

Now, Here's A Real Switch . . .

Two Texas Officials Would Abolish Their Jobs

By FLETCHER ROBERTSON
Daily News Special Correspondent

AUSTIN — Better hang onto something secure. Here comes a shocker:

Two Texas county superintendents want to abolish their jobs.

You read it right. They think the operation of their offices is a waste of taxpayers' money and want them eliminated. Which is something of a switch. For a politician, at least.

The two superintendents are George Corse of Young County and Paul Hershey of Galveston County. Each man pegged his last election campaign on a promise to try to get the Legislature to abolish his position. Sounds funny, but it's true.

And what's more, they're following through.

Acting on requests made by Corse and Hershey, Sen. A. R. Schwartz of Galveston soon will introduce a bill in the Senate asking for local elections to do away with the positions.

"These men saw how useless their jobs are and got tired of sitting around doing nothing," Senator Schwartz said. "They asked me to help with the legislation and since I agree with them wholeheartedly I told them I would do all I can."

The bill hasn't been drafted, but Schwartz says it probably will provide for local elections in counties having under 100 scholastics in common school districts, estimated to be about 90. Elections would be called by the county judge on petition of 10 per cent of the qualified voters.

Schwartz says the bill would save the taxpayers of Texas about $2,000,000 a year. Salaries of county superintendents are fixed by state law at $8,500 a year, he said.

The bill would leave ultimate control of the problem with the voters of each county, Schwartz said. "They will make the decision at the polls," he went on. "But if the people of these counties want to save some money, here's their chance."

Schwartz says there is some support for the measure in his district and in the 23rd Senatorial District, which includes Young County where Corse is county superintendent. Sen. George Moffett of the 23rd district also has said he expects to support the bill.

However, Schwartz anticipates some opposition to the proposal, but said he wasn't prepared to say how strong it will be.

Food Stamp Areas Set

By BRUCE AGNEW
United Press International

Surrounded by America's prosperity, the areas chosen by President Kennedy for a pilot food stamp program live daily under the gloom of depression.

The President, in his news conference Wednesday, named four areas of "maximum chronic unemployment" for the program—in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, southern Illinois and eastern Kentucky—and said one more would be added later.

But in his economic message to Congress today, Kennedy added two areas—Detroit and northern Minnesota.

What is it like, in a pocket of depression where so many search in vain for jobs to feed their families? In cold statistics, which cannot measure the pain and frustration, here is the answer.

West Virginia: This state where Kennedy scored a crucial presidential primary victory last spring has about 85,000 persons unemployed—13,000 more than a year ago—with 43,000 persons collecting jobless benefits.

The misery is concentrated in the heavy coal mining areas. Eight Southern coal counties have 10,000 persons or more on surplus food rolls, an estimated 300,000 persons are getting surplus food now—about 450,000 are eligible for it—and the state's surplus food supervisor said last week "more than half of the 7,000 persons in McDowell County depend on surplus food for their meals."

Pennsylvania: Basic industries are the main employers. In 1950, railroads, textile mills and coal mines provided 437,000 jobs. Last year, they were down to 203,000. In December, 1955, primary metals industries in and around Pittsburgh employed 149,000. In December, 1960, they were down to 114,000.

By last Nov. 15, about 108,000 workers were unemployed in Pittsburgh—11.5 per cent of the work force. Last month this jumped to 12.5 per cent.

Southern Illinois: According to best estimates, about 30,000 persons have suffered from chronic unemployment in this region which has been trying to attract industry to offset employment losses in coal mines. More than 25,000 persons are on relief rolls.

Coal mining, the major industry in the hardest-hit sections, has been slumping off and on since the 1930s. In one county alone, the old coal mining area of Franklin County, about 4,000 are unemployed out of an estimated population of 38,000.

According to legend, if the groundhog sees his shadow Feb. 2, it means six weeks more of winter. If not, get ready to spade around the rose bushes.

Groundhog Differs In Predictions

By United Press International
The nation's groundhogs took a look at the weather today and predicted:

Six weeks more of winter. Spring is just around the corner. Which forecast was delivered depended on which groundhog was consulted.

(EDITOR'S NOTE — As far as Pampans and folk of the general area are concerned, they may as well make up their minds to keep stoking their furnaces and have their overcoats handy, for the 'hog definitely saw his shadow here.)

According to legend, if the groundhog sees his shadow Feb. 2, it means six weeks more of winter. If not, get ready to spade around the rose bushes. Groundhogs with the courage to stick their noses above ground were rare in the North Atlantic states where sub-zero and near-zero weather marked the 15th day of a record cold streak. Below-zero temperatures were felt westward across the Great Lakes all the way to North Dakota.

The coldest weather of the year gripped New York City where the 15th day of sub-freezing temperatures equalled a mark set in 1881, the year of the great blizzard. Readings dipped to one below early today.

Boston had its lowest reading of the winter, while in Rhode Island between the two big cities, the 15-day cold snap was the longest in the history of weather records. South of the snow belt, light rain fell from Missouri through northern Alabama, then spread south over the Gulf Coast and east into North Carolina and Georgia.

Horse Racing Amendment Is Up For Decision

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas voters may have a chance to legalize horse racing. Supporters of the move say it would pour millions of dollars into the state treasury.

Rep. V. E. (Red) Berry of San Antonio filed a constitutional amendment Wednesday to permit pari-mutuel betting on horse racing in certain parts of the state.

Berry's amendment calls for local-option horse racing in Dallas, Tarrant, Harris, Galveston, Bexar, Midland, Hidalgo, Cameron and Webb counties.

If the amendment clears the legislature and is adopted by the voters in the next general election, horse racing would be permitted in those counties only after a vote of the residents of the counties.

Perryton C-C In '10-At-10' Meets

PERRYTON (Spl) — The Perryton Chamber of Commerce is presently holding "10 to 10" sessions in the chamber office.

At these meetings, which will continue daily through Feb. 8, a group of 10 Chamber of Commerce members get together at 10 a.m. to plan the program of work for the coming year.

Speaker's Choice Plan Proposed

By PAT CONWAY

AUSTIN (UPI)—Sweeping changes in the rules governing way members of the Texas House of Representatives elect a speaker were urged today by two Texas lawmakers.

The changes in the speakership—one of the bitterest contests Texas politics—were proposed by Reps. W. T. Dungan of McCombs and Ben Lewis of Dallas.

The Senate, lawmakers were to take action on a bill that would limit campaign expenses in April 4 U.S. Senate special election to $25,000.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Martin Dies Jr. of Lufkin, was reported to the floor Wednesday by the Senate Jurisprudence Committee.

The measure is similar to the Federal Corrupt Practices Act which limits campaign expenditures in special elections.

Dungan and Lewis urged that Speaker of the House be limited to one term, and that candidates for the office be prohibited from obtaining vote pledges from members and from campaigning in the floor of the House.

The bill, filed with the House, also provides that candidates file an itemized list of their campaign contributions and expenses with the Secretary of State.

Failure to comply with the act could result in a fine up to $1,000 up to six months in jail.

House members voted 76-64 to send Texas legislators with federal social security benefits and the Senate-passed measure to governor for his signature.

The vote on the bill climaxed first heated floor fight of the session as Rep. Dewitt Hale Corpus Christi accused Rep. Bartram of New Braunfels of going the measure to further own political ambitions.

Bartram said the bill was doing more than an additional raise for the legislature.

The second major piece of legislation to clear both houses first was a $4,800 annual salary that Bartram also opposed.

He later amended his charge and said he did not intend to reflect on the New Orleans lawmaker's motives.

Automation To End Four Million Office, Clerical Jobs, JFK Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A report to President Kennedy estimates that machines will eliminate four million office and clerical jobs in the next five years, it was disclosed today.

The forecast was made in a report sent by Rep. Elmer J. Holland, D-Pa., to the President to show the impact of automation on jobs. Holland, a member of the House Education and Labor Committee, said Kennedy encouraged him in December to compile statistics.

Holland said his report, sent to the House last week and disclosed to United Press International today, was "by no means complete" because no overall figures on job displacement by automation were available.

Holland, a member of a Pittsburgh steelworkers union, said in an interview that he decided to make the survey because "I saw what automation is doing in the steel industry."

He has urged the education and labor committee to make a broader study of the effects of automation.

INTERVIEWED — Capt. Henrique Galvao, left, leader of the Portuguese rebels who seized the luxury liner Santa Maria, is interviewed aboard the ship by reporter Miguel Urbano of O Estado de Sao Paulo, Brazil. Galvao brought the ship into Recife, Brazil, after the new Brazilian President Janio Quadres said he would give the rebels political asylum.

Passengers Of Pirated Liner Debar In Brazil

RECIFE, Brazil (UPI)—The hijacked Portuguese liner Santa Maria docked today and passengers and crewmen who had been held captive for 12 days began streaming from the ship.

The passengers were weary from weeks at sea, the last 12 days as prisoners of rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao, and Red Cross ambulances rushed the more exhausted passengers to hospitals.

Thousands of Brazilians crowded the heavily guarded pier to see the end of an odyssey which started as a pleasant midwinter luxury cruise and turned into an epic of revolution off the Spanish Main.

Buses taking the more than 600 passengers and some of the 350 crewmen to downtown Recife were forced to snake their way through solid lines of vehicles jammed with sightseers.

The passengers and the crewmen had suffered with little food and water in sweltering tropical heat, and within tantalizing sight of land for more than 24 hours.

Today Galvao ordered the ship beached with all its flags as for a gala occasion.

She steamed to within 300 yards of Pier No. 2, dropped anchor, and again it seemed as if the passengers were to be denied the right of freedom. But soon afterwards she moved to the pier.

The Brazilian Ministry of Navy announced that passengers—as well as any of the Portuguese crewmen who wished to had started leaving the ship.

There was a touch of musical comedy about the scene. A brilliant tropical sun beat down from a cloudless blue sky, gleaming brilliantly on the uniforms of the Brazilian officers.

Galvao himself was heavily weighted with gold braid and the three gold bars and five stars he wears on his uniform epaulets.

The ordeal for the passengers began early in the morning of Sunday, Jan. 22 when Galvao and an armed band of 70 men he had taken aboard seized the ship in the middle of the night, killing the third officer and wounding several other crewmen.

After several days, an American Navy patrol plane made contact by radio while flying over the vessel, and Galvao was persuaded to come to Recife, but even then delayed landing by a full day while demanding concessions. He and his band were granted political asylum by Brazil.

Kennedy Asks $ Multi-Billion For 'Recovery'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy asked Congress today for a multi-billion dollar economic "road to recovery" program containing increased Social Security benefits for 4.6 million persons on April 1.

In a 7,500-word message to the House and Senate, Kennedy also recommended emergency extension of unemployment benefits, an increase in the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour, faster federal spending on highways and public works and aid for depressed areas.

Kennedy announced that unemployment rose another 300,000 in January to bring the estimated number of jobless to 5,400,000. He stressed that employment has been rising since last summer and "has reached serious proportions in these rigorous winter months."

The President, who pictured the U.S. economy as sagging badly in a time of world crisis, warned that the slump might get worse unless Congress swiftly approved his 12-point program.

"The nation cannot—and will not—be satisfied with economic decline and slack," he said in projecting a three-year drive to restore America's "vigor and vitality."

The Kennedy program would—if approved—soon boost the wages and welfare benefits of millions of Americans and give the economy a massive injection of buying power.

The President did not put a price tag on his anti-recession package. White House officials declined to estimate its over-all cost but said it would not be above $3 billion.

Under the program, however, expanded Social Security benefits would be paid for by an increase of one-fourth of one per cent in payroll taxes on employers and workers, starting two years from now. Employers covered by the unemployment insurance system would finance the extension of jobless benefits by paying higher taxes starting next Jan. 1.

In his only reference to income taxes, Kennedy said he expected to recommend revision of these levies soon to provide additional "incentives" for corporate spending on plant and equipment.

He also declared that loss of revenue as a result of any such change would be offset by elimination of "several unwarranted special tax benefits" and more efficient tax collection. There was no elaboration on either point.

The new President also promised to fight any inflationary tendencies with "powerful tools" of fiscal and monetary policy.

"Always a cruel tax upon the weak, inflation is now the certain road to a balance of payments crisis and the disruption of the international economy of the western world," Kennedy said.

The message contrasted sharply with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's economic appraisal submitted in mid-January. Eisenhower said business was operating at "high levels" and did not recommend any crash program to head off a downward spiral.

"I have recommended measures designed to set us firmly on the road to full recovery and sustained growth," Kennedy said at (See PRESIDENT, Page 3)

Texas Congressman Issues Call For Quiz On Foreign Trade Policy

By ROY MCGEE
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Texas congressman called today for a "searching examination of our whole foreign trade policy" for the economic well being of our own people.

Rep. Joe Kilgore, D-Tex., cited the oil, textile, metals, hardwood plywood, fruit and vegetable industries as being hit particularly hard by foreign competition.

"Texas is not the only area that has felt the ill economic effects of the shipment of foreign materials and products into the United States," Kilgore said.

But he specified the oil import program as one that was not working at all.

"Imports in the first half of this year will average 1,971,000 barrels per day," the Texas said.

"Oil imports amount to about 28 per cent of domestic crude production. That is almost 10 per cent more than officially considered advisable for national security purposes."

"The excessive oil imports do great harm to the Texas economy. At the same time the flood

General Sales Tax Endorsed

By TEX DEWEES
Daily News Managing Editor

Endorsement of a general sales tax as a means of bolstering the state economy was given by Fred Husbands, executive vice president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, in an address at the Congressional Action Breakfast in the Coronado Inn this morning.

Husbands discussed major legislative issues facing the current session of the Texas Legislature. He was brought to Pampa under sponsorship of the Legislative and National Affairs Committee of the local chamber of commerce, and was introduced to the breakfast audience by Don Beaman, committee chairman.

The speaker said there were a number of vital issues facing the legislature including bills affecting agriculture, education, labor, industry and industrial development.

"But," he said, "by far the most important issue is the financial condition of our state."

Husbands pointed out that the state now has a $90-million deficit and faces the need to raise $107-million in new revenue to maintain state government.

"A general retail sales tax is the best answer to this problem," Husbands said. "We either have to adopt a sales tax or a state income tax."

"The most inexpensive tax on the taxpayer is the general sales tax. There is very little support for a payroll tax, in fact I think the state income tax is the most unpopular tax proposal of all."

Thirty-seven states now have a general sales tax, he said.

Husbands said the state is falling behind in its aid to education. He pointed out that his organization is in favor of an increase in teachers' pay and in research in the scientific field through state education.

He also touched on labor's interest in certain legislation coming before the present legislative session. He said labor wants to do away with the poll tax, abolish the right to work law and is making an effort to increase the period of unemployed compensation benefits from the present 26 weeks to 29 weeks.

The speaker emphasized that these all are important problems which must be solved by the state legislators, but added that the method of raising funds for the operation of state government is the top problem today.

Husbands touched briefly on the national legislative picture and pinpointed five major subjects facing the national Congress. These he listed as states' rights, federal aid to education and to the aged, raising the minimum wage from $1 to $1.25 an hour, compulsory medical aid, and federalizing the state-operated unemployment compensation system.

The WTCC official also took occasion to commend Rep. Walter Rogers for voting against enlarging the House Rules Committee.

The Kennedy administration won a narrow victory on that score, however, when control over the committee was given by a 212-212 vote in which the committee makeup was increased from 12 to 15 members.

(This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

With the opening sessions of Congress and the Texas Legislature, thoughts naturally turn to the products of their labors — our state and national laws.

Some people find confusing our different state and national laws dealing with the same things.

Surely, they say, you can have no real justice, unless there is some one "best way" to do each thing — to hold property, to manage traffic, to pay taxes, or to enforce contracts.

So it bothers them. Why should Englishmen drive on the left side of the street? Why should married couples hold title under community property laws in some states and not in others?

Is law merely a man-made contraption?

Is it true that like good manners much law is "man-made, growing out of custom of local problems. In card games you can play many different games with one deck. You merely change the rules. But the law goes deeper than convention into man's basic needs for order, for a grasp of the part he is to play, and for a way to settle disagreements.

Law provides an orderly way to do things so that people can make long-range plans and work together. Its rules help you to find out where you stand — your rights and duties. And last, law has binding ways to settling disputes if need be, first to keep the peace, and then win people over by dealing with them in ways that satisfy their sense of fairness.

You can find these traits of law in most groups from the most primitive to the civilized.

As man finds out more and more about himself and his world, as his experience and wisdom grow, the law may get better. For example, as the psychological laboratories find out more about man's reaction times, his fears and faults, our laws about driving, for instance, may improve.

And here is another purpose the different kinds of laws may serve. You may look upon each as a sort of experiment. Some turn out badly, and some well.

But in the give and take of public discussion, these efforts may yet bring us more nearly to the "one best way" — if any such thing exists.

Three New Judges Seen For State

The Daily News Austin Bureau AUSTIN —There is a distinct probability that the Kennedy administration will assign three judges to the Southern Judicial District of Texas, Sen. Hubert Hudson of Brownsville said.

Hudson said he had been informed by reliable sources in Washington, D. C., that Vice President Johnson and Sens. Ralph Yarborough and William Blakely are drafting proposed legislation to create two additional benches for the district. The bench vacated by the recent death of Judge James V. Allred has not been filled.

Several names have been mentioned in connection with the proposed judgeships, Hudson said. Among them are Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey, Texas Sen. Dorsey Hardman of San Angelo, Texas Sen. Charles Herring of Austin, Judge E. D. Salinas of Laredo; Reynaldo Garza, Brownsville lawyer; J. C. Looney, Edinburg attorney, and Cecil Burney of Corpus Christi.

Mayor Of McLean Seeks Re-election

McLEAN (Spl) — An election has been called for April 4 for the purpose of electing a mayor and two councilmen. Amos Page has been named as election judge. Mayor John Haynes has filed for re-election and councilman Roy A. Smith has also filed for re-election. Boyd Meador, the other council member whose term expires has not filed at this time. The deadline for filing is March 4.

Other council members are Roy Barker, Creed Lamb and M. M. Burroughs.

close of his message. "But if these measures prove inadequate the task I shall submit further proposals to the Congress within the next 75 days."

Social Security: Increase minimum payment for retired workers from $33 to $43 a month; allow men to retire at age 62 with reduced benefits; raise payments to 1.5 million widows from 75 to 100 per cent of their husband's net; expand disability insurance and liberalize eligibility requirements.

Jobless Benefits: Extend duration of benefits up to a federal hour under wages from $1 to $1.25 per hour over a two-year period and extend coverage of the law several million additional workers.

Housing and Public Works: Seek reduction of all mortgage interest rates by lowering the top rate on FHA-insured loans from 6 to 5 1/2 per cent. Make similar increases in interest rates charged cities and towns for public works loans.

Surplus Foods: Directed pilot stamp projects in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, eastern Kentucky, northern Minnesota, southern Illinois and Detroit to pave way for improved methods of distributing surplus food.

Government Spending: Order immediate distribution of $724 million in federal highway aid and review by all U. S. agencies of buying and building to expedite them wherever possible to channel contracts to firms in distressed areas. "The programs I am now proposing will not by themselves unbalance the Eisenhower budget," Kennedy said. "Many of these expenditures will automatically ease when high employment and production are restored."

Kennedy unveiled part of his report for prosperity at his news conference Wednesday. He announced the food stamp plan, a setup in payments of veterans' benefits and a slash in FHA mortgage interest rates. These steps do not require congressional approval. Under the stamp plan, needy families would exchange government-supplied stamps for various types of food at their grocery. Kennedy earlier ordered an increase in the quantity and variety of surplus food distributed to the needy.

Virginia Is Set Straight About Groundhog Day

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A day or two ago I received a letter that I predict will some day become a classic.

On second thought, the letter itself probably won't become a classic, but I'll bet my reply will. I dare say it will so touch the nation's heartstrings that newspapers across the length and breadth of our land will reprint it every year at this time. The letter was written by a little girl and as far as I could tell (her handwriting wasn't too good), it read like this:

"Dear sir:
"I am 10 years old and I am in the fifth grade. Like most children my age, I have been eagerly looking forward to the celebration of Groundhog Day.

"There are, however, some mean boys in my class who keep saying that the groundhog tradition is only a myth.
"They say the groundhog is actually a species of the marmot (marmota monax) and that it doesn't know any more about the weather than the Weather Bureau does.

"Can you tell me, sir, if I have perchance been deluding myself by believing in the groundhog?
"Love and kisses,
"Virginia."

Following is my reply, which I hope someone will be kind enough to call to the attention of the Pulitzer Prize committee.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a groundhog. There is also a woodchuck, a hedgehog and a prairie dog. It is called different things in different parts of the country.
"But it really doesn't matter what you call the groundhog. The spirit is what counts.

"When we celebrate Groundhog Day, we are not honoring just an animal. The groundhog is a rather unimpressive animal and a nuisance to farmers. It digs holes in the pasture and eats garden crops.

"But in spirit, the groundhog is more than that. It symbolizes mankind's universal longing for the arrival of spring.

"Some cynics, like those boys in your class, point out that the groundhog usually hibernates until March. This actually is beside the point, and perhaps even behind it.

"We celebrate Groundhog Day on Feb. 2 because it is still winter then. If we waited until March, when the weather is warming up anyway, the whole thing would be meaningless.

"As to whether the ground hogs shadow has any effect on the weather, I can only tell you that meteorology is still an uncertain science. The new weather satellites should provide more information about this.

"Eventually, our scientists will be able to put a groundhog into orbit and that will settle the matter, once and for all. Until then, you tell those boys to go fly a kite."

The News Briefly Told

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy announced today that Prime Minister Harold Macmillan would visit him at the White House during the week of April 2.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—A Circuit Court jury ruled against the New York Times and four Negro co-defendants Wednesday night in a $500,000 libel suit.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prosecution of an alleged ring of international thieves stalled today because President Kennedy's sister Patricia and her husband, actor Peter Lawford, have failed to sign requested burglary complaints on their $31,000 theft, police said.

SPRINGTOWN, Tex. (UPI)—Melvin C. Bullock, 49, a Convair aircraft plant guard, shot and killed a Fort Worth barber Wednesday night because he said he found the man stripped of his underwear in the bed room of his home with his wife.

Clayton Clark, 36, died within minutes after he was rushed to a hospital at Weatherford. Doctors said he had been shot eight times.

BOSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Sheriff's deputies fired four shots into the air to stop ex-convict Curtis Lee Jones Wednesday night as he tried to escape when he was being escorted to his murder trial.

DALLAS (UPI)—Three spokesmen for 817 Hawaiians who loaned $305,755 to uranium promoter John Milton Addison testified in federal court Wednesday that they were promised it would be repaid with interest but the agreement was not in writing.

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Former President Eisenhower came home to his Gettysburg farm in near-zero temperatures early today after a 10-day vacation and hunting trip in Georgia.

Pampa Man Gets Fine, Jail Term

James W. McFarlin, 514 S. Barnes, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated when arraigned before Judge William J. Craig in county court today.

McFarlin, arrested by city police in the 1000-block of S. Wilkes St. yesterday, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to three days in the county jail.

Wage Hike Noted For Seven Million

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nearly 7 million workers, or 85 per cent of all those covered by major collective bargaining contracts, got wage increases last year.

The Labor Department reported that a shade more than half the workers received raises averaging less than nine cents an hour, according to preliminary estimates. Twenty per cent more, about 1.4 million, gained between 10 and 11 cents, the department said Wednesday.

Homemade Candy Is Sweetheart Of A Gift

ROMANTIC RESULTS — Dig out that red satin-covered and bow bedecked heart-shaped candy box, fill it with delicious homemade candy and give it to the one you love on Valentine's Day.

Most of us have stashed away somewhere a heart-shaped candy box, red satin covered and bow bedecked. Some special Valentine's Day memory won't let us throw it away, but it can still be put to good use. This year, return it to the giver, filled with homemade candies of your own. To make this box pretty inside as well as out, plan to make at least two kinds of candy, preferably with color contrast. Valentine Crunch, toffee-good underneath and chocolate on top, looks ambitious but is actually easy to make and well worth the effort. A shade-lighter candy to pack with this might be Creamy Peneche, and its brown-sugar goodness makes it a favorite with everybody.

To produce the sort of delicious candy called for by such a special occasion, choose the finest ingredients. Use a margarine with a delicate, natural flavor for elegant results. The one in the "easy open" package holds four foil-wrapped quarters, marked off in

Bavarian Cream Add Fancy Touch

A fancy chocolate dessert that will win compliments from dinner guests is Dutch Bavarian Cream. It tastes just as luscious as it looks, too, because the ingredients are richly delicious — eggs, heavy cream, sugar and instant Dutch chocolate flavored mix. The mix, which blends instantly with hot or cold milk, is made entirely of fine Holland cocoa and has an extra chocolaty flavor. It's a great favorite of youngsters for beverages and desserts. Home economists at the Borden Test Kitchen use it to full advantage in this mouth-watering recipe.

DUTCH BAVARIAN CREAM
(Makes 8 servings)
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
4 eggs, separated
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup Borden's instant Dutch chocolate flavored mix
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Extra whipped cream and maraschino cherries (for decorating)
Soften gelatin in cold water. Beat egg yolks until light and fluffy; blend in sugar. Scald milk with vanilla extract. Gradually pour scalded milk over beaten egg yolks; stirring rapidly. Cook over boiling water; stirring constantly until mixture is smooth, thick and coats metal spoon. Add softened gelatin and Borden's instant Dutch chocolate flavored mix; stir until gelatin is dissolved and mixture is well blended. Cool until partially set. Beat whites until stiff but not dry; fold into chocolate mixture; fold in whipped cream. Pour into 1 1/2-quart mold which has been rinsed with ice water. Chill until firm, about 3 hours. Unmold just before serving. Decorate with whipped cream and maraschino cherries.

Let Yogurt Sub For Sour Cream

Part of the tremendous rebirth in popularity of yogurt in recent years is due to the nation's dieting trend. Dieters frequently substitute yogurt for sour cream, which has four times as many calories, according to Dannon Milk Products of New York, one of the country's leading yogurt producers. One serving of this cultured milk food contains all of the solid nutrients of a cup of milk, with only one-half the fat. Yogurt is considered by many to be a more balanced food than sour cream, since its composition follows more the ideal pattern advocated by dietary experts.

til 236 degrees F. registers on a candy thermometer, or until a drop of the syrup in cold water forms a soft ball. Remove from heat. Add remaining margarine; do not stir. Cool, without stirring until the outside of the saucapan feels lukewarm. Add vanilla and nuts. Beat until mixture loses gloss and a small amount dropped from the spoon holds its shape. Pour into an 8 by 8 by 2 inch pan which has been rubbed with margarine. Cool and cut into squares.

VALENTINE CRUNCH
Yield: 1 pound
3/4 cup margarine
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon light corn syrup
1 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup coconut, optional
1/2 teaspoon rum extract
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
Melt margarine in a heavy saucapan. Add sugar and combine well. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is well blended and begins to bubble. Add water and corn syrup and mix well. Continue cooking mixture over low heat, stirring frequently, until 290 degrees F. registers on a candy thermometer or until a drop in cold water "cracks" or is brittle. Remove from heat. Stir in nuts, coconut, and rum extract. Pour out onto a cookie sheet. Cool to room temperature. Melt semi-sweet chocolate pieces over boiling water. Spread evenly over candy and set aside until firm. When firm, break into pieces.

CREAMY PENEUCHE
Yield: 1 pound
1/2 stick (1/4 cup) margarine
2 cups packed light brown sugar
1 cup chopped nuts
3/4 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Melt 2 tablespoons margarine in a heavy saucapan. Add milk and sugar and combine well. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, un-

Tea Punch Tailored To Teens Makes Zippy Treat For "After Game" Party

Perk up the party after the game with a tailored-to-teens spread of refreshments. To restore vitality and give them a relaxing lift, have ready a zippy tea punch. The rest is up to them, with coconut marshmallow cookies to toast over the fire, frozen waffles to pop in the toaster and stacks and stacks of doughnuts.

PIN BALL TEA PUNCH
(Makes 10-12 servings)
2 quarts freshly drawn cold water
1/4 cup tea leaves, 15 teabags or 3 tablespoons instant tea
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
1/2 cup pineapple juice
2 2-inch cinnamon sticks
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1/2 cup orange juice
1/4 cup lemon juice
For tea leaves or teabags, bring 2 quarts of water to a full rolling boil. Pour over tea, cover and let brew three-to-five minutes; strain. For instant tea, merely dissolve in cold water. Combine sugar, 1 cup water, cinnamon and fruit rinds. Simmer 15 minutes. Add syrup and fruit juices to tea and chill thoroughly. Serve in punch bowl over ice cubes, or make pretty ice ring like this: Arrange seasonal or well drained frozen or canned fruit in a shallow layer of water in the bottom of a ring mold or angel food cake pan. Put in freezer until entire ring is solid. Unmold by running a little water over bottom of pan.

"Spanish" Pizza Can Be Concocted On Moment's Notice For Family Fare

Ever eaten a "Spanish" Pizza? This can be a new, easily prepared family treat. This Pizza is made from Spanish Rice that is just like Mother used to make, but today you will find it canned and ready-to-eat on a moment's notice. Chuck full of plump rice, sweet peppers and okra, the Spanish Rice is blended together in a sauce that would melt in anyone's mouth, either as a main course or a midnight snack.

SPANISH PIZZA
1 - 13 cups biscuit mix
8 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon oil
1 can (15 oz.) Van Camp's Spanish Rice
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon onion salt
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 can (8 oz.) Van Camp's Vienna Sausage
3 slices of cheese, cut into wedges
Add water to biscuit mix; work to hold together well. Roll out 1/4 inch thick to fit 12-inch round pizza pan. Brush pastry with oil. Drain excess liquid from Spanish Rice.

MEAT COOKERY Quiz

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?
A. A pork smoked shoulder butt.

Q. Where does it come from and how it is identified?
A. It is the eye of the Boston butt from the pork shoulder. It is cured and smoked boneless roll.

Q. How is it prepared?
A. By roasting or in liquid. For roasting, it is placed fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan. A meat thermometer is inserted so the bulb reaches the center and does not rest in fat. Do not add water or cover the pan. Roast in a slow oven (300° F.) until the thermometer registers 160° F. Allow 18 to 20 minutes per pound. To prepare in liquid, cover the meat with liquid and simmer for 1 1/2 to 2 hours.

Holidays Allow Free Time For Lazy Morning Brunch With Coffee Cake

Isn't it wonderful to have a chance to enjoy a lazy Saturday brunch? Eliminating that hectic work and school morning rush allows time to prepare many tempting menus, such as one featuring Nutty Streusel Coffee Cake and Savory Egg Scramble. Here are the recipes for Nutty Streusel Coffee Cake and Savory

NUTTY STREUSEL COFFEE CAKE
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup soft shortening
1 egg
1/2 cup Vitamin Fortified Milk
1/2 cups sifted flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
Nutty Streusel Topping (below)
Heat oven to 375 degrees. Mix sugar, shortening, egg thoroughly. Stir in milk. Sift together and stir in flour, baking powder, salt. Spread in greased and floured square pan, 8x8". Sprinkle with Nutty Streusel topping. Bake 25 to 35 min. Serve Warm.

SAVORY EGG SCRAMBLE
2 tsp. butter
1/4 cup finely chopped green onion tops
9 eggs
4 oz. (about 1-3 cups) dried beef, cut in small strips
1 cup cottage cheese (cream style or dry)
Melt butter in large skillet. Add onion tops and cook until tender. Beat eggs thoroughly; blend in dried beef and cottage cheese. Add egg mixture to onion and cook like scrambled eggs, 6 servings. Note: If dried beef seems salty, dip in boiling water until of desired salt.

Candy Cream Pie
(6-8 servings)
First bake vanilla wafer crust by combining one and one-third cups finely crushed vanilla wafer crumbs with one-third cup melted butter. Press on bottom and sides of a buttered 9-inch pie pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 5 to 8 minutes. Cool.

To make filling combine sixteen marshmallows, quartered, and one-third cup milk in top of a double broiler. Heat over boiling water until marshmallows are melted. Cool. Fold in three finely chopped Clark candy bars, one teaspoon vanilla and one cup whipping cream, whipped. Pour into crust. Chill thoroughly. Garnish with additional coarsely chopped candy.

Candy-Flavored Pie Adds Dash To Bridge Party

Afternoon bridge sessions usually call for something special in the dessert line. So when the score is tallied, be ready to bring forth this glamorous pie with hot coffee. It will snap feminine guests out of wintertime doldrums in a flash.

Hash Dinner Can Be Pulled From 'Top Hat'

Welcome to most every home-maker is a dish that can be whipped up from ingredients already stocked on her pantry shelf. Top Hat Hash Dinner can be added to that list of dishes. But unlike many savory dishes of minimum preparation, this one does not call for expensive ingredients or costly prepared foods. A can of roast beef hash is glamorized by a puffy soufflé topping. The creamy white sauce that's base for the soufflé is spiced with chili powder and made more delightful with golden flakes of sharp Cheddar cheese. Even the hash is not just plain hash, enhanced as it is by the bright color and taste of red-ripe canned tomatoes.

Little is needed to complement this meal - in one. Perhaps a salad of crisp leafy greens tossed with a flavorful dressing, crunchy cup grated natural cheddar cheese and 1/2 cup sliced Spanish green olives and cook until cheese is melted.

To make sandwiches, spread 6 slices of toast with prepared mustard and arrange in a flat baking dish. Cover with slices of cooked pork or beef. Pour sauce over sandwiches. Broil under moderate heat until lightly browned and bubbly. Serve hot.

Quick to dispel the feeling of a makeshift meal is this Sunday Supper Sandwich.

A dish of fruit, some cookies and glasses of milk are all the go-togethers need to complete a satisfying, wholesome supper.

Sunday Supper Sandwiches
(Six servings)
Sauce: Melt 1/4 cup butter in fry pan. Stir in 1/4 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons tomato paste and 1 tablespoon horse-radish. Gradually add 1 1/2 cups homogenized milk. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add 1

NEW START
If your cake make-up is not blending on your skin as evenly as it should, the problem may lie in the condition of your silk sponge. If the sponge is hardened with stale make-up, wash it in a quarter teaspoonful of liquid detergent added to one cup of medium hot water. Rinse out all traces of soap and dry. You'll find your make-up will go on smoothly and evenly.

Moscow Trying To Put The Damper On Fidel

By LEON DENNEN
WASHINGTON (NEA) — There are increasing signs that Fidel Castro's appeal in Latin America is beginning to decline. Even Moscow is now trying to bridge Cuba's bearded dictator.

According to East European diplomats, the Soviet Union recently ordered its Czechoslovak satellite to stop, for the time being, further shipment of arms to Cuba. This move is believed to have been prompted by:

Premier Khrushchev's fear that Castro's unpredictable behavior will make it more difficult for the Russians to convince President Kennedy that they "genuinely" desire disarmament and peaceful co-existence.

Moscow's growing irritation with the fact that Castro tends to ignore Soviet "go slow" advice in favor of Red China's policy of revolutionary brinkmanship.

The Russians obviously wanted to exploit Fidel Castro for their own diplomacy of blackmail—just as they put the squeeze on West Berlin whenever Khrushchev seeks a summit meeting or other concessions from the West. But it is clearly not their intention that Castro should at this stage commit any open acts of aggression or organize armed insurrection as he tried to do in Venezuela and more recently in Peru.

As seen by New Times, Moscow's global propaganda organ: "The strike movement in Latin America is growing in scope and scale.

"The struggle of the working class for its economic needs and interests have become part of the people's movement against Wall Street domination."

Khrushchev's mouthpiece distinctly underlines "economic needs and interests." In typical Red doubletalk, there is a clearcut differ-

'Christmas' End For Legislative Session Foreseen

The Daily News Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Sen. Hubert Hudson of Brownsville does not foresee an early end to the 57th Texas Legislature.

"If you ask me, I think we'll be here till Christmas," the senator predicted.

"I don't think Governor Daniel's payroll tax plan has a chance of passing," Senator Hudson went on, "and neither does anybody else."

"The governor has consistently said he would not consider a sales or income tax. So what are we going to do, sit here all year?"

"It's going to take guts on somebody's part to break the stalemate and I imagine we eventually will have to agree on an extension of the existing selective sales tax program."

"I think the people of Texas should know the financial problem we face. How will it be crystallized? I have no idea. We usually have some form of leadership but now there isn't any. Governor Daniel is not pushing any program."

"I don't like these long sessions job and go home. But I'm afraid any better than anybody else. I'd like to get through with our job and go home. But I'm afraid we'll be here till Christmas."

Question As To Whether Pirates On Santa Maria Really Pirates

By WARD CANNEL
NEW YORK (NEA) — Because a few Americans found a way to drink whisky legally in spite of prohibition laws 35 years ago, the Portuguese "passengers" who have taken over the cruise ship Santa Maria may have a legal loophole to escape the grim penalties of piracy.

According to international maritime law, piracy is the forcible seizure of a vessel on the high seas by persons with no legal right to the control of the ship. The punishment can be life imprisonment or death.

"But," according to one of New York's — and the world's — best respected admiralty attorneys, "it wouldn't surprise me if they managed to get out of a piracy charge by dredging up the ghost of U.S. prohibition and calling it revolution."

The precedent he and other maritime law specialists cite is the case of the luxury liner Leviathan, which was famous for its New York to Cherbourg run.

With laws in the U.S. forbidding the sale of alcoholic beverages except for medical necessity, the Leviathan would wait until she had cleared the three-mile territorial limit before serving drinks to passengers.

Presently the matter was brought to court. The argument: the ship was in violation of the Volstead Act because the U.S. Constitution follows the U.S. flag.

In other words, a vessel, even on the high seas, is an extra-territorial extension of the nation under whose papers she sails.

Well, you know how things are in law courts. Whether the constitution follows the flag was still being argued when the case was settled by issuing the Leviathan a medical certificate allowing her to carry several hundred cases of alcoholic liquor — for medicinal uses, of course.

This decision left a loophole in the historical definition of piracy by raising — but not settling — the curious question of whether a ship is always a ship or sometimes a piece of land. The difference between the two could be the difference between piracy and rebellion against a government.

The problem came up again in the late 1930s, according to Capt. William Arzt, chief investigating officer of the U.S. Coast Guard in New York.

It was a violation of neutrality laws, he explained, for the U.S. to ship certain vital materials across the Atlantic to what later became the Allies. Consequently, American-owned tankers were registered in Panama and sailed under the Panamanian flag.

"Not a U.S. ship," Capt. Arzt said. "It became a Panama vessel carrying a Panama cargo. No violation of the U.S. neutrality act."

The constitution of Panama was following her flag. And another precedent was set for considering a ship a piece of the land whose papers she carried.

Added support for this change in maritime thinking comes from one of the biggest marine insurance companies in the port of New York.

"Many ships carry piracy insurance," one executive said. "It's part of a standard war policy we write. But if the vessel is forcefully seized and then turned in with no damage to the ship or the cargo, we do not pay for piracy."

It might be successfully argued, he — like the others — said, that the Santa Maria had not been pirated but rather was a piece occupied Portugal held by revolutionaries.

And how much more glorious is to be imprisoned for life or to death for rebellion than piracy.

Ladies Vs. Appliance Fight Still Going On

By WARD CANNEL
NEW YORK (NEA) — As of this writing it is still too early to tell who is winning the battle between U. S. housewife and the nation's appliance manufacturers. A check of both camps via several recent studies and surveys reveals that appliance people are simplifying instruction booklets, control panels and demonstrations. Housewives are beginning to read the instructions more thoroughly and to keep the booklets either in a handy place. Service calls, letters of complaint and requests for further information are on the rise. The homemaking side of the fight goes like this, according tosumer watchdog groups and market observers: In an effort to sell more appliances, manufacturers are tempted to make a few far out suggestions such as baking biscuits in an electric frying pan or cooking food in dishes at one time in the oven, broiler and stove. It can be a housewife into exasperating difficulties at dinner time. Instruction books may be simpler, but there's still too much "sell" in them. Besides, there are still manufacturers who save booklet printing costs with paragraphs like: "If you have models A-17, D-23, X-12, the above instructions do not apply. . . . Hardly least, consumer groups say, is the service industry and new parts business that are too vital a part of applaneddom. Television repairs alone, according to reporter Vance Packard, accounts for $2 billion annually. The average household requires 2.5 appliance service calls per year. Other charges are that parts are not as durable as they might be and that obsolescence is built into too many machines. From the manufacturer's point of view, it looks somewhat different. An analysis of nearly 23,000 service calls shows that the trouble could have been avoided in well over half the cases if the home maker had followed the instructions in the booklet. In home dryers, for example, controls were not properly set, the lint trap was not cleaned, too large a load had been put in or the clothes were left in the dryer too long after drying — all avoidable according to the booklet. Rotisseries: improper balancing of meat to be broiled. Dishwashers: wrong detergents. Automatic washers: door not closed, cord not plugged into socket, faucets not turned on. In the words of the president of a big electric range company: "We have never been able to devise all the tests a 110-pound housewife can think of for our products." One company with an all-purpose iron (steam, dry, spray and low-temperature) reports: "In a time when there's been a revolution in fabrics, most of our complaints come from women who just figure they know how to iron" and go ahead with an appliance a bit more complex than the old hand iron. And so it goes. For every charge a counter charge. And, in typical corporate and kitchen manner, two morals from every lesson. Both sides are snickering over this story — it might even be true — of the gray laundry: SERVICEMAN: I can't find anything wrong with the washing machine, ma'am. Maybe it's the kind of soap you're using. HOUSEWIFE: Soap? I don't use any soap. Your instruction booklet says on every page how the machine is completely automatic.

Rayburn Applauded Before, After 'Great Battle' Over Rules Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The great rules committee fight in the House of Representatives began with a round of applause for Speaker Sam Rayburn and ended the same way. The gentleman from Texas had predicted victory by a close vote, and that's how it turned out. You might say, then, that he had control of the situation from start to finish. But this would be a little like saying that someone using chopsticks for the first time has control of a plate of chop suey. On this occasion, the House resembled a can of worms, and I crats on the committee were teaming up to block certain liberal legislation. Essentially, it was a contest between Rayburn and Rep. Howard W. Smith, the Virginia Democrat and husbandman who is chairman of the committee. Smith has frequently been accused of going home to tend to his cattle at times when the committee was confronted with bills he disliked. I don't know whether this is true or not, but the cows undoubtedly have caused consternation in the liberal ranks. Ordinarily, a legislative session is about as dramatic as the second volume of the "Bobby Twins," but this one did not disappoint. The suspense that built up during the roll call vote would have done credit to Alfred Hitchcock. Rayburn finally emerged with a five-vote victory, took his bows and calmly went off to lunch. He can now be certain of having the edge over Smith, at least until milking time. More On Inaugural Day; Area Well Represented

Washington in recent years is center of plenty of activities ordinary and usual trend. This is always tremendous increased during an inauguration. This is further tremendously increased by a snowstorm during several days of the inauguration. Those are the circumstances under which John Fitzgerald Kennedy was inaugurated. Thousands upon thousands of people came into Washington to witness the change of administrations. The inauguration of the newly elected President of the United States. They did not anticipate the elements, and the thousands who came to town had hands and thousands of experience which they will be able to use for many years to come. Pleasant, some unpleasant, but very happy to have quite a number of visitors from the Panhandle of Texas. Some could not get to the Capitol by car, by foot, telephone. If we missed someone we are sorry, because it was a wonderful time with all who got to the office.

At 10 a.m. Inauguration Day police blocked off the streets around the capitol and the office buildings. Unless you can show pretty clear authority to get through, you are stranded outside blockades. I told all of our family to be sure to get to the office early as they could. I got the Rogers family up about six o'clock and started for the Capitol the night before, a snow storm suddenly descended upon Washington, leaving several inches of snow on the streets and several people stranded. I was taxicab-just after the storm and it took 55 minutes for us to travel a distance of about 25 city blocks. Mary Catherine, our youngest daughter on her school bus for four hours coming home from school. Preparations had made to clear the streets on Inauguration Day, but snow blocked all of the available snowplows; hence, all other streets to wait. On the morning of Inauguration Day, the sun was out, but it was bitter cold and the snow hard-packed and frozen. We had to bring quite a number of arrangements to have some soft drinks, sandwiches for all of the folks from the Panhandle. We packed everything in the car, including the things that I had to change to in order to be properly dressed for the inaugural ceremony. Realizing the possibility of getting stuck in the snow, I did not relish trying to dig out in a morning suit and top hat. Available food and things in the office is almost a necessity on Inauguration Day because of the tremendous crowds and the impossibility of getting through the barricades to eating places. We got to the office in due time and set up for business.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lindsey from Denver and Dick Kennedy from London were the first to arrive then came the Kenneth Kennedys from Stratford, who were invited in short order by Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gibson, Michael Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, John and Mrs. Frank Rappe, all from Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Cook and their sons

Ronny and Larry from Vega, Jim McAndrews of Hereford, and Mrs. George Oliver of Canyon. Mr. and Mrs. John Bookout and their children didn't make it because of the difficulty in obtaining a taxicab. However, they did get up a few minutes before the Inauguration. A number of others missed getting up to the office, including Mr. and Mrs. Asa Willis of Texline, whom we saw later, Mrs. Julia Cooke Smith, Robert Bruce, and Dr. and Mrs. George Powers of Amarillo; Mrs. Jack Allen of Perryton and Mr. Joe Berg of Panhandle. There were many others by the office from outside of our district, including Mr. and Mrs. Fred Korth of Fort Worth, Bill Bailey of Houston, former Congressman and Mrs. John Lyle of Corpus Christi, Texas State Representative Bill Dungan of McKinney, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore of Plainview, and a number of others.

The open house was most enjoyable and everyone seemed to have a good time. I had to get dressed up in the morning suit and the top hat and get to the House of Representatives by 10:45 a.m., as we paraded to the presidential platform in a body. Jean and the children and all of the other guests went over a little later. Susan was to ride on the Texas float in the Inaugural Parade and the time between the end of the Inauguration and her scheduled appearance on the float was so close that Jean left the Inauguration before President Kennedy had finished his Inaugural Address. She took Susan to the office where she changed into her parade clothes. They then went to the garage where I had left the car, only to discover that there were no keys. I had them in my pocket, on the presidential stand. This almost created a panic because Susan was late. But thanks to the garage attendant and two metropolitan policemen, Mrs. Rogers and Susan made it on time.

After the Inauguration we went down town and joined the Jimmie Smiths and others at the Willard Hotel to watch the parade. After the parade we made a mad dash for home to change clothes and go to the Inaugural Ball. That is another story, because so many things look place that night that there isn't room to even list them in one newsletter. It was a great occasion. One fellow was heard to remark that with all of the chaos and turmoil, he could understand why these occasions were spaced four years apart.

Expenditures Rise
NEW YORK (UPI)—Federal expenditures between 1946 and 1959 rose from $61.7 billion to $94.8 billion, an increase of 54 per cent, government figures show. This compared with the rate of spending for all states, which jumped from $6.4 billion in 1946 to $31.1 billion 1959, a total increase of 386 per cent.

PETITION REJECTED
WACO (UPI)—The Waco City Council unanimously rejected a petition Tuesday to fluoridate the city water supply.

Small species of the petrel are called "Mother Carey's chickens" by sailors.

BARRING THE UNEXPECTED—No prison this; just the home of E. P. Murphy. He lives on a busy street corner of St. Louis, Mo., where crumpled fenders are common. Tired of being routed out of bed by drivers demanding to use his phone, Murphy barricaded his porch with 35 salvaged elevator gates. Locked at night, the bars permit Murphy to sleep in peace.

Income Tax Information

Employers in this area are handing their employees their Form W-2's.

The important role this Federal government tax form plays in the payment of income tax was explained today by Wiley E. Davis, administrative officer of the Internal Revenue Service, here.

"The W-2 form isn't a tax return. It's merely a receipt for taxes withheld from your salary," Davis said.

"Form W-2 must accompany your tax return for 1960 as evidence of taxes withheld last year.

Conservatives Still Pose Bar To JFK's Policies

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Conservative Democratic leaders conceded yesterday that President Kennedy faced stiff opposition from powerful conservative forces in the House determined to dilute or scrap his liberal proposals.

Kennedy backers foresaw no chance of winning all future battles against the Republican-Southern Democratic conservative coalition.

This was the leaders' reaction to the five-vote margin by which three new members, thereby breaking conservative domination of the panel.

While happy that the victory had removed a major obstacle to the "New Frontier" program, Kennedy lieutenants in Congress believed the close vote indicated the President's proposals would run into nip-and-tuck votes for the next two years.

Rep. Carl Elliott, D-Ala., and

Rep. Clem Miller, D-Calif., were viewed in speculation as the likeliest prospects for the new Democratic seats on the rules committee. The third new member will be a Republican.

Other congressional news: Equal Time: ABC Vice President A. Beckman said the four "debates" were largely responsible for the record vote in the presidential election. He told the Senate Communications subcommittee a temporary suspension of the rule requiring broadcasters to give equal airtime to all candidates worked so well in the 1960 election that it should be repealed. Subcommittee Chairman John O. Pastore, D-R.I., agreed.

Distressed Areas: President Kennedy was expected to ask Congress to approve a "crash program" to provide immediate help for areas suffering chronic unemployment. The emergency program, which probably will be spelled out in Kennedy's economic report to Congress today would be in addition to a $388 million long-range area redevelopment plan.

Weaver: Chairman A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., said he wanted his Senate Banking Committee to launch hearings on the nomination of Robert C. Weaver to be federal housing administrator as soon as possible, possibly next Tuesday. Robertson and several other Southern senators have opposed the appointment of the New York City Negro.

World Day Of Prayer Plans Discussed By St. Paul Methodist WSCS Circles

HOPE and JOY CIRCLES of Woman's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist Church met Wednesday in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

Mrs. Bill Sargent opened the program with prayer followed by telling the story of Albrecht Dürer, the artist, who painted "Praying Hands," and the story behind the famous painting.

Mrs. Charles Norton discussed the meaning of The World Day of Prayer, which will be observed on Feb. 17. She reported that the United Church Women of Pampa will conduct two services on World Day of Prayer; one at 7:30 a. m. in the First Methodist Church and the other at 10 a. m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

A film strip, "Wider Growth Kingdom," was shown as an introduction to the discussion of World Day of Prayer.

Prayer calendars were distributed to all members as Mrs. Jack Riley explained the use of the prayer calendars.

Mrs. Sargent closed the program with prayer after which short business meetings were held by each circle.

A covered-dish luncheon was served during the noon hour by hostesses, Mrs. Joe Autry and Mrs. Bill Sargent.

Members present were Mmes. Ira Carlton, W. I. Gilbert, R. A.

Baptist Circles Meet For Study

Women's Missionary Union of First Baptist Church held Royal Service programs on "Facing The Alcohol Problem" in the following members homes:

ANNE MITCHELL CIRCLE met with Mrs. Shirley Nichols with opening prayer by Mrs. Floyd Barrett. Mrs. Mike Porter conducted the business session. The Royal Service program was under the direction of Mrs. Mike Porter and Mrs. John Gikas. Closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Bill Monroe, a guest. Four members were present.

BETTY SPIEGEL CLUB met in the home of Mrs. Bob Triplehorn with Mrs. Paul Turner offering opening prayer and in charge of the business meeting. Royal Service program was presented by Mrs. Triplehorn with Mrs. Henry Stephens dismissing the group with prayer.

KESSIA MAE SEARIGHT CIRCLE met with Mrs. G. L. McKinney. Opening prayer was offered by Mrs. T. V. Lane. Following the business meeting conducted by Mrs. McKinney, Mrs. Bob Andis directed the Royal Service program. Mrs. Wood Osborne will be hostess for the Feb. 8 meeting in her home, 1315 Williston. Mrs. McKinney gave the closing prayer.

OETA SNELL CIRCLE met with Mrs. Bob Price with Mrs. Bob Williams offering opening prayer and conducting the business meeting. Mrs. James Massey was in charge of the Royal Service program. Mrs. W. B. Franklin dismissed the group with prayer.

Irish Lass Notes 91st Birthday

Down at Senior Center, where calendar years are boastfully added annually as badges of honor, an Irish lass, Mrs. Bessie M. Nicholson celebrated her 91st birthday today. She is a most respected person at the Center because she has tallied up 91 useful years and is the eldest lady at the weekly meetings.

To the monthly birthday party today, Mrs. Nicholson wore a new Spring bonnet, a black and white straw with a black cabbage rose perched perkily on the crown, which she selected while on a shopping spree yesterday in downtown Pampa.

The little lady, who barely stands taller than a stalk of sugar cane, was born 91 years ago on the Island of Corisco; the daughter of Irish parents, who were Presbyterian missionaries. Her mother passed away while they were living on the Corisco Island, which is located just off the continent of Africa, and is buried there.

During her childhood, Mrs. Nicholson found her playmates among the natives, which her father served in his work. She recalls that she never played with white children until she was nine years of age.

While her father was working with Indians at Laguna, N.M., Mrs. Nicholson attended the New Mexico University and has the distinction of graduating with the first class there in 1894. Following graduation she taught school for a time in the Pueblo Indian School. Soon romance came into the life of the petite school-marm, when she met and was married to C. T. Nicholson in Albuquerque, N.M. in 1903. They came to Pampa to make their home in 1912. In 1953, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary. Sadness touched her life in 1958, when her husband and a son, Chester M. Nicholson, passed away in the same year. Mrs. Nicholson has two step-sons, Russell of White Deer and Raymond of Moline, Ill.

Back in the days before she had to begin taking things just a little easier, Mrs. Nicholson taught the same Sunday School Class in First Methodist Church for 19 years. Too, she used to love to paint with crayons or water colors.

Mrs. Nicholson now makes her home with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Chester Nicholson, 323 N. Baer and friends will tell you that she can still make some mighty pretty pot-holders.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a young neighbor who comes over almost every day. She keeps me from my work. She says I remind her of her mother, who recently passed away. She has a young child and is expecting another. I feel sorry for her.

There are many young neighbors near us, but she doesn't bother with them. How can I tell her not to come so often and stay so long?

Top-Draw Hair Stylist Has Fantastic Eye For Shape

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Tab Hunter-type of young man breezed up to my desk to proclaim that — He is perhaps the fastest-working hairdresser in the business.

—His customers include the top drawer names in the society and movie set.

—He has a "fantastic eye" for the coiffure which best suits a woman.

—He is only 22 years old, but already one of the top 10 hair stylists in the world.

—And, give him "five more years" and he will be THE number one stylist.

George Masters was his name. His address, Los Angeles, Mas-

Delta Delta Delta Alumnae Chapter Names Officers

The Pampa Alumnae Chapter of Delta Delta Delta Sorority met Monday morning at ten in the home of Mrs. E. L. Henderson, 419 E. Foster.

Mrs. J. L. Chase, president, presided at the business meeting as new officers were installed.

Taking new officers were Mmes. G. B. Cree Jr., president; Tom Rose, vice president; Robert Knox, treasurer; and Mrs. Ed Knox, secretary.

Other members attending were Mmes. William G. Easley, William H. Greelee, G. M. Martin, Myron Marx Jr., Vester Smith, Ralph Thomas, and Richard Seawright.

ters, a slim young man with blue eyes, straight blonde hair and an all-American boy look, made New York a stopover after Washington, where he went to do coiffures for some of his customers invited to the inaugural festivities.

Master said that actually only one client hired him to fly to Washington — The others just took advantage of his presence. This client, a one-time movie queen, paid him $1,000 plus expenses for his five days in the capital, he said.

"I don't get anything less than $100 if I go to a star's home to do her hair," said Masters.

The hairdresser is director of the Saks Beverly Hills Beauty Salon, with a staff of some 35 assisting him.

"I don't do any of the messy work like shampooing," he said. "All I do is style and comb. I can give a superb haircut in one and one-half minutes."

Masters, a native of Los Angeles, trained with the famous Antoine, the French hairdresser, worked for Claude, the New York-er whose customers include the Duchess of Windsor, and directed the Elizabeth Arden Salon in New York before he returned three years ago to his home town.

"I don't like hairdressing," he said with a candor rare in any field. "Matter of fact, I can't stand it. But I do it so well, I would prefer to be out riding, swimming or skiing. But this job is so much easier than learning how to do something else."

I asked him what he thought women generally would be wearing in the way of hairdos in the months ahead.

"The balloon coiffure is gone," he said. "I see the ears exposed, hair fitted at the nape of neck, cap-like to create a head look; some lift on top. Part, because a part in the makes a woman look dowdy aged."

"Within a year, every woman will be using some sort of oring. There won't be a head left in the country."

TC Culture Club Names Officers

Mrs. L. J. Zachry was elected to the Twentieth Century Club recently "in her home, Williston, with Mrs. Ronald Hill as co-hostess.

During the business meeting conducted by Mrs. J. D. Mer-president, the following officers were elected and will be installed at a May luncheon in the Club Inn: Mmes. Philip Gates, president; R. E. Dobbin, vice president; E. E. Shelhamer, secretary; ael Wilson, treasurer; J. D. Chant, parliamentary; E. L. derson and L. J. Zachry, delegates.

The program on "Russia" discussed by Mrs. Shelhamer, Mrs. Michael Wilson followed introduction by Mrs. Rufe J.

Others attending were Mrs. Jess Bearden, Moss Buzzard, Craddock, J. R. Donaldson, Edminster, H. H. Hahn, L. H. W. L. Hasse, E. L. Hend Irene Osborne and N. D. S.

LOST SHOES by Janet Henry

We looked in his bureau, and under his chair.
(They're almost brand new, and his only good pair.)
We searched through his toy box, (by now quite distraught),
And even his closet (ridiculous thought).
Then on to the living room, kitchen, and yard.
(They've got to be SOMEWHERE, just keep looking hard.)
At last we surrendered, and bought substitutes,
And then he discovered them... inside his boots.

GROWTH OF NATURAL GAS NETWORK

SOURCE: AMERICAN GAS ASSOCIATION PRELIMINARY*
 Early 1 1/2 million customers were added to the nation's fast-growing natural gas network during 1960 when transmission systems were extended by nearly 10,000 miles. Natural gas customers have more than doubled since 1950, and the number of customers using all types of gas, including LP "bottled gas," now totals more than 42 million.

Foreign News

By PHIL NEWSOM
 UPI Foreign News Analyst
 Adlai E. Stevenson gets initiated as the voice of the United States in the United Nations Security Council today.

No diplomatic debut had ever been watched with greater interest.

There was the question of how Stevenson, top man in his national political party for eight years and twice a presidential candidate, would make the transition to the international stage as ambassador for a Democratic regime, but with a hand other than his at the helm.

There was no doubt that the prestige Stevenson had gained since he stepped down as governor of Illinois would gain him a large voice in the making of President Kennedy's foreign policy. His problem was to translate policy into the give-and-take of every-day U.N. debate.

Two major issues confronted Stevenson as he took his U.N. post: the Congo and the China question.

He was considered more vulnerable on the latter than on any other issue.

Stevenson was questioned sharply on the Red China question by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee before it recommended his confirmation as U.S. ambassador. He denied he ever advocated the seating of Communist China in the United Nations but said it might be "impossible to prevent."

He told his first U.N. news conference on two occasions that he hoped "normal relations" would be achieved with the Chinese Communists.

But he postscripted that conference with a declaration that the United States would stand by its treaty commitments to Chiang Kai-shek and that it would oppose further Communist encroachment in free Asia.

At any rate, Stevenson should not have to face the issue until next September. The assembly voted a moratorium on the China representation question until then.

The Congo claimed Stevenson's immediate attention.

The Security Council's meeting this afternoon was called to deal with a host of Congolese questions.

Kennedy and his cabinet have been reappraising the U.S. policy toward the Congo on the basis of falling apart. It will be Stevenson's task to seal the revamped policy.

Stevenson has played it safe while Washington completes the plotting of its new Congo course.

JUST FOR LAUGHS—Miky D'Angio literally pays lip service to her art in Rome. The Indian-born painter outdoes the drip-splatter-splash school and uses her feet, hands and lips to place paint on canvas. Miss D'Angio is really a serious painter; she's just ribbing modern art.

Fire Not Only Thing Hot As Firemen Have Bad Day

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—The flush on the faces of San Antonio firemen wasn't because of the heat and Tomas Moreno was just about as burned up as his house.

The fire started Tuesday in Moreno's bathroom. Quickly he called the fire department, and a unit from fire station No. 8 rushed to the scene.

They laid their hose and got a fairly healthy squirt before the pumper on the truck broke down.

The fire had spread to the bedroom and the kitchen. Moreno was doing a slow burn by this time.

A fireman got on the radio and called for a replacement from another station. It arrived about 15 minutes later, and firemen once again laid their hose.

But when they turned on the pressure, the two and one-half inch hose swelled and burst. There wasn't much more than a drip at the nozzle.

The house was burning furiously.

By the time a third unit arrived and the fire was brought under control, a large part of the house was gutted. Damage from the blaze, which district Fire Chief Roger Rodriguez said started from a defective bathroom heater, was estimated at more than $7,000.

Piling Up
 NEW YORK (UPI)—Global scientific and technical papers are piling up at a rate equivalent to seven sets of the 24-volume Encyclopedia Britannica every 24 hours. This year's output is estimated at some 60 million pages or about 465 man-years of steady round-the-clock reading.

FBI Says Information Trade Best Enforcement Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An FBI law enforcement intelligence is passed on directly and immediately, Hoover has opposed any "super-agency" that might slow down or clog this system.

The FBI distributed 13,892 items of criminal information to local agencies during last July, August and September. They passed more than 4,000 other items on to federal investigative agencies.

Take the case of Adolph Coors, the brewing magnate who disappeared from his Colorado home last February. FBI agents launched an intensive investigation as kidnaping was suspected. Coors' body finally was found on a Colorado mountainside in September. No kidnaping appeared to be involved and the FBI stepped out of the case, turning all its evidence and files over to Colorado county authorities.

However, the evidence appeared to implicate an escaped convict, Joseph Corbett II. In March he made the FBI's list of the 10 most wanted fugitives — for crimes other than the Coors case. In October the FBI, working with Canadian officers, captured Corbett in Vancouver, Canada.

These communication channels work both ways. Yearly the bureau investigates about 16,000 cases involving the transport of stolen autos over state lines. About 75 per cent of these cases grow from information supplied by state and local authorities.

Teamwork among diverse police agencies is a "working reality," according to Hoover. He has said the most effective way to combat crime is to strengthen local enforcement whenever it weakens, because these agencies are "the nations first line against crime."

News Parleys Are Halted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House has decided to halt temporarily "live" television and radio broadcasts of President Kennedy's news conferences.

The President's first two question-and-answer sessions, including his meeting with newsmen Wednesday, were carried instantaneously across the nation by TV and radio networks.

But White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger announced Wednesday night that the networks would be permitted only to tape the next two news conferences and broadcast them afterwards.

Salinger refused to agree with published reports that the action was taken because Kennedy's aides wanted to avoid "over-exposure" of the President.

He said the instantaneous broadcasting of the first two conferences had been "very successful" and that "we are going to live press conferences in the future."

Military Research Has Some Strange But Useful Goals To Make Life Easier

By RAY CROMLEY
 WASHINGTON (NEA)—Strange are the ways of military research: the Army is now trying to find a vaccine that will prevent teeth from decaying.

It's also attempting to find a mouthwash that will keep a man from having to go to a dentist to have his teeth cleaned.

The Army's reason? It wants to save all the hours GIs waste in dentist chairs.

These odd byways of Army, Navy and Air Force research sometimes lead to something useful to civilians.

There's the technique the Army's trying to develop to wash clothes without hot water. And the pill a man could take which would repel insects — without, of course, making him repellent to human beings.

And here's news for men who suffer from summer heat. The Army is trying to develop a lightweight cooling gadget that could be built into clothing. It would allow the "wearer complete freedom of action — walking, working, kneeling or lying down.

If it's the cold that bothers you, the Army also is seeking to develop a small heating system for clothing. It would have no attached wires or hoses. It would be powerful enough to keep the GI warm in extremely cold weather.

Then there's the new splint the Medical Corps is looking for. It would be a plastic in an aerosol container. A man would simply spray it on. It would quickly set into a light, rigid, easily removable, plastic splint. That would be handy to keep for emergencies in the family mountain cabin, the car or in a man's pack on a hunting trip.

And the disposable hospital bed designed to serve as a mattress; so cheap it could be abandoned or destroyed when the field hospital moved. Any place you're tired you could foam up a bed, lie down and take a nap.

There are more ominous research projects on hand. Some high officials in the Pentagon have decided that military clothing should be designed on "scientifically predictable principles." They claim that, for too long, the design of clothing has been "dependent on the art of the master tailor." They deny the idea that clothing is designed to "fit properly" rather than be functionally useful and easily mass produced.

They question the advisability of manufacturing clothing in a multitude of sizes so it will look good on the fighting man. The hope has been expressed in some quarters that this new research concept will not spread to civilian clothing.

The medical men are looking for answers to very serious problems that will be as helpful to civilians as to soldiers. Take the artificial nerve sheaths or nerve fibers the doctors are trying to develop. They're looking for plastics or other substances suitable for reinforcing repairs of severed nerves or broken bones.

They're trying to learn the effects of exposure to nuclear radiation on resistance to disease. They're seeking to develop a preparation of a dehydrated natural or synthetic blood that can be kept indefinitely. They're trying to develop contact lenses that can be worn for prolonged periods and "under conditions of extreme exertion."

SAD ENDING
 MOUNT VERNON, Iowa (UPI)—Walter Gormly, a pacifist, ended a week's stay in the Linn County Jail Monday complaining that the evening meal consisted of only a sandwich, a half-cup of canned apricots, a cup of coffee and a cookie.

Gormly, jailed for refusing to pay his income tax, had spent the week on a hunger strike.

Ironmonger Bombs Martinez

By ARTHUR MAYHEW
Daily News Sports Editor

AMARILLO — Iron-fisted Johnny Ironmonger of Pampa Tri-City Boxing Club unleashed a lethal right-handed bomb here last night to score a rousing upset knockout over Landro Martinez of Plainview to keynote the second night of fighting in the 25th annual Amarillo Regional Golden Gloves tournament.

WEDNESDAY'S RESULTS

High School
105-pound: Steve McCarthy, Borger, defeated Gale Hardin, Pampa Optimist.
112-pound: Valente Briones, Levelland, defeated Lee Johnson, Pampa Tri City; Ronnie Goodwin, Pampa Optimist, defeated Carliss Hooten, Borger.
118-pound: Ronnie Beck, Amarillo, defeated Johnny Chavez, Amarillo ABC; Loyd Carpenter, Levelland, defeated Tommy Woodruff, Pampa Optimist.
126-pound: John Briones, Levelland, defeated David McCoy, Amarillo Dee's Pharmacy; Charles Moore, Borger, defeated Jim Reeves, Perryton.
155-pound: Cleo Savage, Levelland, defeated Billy Wade, Borger; Joey Profanick, Amarillo, defeated Flo West, Borger.
Heavyweight: Bobby Pierce, Levelland, won by default over Carl Martin, Dee's Pharmacy.

Open
112-pound: Johnny Ironmonger, Pampa Tri City, KO'd Landro Martinez, Plainview, 54 seconds of round one; Eddie Gonzales, Plainview, defeated Lupe Rodriguez, Plainview.
126-pound: Jimmy Tijerina, Plainview, TKO'd Clark Morse, Pampa Tri City, 30 seconds of second round; Durwood Williams, Borger, TKO'd Paul Edwards, Perryton, 30 seconds of second round.
135-pound: James Morse, Borger, defeated Gilbert Lopez, Amarillo AFB, Butch Leonard, AAFB, TKO'd Richard Gillen, AAFB, 21 seconds of third round.
147-pound: Dickie Wills, Pampa Optimist, TKO'd Wayne Martin, Perryton, 1:39 of third round.

Tournament in the Sports Arena. The knockout was one of two on last night's 17-fight card, cut short by one default, although there were three TKOs, one of them by Pampa's Dickie Wills.

Fighters take a break tonight but will resume action tomorrow night and then wind up the four-day show with finals Saturday night.

If it hadn't been for Ironmonger's KO and Wills' TKO, the night would have been long for Pampa boxing fans, as Tommy Woodruff, 118, and Gale Hardin, 105, of Pampa Optimist fell, as did Lee Johnson, 112, of Tri City.

In the Open division, Jimmy Tijerina of Plainview ended Clark Morse's title dreams in the 126-pound class with a KO at :30 seconds of the second round, but James Morse, a student at Frank Phillips Junior College fighting for Tri City, defeated Gilbert Lopez of Amarillo Air Force Base.

Another Pampa Optimist victory was racked up by Ronnie Goodwin in the 112-pound high school class with a decision over Carliss Hooten of Borger.

Hooten was the more aggressive fighter in the first round and a half but Goodwin warmed up midway in the second round and scored with two good left jabs and a singing combination near the end of the third round to wrap up the decision.

However, it was Ironmonger, no stranger to regional competition who highlighted the night's action as he backed Martinez — a former Pampa boxer — into the ropes, then brought home an overhand right from the direction of Canyon that caught Martinez flush on the jaw, and Martinez went to the canvas with 54 seconds left on the first round clock.

Martinez, a finalist last year here, exchanged good blows early in the fight, giving no indication of what was to come. But when Ironmonger threw his right, there was no doubt that the fight was over.

Wills made a strong opening start in the tournament with his TKO verdict over durable Wayne Martin of Perryton in the 147-pound open class.

Win Highlights Regional GG

The classy Pampa boxer stalked Martin all over the ring, waiting for an opening. In the first round, Wills caught Martin with a hard left to the mouth, then followed with two sharp rights that cut Martin's lip.

In the second round, Martin — figuring the best offense is a good defense — tried to stay away from Wills' potent lefts but was unable to avoid a stinging left to the head by Wills which sent Martin to the floor for a nine-count.

Wills moved in for the kill in round three, sending home a left hook to Martin's face, then a hard right and left combination that sent Martin's mouthpiece sailing into the crowd. Wills then caught Martin in a corner and sailed home a flurry of rights and lefts and Martin — dazed and wobbly — headed for his corner and the fight was called at 1:39 of the third round.

For Tri City's Clark Morse, Jimmy Tijerina possessed a little too much firepower, although Morse dumped the Plainview slugger to the floor at the end of round one with a hard right to the head.

Tijerina came back in the second round, fended off several good Morse punches, then landed an air-expanding left to Morse's midsection and the Tri City 126-pounder went down; he tried to get up but collapsed back to the floor and Tijerina was awarded the knockout.

Woodruff, who was the lone Pampa boxer to win in Tuesday's opening round, had to give up too much reach to the long-armed Loyd Carpenter of Levelland in a 118-pound high school fight.

Nevertheless, Woodruff fought on even terms with Carpenter for better than two rounds, when a late flurry of rights by Carpenter near the bell swung the fight to Carpenter's favor.

James Morse racked up his decision over the more experienced Lopez in a 135-pound open fight, using a right-left combination that kept Lopez back-pedaling for most of the fight.

It was a dark night for Perryton boxers as Jim Reeves lost a decision to Charles Moore of Borger, one of the top 126-pound high school contenders, and Durwood Williams of Borger TKO'd Paul Edwards of Perryton at 30 seconds of the second round in a 126-pound open fight, and Wills defeated Martin.

PAMPA PUNCHER — Ronnie Goodwin, 112-pound Pampa Optimist high school boxer, punched more than a boxing bag last night as he pounded out a decision over Carliss Hooten of Borger in the 25th annual Amarillo Regional Golden Gloves tournament. (Daily News Photo)

Raiders Sign Stinnett Duo

STINNETT — Larry and Donny Anderson, the Stinnett brother backfield duo that led the Raiders to the state Class A semifinals, yesterday signed a pre-enrollment contract with Texas Tech.

Signed by Merrill Green, newly-named Raider backfield coach, the two are the first boys signed since J. T. King became head coach at Texas Tech last December.

The contract is not a South-west Conference letter-of-intent as the boys still have basketball and track season to complete, but serves as a written promise that they will attend Tech.

Donny, a 200-pound halfback, made the Class A all state team last year, while Larry, 180-pound quarterback, won the Best Huster award at the recent Stinnett football banquet.

Hawks Slowly Widen Margin

By United Press International
A mere 520 pace and the St. Louis Hawks will clinch the Western Division title of the National Basketball Association.

That's the situation today after the Hawks opened up an 11-game lead over the Detroit Pistons by beating the Pistons, 137-131, Wednesday night. The Pistons can win all their remaining games and still get no better than a first-place tie with the Hawks, provided St. Louis manages to top the 500-mark for the remainder of the season.

Bob Pettit hit for 10 points and Woody Sauldsberry made four quick baskets to lead the Hawks from a 79-79 tie with 6:49 remaining in the third period to a 109-96 lead. Cliff Hagan wound up as St. Louis' high scorer with 33 points. Pettit had 30.

Wilt Chamberlain scored 20 points and grabbed 27 rebounds to lead the Philadelphia Warriors to a 122-112 victory over the Syracuse Nationals and Tom Heinsohn's 31 points led the Boston Celtics to a 124-120 win over the New York Knickerbockers in the other games.

Dolph Schayes was credited with 11 rebounds raising his career total to 10,003 for the Nationals. Schayes also shared scoring honors with Dick Barnett with 24 points each.

The Celtics knocked off the Knicks with a 36-point fourth-period spurge after New York had a 93-88 lead at the end of the third period. Richie Guerin had 29 points for the Knicks.

Lee, Reapers Battle Foes

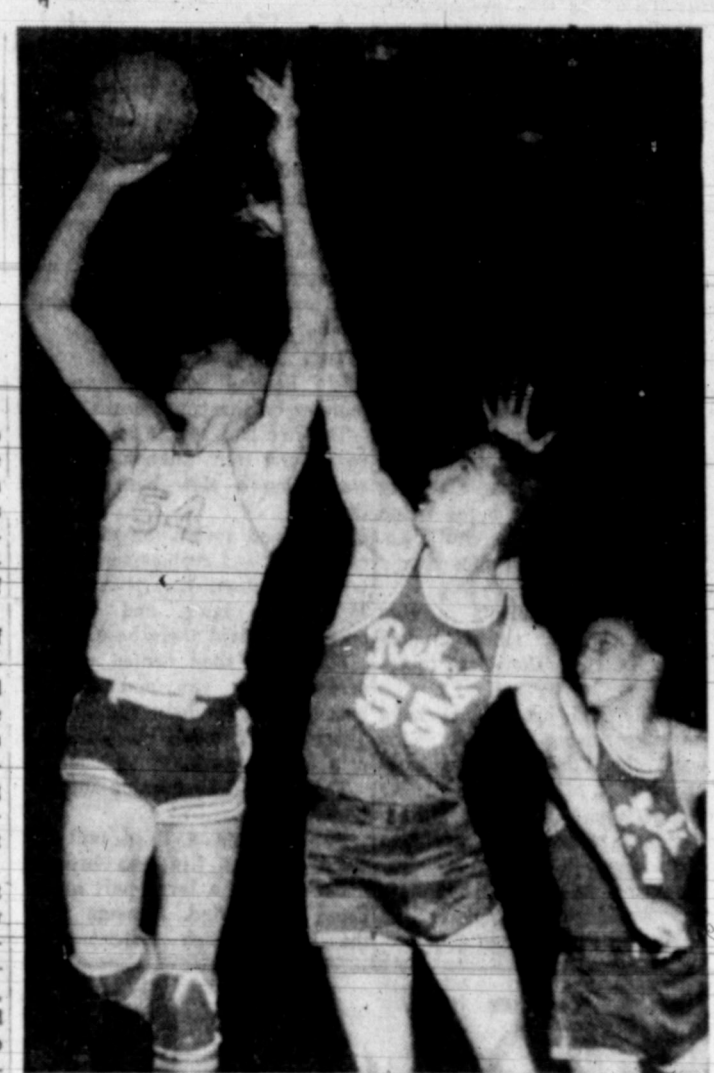

Robert E. Lee, buoyed by a 35-31 victory over Pampa Junior High Tuesday, returns to action at 4 p.m. today in a non-conference clash with White Deer's 'B' team at the Lee Gym.

In an eighth grade game, Lee (8-0) will be out to keep its win mark alive when it hosts White Deer Ninth in another non-conference affair.

Meanwhile, Pampa's Reapers, 6-1 in district, will be out to right themselves when they host Dumas at 4 p.m. It's nine-game winning streak broken by Lee. Pampa, nevertheless, is tied for the junior high lead and needs all the wins it can take before it meets co-leader Borger-Houston on Feb. 9. In the second game, Pampa eighth will be seeking its first win of the year after falling to Lee Eighth, 32-16, last Tuesday.

Revamped PHS Faces Lubbock

Suspense Near End In 3-4A

UP, UP AND AWAY — Randy Matson (54), Pampa sophomore, goes high into the air to launch jumper against Tascosa here Tuesday night while Dick Remke (55) and Dickie Peek (41) of Tascosa try vainly to stop the 6-5 Harvester star. (Daily News Photo)

The famous Abbott and Costello "who's in first" routine will make its final bow tomorrow night when Lubbock Monterey, a unanimous pick to finish in the lower echelons of District 3-4A, hosts Amarillo Palo Duro in the top game of the year in conference play.

Monterey, the surprise team of the district — and that's the understatement of the season — and the Dons are tied for first place with 7-2 marks. The two vie in Monterey's gym where the Plainsmen have a six-game winning streak going, including a 47-43 overtime victory over Borger last Tuesday.

Coach Gerald Myers, in his first year as head coach at Monterey, after an illustrious collegiate career at Texas Tech and three sterling seasons at Borger High School, has taken a lean, junior-dominated club and built them into a loop contender after a so-so non-conference slate.

Chief guns in the Monterey attack have been Junior Russ Wilkinson, the district's fifth best scorer, Johnny Holloway, 3-4A's ninth rated point-maker, and Jerry McGuire, a former Pampa High School player.

For the Dons of Coach Tom Gilley, tomorrow night's game is the big one of the year. If they can beat Monterey in Lubbock, the schedule will favor them the rest of the way, but the IF is a big one.

Monterey must stop Steve Carter, the district's second high scorer with 154 points, and Toby Hall to defeat the Dons.

In another top game, Borger and Amarillo — both 6-3 — meet for the final time tomorrow night in the Army in a game that will eliminate one team from the picture.

Amarillo, the pre-season pick, bumped Palo Duro, 67-59 Tuesday and needs to stop ever-dangerous Borger to stay near Monterey and Palo Duro.

In other games tomorrow night, Tascosa (3-6) and Plainview (3-6) meet in a game to decide fifth place and Pampa hosts Lubbock, both 2-7 in district.

KC Solves Catching Woes With Pignatano

By FRED DOWN
United Press International
The Kansas City Athletics solved their catching problem and the Baltimore Orioles may have solved part of their power problem in separate deals with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I now feel much better about our catching staff," said General Manager Frank Lane after the Athletics purchased Joe Pignatano to relieve one of their most pressing needs. Pignatano, 31, is rated among the strongest throwing catchers in either league.

In 58 games with the Dodgers last season, Pignatano batted .233. The Orioles, who think they can win the 1961 American League pennant if they get more punch into their attack, acquired Essegian star Chuck Essegian, a Dodger hero in the 1959 Series.

Essegian connected for two pinch homers against the White Sox but last season batted only .215 in 52 games for the Dodgers.

The Los Angeles Angels also swung a deal with the Minnesota Twins to acquire 30-year-old right-hander Tom Morgan. A 200-pound native Californian, Morgan had a 4-5 record with the Washington Senators last season. He is the 14th pitcher on the Angels' spring roster.

General Manager Buzie Bavasi announced the signing of infielder Jim Gilliam and said the Dodgers now have 18 players signed. Gilliam led the Dodgers in runs scored and walks in 1960.

Bob Skinner, the Pittsburgh Pirates' rangy outfielder who hit .273 in 145 games last season, agreed to terms for the 1961 season after a telephone conversation with General Manager Joe L. Brown.

Skinner, the 14th Pirate to sign for '61, told Brown from his San Diego, Calif., home that he is in good condition and has been working out daily for the past month.

Fifth Grade Leaders Vie

Houston and Austin, both sporting 59 records, run head-on at 6 p.m. today in an important fifth grade tussle in the Kiwanis Optimist Pee Wee basketball league.

The two leaders battle at Houston, with the winner having the inside track for the fifth grade crown.

In other fifth grade games today, Wilson is at Travis and Lamar hikes to Mann.

Today's sixth-grade slate calls for Houston at Austin, Travis at Wilson and Mann at Lamar.

Lehnick Accepts Job As Panhandle Coach

LEFORS — Ed Lehnick, who was named 1960 Panhandle Football Coach of the Year for his work with the district-winning Lefors Pirates, was named head football coach at Panhandle, Freeman Melton, superintendent, announced yesterday.

Lehnick led his underdog Pirates to the District 2A crown and his district state with Stinnett after being picked to finish last. He was named to replace Jack Meredith, who resigned last month to accept

PHS Needs Victory To Break Cellar Tie

Pampa, which started off a nipped and tuck January with victories but were blanked in between, head into the final two weeks of District 3-4A play tomorrow night against Lubbock at Harvester Fieldhouse.

The Harvesters can, with a victory over the Westerners, remove themselves from the seventh-place tie that has existed with the Lubbock crew since early in the season, and send them into a rugged three-game roadtrip in a good state of mind.

For, after tomorrow night, Pampa must play Borger, Monterey and Amarillo away, a schedule that doesn't exactly make Harvester Coach Terry Culey kick up his heels with joy.

However, the first item of business is Lubbock, one of the few teams that has lived up to its advance billing in district. Picked eighth place, the Westerners are tied with Pampa for seventh with identical 2-7 marks.

The Westerners defeated Pampa the first time out, 60-53, in Lubbock as an unheralded sophomore Jimmy Fullerton erupted for 18 points. Since then, Lubbock has been winless until Tuesday when it surprised Plainview, 72-56, for its second win.

Pampa, after losing a pair of two-point decisions to Plainview and Palo Duro, looked like a district contender Tuesday in substituting hapless Tascosa and Culey is hoping that the steam will carry over to the Lubbock contest.

In explaining the turnout — Tascosa defeated the Harvesters, 54-41 in their first meeting — Culey felt that a change from a man-to-man to a zone five (3-2-1) zone defense was a big factor.

Not to be discouraged, however, were the twin pillars of scoring strength, Allen Wise and Randy Matson. Wise exploded for 20 points, his high for the year, and Matson added 19 to pave the way as Pat Carter, Pampa's usual leader, scored only five points. Carter spent most of the night sitting up Matson and Wise and turned in a good defensive game.

Culey was undoubtedly happy over the continued good play of his two top sophomore reserves, Wayne Kries and Ronnie Carter. The pair played better than their quarters against Tascosa and while they only scored three points between them, both showed coolness of head in tight situations, especially when Tascosa tried a full-court press.

In individual Harvester district statistics for the week, Wise and Matson both advanced a notch from last week while Carter moved to third; however, Carter still leads the season-long scoring with 333 points, a 15.1 average.

Wise now paces the local district pack with 116 points, five better than runnerup Matson (111), seven better than Carter (109), are averaging above 12 points per game in district and above 10 per contest for the season.

Wise moved to the head of the class mainly on his 10-for-10 free throw shooting exhibition against Tascosa. He now has 14 in a year and an excellent 58 out of 68 in district, a sterling 85 per cent.

From the field, Gordon Balcontinues to set the pace with 29, 41 per cent.

Pampa, now 9-13 for the year, could end the season near the top mark with victories over Lubbock, Plainview, Borger and Monterey, but the outlook is dim.

NY Franchise Seeking Name

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York National League club which will begin operating in 1962 is still looking for a name.

An original list of 1,500 suggestions from 16 states and the District of Columbia has been reduced to 10 nicknames by a committee of sportswriters and officials.

Charles Hurst asked fans to contribute suggestions to the club's headquarters at 150 Fifth Ave., New York.

The primary requisite for a nickname is that it be symbolic of New York City.

Six Share Lead As Rich Palm Springs Golf Opens

Big Logjam Slows First Day's Play

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—A four-ring circus called the 90-hole $50,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic stages its second show today with an even half dozen stars fighting for the lead role.

The six golfers fired 65s Wednesday to share the first round lead. A total of 58 blasted par finding a hot desert sun and dry greens and fairways to their liking.

The first round leaders: Ken Venturi, Palo Alto, Calif.; Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla.; Bob Rosburg, Overland Park, Kan.; Dave Marr, Houston, Tex.; Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn.; and Charles Sifford, Los Angeles.

Tied for second place a stroke behind at 66 were: Bob Shields, Quincy, Ill.; Jay Hebert, the 1960 National PGA champion from Lafayette, La.; and Don Whit, Borrego Springs, Calif.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer, now playing out of Miami, Fla., took a 69 which, remarkable to say, put him in a tie with 13 other golfers for 29th place.

The traffic jam in the under-par category and on the golf courses was probably the greatest in PGA history.

Each pro played with three amateurs in a best-ball division, making a total of 512 competitors. Traffic was so bad on the four courses that some players took five hours to complete the 18 holes.

The crowd will thin out on the final round Sunday when only the 80 low pros will continue into a fifth round on a fifth golf course—the Tamarisk Country Club.

Three teams were tied at 22 under par in the first round of the pro-am division.

These were teams led by professional Ronnie Reif, San Diego, Calif.; Eric Monti, Los Angeles; and Julius Boros, Midpines, N.C. Reif had a 70 in individual pro scoring. Boros, the former National Open champion, 71; and Monti, a 68.

SLIGHT OBSTACLE—Donald Brock, of the Pittsfield, N. H., Snowshoe Club, takes a hurdle in the obstacle event at the preview of the International Snowshoe Congress in Lewiston, Me.

Tennessee A&I (18-0) Maintains Cage Lead

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mississippi teams have alternately held the runner-up spot for the past six weeks. Hofstra lost to Army last week for its second defeat in 15 games.

Prairie View A&M, with its 17-game undefeated record, Grambling (La.) and Wittenberg remained in the fourth, fifth and sixth spots, and Kentucky Wesleyan, Southern Illinois, American University (D.C.) and Southwest Louisiana completed the top 10 group.

The Tennessee State Tigers defeated a major college opponent, St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., last week in running their winning streak to 18 straight games.

In leading the UPI small college ratings for the eighth week in a row, Tennessee A&I was the first-place choice of 31 of the 41 coaches who voted.

Mississippi Southern, winner in 14 of its first 15 games, replaced Hofstra (N.Y.) in second place by a margin of seven points. These

Kid Paret OK's Bout In Secret

NEW YORK (UPI)—Benny (Kid) Paret, Cuba's perpetual-motion mauler, will defend his world welterweight crown against slick young Emile Griffith of New York at the Miami Beach Convention Hall, Saturday, April 1.

The match was made secretly Wednesday.

In his second defense of the 147-pound title, Paret will face the speedy, sharp-punching challenger who already has beaten two of the best Cuban fighters to come along in years: explosive Florentino Fernandez and "Lightning" Luis Rodriguez.

Promoter Chris Dundee of Miami Beach expects the nationally televised Paret-Griffith 15-rounder to draw a live gate of at least $40,000. Terms of the match will be announced as soon as certain financial details are straightened out.

Griffith, who'll be 23 Friday, is ranked top contender by the National Boxing Association. And he's considered such a box-office attraction that champion Paret has agreed to replace Emile in a Los Angeles fight against Mexican Gaspar Ortega on Feb. 25, lest Griffith lose any of his luster as a challenger.

Paret, also 23, will not be risking his championship in the nationally televised 10-rounder with Ortega at the Los Angeles Olympic Auditorium; for each will scale more than the 147-pound limit.

TEN PIN TALES

The Men's City Assn. bowling tournament, in its 10th annual running, rolls back into action tomorrow at Harvester Bowl when the team events kick off the weekend.

Top scores dotted the first weekend of play last week, but the real battle seems to be shaping up in the Class B singles where Henry Morris, R. Tennyson and J. Pharr are all tied for the lead with 863s.

The tournament will resume at Garden Lanes, where the doubles and singles play are being run off on Saturday and the tournament will end Sunday night.

Bowlers of the Week at Harvester Bowl last week were Sid White with a 648 scratch series and Kandy Baker, with a 568 scratch.

Red Raiders Gig Froggies, 89-75

By United Press International

Texas Tech sat beside Texas on Wednesday night while SMU's Mustangs galloped down the stretch to overcome an aroused Rice crew that faltered and lost 89-75 when the bulk of its starting lineup fouled out.

Baylor hasn't won in five games and Tech should make it six in a row this weekend at Lubbock during a full set of action that also finds SMU visiting Aggie land at College Station, TCU at Arkansas and Texas tangling with Rice at Houston.

AROUND THE WORLD

GARMENT DISTRICT—These apartment buildings in Hong Kong are ultra-modern, but residents have given them a tenement-like appearance by hanging washing along the balconies. Built to help ease the terrific overcrowding problem in Hong Kong, each family has just one room in this building, so there is really nowhere else to hang the laundry.

SHEEPISH EXPRESSION—They're entitled to it, of course, because these are Barbary sheep, and they live at the London Zoo. Mother and child, the animals are native to North Africa and quite accustomed to admiration.

SIZING THINGS DOWN—Bringing the world down to his small size, three-year-old David Carney is getting a load of things through the wrong end of a pair of binoculars in New York. David had spent the holidays in England with his grandparents, and was going home to Camden, N. J.

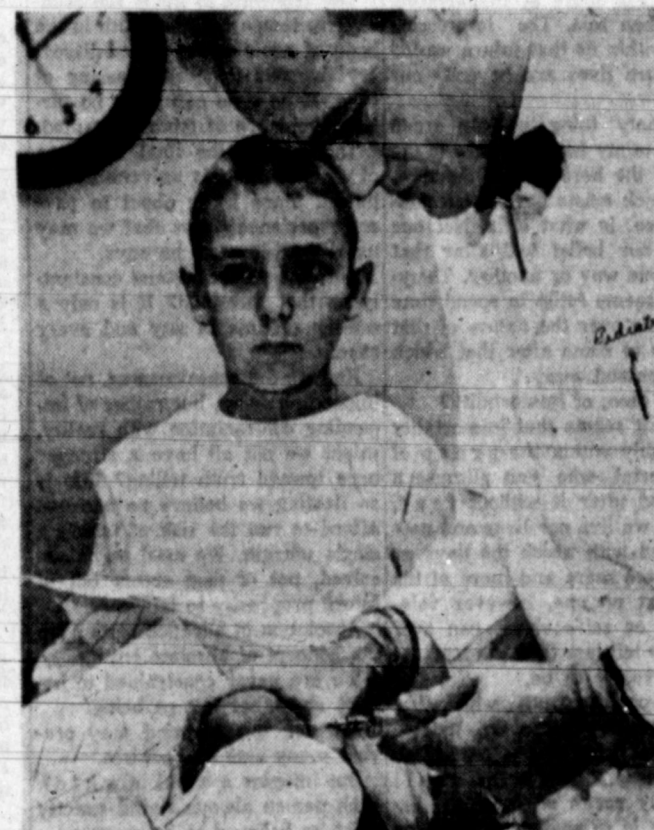

HAIRING AID—Fashionable ladies now have to comb their hats in Paris, where Belgian hair stylist Lintemans is parting the chapeaux of two models. Made of real hair, the hats give the illusion of a fluffy coiffure and enable ladies to have a variety of "instant" hair styles.

FEAST DAY—Although it was cold beside this lake in London's Hyde Park, these schoolchildren are having a picnic. Once winter takes over, there aren't many people who feed the birds, so these feathered creatures are making the most of the occasion.

SUN BONNET SUES—All five of these Aquamaids are at home when skiing on the water at Cypress Gardens, Fla., where they are temporarily log rollers. The trunk of a fallen palm tree makes a good prop for the girls to show off their smiles and bonnets.

GIVING HIS ALL—Giving samples of his body to medical science is the heroic job of Stevie Vardol, 10, who is watching Dr. Keith Drummond remove some knee-joint fluid in Minneapolis, Minn. A victim of juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, Stevie spends many hours giving blood and joint fluid samples at the March of Dimes-supported Children's Rheumatism Clinic at the University of Minnesota.

ANYTHING FOR A LAUGH—Lining up in a gag totem-pole profile, these long-time singing stars at left may not be recognizable to fans used to seeing them full face. They are the Andrews Sisters, La Verne (from top), Patty and Maxene who posed this way in London, England, where they arrived for an engagement. Final results at right.

SHOOTING STARS—Completely surrounded by cameramen, Japanese film stars Yujiro Ishihara and Mip Kitahara were well-covered by the press after their wedding in Tokyo. Ishihara is the screen idol of Japanese teen-agers.

COMES IN HANDY—The blizzard that covered New York City and the surrounding area with almost 18 inches of snow was not to the liking of Kōkomo Jr., a chimpanzee. Manhattan is usually milder, so this bonfire came in rather handy and helped warm the monkey's cold bones.

ASPIRATION—Fashion is too serious to be child's play for the youngster who is straining for a close look at the small models on the runway of a children's wear show in Rome. Perhaps the tot is longing for the day when she will be big enough to be a child model herself.

THE TOUGH ONE—At least, Stonewall, an eight-year-old rhinoceros at the San Francisco Zoo, looks that way. He wears his horns down almost to the nub by rubbing them against the concrete walls of his enclosure.

PHONY PONY—Just horsing around, Valerie Bertan, 15 (left), riding Apache, and her friend, Laura Veréb on Nancy, are meeting someone new. They are introducing their mounts to a dummy mustang outside a restaurant at Tottenville, Staten Island, N. Y.

AT THE KEYBOARD—At home at the keyboard, Flossie is a piano-playing pooch who is giving out with a selection that's tops on the canine hit parade. The colorfully-clad pooch was among the entertainers at a holiday party for children in a department store in Allentown, Pa., and the most popular.

Immortality And Truth

With the passing of many days it appears more and more certain that life is fleeting and that only truth is real.

Many there are who concern themselves with immortality in some other world, perchance a happier and more accommodating abode than this. The impression grows within us that future worlds and future lives are beyond our ken.

The only thing we can grasp with certainty here and now is the truth of the here and of the now. That which exists beyond our ability to see, is what it is. Not one iota of our belief will alter that reality one way or another. Therefore, it seems futile to spend time in arguing over the nature of that which is to come after that which has passed away.

What, then, of immortality? To us it seems that immortality lies readily within the grasp of any mortal who can glimpse a truth and utter it without fear. And, as we live our lives and note the speed with which the days go by, we are more and more of the view that no one, however vain-glorious or self-seeking, can ever afford to tell less than the truth as he believes it to be.

Many confuse truth with what one wishes the truth were. Indeed, in certain fields this is carried to such excess that a person will knowingly recite an untruth because he is so anxious to have his hearer react in a way he has already decided would be beneficial for the hearer. And he will deliberately state that which is clearly false because he concludes that which he says is "good" and actually "better" than that which is true.

There can be nothing more "good" than that which is good. To the extent a person aligns himself with truth to that extent does he make himself an immortal. Even our brief and bloody history demonstrates the fact. The men who are remembered are those who told the truth. Their shining light is today as bright as when the gleam was first uncaped.

If a person could know in advance when his own pilgrimage on this earth would end, then, perchance, there would be less temptation to side with the untruth and the unreal.

Ask yourself, if you were to die tomorrow, would you tell a lie today? The tendency to lie is the tendency to temporize with truth in the hope of non-discovery. Non-discovery depends upon the passing of time. If no time can pass, no future avoidance of truth is wanted. This is why the final utterance of a dying man is universally believed. Since he is about to pass on, experience shows that we may usually trust what he says.

But do we not all stand constantly on that threshold? It is only a matter of time in any and every case. Had we the consciousness, not of impending doom, but rather of impending confrontation with reality, might we not all have a stronger urge toward truth telling? Life is so fleeting we believe no one can afford to run the risk of telling a single untruth. We need to be absolved, not of past errors but of future propensity to falseness.

Absolution in advance rests upon the concept of absolute truth. We are never constrained to believe any other human being. Keeping this in mind may prevent many cuts and bruises. But imagine a world in which each person always stated exactly what he believed to be correct.

Would it be so horrible? Or are we conditioned to believe that the truth is so ugly that it is better for us to imagine all manner of pleasant myths and fictions? It seems to us that the truth is always better than the dream of truth. For even the most pleasant dream is only a dream. Yet, the most rugged and unwelcome truth can be met and ultimately must be. Is this not best?

We look for truthfulness in others and find them at fault, if the truth is not in them. Might we not better serve the cause of truth if we disciplined ourselves to the point where no other ever had to wonder whether our utterances were honest? Immortality and truth are made of the same substance.

Strength and Ability

The courageous man is not he who selects a task suited to his strength but who summons strength which is suited to his task.

Prof. Wants Your Money

For a New Year slogan, "Watch Out For Walter Heller, He's Out To Get Your Pocketbook" might make some sense.

Lots of people don't know who Walter W. Heller is, well they're going to find out, and the sooner the acquaintance is made the better.

He's been chosen by the president to be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in the Kennedy administration. Mr. Heller is a professor and is chairman of the Department of Economics at the University of Minnesota, a state which seems especially gifted at spawning socialists.

Don't think for a minute that this is an appointment that isn't going to make much difference in your humble life. There is a very good chance that it will — a most significant difference if you think the government already is taking enough or too much of your pay check.

Professor Heller will be chief of the group surrounding the President and his cabinet to advise them on matters financial. That means, first of all, taxes, principally in come taxes, which practically everybody has to pay, and even if you are in that small group now exempt you're going to be interested in Professor Heller, because he objects to tax rules that favor people just because they are aged, or blind, or sick, or unemployed, or homeowners, or veterans.

The Doctor Says:

DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

"My husband is now 56 years old and he's just about driving me out of my mind," writes a housewife. "He has suddenly become grumpy and irritable and a problem drinker. I read in a movie magazine that things like this happen to men when they have 'change of life.' Is this true? And if it is, could he be helped with gland shots like they give some of the older movie stars?"

Dear, dear lady, I'm afraid you are among the many who've been taken in by what someone called "marquee medicine." All bright lights and no substance. Let me try to straighten you out.

Men do not have a "change of life," comparable to that experienced by the female.

The woman's menopause, as indicated by a cessation of the normal cycle of periodic bleedings, marks the end of her opportunity for child-bearing. By contrast, the normal male may and frequently does achieve fatherhood up to and beyond the biblical three score and ten years.

Despite this fundamental difference in the reproductive capacities of the sexes, the possible existence of a "male climacteric" was popularized primarily by writers of what may be described as "science fiction."

Their views were quickly taken up by those who saw a bright opportunity for exploitation of the many men who, at 50 and beyond, give up the search for the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow and now seek waters from the Fountain of Youth.

For a while, "gland shots" for the male climacteric were acclaimed by the same gullible celebrities who are now singing the praises of the Swiss "miracle man" and the European lady doctor whose marqueses advertise "rejuvenation" as the current attraction.

Unhappily the unglamorous truths about the male climacteric and its treatment with "gland shots" are these:

(1) The concept of a male climacteric, wrote Dr. Elmer Hess, former president of the American Medical Assn., "is misleading and dangerous, fostering indiscriminate administration of androgens (male sex hormone) to men over 50."

As (2) "The promiscuous use of male hormone is unwarranted and may prove harmful," states the Journal of the A.M.A. editorially "when given for the relief of nervous and mental symptoms, under the impression that these symptoms are due to failure of sexual function."

As to the "change" being responsible for problem drinking, that's about the wisest medical yarn since the ancient Greeks blamed the womb (hysteria) for the nervous disturbances, they then labeled "hysteria."

In exchange, the U.S. plans to press these Red regimes to become less dependent on the Kremlin for political direction, trade, military aid, and to encourage their Communist leaders to be more responsive to the needs and wishes of their own people.

The U.S. objective: Six Titos in stead of one.

FORWARD CONTAINMENT — In his private talks with the legislators, Secretary Rusk stressed that this bold plan is only one part of an overall new "forward containment" policy that the U.S. is now shaping toward Russia.

He revealed that Kennan, the author of the Truman Administration's containment policy against international Communism, was being given a major role in the execution of the new policy as well as being its chief author. Other details of Kennan's new mission are top secret.

Kennan, former career foreign service officer specializing in Soviet affairs, served as Ambassador to Russia under former President Truman until the Soviets said the Ambassador was unacceptable to them. He left the State Department in a dispute with the late Secretary of State Dulles over U.S. Soviet Policy.

Secretary Rusk said the U.S. was pushing the Kennan policy against the growing military and economic power of the Soviets and to take advantage of the Kremlin's chief weakness — its European satellites.

He contended that the policy of "forward containment" offered the best hope over the long term for the peaceful liberation of the satellites without incurring the risk of nuclear war.

Another staunch backer of this policy is Treasury Secretary Dillon, who carried on extensive trade and aid negotiations with Tito last year while serving as Under Secretary of State in the Eisenhower administration.

Before moving to his present Cabinet post, Dillon sent a report to the White House recommending that the U.S. should increase economic aid to Yugoslavia and Poland to encourage those Communist states to become more independent of Moscow.

NOTE: Tito didn't send a Yugoslav representative to the recent international Communist conference in Moscow, although the Kremlin sent him an invitation.

Let us know how you get along. Dr. Joe.

Your patient, Ivy E. Duncan

NOTE: It is surprising if the new President turns out to embrace such confiscatory tax schemes. Everybody had ample warning. Professor Heller fits the pattern.

This Is His Card--

Kennan Appointment As Ambassador to Yugoslavia, Key Part of Plan to Encourage Satellite Independence

ROBERT S. ALLEN PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Behind President Kennedy's surprise decision to appoint George F. Kennan, as Ambassador to Yugoslavia, is a dramatic new policy to woo Communist satellites in Eastern Europe away from Russia.

The plan is for Kennan, 56-year-old expert on Russia and author of the policy, to use the U.S. embassy in Belgrade as a front-line command post to direct the new diplomacy.

As outlined to congressional leaders by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the new U.S. policy toward the Soviet calls for the State Department to use all diplomatic and economic tools at its command to encourage Eastern European Communist leaders to follow the historic course taken by Marshal Tito and break openly with the Kremlin.

Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Rumania, and Albania are all targets of the new policy.

The strategy provides for increased U.S. contacts with these Soviet satellites by furnishing "select" economic aid, increasing cultural and scientific exchanges, and hiking U.S. trade.

In exchange, the U.S. plans to press these Red regimes to become less dependent on the Kremlin for political direction, trade, military aid, and to encourage their Communist leaders to be more responsive to the needs and wishes of their own people.

The U.S. objective: Six Titos in stead of one.

FORWARD CONTAINMENT — In his private talks with the legislators, Secretary Rusk stressed that this bold plan is only one part of an overall new "forward containment" policy that the U.S. is now shaping toward Russia.

He revealed that Kennan, the author of the Truman Administration's containment policy against international Communism, was being given a major role in the execution of the new policy as well as being its chief author. Other details of Kennan's new mission are top secret.

Kennan, former career foreign service officer specializing in Soviet affairs, served as Ambassador to Russia under former President Truman until the Soviets said the Ambassador was unacceptable to them. He left the State Department in a dispute with the late Secretary of State Dulles over U.S. Soviet Policy.

Secretary Rusk said the U.S. was pushing the Kennan policy against the growing military and economic power of the Soviets and to take advantage of the Kremlin's chief weakness — its European satellites.

He contended that the policy of "forward containment" offered the best hope over the long term for the peaceful liberation of the satellites without incurring the risk of nuclear war.

Another staunch backer of this policy is Treasury Secretary Dillon, who carried on extensive trade and aid negotiations with Tito last year while serving as Under Secretary of State in the Eisenhower administration.

Before moving to his present Cabinet post, Dillon sent a report to the White House recommending that the U.S. should increase economic aid to Yugoslavia and Poland to encourage those Communist states to become more independent of Moscow.

NOTE: Tito didn't send a Yugoslav representative to the recent international Communist conference in Moscow, although the Kremlin sent him an invitation.

Let us know how you get along. Dr. Joe.

Your patient, Ivy E. Duncan

NOTE: It is surprising if the new President turns out to embrace such confiscatory tax schemes. Everybody had ample warning. Professor Heller fits the pattern.

The American Way

By GEORGE PECK

Out That Camel Constantly things transpire in this America of ours that prove and re-prove that once the camel gets his nose into the tent, it is not long till he gets his whole body in, humps and all.

A recent example of this is the advice that the Post Office Department is considering introducing a new mail service to speed up delivery of the mails. Now, on the face of it, this would seem to be something to be applauded. Most certainly a bit of expediting of the delivery of first class mail would be most welcome. However, if this speed-up involves further competition with private enterprise, then it surely would be a loss to the American citizen, rather than a gain.

This new special kind of mail service which the Post Office Department contemplates launching is one by which letters would be transmitted electronically. This would call for another assault on our poor, long-suffering taxpayers as installing the necessary equipment would involve tremendous expense.

Now, of course, we've gotten so accustomed to having the Post Office Department operate in the red that there will be some who will say: "So what? So the P.O. will lose another few million dollars a year?" But putting the Post Office Department into a greater annual deficit, in itself had enough, is not the worst feature of this proposal — it would put the P.O. in competition with the Western Union Telegraph Co., which has pioneered this transmitting of messages electronically at great expense (of private investors' funds) for research and installation. We are informed that Western Union has more electronic facsimile equipment in operation than the rest of the world combined with some 40,000 of the machines already operating in every major city in the U.S.A.

Western Union seems to have the situation well in hand. It has been furnishing telegraph service to the nation for well over a century; it has consistently put money into the tax-pot. Putting it another way, Western Union actually has helped make up the deficits incurred by the Post Office.

But we were talking about the camel getting its nose into the tent! The Post Office got its nose into it when it was first launched as a department of our Uncle Sam's government, instead of our having entrusted the mail service to an investor-owned company. Then, the shoulders of the camel were followed into the tent when the Post Office Department launched parcel post in competition with the private enterprise express companies. Crowding its body further into the tent came about when the Post Office went into the banking business (postal savings, sale of money orders, etc.) in competition with our investor-owned banking institutions.

If the Post Office proceeds now to go into unfair competition with the Western Union Telegraph Company, the camel will have gotten his entire body into the tent. Taxpayers will take it on the chin again as their money is used to install the P. O. electronic equipment; a tax-paying private company will be forced to compete with a new tax-free activity, and "free" America will have taken another long step away from the concept of the Founding Fathers toward the complete socialistic state.

Well, there's a remedy for stopping this collectivist nonsense—the Proposed 23rd Amendment, already endorsed by the State of Wyoming, Nevada, Louisiana and Texas. This Proposed 23rd Amendment, when enacted, will make the Federal Government divest itself of the 700 corporations (including Post Office competition with express and telegraph companies and banks) it now operates unprofitably at taxpayers' expense in unconstitutional competition with private enterprise corporations and individuals. More important, it will prevent the Federal Government ever again launching an enterprise in competition with private enterprise, unless the people themselves further amend the Constitution to delegate such powers to government.

Enactment of the Proposed 23rd Amendment will not only take the Federal Government off-the-backs of the telegraph and express companies and of our banking institutions — it will put back initiative and incentive into our overall American economy. If you are not familiar with this Proposed 23rd Amendment, write for full details to the organization that originated and is sponsoring it — The National Committee for Economic Freedom, 6413 Franklin Avenue, Los Angeles 28, Calif. Join hands with it in its fight to get that socialistic camel out of our tent and keep him out.

BAD IDEAS—THEIR UPS AND DOWNS

(Foundation for Economic Education Bulletin)

Bad ideas are having a heyday. Be it noted, however, that bad ideas are not new to our time. They existed in Elizabethan England and during the flowering of New England as surely as they exist today. What, then, accounts for their being on the rampage now?

When good ideas prevail in theory and practice, bad ideas lie rejected and dormant, but ready, nevertheless, to take over when moral barriers go down. When good ideas are neglected, the bad ones arise and gain acceptance. Thus, we experience periods of enlightenment alternating with periods of moral, spiritual, political, social, and economic degeneracy.

Bad ideas are too numerous to recount. One among the many will suffice for illustration: Thievery as a way of life. Thievery is unwilling exchange or the taking of another's property without his consent. This is as true of all bad ideas, is someone has said, "as was the first labor saving device."

Never has there been a time when the idea of thievery was non-existent. But there have been times when the idea was inoperative, under condemnation as a violation of the moral law. During such times honesty was accepted as the best policy and "Thou shalt not steal" was believed to be right and was heeded.

Then there are times, like the present, when the taking of another's property without his consent is popularly approved, legalized by majority vote and politically glorified as consistent with Judeo-Christian charity. Always, in times like our own, the bad ideas have their professional rationalizers. Decorated with caps, gowns, and academic hoods signifying scholarly distinction, and sporting such titles as "economist," they "prove" that taking the fruits of our labor by force of government is for our own good.

There has been an increase of more than 600 teachers in the public school system of Arkansas since 1955.

News Briefs

Trading Up NEW YORK (UPI) — About 11 million U.S. families could presently afford to "trade up" to a house worth $17,500, according to housing experts at Allied Chemical Corporation's Barrett Division.

They estimate that there are only about half enough houses in the $17,500 price range to accommodate all those who could afford a home of that value.

Lending To Rise CHICAGO (UPI) — Housing may enjoy a slightly better year in 1961, but any major advance will depend on the effect of population pressures which are expected to reach their full force in the mid-1960's, according to the U.S. Savings and Loan League.

The league predicted that savings and loan associations would lend $15 billion in 1961, as compared to $14.4 billion in 1960.

Business in Billions WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shopping centers in 1960 accounted for more than $45 billion in retail sales, or more than 20 per cent of the nation's total, according to the National Retail Merchants Association.

Everybody's Money

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUYEYER

It was no joke when Ben Cerf, humorist and president of Random House, Inc., found his wife Phyllis had bought shares of his publishing house stock on the very day he was selling.

It was beside the point. Phyllis acquired the shares at a time when she benefited from a substantial subsequent rise in the price of the stock.

When hitherto privately owned enterprises "go public" and a portion of their stock — usually a minority interest — is sold to speculators and investors, several motives operate on the inside.

By selling a part of their enterprises for cash, the insiders are in position to improve their investment stance by better diversification. This a publisher can't do until a liquidation of closely held interests in a variety of securities of outstanding American and foreign companies.

Second, "going public" technique for getting corporate gains in part into your personal bank account. This has to do with the nature of the tax civilization in which we live. A publisher or business man, whose enterprise "goes public," pays a capital tax on the shares which he presumably acquires at a higher price than he originally founded the business many years ago.

On the other hand, if the executive-owner of a closely held business aspires to transfer corporate gains into his private bank account without "going public" ordinarily can do so only by having the corporation pay his salary or by declaring dividends payable to himself and to other stockholders. But both the salary and dividend disbursements are subject to steeply graduated normal income taxes, which run to 91 per cent (as compared to capital gain ceiling of 25 per cent).

In addition, there are other considerations for "going public," getting an investment firm, or a writer, to sponsor a public stock issue, which ultimately is listed on a stock exchange traded over-the-counter, the status gives added value to retained holdings in stock in company with the executives and other principal owners. By creating an open market value, stock has collateral value as security for a bank loan. Also, open market gives owners a better opportunity realistically to inventory their investment holdings.

But when Mr. Cerf was selling, as Mrs. Cerf was buying, an important principle was involved. Cerf recognized that he was able to spend for "ships and seals and wax" the "paper profits" which loom up when a stock rises in price in the market. Only spendable income available cash from "realized" profits, which come from selling part of shares for cash.

Thus, the fact that the liquidation of the company was pending (selling) a portion of its stocks did not necessarily reflect any pessimism on his part, as the outlook for his company was moving in a direction deemed to give him better investment diversification, on the hand, and to translate into "spendable income" for personal family consumption part of the paper gains which resulted from public enthusiasm for his company securities, on the other.

In recent stock markets, there has been opportunity for owners of hitherto closely held, private companies to "go public."

While stock jobbers may be cynical, executive-owners of business often have sound and justifiable reasons for taking outside investors into partnership with them.

In addition to the personal benefits to insiders which have been enumerated, the company itself by "going public" improves its access to new capital for growth and development.

Recently, while standard types of industries have been subject to stock market reaction, the market fashions have veered in favor of new specialties, whether of "wonder" scientific industries such as personal service enterprises as publishing.

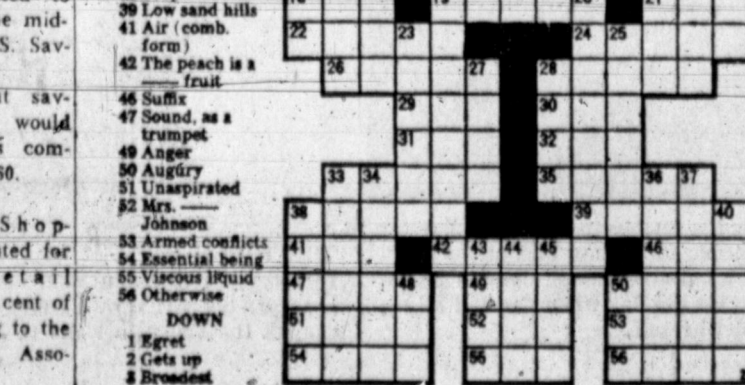

No one knows in advance whether he has a better seller, and the book publishing business is without its hazards. Great selectivity is required in choosing securities of smaller companies, everyone that succeeds sufficiently to be eligible to "go public," hundreds fail in the competitive process.

(Mr. Ruyeyer will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems.

President's Program For Economic Recovery And Growth

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The condensed text of President Kennedy's economic message to Congress:

Program For Economic Recovery and Growth

President John F. Kennedy has the human and material resources to meet the demands of national security and the obligations of world leadership while at the same time advancing well-being at home. But our nation has been falling further and further short of its economic capabilities. In the past seven years, our rate of growth has slowed down disturbingly. In the past 3 1/2 years, the gap between what we can produce and what we do produce has threatened to become chronic. And in the past year, our economic problem has been aggravated by recession and by loss of gold. Realistic aims for 1961 are to reverse the downturn in our economy, to narrow the gap of unused potential, to abate the waste and misery of unemployment, and at the same time to maintain reasonable stability of the price level. For 1962 and 1963, our programs must aim at expanding American productive capacity at a rate that shows the world the vigor and vitality of a free economy. I am proposing today measures both to alleviate the distress arising from unsatisfactory performance of the economy and to stimulate economic recovery and growth. If economic developments in the first quarter of this year indicate that additional measures are needed, I will promptly propose such measures. The Present Situation and Outlook The potential of the American economy is constantly expanding. But this is not high enough. Our potential growth rate can and should be increased. To do so, we propose to expand the nation's investments in physical and human resources, and in science and technology.

All this could have been accomplished with readily available manpower, materials and machines—without straining productive capacity and without igniting inflation. The performance of the economy in 1960 was not only well below its full capacity; it also fell short of the modest levels expected by the previous administration. Even when the recession ends and economic activity begins to expand again, the problem of unused potential will remain. Under these circumstances, the expectation of minor improvements in business conditions during the next year provides no basis for complacency, no excuse for inaction. An unbalanced economy does not produce a balanced budget. That is why the prospect of surpluses in the Federal budgets for fiscal 1961 and 1962 is fading away. General Fiscal Policy and Budget The Federal budget can and should be made an instrument of prosperity and stability, not a deterrent to recovery. This administration is pledged to a federal revenue system that balances the budget over the years of the economic cycle—yielding surpluses for debt retirement in times of high employment that more than offset the deficits which accompany—and indeed help overcome—low levels of economic activity in poor years.

Under the program by which loans are made to local public bodies for the construction of public facilities, the Community Facilities Administration at my direction is reducing interest rates on new loans. This program will also be broadened to make eligible for loans many communities and certain types of public facility projects which are now excluded. I have instructed the Housing and Home Finance Agency to hasten the initiation or completion of those approved projects in which a speed-up can be effected without waste.

I urge that area redevelopment legislation be enacted without delay. I have instructed the secretary of agriculture, consistent with bill enacted by the Congress, to authorize establishment of pilot food-stamp programs to be established as rapidly as possible in localities in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, eastern Kentucky, northern Minnesota, eastern Illinois and the Detroit area. I have also asked the secretary of agriculture to make recommendations to improve and strengthen our school lunch program, make the best possible nutrition available to every schoolchild, regardless of the economic condition of his family or local district.

Nixon Ready To Return To Law Office

MIAMI (UPI)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon today neared the end of a two-week vacation and a return to the practice of law in California. Nixon, deeply tanned after about 10 days in the Bahamas and three days here, said he planned to go to Washington Saturday for a brief visit, then head west to his home state.

"I expect to go to work in the law office as soon as I get home," he said. Asked if any major clients are lined up yet, he replied: "No, but I surely hope some of them come along."

Nixon declined comment on all political matters, including President Kennedy's recent State of the Union speech.

"I'm on a vacation," he said, "and it's also a vacation from all comment."

Commissioners Take Action To Improve Roads

The Gray County commissioners authorized County Judge, William J. Craig to advertise bids opening on March 1, for paving a three-mile stretch of road on the south end of Farm To Market Road 2300 in Gray County at their regular meeting yesterday.

A focal point of the meeting was the transfer of four road funds from the Farm To Market and Lateral Roads to the Road and Bridge funds. Transfers were: No. 1, $14,000, No. 2, $14,750.50, No. 3, $15,323 and No. 4, $10,912, a total of $55,000.

Other matters brought before the commission were routine business of paying bills, and authorizing payrolls.

The ancient Egyptians used sand molds to form bottles and jars 4,000 years ago.

generosity, benevolence and public-spirited goodness in giving us so many documentaries. All the networks, wearing their antennas like so many stainless steel halos, refer to their own documentaries with self-serving awe. They send out press releases, issue statements, cross-pollinate programs on their regular newscasts, honor their own.

And the gist of all this is: "Aren't we magnificent, though? Look at what we've done. We've produced a documentary!"

All this self-praise, which might be termed electronic egomania, might be deserved, were it not for the simple fact that your daily newspaper does more, day in and day out, without all this holier-than-thousness.

Just pick up your newspaper and consider it. Almost every day there is a feature which the networks would term a documentary and generally there are four or five such features.

Every news story in your newspaper is, in effect, a documentary. After all, what is meant by "documentary"? The dictionary definition is: "Of the nature of, or consisting in, documents." Admittedly, the word has come to mean more than that on TV. It apparently now refers to any program other than entertainment.

There is an encouraging tendency for more of this kind of programming and it is a healthy tendency. Programs such as CBS Reports, the NBC White Paper and ABC's Close-Up, plus others of the same stripe, are ordinarily very well done, saying things that need to be said and contributing immensely to the viewers' pleasure and education.

I want it to be made very clear that the point of this story, is not criticism of documentaries. On the contrary, they should be encouraged.

But I also feel, quite strongly, that the networks are only doing what they should have been doing all along. And, consequently, the praise they merit should be administered with restraint.

They seem to want to be patted on their heads every time they do a documentary. What they deserve is merely a smug "Well done," rather than a shouted, "Oh, boy, terrific!"

And it would be judicious, before you go around saying how great TV is for producing documentaries, to consider newspapers and other communications media. Your daily newspaper consistently offers facts, interpretive material, human interest stories and what we call "color" articles which, taken as a whole, comprise documentaries.

The newspapers print these stories as a matter of course. It is our job, just as it is TV's job. We also offer entertainment, as TV does, too. But TV seems to feel entertainment is its sole job and, that when it presents a documentary, it is being very, very noble.

That, of course, is nonsense. And, therefore, TV's documentaries will mean more when the networks treat them as routine, rather than remarkable.

Mrs. Kennedy, Twins Open Heart Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy opened the American Heart Association's annual fund-raising campaign Wednesday with two blonde 6-year-old twins, who underwent heart surgery last year.

Mrs. Kennedy sat on a yellow brocade couch in the diplomatic reception room of the White House and said it was a great pleasure to meet the twins and participate in the ceremony. On either side of her sat Debbie and Donna Horst of Erlen, Pa., who will be seven years old Feb. 26. Each girl gave Mrs. Kennedy a heart-shaped bouquet made of red and yellow roses.

In return, the first lady gave each girl a heart-shaped gold charm engraved with her initials and the names of the children.

matter of FACT

John Kennedy isn't the first wealthy man to live in the White House. The tradition of wealth in the White House goes back to our first president, George Washington, who was one of our richest chief executives. He had a passion for buying land and had holdings in several states. When he died he left his heirs about $530,000. Figured at current land values, the Washington estate would bring in about 20 million dollars.
