Hearings Open In Ship Walkout

Unions Assail Resort To Law To End Strike

NEW YORK (UPI)—Federal factfinders stepped into the national maritime walkout today, opening hearings that could produce a Taft-Hartley injunction forcing angry seamen to untie strike-idled ships for at least 80 days.

Highway Money Measure Awaits Kennedy's Okay

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy is expected to sign into law soon a program to pour more money into the interstate highway program by canceling a drop in gasoline taxes and boosting truck and tire levies.

Congress approved the bill Monday and sent it to the White House.

The measure also provided for a two-year extension of federal bonus payments to states which curb billboards along the 41,000-mile superhighway system.

The final product was a compromise between different versions originally approved by the two chambers.

The measure is intended to keep the roadbuilding plan on a pay-as-you-go basis through its scheduled completion in 1972.

The bill would cancel a penny per gallon reduction in gasoline taxes, which would have gone into effect Saturday. This will bring in about $600 million a year in additional revenue.

Highway trucks weighing 13 tons or more fully loaded would have to pay taxes of $3 a year for every 1,000 pounds, instead of the current $1.50. Taxes on tread rubber would be hiked from 2 cents to 5 cents a pound. Taxes on tires would be upped from eight to 10 cents and on inner tubes from nine to 10 cents.

Iron-For-Flesh Decision Awaited By Castro Group

KEY WEST (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro's "prisoner commission" hoped to hear today whether there is any prospect of reviving his moribund prisoners-for-traders deal.

John Hooker, executive secretary of the fund-raising committee that disbanded when Castro began boosting his ransom demands, may return from Miami today with the word on whether it will resume its activities.

U.S. immigration officials denied Monday night that the decision on further negotiations rests with President Kennedy.

Some American newspapers published reports to that effect in connection with the arrival here of the 10 paroled prisoners sent by Castro.

Berlin Problem First Big Task For Gen. Taylor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor today prepared for his first assignment as President Kennedy's new adviser on intelligence and military affairs — what to do in Berlin.

Kennedy asked the panel to report to him by Friday on issues in the dispute and status of attempts to settle the 12-day walkout which the President said has reached the stage of endangering national health and safety.

Once the report is in, the President is expected to order Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy to seek a federal court injunction ordering strikers back to work for an 80-day cooling off period during which a negotiated settlement would be sought.

Although union leaders were unanimous in denouncing Kennedy's invoking the Taft-Hartley Act, there was no indication they would attempt to thwart the factfinders' mission by defying the executive order setting up the panel and ordering the hearings.

But several unions have threatened to fight any injunction all the way to the Supreme Court.

Ralph E. Casey, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute (AMMI), the largest shipowners' group, promised that management would give "full cooperation" to the factfinders.

Cole Heads Panel Chairman of the panel is David L. Cole, Paterson, N. J., veteran labor arbitrator and former director of the Federal Mediation Service.

The other two members are Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, New York, special White House counsel during the Roosevelt administration, and James J. Healy, Boston, professor of industrial relations at Harvard University school of business.

The panel can only report facts in the dispute to the President. It cannot make recommendations for a settlement.

Even as the machinery for the fact finding mission was being set up Monday night, two major groups of ship owners filed unfair labor practice charges.

Chairman of the AFL-CIO Executive Council clashed over racial policies and appealed to the President to withhold a Taft-Hartley injunction in the maritime strike at Monday's opening session.

A. Philip Randolph, only Negro vice-president of the AFL-CIO, attacked federal action President George Meany for delaying a crackdown on union racial restrictions.

Randolph said it was a "grave mistake" to postpone action on his charges of union bias until a three-man subcommittee could study them and report next fall.

Meany said he would name the panel before the session ends later this week.

"This economic philosophy I hear in Washington is reminiscent of the Eisenhower administration," he said. "It's not enough better. It doesn't represent any basic change."

He referred to the call for restraint in wage and price increases by Walter Heller, top economic adviser to Kennedy.

GOVERNOR ARRESTED — Nevada's Gov. Grant Sawyer, left, and two other state officials are escorted to court by Sheriff Howard Hoffman, in Carson City. The trio is charged with conducting a closed meeting in violation of a state law that official meetings must be open to the public.

Civil Defense Warning Sirens Asked For City

Civil Defense Director William Leonard today recommended to the Pampa City Commission that six new warning sirens be installed in various sections of the city to bring Pampa's disaster alert system up to date.

The new sirens and their remote control equipment would cost an estimated $3,560, Leonard told the commissioners.

The civil defense director said the additional warning equipment was recommended by Southwest Public Service Co. engineers.

"The sirens are needed," Leonard said, "if Pampa is to have an adequate warning system for either natural or man-made disasters."

The engineers' survey was made following a test last week of Pampa's two warning sirens atop the Hughes Bldg. and Central Fire Station. The test, Leonard said, showed the current alert system to be inadequate.

"It is not our intention to use our alert system as a panic button," Leonard said. "But we do need an adequate alert to awaken citizens if need be and have them listen to radio and television stations for further instructions in case of disaster."

Mayor E. C. Sidwell told Director Leonard his recommendation would be taken under consideration and the commission will study the alert needs as recommended by the engineers.

The commission today gave its backing to City Manager John Koontz and the city building inspector to enforce a city ordinance governing signs which obstruct view and become hazards at street intersections. Notices will be sent to owners of the signs and after ten days if the law is not complied with action will be taken, the city manager said.

Commission backing also was given to city officials to enforce a city ordinance requiring permits for the construction of new buildings and driveways. The city manager said it had come to the attention of officials that some buildings were going up without permits and that driveways were being built which do not come up to specifications required by the city.

A decision was made to give study to Pampa's fire zones after it was brought to the attention of the commissioners that possibly an injustice was being done to some property owners because of "over-regulation."

A request was received from the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority for Pampa's share of funds for overhead expenses covering the period from May 1 this year to April 30, 1962.

Assessments to the participating cities have been set for the period at 30 cents per water meter. This would amount to approximately $2,400 for the period, based on Pampa's nearly 8,000 water meters.

It was pointed out that the amount to be paid would be taken from the water and sewer revenue fund and would not be added to water bills of consumers.

It was noted, too, that the assessment is an increase from the 15 cents and 20 cents per meter charged to the member cities heretofore.

Panhandle Man Slain; Wife Held

PANHANDLE — Mrs. C. M. (Josephine) Elder, 43, today was charged with "murder with malice" following the death last night of her husband, Charles Martin Elder, 59, of knife wounds which officers said Mrs. Elder admitted she inflicted.

Gene Smith, Panhandle's assistant postmaster, reported to Carson County Sheriff John Nunn, that he found Elder, a Carson County highway employe, lying on the living room floor of his home, 331 Park Street, last night about 8:30 o'clock, only a few feet from a telephone.

Dr. Jack L. Predergast was summoned to the Smith home and found Elder bleeding from several knife wounds about his body. The physician worked on the wounded man for about 20 minutes, he told Sheriff Nunn, but was unsuccessful in his effort to save his life.

The physician's report, officers said, showed that Elder had been stabbed in the chest, left a r.m., and about the head. Death was caused by loss of blood, the physician said.

Investigating officers followed a trail of blood to the Elder home at 307 Park Street. They found the residence door locked from the inside but were admitted by Mrs. Elder. The officers reported finding a pool of blood on the floor of the kitchen and an 8-inch long by 1 1/2-inch wide butcher knife. They said Elder had been wounded with this knife.

Mrs. Elder was taken to the sheriff's office where she told officers that her husband had returned from work about 5 o'clock.

Mt. Vernon Fete Slated By 'Jackie'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, breaking sharply with the stiff tradition of White House social affairs, will hold a state dinner next month on the lawn of historic Mt. Vernon.

The estate of the country's first president, for years a major tourist attraction, will be the scene of a state dinner July 11 for Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan.

Mrs. Kennedy, who apparently got the idea during her trip to Europe, visited George Washington's colonial home Monday to check over arrangements for the affair.

She quickly supplanted the stately shrine as a tourist attraction. Gawking sightseers trailed after her, snapping pictures feverishly.

Many of the approximately 100 guests to be invited to the lawn party will be ferried there aboard the presidential yacht Honey Fitz. The lawn overlooks the Potomac River.

Debt Level Hike Sure, Solon Says

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The senior Republican on the Senate Finance Committee said today the Senate "has no choice" but to hike the national debt ceiling to $298 billion.

"We're not going to put the government in a position where it can't pay its bills," said Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware as the committee opened hearings on a bill to raise the limit by $5 billion to its highest level in peacetime history.

The House voted 231-148 Monday to raise the ceiling, following Republican warnings that the nation was spending itself into bankruptcy.

Williams said he would try to eliminate the 4 1/2 per cent ceiling on Treasury borrowing to finance the debt. He said it would give the Treasury more flexibility in debt management.

Even critics said the action had to be taken — or the government might not be able to pay its bills when the new fiscal year begins Saturday.

Other congressional news: Social Security: Chances appeared good that a bill to increase Social Security checks for about 4.4 million persons will get to the White House by Thursday. The bill was passed by the Senate Monday and sent to conference committee. It increases minimum retirement benefits from $33 to $40 a month, raises benefits by 10 per cent for persons receiving survivor payments and allows men to retire at age 62.

The committee is expected to get out a compromise bill in time for it to be approved and sent to the White House before legislators leave Friday for a long Fourth of July holiday.

16 Venezuelan Rebels Killed

BARCELONA, Venezuela (UPI)—Armed patrols combed this tropical city early today, seeking 80 convicts released and given guns during the six-hour revolt Monday in which 16 rebels were killed and 10 other persons wounded.

Traffic in rain-swept Barcelona was heavily restricted and special "good conduct" passes were required of anyone in the streets. Garrison headquarters, scene of Monday's brief battle, was off limits to civilians.

Twenty-four prisoners — 5 soldiers and 19 civilians — taken to the revolt were rushed to Caracas Monday when a mob threatened to storm the garrison building and lynch them.

None of the U.S. residents of the Barcelona area was injured in the uprising.

The abortive revolt coincided with a similar but less serious uprising in La Guaira, the port serving Caracas.

Carlos Canache Mata, secretary to provincial Gov. Rafael Solorzano, said the rebel force which seized the Barcelona garrison Monday comprised about 40 civilians led by four disgruntled army officers.

Federal School Aid Plea Sent U.S. Governors

HONOLULU (UPI)—The Kennedy administration made its bid to the National Governors Conference today for support of its embattled program of federal aid for education.

The appeal came from Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Abraham Ribicoff, a conference member for six years while governor of Connecticut.

Federal programs of aid for education have been used since the birth of the nation; Ribicoff said, and none led to federal control of public schools. He warned that federal, state and local governments and private sources must provide more money to meet education costs, which he said would double in the next decade.

Blasts Jolt Dallas Area; Five Injured

DALLAS (UPI)—Two explosions, apparently triggered when a workman stumbled and dropped a tank of propane gas, demolished a large brick ice cream warehouse today and injured five persons, one of them critically.

The explosions were so violent that the walls of the two-story warehouse were blown out and let the roof collapse on top of about 25 trucks parked inside.

Damage was expected to exceed $150,000.

Bricks were blown as far as two blocks away. And whole sections of bricks were hurled through walls and windows of neighboring buildings in the area, an industrial section just south of downtown Dallas.

Injured were Willie D. Franklin, 46, Andrew Kellum, 28, James S. Martin, 20, Lillie Mae Winn, 54, and Bernice Hankins, 33. Franklin had second and third degree burns over 90 per cent of his body and doctors said his chances to survive were slim.

The warehouse was leased by the Kopy-Kone Co., and used as a distribution point for Mr. Softee ice cream. It is sold in residential neighborhoods from the gaily colored and cartoon covered trucks that bring children running with the sound of jingling bells and music. Company offices were on the second floor.

Mrs. Hankins, who is expecting a baby soon, was least seriously hurt.

"I was in one of the trucks getting it ready and heard the first explosion," she said. "All the lights went out . . . there was a big blast, you know . . . and I tried to get out. I ran to the door but it was jammed."

By the time she finally wrenched it open, and started to stumble through, the second blast hit her in the back. It hurled her about eight feet. A new car parked on the outside of the building nearby was crushed under a pile of bricks and debris.

A policeman said it looked as if a bomb had been dropped on the warehouse.

Rescue workers dug through the wreckage to free the other four persons inside the building. The five made up the entire night crew. Mrs. Hankins was found wandering around outside in a daze.

Capt. Jim Lyde, a fire investigator, said a preliminary investigation revealed that Franklin was carrying a tank of propane gas used to power motors in refrigeration units and dropped it. The tank apparently split and was ignited by a spark from a nearby motor. It set off the second explosion from a stockpile of pressurized tanks of gas.

Report Discloses May Price Dips

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Living costs dipped slightly in May for the second time in five months, the Labor Department reported today. Factory workers' take-home pay advanced to a record high for the month.

Price cuts for meat and poultry and some other items nudged the consumer price index down to a May reading of 127.4. In April the index stood at 127.5, a record high first reached last December.

Senator Claims Governor Daniel Is Day-Dreamer

AUSTIN (UPI)—Sen. Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo accused Gov. Price Daniel yesterday of daydreaming while the state faces a desperate tax situation.

Hazlewood was the first of several lawmakers to speak at the second meeting of the study group examining tax measures from the regular session of the legislature.

"We find the governor still daydreaming about what he did back in 1939," Hazlewood said in reference to Daniel's vote some 20 years ago as a legislator against the sales tax.

Hazlewood said Daniel had to "retreat and panic after his payroll tax-disaster" in the regular session. The senator said Daniel's tax proposals "can in no manner solve our tax problems, and get the deaf-mutes and mentally retarded children now being held in detention homes back in school where human beings ought to be."

"There is one thing of which we are all certain," Hazlewood said, "and that is you cannot find the governor's $350 million on an Easter egg hunt."

Four Are Killed As Glacial Ice Falls On Group

COLORADO SPRINGS (UPI)—Four men were killed and 29 others were injured Sunday when a huge chunk of glacial ice crashed down on an Air Force sight-seeing party near Sordstrom air base in Greenland, the Air Defense Command said today.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin. Nine of the injured were hospitalized, but none was listed as critical.

ADC headquarters here said only two men of 35 on the sight-seeing tour escaped without injury. They were a Danish guide and a seaman from the USS Atka, an icebreaker.

The two walked to the air base to report the accident. Two helicopters were used to evacuate the rest of the party within 30 minutes.

Witnesses said the chunk of ice which crashed into the fjord was about 200 feet in diameter. It fell into the water with what was described as an "explosion."

The sightseers ran but the falling icecap shot debris in every direction, the ADC spokesman said. Some men were hit by flying ice particles, some were caught in the avalanche which started on the glacier across the fjord. Others were said to have been caught by the tidal wave action of the water in the fjord.

Taking part in the tour were 18 seamen from the Atka, six Army men assigned to the transportation corps, which was preparing for the summer seafit into Greenland, and 10 Air Force men assigned to the base.

Foreign Commentary

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—No one will deny that Iran needs a strong premier to rescue it from the grip of political corruption and economic chaos. But only time will tell whether Dr. Ali Amini is the man.

Amini (pronounced ah-me'-ni) was called on by the Shah last month to head a reform government and give Iran a "new deal" politically and economically.

Refinery Workers Ordered On Jobs

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union today ordered its members to return to work at Texaco's giant refinery at Port Arthur after a brief shutdown at the plant forced by the nationwide maritime strike.

Texaco officials issued a comeback call to its 5,000 employees who had respected picket lines thrown up by the National Maritime Union.

HITS NEW HIGH

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Small Business Administration received a record number of loan applications in the four-month period from February through May.

Administrator John E. Horne said Sunday that 4,325 applications were received, and 1,797 loans totaling $90.3 million were approved.

A high-ranking member of Iran's influential "1,000 families"—Amini is one of the country's wealthiest landowners. Yet it is against this class that his most radical economic program, agrarian reform, is aimed.

Corruption in government is an other major target and Amini already has begun the cleanup. Even Amini's severest critics concede his own political record is above reproach and that he could sweep out chiseling office-holders.

But Iran's most immediate problem is economic and, although he earned his title of doctor in law, Amini is primarily an economist by experience.

He held various posts in the ministries of economics and finance, was minister of economy in 1950 and again in 1951 under ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

Mossadegh's ouster and treason trial in 1953 and the ensuing shake up left Amini unscathed and he returned to the new cabinet as finance minister. In 1955 he became minister of justice and held the post until named ambassador to the United States the next year.

He was recalled from Washington in March 1958 after his name had been coupled with an unsuccessful military coup.

A political independent, Amini waged an unsuccessful campaign for a seat in the lower house last summer. He was among those who demanded, and got, new elections last January.

In May, teachers led demonstrations in protest against ballot-rigging in the election and the Shah fired Premier Jafar Sharif-Imami.

Three days after his appointment, Amini persuaded the Shah to dissolve Parliament. He will rule by decree until new elections are held—at a still unspecified date.

Sidewalk Cafe Causes U.S. Capital Debate

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—In the eyes of Europeans, and many American sophisticates, Washington is a rather provincial city, lacking in old world grace and charm.

A few years ago, this may have been a valid observation, but not any more. For one reason or another, the U.S. capital is rapidly developing a cosmopolitan, continental air.

For instance, when you cross a street here nowadays you get a nostalgic feeling that any moment you might be run over by some clown in a sports car.

It used to be that an American pedestrian had to go to Paris to get hit by a sports car. That shows how far we have come in shaking off our bumpkinish ways.

It's true that the taxi drivers here haven't yet perfected the rhythmic honking technique that makes motoring in the French capital such a stimulating experience. But they are learning fast. I notice as I wheel about the city that the cabbies are beginning to honk at me when my quaint old sedan stalls in the middle of the street. Time was when they simply would have given me a push.

That also is a sign that we are catching up the Parisians in leading the good life.

But what really impressed me with our progress in acquiring civic poise was a public hearing I attended on a proposal before the District of Columbia Board of Commissioners to permit sidewalk cafes in Washington.

Amigos, if this one passes, we are in. With sidewalk cafes, Washington would become the most sophisticated metropolis east of Culpepper, Va.

The first applicant for a sidewalk cafe license is the owner of a restaurant which fronts on Pennsylvania Avenue about two blocks from the White House.

It is his notion that tourists, shoppers and commuters would enjoy sipping their Metrecal at an outdoor table, overlooking a traffic jam.

This location has the added advantage of being next door to a parking garage. Thus there would be a ready source of supply for mashed potatoes garnished with carbon monoxide.

Some witnesses at the hearing, however, couldn't see the advantages of sidewalk dining. One denounced the proposal as a "Castro grab of public property" which would "rob the people of their unrestricted right to the sidewalk."

He also challenged the argument that the popularity of sidewalk cafes in Paris necessarily insured their success here.

The issue now seems to hinge on the old question of whether 30 million Frenchmen can be wrong. Or whether what's good for General De Gaulle is good for the U. S. A.

DESERTS SINKING SHIPS
MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Yachtsman Martin Johnson, pulled from a capsized sailboat in Lake Michigan Saturday, vows he is through with water for good.

"During World War II service in the Atlantic," Johnson said, "one ship I was on was torpedoed and another struck a mine. Three drinkings are enough. It's three times and out as far as I'm concerned."

WOMAN HAS QUADS
RENNES, France (UPI)—The 37-year-old wife of a French electrician gave birth to quadruplets—three boys and a girl—in a clinic here Monday night. Each of the quads weighed in at 4.4 pounds.

Texas Hospitals Undergo Rigid Inspection Test

Since the beginning of the licensing program 17 months ago, over 690 Texas hospitals have been inspected under the Texas Hospital Licensing Law, either by state or local health department officials, the state agency said today.

Local fire marshals have also inspected the same hospitals, making certain that they complied with fire-safety rules required under the law.

The program is administered by the State Health Department's Hospital Licensing Division, established January 1, 1960.

A big map on the division wall describes the extent of the far-reaching program. More than half of Texas hospitals have been surveyed more than once and all have been closely inspected at least once.

Inspection subjects range from the kind of ice used, to the all-important operating equipment. Especially important in all items inspected is the quality of housekeeping—a critical item for the prevention of disease spread within a modern hospital.

Second-time surveys are made to determine the extent of corrective recommendations followed after the initial inspection. Generally hospitals cooperate fully in carrying out suggestions, most of which deal with housekeeping problems.

In keeping with the State Health Department's policy of as much local control as possible, local health departments maintain inspections of hospitals within their jurisdiction, assisted by the state agency only if needed.

About half of all Texas hospitals lie within areas served by local health departments greatly reducing the workload required by the Texas State Department of Health.

Fire-safety inspections are made by local fire marshals, who follow a special check list complying with State fire laws. Occasionally, special training is given for inspection of operating room fire hazards.

The Texas Hospital Licensing Law is designed to provide better patient safety. It is patterned after standards of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. However, requirements are stricter providing for maximum patient safety and care. (A weekly feature from Public Health Education, Texas State Department of Health.)

Court Approves Delay In School Bus Price Probe

AUSTIN (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Will Wilson opened a formal court of inquiry yesterday into alleged school bus price fixing in Texas, but Travis County Judge Travis Blakeslee granted a motion to criminal proceedings. Attorneys postpone the case for 10 days.

Wilson protested the postponement on grounds the inquiry should be carried out similarly to for six witnesses who had been subpoenaed asked for the postponement because their clients had not been given proper notice.

Jake Jacobsen, an Austin attorney representing two of the witnesses, acted as spokesman on the motion to quash the subpoenas. He clashed with Wilson over a 10-day notice rule for witnesses under a court of inquiry.

"This proceeding is unusual and extraordinary," Jacobsen said, "and it is relatively unfair."

Wilson broke in to object and said "we are going to object to any propaganda or argumentative device such as this."

Jacobsen retorted, "what I meant was the law provides that 10 days shall elapse from notice of the case before a witness can be compelled to appear." Blakeslee agreed and granted the continuance. Wilson said new notices would be served on the six witnesses today, and Blakeslee said he would call the case for the first open court date after the 10-day period had elapsed.

Governor Speaks —

Bright Side Of State Finances Is Outlined

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Gov. Price Daniel has taken a stand against a general sales tax and state income taxes to provide Texas with needed increased revenue. He favors other methods, including corporate tax increases. Here, in a series of articles for UPI, he discusses the tax issue and makes his own proposals.)

By GOV. PRICE DANIEL
(Written for UPI)

Let the bright side of Texas state finances be completely obscured by the fight over new taxes, the following facts should be remembered:

1. The net balance in all state general and special funds is one billion dollars. It is only the general fund which has a deficit.
2. Forty-three states have higher per capita state taxes than Texas.
3. Thirty-six states have a higher per capita state debt than Texas.
4. Texas state government is more economically administered than any other state's. We have fewer state employees per capita of population, and only one state spends less per capita on administration costs.
5. Texas is one of the three remaining states which have no state income tax and no general sales tax. Twenty-two states have both.
6. Texas is not alone in its need for new revenue. Most of the other states are facing, or have recently faced, the same or larger tax problems.

Increased population is the main reason Texas needs more money in its general fund. It is that fund which furnished money for our public schools, colleges, hospitals, charitable institutions, law enforcement, old age assistance, and other essential programs. With more than 80,000 new students entering our public schools each year and the effect of general population increases on other state programs and institutions, most everyone is agreed that Texas must raise a large amount of new revenue for the years ahead.

Most people agree that the new population should help pay the new taxes and that Texas needs a broad-based growth tax to supplement its present revenue.

I contend that the new growth tax should be levied in accordance with ability to pay and be broad enough to include gas pipeline companies, interstate corpolabor practices charges against four of the striking unions. Separate charges were filed by Vasey and Anthony J. Cardinale, coordinator of the tanker labor service committee. The management groups asked the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) to order the four unions to drop demands that some 500 foreign flag ships operated by U.S. firms be unionized.

Foreign flag registry of American-owned vessels has been a major stumbling block in negotiations between shipowners and the unions. The unions contend that ships under so-called "runaway flags" — usually those of Panama, Honduras or Liberia — are used by owners to lower operating costs by escaping union pay, safety and benefit standards. Named in the charges were the National Maritime Union (NMU), the largest of the striking groups with 37,000 unlicensed seamen as members; Masters, Mates and Pilots; Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, and the American Radio Association.

Stock Mart Probe Gets Under Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House investigators began an inquiry today into stock market practices to determine whether present regulations are adequate to protect investors.

Chairman Peter F. Mack Jr., D-Ill., of a House commerce subcommittee on finance, said in an opening statement that he was "alarmed" at recent market developments and that others shared his concern.

Mack cited recent cases of manipulation and warnings by exchange officials against unwarranted speculation. He had said previously he thought stock prices might have been pushed too high in relation to dividends.

As its first witness, the subcommittee called William L. Cary, chairman of the Securities & Exchange Commission (SEC), to discuss possible revision of regulations and laws governing the sale of securities on the established exchanges as well as over the counter.

In addition to developing information on the various U.S. markets, the subcommittee hoped to convince Congress it should authorize a far-reaching $750,000 study by the SEC.

Mack pointed to two recent warnings by G. Keith Funston, president of the giant New York Stock Exchange, and a number of warnings from brokerage firms to back up his statement that responsible officials were worried about the present state of the securities markets.

He said the last general overhaul of the stock and bonds regulations was completed in 1938. "In view of the more than 20 years that have elapsed since that time," Mack said, "it has seemed to us that it is now highly appropriate again to review these rules governing the activities of various security markets to see whether they are adequate to protect investors."

WITNESSES END MEETING
NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of Jehovah's Witnesses, winding up their six-day assembly in Yankee Stadium Sunday, heard the United Nations dubbed "a failure at unification."

Gimmick Needed As Reminder To Keep City Clean

Mayor E. C. Sidwell publicly commended Commissioner L. P. Fort at today's City Commission meeting for rolling up his sleeves the other day and cutting the weeds on a vacant lot on the city's south side.

"It shows we are not all chiefs," the mayor said, "and there are some Indians on the commission."

Mainly, the mayor said, he thought Commissioner Fort's weed cutting job pointed up to Pampans the necessity of weed cutting and also of keeping Pampa clean.

"We need some kind of a campaign — not only for weeds," the mayor said, "but to discourage terbugs from throwing soft drink cartons, bottles, and beer cans city streets."

The mayor said he would welcome suggestions for some kind of a gimmick that would call to the attention of all Pampans the necessity of keeping the city clean.

"The Fire Prevention people have 'Smokey the Bear' as a warning not to start fires," the mayor said, "What we need is a good reminder about the paper cups, bottles, and cans that are being thrown on the streets."

Anybody with suggestions for a good "Keep Pampa Clean" sign are asked to mail them to the mayor at Pampa City Hall.

Hearing Started On Sabine River Control Project

AUSTIN (UPI) — The state board of water engineers began a public hearing yesterday on an application by the Sabine River Authority to construct a reservoir at Toledo Bend.

Tentative approval for a $15 million loan for the project was given Friday by the Water Development Board, pending determination of the feasibility of construction by the Board of Water Engineers.

The reservoir, to impound 4.4 million acre-feet of water, would be located in Newton, Sabine and Shelby counties. The spillway would be 23 miles northeast of Newton, Tex.

The water use would be subject to the Sabine River Compact between Texas and Louisiana. Both states are contributing equally to the $40 million project.

The Sabine River Authority seeks permission to use annually 100,000 acre-feet of water from the reservoir for municipal purposes; 2.29 million acre-feet for industrial purposes; 50,000 acre-feet for irrigation, and 6.5 million acre-feet for hydro-electric power.

Hearings before the three-member board are expected to continue most of the week.

Johnson's Long Tour Starts Expense Tilt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats and Republicans, who rarely have any trouble finding things to argue about, now are publicly suspecting each other of being kind to newspapermen.

Each side figures the other has subsidized press travel to make sure its activities are covered. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's recent world trip got the argument started. Correspondents were billed $1,200 each for air travel with Johnson but Rep. William H. Avery, R-Kan., told the House last week their transportation really cost more.

Today the several overseas tours of Ezra Taft Benson, former secretary of agriculture, were cited as having been considerably cheaper than Johnson's for reporters. Benson, according to Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., carried his press contingent free.

There were some differences in the arrangements. Benson's press corps traveled in a government plane with him. The presumption was that their going along added nothing to the cost of the flight. The Johnson press contingent traveled in a separate chartered jet liner, along with some government people.

According to figures put into the Congressional Record by Avery, the $37,000 in fares paid by 31 reporters with Johnson left a net $110,000 tab for the charter to be picked up by the State Department.

"I just wonder," he asked, "what is the policy of the government as far as subsidizing press coverage of a trip like that taken recently by the vice president?"

Rep. John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., replied that Avery's figures were about right but that his conclusions were wrong.

He said the fact was the extra plane had to go along anyway, in case Johnson's Air Force jet ran into trouble, which it did, and to haul an overflow of government people. So the net effect of taking along the reporters was to save the taxpayers almost $40,000, he said.

The exchange, and other comments on the subject, set Fountain to searching the records. In a statement issued today, he said Benson took five foreign trips on government planes, taking along members of his family and, on four of the trips, from five to 10 newspapermen.

He said these flights cost taxpayers $184,926 against an estimated $40,800 had the official party traveled by commercial air carrier. He said newsmen on the trips were not charged for their passage.

Except for the first trip — an around-the-world jaunt in 1957 — he said Benson also allowed the government to foot the transportation bills for his relatives, who on one or more of the tours included his wife, four daughters, a son, a daughter-in-law, and a son-in-law, the latter a Canadian citizen.

Agency Believes Camping Record May Be Broken

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall, an ardent camper, believes that use of national park system campsites will set a record this year.

He said the national parks now have facilities available for about 60,000 campers per day, in areas ranging from the semi-tropical Florida Everglades to the snow-covered peaks of the Rockies.

Campers set a record of 4,839,700 camp-use days last year, Udall said, an increase of 139,000 over 1959, the previous record year.

National Park Service Director Conrad L. Wirth said existing campsites are being improved and new ones are being constructed every year under Mission 66, the service's conservation and development program.

This program proposes completion of 30,000 campsites, capable of handling more than 100,000 campers a day, by 1966. During the first five years of the program, started July 1, 1956, about 7,000 new or rehabilitated campsites have been completed, Wirth said.

This means there now are about 20,000 campsites capable of handling about 60,000 campers a day. To meet the increasing demand for campsites, the National Park Service currently has plans to spend about $1,622,500 for picnic areas and camp ground development, expansion, rehabilitation and improvements in 19 areas of the park system.

Sites for the improvements include Everglades National Park, Chesapeake and Ohio Canal National Monument in Maryland, Virgin Islands National Park, Bryce Canyon National Park in Utah, Glacier National Park in Montana, Yellowstone National Park in Montana-Wyoming-Idaho; Dinosaur National Monument in Utah-Colorado; Lake Mead National Recreation Area in Arizona-Nevada; Theodore Roosevelt National Memorial Park in North Dakota; Timpanogos Cave National Monument in Utah; Hawaii National Park, and Lassen Volcanic National Park, Sequoia-Kings Canyon National Parks, Joshua Tree National Monument and Pinnacles National Monument, all in California.

FBI Holds Two As Car Theft Ring Is Broken

DALLAS (UPI) — The FBI arrested two Dallas men yesterday to complete the breakup of a car-theft ring that shuttled $25,000 worth of late-model cars between Oklahoma, Dallas and California.

Curtis O. Lynam, special FBI agent in Dallas, said the arrest of Clark Boyd Hamilton, 41, and Kenneth Leon Looper, 31, brings the total number arrested in the case to four persons.

The FBI previously arrested Orville Wilburn Reynolds, a former Durant, Okla. sheriff, and James Matthew Cunningham of Oklahoma City. Lynam said the four were the nucleus of the car-theft ring. Hamilton and Looper were charged with conspiracy in the case. They will appear before U. S. Commissioner William Madden Hill later today.

Analysis Firm Helps Discover Company Needs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Robert A. Whitney believes that many a slipping company doesn't know what ails it.

So he carefully put together the conclusions reached by 1,200 good and lively brains and came up four years ago with the Management and Marketing Audits Institute, set up with the idea of helping executives and fiscal officers help themselves to improve a business or an industry.

The 48-year-old Whitney with a long background of study of sales and promotion behind him including nine years as head of the National Sales Executives Inc. calls his work "an integrated program of market analysis." He said it can be put to work for any concern.

What makes up Whitney's idea of a market analysis goes far beyond what the words would imply.

In 1952 he started a graduate school of sales management and marketing at Syracuse University and stayed with it for five years.

It embraced a five-week course in management training and it was from the ideas of the 1200-odd men who went through the course in that time that he put together — with some embellishments of his own — the format for the audit of a business operation.

It covers all phases of a business and industry, from its man power to its markets, from its costs to its communications, just as an auditing firm would cover all phases of its finances.

"Basically, it's simple," Whitney said in an interview. "It is based on the premise that people do not do what is expected of them, but what they have been asked to do, what they have set as targets for them, and what they are personally responsible for."

Naturally, Whitney said, his audit will turn up things about an industry that are not even recognized by its own executives.

"One of the weaknesses of present day business is that management is too far removed," he said. "Answers given by its own people to its problems are not objective."

To give a business executive an idea of what a marketing audit will do, Whitney's organization set up an easy-to-read chart, which presented the idea as a sort of wheel with four main segments: planning, directing, coordinating and controlling. Each of the four main segments is divided into 11 specific fields.

Executives of the company to be audited take a look at the choices and select usually 10 fields of the company's operations. A report is made back to them in 30 days; again in 60, again in 90.

The report itself is broken down into a simple statement of what the Whitney outfit has found to be the problem; what it recommends be done about it; a comment by the top management; the decision made on the recommendation — and last but not least, the man who will carry out the suggestion.

When you spend time at the beach this summer, remember to protect your eyes and your hair as well as your skin from the sun's rays. Wear sunglasses (left) since sun can cause serious damage to delicate eye tissue. A large beach hat (center) will provide shade for your eyes and hair, too. Ruth Millett Tips For Getting Along With Son-In-Law

Here's how to be a welcome guest in the home of a son-in-law. DON'T: Tell your daughter in front of her husband how successful the man she didn't marry has turned out to be. DON'T: Tell your son-in-law you think your daughter is working entirely too hard. DON'T: Make your daughter dissatisfied with the kind of life she is leading. DON'T: Jump to your daughter's defense if her husband criticizes something she does. DON'T: Encourage your daughter to go downtown and spend more money than she can afford on clothes simply because you always saw to it that she had everything she wanted when she was at home. DON'T: Buy your daughter something expensive that her husband has been promising to buy her as soon as he can manage. DON'T: Show your disapproval when your grandchildren are dis-

Ask The Designer

Dear Gail: I would like to know what the average life of a good dress, suit or coat is considered to be? I have always bought the very best things that I could afford and some of my clothes are quite expensive. I've had some things for five years and even more and they are still favorites. But I'm afraid they may look dated even though I love them—R.V. Dear R. V.: Good clothes don't go out of style easily and some fashions are always a pleasure to wear. I discussed your problem with Dorothy Q'Hara, a California designer known for her beautiful and very feminine clothes. She says: "This is a question that women often ask me! It's not at all unusual for a woman to wear a set dress five years or more. Some things are always good and, of course, you're always adding new clothes to your wardrobe. Sometimes you enjoy wearing a particular dress because of the happy times you've had while wearing it. Or just because it's fun to put on. Or because it's in a marvelous fabric. I often cut one style in six colors and the same fabric just for myself. This is because I enjoy the style so much!" Dear Gail: We have just had our first baby and I am taking stock of my clothes. Frankly, I'm just a little worried. We haven't much money and I must make use of the tops of my maternity outfits. But how can I wear them in combination with skirts without everyone realizing that they were maternity clothes? I want to look as neat as possible.—Mrs. J.P.A. Dear Mrs. J. P. A.: Of course you want to look pretty! And remember, most young couples starting out haven't much money. So you've got lots of company. I talked your problem over with designer Joanne Campbell of Sports-Whirl. She says: "Bolt those tops! Or, better yet, shorten them to crop top length. Other ideas are to make them all waistlength, then gather them in with elastic at the waistline. Or, leave them long but use elastic to define the waistline. Then you can use them with straight or pleated skirts. Try to achieve a smart look through your color combinations. If the tops are light and bright, look for the same color in a deeper tone to use for skirts. Or use a smashing, contrasting color. This will help to pick up your spirits, too!"

CRISIS IN THE SUPERMARKET

Groping to recall her name, I caught her nod and smile. And played the old "how are you" game along the grocery aisle. "You're looking well. Do you shop here?" I bluffed a lovely chat—Till four-year-old said, loud and clear, "Mama, who is that?"

Polly's Quiz

Artificial flowers have gained acceptance as part of our decorative schemes and without apologies. Fresh flowers, of course always are more desirable but not always possible for many reasons. Bad fake flowers as well as good ones are made, so select them with care. Be sure they are faithful facsimiles of the real thing. If fake flowers are to be successful in their "stand-in" role, arrangements must be artistically made and the containers carefully chosen. Often it is money well spent to have a florist make the arrangement after briefing him on the room, its colors, intended placement of the bouquet and an idea of size needed. Yesterday I received, from an imaginative florist, a small black urn holding a few sprays of apple blossoms so beautifully arranged that I had to touch them to determine that they were false. I'll enjoy them for months to come. Dear Polly: Our living room wallpaper is light gray and white textured paper, drapes are a light white and a wing chair is pale gold. We want new beyond wall-to-wall carpet, a new sofa and two new chairs. What colors, fabrics would you suggest? Please answer while my husband is still in the mood!—Mrs. J. E. Dear Mrs. J. E.: I hope he doesn't change his mind while I'm typing this. I suggest a gold and gray tweed carpet. For the sofa, a gay quilted polished cotton with golden yellow and white flowers with green leaves on a gray ground. The two new chairs could be covered with a green linenlike weave. Dear Polly: I am planning my

Parents Urged To Help Build U.S. Prestige

JERRY BENNETT, Newspaper Enterprise Assn., WASHINGTON (NEA) — Boosting U.S. prestige and keeping it on a high level has a lot to do with how you rear your children. This is the opinion of Rep. Catherine Norrell, new Democratic congresswoman from Monticello, Ark., who views the home as the basis for a strong America. "The most important way that each individual citizen can help raise the prestige of his country is to be a good citizen," Mrs. Norrell explains. "This means having her husband's 22 years in—the House, she was actively involved in his political career. She worked in his Capitol Hill office, managed two of his political campaigns and served two years as president of the Congressional Club, composed of wives, daughters and mothers of members of Congress, the Supreme Court and the Cabinet. Thus, Mrs. Norrell has known most of her colleagues and their families for years. Another point in her political favor is that she has not had to hunt for an experienced, loyal office staff. All of her assistants are former employees of her husband. Mrs. Norrell is extremely enthusiastic about her job. In addition to loving politics, she explains there is a great deal of satisfaction in knowing "that people have enough confidence in your judgment and ability to elect you to office." She also considers it an honor to be "part of a deliberating body which makes the laws of the country—laws which many times affect affairs outside the U.S."

When it comes to political integrity, Mrs. Norrell believes that she had the best possible teacher—her late husband, Rep. Bill Norrell, whose unexpired term she is filling. Mrs. Norrell won the special April election in Arkansas that was called following her husband's death in February. Although she is the newest representative on Capitol Hill, Mrs. Norrell is far from inexperienced in congressional politics. During

Summer Fashions Given Big Send-Off With Bold Stripes And Clashing Colors

NEW YORK (NEA) — Bold stripes inspired by billowy sails, clashing color arrangements and slim, straight lines give summer sports separates a big send-off. There was a time when no girl who considered herself the least bit chic would have dreamed of appearing in a combination like mauve and orange. But she will this summer. For one imaginative designer has teamed a handsome orange pullover, with a mauve shirt, mauve shorts. That isn't the end of startling color combinations. Aqua, for instance, pairs with apricot green and pink with red and white. Stripes are bigger and bolder than ever before, in color and width. The secret of controlling this color riot so that things don't get out of hand lies in careful coordination. There is nothing sloppy in this new use of color; everything is carefully planned; the result is dazzling, not horrifying. The beach dress is a big summer fashion this year. Sun parkas follow suit. You'll also be seeing and wearing knee-capper pants and longline boaters. The approach to all of these is slim, straight and casual. Cotton knits in the fashion news include a new flat knit, one-on-one patterns and stripes of all kinds. In the wovens, there's a crisp, solid color cotton sharkskin.

integrity in all of your personal, political and business dealings. "The most important time to learn integrity is when you are young. I definitely think it's up to the parents to instill in children the principles that should guide them throughout life." Dear Abby... Girl Too Young To Ride In Hearse

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a darling boy. I like everything about him but one thing. When he takes me on a date, he uses his father's car. His father is a mortician and the car is a hearse. People are always looking at us, and when we park it anywhere, we collect a crowd. He isn't bothered by it at all, but I am. My father teases me and my mother has asked me to have him pick me up after dark so the neighbors won't see us. Tell me, honestly, do you think I should tell him I wouldn't mind walking or taking the bus? Or should I ignore the teasing and ride in that car?

EMBARRASSED DEAR EMBARRASSED: If you are "embarrassed" (and who could blame you?), tell the young man you are not ready to ride in a hearse yet. DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle an argument for us? My husband and I frequently eat dinner out. We are quite well-known here so, oftentimes when we are in a restaurant, friends stop by our table to say hello. When a woman would approach our table, my husband would always stand up. And he would remain standing as long as she stood there, even though she's say, "Please sit down."

Lately, when a woman stops at our table to say hello, my husband stands. But when she says, "Please sit down," he sits down while she is still standing there. I say that no matter what the lady SAYS, my husband should not sit down while she is standing. He says I am wrong.

MRS. ETTA KETT DEAR MRS. ETTA KETT: A GENTLEMAN always stands when a LADY stops at his table to say hello. But if she stands there for more than 30 seconds, she is no LADY — in which case—the gentleman may be seated.

DEAR ABBY: What can I do with a husband who is as good as gold to his wife and kids, but who spends money like they are going to quit making it tomorrow? He gives me almost his whole pay check to pay the bills, but he runs up the bills so high there is never enough to pay them. He is always buying fishing gear, or hunting equipment or something else for the car that we need like a hole in the head. I don't like to nag him because he loses his temper. He's really a wonderful guy, but what am I going to do with him?

ALWAYS BROKE DEAR ALWAYS: To "nag" is to harp constantly on things of minor importance. To remind your husband that his credit is going to the dogs, and the security of his family is threatened, can hardly be called "nagging." Sit this big, overgrown kid down and introduce him to a budget. Chase your charge accounts. Buy only for cash — and save something for a rainy day.

What's bothering you? For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 1365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. For Abby's biweekly "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 30 cents to Abby, Box 1365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

tending George Washington University Law School. Mrs. Norrell says that since assuming office she has had little time for anything but politics. Most of her evenings are taken up with constituents or various political affairs.

Hot Weather Can Be More Bearable With Pretty, Refreshing Wearables

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

When planning to make warm weather dresses, keep a close eye on washability — one wearing usually sends a garment to the tub. Choose fabrics that will look bright and lovely and require a minimum of ironing after washing. Choose your trimmings so they also can come from the iron looking like new. With all the really exciting plaids and stripes on the market, there's a choice of fabrics that require no trimming at all — just nice, substantial seams. There are flat, grain-matched facings, and buttons and zippers that know their way to and from the washer. I write of warm weather dresses, yet show a stole. The reason: so many of the "better" sleeveless dresses have stoles of the same fabric. Usually these are 2 1/2 yards long, 18 inches wide, made double — all seams turned inside. Buy a plaid and a plain fabric; make two dresses to wear with one stole.

Turn and stitch top edge of the hems of skirts and overblouses before slip stitching in place; a smoother edge is assured, and one that looks better after ironing. Some loose overblouses with a bateau neck, such as the one shown, can be slipped over the head and do not require a zipper. If you want yours shaped in, then fit both sides at the waistline and use a zipper on right side. Some of us use stripes lengthwise in skirt, crosswise in blouse. Better shops show plain skirts or slacks with crosswise stripe blouses.

Dear Mrs. Picken: How can I let the hems of my little daughters' dresses down without the original hem crease showing? —E.W. Dear E. W.: There are several things you can do. You can make a tiny tuck over the crease, with a row of stitching above and below it. You can stitch rick rack or bias binding over the crease, perhaps using rows — one above, another below the one that covers the crease. You can use braid or beading. Some like to use the narrow embroidery ruffling. Have the trimming, whatever it is, look like it belonged.

The Mature Parent Give Children Simple Reason For Divorce

As the New York Times Magazine tells it, a group of children in a prosperous suburban community were asked to write their views on adults — parents, teachers, etc. Without identifying themselves by name, they did so. One view was: "My mother and father got divorced. And I didn't know why because they never told me. So sometimes when I am lonely I ask my father but he says I wouldn't understand, but I do understand when they tell me things. And so he would have understood all he needed to understand had his father said. "Mother and I got divorced because we stopped liking each other the way we used to. This can happen to grownups just as it happens between children. Though grownups don't stop liking their children, they sometimes stop liking each other and can't live together any more." But divorcing parents can seldom settle for their child's incomplete understanding. Overwhelmed by their need to justify themselves, they want him to understand everything — their sexual hurts, their dinged but futile efforts in career communication, their remembered humili-

Medical Ranks Need Clean-Up, Doctors Warned

NEW YORK (UPI)—Doctors convening here for the annual meeting of the American Medical Association were told yesterday they must throw out "incompetent" and "unethical" physicians or the public will demand a cleanup by other agencies.

Dr. Leonard W. Larson, AMA president-elect, urged the crack-down after a special committee reported that the profession was not adequately policed by its own members.

The committee charged in a 96-page report based on a 2½-year study that many doctors have failed to live up to ethical standards. It called for "prompt, specific and drastic action" to deal with offenders.

Larson said: "The percentage of physicians who do not observe the law or the dictates of good conscience is infinitesimal compared with the number of doctors who conscientiously provide the patients with the best possible medical care."

"However, that tiny fraction must be excised from the body of medicine, lest it grow like a cancer and thus pollute and corrupt the entire profession."

The doctors listened to severe criticism of physicians who overcharge and engage in other "medical misconduct."

The report disclosed that 349 physicians were disciplined last year by state medical groups and licensing agencies. Of these, 68 had their licenses revoked.

The study revealed that among the most common complaints by patients were:

Excessive fees.
Abuse of health insurance, including fee padding and charging for services not performed.

Unnecessary surgery, fee-splitting, professional incompetence the refusal to answer calls.

"Perversion of medical testimony" (the committee said some insurance companies swore some doctors had been consistently lying in court).

Unethical advertising.
Narcotic addiction.
The association with "cultists, quacks and faddists."

COOLING OFF AT A HOT SPOT—These thousands of West Berliners are trying to cool off at Lake Wannsee, one of the hottest spots in the world. The heat is not so much thermometer heat as it is cold war heat. Being surrounded on all sides by Communist East Germany makes the popular resort hot enough, and Khrushchev didn't help with his recent remark likening West Berlin to a bone stuck in the Soviet throat which must be spat out. Blithe throngs ignore it all.

Seeker Of Loans Offered Counsel By Credit Expert

NEW YORK (UPI)—A man who makes those tried and true adjectives—frank and earnest—fit his credit application is most likely to stay out of trouble on an installment loan, a bankers' representative advised today.

Be frank, he advised, in telling just what is wanted with the money and how you are financially fixed to handle a loan. Earnest, in preparation for getting the loan and paying it back.

Noting the many uses for which citizens now use installment credit—for purchase of automobiles, household goods and to meet personal emergencies such as unexpected illness, Louis J. Astrita, deputy manager and secretary of the Installment Credit Committee of the American Bankers' Association, offered these tips to a would-be borrower from a bank.

—Talk to his local banker when he needs credit. Banks are in business to make loans, Asterita said, and the banker's only concern about the loan application is whether the borrower can handle it comfortably. And the banker needs "wholehearted cooperation" from the applicant in determining credit risk.

—Make sure he is not taking on too much debt. Let the banker offer advice on this, because there's no one rule of thumb to cover all families.

—Borrow only for a worthwhile purpose—paying medical or dental expenses, taking a vacation, purchasing a home appliance. Bankers feel borrowers will be conscientious in repaying a loan that is necessary.

—Leave room for emergencies. Do not budget monthly installment payments too close to your total monthly income. Try to keep a savings "cushion" in the bank, whether you take out a loan or not.

—Take into account only what income is not already pledged in discussing credit. Remember to consider your take-home pay in terms of what is sure to come out of it—mortgage or rent, food, clothing, utilities, fuel, taxes, insurance, transportation and regular savings. Then figure what's left for repayment of the installment loan.

Mexico University Division Pondered

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—The National University of Mexico is faced with a serious problem in its rapidly growing student body, education authorities said today.

At present, there are more than 55,000 students attending the university. Officials said the only solution lay in creating more universities in provincial areas to prevent "centralization" of higher education.

DIVORCES INCREASE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Census Bureau reported Sunday night that the number of divorced persons in the United States increased by 28.3 per cent between 1950 and 1960.

It said there were 3,142,320 divorced persons in 1960. There was an increase of 33.5 per cent in the number of women divorced and not remarried.

2 NL Teams To Pay 125 Gs For Players

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National League agreed today to offer experienced players at "bonus baby" prices, $125,000 each, to make its two new clubs competitive in their initiation in 1962.

The league voted unanimously for a plan to stock the new teams at New York and Houston with a maximum of 28 players or a minimum of 20 at a price for each of the newcomers from $1.7 million to a maximum of $2.1 million.

"It is a much stronger plan than that of the American League," National League President Warren Giles said, "because we are making available to them more experienced players which should help them."

The National League system otherwise, however, resembled closely the American League plan.

Initially, each of the eight present teams will make available after the World Series seven players from its active list of 25 as of Aug. 31 and eight others from the 15 additional players directly under control of the major league teams.

New York and Houston each must take two listed players from each of the present clubs at a price of $75,000 each to give the new teams 16 players each.

Then, each new team may take one player from the list of each present club at a price of $50,000 each, giving them a possibility of choosing eight players.

After these selections have been made, the present clubs then will designate two "special" players from their active lists and each of the new teams then must select alternately one player from each team at a price of $125,000 each. This provision will give each of the new teams four players.

The American League plan had a set price of $75,000 per player and each of the new teams beginning competition this year, Los Angeles and Washington, was permitted to select 28 players from a total pool of 120 made available by the eight previous American League members in the same fashion that the National League will prepare its initial pool.

Each of the present National League clubs will lose a minimum of five players and could lose as many as seven. However, each will receive a minimum payment of $425,000 and could receive $525,000.

The National League plan was B&B Pounds Crall, 18-15

B&B Pharmacy defeated Crall, 18-15 in an error-filled game played Friday night at Western Park. Keith Burns, with help from Gary McCarrell in the fourth, was the winner. Mike Osborne was the loser.

Burns and Rob Clements paced the winners with three hits each with Jim Hollis chipping in with a pair.

Gary Parrish had a three-run homer for the losers, and John Kuhn had two hits.

B&B is now 10-2 for the season.

Yank Trio Advance In Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Chuck McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., the only seeded American in the men's singles competition, belatedly launches his bid for the Wimbledon tennis championship today when he faces Sergio Tacchini of Italy.

McKinley, seeded eighth in the men's singles was one of 10 Yanks who failed to see action Monday when rain and darkness curtailed the opening program.

Three Yanks reached the second round of the men's singles Monday before the program was halted. Two other Americans were eliminated and three compatriots had their matches interrupted by a combination of the rain and failing light.

Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, N.Y., had little trouble with Enrique Morea, defeating the Argentinian, 7-5, 7-5, 6-3. But Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., and Crawford Henry of Atlanta each were forced to four sets before advancing.

Froehling beat John Barrett of England, 6-2 4-6 6-2 6-4 while Henry defeated Michael Hann another Englishman 4-6 6-2 6-4 6-4. Knocked out of the tournament on opening day were Rudy Hernandez of Modesto, Calif., and John Lesch of Los Angeles.

Hernando drew the tough assignment of taking on Neale Fraser of Australia, the defending champion who is seeded No. 1. Hernandez proved unequal to the task on the wet and slippery grass and went down in short order, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

Lesch was eliminated by Robert Howe of Australia, 6-4, 6-1, 6-1.

Jack Douglas of Santa Monica, Calif., resumes play against John Hillebrand of Australia, leading 2-0 but Gardner Mulloy, 47-year-old Coral Gables, Fla., veteran and Bob Siska of San Francisco pick up their first round matches approved after none of the longest business sessions in the history of the league, a boisterous meeting during which there were numerous outbreaks of shouts and frequent gavel-banging by Giles.

However, the proposal was approved unanimously, even though only six votes were needed to pass the plan, and Giles said all teams were "cooperative."

Both the National and American Leagues were to meet in joint session today with Commissioner Ford Frick. They were to discuss the possibility of a rule to curb recent heavy spending for bonus players and legislation pending in Washington regarding baseball.

The American League discussed the items on this agenda at a meeting Monday.

Minor League All-Stars Tip Indians, 2-0

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The International League has squared its annual all-star series with major league opposition on the strength of the fireballing of five pitchers and a clutch hit by ex-Kansas City utility infielder Bob Johnson.

A record crowd of 20,000 saw Ray Washburn of Charleston, Bob Veale of Columbus, Bob Duliha of Charleston, Max Surkont of Buffalo and Orlando Pena of Jersey City combine for a two-hitter and strike out 11 batters Monday night to give the I.L. stars a 2-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Johnson, who hit only .205 for Kansas City last season, drove in both of the International League's runs with a single with two out in the fifth inning.

Connolly Blasts AAU For 'Poor' Organizing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hammer thrower Hal Connolly was the latest Olympian to blast the Amateur Athletic Union today for its "poor" organization of the American track and field team which will meet Russia's best athletes in a dual meet at Moscow, July 15-16.

"The AAU officials organized these tours to fit their own trip schedule and plans," said Connolly, who was one of seven athletes who turned down an all-expense-paid trip to Russia and three other countries next month.

"The Russians came over here (in 1959) for one meet," Connolly adds. "We have to go over there to take part in four meets. If the trip were run correctly, we would be willing to make sacrifices. But who wants to make a sacrifice when there is no joy in it?"

"I remember the last trip (to Russia) very vividly because it was so poorly organized. And the Rome Olympics were not run much better so far as our team was concerned. The older athletes know this, too. Let the younger athletes find out for themselves."

Shot putter Parry O'Brien, another former Olympic champion, and Olympic discus champion Al Oerter stated similar reasons for skipping the European tour.

"The only meet that really counts is that with Russia," said O'Brien. "The eyes of the world will be on that meet, and it's too bad our officials can't make some provision for the best men to take part even if they can't spend a month abroad."

Oerter said he was passing up the trip for several reasons, one of them being that "the AAU works for the AAU on these tours and not for the athletes."

Others who declined invitations to make this year's European tour were discus thrower Rink Babka, hammer thrower Al Hall, pole vaulter Ron Morris and shot-putter Dalas Long.

Except for Long, who must take summer courses at Southern California to qualify for dental school, all seven athletes are married and reluctant to take time off from jobs for another track trip.

Says Musial

Bat Is Responsible For Home Run Derby

NEW YORK (UPI) — The secret of the modern home run hitters is out at last — it's the bat and not the ball that's responsible for the ever-increasing productivity of major league sluggers.

The authority for this news is no less an expert than Stan Musial, the National League's greatest hitter since Rogers Hornsby and a seven-time batting champion. Now 40 and nearing the end of his record-filled career, Musial gave his views on the evolution in the art of hitting during the last 20 years and in customary Musial fashion — his opinions made sense.

"Of course the ball is lively," said Musial. "But the big change in the game during my career has been in the bats, not the ball."

According to Musial, a whole new concept of long-ball hitting is behind the change — a change which has produced a new crop of .250 and .260 home run hitters. Foremost among these this season is the Yankee Roger Maris who is hitting home runs at the record Ruthian pace despite an average in the .250's.

Other examples of high home-hitting but low average wallowers are Rocky Colavito of the Detroit Tigers (19 homers and a .274 average); Bob Allison of the Minnesota Twins (12 and .241); Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants (11 and .249) and numerous others.

"When I broke in it was fashionable for the home run hitters to swing thick, heavy bats weighing 38 to 40 ounces and in some instances all the way up to 44 or even 48 ounces," explained Musial. "Then the idea developed that the speed of the bat at the moment of contact with the ball was the key to long distance hitting and the result was the production of the new light, tapered bats with skinny handles and most of the wood at the upper end."

"These bats have terrific driving power," Musial continued. "A ball that is hit with the thick upper end takes off like a skyrocket. On the other hand, the modern hitter who hits a ball down near the end of the handle can't hope to get enough wood on it to push it over or past an infielder."

"Thus," concluded Musial, "you have hitters who hit terrific drives when they connect solidly but don't have enough wood all along the bat to punch out shorter hits when they don't connect with the thickest part of the bat."

Musial pointed out that this is the reason for the remarkable success pitchers have with the "slider." The "slider" is scoffed at by some experts as a "nickel curve" because it doesn't have the full break of the standard curve.

The slider is perfectly suited for the modern pitcher because it breaks sharply, although not too far," said Musial. "In other words it breaks just enough so that the hitter can't get the heavy end of the bat on it and consequently taps out weak grounders or easy infield pops when he connects with the slender wood nearer the

Ford Bags 13th With Slight Aid From Luis

United Press International
Whitey Ford knows today what Lefty Gomez meant when he said it's great to be good and better to be lucky.

Ford has been a mighty good pitcher since he joined the New York Yankees in 1950 but he'd be the first to admit a little extra luck this year has him en route to becoming the biggest winner the Yankees have had in more than 25 years.

Ford chalked up victory number 13 of the current season Monday night when the Yankees rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to beat the Los Angeles

Angels, 8-6, and move to within one game of the first-place Detroit Tigers in the American League. Bill Skowron provided the winning margin with a three-run ninth-inning homer and then Luis Arroyo, the little reliever from Puerto Rico, protected the win with a scoreless ninth.

With 13 victories to his credit, Ford is almost certain to become the biggest Yankee winner in a single season since Gomez compiled a 26-5 record in 1934. Since then the Yankees have had many 20-game winners, including Red Ruffing, Ernie Bonham, Spud Chandler, Vic Raschi, Ed Lopat and Bob Turley, but none has won more than 21 games.

Ford, who never has won more than 19 games in a single season, yielded homers to Albie Pearson, Steve Bilko and Ken Hunt and trailed, 6-5, when the Yankees went to bat in the ninth. Relief pitcher Jim Donohue, however, walked two batters and then Skowron, who went 1-for-13 in the Yankees' first visit to Los Angeles last May, connected for the game-winning blow off Art Fowler.

Mickey Mantle and Johnny Blanchard also homered for the Yanks.

The Philadelphia Phillies shut-out the San Francisco Giants, 1-0, and the Milwaukee Braves defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 9-6, in Monday's only other major league action.

Jim Owens, who quit the Phillies in a huff during spring training, went six innings in his first start of the year to gain credit for the victory. He asked to be relieved when his arm stiffened after the sixth and Dallas Green protected the one-run lead through the final three innings.

The Phillies scored the only run of the game in the fourth inning when Don Demeter hit a 440-foot triple over center-fielder Willie Mays' head and Charley Smith followed with a single. Jack Sanford pitched four-hit ball for six innings but suffered his fifth loss against three wins.

Manager Alvin Dark of the Giants was so frustrated by the defeat, during which the Giants left 12 runners on base, that he hurled a metal stool across the clubhouse and suffered a severe gash on his right index finger.

LIGHTS! ACTION! CAMERA! — No director could have staged a better tableau than was snapped by the camera as it caught second baseman Frank Bolling being tagged out at third by San Francisco's Jim Davenport in Milwaukee. Hank Aaron singled to Orlando Cepeda in left field. Cepeda threw to Davenport. The emoting umpire is Shag Crawford and the supine gentleman is coach George Myatt who ducked to be out of the way of the ball.

Ways U.S. Can Lose Cold War Suggested

WASHINGTON — The Republican National Committee is circulating copies of an address by Congressman William E. Miller before the recent meeting of the Henrico County Republican in Richmond, Va. Congressman Miller branded the "New Frontier" administration forces as "Tinkerologists."

In his remarks the congressman declared:

"Tinkerologists are scrambled eggheads with a special aptitude for impracticality. According to Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, tinkering is an unskillful attempt to mend or improve something.

"The best way to louse up a spanking new car in fine running condition is to turn it over to a tinkerologist. Good government — good Republican government that is — was rolling in high gear when the nation changed drivers last November. But look at it now!

"Our vehicle of state — accustomed to zooming along the high road — is temporarily parked in a cul de sac because it doesn't know whether to fly, swim, or go into lunar orbit.

"So, is it any wonder that Khrushchev dances and plays the bongos?

"Nothing is sacred to tinkerers. They swarm all over everything like ants at a picnic. They even chew upon the goodies that John Q. Public so carefully and prudently provided for himself without prior permission from a Big Brother in the nation's capital.

"Recently we had a prime example of tinkering by Attorney General Bobby Kennedy right here in Virginia. Thrusting aside states' rights as a matter of no consequence, he attempted to intervene in the Prince Edward school case. Happily the Federal courts flashed him a big, fat red light. But this is no reason to relax. We can expect new invasions of states' rights as par for the course.

"Incidentally, when the new administration in effect hands the people a vote of no confidence — which it has on several occasions — I for one, wish we might hand it right back to them.

"More and more as time goes on the President is going to learn that the Republican ways he criticized during the campaign are the best ways to run a government. And we've got to help him toward that end for our own good. Otherwise in '64 our task of rehabilitating the nation will be too terrible to contemplate.

"I'm deadly serious about this and here's why.

"Granted that world communism as symbolized by Nikita Khrushchev is our number one problem.

"Now if we were to devise a program that would accomplish the reverse of what we all seek

Bees Cause Re-Routing Of Traffic

MELROSE, N.M. (UPI) — A truck loaded with 200 beehives overturned on U.S. Highway 60 Sunday night and traffic had to be routed around the wreck.

Not because of the wreckage either—because of the bees.

They swarmed in thick clouds around the wreck, stung their owner more than 100 times and generally had the highway abuzz.

State policeman Wayne Nagley, who investigated, couldn't get close to the truck. He summoned the Melrose volunteer fire department, which came only partially prepared.

The firemen brought face masks but most of them were wearing short-sleeved shirts. And they were outnumbered about 200,000 to 1. It proved to be a ready-made situation for the bees.

They stung the firemen, stung Nagley and stung the truck driver, Jack Warner, 33, of Mission, Tex. But the bees' owner, J. K. Mc Claugherly of Monte Vista, collected the most battle scars.

Firemen finally hosed down the wreckage enough that the hives could be moved off the road. In the meantime traffic was moving around the wreck by going through a ditch.

Another truck was to pick up the hives today. The bees, unvanquished, spent the night swarmed on top of the hives.

RESEARCH DIVES PLANNED
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The blimp-shaped, deep-diving Trieste bathyscaphe will begin a series of 60 research dives off the southern California Coast in two weeks.

The craft, which made a record deep dive in the South Pacific last year, was taken out of drydock Monday.

SUB HUNTER — The Navy's new long-range antisubmarine weapon system "DASH" (drone antisubmarine helicopter) hovers in free flight over the deck of the USS Hazelwood. A homing torpedo is suspended under the drone. Unmanned 'copter has been in service nine months.
