

Khrushchev And JFK May Confer

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — President Kennedy today awaited word from Geneva and Moscow on whether it will be possible to meet informally with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Europe early next month.

The Chief Executive and his wife planned to fly back to Washington this afternoon after a long Florida weekend.

A decision on the meeting with Khrushchev was not expected before Kennedy returns from Canada next Thursday. The Chief Executive and his wife fly to Ottawa Tuesday afternoon for a two-day ceremonial visit, their first trip to a foreign country since the inauguration.

Kennedy, it was understood, is giving serious consideration to the possibility of meeting Khrushchev in Stockholm or Vienna shortly after the President visits in Paris May 31-June 2 with French President Charles de Gaulle. The final decision may depend on the progress of current Geneva negotiations concerning Laos, plus the success or failure of efforts to produce some signs of forward movement in the long-stalled nuclear test ban negotiations.

Khrushchev has indicated frequently the desirability of a meeting with Kennedy. But the President has taken the view that summitry should be undertaken only after extensive preparations on the ministerial and ambassadorial levels. If there is a conference with Khrushchev, Kennedy would not regard it as a summit meeting, but an opportunity for a brief, informal exchange of views.

It was understood that Khrushchev recently indicated in a conference with U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson that a personal talk with Kennedy might be desirable in the near future. Then the Soviet leader last week made a speech that was softer in his appraisal of East-West relations than some of his more recent and denunciatory utterances.

From these circumstances stemmed Kennedy's willingness to follow up on Khrushchev's suggestions by exploring the possibility of setting up an informal meeting after he completes his talks with De Gaulle. It was understood that Kennedy's explorations have been communicated to other Allied governments.

In some quarters the President was represented as wanting an opportunity to convince Khrushchev face-to-face that a switch in American chief executives did nothing to alter America's firm opposition to Communist encroachments.

Rapid Robert Feller, the author of many opening day pitches in his major league career, will initiate the Pampa Junior baseball program here tomorrow night at Optimist Park.

Feller, employed by the Franklin Life Insurance Company of Cleveland, Ohio, will give a brief address to highlight the pre-game ceremonies, scheduled to start at 6:20 p.m., and then will throw out the first pitch before the Pony League game between Pampa Hardware and First National Bank.

An overflow crowd is expected to be on hand to witness the celebration, which should rate as one of the biggest in Pampa baseball history.

Search Reopened For Lost Plane

DALLAS (UPI)—The Civil Air Patrol reopened a search today for a plane missing since May 5 on a flight from Houston to Dallas which was carrying Tony Bradford and his fiancée, Doe Hentner.

Capt. Floyd Scott of the search and rescue unit at Hensley Field in Dallas said the CAP was moving the search from the Bryan area, where it was entered last week, to the Waco area.

The CAP said last night it was cancelling the search but decided after further discussions to reopen it. An area bounded by Waco, Lufkin, Tyler, Dallas and back to Waco was the subject of the renewed search.

Action Planned On Loan Shark Measure Today

AUSTIN (UPI) — Loan shark legislation was due for final committee action today in the Senate as Texas lawmakers entered their next to last week of the regular session.

The House passed version of a small loan regulatory act has been before the State Affairs Committee for more than a month.

Members of the subcommittee studying the bill were ordered to report back today.

The same committee is considering the two major tax bills passed so far by the House—a 2 per cent general sales tax and a combination franchise and loop hole tax. A tax package could also be reported to the Senate floor.

House members were scheduled to work on a stack of bills on a suspension calendar to permit members to push pet legislation by suspending the rules.

Meanwhile tension was expected to mount for a showdown Tuesday on a 4.5 per cent corporate income tax.

Capitol dockets drew increasing attention as the May 29 deadline on the regular session drew near. Only 10 week days remain, and Gov. Price Daniel will have to call a special session to finish the job if the work isn't completed.

The governor put in his pitch for more selective sales taxes at a meeting of the Senate State Affairs Committee last week, flatly telling members he would veto the sales tax in its present form.

Tax measures will have to compete with restricting in the Senate (See ACTION, Page 3)

$2,102 In Gems Taken In Pampa Store Robbery

Jewel thieves cut a hole in the plate glass display window of the Miller Jewelry store, 112 Kings mill, sometime early yesterday and stole diamond rings worth $2,102.

Police Chief Jim Conner said the burglary was not discovered until 10:20 a.m. Sunday when E. E. Shelhamer, 2101 Charles, was passing the store on his way to church.

Earl F. Miller, store owner, advised Police Captain Denny Roan, that the burglar or burglars used a glass cutter to make a hole about four by seven inches in the window. Miller said the loot taken from the display consisted of a man's wedding band, three dinner rings, four wedding, and engagement ring combination sets. Seven of the rings were set with diamonds. The most expensive of the combination sets was valued at $495.

Police expressed a belief the burglary was committed sometime between Saturday midnight and daylight Sunday.

No trace has been found of the safe stolen from the Pampa Clinic, 1002 N. Hobart, last Thursday night, police said today.

Police Chief Jim Conner said police had scoured the immediate vicinity around Pampa during the weekend on a chance the safe might have been dumped into a ravine.

In the clinic burglary the thieves rolled the safe out of the office into a car or truck in the rear of the building.

The safe contained $578 in cash and checks, several hundred dollars worth of narcotics and valuable office papers and records.

Chief Conner advanced the possibility that it may have been dumped into a small lake or water hole.

Racial Tour Attacked In Two Cities

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — White and Negro "freedom riders" who set out to crash Deep South segregation barriers were attacked by white men in two cities Sunday.

A crowd of about 100 white men, some armed with clubs and knives, attacked a Greyhound bus on which nine members of the Congress on Racial Equality (CORE) were riding at Anniston, Ala. There were 13 other persons on the bus, including an Alabama state investigator.

Another group of white men at Birmingham attacked James A. Peck of New York City, editor of a "CORE" publication and one of the leaders of the tour. Peck and a Negro student from Morehouse College, Atlanta, were hospitalized.

The CORE group planned to defy segregation customs in bus terminals at Montgomery, Ala., today and then move to Jackson, Miss. The tour began in Washington D. C., earlier this month.

The Anniston attack destroyed the bus, and three persons were hospitalized for treatment for smoke inhalation.

When the bus tried to leave the terminal at Anniston, a group of about 100 white men appeared, threw chocks beneath the wheels to keep it from moving and began to slash the tires. One man sat down in front of the bus and started driver O. T. Jones to start.

State investigator E. L. Cowley, who got on the bus in Atlanta, prevented the occupants from leaving the bus, and Anniston police Chief J. L. Peek held back the crowd outside.

The bus was able to leave, but a fire went flat just outside the city. The mob, which had followed in private automobiles, began throwing stones at the windows.

Someone tossed an incendiary device in one window, and the bus caught fire.

The mob disappeared as soon as the flames broke out, and the passengers left the bus. The interior of the vehicle was destroyed.

No arrests were made.

State Mercury Climbs; Storms Sweep Midwest

By United Press International Skies cleared and temperatures began to climb again in the wake of a mild weekend cold front, but the Weather Bureau said there would be scattered thundershowers today in a large section of South Texas.

The shower activity was expected to be confined to south central, southeast and to the lower part of northeast Texas.

Temperatures were expected to climb into the 80s and low 90s over the northern half of the state and range upward into the mid and high 90s in the southern half.

Cooler air moved into North and West Texas, plunging the morning low temperature at Dalt to 36 degrees. But it got no cooler than 78 degrees at Corpus Christi.

Laredo and San Antonio shared the high in Texas Sunday. Each recorded a maximum of 95 degrees. The coolest spot was Dalt with a top of 73.

For the 24 hour period ending at 6 p.m. Sunday, Lufkin had .64 of an inch of rain. Mineral Wells .13 and San Antonio .02.

Tornadoes and thunderstorms renewed their fury in the Midwest, smashing an Illinois farm town and gutted the nation's two mightiest rivers.

The middle of May found a quarter of the United States battling floods, heavy rain, tornado threats, and in three states, as much as a foot of snow that stranded travelers, endangered crops and snapped power cables.

Flood threats ran generally along the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers, depositories for 10 days of lowland runoffs.

Family's Picnic At Lake Marred By Three Deaths

By United Press International

It was the kind of a Mother's Day you dream about. The sun was bright, temperature just right for a picnic lunch beside the lake although the wind was kicking up a few white caps.

So Mr. and Mrs. Calvin R. Putnam of Mesquite took their three sons to North Dallas Lake Sunday. They couldn't have been more happy.

After lunch, while Mrs. Putnam picked up the dishes, the three boys went off to explore, maybe wade a bit along the edge of the lake.

"Be careful," Mrs. Putnam called. It was the last words she was to speak to her sons. Minutes later all were dead. They drowned. It took hours for skin divers to locate their bodies.

The deaths of William Henry Putnam, 14, Alvin Francis, 12, and Robert Lee, 11, was the most tragic of a number of accidents during the weekend that took the lives of at least 22 persons, 14 in traffic.

Witnesses said the boys were wading. William was carrying Bob on his back and Alvin was walking along side. Then they either stumbled or fell and all went under.

Billy Smith, 11, who was wading behind the three brothers saw them go under. He waited for a minute or two, and when they didn't come up, he ran for help. But it was too late.

Burkburnett Man Shoots Wild Pig

BURKBURNETT, Tex. (UPI) — Dub Crawford was sitting in his back yard Sunday when he noticed a "big animal" invading his property.

So he got his rifle and killed it. It was a javelina, a wild pig, complete with tusks. It weighed about 75 pounds.

Family's Picnic At Lake Marred By Three Deaths

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States bowed to British pressure today and agreed to begin the 14-nation conference on the future of Laos with the Communist rebels seated as equals with two other delegations from that embattled Asian kingdom.

U.S. officials said President Kennedy "reluctantly" authorized Secretary of State Dean Rusk to go along on this basis, rather than "wreck" the conference even before it begins.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, co-chairman of the conference, held a luncheon meeting after which they had planned to issue a formal call for the opening of the conference.

A U. S. delegation spokesman said Home and Gromyko informed Rusk that the hoped-for communication would not be forthcoming at this time.

There was no explanation for the new delay. One U.S. source said, however, the final views of the royal Laotian government had not been received here and this might have affected matters.

But the United States was preparing to issue a formal statement that its decision to enter the parley with the Communist Pathet Lao and neutralist delegations from Laos did not mean it recognized their right to be there. The United States recognizes only the royal Laotian government group.

The conference will begin with a brief formal opening ceremony tonight or tomorrow, U.S. officials said, with the first full dress working session set for later in the week—perhaps Wednesday. A Western spokesman noted that the conference is being held pending approval of today's arrangements by the royal government in Vientiane.

U.S. sources said plans now are to have Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodian head of state, who originally proposed the 14-nation conference, preside at the formal opening.

Sihanouk — who first withdrew his support for the conference and then changed his mind again to support it — was in France, today. He planned to drive to Geneva.

Officials said Rusk agreed to permit the Pathet Lao rebels to attend the conference because if the meeting here fails, he wants it to break down "on substance rather than procedure."

Rusk has told his delegation that now that the United States

Oilmen Plan Honor Fete

MIDLAND (UPI) — Dr. Bruce C. Netschert of Washington, geologist and energy research specialist, was to be honored today by the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

The oilmen selected Netschert for their "Hats Off" award for his work in the petroleum field and planned to give it to him at a luncheon.

The TIPO opened its three-day annual session yesterday with such issues as oil imports, removal of federal controls over natural gas and equitable sharing of markets among oil-producing states on the agenda.

Rep. Torbett H. MacDonald, D-Mass., sponsor of the Kennedy administration's gas decontrol bill, is scheduled to speak before the group tomorrow.

Other key speakers include Lawrence J. O'Connor Jr., oil imports administrator; Frank B. Ellis, director of the office of Civil and Defense Mobilization; and Joseph E. Moody, president of the National Coal Policy Conference.

Congress Plans Action Today On Gold Curb Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House was scheduled to vote today on two of President Kennedy's proposals for curbing the flow of U.S. gold overseas.

One, already passed in different form by the Senate, would set up a new office of international travel and tourism with field offices abroad. Purpose: to attract more foreigners to visit the United States and spend money.

The second would reduce to $100 the present $500 duty free allowance on goods brought back to the United States by American tourists. The allowance would be cut for two years instead of the four recommended by Kennedy.

House passage of both measures seemed assured.

Other congressional news: Inquiry: A Senate foreign relations subcommittee renewed its inquiry into the ill-fated Cuban invasion by calling a high State Department adviser to explain his role in the unsuccessful attempt to overthrow Cuban dictator Fidel Castro. The official is Adolf A. Berle, adviser to Secretary of State Dean Rusk and head of the State Department's task force on Latin America.

Wiley: Sen Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., urged President Kennedy to make greater use of U.S. business firms operating overseas to promote U.S. foreign policy objectives. Wiley suggested in a letter that a conference be held by government and business leaders to discuss the idea.

Store Bandit Helps Victim Make Change

DALLAS (UPI) — Jack Keeton, a grocery store manager, had to borrow back the money he had just given to a bandit to make change for a customer.

It happened yesterday. Keeton told police the bandit came into his store and waited until several customers had left, then pulled a .32 caliber revolver and said: "Sack it up—all the cash and change, but no checks."

Keeton had just handed over the sack with all the money from the cash register when another customer entered the store. An when the customer paid for his groceries, Keeton had to give change from the sack the bandit held.

When the transaction was completed and the customer left, the gunman once again took the sack and fled.

Two Pampa Boys Going To 'State' Meet In Austin

American Legion Post No. 334 will send two Pampa boys to the American Legion "Lone Star Boys' State" in Austin, June 4 through June 10.

The Pampa youths who will attend the Boys' State are John Arthur, son of Mrs. Margaret Arthur, 1105 Varion Dr., and Billy Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Tucker, 607 E. Gordon St.

Dan E. Williams, of the Pampa Legion post, explained that boys who take part in the program are selected with assistance of local school authorities. Consideration is given to scholarship, character, ambitions, leadership and all-around ability to become good citizens and get along with fellow students.

Young Arthur and Tucker will be housed at the University of Texas and capable directors and counselors will direct their activities.

The Boys' State program, Williams said, is entirely non-political and has no connection with existing political parties, Williams stated.

Members of Boys' State will be known as "Citizens," and will be divided into two mythical parties, to be designated as "Longhorns" and "Pioneers." They will hold elections, select a Governor, Lt. Governor, Judges, and Legislators, and other officials, and "Boys' State" will be divided into counties, judicial districts, and other Governmental agencies.

They will introduce and argue their own bills in their Legislature, conduct their own courts, enforce their own laws, and perform the same function as regular officeholders in the everyday world.

The two Pampa boys will have an opportunity to observe regular Texas state officials in performance of their everyday duties.

Dog Owners Told To Keep Pets At Home

Pampa police today again warned dog owners not to let their pets run at large as two more dog bite cases were reported.

Mrs. Charles W. McGahan, 605 Bradley Dr., reported that her son, Dickie, three-and-a-half years old was bitten by a dog while playing near his home this morning.

Police said they also had a report that another child was bitten while on the way to school this morning.

The dog that bit 12-year-old Tommy Joe Williams, 533 Doyle St., on the Sam Houston school playground last Friday, was found late Friday night, the boy's mother said, and is not believed to have rabies, although it has been placed under ten-day observation.

Action

(Continued From Page 1) ate and a floor fight is in prospect for both. Once every 10 years the state must be reapportioned according to population shift, and that bill affects many legislators.

Sen. Abraham Kazen of Laredo wrote a bill designating new Senatorial districts that would change the area served by eight senators. A House-passed bill alerted 28 house districts and is now under consideration by Kazen's Senate Redistricting Committee.

The small loan bill passed by the House in March got extensive public hearings by the Senate State Affairs Committee, which last week sent it to a study group along with two Senate bills. All the bills are aimed at regulating loans up to $2,000 but they set a different scale of interest rates and other provisions.

Before the House State Affairs Committee tonight is a resolution by Rep. Wesley Roberts of Seminole that would create a legislative group to investigate communism and subversive activity in Texas.

Pampa Coroner's Verdict Awaited In Shooting Case

Justice of the Peace W. J. Graham said today a coroner's verdict in the gunshot death of 22-year-old Mrs. Claudia Sue Horton in her home at 700 E. Scott St. last Thursday is being held up pending further investigation by police.

Justice Graham said he would not give a verdict until he learns the results of a lie detector test to be given Clarence Horton, 25, the woman's husband.

Police reported that Horton and his wife were the only persons present in their home at the time of the shooting.

Police Chief Jim Conner said all evidence indicated that the woman's death was self-inflicted by a bullet fired from a 22-caliber pistol.

The young husband, Chief Conner said, immediately offered to submit to a lie detector test. The chief said the test is scheduled for next Friday in Amarillo. "The test is mostly a matter of routine investigation," Chief Conner said.

Is Florida Overtaking Kentucky?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Florida, not having enough rivalry on its hands with California, today started throwing racing rocks at Kentucky.

Down in the Blue Grass, as well as in quite a few other precincts, it long has been accepted that horses bred in Kentucky are the last word in equine class. For decades, royal blood lines and the colonel's pastures were regarded as an unbeatable combination.

But now the man whose farm produced Carry Back — in Florida — contends that blood lines aren't everything and no other shade of grass can compete with Sunshine State green when it comes to Thoroughbred environment.

"Breeding is helped best by environment," says Joe O'Farrell of Florida's Ocala stud farm, which bred the Kentucky Derby winner. "And the best kind of environment anywhere is found in Florida's green grass country with its shade trees, muscogee building topography and year-round mild climate."

Over the Niagara Falls roar of overturned mint juleps, O'Farrell blandly asks how else anyone can explain a colt like Carry Back.

"The sire, Saggy, had been bred to hundreds of mares the last 10 or 12 years," he points out, "and the only good thing he produced was the filly, Outer Space. Carry Back's mare, Joppy, could hardly be called a blue blood. She never won a race and her other foal is only a fair kind of horse."

Supporting O'Farrell's contention is the recorded fact that Jack Price, Carry Back's owner and trainer, in Ohio acquired the slatternly Joppy for $700, half of it a due fair bill, and on the way to Florida stopped in Maryland to breed to Saggy.

That was five years ago. So Carry Back was foaled, raised, broken and trained at Ocala.

"Breeding isn't exactly unimportant," O'Farrell concedes slightly. "But I do say that the environment — feeding, care, handling and sunshine — is the big thing. Sociologists long ago proved the strong influence of environment in raising children, so why should it be any different in animals?"

Class, the Floridian insists, can be developed.

An outsider might agree cautiously at this time that Jim Thorpe's father never played football. Jack Dempsey's father never fought and there are more self-made successes in the business world than there are oats in a bushel.

"Carry Back's class, courage, determination and toughness all are the direct result of the way he was raised and his Florida environment," O'Farrell insists.

At this point, it is interesting to note that O'Farrell underestimated Carry Back as a youngster.

Italian Wins Grand Prix

NAPLES, Italy. (UPI) — Giancarlo Baghetti, 22-year-old "wonder boy" of Italian auto racing, won the Grand Prix of Naples Sunday in a Ferrari.

The victory was the second big one for Baghetti, who recently captured the Syracuse, Sicily, Grand Prix.

Yankees Take Two; Cubs Finally Win

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

They call the bullpen the back room of baseball, but three of the men who toil there — Jim Coates, Jim Duffalo and Frank Funk — richly deserve to move front and center today.

Each of the three right-handers came through nobly Sunday on a day when relief pitching in the majors generally overshadowed everything else.

Coates gained credit for both ends of a doubleheader in which the New York Yankees swept from the first-place Detroit Tigers, 5-4, in 11 innings and 8-6.

Duffalo, the rookie reliever of the San Francisco Giants, won his third game without a defeat in an 8-7 victory over the Milwaukee Braves that widened the Giants' lead in the National League to a full game.

And Funk, another rookie, pitched seven scoreless relief innings against the Baltimore Orioles to help Cleveland win a 15-inning opener, 1-0, after which the Indians made it a sweep by also taking the nightcap, 6-4.

The new Washington Senators swept the first doubleheader in their brief history, 3-0 and 2-1, from the Boston Red Sox, and the Minnesota Twins downed the Los Angeles Angels, 4-3. The Chicago White Sox defeated the Kansas City Athletics, 6-1, but lost the nightcap, 5-3.

In the National League, the Chicago Cubs snapped an eight-game losing streak with an 11-inning 10-8 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers; the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-1, and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-4.

Coates, now 3-2, hurled a total of six innings for the Yankees in their two games with the Tigers. He picked up his first victory of the day by holding Detroit hitless in the 11th inning of the opener which was decided by Yogi Berra's pinch single with the bases full off reliever Hank Aguirre.

In the nightcap, Coates checked the Tigers on two hits and one run over the last five innings after taking over for starter Ralph Terry. Bob Cerv and Bill Skowron homered for the Yankees in the opener while Rocky Colavito, Dick Brown and Charlie Maxwell connected for the Tigers in the finale.

Duffalo gave up one run in the last three innings, a homer by Lee Maye of the Braves in the ninth. The blow tied the score at 7-7 but the Giants won the game in the bottom of the frame when loser Ron Piche walked pinch hitter Matty Alou with the bases loaded. Orlando Cepeda, Eddie Mathews and Jim Davenport hit homers.

Funk won his third game for the Indians by limiting the Orioles to four hits from the ninth through the 15th after relieving starter Jim Perry, who had given up nine safeties. A throwing error by shortstop Jerry Adair in the 15th enabled the Indians to score the only run of the game. The loser was Jack Fisher, who entered the game in the 12th. Billy Hoef and Hoyt Wilhelm had blanked the Tribe until then.

Willie Kirkland's three-run homer off loser Chuck Estrada in the seventh inning clinched the nightcap for Cleveland. Reliever Barry Latman was the winner.

Panhandle Grid Tilt Scheduled

AMARILLO (UPI) — The fourth annual Panhandle grid classic which pits the "City Slickers" against the "Sod Busters" has been scheduled for Aug. 19 at Price College Field in Amarillo.

High school footballers who have graduated will play in the game. The "City Slickers" are AAAA and AAA players. The "Sod Busters" are boys from AA, A and B schools.

A recent ruling by the NCAA stated that boys who play in an all-star game that hasn't been approved by the interscholastic league in its state would lose a year of eligibility.

Officials said players will be selected to the Panhandle classic who don't plan to play football in college or at a NCAA member school.

Who Says You Won't Get POLIO?

Polio struck last summer... and the summer before... and it can strike again this summer. There is no reason why you can't get it — unless you are immunized with vaccine shots.

The groups who appear to be particularly susceptible are young parents and babies. And now is the time to do something about it. It only takes minutes for Polio protection.

Call your physician or local health department. No one needing this protection should go without it!

Don't take a chance — take your polio shots!

KICKING UP SAND — Jay Hebert, is shown kicking up sand from the trap on the 6th hole during the Colonial National Invitational, golf tournament at Fort Worth. Kel Nagle, the Australian, came in ahead of the field in first round play with a 3-stroke lead over Doug Sanders, Billy Casper and Mike Souchak who all had 69's.

'Sleeper' Sanders Wins Colonial Golf

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — 11 greens, finding eight roughs and three traps — but he had the recovery shots when they counted.

Doug Sanders, a berth in the U.S. Open clinched by a $7,000 victory in the Colonial National Invitational golf tournament, gave his wife a promised Acapulco vacation today.

The 27-year-old short-swinging Georgian, whose game makes the weekend dufer feel at home, sneaked in one stroke ahead of the select Colonial field Sunday with a final round 36-34—70 while all the pace setters were busy fading in the stretch.

He wound up with a one-over par 281 for the 72 holes, a stroke ahead of another "sleeper," Kel Nagle of Sydney, Australia, who finished at -282 to win $3,500 and finish in the runner spot here for the second straight year. Nagle had the final day's low round, a 34-33—67 to go with the tournament's low round of 65 opening day when he fired this tournament's only ace.

Sanders said he had promised his wife, Joanie, a Mexican vacation if he won or finished "well up" here. Such a finish would assure him of being among the top three money winners who automatically qualify for the National Open.

His $7,000 pot here boasted his official winnings to $27,703.67, well ahead of fourth-ranking Tommy Bolt, whose $315 check here left him far in the ruck at $19,991.67.

Sanders originally had planned to play in this week's Hot Springs, Ark. Open, but that was before the U.S. Golf Association announced two weeks ago that the top three money winners through May 21 would be exempt from the Open. At that time, Sanders had only a $2,000 lead over his closest rival and figured he'd have to keep playing to insure his exemption.

But just before the Colonial, he told his wife he'd give her a vacation in the Mexican resort if he finished high enough here.

He was tied for fourth five strokes off the pace after the first round, slipped to a tie for ninth still five strokes back after 36 holes and moved into fourth place only two strokes behind pacesetter Gene Littler going into the final round.

Ahead of him were Littler, Arnold Palmer and Bill Casper. They all found Colonial Country Club's par 35-35—70 too tough. Casper shot at 36-36—72 for 283 and $2,500 third place money; Littler skied to a 37-35—72 and a tie with Don Whitt at 283, worth 1,900 each, and Palmer skidded to a 37-35—75 and was alone at 285, worth $1,700.

Sanders, whose wide stance and short backswing is a joking matter among the touring pros, accomplished his second tourney triumph of the year the hard way. He scrambled — hitting only

Wright Wins Golf Tourney

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Mickey Wright of Dallas, Texas, played consistent over-par golf for three days, then fired a two-under par 70 Sunday to win the Columbus Women's Open title with a 292 and first prize money of $1,050.

Miss Wright, who had shot a 75-73-74 the first three rounds, went in to the final 18 holes tied with Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., and Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., with 222s.

Boston Hitters Go Into Slump

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maybe the Boston Red Sox hitters are on a coffee break.

At any rate, Manager Mike Higginson can't seem to find them.

The Red Sox have tottered only nine hits and one run in their last three games, all of which they lost.

As a team, Boston is batting .167.

Jackie Jensen is among those in a slump, with nary a hit in his last 13 times at bat.

Braun Inks Celtic Pact

NEW YORK (UPI) — Carl Braun, the newest member of the Boston Celtics, can't wait to play against his old New York Knickerbocker teammate.

Braun, fired last Monday as coach of the Knicks, signed a one-year player contract with the world champion Celtics Sunday night for an unspecified sum.

The 33-year-old backcourt veteran, who starred for the Knicks for almost 11 years before he became the team's coach midway in the 1959-60 season, is expected to replace Bill Sharman in the Boston lineup.

Sharman "jumped" the Celtics last month to become general manager and coach of the Los Angeles Jets of the American Basketball League.

Braun had received player offers from three other pro clubs since his dismissal by the Knicks but said he chose the Celtics "because they're the champs and I'm flattered they want me to play for them."

"It's going to feel funny playing against the Knicks," he added, "but I can hardly wait. I think I can help the Celtics, too. I've been playing since I was 19, so a lot of people think I'm awfully old, but, heck, I'm only 33."

More Arrests In Cage 'Fix'

RALEIGH, N. C. (UPI) — Dozens of basketball "fixing" indictments may result from a multi-month investigation which led to the arrests of three North Carolina State College players.

Speculation even linked the North Carolina point trimming scandal with one uncovered recently in New York.

The N. C. State athletic department initiated the long investigation which led to the arrests of Wolfpack captain Stan Niewie rowski, guard Anton Muehlbauer and 89 center Terry Litchfield Saturday.

Muehlbauer and Litchfield waived preliminary hearing and will be tried June 5 in Wake County Superior Court.

Also charged in the case was Lou Broun of New York, a Los Angeles State player described as the contact man in the conspiracy. Los Angeles police were asked to hold him for extradition.

The State Bureau of Investigation has not said outright that more warrants will be issued. But SBI Director Walter Anderson has hinted several times that more arrests may be made in the near future. His department is now pressing even deeper into the case.

Anderson said Sunday he received a telegram from the New York City Dist. Attorney's office saying Niewie rowski was being held there as a "material witness."

North Carolina player Lou Brown was described as the contact man in the New York case. And North Carolina star Doug Moe was suspended from school for refusing to tell the chancellor about $75 he took as a "softener."

So far none of the persons involved in the New York case have been implicated in the North Carolina conspiracy.

Crozier Ready For Preakness

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Crozier and Globemaster, who chased Carry Back home in the Kentucky Derby, today were pronounced fit for Saturday's 85th running of the Preakness Stakes.

Crozier recovered quickly from a weekend colic attack and is expected to work out at Pimlico either today or Tuesday.

Globemaster galloped for 1 1/2 miles at the Old Hilltop course Sunday without showing any sign of suffering from a pulled stifle (knee) that popped out of place Saturday.

Crozier finished second and Globemaster faded to sixth in the Derby after setting most of the pace. They are considered Carry Back's chief rivals again for the Preakness.

Carry Back also made an appearance on the Pimlico strip Sunday, galloping for about 2 1/2 miles. Trainer Jack Price indicated he will give the Derby winner a "real run" either today or Tuesday.

The Preakness gained two more starters during the weekend — Hitting Away and Fountain Hill — enlarging the probable field to eighth.

Gold Sox Win; Tied For 2nd

By United Press International

Rio Grande Valley's Giants held onto a one-game edge in the torrid Texas League race Sunday night with a 5-2 victory over Victoria's Rosebuds.

Amarillo edged Tulsa 3-1 and San Antonio tripped Austin 4-1 in other action to keep the second-place deadlock intact.

Tom Bowers and Tom Arruda combined to hold Victoria to six hits, while Valley belted a trio of Rosebud moundsmen for nine hits and capitalized on four bloopers. Don MacLeod was the loser.

Bill Drummond was Amarillo's winner in relief, taking over for Tom McNulty in the third, and had a shutout ruined in the ninth when Johnny Lewis smacked a solo homer. Joe Peppitone and Don Buheller homered for Amarillo.

Craig Sorenson got things rolling for the Missions with a circuit-clout in the second and Don Eaddy hit one with a mate aboard in the third to give winner Don Prince an early jump in carving out his six-hitter. The whole barrage came while loser Leslie Bass was on the mound for the Senators.

In game tonight, Victoria remains at Valley, Tulsa at Amarillo and San Antonio at Austin.

'Law Of Alternate Costs'

Clarence E. Bonnett, professor emeritus of Tulane University, with whom we have been enjoying an exchange of ideas recently, has commented on the "New Spenders" theories in our current administration.

We have heard these items discussed many times but do not think we have ever run across a more precise and a more succinct way of setting the matter straight.

The New Frontiersmen, like the older New Dealers, have a theory respecting the economy which runs like this: Depressions or recessions originate in a slowing down of the flow of money and goods. To increase the speed of the flow, new units of purchasing power must be placed in the hands of the "needy."

The "needy" are invariably defined as those persons who have been non-productive for a while, hence have not been earning, and hence have not been spending. The theory is added up as meaning that if money or credit is extended to non-producers, they will hasten to the marts of trade to spend.

Well, the theory runs, what's wrong with that? The spending of these non-producers will increase sales. Increased sales will stimulate production and hiring. Production and hiring thus stimulated will increase purchasing power; business will increase and the ultimate result will be full employment, prosperity, two cars in every garage, two chickens in every pot and a double rainbow around everyone's shoulder.

What's wrong with the theory? Professor Bonnett calls the error, the "law of alternate costs." We might like to refer to it as the law of dollar competition, but let that pass. Doctor Bonnett's terminology is equally explicit, and we will help ourselves generously to his explanation.

The theory of the New Frontiersmen, reduced to simplicity, is: "We can spend ourselves rich." But the basic law of economics is that it is a science of scarcities. Everything that has value is scarce. Money is scarce and hence has value. Indeed, the more scarce it is, the more highly we value it.

As Professor Bonnett says it:

Two Kinds Of Crime

There are two kinds of crime, while our laws still militate. One kind relates to actions against the taking of money from which are taken which violate the rights of human beings. A second kind relates to actions taken which violate the letter of the law.

In early times in any nation, there is scant difference between these two types of action. At the founding of any nation, including this one, lawmakers tend to confine their efforts to the making of laws which spell out the various ways in which human beings can violate the rights of other human beings and to provide punishment for these violations.

But as a nation matures, there emerges gradually a second body of law which has little or no bearing upon the actual violation of generally accepted human rights. Indeed, with the passage of time it is noteworthy that a third step occurs which is actually an extension of this second type of law into an even more questionable area.

In times, laws are passed in any and all countries which are actually inimical to the rights of individuals. And this step, when taken, turns government into an oppressor and makes it, in fact, one of the major burdens humans bear.

Thus, to begin with, governments may pass laws forbidding theft. In time, this concept may mature to the point where laws are passed which forbid a failure to comply with the wishes of the thief. In the wording of the renowned Frederic Bastiat, this becomes the "law perverted." The law itself violates that which the law was set up to protect.

We need spend on this point no further than to point out that, if we need spend on this point, it would be necessary, of

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK, N.Y. — It's a chancy thing for a man to fly all the way to West Berlin, by way of a day in Dusseldorf, to see his bride when she has been hobnobbing with Kings, Queens and Ambassadors and may take one corrosive look at a snob who earns his buck with a typewriter. But, you know how it is, boys. Steve Brodie took a chance.

The last bit of royalty news coming my way was that my bride had what the lads down at the gashouse call a boll when in Athens and she was visited at her theatre by King Paul and Queen Frederika. Prior to that, ambassadors were coming along in job lots all the way from Madrid to Tel Aviv. A girl gets used to that kind of table partner and may take a curdled view when her guy, walking along a street in Berlin with her, says, "Look, babe, where can we get a hamburger around here?"

A package only "lightly smaller than a crate that could hold the Statue of Liberty arrived from Beirut, Lebanon the other day and it was stuffed with invitations to ambassadorial teas, cocktail parties, receptions and garden fetes, together with cards that had accompanied flowers and in this vast collection there was a picture of my girl in her dressing-room in the Katapouli Theatre in Athens shaking hands with Queen Frederika, both smiling warmly, while King Paul stood by, also smiling, and wearing about 11 pounds of medals, decorations and orders. The two girls looked sincerely pleased with each other and a private report has it that they had instant rapport for which you don't need boiling water in a cup, and later broke a bit of bread together over some gold dishes.

I have nothing whatsoever against royalty and what individuals in that league I have met have been bang-up people, charming as all get out. But you take a girl from Stateside and throw her in with that mob across a period of five months and she gets used to conditions and things she never had at home and won't find when she gets back home. In a note to her I asked why she sent back that crate of party invitations from the white tie and tails set in American diplomacy, not to mention Dutch royalty, and she wrote back: "They were coming in so thick and fast I didn't want to have you buy another trunk. Another crate of them left here today."

All I can imagine is that in the sunset of life, when she sits in a rocker under her silvered hair and with a light shawl across her shoulders, she will gather her great-grandchildren around her feeble old knees and say: "If you little fellows will keep quiet a minute I'll tell you about the time I met the King and Queen of Greece and here's the faded photo to prove I'm not a maudling old liar." She must have collected a ton of this stuff.

It is a nice thing that she was chosen to be in the Theatre Guild American Repertory Company, which is sashaying its way through Europe and making friends like mad for the American way of life. The State Department, under whose auspices this touring little band of minstrelsy and happy sayings is courting Europe and the Middle East, has received ecstatic diplomatic reports on how many friends the troupe has made for the United States. It is something for all of them to be proud of. There hasn't been one untoward incident, no one has spilled soup on a Queen or asked an ambassador how he happened to get into the line of work. They have all been ladies and gentlemen, cultivated, proper and amiable, and I'm serious when I say I'm proud of the lot of them.

But I still wonder how a working stiff who hasn't worn an unbagged pair of trousers in 40 years is going to stack up against European royalty and ambassadorial elegance.

Think I'll go get my suit course, to examine all persons at state boundaries to determine why they were travelling, where they were going, how long they would be there, when they would return, and so on.

Since actual criminals look just like ordinary people, a careful scrutiny would have to be planned. To provide for such scrutiny a giant network of manned roadblocks would have to be installed along every state boundary. Passports would have to be issued to all citizens who travel. To obtain a passport application would have to be made to the appropriate government bureau.

Clearly the normal requests for such passports would include the desire to vacation, to attend to personal affairs, visit relatives, or conduct business enterprise. These reasons would be offered by "criminals" and non-criminals alike. To ascertain which reasons were real and which spurious, extensive investigations would have to be conducted.

Would you say that this procedure would contravene the normal rights of people, or would it be another law in the interests of preserving our rights?

Pegler Says:

1942 Letter Contains Idea That Spurs Birch Society

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

In April, 1942, I received a letter from an American soldier, a brigadier, who was to die in battle in France and later receive the Congressional Medal of Honor. The letter contained the germ of the idea which animates the John Birch Society and many individual Americans who shrink from joining the society. They shrink lest they find themselves associated under a noble banner with individuals who can't express their purposes without footfalls that expose them to charges of fascism.

The letter was handwritten on a letterhead of "Headquarters, First Division," one of the greatest fighting forces in the history of war. The emblem contains a bold numeral "1" within a wreath.

The letter said: "Dear Pegler: 'I'm down here at (Camp Blanding) waiting for the word to go. I wish I could see you some time but fear there'll be no chance of your getting down as there is no chance of my getting up unless we're taking off. I want to congratulate you on the splendid work you are doing against corruption in the unions. What you say is true. It is hurting labor badly."

"Might it not be worthwhile to take a whirl at the people who were furiously belligerent before we declared war but have neither signed up nor have their children? I could name half a dozen of your acquaintances. Also just look into the nests occupied by some of them who have nominally joined. It is bad business and means trouble later. Also it hurts the strength of effort, for it tends to uncork some who have (joined) and turn them against elements in our country rather than wholeheartedly against the axis powers."

"We have got to concentrate on just one objective — beating Germany and Japan. Or it will be just too bad."

"Theodore Roosevelt." As in World War I when Franklin Roosevelt flagrantly ducked the draft to the scorn of Ted Roosevelt's father, there was a large element of vicarious warriors in New York and Washington who berated and badgered loyal Americans who believed we had no legitimate business to fight the Germans. The Germans were fighting our enemy, Soviet Russia, and Russia's enmity obviously was permanent.

Soviet Russia has now established a military and political base off our Florida Coast from which it is nervously apprehended that Russia's puppet may attack our mainland one way or another. The Duke of Windsor, Ambassador Joe Kennedy and others viewed Hitler as a local force with a future of no more than ten or fifteen years.

The Birch Society has been attacked with sudden ferocity even while President Kennedy and most of the press gibber in alarm over communism in Cuba. Arthur Schlesinger, the dubious Harvard savant of the Democratic presidencies of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy, was not in the First Division nor any such outfit in the second war. He gave gallant service, of his kind, in the Office of War Information (1942-43) and the Office of Strategic Services (1943-45). In the OWI he did statistical work about economic matters. The OSS was very secretive so he could have been drawing apple-pie charts of the taxpayers' dollar or parachuting into Berlin to slit Nazi throats.

However, his political henchmen probably would have frustrated his rugged reticence if he actually had tried to board Hitler in his bunker for the OSS.

Ted Roosevelt certainly did have in mind a whole roster of union executives who found more urgent interests in New York city politics than the chance to slaughter Huns. I have picked out the records of 50 of the most famous and influential unioners of this phase without finding proof of a single hour in any American armed service. In the second war, many such became majors to negotiate contracts for the armed services. He was not warlike in the up-and-atom tradition and the John Birch people are paying a price of emphasizing this truth.

The nature of said suit being substantially as follows to wit: (Suit For Divorce) Docket No. 1981. Issued this 12th day of May, 1951. Given under my hand and seal of said court, at office in Pampa, Texas, this 12th day of May A. D. 1951.

HELEN SPRINKLE, Clerk, 21st Dist. Court, Gray County, Tex. By Deputy: May 13, 22, 29, June 5

For years, President Eisenhower begged a Democratic congress for authority to appoint 45 new judges. He received nothing but a cold shoulder. The U.S. Judicial Conference, composed of a senator court and district judges, was worried by the congestion in federal courts and recommended 54 additional judges. Congress ignored this request, because it didn't want President Eisenhower to make the appointments. He presumably would have named Republicans. The Congress decided to appoint Democrats. Mr. Kennedy undoubtedly will oblige.

To show how these things can snowball, President Kennedy took the Judicial Conference's recommendation of 54 new judges and boosted it to 60. The Senate Judiciary Committee authorized 69 new judges, nine more than the President felt were needed. After two days of senate debate, the number was boosted to 73. Just what the house will do with this measure remains to be seen. But even if it is passed as now approved, Congress will have established an all time record for creating new federal judgeships and the Democrats will have more jobs to pass out than even the most devoted Kennedy follower would have predicted when the campaign was getting off the ground last year.

The bill was whipped through the Democratically controlled senate without hearings, so no one could testify as to whether the judgeships are all actually needed or not. However, no testimony was required to establish one point. The Democrats are hungry for patronage, and are going to get it.

Cliches Of Socialism

By HANS F. SENNHOLZ

Professor of Economics, Grove City College

"Don't you want to do anything?"

The socialists use good psychology when they depict themselves as champions of political "initiative" and "action." They know that both attributes still demand the respect and admiration of decent people. Therefore, in the name of action and progress these self-styled activists denounce the "friends of freedom and individual enterprise for their "negative" attitudes and "do-nothing" policies. "Don't you want to do anything?" is a common retort that aims to stymie all objections.

These arguments are wholly fallacious. Their premises must be rejected and their conclusions corrected. In reality the call for action is a manifestation of individual lethargy and inertness. It is tantamount to call for government action rather than individual initiative.

The advocate of foreign aid who depicts in dark colors the misery and suffering in foreign countries does not mean to act himself when he demands action and initiative in this field of social endeavor. He does not mean to send CARE packages to starving Asians and Africans. And he does not plan to invest his savings in the socialized economies of India or the Congo. He probably knows rather well that his investments would soon be consumed, squandered, and confiscated by governments that are hostile to capital investments. And yet, he calls on his government to waste billions of dollars of the taxpayers' money.

The advocate of more abundant and better housing does not mean to use his own funds to provide low-rent housing. He, himself, does not want to act; he calls on the government whose initiative and action he would like to employ and the people's tax money he proposes to spend. He, himself, probably is a tenant complaining about high rentals but shunning the tasks and responsibilities of house ownership. He is probably aware that the returns on apartment house investments are mostly meager and always jeopardized by rising taxes and government controls. Therefore, he prefers safe investments with less worry to him. And yet, for better housing conditions he clamors for government action and spending of tax money.

Most advocates of "better education" are clamoring for more state and federal aid to education. They are convinced that better education depends on additional spending of government funds. They want new school buildings, more classrooms, modern equipment, and transportation, and, above all, higher teacher salaries. Since individual effort seems so minute in their gradiose schemes of spending, they fall on the government as the bountiful source of limitless funds.

The apostle of rapid economic growth does not advocate personal initiative and action. He does not mean to offer his own effort and thrift toward economic growth. It takes more than $15,000 in savings to create an additional job. Even more savings are needed if the job is to be more productive with higher wages and better working conditions. In his personal life the growth apostle probably is spending next month's income on consumption, relying mainly on charge accounts and installment loans. He himself, does not save the capital that is needed for economic growth. His call for initiative and action is merely a call for government expenditures financed with the people's money or through inflation. This is why the quest for "initiative" and "action" must be seen as a quest for government action. When seen in proper perspective, the question, "Don't you want to do anything?" actually means "Don't you want the government to spend the people's money on foreign aid, housing, education, economic growth, and so forth?" It means in many cases "Don't you want socialism?"

This analysis clearly reveals why the friend of freedom and individual enterprise is often denounced for being "merely negative." The terms "positive" and "negative" are relative to given points of orientation. Whoever opposes socialism and all its encroachments on individual initiative and action is "negative" in the eyes of socialists. But he is unwaveringly "positive" when freedom is the criterion of orientation, because freedom is his positive concern. His life is filled with initiative and action.

Some gloomy-faced people look like they're carrying around the weight of the world. The fact is, everybody has quite a load. An almost incredible amount of air pressure weighs down on us all the time. At sea level normal weight of air is about 15 pounds per square inch—some 14 tons of air pressing against our outside surface.

Texas Vegetables Make Good Progress In April

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas vegetables made generally good progress during April, the U. S. Department of Agriculture said today, but in east and central areas they were retarded by cool weather.

The cool weather retarded the snap bean crop considerably but light marketings began in the Lower Valley area and production in the San Antonio area should be available later this month.

Texas melons made good progress and light harvest was expected this month in the Lower Valley area and continue in good volume as the weather gets warmer.

The Winter Garden harvest of carrots is over, but shipments from the Lower Valley and the San Antonio area should continue for another week.

Sweet corn pulling got started in the Lower Valley in mid-April and peak movement is expected to be this month with supplies available into June. The cucumber crop was expected to continue in good volume through May.

Honey Dew Melon conditions were favorable during April except for high winds in the Rio Grande City area and the crop there and near Laredo should come into production late this month and reach volume in early June.

The onion harvest is underway in all areas and Lower Valley shipments were at their peak and should continue active.

Texas tomatoes are in good condition and making favorable progress. Supplies are expected in good volume late this month.

Truman Found Right; Students Prove It!

EDITOR'S NOTE: Former President Truman said in a birthday interview with United Press International: last week that high school students don't know enough about the Constitution and their government UPI reporters made a check of high schools at a random throughout the country for a sampling. Here are the results:

By WALTER D. JACOBSON

Harry S. Truman was right. The former President said last week that high school students don't know enough about the Constitution or current events.

"If you want a headline," he said, "ask the younger generation what is the correct title of the chief justice."

United Press International assigned reporters and Northwestern University Prof. David C. Miner supplied five additional questions for the survey.

A check of public and private high schools in key cities of the United States indicated Truman knew what he was talking about. The following questions were asked of 213 students from Boston to Los Angeles:

What is the correct title of Chief Justice Earl Warren?

What is the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution?

Name five positions in the executive branch of the federal government, commonly considered "cabinet level."

Name the senators of your state.

What are three provisions in the Bill of Rights?

What is the CIA?

Only 24 students out of 213 could say correctly that Earl Warren is Chief Justice of the United States. Many complained the question was "tricky and unfair."

Most answers were "chief justice of the Supreme Court" or "chief justice of the U. S. Supreme Court." The answers ranged from the correct title to "head marshal of America" or simply "your honor."

About 71 per cent of the students were able to identify the Fifth Amendment — or at least that part of it dealing with protection against self-incrimination. Only 10 students referred to it as guaranteeing "due process of law."

Asked to explain the amendment, a senior at New Trier High School, Winnetka, Ill., said he did not know exactly, but that it probably covered quartering of soldiers. The student, who said he was going to Princeton University next fall, thought most of the questions were "good," except the one he missed. "It's not very important to know about the Fifth Amendment," he said.

A number of students apparently would have been better off pleading the amendment than trying to explain it. A 16-year-old San Francisco girl limited the self-incrimination clause to "criminals only." A number of Atlanta, Ga., students said the amendment was concerned with slavery and suffrage. One thought it stated "we may not ingratinate (correct) ourselves while giving testimony."

A teacher at Belleville Town Ship High School, Belleville, Ill., polled 32 students in two of her classes. Half the amendment queries were answered incorrectly. Definitions included "the part of the Constitution that discloses a secret governmental investigation organization" and "knowing what you may say and still claim the Fifth Amendment."

The students were mostly juniors and seniors and were between the ages of 16 and 18. Many were taking or had just finished courses in civics, U. S. history or American government. A large number showed some knowledge of cabinet officers.

Over 66 per cent of the youngsters were able to name at least five positions generally considered at the "cabinet level," and many could say who had which office.

An odd list of cabinet officers cropped up in other replies from various schools, including "speaker of the House," "chairman of health, wealth and education," "ordinary" and "coroner."

More startling was the failure of many students to know their U. S. senators. Only slightly more than half of the 213 could name both senators. A far lesser number knew which party they represented.
