The "somber" state of U. S. Soviet relations, upon which the President reported to the nation after his return from Vienna, was highlighted this week by the dispatch of two Soviet notes from Moscow.

Both were in effect ultimatums. One reiterated the Soviet stand on a German peace treaty. It demanded a "free" West Berlin in which at most only token Allied forces would be allowed to remain and called upon the two Germanies to conclude within no longer than six months agree ment on "questions falling into their internal competence."

Thereupon, the note said, a German treaty could be conluded by all former enemies of Nazi Germany

Should the Allies and West Germany fail to agree to this, the Soviets said, then the only alternative would be a separate Soviet treaty with East Germany, including East German control over West Berlin lifelines.

The other Soviet note demanded immediate agreement on a nuclear test-ban treaty with a built - in Soviet over on-site inspection of suspected violations, or that negotiations be transferred to a general conference on disarmament.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK - Once more in our lovely and colorful but too often dismaying Manhattan a person has been murdered in a selfservice elevator. It is not possible to give you the total of how many have been attacked, injured, robbed, killed, defiled in these contraptions and R is beginning to look as though they are the best possible places for a successful crime.

Young hoodlums in particular have learned that many apartment houses in the city have these, that most apartment houses now have dispensed with doormen and that nothing is easier than loitering in a lobby, waiting to see an aged person or likely young woman get in, join her and, when the cage is halfway up, attack. Women have been ravished, mugged, robbed, beaten, stabbed, shot. And so have men. It is a difficult thing to fend off one young hoodlum in a small elevator cage. The most recent murder was by three child gangsters who started beating an old man and when he resisted they shot him fatally. The self-service elevator has come into being as a money-saving device for landlords and property owners. They do not have to pay salaries to operators and the self-service installation is no more costly than a cage for hand operation. Many loft buildings, with empty floors between tenanted floors, have them, and the hoodlums have learned that they can spot a vacant floor ahead of time, follow a victim into the cage and press the button to stop at that floor. Then they hurl the victim out into the empty space, send the elevator on its way and rob, or maul at their leisure. Twice murder victims have been left in these empty lofts.

The recent case in which an elderly man was shot was brought about because one of the boys, given money to buy some shoes, spent part of the money on candy, confided to two cronies that he was afraid to go home without the shoes and one of the two cronies said he had no real prob-

"We'll mug some old guy in the elevator," he told his pal. They watched for a likely victim, started to mug and rob him and when the old man begged them not to shoot him—they seemed to get the idea that that was a fine thing to do and shot him. Their loot: $2.60.

The time may come when laws will be passed forbiding self-service elevators and if it were passed today there is no telling how many criminal attacks thwarted I know hundreds of men and women, old and young, who will not live in an apartment house with that kind of elevator or take a job in an office building with that kind of elevator. They are in terror of them. Yet one man I know, the comedian and author. Jack Douglas, once had an apartment on the top floor of an East Side building which not only had a self-service elevator but it opened directly into his apartment without a door between or a hallway between. Anyone, during any night, could have gotten in at street level, come up and leaped straight into Jack's place. He was imperturbed about it, took the stand that he never kept much money on the premises and owned no jewelry and therefore wasn't worried. He was lucky in that no one ever did come up that way and make trouble for him. If you are allowing a son or daughter, just out of college, to come to New York to work and make a career, I know you'll have many an admonition and piece of advice for him or her. Make the principle one the extraction of a promise-never to rent an apartment in a building with a self-service elevator. (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

press, after 78 years of steady running between Paris and Istanbul, pulled out of a smoky Paris station for the last time. There were fewer than 250 passengers aboard when the Orient Express, with a blast of its shrill whistle, clickety-clacked over the track that would take it to Strasbourg, Munich, Vienna, Budapest Bucharest, and Istanbul. Were there any spies aboard? Oh, there must have been, for every reader of mystery stories knows that the Orient Express never pulled out without a cloak and dagger man behind one locked compartment door, or an endangered diplomat fearful over walking the aisles in disguise. For more than half a century the Orient express served the public well and the mystery and adventure story writers even bet-murderer, intent on his prey,

Graham Green's villains were as much a part of the train as its luxurious fittings. More than one Afatha Christie murder plot was hatched and brought to completion as the Orient Express bore through the European night.

One wonders how the beautiful seductive women spies of fiction will cross and re-cross Europe, now that the Orient Express has stopped running. What means of transportation will be used to smuggle secret State papers across the frontiers? Not by airplane, for planes are much too swift for a plot to develop. Before a Mata Hari could entrap a courier, the plane would have made the trip from Istanbul to Paris, and be half-way back It took the train 67 hours and thundered through the Balkans and Turkey there was ample time for dark and sinister deeds. The train - in fiction, at least - never made a peaceful journey through the Balkans. Members of tumbling royal families were off and on the train like flagmen, all threatened by plots and couryer-pots. Assassinations were as common - on the printed page of the adventure writers - as stops for water, and even the conductors were suspect.

I am happy to have made one trip on the Orient Express during its great days. That was in 1936 when Hitler had Europe and the Balkans in a ferment, and while nothing happened on my ride I kept feeling that it was about to I helped things along by reading a thriller "The Eunuch of Stamboul," and part of its gory action was laid on the very train on which I was riding.

The Orient Express was killed by the competition of air travel and the contrariness of the Iron

The Doctor Says:

During the summer holidays, a small army of children will have their tonsils removed. I have commented previously on the advantages and disadvantages on this frequently performed procedure.

Briefly stated, the operation is ; of unquestioned value when it removes tremendously enlarged organs that interfere mechanically with swallowing and breathing, when it eliminates nesting places for invasive bacteria, like streptococci and when there is a suspicion of tumor formation.

But the operation also removes a pair of defensive organs as we've learned from studies of poliomyelitis victims. The majority of children who suffered severe or fatal polio attacks are in the group who have had their tonsils out, suggesting that the cruel virus experiences difficulty in crossing the tonsilar barrier.

For some years, many of us have suspected that most of the benefits attributed to tonsillectomy were actually the result of the removal of the adenoid tissue that most careful surgeons scrape away at the time of the tonsilar operation. So-called " T & A." meaning tonsillectomy and adenoldectomy (-ectomy indicates removal of an organ or tissue).

Because of these views. I thought you might like to know more about this mysterious adenoid tissue. Actually adenoid tissue is much like the tissue that makes up the tonsils and lymph nodes. But instead of growing in nice little cells, like those in a beehive, it grows like weeds wherever it finds a likely soil, Now, a favorite place for adenoid growth is the back of the nose. Here in what's called the vault of the naso-pharynx, it finds a small enclosed area measuring about 1/4 inch in width and about 1-3 incl in depth in the average young

Under normal circumstances the air you breathe in through your nostrils passes through the nose, where it's filtered and warmed, and then out through the back door of each nostril (posterior nares) to flow down the windpipe and into the lungs. When adenoid tissue fills this vault, the passage of air is obstructed. The child then necessarily breathes through its mouth. It snores when it sleeps. And, to make matters worse, this adenoid tissue is soggy and furnishes an ideal place for bacterial nesting. Thus the "adenoidal" child has plugged nostrils, a runny nose, requent "colds" and sinus attacks, repeated ear infections (from shutting off of the eustachian tube that runs from the nasopharvnx to the middle ear), diminution in the acuity of hearing, bad breath and mental duliness from the accumulated disturbances of sleep and hearing. And all this may be changed by a simple operation that consists merely in scraping out this adenoid tissue much as one would weed a garden. Whether adenoidectomy should be accompanied by tonsillectomy is a matter that the future will have to decide. Few parents would welcome the trouble and expense of separate operations. But, if your child is to have a tonsillectomy, you should demand an adenoidectomy at the same

been a bad year for statues here in the capital.

Things haven't been going too well for some of our live public figures either, but that is another "story.

In most cities, statues have only, pigeons to contend with. In the District of Columbia, however they also must vie with automobiles for what Hitler used to call "lebensraum," or living sp ce.

conflict between monuments and motorists becomes readily apparent to anyone who does any driving around Washington. In particula did it become apparent about two years ago to Rep. B sil L. Whitener of North Carolina.

While attempting to circumnavigate a memorial at the foot of Capitol Hil, Whitener had to dodge a streetcar and nearly ran over ex-president James Garfield, whose statue stands in the traffic circle.

The congressman denied reports that his auto actually nicked Garfield, who, as e stationary pedestrian, clearly had the right of

There is no doubt, however, that Garfield came close to becoming the only U.S. president to be assassinated twice.

Although Whitener disclaimed any grude against the statue, he recently put across a resolution setting up a special subcommittee to investigate traffic hazards created by various memorials.

Market Decline Didn't Go Far

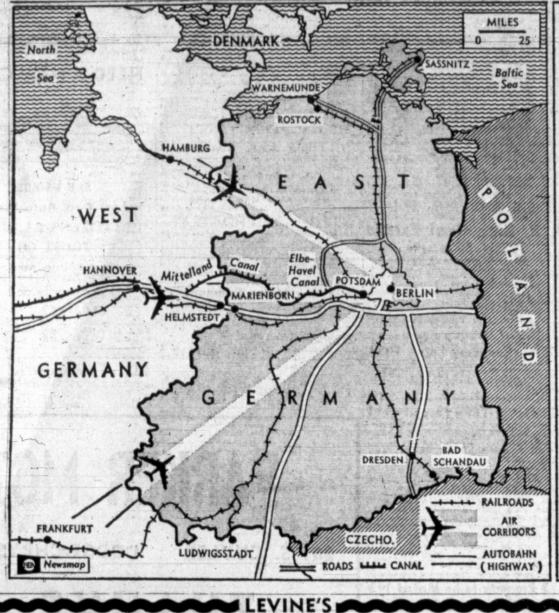

Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co, notes again that the recent decline did not carry very far nor did it gather any momentum.

This created a very encouraging pattern, he says, indicating that the investing public had merely moved to the sidelines for the time being. It seems to him that Wednesday's firmer trend will be broadened into a wider upswing.

The reason so much stress is placed on the business cycle at this juncture in the market is because the cyclical stocks are shown to be technically in the early phase of impressive advances, according to Joseph E. Granville of E. F. Hutton & Co.

Kenneth Ward or Hayden, Stone & Co. says that the strong technical underpinnings of this bull market still indicate a next target area of 730-740 on the Dow-Jones industrials.

Berlin's History of Crisis

POSTWAR control of Berlin by United States, Britain, France and Russia ended in '48 when Soviets withdrew from fourpower administration. City was then divided into eastern and western sectors.

MAJOR BLOCKADE of West Berlin by Soviets was in '48-'49. U.S.-British airlift kept beleaguered city going with over 1.5 million tons of supplies.

FAILURE met East Berlin uprising of anti-Communist workers in '53, squelched by Soviet DEADLINE set in '58 by Soviets called for unification of Germany under Red terms within six months. Khrushchev later said this was no ultimatum, called for negotiations.

COLLAPSE of summit engineered over U-2 incident in 1960 again put heat on Berlin. Khrushchev threatened to sign separate peace with East Ger-potential crisis. United States has renewed pledge to resist Soviet encroachment in Berlin.

NATO hears Secretary of State Rusk say Soviets may sign peace treaty with East Germany this summer.
