Few Results Expected In East-West Geneva Meet

'OAS Watches' Is Grim Warning

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI)—The mutilated naked body of a man was strung up between two buildings in Algiers Saturday as a grim warning by the extremist Secret Army Organization (OAS) to its Moslem and European opponents.

The body, with the legend "OAS Watches" scrawled in tar, dangled high over the heads of shocked crowds for nearly 30 minutes before police and firemen cut it down. The victim appeared to be an oriental—possibly one of the Vietnamese agents brought here by the French secret police to fight the OAS which opposes independence for Algeria.

Rusk Flies To Big 3 Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk flew to Geneva Saturday for Big Three foreign minister talks which may lead to a summit conference between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev within a few months.

Boarding his plane for private talks with Russia's Andrei Gromyko and Britain's Lord Home beginning Sunday and for 17-nation disarmament talks to follow Wednesday, Rusk promised "to do everything we can on our side to turn down the arms race and reduce present tensions."

If other delegates—meaning Gromyko—approach the talks in the same spirit, Rusk said, "we can make some real headway."

There were two immediate goals of Rusk's mission:

—To see if Russia shows any interest at all in negotiating a cheat-proof nuclear test ban treaty before this country resumes atmospheric tests in April.

—To see whether the Kremlin is at all willing to reduce Berlin tensions and therefore whether there is any point in continuing exploratory Berlin talks toward this end.

Neither Side Offering Major Concessions

By K. C. THALER
United Press International

GENEVA (UPI)—The Western powers and the Communists are entering the new round of East-West negotiations in Geneva with a minimum of expectations of a breakthrough in the 15-year-old cold war.

Seasoned diplomats on both sides of the iron curtain have set their sights primarily on a "confidence building" exercise—with a return to a dangerously stepped up cold war as the only alternative.

Diplomatic assessments on the eve of the big power and disarmament talks foresaw few if any concrete results on the major conflicts dividing the two camps.

Neither side appears to have brought major concessions to the conference table.

The diplomatic prognosis for the forthcoming East-West negotiations Saturday was plainly this: at best the Geneva meeting can spark an easing of international tension which may be followed by piecemeal agreements.

If, on the other hand, they were to break off in anger the consequences could be serious in the extreme.

The problems facing the Geneva negotiations are formidable.

First, the composition of the 18-nation disarmament conference spells trouble. Its size is considered too large for profitable bargaining. The presence of countries with little or no experience in arms production is an added complication.

France has decided to stay away from the talks. The absence of one of the major Western powers with a nuclear potential upsets the balance of East-West parity in the conference.

Communism China's absence also may involve considerable long range problems. Peiping has stated it will not consider itself bound by any agreement negotiated in its absence. Communist China is held to be nearing the explosion of her first atomic bomb.

East and West are, moreover, seriously divided over the basic approach to real disarmament including a nuclear test ban.

Pampa Woman No-Billed On Murder Charge

The Gray County Grand Jury Friday no-billed 22-year-old Mrs. Patricia Ann Roland, 407 Elm St., who had been charged with murder in the stabbing death of her husband, Roger, 29, last Nov. 24.

Dist. Atty. Bill Waters said Mrs. Roland was freed of the charge by the jury after the examination of nine witnesses in the case.

The stabbing first was revealed when Police Lt. J. B. Goad and Patrolman H. G. Shaffer, on a routine patrol at 1:30 a.m. on the morning of Nov. 24, saw Mrs. Roland standing over her wounded husband, lying on the ground in front of their home on Elm St.

The woman was holding a pocket knife in her hand, police said. Roland had been stabbed in the left shoulder and heart. Police called an ambulance and Roland was pronounced dead on arrival at Highland Hospital.

Mrs. Roland told officers she and her husband had been drinking and became involved in an argument over their three children, two sons and a daughter. She said he began slapping her and that she ran and got the pocket knife and stabbed him in self-defense.

Ten persons were indicted in eight true bills returned by the grand jury in an all-day session that ended about 6 p.m. Friday.

The indictments included: W. C. Johnson, thief by false pretext; Jack H. Sweetman, second offense driving while intoxicated; J. D. James and Earl Henry Hall, acting together in burglary with intent to commit theft; James Patterson and Ernest Ray Brooks, acting together in burglary of a motor vehicle; Billy B. Bumps, theft; Guy C. Elkins, obtaining thing of value with intent to defraud; and Wallace A. Smith, theft.

The grand jury adjourned subject to call of District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich.

Tears Off Roof

Small 'Twister' Hits In Northeast Pampa

A miniature twister, with winds strong enough to rip off a roof, smash windows and bend television antennas, hit the Rosewood Ln.-Crane Rd. area in northeast Pampa shortly after 2 p.m. Saturday.

The composition roof on the home of A. G. Crosby, 2401 Rosewood, was torn off and windows were broken out at the home of James Butcher, 2405 Rosewood.

The damaging wind pocket, traveling northeast, scattered pieces of roofing into the street—and yards of neighbors across the street.

Television antennas were bent and wrecked in the 1100 - block of Terry Rd., 1000 - block of Crane Rd. and in the 900 - block of Cinderella Dr.

Mrs. Butcher said she first heard the roar of the wind and then the crash of glass.

"I looked out and saw the roof on the house next door blowing into the street," Mrs. Butcher said.

Pampa was whipped along with the rest of the Panhandle, Saturday afternoon by 40 to 50-mile per hour winds with gusts up to 70 and 75 miles.

The winds brought with them a dust storm which reduced visibility in the Pampa area two to three miles when the windstorm was at its height.

The dust began to subside around 7 p.m. and weathermen said the winds should subside and the dust move on eastward by early today.

But a new cold front was moving in behind the dust storm and the temperature began to drop a little faster around dusk last night.

The forecasters predicted a low in the upper 30s early today and said the Sunday high would not get above 45 degrees.

High winds in gusts to 65 miles an hour swept dust across West Texas Saturday, ahead of a new cold front that forecasters said may bring snow to the Panhandle Sunday.

East Texas and upper Coastal sections had rain and some fog. The peak wind velocity was 85 miles an hour at Lubbock, where visibility was cut to three miles by blowing dust. El Paso, Wink, Amarillo and Childress also had blowing dust.

By mid-afternoon, the cold front extended east of El Paso to near Wink and northward through parts of the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles. There were some scattered showers over the upper Texas Panhandle and more were forecast as the front moves downstate.

Toastmasters Club Hosts Area 6 Meet

Area Six of the Toastmasters Club wound up its one - day workshop meeting with a banquet and speech contest last night in Coronado Inn.

Jack Hepinstall of Pampa took first honors in the speech contest. Title of his speech was "The Last Will and Testament of a Refugee."

Second place went to Tom Hughes of Borger for his speech, "Two Legs of Stone." Third place was awarded by the judges to Joe Hoyle of Dumas, who spoke on "Lack of Freedom."

Pampa was host to the area meeting. M. G. Rogers acted as toastmaster at the Ladies' Night banquet and awards of the trophies were made by Pat Riom of Borger, Toastmasters Club Area Six governor.

Forrest Hills is president of the Pampa Club and Lloyd Kuntz, of the Pampa Club, was chairman in charge of arrangements for the area conference.

Club members and their wives from Borger, Dumas, Dalhart and Quanah attended the district meeting here.

'K' Asked To Agree On Testing Ban

TOKYO (UPI)—Japanese Premier Hayato Ikeda Saturday called on Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev to agree to an effective ban on nuclear testing before the United States sets off its explosions in the atmosphere next month.

In a note delivered by Ambassador Hisanori Yamada in Moscow, Ikeda told Khrushchev the realization of a testing agreement "now depends entirely on your decision."

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass said Khrushchev assured Yamada Khrushchev would do everything possible to conclude agreements on disarmament and nuclear testing. Tass said Ikeda had noted that Japan already had protested Washington's decision to resume atmospheric testing unless an agreement is reached at the forthcoming 18-nation conference at Geneva.

Ikeda said in his message Japan placed great hope in the Geneva meeting and urged Khrushchev to "exert your very best efforts for the earliest possible conclusion of the agreement in response to the cherished wish of all mankind."

The Japanese leader said his country had been happy when Russia, the United States and Britain declared a moratorium in 1958 and became afraid the new round of Soviet tests last September would create "a vicious circle of testing."

Reds' Gromyko Makes Arrival

GENEVA (UPI)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko flew in Saturday for cold war end and disarmament talks with the American and British foreign ministers. He served a grim warning that time was running out in the effort to halt the mushrooming nuclear arms race.

Secretary of State, Dean Rusk was due later Saturday night from Washington where he left with a promise "to do everything we can on our side" to halt the arms race and reduce tension. He said "we can make some real headway" if Gromyko has the same attitude.

If there is progress a summit conference could follow this spring.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home was flying in Sunday from London. He had a final briefing from Prime Minister Harold Macmillan Friday night and they were believed to have discussed some Anglo-American differences on the approach to a nuclear test ban.

France is boycotting the disarmament talks starting here Wednesday and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville was missing from the France was not even represented by an observer.

Jaycees Plan More Work On Recall Petitions

Officials of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce stated Saturday that work of obtaining signatures on petitions for a recall election on Pampa's mayor and four city commissioners will continue this week.

A. J. Carubbi, one of the leaders in the circulation of the petitions, said yesterday afternoon the Jaycees expected to have enough signatures for a recall election on Commissioner Lloyd Simpson in Ward 1 by tonight.

Carubbi stated that about 50 per cent of the signatures needed for Commissioner Neut Secrest in Ward 2 had been obtained and in excess of 90 per cent of the signatures necessary to set a recall election on Mayor E. C. Sidwell had been secured.

The Jaycees announced several days ago they had received more than enough signatures for Commissioners Leon Holmes and L. P. Fort in Wards 3 and 4.

The Jaycees filed their recall election petition affidavits on March 1 and have until March 30 to complete and return them to the city secretary.

"We expect to have enough signatures well in advance of the deadline," Carubbi said.

The Jaycees have indicated they will step out of the picture, once the recall election becomes a certainty.

The junior chamber also is urging eligible voters to take more in (See JAYCEES, Page 3)

Painter Is Jailed 8 More Years

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—David Alfaro Siqueiros, 65, world-famed painter jailed since August, 1960, was sentenced Saturday to eight more years in prison for crimes against the social order.

He was accused of Communist activities when he was jailed in 1960. Communists and left-wing groups waged a determined fight to free him but the 5th Penal Court Saturday sentenced him to the long prison term.

Writer Filomeno Mata was sentenced to the same term on the same charges.

THE WIND WAS HIGH—Mr. and Mrs. James Butcher, 2405 Redwood Ln., explain to A. G. Crosby, center, their next door neighbor, what happened to his house at 2401 Rosewood Ln. while he was absent Saturday afternoon. Scattered pieces of the roof from the Crosby residence can be seen on the ground. The high winds also smashed out windows in the Butcher home. The broken television antenna also is shown atop the Crosby dwelling. (Daily News Photo)

Pampans Plan To Take Part In Shamrock's Big St. Pat's Shindig

Pampa was making preparations during the weekend to send a delegation to Shamrock next Saturday for that city's 16th annual St. Patrick's Day celebration.

There was a possibility that a special bus will be chartered to carry the Pampa delegation and others are making plans for the trip in private cars.

A caravan of Shamrock boosters is due in Pampa this week, probably on Tuesday, to put on a street show depicting "the fun to be had in Shamrock on St. Patrick's Day" and to invite Pampans to be on hand for the Irish shenanigans.

E. O. Wedgeworth, Pampa chamber manager, said Saturday preparations also are under way here to welcome the Shamrock group.

Gov. Price Daniel will be an honor guest speaker at the Irish Day activity which gets underway Friday night with the annual St. Patrick's kick-off banquet in the Shamrock National Guard Armory.

Former U. S. Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma will be the principal speaker at the banquet.

A report from Shamrock yesterday said "from banquet time on — things will be jumping in the Irish City until late Saturday night."

General Chairman Carl Williams and Vice Chairman Jim Moore and their committee workers said Saturday night that final details for the big celebration are near the completion stage.

One of the outstanding features of the Irish Day observance will be the annual St. Patrick's parade which will move through Shamrock streets Saturday morning.

Other highlights of the colorful St. Patrick's Day celebration include the crowning of Miss Irish Rose of 1962, a boxing program Saturday afternoon, a two-day rodeo sponsored by the Shamrock Sheriff's posse, and three dances scheduled for Saturday night.

Bill Howe, of the St. Pat's publicity committee, said yesterday air pilots will begin flying in soon after dawn Saturday to join dignitaries at the Armory for the Flight and Dignitary breakfasts.

Events will begin happening early on the sound stage at Main and Second Sts. in Shamrock with the Shamrock Irish Band presenting a concert at 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

The old Ferris Bldg. on N. Main St. will start buzzing as Old Settlers begin registering at 9 a.m. This will be followed by awards (See PAMPANS, Page 3)

Powers' Flight Over Russia Is Reconstructed

EDITOR'S NOTE: This dispatch is a reconstruction of Francis Gary Powers' U2 flight over Russia and capture based on his testimony Tuesday at a Senate hearing and other information previously disclosed.

By JOHN G. WARNER
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Early one spring morning, an obscure young pilot was shaken out of a sound sleep at the U.S. air base in Peshawar, Pakistan.

His obscurity was soon to be shattered. His name was Francis Gary Powers, and he was an agent of the Central Intelligence Agency.

It was the morning of May 1, 1960, and Powers was awakened because the weather was clear over Russia.

He gulped down his breakfast and began the painstaking preparations. He was feeling fine, but a doctor checked him over.

While he donned his pressure suit and inhaled oxygen to accustom him to high flying, he went over maps with a navigator and discussed the weather with a fore-caster.

He talked with his detachment commander about what he should do in a number of unpleasant circumstances that might arise.

He was given a map. The map had marks on it. When he passed over a marked area, he was to throw a switch in his airplane.

He was given a hollow coin. Inside it was a needle. If he pricked himself with the needle, he would die.

About 5:30 a.m., he climbed into his frail, gull-winged U2 and climbed through a layer of clouds, so high that few other planes could reach him. The clouds below obscured the land.

When they cleared, he looked down and saw Russia. He was not to see friendly ground again for nearly two years.

Thus Powers described the beginning of his ill-fated reconnaissance flight to the Senate Armed Services subcommittee Tuesday. It was the first public account of the last of the U2 flights, which some authorities have called the greatest espionage feat in history. Near the Ural Sea, Powers said he saw jet condensation trails far below him twice, but "I don't think he ever saw me if he was looking for me."

The forecaster back at Peshawar had underestimated the winds he said, and he had to keep adjusting to stay on course. Then he had trouble with the automatic pilot, and after struggling with it for a while, decided to fly the plane by hand.

About 30 miles from Sverdlovsk, east of Moscow, Powers made a 90-degree turn to the left, and lined up to fly over the southwestern edge of the city.

He saw an airfield there that was not on his map. Then he started recording, as he had been instructed, things like engine instrument readings, exhaust gas temperature and the altitude.

"I was doing this at the time that I heard and felt this explosion.

"I can remember feeling, hearing and just sensing an explosion," Powers said. He said there was "just a slight acceleration of the aircraft," but the plane made no other immediate response.

"I immediately looked up from the instruments and everywhere I looked it was orange. I don't know whether the whole sky was orange, or just the reflection of an orange light in the canopy, but I had never seen anything like this before."

"I feel that the explosion was external to the aircraft and behind me, but I really don't know."

For a while, Powers thought everything was all right. Then the right wing started to droop. When he corrected it, the nose began falling.

"I applied back pressure to the control column and felt no resistance," he said and the plane kept going faster.

"I immediately assumed at the time that the tail section of the aircraft had come off, because it was a very violent maneuver happened in here . . . and I feel sure that both wings came off."

The plane went into a wild spin. The G force—the pressure of gravity—was so strong that Powers had to use both hands to pull his feet into the stirrups of the ejection seat.

Powers started to throw the switches that would, in 70 seconds, blast the U2 to pieces. "But I thought that I had better see if I can get out of here before using this."

His mind fixed on ejection, Powers struggled in the hurtling, screaming aircraft to try to get into position for it.

Then "I realized that maybe I could just open the canopy, loosen the seat belt and climb out."

The altimeter showed 34,000 feet and falling "very fast." He reached up and opened the canopy.

He pulled out his emergency belt so that after leaving the plane, he would have an oxygen supply, but he forgot to unfasten the oxygen hoses from the cockpit.

"I opened the seat belt, and I was immediately thrown forward halfway out of the aircraft."

Powers lay sprawled over the front of the plummeting plane, hooked on by the oxygen hose. He tried to get back into the plane to throw the destruction switches, but the G force was so great he could not pull himself back over the top of the windshield.

"I tried to reach around underneath the windshield. I knew where the switches were. And I couldn't get my hand back underneath."

Then his face plate froze over, blinding him, so he "decided just to try to get out."

"I gave several lunges and something snapped and I was floating free. It was almost immediately that the parachute opened . . ."

After floating for a while, "I remembered I had a map in my pocket." He looked at it and tore it into small pieces and scattered it in the air 10,000 feet above earth.

"I also thought of the coin with the poison pin in . . . It was my option whether to take it" on the flight. He had been given the needle to use only if he wished, in order to avoid torture.

He opened the coin, got the pin out and dropped it in his pocket, hoping it would go unnoticed.

He looked down and saw a car and "the closer I got the closer he got to me." When he was 20 feet up, two men got out of the car. He landed in a field 25 feet from a man on a tractor.

The man from the car helped him to his feet, took off his parachute, his helmet, his pistol and his knife. A crowd gathered, "a lot of children." The men tried to talk to him but he could not understand them.

One of them seemed to be asking if "there were two of us," and Powers told him no with sign language. Then the man pointed in the air and Powers saw "what I think was a parachute, but I knew that I had no other parachute on board the aircraft."

Powers never learned what this other parachute meant. The men took him to the car and they drove through a village, where Powers asked for and received a drink of water.

They reached another village where a policeman searched him, but did not find the needle. There was still no one who could speak English.

They took him to a building, stripped him to his underwear, and called in a young woman doctor to treat some scratches on his leg while police searched his clothes. They missed the needle again.

Finally Powers was taken into Sverdlovsk for another search, which turned up the needle. He tried to invent a story about being off course, but his captors produced packages they had found with "maps of the Soviet Union, Russian rubles and several other items that indicated the nature of the mission."

"It was then that I decided to follow the instructions that I had received earlier and tell them that I was a member of the CIA and the nature of the mission. . . it was quite obvious that they knew it anyway."

They put him into a car and drove to an airfield, where a jet passenger plane was waiting, apparently a regular passenger flight to Moscow.

There, he was taken to the building where he stayed until Sept. 9, after his conviction for espionage. He was offered American cigarettes and a sightseeing tour of Moscow, and then was given a number of physical examinations.

Then the interrogations began. They went on daily, 11 or 12 hours a day sometimes, until the latter part of the month, when Powers got a cold so severe he could hardly talk. They resumed again through June, but grew shorter, and sometimes his questioners would skip weekends.

He was never threatened, but "they didn't let me forget the crime was punishable by death."

At his trial, Powers said, he was properly quoted in saying that he had made a terrible mistake in flying over Russia and was sorry. But he told the senators that "what I meant by saying that and what I wanted them to think I meant was quite different. My main sorrow was that the mission failed, and I was sorry I was there."

Powers said he expected "much worse treatment than I received." He was unimpressed with the lawyer he was given for his trial. He never gave up hope that he would be returned to the United States before his 10-year sentence expired, but it was not until he stepped into West Berlin last month that he knew he had been exchanged for Russian spy Rudolf Abel.

Scientists Take Dim View Of Medications

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Two medical scientists take a highly critical view of the ever-increasing superabundance of pills and other medications said to lessen illness, improve health and prolong life.

Too many people, including physicians, are being kidded and are kidding themselves, said Drs. Mindel C. Shaps and Alvin P. Shapiro of the University of Pittsburgh in addressing doctors through a technical organ of the American Heart Association.

For instance, there is the national hubbalooboo over cholesterol blood levels, they continued. The scientific evidence that lowering these levels will slow artery-hardening is all circumstantial. Leading scientific authorities hedge their recommendations with many ifs and buts.

Yet anti-cholesterol drugs are multiplying wildly and additional choices for cholesterol lowering are unsaturated fats and low calorie liquid diets. The result is "we have become a 'fat conscious' people" and egg and milk producers suffer.

"The adoption of therapeutic measures and of medical theories on the basis of poorly documented evidence or no evidence at all is of course not a new phenomenon," they said. "The process is, however, out of keeping with our aspiration to make the practice of medicine a rational, scientific endeavor."

There has been a "drug explosion" over the past decade or so. After 15 years of waffling, "said use there still is medical argument over the effectiveness of drugs which keep the blood in a non-coagulant state.

"Hypotensive drugs boomed five years ago are discarded as never before and seemingly more potent ones are introduced with the same fan-fare," they continued.

"Through various media the physician is adjured to tranquilize and to reassure, or, alternatively, to exercise and motivate his cardiac patient, while particularly disturbing to him are the occasions when treatment of one symptom results in a new set of side effects requiring additional medications."

Furthermore, there has been no real improvement in mortality statistics for artery-heart diseases despite the multiplication of drugs for their treatment, they said.

In their view the medical profession should be much more critical of new drugs. As it is now these "new remedies are adopted rapidly and apparently widely at times in the face of poor or inadequate evidence. Many of these remedies, helpful or not, are not innocuous but produce unpleasant side effects, toxicity and sometimes even death."

"Individually or collectively, the members of the medical profession must accept their responsibility for therapy," they said. "In the short-term a great deal might be avoided if we took seriously a variant of the war-time admonition: 'Is this prescription really necessary?' In the long term, we need to take the initiative to ensure that the control of therapy will remain where it belongs—in the hands of scientific, objective and conscientious physicians."

Pampan Is Rising Young Author

By DORIS E. WILSON

Some days it does pay to get up and go through your daily routine. Some days, that is, like one this past week when we met for the first time and talked to an up-and-coming young author by the name of Stephen B. Oates, who has just published a book entitled "Confederate Cavalry West of the River."

Stephen became so well-acquainted with "Rip" Ford, a Texas Ranger Captain, that he has two more books coming out shortly: one "Biography of John Rip Ford" and "Rip Ford's Memoirs," which will be published by the University of Texas Press sometime next fall.

All books, including the already-published book, "Confederate Cavalry West of the River" will be available in local book stores or for rental from Lovett Memorial Library.

THE REAL ROCK

February 20, 1962, saw a new personality cross the horizon. In fact, this personality crossed the horizon as a personality and as a contributor in the advance of civilization primarily because he had crossed the horizon several times within the space of a few hours.

He was to this Nation in 1962 what Christopher Columbus should have been to Spain in 1492. Actually, he exemplifies Christopher Columbus, the Mayflower, the Pilgrims, Robert Fulton, Lewis and Clark, Sam Houston, the early pioneers of the West, the Wright brothers, Marconi, Lindbergh, and all the other pioneers rolled into one. He came to the Nation's Capital in a display of fanfare and ceremony. He visited with the President of the greatest Nation in the history of mankind and paraded from the White House to the Capitol to address a joint meeting of the Congress of the United States, a distinction usually reserved for the heads of state. It might be added that at that joint meeting of the Congress, the representatives of heads of state all over the world were crowded into the Chamber, along with the Members of the President's Cabinet, the Justices of the Supreme Court, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff of the Defense Department. The galleries were packed and jammed and standing room tickets were exhausted within minutes after it was announced that this pioneer of outer space would address the National Congress and that his fellow teammates, including two other pioneers of outer space, Alan Shepard and Gus Grissom, would be present.

All of this was happening to a Lieutenant Colonel in the Marine Corps of the United States. The eyes and ears of the world were trained on Washington to see what this new hero looked like, and to hear what he had to say. He was escorted into the Chamber by a committee appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tem of the Senate. The House members were Mr. Albert of Oklahoma, Mr. Boggs of Louisiana, Mr. Vinson of Georgia, Mr. Miller of California, Mr. Halleck of Indiana, Mr. Arends of Illinois, and Mr. Martin of Massachusetts. The Senate Members of the committee were Mr. Mansfield of Montana, Mr. Russell of Georgia, Mr. Kerr of Oklahoma, Mr. Fulbright of Arkansas, Mr. Dirksen of Illinois, Mr. Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Mr. Wiley of Wisconsin, and Mr. Kuchel of California. Needless to say, Col. Glenn's entry into the Chamber brought everyone to their feet in a spontaneous and tremendous blast of applause. It took some time to stop the applause. It was then that the Speaker introduced this newborn hero in these terms:

The SPEAKER: "Members of the Congress, it is a privilege, and I deem it a high honor to present to you a brave, a courageous American, a hero in World War II and in the Korean conflict, who recently in a most notable manner, added glory and prestige to our country, the first U. S. astronaut to have achieved orbital flight, Lt. Col. John H. Glenn, Jr., U. S. Marine Corps."

This brought forth the second round of applause, which lasted longer than the first.

Lt. Col. John H. Glenn, United States Marine Corps, then proceeded to address the joint meeting of Congress for a period of 15 minutes. His remarks, although confined to a very short time, contained references to his reactions in this history-making episode, as well as references to his reactions both before the flight and subsequent thereto. Perhaps the one that caused the greatest display of laughter in the Congress was his relation of his introduction to Caroline Kennedy and I quote for you his exact remarks taken from the Congressional Record:

COL. GLENN: "I think after all of our talk of space, this morning coming up from Florida on the plane with President Kennedy, we had the opportunity to meet Mrs. Kennedy and Caroline before we took off. I think Caroline really cut us down to size and put us back in the proper position. She looked up, upon being introduced, and said, 'Where's the monkey?'"

"And I did not get a banana pellet on the whole ride."

All of this added up to a banner day in the history of this great country. How it appeared to others, I would not undertake to say, but to me it brought into the clearest focus the America that all of us love and the real strength upon which it is built. Many philosophers, educators, politicians, etc., have long debated as to what should come first to claim man's allegiance. Some say that the order of allegiance should be religion, country, family, and fellowman. Others take the position that one's country should come first, then his religion, then his family. Others take the position that fellowman should take precedence.

Of course, the Communists take the position that the country or state, whichever you prefer, comes before the family, and incidentally before everything else, because they have no religion.

I subscribe to the philosophy that all of these attempts to separate and segregate these matters are nonsense. The fact is that man's family, his country, and his religion are and should be so intertwined, interwoven, and so melded together that they constitute one. I think this was so clearly established as the basic philosophy of this country when Lt. Col. John H. Glenn, in the early part of his remarks, proceeded to introduce his family.

He first introduced his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Glenn, Sr., and asked that they stand. Next, he introduced his wife's mother and father, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Castor, who stood. Next came his fine son and beautiful daughter, David and Lynn, who rose for applause.

Next came the remark that summed up in a few short words the basic strength of America, a statement which applies to all of us and with which no one could disagree, and an observation to which everyone would wholeheartedly subscribe.

When Col. Glenn said: "And the real rock in my family, my wife Annie,"

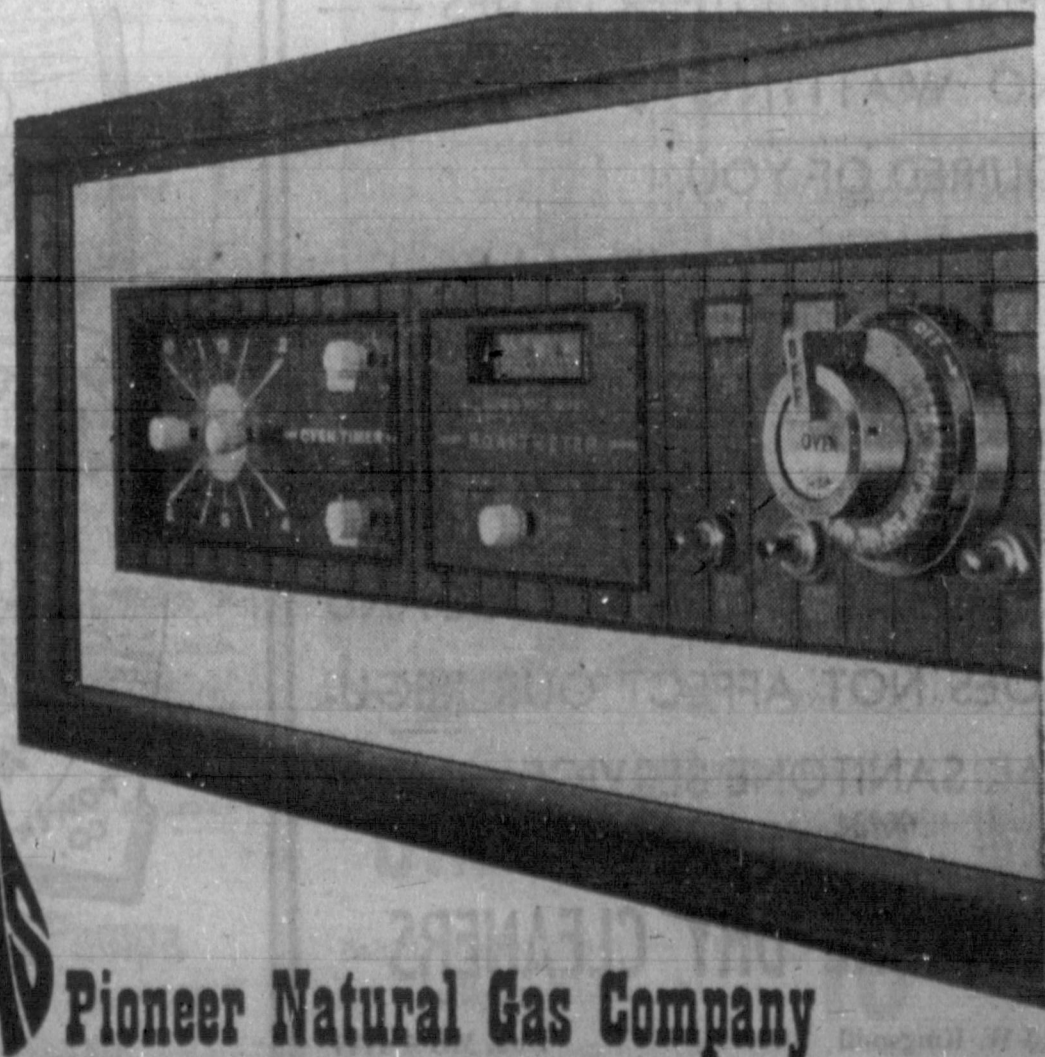

He attained heights that he never reached on his orbital flight of February 20, 1962.

Actor Takes Self Out Of Award Contest

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Actor George Scott's request that his name be withdrawn from the list of Academy Award nominees again puts the spotlight on a long established practice of Oscar campaigning.

Scott, who was nominated as best supporting actor for his work in "The Hustler," said he didn't want to compete in an advertising race for the coveted awards given each year by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Nominated with Scott were George Chakiris (West Side Story), Montgomery Clift (Judgment at Nuremberg), Peter Falk (Pocketful of Miracles), and Jackie Gleason (The Hustler).

For years, actors, producers, directors, writers and others eligible for Oscars have campaigned. As voting for nominations starts, they advertise in Hollywood's two major trade papers, Variety and The Reporter read by most eligible voters.

After nominations are announced contenders usually increase their advertising campaign pace. Advertising practices in 1961 were criticized severely by many academy members and the organization's board of directors took action. In a statement released before this year's voting began, the academy called for dignified electioneering.

In "a statement of policy," the academy's board of governors criticized "excessive and vulgar solicitation of votes."

"This became a serious embarrassment to the academy and our industry," the board said of the 1961 campaign.

"In order to prevent a recurrence, we are hopeful that all segments of our industry will join with us in a cooperative effort to eliminate those advertising practices which are irrelevant to the honest evaluation of artistic and technical accomplishments and violate the principles under which the academy was established."

Campaigning this year seems to be less intense than in 1961, an indication that filmfolk agreed with the academy board's policy statement.

Solar prominences were photographed during Feb. 22, 1962 total eclipse. They may last several hours or more, reach tremendous heights. White circle at right represents size of earth.

Orbiting Solar Observatory positions itself by firing small jets, begins measuring sun's ultraviolet and X-ray radiations.

The sun in white or natural light is shown at A; in hydrogen light at B; in calcium light at C. Closeup of sunspot field is at D. Satellites may reveal data unobtainable from the ground.

NASA Is Making An Assault On The Sun

While man has learned much about his star, the sun, with telescopes and other instruments, he is limited (as well as protected) by the heavy blanket of atmosphere through which he must look. That is why the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has launched a 440-pound, 37-inch-high orbiting Solar Observatory (OSO). Costing $7 million, the satellite is carrying 13 different experiments to study the sun. One result hoped for is the eventual ability to predict solar flares, eruptions on the sun which block out global communications and could prevent manned flight to the moon. The first OSO is riding above the earth approximately 300 miles. Later versions will be sent into solar orbit. Manslaughter Trial Reminiscent Of Girl's 'Mercy Killing' Case

By H. D. QUIGG
United Press International

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI)—This is the story of a 16-year-old boy who probably will go to trial for defending his home against a stranger who had shot his father dead and critically wounded his mother.

The charge against him is manslaughter. He disarmed the stranger, beat him with the help of his older brother — and then emptied the stranger's own revolver into him, police said. This final act came just after the boy's brother had shouted: "Dad is dead."

John K. Chernuchkin, who had turned 16 only a month before the tragedy, is scheduled for a "probable cause" hearing in Circuit Court next week, and most knowledgeable sources expected he would be bound over to Superior Court and tried by a jury in Bridgeport, Conn.

Some Stamfordites today were comparing the case in tragic impact with that of Carol Paight, the slim, golden-haired, 21-year-old girl who was tried 12 years ago in the "mercy killing" of her cancer-doomed father, a Stamford police sergeant. She admitted she shot him with his own revolver. A Bridgeport jury acquitted her of murder.

The Chernuchkin family (it's pronounced "cher-nook-in") lived in a two-story frame house in a somewhat run-down section of town. The father, Edward, 41, was a factory worker. The mother, Veronica, 40, was caring for—besides John and the oldest brother, Edward Jr., 18—the family's four small children, ranging from 4 to 11 years.

The birthday party for the youngest, Gail, 4, was the scene into which tragedy walked last Feb. 16 in the form of Albert Shipley, 65, who came looking for Mrs. Alice Hill, 54, a guest at the party.

From police investigations and the statement of John and others, Stamford chief of detectives Ignatius Montagnino reconstructed the events:

Shipley had been friendly with Mrs. Hill but she apparently did not want to continue so. He was at her apartment that afternoon, but she walked out on him. He told her daughter he knew where she had gone. He left and picked up a .38 revolver at a bank where he had a job as a fill-in guard one day a week.

At the party, besides Mrs. Hill, were another woman guest and seven or eight children. One of the Chernuchkins' little girls, who apparently had met Shipley at Mrs. Hill's home, suddenly announced: "Mr. Shipley is here." He had entered the home without knocking. Mrs. Hill ducked into the bathroom, unseen by him.

Chernuchkin was on the phone; he hung up and asked the intruder to leave. There was "some loud conversation" and Shipley pulled the gun and fired one shot. Chernuchkin dropped. The autopsy report later said he died of a gunshot wound of the heart.

Almost immediately there was another shot. Mrs. Chernuchkin, at the nearby kitchen door, fell. The bullet went through her abdomen. The children were screaming and the other women ran out. The two older boys had been upstairs and came running down. John, a chunky 200-pounder, considerably in the lead. Shipley had the gun pointed at him.

John told Shipley to take it easy, and the latter looked toward the kitchen. John hit his right arm, knocking the gun to the floor, and began pummeling him. Edward Jr. joined in and they knocked him down. Shipley was on his left side, and John held him down with one knee, picked up the revolver by the barrel and hit him on the head with the butt two or three times.

Edward Jr. then called out that the father was dead. John, the detective said, pumped the four remaining shots in Shipley, who died within the hour at the hospital. The medical examiner's autopsy report said he died of gunshot wounds of the abdomen and chest.

Separate calls by both John and a neighbor brought the police to the scene. Mrs. Chernuchkin was taken to Stamford Hospital, where she was on the critical list for some time. She is expected to recover.

A total sentence of 20 years is possible in Connecticut on conviction of manslaughter. Legal points that might be opened in this case included: Was the Shipley killing necessary? Was Shipley subdued by the beating? Was there any time lag between the struggle and the shooting?

The Chernuchkin family was reported to have been a close-knit one and John to have had a great fondness for his father. The police said Shipley never had been in the Chernuchkin house before, although the father and mother may have known of him.

John, who left school after the ninth grade and who has not been employed, is free on $15,000 bond put up by an aunt.

Representative Vinson Invents The 'Do-It-Yourself Press Conference'

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Carl Vinson of Georgia, senior member of the U. S. House of Representatives, has just added another achievement to his long and distinguished record.

The squire of Milledgeville will henceforth be remembered (by me, at least) as the man who invented the do-it-yourself news conference.

Vinson introduced this remarkable journalistic innovation Tuesday to a platoon of reporters assembled in the House Armed Services Committee's hearing room.

As chairman of the committee, he had summoned us there to release a CIA report on U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers. This was a couple of hours before Powers himself appeared before the Senate Armed Services Committee, so there was a lot of interest in the matters.

We newsmen were loaded with questions to fire at Vinson, only he disarmed us before we even got started. When Frank Eleazer of United Press International attempted to open the interrogation, "Uncle Carl" interrupted.

"Now, wait a minute, Frank," he said. "I've anticipated all of the reasonable questions that might be asked and I've got the answers right here."

"My first question to myself is: 'How was the U2 brought down?' The answer is that the CIA and other experts believe it was damaged by a surface-to-air missile."

Someone else at this point attempted to horn in on the Vinson-to-Vinson conversation, but he was stopped in mid-sentence.

"I have anticipated your next question," Vinson assured us. "Was it flying at 85,000 feet or at a lower level? The answer to that question is that it was damaged at the higher altitude."

Peering rather puckishly over his spectacles, the chairman continued to quiz himself until he had extracted from himself all the facts that he considered pertinent.

His final question was: "Were there any additional facts that you haven't given us that were classified?"

"Yes," he replied, "there were additional facts but they were all consistent with the facts as given in the published summary."

Since Vinson did not try to pin himself down on that point, the news conference ended. The rest of us figured that if he couldn't persuade himself to say more, there was no need in our trying. I have only one complaint about the way he handled it. He neglected to take any notes on what he said to himself. Otherwise, he could have written our stories for us.

MUSICAL CART

TORONTO (UPI) — Robert A. Whitney told the 1962 packaging conference here of a soon-to-be introduced shopping cart that plays music and advertisements to customers using it.

"It is in the parking lot that the cart really comes into its own," Whitney said explaining about the fog horn that sounds if anyone tries to put the cart into a car to take home.

Word Origin

The term "orthopedics" was synthesized from the Greek "ortho" (meaning "straight") and "pala" (meaning "child") and originally was concerned with preventing deformities in children.

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel's national airline El Al today grounded all its planes because the pilots refused to fly more than eight hours per trip.

A pilots' committee said flying more than that endangered the safety of the planes.

The airline management said the refusal constituted a strike. It recalled all its pilots from overseas and started making arrangements for other lines to handle its bookings.

Unlikely Romance

Carol Burnett Has Big Crush On Video's Handsome 'Dr. Kildare'

By RICK DU BROW UPI Hollywood Writer HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The most unlikely romantic development of the year is that Carol Burnett, of the Garry Moore TV show, has a wild crush on video's "Dr. Kildare," Richard Chamberlain.

It started with Miss Burnett 3,000 miles away in New York, merely one of the many young maidens whose hearts have been set a-flutter by the handsome actor.

There were several drawbacks to a romance. For one thing, they had never met, and Chamberlain had no idea of the palpitations he was causing the comedienne-singer. For another thing, they work for rival TV networks — she for CBS, he for NBC.

These things meant nothing to Miss Burnett, 27. She's that kind of a girl. So when she came here not long ago to star in a segment of "Twilight Zone," she decided to act on her romantic inclinations.

Her opportunity came when she found that "Twilight Zone" and "Dr. Kildare" were being shot at the same studio, MGM.

European-born, they wear Al-pine hats, scamper around smiling cutely, talking sprightly—which is wise in view of the script.

I wonder how underpaid school teachers feel watching such a show, knowing how much is earned by the creators of such trips.

I'm afraid we're stuck with this video insult for 13 weeks.

CBS-TV also presents, Thursday night "Barry Goldwater—The View From The Right," a half-hour program almost entirely devoted to an interview with the Arizona Republican senator.

The show, which appeared on the "CBS Reports" series, was actually more of a debate between Goldwater and reporter Eric Sevareid, who said at the outset — with the senator's approval — that he would take a hostile position to provoke discussion.

World's finest mules can be found in Spain and the United States, with Portugal and Italy also priding themselves on fine specimens.

Q—Miss Burnett, do you have any plans about leaving the Garry Moore show?

A—Well, I'd adore doing a Broadway show, or something with Dick Chamberlain.

Q—Miss Burnett, how would you describe your singing voice?

A—Loud.

Q—And your talking voice?

A—Rather grating.

Q—Have you ever had any pin-up pictures?

A—Yeah. . . of Dick Chamberlain.

Q—That's not what I mean, A—it's what I mean.

At this point, Miss Burnett explained that a young man who was her dining partner had attended acting classes with her years ago at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Nobody in the class wanted me as a partner," she said.

Why?

"I was lousy."

And now?

"Well, see," she said.

Miss Burnett won the "Twilight Zone" assignment — which will be aired in several months—when she told the show's creator, Rod Serling, about some funny experiences she had as a 15-year-old movie usherette in Los Angeles. That's what the program is based on.

part of her fame stemmed from her rendition on the Jack Paar show of a comedy song entitled, "I Made A Fool of Myself Over John Foster Dulles." It so amused the late secretary of state that he requested a personal recording of it.

The comedienne explained that she and Julie Andrews, of "My Fair Lady" fame, will put on a black-tie TV show at Carnegie Hall March 5, "and it will be shown after that."

Suddenly she caught a glimpse of Chamberlain, gasped "Ohhhh," and fell back in her chair, mouth hang-dog, arms akimbo.

"Calling Dr. Kildare," said someone.

TV Comedy, 'Oh, Those Bells' Is Geared For Pre-Natal Mentality

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jerry Lewis frankly admits his movies are aimed at 8-year-olds. By this standard, "Oh, Those Bells," a so-called comedy which made its television debut Thursday night starring the Wierse Brothers, is geared for the pre-natal mentality.

"Oh, Those Bells," which tells of the brothers' slapstick exploits as employees of a Hollywood theatrical property shop, replaced "The New Bob Cummings Show" on CBS. And by comparison, the Cummings series looks like "Gone With The Wind."

In case you're wondering, the title came from the fact that the boys are named Bell in the series. Get it?

Other than that, the show is inexplicable. Everything about it represents the primitive, amateurish approach that was supposed to have gone out with early-day television.

There is the loud, phony audience laugh-track which finds it screamingly funny that a policeman turns over on a motorcycle; that a harrack lowers from the ceiling, and that the Wierse mark up someone's shirt with finger-print ink.

Anything, of course, can be funny. But it seemed no one had any idea what comedy or timing was all about.

It's unfortunate the Wierse got involved with this project because they have a pretty good international reputation as a wacky comedy team.

Amarillo LT Will Present 'Thunder Rock'

"Thunder Rock," the dramatization of one man's search for hope, was first produced in 1939, at the Mansfield Theatre in New York, staged by Elia Kazan and heightened in its dramatic impact by the real threat of a world war.

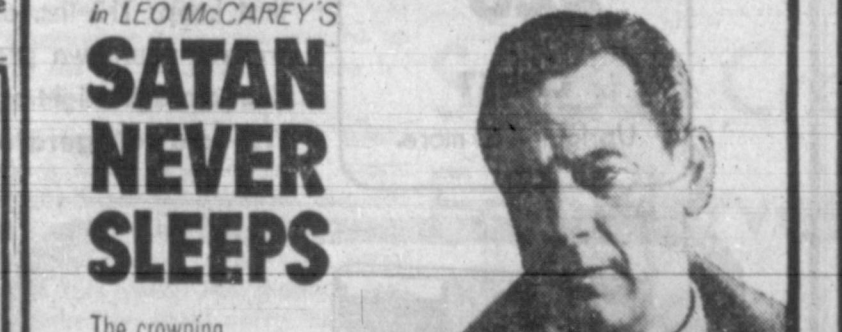

Robert Ardrey's play, the only drama of Amarillo Little Theatre's 1961-62 season, will be presented March 21 through March 24 — as men still search for hope in the shadow of possible disaster, Thunder Rock is a speck of island in Lake Michigan where, in the last summer before World War II, a cynical man lives alone, keeping the lighthouse. He lives alone except for the ghosts of passengers who drowned in a shipwreck just beyond the Rock almost a century before.

They come as he bids them when he rejects his own world and searches for the simple, old one whose problems could be solved. His ghosts come — and refuse to leave until he learns the lesson that one may know only by looking at the world through the viewing - glass of time.

Dr. Marvin Hirsh, the leading role of David Charleston, a talented writer who loses faith in mankind.

California Representative Is Promoting 'Thoroughly Lost Cause'

The Lighter Side
By DICK WEST
Unified Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — As one who has a strong affinity for lost causes, I would like to pay my respects to Rep. Craig Hosmer. This California Republican is the promoter of a cause that is about as thoroughly lost as any I have run across since Miles Standish sent John Alden to see Priscilla.

Hosmer is the advocate of a proposal to have the House of Representatives reduce the size of its membership by about 54.02 percent. As far as I know, he is the lone advocate. Legislation to limit the House to 200 members was suggested by Hosmer Thursday in a statement that was perfectly timed to receive maximum inattention. It came forth as the House was preparing to vote on a bill to raise its permanent membership from 435 to 438.

"The history of legislation on the size of the House shows consideration has been given primarily to the issue of enlarging it," Hosmer noted with British-like understatement. If my count is correct, the ratio of increases to decreases since 1789 is exactly 11 to 1. Enactment of the 438-member measure would have made it 12 to 1. Hosmer also noted that "the record is relatively barren of sober discussion and evaluation as to what, in reality, should be the proper size of the United States House of Representatives under present day conditions." The reason for that is readily apparent. Asking how big the House should be is a bit like asking "how high is up?" At any rate, Hosmer feels there should be further hearings on the question and he proposed 200 as the starting point. He said that figure was "probably the smallest size anyone would wish to consider."

My guess is that it is about 235 smaller than anyone would wish to consider. I listened to most of the debate on the enlargement bill Thursday and it seemed devoid of any sentiment for turning in the opposite direction. In conclusion, Hosmer said that if a hearing showed the size of the House should be reduced, he felt certain "no member would permit consideration of his own political fortunes to influence his support of beneficial legislation." I don't know whether he had his tongue in his cheek when he wrote that. However, I have never noticed any eagerness among congressmen to contribute to their own unemployment.

Yankees Will Be Stronger Again

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Here's bad news for the nine other managers in the American League—Ralph Houk says his New York Yankees will be stronger this year than they were last.

He admits at the same time, however, that some of those other nine clubs are going to be stronger, too.

How does he figure the team which won the American League pennant by eight games in 1961 and then went on to win the World Series, 4 games to 1, from the Cincinnati Reds, to be more formidable with Tony Kubek, the All-Star shortstop, in the Army?

"Well, we will have a stronger bench and our pitching will be stronger, also," he said. "Sure, I have problems. What manager hasn't? I'd be telling a lie if I told you I wasn't concerned about replacing Kubek."

"I'd be telling a lie, too, if I didn't tell you that we are going to be better this year than we were last. I realize we are going to have more to beat. But I predicted last year we would win. I'm predicting the same thing for this year."

In the next breath, he allowed that the Yankees could be beaten, like managers Bob Schefling of the Detroit Tigers and Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox, among others, claim.

Houk emphasized that he was not "overly optimistic."

"I wasn't last year either," he said, "but I thought we had the best club in the league. It turned out we did, I think the same thing now, but I might be wrong. "I decided last summer I was going to be a bit more careful in my predictions because of what those Tigers did."

He explained he had not written any clubs off as contenders, however, that some of those other above the Tigers.

"I knew they had a fine outfield with Rocky Colavito, Bill Bruton and Al Kaline. No one had to tell me that in Frank Lary, Don Mossi and Jim Bunning they didn't have front line pitching."

"But I didn't know, and I doubt if a lot of others weren't in the same boat, that they were going to come up with a second baseman (Jake Wood) who batted in 69 runs and a third baseman (Steve Boros) who knocked in 62. That's better than my boys did (Bobby Richardson and Cletis Boyer)."

"But they didn't catch us last year. I don't think they are going to catch us this year, either."

As to that shortstop worry, "I'm going with the two kids. I can't tell you they are going to get the job done, but I will tell you this—from what I have seen of them so far I don't have any reason to believe they can't do the job."

The kids are Tom Tresh, 22, and Phil Linz, 21. They were the All-Star shortstops in the minor leagues they played in last year.

Tech, Creighton In Favorites Cage Role

DALLAS (UPI) — Southwest Conference co-champion Texas Tech and three top independents square off in first-round NCAA basketball playoff action at Southern Methodist Coliseum Monday night with Tech and Creighton favored to advance to the regional round.

Tech, which ran its season record to 18-6 by defeating SMU Friday night in Fort Worth, 71-67, for the Southwest Conference berth in the playoffs, will be favored to hurdle the Air Force Academy Falcons in the nightcap, scheduled at 9:30 p.m.

And Creighton's Bluejays were expected to be slight favorites over a Memphis State team crippled by the loss of senior captain Frank Snyder, who will be ineligible for NCAA competition because this is his fourth varsity season. This game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Creighton, boasting the nation's No. 1 rebounder in Paul Silas, sports the best season record of the four contenders with 19 victories against four losses. Silas has averaged 25.8 rebounds per game and his 22.6-point per game is also the top individual mark.

Memphis State's Hunter Beckman has averaged about 22 points while the Tennessee entry built a 15-4 record. The Academy Fal-

Congratulations On Fiftieth Anniversary

Girl Scouts Of U. S. A.

ALMOST 3½ MILLION members of Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. will celebrate their 50th anniversary on Monday, March 12.

JULIETTE LOW organized the first troop of 12 girls on March 12, 1912, in Savannah, Ga. She brought from England the principles of Scouting as set forth by Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Scouting movement and adapted them to the needs of girls in the United States.

MRS. LOW was in her fifties when she brought Scouting to the girls of the United States. Instead of enjoying a life of leisure in her Savannah home, she worked tirelessly to organize a program which has provided almost 18½ million Girl Scouts with years of purposeful, happy activity, new found interests and friends. Now the Girl Scout program is carried on in every state of the Union, in its possessions and 49 other countries where American families live.

SPIRITUAL VALUES — Three principles embodied in the Girl Scout Promise are spiritual values, citizenship and service to others. Scouts are encouraged to be active in the church of their choice. Reading Bible stories to younger brothers and sisters is putting spiritual values into practice as Ann Harvey, standing and Sterri Myers, seated in chair, are doing as they select Bible stories to read to their sisters, seated left to right, Dawn Myers, Jan and Jean Harvey.

OUT-OF-DOORS — "Youth Serves Youth" is one of the projects encouraged by the national organization as part of the golden anniversary year-long observance. The Senior Planning Board of Quivira Council share their knowledge and skills with younger girls as the council's "Youth Serves Youth" project. Senior Scouts Nora Ruth Wells, standing and Chris Grayson, are typical of the Senior Scouts taking part in this project by assisting Donna Carpenter, seated, Linda Lambright and Mary Barker, standing left to right, the care and correct use of a knife and how to make a "sit upon."

Girl Scout Promise

"On my honor, I will try: To do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times, to obey the Girl Scout Laws" which are "to be trustworthy, loyal, useful, friendly, courteous, kind to animals, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, and clean in thought, word and deed." The Girl Scout's motto is "Be Prepared."

MARCH NUPTIALS

Miss LaVonna Andrus

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss LaVonna Andrus to Gary Dalton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Dalton, 1011 Christine, is being announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Andrus, 1828 N. Wells. The wedding is planned for March 25 in the First Baptist Church.

Girl Scouts Of U.S.A.

THE WELL-DRESSED Girl Scout of 1912 proudly wore a homemade uniform of dark blue duck with a light blue yard-square sateen neckerchief. Times dictate the fashions, and such, during the World War 1 years, the Scouts donned khaki. The skirt had kick pleats for the leaders who, for a time, also wore "an uncompromising shirt-waist with a torturing collar and cravat."
IN 1927, khaki gave way to green. Today's trim green uniforms are a far cry from those of Scouting's early days. There are different uniforms, modeled on up-to-date feminine fashions, for each age group of girls and for leaders.
THE CHANGE in Girl Scout headgear has kept pace with the changes in uniforms. They have run the gamut from World War 1 campaign-like hats through a pork pie model by the noted designer, Mainbocher, and a stylish beret designed by the famous milliner, Sally Victor.
THE FIRST reported gathering of Girl Scouts in Pampa was in 1931, with Mrs. John Bradley and Katherine Wilkerson as leaders and Mrs. C. P. Hunkapillar as sponsor. About 50 girls were organized into a lone troop which met in the basement of the First Methodist Church and later, in Sam Houston School.
TODAY, GIRL SCOUTING in Pampa is part of the 10-county Quivira Council. There are 49 troops in Pampa, with a total membership of 681 girls and 175 adults.
GIRL SCOUTING is open to all girls seven through 17 years of age, regardless of race, creed or nationality. They are united by the Girl Scout Promise in which each girl pledges: "On my honor, I will try: To do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times, to obey the Girl Scout Laws."
THE GIRL SCOUT Laws require members to be trustworthy, loyal, useful, friendly, courteous, kind to animals, obedient, cheerful, thrifty and clean in thought, word and deed. The Girl Scouts' motto is "Be Prepared."
THERE IS a single overall program of activities graded according to three age levels: Brownies, seven through nine years; Intermediate Scouts, 10 through 13 years; Senior Scouts, 14 through 17 years.
THE GIRL SCOUT PROGRAM includes activities in 11 fields: arts and crafts, literature and dramatics, music and dancing, community life, international friendship, nature, out-of-doors, sports and games, agriculture, health and safety, and homemaking.

On the last day, each teacher was presented with an apple pie baked by the homeroom mother. Each pie - box was topped with a large red paper apple and a verse saying: "A" is for apple all shiny and red, but many all year by the children you are fed; we hope its a pleasure to receive an apple pie instead."

Throughout the week, parents and friends visited the classrooms and had luncheon in the cafeteria with the school children.

On Wednesday morning, the entire study body presented a program entitled "Horace Mann In Action." The school was host for a luncheon meeting of the Lions' Club on Thursday at which time the program was presented again.

Dear Abby

By Abigail
Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband keeps after me to shorten my skirt. I am 50 years old and have been told all my life what fine-looking legs I have, but I see no reason to advertise the fact to every stranger who has eyes. Can you tell me (disregarding the ridiculous new trend in fashion) approximately how short a skirt should be?

NICE LEGS

DEAR NICE: A skirt should be short enough to show that you're a woman, and long enough to show that you're a lady.

DEAR ABBY: I am a night person. For twelve years I have played in bands from 8 p.m. until 2 a.m. and I never got to sleep until 5 or 6 in the morning. Recently, I married a man who works from 7 a.m. until 3 p.m. and he expects me to go to sleep when he does at 10 p.m. I just can't do it, Abby. I lie as wide awake as an owl all night. I don't want to start taking sleeping pills, but I wish I could figure out some way to get on his schedule.

NIGHT PERSON

DEAR NIGHT: Go to bed when he does. No matter what time you fall asleep, get up with him, and stay awake until he goes to sleep again. After a few days of this, you'll be ready to fall asleep at 10 p.m.

DEAR ABBY: I now enjoy the status of "wife" but at one time I was "the other woman." No, the man who was going to divorce his wife and marry me never married me. So I finally got wise and gave him the air, and am now respectfully married to an honest man.

I have a suggestion. Why don't all the "other women" get together and form a club? If they got together and compared notes, they'd discover that one story is exactly like the next. Married men tell their girl friends stories about how cold their wives are. I caught on to this when another girl where I worked told me she was "the other woman." The stuff her lover told her was so much like what mine told me it could have been the same man. This should help convince "other women" that their sweethearts are full of baloney.

EX-OTHER WOMAN

Still worrying about the same old problem? Write to Abby for a personal reply. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Miss Lester, David Henry Young Repeat Nuptial Vows In Home Rites

Miss Patricia Ann Lester became the bride of David Henry Young with wedding vows exchanged at seven o'clock in the brides-home in Canadian. The Rev. Don Murray of the Assembly of God Church directed the double-ring service.

Miss Lester is the daughter of Mrs. Fred Andrews and the late R. O. Lester and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Lester of Pampa. Mr. Young is the son of Mrs. Henry Young and the late Mr. Young.

Setting for the wedding was an archway draped with white satin and flanked by standing candelabra with red tapers and by baskets of white mums and red carnations.

kets of white mums and red carnations.

KEES-DINNSEN VOWS

Peg O' Pampa

AT A BRIDGE SESSION the other evening, while waiting for another foursome to finish a hand, a group of gals got to talking about "foolish moments" . . . those tiny lapses of time in which some unthinking act is performed that has no serious repercussion . . . other than when they are over they leave the "doer" feeling a might foolish . . . like, for instance, pulling up to a stop sign, and, while lost in thought, wait for the light to change . . . holding out your hand for change, when none is due . . . having an introduction acknowledged when you've met the lady three times already . . . arriving at the check-in counter with someone else's grocery cart . . . putting the dish towel in the ice-box and the mayonnaise under the sink . . . answering a question that was directed to a person behind you . . . entering a car that is exactly like yours only to find your key won't work in the ignition . . . dropping by to pick up a friend for a party and discovering you have dressed for nothing, the party is the next night! . . . it seems that a few moments of "feeling foolish" is the lot in everyone's life . . . the time to start worrying, all the gals agreed, is when the number extends beyond a few . . . then you become a candidate for the psychiatrist's chambers . . . or need a long vacation . . . come to think of it, a vacation sounds more sensible to us foolish folk.

How little do they see what really is, who frame their hasty judgement upon that which seems.
— Robert Souther.

SPEAKING OF VACATIONS . . . and not of foolishness Catherine Hughey has just returned from a glorious 22-day vacation into sun-drenched, flower-filled Mexico City and Acapulco . . . her days were highlighted with the performances of native dancers in colorful costumes . . . sight-seeing in that beautiful old city located 6,000 miles above the sea . . . dinner by candlelight while being serenaded by violinists . . . trips by gondola to visit the Sunken Gardens . . . one evening, she attended a party in a Supper Club, whose glass walls permitted a sweeping panoramic view of the ocean . . . high cliffs formed the shoreline and at intervals, natives would dive from the high cliffs 150 feet into the ocean below for the entertainment of the supper guests . . . on her way home, Catherine stopped by for a visit with her brother, her son and family and a nephew in San Antonio . . . hear that Norman and Grace Henry got away recently for a weekend of skiing . . . and that Catherine and Calvin Jones paid Las Vegas a visit last weekend, too . . . Laura Imel and Van Vanderberg were in Dallas last week.

It's when you're safe at home that you wish you were having adventure. When you're having an adventure you wish you were safe at home.
— Thornton Wilder.

NOT EVERYONE GOES AWAY for fun . . . some stay home and have guests . . . Dave and Betty Finkelstein had their two teaching daughters home last weekend . . . Gail, who is a teacher in a Houston School and Rhona, who is an instructor in Denver, Colorado . . . another daughter, pretty Glenda, who is a student at the University of Texas couldn't get away . . . also visiting in the Finkelstein home were Gail's fiance, Stanley Brown of Denver, who is an architect and his parents, the Hyman Browns, also of Denver . . . imagine June wedding plans comprised most of the conversation during the weekend visit . . . another lively, happy spot was the home of the Rev. and Mrs. P. H. Gates on North Starkweather . . . who had two grandsons and three great-grandsons in their home last weekend . . . one grandson Charles W. and his wife, Mary with the Gates' great-grandsons Ronnie and Morris and a new addition, Russell . . . all of Lubbock and the other grandson, Mark, who is a student at Texas Tech . . . they divided their visit, too, with their uncles and families, the Drs. Joe and Phil Gates . . . also in town visiting friends last weekend were former Pampans, Max and Dorothy Bolick, who moved away from Pampa last summer to make Great Bend, Kan. their home.

PARTY OF THE WEEK . . . was the one given last Saturday morning by Alleith Curry, Sandy Williams, Claudine Vail and Dorothy Neslage . . . a host of friends almost filled it . . . well, they did fill the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn for a delightful hour with Miss Helen Corbett of Dallas, who is restaurant director for Neiman-Marcus . . . with her own special realm in the Zodiac Room . . . what heavenly concoctions she described and illustrated with colored film . . . and the calories fairly oozed off the screen . . . we particularly enjoyed through the fantasy of our imagination, the ability to prepare and eat without a care in the world some of the dishes she described . . . Helen seems to slant her recipes directly for the sole benefit of men and children . . . but after all, they are our main concern, aren't they? . . . luckily, there were no acute hunger pangs during the morning for the hostesses had foreseen that possibility and provided a beautiful table that satisfied the eyes as well as the inner woman . . . cumquats stuffed with ham salad . . . pecan halves with a cream filling . . . and frosted rolls with coffee was served from the most dramatic table . . . each four corners of the gray-striped, cloth-covered table held a white floral covered pineapple studded with cocoa-nut covered pineapple chunks . . . and the center of the table held a tall, white pedestal urn with a towering arrangement of white stock, green grape clusters, bright yellow lemons arranged with lemon leaves . . . the base of the urn was arranged with a repetition of green grapes and yellow lemons . . . Helen Corbett, by the way, is a member of the Altrusa Club of Dallas, we have been told . . . to help dispense hospitality during the party, the hostesses were assisted by Johnny Donaldson, Mary Johnson, Marae Brauchle, Eunice Pierson, Jean Braly, Mary Gunter, Nell Kelley, Minerva Hobart, Frances Walls, and Jane Rose . . . from the looks of the gay-goings-on at the Tee Off Coffee given Thursday morning in the Pampa Country Club, the Women's Golf Association is going to have a spring and summer filled with pleasant activity . . . think they're planning a luncheon for next Thursday . . . from then on until the leaves begin to fall next autumn there will be something interesting on the club links every Thursday, when the femme golfers take over the greens . . . you don't have to be a member of the Country Club to become a member, we are told . . . all you have to do is know the difference between a golf club and a broom . . . even we could qualify!

IT WAS THE POSTMAN . . . and not one of the "Little Folk" who delivered pretty, shamrock-bordered invitations for Billie Dawn and Vernon Watkins . . . Clayton and Ruby Husted . . . Jack and Phyllis Curtis . . . inviting friends to a St. Patrick's Dance next Friday evening in the Coronado Inn . . . imagine there will be a lot of Irishmen and their lassies out for that one . . . hope we can find a green bow tie for our Irishman . . . to go back a few paragraphs when we were speaking of "feeling foolish" . . . after gathering and writing all of these notes, we certainly will feel foolish if no one reads this . . . hope you do, Peg.

On Monday morning, each room in Baker School extended an invitation to parents and interested persons to visit the classrooms. Outstanding projects prepared throughout the year were on display in the rooms; one room entertained with a special Parents' Tea with children as hosts. The school cafeteria prepared for extra visitors all week and many parents came to spend the day with their child and left with a new insight into the routine and daily work of the student.

On Thursday afternoon, Miss Sybil Turner's fifth grade class presented a play to the entire school assembly and guests entitled "The Stove Pipe Hat."

FOOTSAVING EDUCATION

By FRANK D. SMITH
Are shoes that are outgrown by one child safe for another?
Yes and No. The accepted reason for not using handed-down shoes is that the foot defects of the first child can be inflicted on the second. This is true.
But if the first user had normal feet, isn't his good wear-pattern just as likely to encourage good foot function? It is.
When the budget is hurting it is a lot safer to use brother's cast-offs than to cramp feet in his own outgrown shoes.

Nine Seek Post In McLean

McLEAN (Spl) - Voters of McLean Independent School district have a long list of aspirants for three places on the board of Education.

Election will be April 7 in the City Hall.

Those entering the contest are: Ernest Watson, Bob Willoughby, Jim Hathaway, Arthur Dwyer, Jack Lisman, Ted Simmons, Faris Hess, Guy Beasley and Orphus O. Tate. Of the three whose terms are expiring only Faris J. Hess is seeking re-election.

While the board of Education election has drawn a long list of candidates, the election for City Councilmen is very "Ho, Hum." Three councilmen are to be elected from a slate of three candidates. Terms of M. M. Burroughs, Creed Lamb, and Roy Barker expire, but only two incumbents have announced for re-election, Lamb and Burroughs. Jack Shelton has filed for the third spot. This election will also be held in the City Hall and the date is April 3.

Five Lefors Girls Enter Vocal Contest

Lefors (Spl) - Five girls from Lefors Choir, under the direction of Bill McGowan, were entered in the vocal contests Saturday in Amarillo.

Amy Earhart and Phyllis both received the highest rating, and received gold medals and a certificate.

Miss Shires Cable received a two rating; and Mary Collins and Donna Graham received three ratings.

Mr. and Mrs. McGowan and Clara Snowden, Mrs. McGowan's sister of Spearman, accompanied the girls to the contests.

SCENE OF DEVELOPMENT CAMPAIGN IMPROVEMENT — Shown in the photograph is the Camp Director's Cabin at Camp Kiowa. This building has been used for several years as permanent summer residence for the Camp Director. As a result of the Development Campaign, the building will receive a complete face lifting inside and out. The condition of the building points up the great need for improvements at the camp. This building is just one of the many projects included in the campaign.

Scout Development Campaign In Final Stages; $77,627 Is Raised

The Boy Scout Development Campaign in the Adobe Walls Council has now raised a total of $77,627 in cash and pledges, according to E. E. Shelhamer, campaign chairman.

Additional pledges are being reported daily to the Boy Scout Office in the City Hall at Pampa. The total goal of the campaign is $139,000 and campaign officials feel that the campaign will go "over the top." Included in the total raised are reports from the following communities: Pampa, Borger, Guymon, Beaver, Clarendon, Miami. Also included are the pledges from members of the Executive Board of the Council from all fifteen counties. Executive Board members of the Council have contributed a total of $23,100 to date.

Several communities will be kicking off their portion of the campaign this next week, included among these are Spearman and Perryton.

George Scott, general solicitation chairman for the campaign in Pampa, stated that most of the prospects in the general campaign have been contacted; however, there are still some 109 cards still to be reported on this portion of the campaign. He urged workers to complete all this week and report to the Boy Scout Office.

Eisenhower Group Made Effort To Deal With 'Featherbedding'

By LYLE C. WILSON

United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The report of the Eisenhower railroad commission to President Kennedy spotlights the 1947 effort made by Congress to deal with featherbedding make-work labor contracts. The effort was made during the 80th Congress during development of what became the Taft-Hartley labor relations act. The House adopted a strong prohibition against featherbedding. The Senate forced the House to back down on that and substituted some less inclusive language.

This senate substitute was a pretty good example of double talk, maybe triple talk. It was loose and invited loose interpretation by the courts. It forbade labor contracts that required an employer to pay for work not performed or not to be performed.

the employment of persons in excess of reasonable requirements. This provision has been accepted by some persons as a solid prohibition of featherbedding. For example:

Lawrence Fertig wrote in his recent book, "Prosperity Through Freedom," that "the Congress of the United States has expressed itself in no uncertain terms about featherbedding x x x that no employer should be forced to employ or agree to employ any person or persons in excess of the number required to perform actual services."

Fertig concedes, however, that this language is washed out by agreements forced by big unions supported by friendly judges who construe the phrase "reasonably required" in a way favorable to featherbedding. Full crew laws affecting the railroads also support it in many states. The practice, however, extends to most of the large industries, notably steel, transportation, publishing and entertainment.

Fred A. Hartley Jr. wrote "Our New Labor Policy" after enactment of the Taft-Hartley act of which he was co-author. He wrote of his regret that the strong House provision against featherbedding was scuttled. Of the Senate substitute, Hartley expressed doubt as to how it would work in practice. The late Sen. Robert A. Taft wrote a foreword to Hartley's book. Taft explained why the Senate balked at the strong House prohibition.

Taft's Viewpoint
"The attempt to prohibit featherbedding," Taft wrote, "requires an elaborate federal investigation of conditions in each industry and the exercise by the government of an expert opinion of the number of men required to do each job. The extreme case of paying men for doing nothing, made an unfair labor practice by the new (Taft-Hartley) law, can be more easily dealt with, but there are literally thousands of borderline cases different in every industry which would require a vast extension of government regulation of labor and industry."

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower established the railroad commission in November 1959, leaving it like a time-bomb on President Kennedy's doorstep. It should be noted that the commission has met one of Taft's stipulations with respect to the prohibition of featherbedding. The commission just has completed an elaborate investigation of conditions in one industry, railroads.

Taft also stipulated the exercise of expert opinion by the government for a decision whether featherbedding actually exists in a given industry. The Kennedy administration may be confronted with that decision. It could be easier to avoid it than to make it.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Walter Mintz of Shearson, Hammill & Co. does not regard current negative elements in the business picture as having more than short term significance.

Under the circumstances, he says, it would seem advisable for investors with cash reserves to use the current period of market hesitation to make new commitments in issues which are selling at reasonable price-earnings ratios and whose three to six-month prospects are reasonably well defined.

Jerome Peck of Jerome Peck Associates foresees excellent earnings being achieved by some of the well-managed companies in a majority of both basic and non-basic industries, probably for the full year of 1962. This climate augurs well for the market averages over the near term, he concludes.

The Fitch Survey still looks for a rather irregular market while investors reappraise the new business perspective and await more positive signs of an extension of the uptrend into next year.

Moody's Investors Service says market psychology should be able to improve with any generally recognizable signs of quickening business this spring. It says a constructive attitude toward stocks continues to be justified for coming months.
