Mexico Seeking Sea Port Loan

MEXICO CITY (UPI)— A dispatch from Tampico Sunday night, said Maritime Minister Manuel Zermeno Araico announced that a meeting will be held on Tuesday in New York City to discuss multi-million dollar financing of the proposed Matamoros deep-sea port.

The minister said talks are to be held with representatives of "a powerful United States consortium," but mentioned no names, according to the dispatch.

He said financing would "start" in the neighborhood of four to five hundred million pesos ($32-$40 million U.S.), the dispatch stated.

Matamoros will be linked with Tampico, Gulf Coast port farther south, via a coastal canal using existing natural sea barriers.

Another government official estimated that 75 per cent of cargo now operating through the Port of Brownsville, opposite Matamoros, is handled for Mexico and added that a Matamoros port would save Mexico "hundreds of millions of pesos" in expenses, the dispatch said.

TWO SUSPECTS ARRESTED

SPUR, Tex. (UPI)— Police arrested two 16-year-old Spur youths for burglary Sunday after following tracks left by thick, peculiar shoe soles from the scene of two break-ins to the boys' homes, seven blocks away.

Now Many Wear FALSE TEETH With More Comfort

FASTEETH, a pleasant alkaline (non-acid) powder, holds false teeth more firmly to eat and talk in more comfort. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

MORE HORSEMEAT

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Horsemeat production has increased in Russia in line with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's suggestion that Russians eat more of world.

The Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) said today the Soviet Union has become the largest producer of horsemeat in the world.

Officers Roaming Utah Seeking Kidnap Victim

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A violent true-life drama as big as the outdoor setting of southeastern Utah's Badlands was enacted during the past week in an area long favored by moviemakers for their celluloid tales of violence. It left dead a Connecticut divorcee on a "once in a lifetime" vacation and a two-time hero, who now has been labeled a gunman. The dead woman's daughter is missing, and almost certainly dead. Only one person survived the tragedy.

A UPI special reporting team composed of James Golden, Keith J. Wallentine, Steve Smilnich, Dustin Harvey, Lawrence H. Grady and Ramon J. Geremia dug into the background of this tale of violence in both Utah and Connecticut.

MOAB, Utah (UPI) — Mrs. Jeannette Sullivan is on her way back east without her daughter. At the end of the train ride waits a grave.

Sheriff's deputies and volunteers still are roaming the mesas and 2,000-foot-deep canyons of the Colorado River searching for Mrs. Sullivan's daughter, slim, brown-haired Denise Sullivan of Rockville, Conn. The searchers have little doubt that 15-year-old Denise, too, will be dead — if she ever is found in the lonely, multi-hued country of southeast Utah so favored by moviemakers for its "badlands" scenery.

Mrs. Sullivan, 41, shot in the back of the head as she turned her back disdainfully on a rifle-wielding man who demanded money, won't be seen again on the streets of the little Connecticut town that she, her daughter and Charles E. Boothroyd left June 30.

The coffin containing her body was put aboard a train here Saturday. Tuesday afternoon it will arrive in Boston and be taken to Fall River, Mass., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Beaver, have arranged services on Thursday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

If Denise's body is found before then, Mrs. Beaver said the funeral would be delayed so that mother and daughter could be buried together in rural St. Paul's Cemetery outside Portsmouth, R. I. Mrs. Sullivan's other daughter, Jeanne, 4, is staying with her grandparents but won't attend the services.

But the quiet of the grave must

Attorney General Names Assistant

AUSTIN (UPI)— Atty. Gen. Will Wilson announced today the appointment of T. B. Wright, 30, of Bonham as an assistant on his staff effective Sept. 1.

Wright is currently Fannin County attorney, an office he has held since 1955. He was state representative from Fannin County in 1953-54.

A native of Bonham, Wright received his law degree from the University of Texas in 1954 and was admitted to the bar the same year. He holds a bachelor's degree from North Texas State University.

"We are most fortunate to gain the services of this outstanding attorney," Wilson said. "His background of public service and legal experience will be a very valuable asset to our department."

wait for Abel Benny Aragon, 35, not have been that fatal meeting. A miner who hadn't been employed since December, Aragon had left his wife and five little boys at their clean, well-kept frame home in Price the week before the shooting, presumably to seek work.

Ironically, after he left town a local contractor was looking for him to offer him a job operating a road scraper. But Aragon, who had courted death both for his country and to save a co-worker, wasn't to return to Price alive.

There is shock in Price over the fatal sequence of events. His friends can't understand "how he could do anything of that sort." On another July in 1944, Aragon was a Marine mortarman pressed into duty as a rifleman in the battle for Guam. He won the Navy Cross, that service's second highest decoration, in an advance up an enemy-held ridge that killed or wounded seven of the eight men with him.

In July, 1957, he was running a rope hoist at the No. 1 mine of the Independent Coal and Coke Co., when there was a cave-in, trapping four men. Aragon left the hoist and managed to pull out one man, but the roof fell in and killed the other three before Aragon could reach them.

No one thought of the short, barrel-chested Aragon as a suspect. But twice his wife went into Moab looking for him. A service station where she inquired notified police and when they talked with Mrs. Aragon, she broke down and told them Benny had a .22 rifle and a pistol with him. She gave the license number and description of the car. An alert was put out.

Then Friday night death caught up with Aragon. Two FBI agents driving along Route 160 spotted the license with the letters "CJ" they were seeking. They halted the car, which had its windows shut and doors locked. Aragon demanded, "Who are you?" The agents showed their identification, Aragon shouted, "Prove it," and then shot himself. He died shortly afterward without regaining consciousness.

Inside the car were a water jug, camping equipment, hunting knives — but no rifle. However, a bolt was missing from the left front bumper of Aragon's ivory colored 1955 Plymouth. A similar bolt was found imbedded in a fender of Boothroyd's Volkswagen, whose fenders had been smashed by the killer's car.

The three reached Utah, and 12 miles south of Moab turned off U.S. 160 onto the dirt road to Dead Horse Point. At Lookout Point they met a black-haired, ample-jowled man. They met the man a second time on the road back to the main highway. He passed the Volkswagen and then stopped and raised the hood of his car.

Boothroyd stopped to offer help. The man brandished a .22 rifle and demanded money. Boothroyd put his wallet, containing about $250, on the ground.

Mrs. Sullivan picked it up, took out the money, put it on the ground and turned away. The man shot her through the back of the head. Boothroyd was shot twice in the face.

Denise tried to drive off in the Volkswagen, but the man gave chase, bumping the little foreign car off the road several times until the teenager halted. The man forced her into his car and drove off.

The man, authorities believe, was Aragon. And if chance had worked the other way there might not have been that fatal meeting. A miner who hadn't been employed since December, Aragon had left his wife and five little boys at their clean, well-kept frame home in Price the week before the shooting, presumably to seek work.

Incident Bares Russia's Spying Activity At Sea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A recent incident at sea off the coast of Nova Scotia has served to dramatize anew the unending intelligence gathering contest between the Soviet Union and the West.

For years the big maps and the data display boards at various U. S. military headquarters have had colored pins and little flags stuck in them. These show the daily maneuvering of Russian surface vessels and submarines near North America — but in international waters.

The ships—trawlers, tugs and larger types—engage in fishing off the Grand Banks. They also do scientific research on the Gulf Stream and the upper air, as the Russians say.

But their antics, and U. S. Navy photographs, show that they also double in electronic eavesdropping, mapping and gathering of data about possible missile targets and other military enterprises.

Not much has been said about these activities since Robert S. McNamara became defense secretary and clamped down on certain types of information. But they are called to new attention by the Nova Scotia episode.

According to the Canadian Navy, a Russian trawler changed course to pick up a buoy used in exercises for submarine detection. The "sonobuoy" was about 100 miles off the coast. The Canadians said it contained microfilm and a small radio transmitter, but nothing secret.

Simultaneously with the Nova Scotia incident, a foremost authority was asked about the Soviet trawlers' operations. In Boston, Vice Adm. John T. Hayward, and deputy chief of naval operations, said the Russians had equipment in their vessels which "makes it clear to the least technically minded that they are here also for other purposes" than fishing.

He said, among other things, that trawlers and at least one submarine were mapping the New England coastal waters.

Russian Forces Believed Double That Of America

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U. S. Army and Navy intelligence agencies believe that the Russian military forces will be outnumbered almost 50 per cent by the Russians because of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's cancellation of troop reductions.

The Soviet decision apparently means that Russia's armed forces may maintain a strength of men 3,623,000 million, compared with 2,517,000 men planned for U. S. forces by next July.

The difference of 1,106,000 men would leave the Russian military machine 44 per cent larger even if Congress approved the 25,000-man increase requested by President Kennedy.

Khrushchev's decision, announced in a speech last weekend, came at a time when top Pentagon leaders were beginning to feel the United States and Russia had approached a stage of "parity" in military manpower.

The Soviet premier did not make entirely clear what strength the Russian forces would retain.

In January 1960 he said these

Automobile Theft Racket Smashed

HOUSTON (UPI)—A stolen car racket in which autos were stolen in Houston and taken to Harlingen to be sold has been broken with a grand jury indictment of James Robert Mackie, 26, of Houston.

A Harris County grand jury returned seven indictments Saturday, charging Mackie with car theft.

forces would be reduced from 3,623,000 to 2,433,000 over a period of "a year or two."

Last weekend he said "the Soviet government was compelled to instruct the Defense Ministry to suspend, temporarily, pending on special orders, the reduction in the armed forces planned for 1961."

This left unclear whether any reductions had taken place.

Kennedy May Request Revised Arms Budget

By PIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The United States moved swiftly yesterday to meet Nikita Khrushchev's latest display of brinkmanship over Berlin.

As a direct reply to Khrushchev's announcement of an increase in Soviet military spending and cancellation of a planned reduction in military manpower, President Kennedy ordered a review of United States defenses — Defense Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatrick said that if the review leads to the conclusion that U.S. military spending should be boosted, revised budget requests will be submitted to Congress.

The United States also released a hitherto secret testimony by Gen. Lauris Norstad before the House Foreign Affairs Committee last month.

Norstad, supreme Allied Commander in Europe, said that any serious Soviet move against Berlin would face the might of the entire Western world.

In Paris, NATO officials disclosed "virtual agreement" on a plan to increase from 22 to 30 the number of NATO's front-line divisions in Western Europe if Russia elects to touch off a full-scale Berlin crisis.

Khrushchev had called a halt to troop reductions and he announced an increase of three billion rubles (nominally about $3.5 billion) in the Soviet defense budget.

He said he was "compelled" to make these moves in the face of Western countermoves over the impending Berlin crisis.

He also warned that any forceful actions by the West against an independent Communist East mean a reply in kind from the Soviet Union.

On Sunday, the Soviets put on display at least 10 new aircraft, including a fighter with a liquid-fueled rocket booster and a big four-engine bomber said to be capable of launching missiles.

The Soviet Tass news agency said new rocket-carrying planes had equipment capable of "destroying any target hundreds of kilometers away, and no defenses can save these targets from destruction."

Norstad told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that his forces, even as now constituted would "render a very good account of themselves" for a limited time and that he was sure they were a factor in Soviet thinking about Berlin.

NATO forces today are composed largely of U.S. and West German divisions facing 22 Soviet divisions equipped with the most modern weapons.

At his weekend retreat at Hyannis Port, Mass., President Kennedy met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, the President's military representative.

Rusk described the meeting ranging over the problems of German and Berlin as a "very relaxed but profitable talk."

The West does not believe that Khrushchev intends to push the Berlin issue to a nuclear war but admittedly his present policy of brinkmanship is a dangerous one.

He virtually slammed the door on any possibility of negotiation on any major issue except on Soviet terms.

Plenty Of 'Hot Dogs' Are Consumed In U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Who first called the frankfurter (or the wienie) a hot dog?

The National Hot Dog and Sausage Council, which has designated July as National Hot Dog Month, wants to know. Although Hot Dog is so embedded in American life that the name long ago was accepted for inclusion in Webster's big dictionary, the dictionary says the editors don't know its origin.

The origin of "Red Hot," another name for the succulent sausage in a bun, is well known. It was coined by lads who sold them to baseball crowds at the Polo Grounds in New York about 40 years ago. But Hot Dog is older. A "Happy Hooligan" cartoon of around 1908 shows a character making hot dogs by grinding up stray dogs in a sausage machine.

The Hot Dog and Sausage Council was formed by Tee-Pak, Inc., of Chicago, who makes the cellulose casings in which skinless sausage are formed and cooked.

The cellulose casing is stripped off in one of the final manufacturing steps.

Regardless of how the hot dog got its name it continues to flourish mightily, the council said.

"This year Americans will eat 12.5 billion hot dogs—69 a piece for everybody old enough to swallow." That's seven more dogs per capita than last year.

To make sure this happens, the council has brought Otto Schuetz, a famous German chef to make a tour of the country during July, at various swanky hotels, Herr Schuetz will show folks how to use the frankfurter without a bun—in salads and casserole dishes that are popular in Europe.

Schuetz says cold frankfurters are even good in fruit salads.

And he thinks it's a shame that such a noble sausage as the frank should be so often buried in a bun or served only with beans or sauerkraut.

Smith Is Named Senate's Special Session Leader

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas senators, meeting in a closed caucus, yesterday selected Sen. Preston Smith of Lubbock to serve as president pro-tem during the special session of the legislature.

Smith, a member of the Senate since 1956, will be the third in command of state government while president pro-tem. He could succeed to the governor's chair after the lieutenant governor.

A Lubbock theater owner, Smith is also a former member of the Texas House where he served three terms from 1945 through 1949.

Smith was raised, with his 12 brothers and sisters, on a farm near the Dawson-Gaines County line.

He left the farm at 17 to live with friends in Lamesa where he worked his way through high school. There he worked his way also through Texas Tech, where he received a bachelor's degree in business administration in 1934.

The senator is married and has two children, Preston Michael, 20, a junior at Texas Tech, and Jan, 16, a junior in high school at Lubbock.

Smith was author and sponsor of the original legislation which brought about the permanent building program for all state colleges, and co-author of the present underground water law which re-affirmed private ownership of underground water.

Smith's formal election as president pro-tem came after senators officially convened at 3 p.m. The 49-year-old Smith will serve later as governor for a day in the absence of the governor and lieutenant governor.

Methodist Council To Install Bishop

By LOUIS CASSELS
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A prominent American clergyman will be installed next month as titular head of Methodist churches throughout the world.

He is Methodist Bishop Fred Pierce Corson of Philadelphia. On Aug. 25, in Oslo, Norway, he will begin a five year term as president of the World Methodist Council, which represents 50 million Methodists in 78 countries.

Bishop Corson leaves Wednesday for London, where he will spend two weeks conferring with British Methodist leaders before going on to Oslo for the meeting of the World Methodist Council which begins Aug. 16. The council meets every five years. Its retiring president is Dr. Harold Roberts, noted British Methodist theologian.

In an interview here prior to his departure, Bishop Corson said he will return to Philadelphia after the Oslo meeting, and will continue to function as resident Methodist bishop for an area that includes metropolitan Philadelphia, southern and central New Jersey, Pennsylvania counties west to Harrisburg, and the Birmingham area of New York state.

In his additional capacity as head of the world Methodist community until 1966, he hopes to improve coordination of missionary efforts, particularly in areas like Africa where there is now considerable "overlapping" of Methodist mission fields.

"I am also concerned with the need for better Methodist youth programs in every country," he said. "Young people have a lot of enthusiasm to invest in some cause. We cannot sit back and allow such organizations as the Communist party and the John Birch Society to have a greater impact on youth than the churches."

"I believe we can show young people that Christianity offers them a challenge to service, an opportunity to participate in a mass movement with a worldwide mission, that is far greater than any other cause appealing for their loyalty."

Turning to domestic issues, he said there is "strong Protestant opposition" to a bill pending in Congress which would authorize long-term government loans for construction of certain types of classrooms for private and parochial schools.

Cotton Planting Up 3 Per Cent, Bureau Reports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department reported today farmers have planted 16,561,000 acres of cotton this year, up 3 per cent from last year.

The department is forbidden by law to make a cotton production estimate until later in the season. But if yields average about 430 pounds of lint to the acre, the planted acreage would produce about 14,700,000 bales.

Last year farmers produced 14,272,000 bales from 16,080,000 acres planted. Of this, 15,309,000 acres were harvested.

Yields last year average 425 pounds per planted acre. Ten-year averages were 323 bales per planted acre.

The total acreage available for farm allotments for the 1961 cotton crop stands at 18,458,424 acres. Acreage available for the 1960 crop was 17,527,880.

North Carolina has 425,000 acres planted, South Carolina 610,000; Georgia 685,000; Tennessee 840,000; Alabama 920,000; Mississippi 1,675,000; Arkansas 1,410,000; California 830,000; Virginia 15,500 and Florida 25,000.

Missouri 400,000; Oklahoma 720,000; New Mexico 205,000, and Arizona 420,000.

Included in today's estimates were 62,000 acres planted to extra-long staple American-Egyptian cotton. Growers planted 62,700 acres of the long staple cotton last year.

Texas had 22,500 acres of American-Egyptian; New Mexico 12,500; Arizona 27,000, and California 400,000.

IRANIAN STUDENTS HELD
MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—Ninety-four Iranian students were detained Monday for refusing to obey a police order to end a demonstration in front of the Iranian consulate.

The students were demanding action on the cases of two Iranian students whose immigration to the United States has been delayed.

many people in Washington, including some members of Congress, have the impression that this bill resolves the issue of government aid to parochial schools in a way that is acceptable to Protestants," he said. "That is not true at all. Major Protestant groups are standing firm on their historic position that any use of tax funds for support of religious schools is a serious violation of the constitutional principle of separation of church and state."

Bishop Corson was born in Millville, N.J., April 11, 1896. He attended Dickinson College, Drew University and Yale before his ordination to the Methodist ministry in 1919. He served pastorates in Jackson Heights, N.Y., New Haven, Conn., and Brooklyn, and in 1929 was named superintendent of the Brooklyn South District. At 33, he was the youngest superintendent of a major district in Methodist history.

He was elected president of Dickinson College, at Carlisle, Pa., in 1934, and remained in that post until he was elevated to the episcopacy as bishop of the Philadelphia area in 1944. He is a former president of the Methodist Council of Bishops in the United States.

Mississippi Race Hearing Delayed

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — A three judge federal panel in a 2-1 vote, yesterday accepted a motion by the state to delay hearing of a lawsuit challenging segregation of travel terminals. The hearing was rescheduled for Aug. 7.

However, the panel unanimously rejected a motion by the state to prevent the U. S. government from entering the case.

Mississippi's two federal judges voted to permit the delay in the hearing over the protest of Elbert

P. Tuttle of Atlanta, chief judge of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

The state requested the postponement on grounds Asst. Atty. Gen. Dugas Shands, who handles the state's side in civil rights cases, was "physically exhausted" and unable to appear.

Judge Sidney Mize of Biloxi, Miss., said "I am not willing to force a litigant to go to trial if the attorney of his choice is unable to be in court."

TV's Shakespearean Offer Was Pleasing

By FRED DANZIG
NEW YORK (UPI) — Television gave the bard a bonus Sunday: a show of his own.

William Shakespeare, the most honored playwright of the past TV season, had no trouble holding his own as the star of CBS-TV's "Accent."

What's that? Did someone say, "who cares?" For those who may still regard Willy as a writer who never could make it on TV, as one who appeals only to a tiny audience, may I remind them of the following facts:

The TV public, when last summoned to a national election by the editors of the TV Guide Magazine, chose "Macbeth" as "the best single dramatic program" of the 1960-61 season.

And the people who comprise the TV industry saw things the same way. They sprinkled five "Emmys" upon the "Macbeth" film, topping off the outpouring with the "TV Program of the Year" title.

So you see, Shakespeare has got to be TV's fair-haired boy. He appeals to everyone. Right? In fact, I'm just about ready to accuse CBS of playing follow-the-leader by presenting this rating blockbuster about "sure-thing" Shakespeare.

But seriously, as Dandy Thomas once said — or was it Henry Youngman? — I enjoyed what there was of the half-hour "Accent." For the first in a series of summertime visits to European cultural landmarks, "Accent" aimed its cameras at the Royal Shakespeare Theater at Stratford-on-Avon, England.

The visit to the world-famous Shakespeare festival permitted some bright conversationalists to osculate across the Shakespeare scope. There were sections of the program devoted to Stratford's history and to a lot of acting from "As You Like It," but I was sorry that producer Bill Kobin had no time left for the cameras to tour the insides of the festival theater.

The discussions, guided by Alexander Kendrick, took place on the lawn outside the theater and gave us a chance to hear how Christopher Plummer, Vanessa Redgrave and Peter Hall, the 30-year-old director at Stratford, feel about the bard.

Hall, the sprightliest of the talkers, seemed to have dedicated himself to the worthy task of eliminating boredom and bores, both off-stage and on, from the theater. He appeared anxious to help actors and audiences get new kicks out of Shakespeare by ridding the plays of lingering traces of Victorian age interpretations.

But Hall didn't seem to be sold on his summertime audiences. "In the summer," he said, "we get rather stuffy audiences. They come to worship." Plummer, a veteran of Shakespeare festivals in the Stratfords of Connecticut and Canada, found audiences at the three places to be equipped with helpful, fresh attitudes. Miss Redgrave, daughter of Michael Redgrave, addressed herself primarily to the Bard's talent-stretching qualities.

Viewers seeking an answer to the question, "Why Shakespeare?" should have been helped by this program, brief though it was.

The Channel Swim: "Patterns in Music," a 30-minute Sunday afternoon musical series, is being added to NBC-TV's fall schedule starting Oct. 15. The program will feature popular and semiclassical music played by NBC's Chicago Orchestra, conducted by Joseph Gallicchio.

Sam Rayburn, speaker of the House of Representatives, makes a rare TV appearance next Sunday ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers," Nancy Priest, 20-year-old daughter of former U.S. Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest, makes her acting debut next season in a "Dobie Gillis" episode on CBS-TV titled, "The Gigolo."

Four "Hennessey" episodes next season will have Hawaiian settings. One of the episodes will be a 20th anniversary Pearl Harbor tribute.

Efrem Zimbalist Jr. will portray actor Edwin Booth in "Prince of Darkness," an episode in next season's "Cheyenne" series on ABC-TV.
