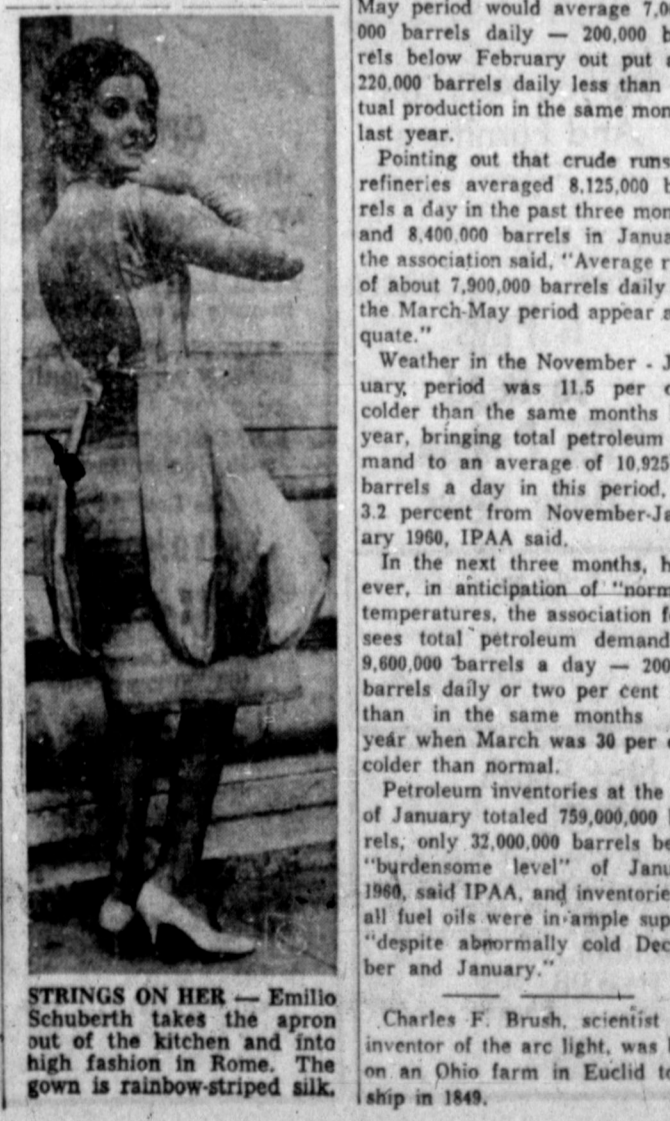

These samples will be analyzed automatically aboard the space vehicle, probably by some form of x-ray refraction, and the results will be radioed to NASA scientists who will control the operation on earth, 238,000 miles away.

NASA scientists consider the 1963 moon probe as only the beginning in lunar drilling. They are looking forward to drilling lunar holes as large as eight inches in diameter.

Producer Hopes To Hit Record Depth With Well

Down in the steamy delt a country of Louisiana not far from where the Mississippi river empties into the Gulf of Mexico, drilling crews are boring their way toward what may be the world's deepest oil well.

Located in historic Plaquemine Parish at the southeastern tip of oil-prone Louisiana the well is scheduled to be drilled to at least 28,000 feet, a distance of nearly five miles down. The estimated cost will be a minimum of $2 million. The present depth record is held by a hole in Texas that cost $13 million, and failed to produce.

Impartial Fuel Resource Study Wins The Full Support Of Oil Industry

The American oil industry has offered its full support and cooperation in any impartial study of the nation's energy resources but stated that it will continue to oppose any action that would allow the government to dictate the type of fuel a consumer must use.

In a letter to President John F. Kennedy, American Petroleum Institute President Frank M. Porter said, "The petroleum industry will support any impartial and objective investigation of our energy position, whether it be restricted solely to fuels or whether it is extended to include all strategic resources."

He said the oil industry had participated in similar studies in the past and would continue to do so whenever the President, the Congress or the public feels they are necessary.

However, Mr. Porter warned against the creation of a so-called new "national fuels policy" stating "The leading supporter of these 'fuels policy' proposals is the coal industry which, through legislative fiat and the imposition of government-enforced 'end-use' controls, hopes to gain advantages over its competitors, despite overwhelming consumer preference for cheaper and more convenient oil and gas."

In his letter to President Kennedy, Mr. Porter referred to a statement by the National Coal Association on January 10, 1961, which said government action would enable the coal industry to sell more coal and which endorsed a "national fuels policy" as a vital part of such action.

"The petroleum industry has long taken the position that the nation's policy of free consumer

"Any other course," Mr. Porter's letter said, "would defeat the principles which have given us the highest standard of living in the world, and which have resulted in a continuous supply of low-cost, abundant energy to keep that standard of living on the rise."

Toy Business Booms — Despite Recession

By CLAIRE COX
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — With only 256 shopping days until Christmas, the toy industry is engaging in a reappraisal of its standing in the world of fun and games.

What it has found out is both reassuring and disturbing, reports Edward P. Parker, president of the Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A. and executive vice president of Parker Brothers, one of the oldest and largest games companies.

Parker said that generally the toy departments fared better than the rest of the economy during the 1960 Christmas shopping rush.

"We don't know how to account for it," he said, in an interview. "I'm sure Mr. Kennedy would like some of the answers."

Part of the answer apparently rests on the fact that the nation's wealth has been distributed more widely than ever before. This, together with the birth of increasing numbers of children, has brought more persons into the toy market, Parker said.

"There is one other factor that none of us has the answer to," he said.

"There are a great many added outlets — discount houses, drug stores, markets and party plans. Television advertising of toys may have had a good deal to do with it."

Despite the fact that the past peak toy season was a good one, there are danger signs confronting the industry, Parker said.

"The industry as a whole has not done very well in the last few years," he said. "First, because of competition from Japan and perhaps Germany and Hong Kong. Labor in those places is so poorly paid that they can undersell the American manufacturer, who is being squeezed."

"Second, the toy industry is relatively young as an industry and there has been a lot of shifting. Everyone looking for a sideline goes into toys. An awful lot of the manufacturers have not made a profit in two or three years and some are losing."

"Those making money average a 1 to 1½ per cent profit. The average among all industry last year was higher. Many toy makers on the fringes go out of business, and there is a tendency to merge as in other industries."

Says Pipeline Poses No Danger Of Gas Shortage

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A proposed pipeline poses no danger of a shortage of natural gas for northern Mexico as voiced recently by Monterrey industrialists, an official spokesman for the government oil agency, Petroleos Mexicanos, said yesterday.

At the same time, Industry and Commerce Minister Raul Salinas Lozano said he has not yet talked with Petroleos Mexicanos director Pascual Gutierrez Roldan about a formal memorandum submitted by Monterrey industrialists.

Salinas Lozano indicated his office has made "no decision" regarding the memorandum. The note said a proposed pipeline from Texas to California through Mexico would be "opposed" unless guarantees were given that Mexico would suffer no natural gas shortage from exports of Mexican gas through the pipeline.

The oil agency official said Pemex recently announced that domestic production will reach 500 million cubic feet this year.

He said Mexico has exported "small quantities" of natural gas for eight years, but gave no details. He said Pemex has "no intentions" of boosting exports, which he said do not affect internal consumption.

Dallas Insurance Firm Makes Loan To Gas Company

DALLAS (UPI) — The Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York has lent Natural Gas Gathering Co., Inc., a subsidiary of Leth-Taylor Oil Co., $764,000 to finance construction and operation of a gas-gathering system in Starr and Zapata counties.

The loan is supposed to be paid off in 13 years at 6 per cent interest. The gas-gathering system will consist of nearly 59 miles of lines, plus lateral systems.

At first, the system will gather gas in Zapata County and transport it to Tennessee Gas Transmission Co.'s lateral line in the Zim Field of Starr County.

The system is expected to be extended to Webb and Jim Hogg counties later.

Pipe Worth $6,000 Stolen At Midland

DALLAS (UPI) — Texas law enforcement agencies were notified Monday to watch for a huge truckload of oil field pipe which was stolen near Midland during the weekend.

Some 51 joints of 5½ inch casing, each 43 feet long were stolen from a Shell Oil Co. pipe yard, George Robey, chief special investigator, Texas, Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn., reported.

"To lumber of with this much pipe without being seen somewhere along the road is difficult. We hope someone has seen it and will report it," Robey said.

Value of this much pipe is about $6000.

NLRB Strikes Happier Note For Refineries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Labor Relations Board, which has kept oil refineries in hot water with decisions on union rivalry, has struck a happier note.

In a reversal of a previous decision, it said it would not recognize the challenge of a small maintenance union to a representation election requested by a big production union seeking plantwide bargaining rights.

This was pleasant news for refineries caught in representation disputes between so-called industrial and crafts unions. Most companies prefer to deal with a plantwide union. It saves time, strife and money.

It also was good news for O. A. Knight's AFL-CIO Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International. It gave Knight new ammunition in his long but futile fight to persuade the AFL-CIO Executive Council to outlaw crafts raids or encroachment in plants where his union holds sway.

The board's newest decision did not apply to the oil industry. It involved the American Cyanamid Co. But it could apply to future refinery elections unless the board again interprets the Taft-Hartley Act differently.

Until its new ruling, the board had granted craft elections in all except four "integrated" industries—steel, aluminum, lumbering and over textiles.

Over protests of the National Petroleum Association, representing refiners, it insisted that under Taft-Hartley it had no right to interfere on behalf of one union or another. It exempted the other four industries on grounds they were highly integrated.

The NPA in its protest asserted that "integration" applied to refinery operations and refinery workers as well and hence the exemption should be extended to refining. But the board said the only issue was whether a craft union should or should not be represented on an industrial basis. This, it added, was up to the plant employees to decide.

This is the policy that was reversed in the Cyanamid case. Adv AM's Sun, Feb. 26

Geologists Now Use Photography In Their Search

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The old saying is that one picture is worth 1,000 words. To an oil company, one picture could be worth a thousand dollars under the right circumstances.

Geologists are leaning on photography as never before in their search for new oil and gas deposits.

And as exploration moves into ever more inaccessible areas, the camera comes into use more and more.

A survey team for Cities Service Co. searching for oil in Alaska was stalled for months ago. Remote locations could be reached only by float plane, but pilots were reluctant to land on unfamiliar lakes and rivers.

The survey team turned to its photogeologists located at Bartlesville, Okla., for help.

Using aerial photomaps of the territory, map interpreters computed water depths to pinpoint places where planes could land safely—and the operation proceeded.

That's one example of photogeology—a vital step in preparing for oil exploration.

Hundreds, and sometimes thousands, of aerial photographs are assembled in creation of an aerial survey map for examination and evaluation by the photogeologist. In the hands of a skilled man, the photo may point the way to significant structures in which to drill.

Of course, other tests, surface surveys and the like are made before going in to drill.

Cities Service Co. says it is plotting thousands of square miles a year by photogeology.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Directors of Celanese Corp. of America has declared a dividend of 30 cents a share on the common stock, payable March 24, 1961, to shareholders of record March 8, 1961.

The board also voted regular quarterly dividends of $1.12½ per share on the preferred stock, series A, and $1.75 per share on the 7 per cent second preferred stock. Both preferred stock dividends are payable April 1, 1961, to shareholders of record March 8, 1961.

Plans Laid For Passage Of JFK Jobless Program

By NORMAN G. CORNISH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — House leaders have laid plans for passage this week of President Kennedy's anti-recession program to pay extra unemployment compensation benefits to the nation's jobless.

The House Ways & Means Committee approved the billion-dollar measure by a strong bipartisan vote last Thursday.

It also tentatively ok'd a second bill to provide millions of dollars in public assistance for needy children of unemployed parents.

House action on the first of Kennedy's emergency proposals was predicted by the middle of next week if all goes well. The Senate also was geared to act fast once the measure comes over.

The administration hopes to rush the additional benefits to jobless workers within two weeks after the bill becomes law.

Meanwhile, a House labor subcommittee scheduled a day-long session behind closed doors on Kennedy's bill to raise the minimum wage from $1 to $1.25 an hour and add coverage for 4.3 million more workers. The subcommittee held a brief session Thursday to lay the groundwork for drafting a wage bill.

House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana said Republicans would support the legislation. "We believe that steps must be taken promptly to provide additional relief," Halleck said.

The unemployment benefits bill would funnel nearly a billion dollars in extra compensation to about 3,125,000 workers whose unemployment benefits have been exhausted or will expire in the next year or so.

Kennedy had asked $350 million for the children's aid program. The committee cut it down, however, by setting more rigid standards for those seeking to qualify.

The revised bill stipulates that an unemployed worker whose children were receiving special benefits must accept any job offered by the U.S. Employment Service. If he refused it, aid to the children would be cut off.

Under the regular unemployment compensation program, a worker can reject a certain number of "unsuitable" jobs and still collect benefits. The new provision in the children's bill would not affect the basic jobless pay program.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., said the House would act promptly on the jobless pay bill.

The measure would provide up to 13 weeks of additional payments to jobless workers, depending on the length of time various states pay benefits under the joint federal-state program. A worker could not receive more than a total of 39 weeks pay.

U.S. Civil Pilots Fly Jungle 'Milk Run' To Supply The Laotian Army

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Perhaps the key men in the Laotian civil war are a group of American civilian pilots flying chartered planes and helicopters to supply the Royal Laotian Army.

They are costing the United States government an estimated $30,000 a day, according to informed U.S. officials here. The Program Evaluation Office (PEO), America's military advisory group in Laos, refused to disclose the exact cost.

The PEO people said this affected the security of the Laotian government.

The pilots and planes actually have been flying in Southeast Asia for several years. The pilots describe the flights as their "milk runs."

The tag came after they began flying a considerable amount of food, liquor and other supplies from Bangkok to American installations in Vientiane and more remote places of Laos. The pilots also make "milk runs" to other parts of Indo-China.

They have a dangerous job today, flying World War II vintage planes, mostly C47's and C47's, to hot spots in this jungle kingdom.

War is old hat to these pilots who usually bivouac in Bangkok's plush air conditioned hotels every night and take off each day for Laos about the time the banks are opening.

Some of the pilots can relate first-hand tales of the Flying Tigers of pre-World War II fame. And most could boast, if they were boastful types, of flying in World War II and in Korea—or perhaps of the more dangerous days at Dien Bien Phu and in the Indo-China War when they flew unarmed planes on daring missions just as they are doing today.

The pilots shun publicity and the last thing they like to see is their name in a newspaper. They just like to fly their planes and collect their money—not a large sum considering the risks they are taking.

It is just another flying day for most of them whether they are maneuvering through some of Laos' rugged mountain peaks to drop ammunition to a beleaguered rebel army unit while shells from rebel guns whistle too close for comfort or whether they are bringing in coffee for the American embassy commissary in Vientiane.

They like this life. And despite the dangers, some of them often find it dull.

One of those who found those "milk runs" dull was Allen Lawrence Pope, who is now sitting in an Indonesian jail facing the prospect of a firing squad for participating in a 1958 rebel uprising against the Jakarta government.

Pope, a B26 bomber pilot during the Korean War, gave up the "quiet life" flying the Southeast Asian "milk run" three years ago to temporarily join up with the Indonesian rebels. He was shot down and sentenced to death for his alleged participation in the uprising.

The pilots do not participate in any combat operations here, although occasionally one of them flies a Laotian army officer over rebel positions so he can direct the artillery fire when forward ground observers are unable to do so.

They don't talk about it much, but most of these fliers have had more than their share of narrow scrapes. Some have just gotten their planes off the ground in remote villages as the rebel forces attacked. Some have had their engines shot out while swooping in low to air-drop gasoline or ammunition to Laotian army troops.

When the rebels attacked and captured Ban Nam Boc, some 40 miles northeast of Luang Prabang, one pilot was getting his plane loaded as enemy mortar and artillery shells began raining down on the airfield. Hundreds of Laotians swarmed onto the runway, trying to get on the plane and flee with the pilot. The flier barely got his ship off the ground in time.

There are few roads in this country and for most of the Laotian army units fighting rebel forces these planes are about the only dependable way of getting supplies and equipment.

There are few doctors in the Laotian army and practically no facilities for giving aid to the wounded at the front. About the only hope a wounded soldier has is for one of the American-piloted helicopters to drop into some jungle clearing—as they often do while enemy guns blast away—to pick up the injured and carry them to Vientiane, where medical care is available.
