Gunman Eludes State Officers

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Police said today they believe an escaped Massachusetts convict who kidnaped four persons and terrorized them with boasts he was a trigger-happy double-murderer has managed to escape a dragnet and is trying to make his way to Mexico.

A nation-wide hunt for Edward J. Goguen is underway by the FBI, but state and local police believe he is still in Texas if he hasn't managed to slip across the Mexican border.

Massachusetts authorities said Goguen, 22, is mean, but there is no record of him having killed

Embassy Worker Admits He Gave Secrets To Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Irvin C. Scarbeck, a "very likeable chap" known as "Doc" to his friends, had been a trusted diplomat at the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw for three years.

The greying, 41-year-old Scarbeck worked soberly and quietly as second secretary and general services officer, arranging travel through Communist Poland for embassy officers and ordering supplies.

But late last year, according to U.S. officials, Scarbeck fell prey to the charms of a 22-year-old Polish blonde, almost half his age.

"She turned out to be a Communist spy."

She told Scarbeck that if he didn't cooperate, she would expose their affair and his career would be ruined, sources said.

The FBI has charged Scarbeck passed U.S. secrets to the girl for four months before he was caught.

Scarbeck sat in the District of Columbia jail today, facing as much as 10 years in prison for giving U.S. security information to "an agent of the Peoples Republic of Poland."

Officials said there was no indication that Scarbeck would post his bond, set at $50,000.

The FBI said Scarbeck had signed statements admitting he gave secrets to the Communists from January through May. The FBI did not say anything about the Polish agent.

North Carolina Accords 'Riders' Quiet Treatment

By United Press International

Two biracial groups of "Freedom Riders" motored into North Carolina Tuesday, received what almost amounted to Southern hospitality, and were to depart today for other points in the South-east.

A party of 14 "union and professional workers" spent the night at a Negro hotel in Wilmington, N. C., and scheduled a trip to Charleston, S. C. today.

Another 14 riders, who call themselves the "interfaith group," spent an equally uneventful day at Raleigh, the capital, and planned to board a bus for Sumter, S. C., today.

anybody. He escaped from a state correctional institution at Concord on May 26, where he was serving a term for robbery and burglary, stole a car at Marlborough, Mass., and drove it to Texas.

"There is a strong possibility he is heading for San Antonio and is trying to get into Mexico," said Lt. Frank Crittenden, Houston homicide officer.

"We don't think he is in the Houston area at this time."

Goguen used a .38-caliber pistol Tuesday to kidnap A. J. Andrews, 75, Galveston, Tex.; Paul William Leach, 28, Dallas attorney; Joyce Jean Heney, 29, Galveston, and Albert H. Helms, 45, of Houston.

He kidnaped Andrews, Leach and Miss Heney in Galveston shortly after the car he stole in Massachusetts was involved in a wreck and he had to abandon it. He made them get in Leach's car and take him to Houston.

All three leaped out and ran when they stopped at a service station. Goguen ran too after he fired one shot at the backs of his victims.

Then he kidnaped Helms to get his 1959 Buick automobile and let Helms out at Pearland, Tex., on the outskirts of Houston.

"So far we haven't located Helms automobile, and if it was in the area we would have turned it up by this time," Lt. Crittenden said.

He bragged en route from Galveston to Houston in Leach's car that he had killed two persons and wouldn't mind killing three more. He said he was "hotter than a firecracker" in 15 states.

Nixon May Run For Governor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—William E. Miller, Republican National Committee chairman, predicts "as a personal guess" that Richard M. Nixon, former vice-president, will be a candidate for the governorship of California.

Miller made his prediction in response to a question during a meeting of the National Press Club.

He said that his guess was based on statements Nixon had made since the close of the presidential campaign during which he was the Republican standard bearer.

Nixon, Miller recalled, said that he intended to devote his efforts to rebuilding the Republican party in California, to see that it had more representation in the statehouse and state legislature and in the national congress.

If Nixon does this, Miller said, it would indicate that he would possibly be a candidate for governor. He said, however, that he had not talked with Nixon about the subject and also that Nixon plans to delay any pronouncements, as he understood the situation, until some months in the future.

President Still In Discomfort

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy's back ailment is continuing to show improvement, although he still is suffering some discomfort and using crutches.

The White House said late Tuesday that the President was feeling better under treatment that included rest, swimming in a heated pool, hot packs and super-sonic sound radiation to relax his muscles.

Kansas Will Try Boastful Pair On Death Count

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Teenage killers George York and James Latham begin the long trip from Utah to Kansas today to face possible hanging for one of seven murders during a two-week rob-and-kill rampage.

Kansas won custody of the boastful pair after a meeting Tuesday with officers from Utah, Florida and Illinois. Colorado and Tennessee, the other two states where York and Latham admitted murders, were not represented.

Gordon Hall, attorney for Toole County, Utah, in which the pair was captured Saturday, ruled Kansas had the best case "in quality and quantity."

In that state they are charged with the murder of Otto Zeigler, 62, railroad stationmaster at Wallace.

York and Latham waived formal extradition.

Although disappointed at failure to obtain jurisdiction, James C. Patrick, detective chief for Duval County, Fla., and Dick H. Mudge Jr., state's attorney for Madison County, Ill., agreed there was "general concurrence" in the meeting that the teen-agers should go to Kansas.

Both said their states—scenes of two murders each by the pair—would place detainers against York and Latham and prosecute in the event they were not executed in Kansas.

York and Latham have said they plan to plead guilty to first degree murder wherever taken and want to be executed promptly.

Obviously impressed by the attention they have been getting in a world they felt had rejected them, the pair swaggered and snickered as they were taken to the Salt Lake County courthouse to waive extradition.

"Where are all the guns?" York demanded. "Ain't nobody got guns."

Zeigler was slain and robbed of $51 after the killers flagged him down on the pretense of car trouble. York and Latham said he was one of only two of their victims they considered "decent."

If the confessed killers plead guilty to Zeigler's murder when taken to district court, probably at the next term in September, the judge would hear the state's evidence, without a jury, before deciding on the death sentence or imprisonment.

Stings Are Fatal To Baytown Man

BAYTOWN (UPI)—A Baytown doctor today said Charles Frederick Kelly, 64, died as a result of several wasp stings received while working in his yard.

The doctor said Kelly, a retired Humble Oil and Refinery Co. superintendent, was stung on the face three or four times. He collapsed and died Monday before the doctor arrived.

Funeral services were scheduled for 3:30 p.m. today.

Grant To Convicted Red Bared

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chairman Overton Brooks, D-La., of the House Space Committee said today it is "a sad thing" when a government agency gives a $3,800 grant to a student under prison sentence for refusing to testify in Congress if he was a Communist.

Brooks said his committee

High Wind, Heavy Rain Whip Area

Pampa received only .15 inch of rain early this morning although other sections of the Texas Panhandle received a rash of violent weather during the night. Rain torrents blocked traffic and forced a plane to land on a highway. The weather surge occurred as a mild Pacific cold front edged into the state.

The forecast for today calls for considerable cloudiness and cooler weather with mild temperatures tonight. Tomorrow is expected to be partly cloudy. Widely scattered thunderstorms are also forecast. Low tonight is expected to be 60 with a high of 80 tomorrow.

The Department of Public Safety said the winds were so strong at Buffalo Lake near Amarillo that they blew a 60-foot boat out of the water and smashed it into an automobile. Tree limbs six inches in diameter were snapped like match-sticks.

U.S. Highway 87 was blocked by high water between Happy and Tulia. The DPS said a number of automobiles throughout the area was stalled.

The heaviest rain in the Panhandle was around Amarillo, Spearman and Perryton, but the Weather Bureau said the region generally got at least two inches, particularly in the northern Panhandle.

The front was expected to bring below-normal temperatures to much of the state during the next few days and to trigger some additional thunderstorm activity across the northern areas of the state by late today.

High winds accompanied the downpours, which stretched from the Tulia-Happy area in Swisher County northward throughout the Panhandle.

A light plane was forced to land on U.S. Highway 87 near Happy, but the occupants were not hurt. Hail accompanied a two-inch fall at Tulia. Lightning set off a charge of dynamite at a caliche pit near Dawn in Deaf Smith County.

The five-day forecasts said temperatures will range from 5 to 7 degrees below normal in North Central and Northeast Texas, 2 to 5 degrees under the seasonal averages in Northwest and extreme Southwest Texas and 1 to 3 degrees below normal in southern Texas except near, normal in extreme southern sections.

Early today, scattered showers dampened South Central, extreme North Central and Northwest Texas. Skies were cloudy over South Texas and in the Civil Defense Sirens To Sound Tomorrow

Pampa's civil defense alert sirens will be tested at 3 p.m. tomorrow, according to an announcement today by William Leonard, Gray County civil defense director.

Kay Fancher, public information coordinator for the local unit, said the local warning system has been declared inadequate and that tomorrow's tests are designed so adjustments can be made to give Pampa and the county an adequate warning system.

Fancher said in the tests tomorrow afternoon the first sounds will come from the large Civil Defense siren atop the Hughes Bldg., Kingsmill and N. Somerville.

Following the testing of the siren there, other tests are scheduled in connection with the siren mounted on Central Fire Station, Fancher said.

The tests will be concluded tomorrow with a simultaneous testing of both sirens. During the tests, observers plan to check the adequacy of the present alarm system and determine what will

Group Given Tax Problem By Governor

AUSTIN (UPI)—Gov. Price Daniel left the problem of working out a compromise tax program in the laps of 19 private citizens today.

They are members of the governor's Texas Education and Welfare Committee, most of them prominent businessmen appointed to college boards or state welfare posts by Daniel.

"Knowing the needs as you do," he told them, "I think you are in a wonderful position to help us come to a compromise."

Daniel asked the group to make a thorough study of all tax measures considered by the deadlocked 57th session of the Texas Legislature, and submit a report on a compromise tax program on July 10.

That is the day Daniel has called a special 30-day session of the legislature to try to raise $350 million in new taxes to finance two more years of state government.

Meantime a panel of eight legislators went on a regional television program Tuesday said, "It is up to the people as a whole to pay for the services they demand."

Time limitations cut short a question-and-answer period by a panel of three newsmen.

Others on the panel were Brady Terry Townsend of Reddy, Charles Sandahl of Austin, W. H. Pieratt of Giddings, Wilson Foreman of Austin and Sen. Louis Crump of San Saba.

Castro Reveals Terms To Free Invasion Chiefs

HAVANA (UPI)—The Castro government said today it would exchange the three captured leaders of last April's abortive invasion attempt only for a convicted Cuban slayer, an imprisoned U.S. Communist leader and the head of Puerto Rico's National party.

That is the only basis on which the three invasion commanders will be freed, the government-controlled morning newspapers announced.

The announcement came as American farm experts were expected to start negotiations here on Premier Fidel Castro's proposed exchange of tractors for 1,200 captured invaders.

The leaders of the invasion were Manuel Artime, Jose San Roman, and Rafael Bolivar Fuentes.

Artime will be freed in exchange for Francisco (The Hook) Molina, pro-Castro Cuban now awaiting sentencing in New York on a murder charge, the newspapers said.

Bolivar Fuentes will be released in exchange for Henry Winston, 50-year-old Negro leader of the U. S. Communist party. Winston is in prison.

San Roman will be exchanged for Pedro Albizu Campos, aged and ailing leader of the anti-American party in Puerto Rico who was convicted of trying to foment a revolution against U. S. authority several years ago.

Castro has repeatedly demanded the release of Molina, who was found guilty of the slaying of a 9-year-old Venezuelan girl in a New York restaurant during a gunfight between Cuban groups last September.

Stevenson Visit Arouses Reds In Chilean Capital

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Red-led students stoned the U. S. Information Service office here Tuesday night and scattered anti-American leaflets in the streets as a protest against the visit of Ambassador Adlai Stevenson.

No casualties were reported and damage was minor.

The demonstration was the first direct show of Communist hostility to Stevenson in his 10-nation tour of Latin America, although the Reds in Uruguay used his visit as the occasion for a denunciation of "imperialism."

Communist students in Peru have promised the good-will ambassador the same sort of spitting, stone-throwing welcome they gave Vice President Richard M. Nixon in 1958, Stevenson is due in Lima Friday.

Hectic Four Hours — Power Failure Causes Big Jam In New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—And then the lights went out—and so did the elevators, air conditioners, refrigerators, subway service and traffic lights in the heart of the nation's biggest city.

For four hours and 22 minutes Tuesday night a half-million New Yorkers, sweltering at the tag end of the year's hottest day, were thrown back to the "good old days" when there wasn't electricity and the transportation and cooling it powers.

From Times Square to up in Central Park and from the Hudson to the East River power went off in a crazy quilt pattern that left lights twinkling on one side of a street, and off on the other.

A "mechanical failure" in a switch at a power substation on W. 65th St., at the height of the evening rush hour triggered a series of protective shutdowns in electricity-supplying equipment in other stations. And such was the tale of woe that followed:

—Thousands were stalled in tunnels on the independent subway system when trains refused to run, not because there wasn't power in the third rail, but because electrically operated signals "failed safe" and locked on red.

—The Fire Department fielded almost 100 calls for assistance ranging from hospitals to a vinegar works. Harried fire officials couldn't even guess how many persons were trapped in powerless elevators in mid-town skyscrapers, but it was "definitely hundreds of people." Firemen and police rescued the trapped by lowering ladders from nearby floors or hand-cranking the stifling cubicles.

—Traffic piled up in a monumental jam when signals went out. Perspiring pedestrians went to scamp for safety as best they could.

—Hospitals were forced to call for emergency generating equipment or switch to auxiliary power supplies to maintain basic services, run elevators and protect supplies of whole blood.

—The theatrical tradition that the "show must go on" suffered a set back in some Broadway theaters—including the one housing the hit "Bye Bye Birdie."

—Freezers conked out along with air conditioners, melting frozen food and ice cream along with the populace.

City Buys New Machine To Battle Mosquitoes

BZZZ-ZZZZZZ-ZZ. Smack! Mosquitoes bad out your way? City Manager John Koontz figures they must be judging from the complaints he's been getting the past few days.

Seems that heavy rains during the first week of June left some soggy places around town where mosquitoes breed and take off for other parts of the city.

So—The City Commission has authorized the city manager to buy a new $1,350 fogging machine and turn it loose on mosquitoes and other varmints of the air that pester taxpayers these nights.

Meanwhile the city's old fogging equipment went into use yesterday—although it isn't working too well.

The new machine will be delivered the latter part of the week and will be put into immediate use, Koontz said.

"If folks will just be a little patient," Koontz said, "we'll soon rid Pampa of mosquitoes and the rest of the bugs that fly by night."

Writer Discloses How To Abhor Folk Music

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The appeal I made recently for public support of an undercover campaign to stamp out folk singing in America seems to have struck a responsive cord, or chord. A number of high-minded persons have sent word to me that they, too, would like to dislike folk music, but didn't know how to go about it. Some said they had no talent for that sort of thing. To them I say that anyone can learn to abhor folk music with a little practice. It's mostly a matter of concentration and negative thinking. It is helpful, however, if beginners who are trying to acquire an aversion to folk singers have some understanding of the technical aspects of this type of music so they will know exactly what they are up against. Toward this end, I have prepared a simplified folk music identification system which may be useful to novices in the field. Although folk music appears in many forms (one might even say too many forms), for investigative purposes it can be arbitrarily divided into two general categories — the ballad and the whimsy. Let us examine the first form first. A typical folk ballad consists of 49 verses, some of which may rhyme. After each verse comes a chorus. However, after the 27th verse, most folk singers skip over the words of the chorus and make humming noises instead. In extreme cases, they whistle. The lyrics of a folk ballad generally relate the misadventures of some clown who got himself trapped in a cave or neglected to ease off the throttle as his locomotive was rounding a curve. There is an unwritten law that all folk ballads must have an unhappy ending. Failure to abide by this precept will result in revocation of the folk singer's banjo license. This brings us to the second form of folk music — the whimsy. Unlike the folk ballad, the whimsy is not based on an actual event. In fact, it is not based on anything. The first verse of a typical folk whimsy begins something like this: "Oh, the froggie in the kettle goes 'zoom-zoom-zoom.'" That is all we need to say about that. Once the neophyte has mastered these rudimentary characteristics of folk music, it is an easy step to the development of a full-blown phobia. Then he is ready to join one of our advanced groups, or cells. Cell meetings are held once a month in the home of someone who doesn't own a hi-fi set. Members sit around the living room in worship of tacturnia, the goddess of silence. Some of the more dedicated cultists occasionally offer a sacrifice, such as setting fire to a long-burning Kingston Trio record. If you've been hearing more lately, but enjoying it less, you can join us, too.

Nuclear Accord Deadline Urged

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Former President Eisenhower Monday night called on the Kennedy administration to set a deadline for reaching agreement on a nuclear test ban with Russia. The nuclear deadline plea came at a news conference before he addressed some 1,500 guests at a testimonial dinner.

Youth To Measure Up To Freedom, Justice Tells Boys Staters

By FLETCHER ROBERTSON
Daily News Austin Correspondent
AUSTIN — Back in 1935 this country was in the throes of a serious depression. Millions were jobless, the future seemed uncertain and "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime" was the top tune on the Hit Parade for months. The National Youth Administration was organized to take boys off the streets and put them to work. However, there were well-founded reports that kids in the NYA were being indoctrinated with generous doses of socialism. H. L. Cord of Pena, Ill., a red-blooded member of the American Legion saw danger ahead in subjecting American youth to an alien philosophy and decided to do something about it. He discussed the problem with members of his Legion post and the conference marked the birth of Boys State in Illinois. In 1938, the American Legion made the program mandatory in all states. Briefly, the objectives of Boys State are to acquaint boys with the responsibilities of citizenship and to afford them a working knowledge of the mechanics of the American system of government. Patriotism and a belief in God also are accented in the program. Members of Boys State are hand-picked from junior classes of American high schools by principals and screening committees from American Legion posts to attend a one-week concentrated course in government in state capitals. In most instances, local service clubs pay expenses of the boys. Texas Boys State for 1961 was held in Austin last week. The kids — 576 of them — got here last Sunday and moved in dormitories on the campus of the University of Texas. They were under the supervision of Dr. Firman Haynie of Borger, director of Boys State, and 18 counselors. Monday the kids got down to business and two political parties, the Longhorns and the Pioneers, were organized. Party-wise, the young men were thoroughly mixed up. Half of them were arbitrarily placed in the Longhorn Party and the other half in the Pioneer Party. They formed 12 mythical city governments and from there branched off into county, district and precinct organizational work. Both the Longhorn and Pioneer parties chose nominees for all elective state offices and Wednesday night a mammoth political rally was staged in Hogg Auditorium on the UT campus. Both parties participated in the rally. The party had all the atmosphere and trappings of the real thing. Kids paraded around the hall with huge banners bearing the names of their candidates; others waved pennants, rang cow bells, screamed and whooped it up in general. It was crazy, man crazy. The election was held following the rally and Thursday morning the results were announced. Top officials elected were Pete Conaway of Harlingen, governor; Jefferson J. Jarvis of Fort Worth, lieutenant governor; Collier M. Sublett of Kingsville, attorney general. Friday morning at 9 o'clock the kids, all wearing white Boys State T-shirts, marched on the Capitol. They stopped at the south entrance of the building where the Boys State band jazzed things up with snappy renditions of "Deep in the Heart Of" and "The Eyes Of." The band also cut loose on "Dixie" and two or three other standard numbers. Governor Conaway walked in the governor's office, sat down and let everybody know who was boss by putting both feet on the desk. At the same time, Lieutenant Governor Jarvis assumed the duties of the No. 2 position in the state. Governor Conaway had made some 330 appointments to state jobs and each boy went to his respective office. Incidentally, Conaway appointed Ralph Baker of Dallas, the defeated candidate for governor, as secretary of state. Both the House and Senate opened for business and a joint session of the Legislature was held at 11 a.m. to hear an address by Zollie Steakley, associate justice of the State Supreme Court.

Justice Steakley looked around at the bright-eyed boys, most of them with crew-cuts, and said: "I am more thrilled and more inspired by what you represent than I ever have been in the past. In Boys States you learn that it does matter what kind of citizen you become; you also learn that a characteristic of Christian democracy is the importance of the individual. "You, in your lifetime, will witness the outcome of the struggle now going on between free men of the world and the totalitarian forces of communism. Freedom and democracy are not safe anywhere today. They are in peril and under constant attack. Never take them for granted; they are worth fighting for. "In the early days of our country, when the framers of the Constitution had finished writing the document, one man turned to Benjamin Franklin and said: "Mr. Franklin, what do we have here? "You have a republic, if you can keep it," Franklin answered. "Somehow I have a feeling that you Boy Staters will measure up as free men and preserve our most precious heritage — a free way of life." The junior citizens gave Justice Steakley a standing ovation. One boy summed up his experience of the week to a counselor like this: "This has been the greatest thing that ever happened to me."

The counselor waited until the boy had walked away and then said: "On the other hand, that boy and other Boy Staters over the nation are the greatest thing that has happened to America in a long time."

CIVIL WAR ALBUM

Seesaw Record of Harpers Ferry

HARPERS FERRY, W.Va., at the confluence of the Potomac and Shenandoah rivers, changed hands several times during the Civil War. It had been the scene of the John Brown raid in 1859 and was first taken over by the Virginia militia for the Confederacy when the state seceded on April 19, 1861. A federal garrison of 45 men set fire to the arsenal there and withdrew. On May 23, it came under the command of Confederate Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston who considered the place unimportant. When word was received that Union forces were approaching, the Confederates made plans to withdraw on June 15. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad bridge over the Potomac was destroyed, principally by a mine set under the center section, and the approaches to the area were severely damaged. The Confederates retreated to the south to Charles Town, W.Va. The arsenal was fought over again in 1862, abandoned by the Union in 1863, and when the Confederates were defeated at Gettysburg in that year, it again came into the hands of federal troops. It then remained under Union control.

Mayor Named Ambassador

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy today named Mayor de Lesseps Morrison of New Orleans as new U. S. ambassador to the Organization of American States.

Morrison, mayor of New Orleans for 15 years, will resign his city post within a few days. His successor will be chosen by the City Council.

The 49-year-old Spanish-speaking mayor will be one of the leaders of the U. S. delegation to the Inter-American Economic Conference opening July 15 in Uruguay.

Asked about the prospect of Kennedy attending this conference, press secretary Pierre Salinger said, "The President's participation has been discussed, but no final decision made on whether he will go to Montevideo."

General Yancey Assigned Army Post In Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Maj. Gen. Thomas R. Yancey of Fort Devens, Mass., will take the Army post in Texas originally intended for Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker who was rebuked by the Army Monday for criticizing prominent Americans as "pink."

The Army said Yancey will take command of the 8th Army Corps with headquarters in Austin sometime this month.

Walker, a Texan and former commander of the 24th Infantry Division in Germany, remains without a command and attached to the U.S. Army headquarters in Germany.

The controversy over Walker grew out of charges that he had criticized former President Harry S. Truman, Eleanor Roosevelt and several other noted Americans on grounds they were "definitely pink." He also was accused by a newspaper in Frankfurt, Germany, the Overseas Weekly, of spreading propaganda for the John Birch Society among 24th Division troops.

The Army rebuked him for his comments about individuals. But it said his "Pro-Blue" program of education and instruction of troops was not connected with "any program of the John Birch Society."

Walker and Overseas Weekly, a publication devoted to cheeecake photos both have filed slander suits against each other.

Gen. Yancey, now in command of the 2nd Infantry brigade at Fort Devens, will succeed 8th Army Corps commander Col. Marie L. Fisher, who retires July 31.

Guatemala Vexes Mexican Senator

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A Mexican senator today called on his government to drop protocol and diplomatic language for some "straight talk" with Guatemalan President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes.

Sen. Eliseo Aragon Rebolledo told newsmen that reports of troop concentrations in Guatemala created a situation that "should be clarified at once."

The reports of some 6,000 men in locations near the Mexican border came on the heels of Guatemalan charges that ex-President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico was preparing a Communist invasion force in Yucatan, which was destined to strike at Guatemala.

TV Show Not Sole Delinquency Cause

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency may be down on "Whispering Smith," but the show's rating is up.

So "Whispering Smith" continues to flourish on NBC-TV despite the fact that the subcommittee fingered it as one gamy example of TV trash and some of the men responsible for putting the series on the air admitted that they're still holding their noses.

This isn't contempt of Congress. It's contempt of TV content.

I went back to "Whispering Smith" Monday night to see if it has shown any improvement. It's still a mighty uninspired production. But it's not alone. There are too many expendable filmed series that have nothing to offer.

As for the juvenile delinquency "issue," I'm not really bugged on it because I happen to think we'll have juvenile — and adult — delinquency long after "Whispering Smith" fades from earshot, or pistol shot. I say take the show off, not for what it might do to young minds, but for what it is doing to TV creativity.

The series is said to have been viewed by 2,500,000 youngsters when it had its premiere. Permit me, by means of the following fictional letter, to offer my thoughts on how the recent events may have affected one young mind:

Dear Senator:

My old lady won't let me and my old man watch "Whispering Smith" anymore after all that fuss at the juvenile delinquency hearing. At first, I was plenty sore. So was my old man. Especially at 9 o'clock, when the other channels were showing repeats and we had nothing to do but talk to each other for a half-hour.

My old man put aside the detective magazine, let me take a quick sip from his glass of beer, and started talking about himself. He filled me in on how to cheat on my finals and I learned a lot from him.

Then he told me not to worry about keeping up my school marks next term because he knows somebody in the admission's office of his college. When I asked how much he was fined on that ticket he got the other day, my pop broke up laughing and told me he got it fixed. He said, in fact, that he's still driving the wrong way down that one-way street just to show those cops they can't push him around. What a guy. It was a great talk.

So thanks, senator, for blowing the whistle on "Whispering Smith" and helping to keep me away from evil influences.

A new band of intrepid traders in trivial and trenchant interviews made its debut in nine major cities Monday night.

"PM East," with Mike Wallace as host and Joyce Davidson as featured interviewer, and "PM West," with Terrence O'Flaherty in charge of guided tours for native and visiting firemen in San Francisco, hope to break the habits of viewers who are hung up on Jack Par or the late movie.

The formula for this 90-minute show: light interviews integrated with heavy interviews and light music. The crew goes out of the studio for some material, which means that if one segment flops, you know there's another one coming up fast and you can hope it turns out better. The format seems to have enough flexibility and imagination going for it to warrant more attention. I'll keep you posted.

At present, the show is seen only in New York, Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Baltimore and Boston.

The Channel Swim: Executive producer Stanley Rubin of CBS-TV's "G. E. Theater" hopes to present an adaptation of Kurt Weill's folk opera, "Down in the Valley," in next season's schedule.

"Outlaws," returns for its second NBC-TV season on Thursday, Sept. 28 with some new cast members: Bruce Yarnell will be the new co-star, Deputy Marshal Chalk Breeson; Slim Pickens will have a featured role. Barton MacLane is out of the show. Don Collier remains as Marshal Foreman.

"Our Durable Diplomats," a report on how American foreign service families live abroad, is ABC-TV's "Bell & Howell Close-Up" for Thursday, June 22.

"Great Ghost Tales," NBC-TV's summertime replacement for "The Ernie Ford Show," makes its debut on Thursday, July 6. The series will offer live adaptations of classic horror stories.

Larry Blyden and Shari Lewis co-star in "Watching Out for Dullie," the "U. S. Steel Hour" comedy to be aired on CBS-TV Wednesday, July 12.

Heat Wave Hits Western Mexico

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The scorching heat-wave in northern and western Mexico has resulted in 265 cases of dehydration among children, doctors reported today.

The medics said 150 children in Monterrey and 115 in Mazatlan were reported under treatment and temperatures continued to soar above the 100-degree mark.

Evans Funeral Set Tomorrow

Interment rites for Samuel Clifton (Tex) Evans will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow in the First Methodist Church with Dr. H. H. Bratcher, pastor, the Rev. W. W. Adcock, former pastor and Dr. E. Douglas Carver, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating.

Mr. Evans, long-time automobile agency dealer and active in business circles, died at 5:30 yesterday morning in his cottage in Evergreen, Colo., where he and Mrs. Evans had gone to spend the summer.

He was born Feb. 16, 1891 in Lamar, Ark. and had been a resident in Pampa since 1929.

Mr. Evans' business interests included ownership of the Tex Evans Buick Co.; part-owner of the Evans-Kirchman Oil Well Service Co.; oil interests and chairmanship of the Board of Directors of the Citizens Bank and Trust Co.

He is survived by his wife, Mora Eunice of the home, 1800 Charles; three sons, Allen of Borger, James and Clinton of Pampa, three sisters, Mrs. Pierce Forby of Mulberry, Ark., Mrs. Kate Burns of Alma, Ark. and Mrs. Birdie Dick of Fort Smith, Ark.; one brother, John of Snyder and eight grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Jess Kirchman, Travis Lively, Raeburn Thompson, F. E. Imel, J. G. Doggett, Al Johnston, Don Nienstiel, and B. W. Hoover.

All friends of the deceased are considered honorary pallbearers.

Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

The First National Bank will close from 11 a.m. to 12 noon and the Citizens Bank and Trust Company will close from 10 a.m. to 12:30 in honor of the deceased.

Defense

zens are requested to turn on local radio and television sets and listen for information regarding the alert.

The procedure is designed, Farner said, to eliminate the sometimes fatal, always dangerous practice of tying up an entire community's system through indiscriminations of use of telephones. It has been found in Pampa that at the slightest hint of community danger, telephone switchboards in local law enforcement agencies, radio stations, and newspapers and other points of information become completely clogged and useless, because of citizens calling merely for information.

These facilities must be left open for the use in the reporting of actual information to persons who will disseminate it through other means.

The test tomorrow afternoon also will include tests of the take-cover signal which is described as a series of short blasts on Civil Defense sirens.

During an actual alert and after the alert signal of a continuous three to five minute blast has been sounded, and the take-cover signal is heard, it is mandatory that the citizens of the community take all the precautions possible for their personal and community safety.

As an example, in case of a tornado, the procedure would be something like this:

1. The sounding of the alert, or continuous three to five minute blasts of Civil Defense sirens.
2. Turn on your radio or television set to local or close stations, and listen for information, regarding the alert.
3. Do not call local law enforcement or information centers: information will be broadcast regarding the alert.
4. Take-cover signal is sounded (short blasts of the Civil Defense sirens with silent periods between)
5. Take whatever safety precaution is possible in your case, preferably shelter in a storm cellar or other underground excavation. If underground protection is not available, move to the inside wall on lower floor of a strongly reinforced building or to the corner of a basement toward an approaching tornado, particularly in frame houses under heavy furniture along an inside wall. If you are in open country, move at right angles to the path of an approaching tornado. If it is impossible to escape, lie flat in the nearest

Men Rescued From Sea

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (UPI)—Two brothers who drifted for 10 days in the Gulf of Mexico aboard a one-man life raft when their small plane crashed at sea were reported in fair condition today.

The men survived on two cups of rainwater and a flying fish which landed on the raft as they drifted near the Air Force's restricted missile firing range.

"It's only by the grace of God that I'm here," said Dr. Lamar Richards, 28-year-old Tampa, Fla., optometrist and pilot of the plane.

He said the yacht which rescued him and his brother, Eric, 30, of Melbourne, Fla., Tuesday had gone past their raft, as other ships had done but someone on deck spotted the handkerchief he was waving frantically.

The brothers, missing since June 3, were taken aboard the yacht All Alone, then brought by an Air Force helicopter to Tyndall Air Force Base here.

They were pronounced in fair condition at the base hospital, then transferred to Bay Memorial Hospital in Panama City. An Air Force spokesman said they were suffering from sunburn and exposure, and from burns received when the airplane went down.

Dr. Richards said they made one stop at Cross City, Fla., on June 3 to repair a faulty fuel line, then took off again over the Gulf. They were bound for Guatemala on a cattle-buying trip.

Engine trouble again developed over the water, the doctor said, and he headed back toward shore hoping to make an emergency landing. He crash-landed the Piper Comanche in the water about 90 miles southeast of Panama City.

They only had time to pull a one-man raft from the sinking plane, he said, and had no rations or signaling equipment.

The brothers said they caught two cups of rainwater on June 6, then ate a flying fish which slipped into their raft.

U.S. Can Win Race To Moon, Expert Claims

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A chief space planner in the Eisenhower administration, hailing President Kennedy's call for a stepped-up space program, says the United States can beat Russia to the moon.

But, warned former Air Force Under Secretary Trevor Gardner, it will take substantial outlay of money and undoubtedly human lives.

Gardner told a joint meeting of the Institute of Aerospace Sciences and the American Rocket Society Tuesday Kennedy's call for a program to put an astronaut on the moon "is a dramatic, necessary and timely reversal of the trend" of the United States being behind.

"He (Kennedy) now offers us the leadership and the opportunity to erase the familiar phrase, 'we are behind,' from the blackboard of time," Gardner said.

Later, in a press conference, he said he did think that Kennedy was more aware of the possibilities of space than his predecessor.

"But I think this is not a political judgment at all," Gardner said. "A technological war is being waged — it's erupting all around us."

Gardner, who was under secretary for research and development in 1955-56, said the $7.9 billion asked by Kennedy was a lot of money, but little enough to spend for the goal.

"The moon, for instance, offers real estate that's better than some over which wars have been fought," he said. Gardner added that the sum asked by the President was only one-fifth what Americans spend annually on amusement.

As for human resources, Gardner said: "I'm sure we're going to kill a lot of men in this business. Many other good men have died testing airplanes, submarines and other devices."

Pampa Man Held On Morals Count

Jimmie Patrick Hogan, 20, of 1018 S. Wells, was free under $2,000 bond today on a charge of burglary with intent to rape.

Hogan, who is married was arrested on complaint of an 18-year-old N. Wells St. housewife, who charged that Hogan entered her room at 2:30 a.m. Sunday by removing a screen and climbing through a window.

The young woman told police Hogan had a towel over his head to cover his identity but said when she recognized his voice he revealed to her who he was. The girl said she was able to dissuade Hogan from completing the attack and he left through the window.

Hogan denies the charge. He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. W. Graham late yesterday afternoon and will face grand jury action.

Clothing, Tools Reported Stolen

Thefts of clothing and tools were reported to police yesterday and last night.

J. W. Lamm, 1029 S. Sumner, said he heard a noise at 8 p.m. yesterday and upon investigating saw a man leaving the house with an arm load of clothing.

He said the thief ran through the back yard gate, turned east on Oklahoma St. and disappeared. Lamm said the burglar, in his haste, dropped one of the dresses he had stolen.

A. D. Robbins, 845 E. Denver, reported that someone stole a tool box with nearly $100 worth of tools from a truck belonging to the Parsley Sheet Metal Co.

Stock Mart Bearishness Cropping Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walter Mintz of Shearson, Hammill & Co. says that some genuine bearishness on the stock market has cropped up in parts of the investment community as a result of two principal arguments:

The bears say that while industrial activity will recover from its recent lows the recovery will lack real vigor just as it did in 1959. Mintz does not agree with this view, pointing out that the recovery is only three months old and the progress of the economy so far "has been quite remarkable."

The second major argument of the bears, according to Mintz, is that the cold war is likely to become so critical that the administration will ask Congress to impose price controls, increase taxes and enact other types of wartime controls.

Bache & Co.'s outlook for the week says the market continues to show hesitancy in establishing a trend, obviously reflecting the apparent conflict between the more favorable pattern of domestic business news and the prospect of continued international crises.

Clark, Dodge & Co. said evidence is mounting that an intermediate "top" in the stock market has been forming for several weeks.

Motorbike Rider Hurt In Collision

Sixteen-year-old Donald Snider, 2241 Hamilton, suffered minor injury when the motorbike he was riding was involved in a collision with a truck at Hobart and Kentucky Sts. shortly before 6 p.m. yesterday.

The truck was driven by Ellen R. Kretzmeier, Box 560, Pampa. Young Snider was taken to Worley hospital in a Duenkel-Carmichael ambulance. He was released after emergency treatment.

ASKS TRANSPORT CENSUS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John Lesinski, D-Mich., has proposed a new national census of transportation. Hearings on the proposal will be held July 18 and 19.

Lesinski, chairman of a House subcommittee on the census, said Tuesday the nation faced a national transportation crisis and that the facts necessary for corrective action were not available.

Pampa's Jaycees Hear Safety Talk

Junior Chamber of Commerce had Cecil O'Neal of the Department of Public Safety, as guest speaker at the Jaycee luncheon yesterday in the Palm Room in City Hall. He showed a film entitled "Death on the Highways."

The film featured some of the traffic accidents on the highways caused by speeding at night, careless drivers, driving while drinking and pedestrians walking along the highways. O'Neal urged that all drivers take heed "as the life you save may be a member of your own family." He also pointed out the necessity for all to obey the traffic laws which are passed to save lives on the highways.

Guests were introduced and welcomed by R. R. McDonald. They included Jack Gould, guest of Bennie Shackelford; Bill Acton, guest of Jim Christy; Jimmie Jayroe, guest of Melvin Jayroe; John Darby, guest of Tom Darby; and Dave Freeman, guest of Richard Cooke.

Clarendon Man Dies In Wreck

GROOM (Sp) — Richard Hailey, 68, of Clarendon, was instantly killed late yesterday afternoon when the auto he was driving was in a collision with a trailer truck at the intersection of U.S. Hwy 66 and farm to market road 294, three miles west of here.

Investigating officers said Hailey apparently started to cross from the east side of the four-lane Hwy. 66 and his car was struck by the front of the oncoming truck, spun around and hit again by the trailer section of the truck. Hailey's car was knocked more than 200 feet eastward along the highway.

The truck driver, Raymond Sizemore, 27, of Oklahoma City, and his wife who was riding with him as a passenger, were uninjured. Officers said the truck, owned by the Higdon Nursery of Oklahoma City, carried a full load of sacked rock.

Hailey was a native of Anson. He had been an employee of the JA Ranch near Clarendon for several years. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Verda Hailey of Amarillo, and one son and two daughters, all residing in California.

Roach Funeral Home in Mobile.

In addition to the son in Pampa, she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Wilma B. Lemm, Mrs. Marjorie Watts, both of Mobile, Mrs. Bea Smith of Memphis, Tenn. and numerous grandchildren.

Mr. Frye is in Mobile to attend the services today.

BRITISH JET — A new jet airliner, the BAC One-Eleven, shown in drawing above, is now being built by the British Aircraft Corp. Powered by two rear-mounted turbofan engines and designed for short haul work, the aircraft will cruise at 540 m.p.h., and carry up to 60 passengers.

Space Suggestions Will Be Paid For If They're Useful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. James A. Hootman shudders every time Russia or the United States scores a new feat in outer space.

He has good reason to be concerned. His office is deluged with mail after each well-publicized launching from persons offering "suggestions" on how to get heavy payloads into orbit.

Dr. Hootman is secretary of the Space Administration's Inventions and Contributions Board which gives cash awards — up to $100,000 — for inventions useful in space research. Hootman, in an interview, outlined some of the fantastic schemes submitted to him by well-meaning — but poorly informed — citizens.

One urged the government to build a huge roller coaster — like sled on the slopes of Grand Canyon. This would give a rocket added thrust by employing the centrifugal force of the sled ride as it shoots upward at the end of the track.

Even more ambitious, Dr. Hootman said, was a suggestion to explode atomic bombs at the bottom of a five-mile deep shaft in the earth, pushing a spacecraft out of the shaft like a cork shooting out of a bottle.

"A good idea," Hootman said, "except for the fact that the space ship would be blown to smithereens before it left the shaft."

The White House forwards to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) most of the mail addressed to President Kennedy on the space program. A lot of this ends up in Dr. Hootman's office. Hootman noted that the volume was running into hundreds of letters a week and increasing steadily.

A youngster wrote NASA asking "please give me permission to launch a rocket." He gave no return address. Another youth said that he had three mice ready for launching. Hootman usually writes the youngsters about the danger of amateurs tinkering with highly explosive fuels, but realizes that the space agency also has a responsibility to foster interest in amateur research.

Not all of the mail is in the "crackpot" category. Hootman said some suggestions merit further study and are under consideration for cash awards. Since creation of the Inventions and Contributions Board in 1958, NASA paid $3,000 for an idea used in the Navy's transit navigation satellites. This invention enables a ship at sea to pinpoint its position by measuring the change of frequency in a radio signal transmitted from a satellite.

Occasionally an inventor shows up at NASA carrying his device. Hootman's office gives everyone the benefit of the doubt and the inventor usually is given a chance to demonstrate his apparatus before technical personnel.

Hootman said suggestions for getting heavy craft into orbit range from using compressed air to burning powdered coal.

"And there seems to be an obsession with the underground shaft technique," the scientist said, especially since the Atlas and Titan are fired from silos dug into the earth.

The concepts are not related, Hootman said. Atlas and Titan are self-propelled; the shaft enthusiasts would apply an outside force to the bottom of the vehicle in the shaft, forcing it out by one or more explosions.

Others urge the use of the earth's magnetic field or electricity for propulsion. Hootman said electrically generated thrust soon will be used in space vehicles but chemical rockets must still be employed to get the ship into frictionless space where the electric space drive can be used effectively. Thrust from electric ion and plasma jet engines is not sufficient for direct travel from the ground, at least in the foreseeable future, Hootman said.

Hootman added that NASA welcomes — and will pay for — usable new ideas from any source. But he noted that before a cash award is made, four rigid steps must be followed:

- A suggestion must be made.
- A committee must be formed.
- Action must result from the suggestion.
- Some benefit to the United States must result.

—The invention must solve or contribute to the solution of a problem existing on or after Oct. 1, 1958.

Only two suggestions have ever met all four of these criteria, but NASA has several awards under consideration.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House press secretary Pierre Salinger had a special greeting Tuesday for reporters who have been badgering him for information on President Kennedy's back ailment.

Salinger opened his afternoon briefing by saying: "Fellow doctors."

Russian And Yank May Debate Freedom Of Press Via Video

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House, it will be interesting to see whether two of the leading spokesmen for the Russian way of life go through with their commitment to debate freedom of the press with two American counterparts.

Lucy Jarvis, coproducer of "The Nation's Future" on NBC-TV, was in Vienna recently and got a promise from the Russians to appear on her debate show in this country June 24.

The Soviet leaders involved are Aleksei Adjubey, chief editor of Izvestia, and Mikhail Kharlamov, chief press officer for the Soviet Foreign Office and spokesman for Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev at the Vienna meeting with President Kennedy.

The Americans ready to debate are White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger and Harrison Salisbury, Russian expert on the New York Times.

Their subject: "How free should the press be?"

Public interest in the Kennedy staff at the White House continues to inspire definitive magazine articles about the real insiders. Currently in print are two rather ambitious studies of the staff in Saturday Evening Post and Nation's Business. And there is more on the way in other periodicals.

However expert the writer, it is most difficult to capture in print the fluidity with which the Kennedy staff operates — and overlaps. The Kennedy system inspires voluminous contribution of ideas, but the routine work of the White House seems to pile up accordingly.

Stenographers and clerks say they've never seen such a hurly-burly with some of the New Frontiersmen so intent on developing and pushing major ideas that hum-drum paperwork falls far behind schedule.

Among the more frequently asked questions at the recent United Press International Conference of Editors and Publishers here was this:

Will the regality of Jacqueline Kennedy as illustrated by the numerous pictures of her in Paris and the publicity on such things as her makeup artists and hairdressers turn into a political liability for the President?

Firm to Provide Legal Insurance For Car Drivers

AUSTIN (UPI)—The higher insurance premiums that an average motorists gets as a result of a traffic conviction under state law have made three University of Texas law students mad.

Believing that the so-called safe driving insurance plan penalizes persons unable to fight their cases in court, the students formed a corporation to provide "legal insurance."

The firm, known as the "Texas Association of Qualified Drivers," will pay attorneys' fees for members who receive traffic tickets for all moving violations except hit and run or drunk driving.

Founders of the firm are Thomas Higgins, 31, of McAllen, and Bennett Spelce, 24, and Don Gelino, 29, both of Austin.

Higgins and Gelino, like many other Texas drivers, are paying 20 per cent higher insurance premiums because they received traffic tickets in the last three years.

Licensed drivers over 21 who have not received more than one ticket in the last three years can become members of the association for $8, Spelce said. Attorneys are then paid by the association if a member gets a ticket.

"Five times as many traffic fines are being appealed because the merit rating insurance program penalizes convicted drivers with higher premiums," Spelce said.

"Rich people who can afford lawyers get to take advantage of the court system, but the average motorist just pays his fine and ends up with a higher insurance bill," he said.

Lack Of Address Causing Return Of Vet's Checks

During the month of May, 40 checks totaling $2,393.98 were returned because veterans in the area failed to report changes of address, Robert W. Sisson, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Lubbock said today.

Almost five million checks go out each month from VA to veterans or their survivors and dependents for disability compensation, pension, death benefits, training allowances and other benefits.

One of VA's biggest headaches in administering the program is locating veterans or surviving families of veterans who move and do not report their new address. In most cases, VA has to wait until it receives a complaint about non-receipt of benefits before it can do anything about the missing information, Mr. Sisson said.

Veterans should notify their post office before they move from an old address to a new one, Mr. Sisson explained. The post office change of address is a simple form, easy to fill out, requiring only the old and new address and signature.

The next step to insure delivery of benefit checks is to notify VA of the pending move, Mr. Sisson said. Veterans who help VA keep its records up to date will then be sure of getting checks direct instead of having them re-addressed and forwarded.

Republican professionals across the country do not regard it as mere coincidence that both former President Eisenhower and new GOP Chairman William Miller have cautioned leading party figures against too early concentration upon their 1964 presidential ambitions.

It is possible to credit as genuine the Eisenhower-Miller concern that such attention will interfere with a prior task which they see as fundamental to 1964—enlarging the party's base by winning more legislative seats and governors' chairs in 1962.

Yet indications exist that party men at many levels have more than just this in mind. A broad sampling of GOP professionals in the populous states coast to coast discloses a quiet worry that a big party fight over 1964 may be slowly brewing.

The fear, of course, is that party interest will polarize around the ultraconservative Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona on the one hand and the liberal Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York on the other.

That fear is currently enhanced by Goldwater's heavy barnstorming in every section of the country, and the solid prospect that Rockefeller may win re-election in New York next year by between 50,000 and one million votes.

Bureaucratic Space Blocks

Fulton Lewis Jr. has come out with a mighty interesting bit of information. Remember how the Russians beat us to the punch by launching the first orbiting satellite?

According to Fulton, free enterprise was prepared to do it in this country before the Russians got off the ground and would have done it, too, with its own money, if the government hadn't stepped in.

It seems that back in the spring of 1957, Andrew Stone, a Hollywood movie producer, wanted to make a moving picture on guided missiles. Seeking information, Stone visited the California Institute of Technology and its jet propulsion laboratory under the direction of Dr. W. H. Pickering.

There, after a bit of questioning, Stone learned that for less than a million dollars, the United States could launch an earth satellite with the then available military hardware.

Since Rockefeller is meantime tending pretty much to his own state's knitting and former Vice President Nixon is confining himself to sporadic speaking forays, most observers felt Eisenhower's note of caution was aimed at Goldwater.

The latter shows no sign of letting up. Signing autographs for dozens, he was the last politician out of the hall the night Eisenhower uttered his warning. Next day the senator was off and winging on another tour.

Many GOP professionals seem to shrink from a sharp nomination battle. They dislike the bitter Taft-Eisenhower fight of 1952. They begged Rockefeller not to make a scrap of it against Nixon in 1960.

But if Goldwater goes on apace, so Rockefeller appears eager this time for the fight he ducked a year ago. Reports say he is diligently searching for a top political adviser. Some party experts say this lack has been his greatest handicap.

Though few will say a Rockefeller-Goldwater struggle is inevitable, most politicians agree it is presently building. Richard Nixon's big card is that he is a "center man" to whom the party might turn again in 1964 to avoid that clash.

Jr. informs us, that there are five American free enterprise firms which are willing and eager to launch earth satellites on their own. But the Kennedy administration takes a dim view of this procedure and has tentatively banned such independent and non-military procedures.

The firms which wish to become involved want to experiment in world-wide communications and are confident that satellites of private business can make a distinct contribution in this field. One of these firms is A.T. & T., which has received provisional permission to conduct certain experiments in this field.

But here we see the problem. Government is jealous of two things: competition from free enterprise which in all likelihood would be able to do the same things faster, better and cheaper; and it is also jealous of its ability to tax mercilessly.

If it turns out that private firms are able to do the same things the Army, Navy and Air Force can do, then the great cry for endless government spending would wither and a lot of excess personnel in various government installations would have to get off the tax rolls.

But this would reduce the size of government, and with the present philosophy of turning everything over to the government, such is unthinkable in the bureaucratic mind.

NEW YORK—For a long time, with the result that the musical comedy theater of Broadway was doordrums in the Leading Man department, three men, none as young as he used to be, were getting all the top show jobs.

Mr. Yarnell, driven by a blinding and sudden rainstorm the other afternoon, found himself in my office and we had a long talk during which it was admitted as astounding to learn that the long haul to Broadway and success had been fretted out through a series of such jobs as digging ditches in the Warner Bros. studio in Burbank.

The latter shows no sign of letting up. Signing autographs for dozens, he was the last politician out of the hall the night Eisenhower uttered his warning.

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy is taking two highly significant steps on the thorny problem of resuming nuclear tests.

At the urgent request of Prime Minister Macmillan, the President is "delaying an immediate change" in the 2 1/2-year-old suspension of such tests.

The British government leader personally asked this be done in his talk with the President following the latter's two-day meeting with Premier Khrushchev in Vienna.

In the near future, the President will announce that this country "no longer feels morally bound by the self-imposed moratorium against (underground) tests."

Macmillan told the President that a change in U.S. policy on nuclear tests at this time would have profound adverse repercussions in Britain.

Because of this explosive political situation, which directly affects U.S. nuclear-armed ballistic missiles and nuclear-powered POLARIS submarines based in Britain, the President agreed to "delay making an immediate change" in policy on further nuclear tests.

However, the President also informed Macmillan that, in the hope of prodding the Soviet to be less unyielding at the long-stymied Geneva conference, he intends to proclaim that the U.S. "no longer feels morally bound" to continue its voluntary test ban.

What effect such a declaration will have is conjectural. In the U.S., it would prepare the way for resuming subterranean tests in the fall.

Hankering

By HENRY McLEMORE

ROME, Italy — An Italian friend, soon to make his first trip to the United States, asked me to brief him on any peculiarities of my country, and to advise him of adjustments he will have to make.

I was tempted to dismiss his request with an "Oh, you won't have any trouble at all," but then I got to thinking about the differences between traveling in the U.S. and in Europe, and wound up giving him quite a filling-in.

The language barrier will be much higher for him than it is for an American in Italy or anywhere else on the continent.

No matter where an American finds himself in Europe, there is always someone close at hand who knows enough English to serve as interpreter. My friend won't find this true, even if he confines his travels to New York City.

American and European hotels are totally different. In Europe a guest is ushered to his room by the manager or an assistant manager, and his baggage is taken to his room by a bellhop.

My friend probably won't expect to have a bath with his room, and undoubtedly will ask for one without a bath and at a cheaper price. Tipping will puzzle him, too.

European hotels add a 15 per cent service charge to the room price to cover service. It will take him a little while to discover that he is expected to tip for each individual service, and the chances are his tips won't be as generous as those given by an American.

When he leaves his shoes outside his door at night, expecting them to be shined, he will be disappointed in the morning. And he might not even find his shoes.

My Italian friend will have to learn to do without the system of push-buttons in his room with which to summon valet, maid and waiter, and learn to rely on the telephone for any and all services.

Pegler Says:

Tower Camp Tactfully Rejected Nixon's Help

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

ODESSA — When John C. Tower, a conservative Republican, was campaigning for the Senate against William A. Blakley, a conservative Democrat, Richard Nixon quietly volunteered to come over from California and help Tower with some speeches.

Tower, the first Republican senator from Texas since the time of the Civil War, had announced: "I am a conservative. I never supported a 'liberal' movement in my life."

The people of Texas, in fact the people of the United States, are sick to hatred of pressure exerted from New York by a few organizations with offices in the midtown area.

Those New York warmongers are snorting the same concocted fumes of hatred and sending riders into Mississippi and Alabama, as Harry Truman in one of his truthful aberrations pointedly remarked a few days ago and as U.S. Judge Frank M. Johnson affirmed in a fuzzy decree, probably illegal and unenforceable, the same day in Montgomery, Ala.

If the election of 1960 were held tomorrow, Jack Kennedy would be beaten badly by the loss of Texas, Mississippi and Alabama on this issue alone in which his juvenile brother Bobby, the attorney general, has taken an obstreperous part.

The European traveler in America will look in vain for a counterpart of a sidewalk cafe where, over a cup of coffee or a bottle of mineral water, he can write his letters, read his newspapers, or just sit and survey the passing scene.

Meal hours are sure to take a bit of adjusting too on the part of the European visitor to America. He'll just be thinking of going to lunch (between 2 and 3) when Americans are finishing theirs, and the same with dinner. He is a late diner, preferring to start his evening meal around 9 in the evening.

The smallest of the menu will one symbol that is going to disappear. Maybe not today or tomorrow, but surely in our lifetime.

"I don't believe Khrushchev is going to push too hard or swiftly. But I do expect him to make some move in October or November after the meeting of the Soviet Communist Party in Moscow. After that, he will start the wheels going."

Allen - Scott Report: President Delaying End Of U. S. Nuclear Test Suspension, On Macmillan Advice, But Will Affirm 'Not Morally Bound'

ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy is taking two highly significant steps on the thorny problem of resuming nuclear tests.

At the urgent request of Prime Minister Macmillan, the President is "delaying an immediate change" in the 2 1/2-year-old suspension of such tests.

The British government leader personally asked this be done in his talk with the President following the latter's two-day meeting with Premier Khrushchev in Vienna.

In the near future, the President will announce that this country "no longer feels morally bound by the self-imposed moratorium against (underground) tests."

that that many votes would do the trick. In preparation for the 1960 election, his machine caused the legislature to pass a special law permitting him to run again for President or Vice President.

California is not as badly confused as some election returns may suggest. Earl Warren did great damage there with his system of political depletion called cross-filing, which enabled a candidate without political principles to run as both Republican and Democrat.

Barry did Tower some good in Texas, but his help was not actually decisive. Tower probably would have won on the strength of his total, absolute contempt for the whole dirty business of the New Deal, the Fair Deal and the New Frontier.

Nixon is still strong in California and may be the boss Republican as of now but he isn't conservative enough to win for President. He dogged it with Kennedy when he should have kicked him all over the hall with straight Republican stuff.

He should have seen that this me-too deal was doomed to failure after Dewey's two pathetic flops and Barry Goldwater's grand success in the state which adjoins California.

Resistance On Decline So Life Span May Dip

NEW YORK (NEA) — Can it be that the human race — as it is run in the U. S. — is being radically weakened by the miracles of modern science?

Consultation with the keepers of our vital statistics says — yes, it's more than likely.

Despite the tremendous gains in surgery, serums and specific medicines which have increased the time begins to run out on the generations born and reared during the greatest advance in anti-toxins and antibiotics.

The only way out, it appears, is for more scientific miracles, especially a cure for cancer and circulatory diseases and-or a sure-fire method for making spare human parts.

In that event, we should be

... and then you don't have to pay another premium for the next 85 years of your life. Now, if you'll step into my office ...

average life expectancy by half since 1900.

More of us are surviving to retirement age nowadays, but we're really not living much longer once we get there.

In fact, we may be on the verge of a step backward in life expectancy.

The growing body of knowledge in longevity suggests that part of the blame belongs in our laboratories.

How come? Well, consider a few simple numbers gathered by U.S. insurance companies (which are quite interested in our life spans).

If you were born in 1900, you could have expected to live 47 years. But, with the conquest of the dread diseases of infancy and childhood, your life expectancy today is 70.

Curiously and grimly, according to Institute of Life Insurance Companies' figures, as childhood killers like diphtheria and TB are checked, the old-age killers — cancer and heart disease — are beginning to attack us at a younger age.

In addition, figures show, people who survive a cancer operation by 10 years or a heart attack by five probably will outlive normal expectancy because they've been shocked into taking very, very good care of themselves.

"Is science," Institute statisticians wonder, "letting more people live to middle age who would have died much younger in old times because they were weaker?"

So, if you had lived to age 65 in 1900, you could have expected to live on to nearly 77. Today, if you live to retirement age, you can expect to live on to 79.

That's a gain of only about two years in six decades of scientific miracles.

And, the numbers men say, don't be surprised to see the average life span take a dip in the next

Survey Reveals Much Glassware In U.S. Homes

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's competition to fill the spot left vacant by the old drinking cup in the kitchen, a survey showed today.

In most households, the old all-family all-purpose cup that was good enough for everyone has given away to not one glass, but many.

There's where enters the competition that turns the housewife's glassware shelf into a sort of quiet industrial battleground.

In a search to map out the paths along which the machine-made glass industry can be expected to grow, one company, the Jeanette Glass Co., put out questionnaires to housewives in 15 metropolitan areas, 12 suburban communities, 10 large rural areas and nine large industrial areas, it reported.

It wanted to find out what kind of drinking glasses the housewife likes, and how many she owns, on the average. That she owns many seemed obvious: Jeanette found that the American glass industry sold over 50 million dozens of automatic machine-made glasses last year.

It found that newlyweds of the present generation showed a tendency to get a variety of glassware, rather than to stick to one "good set and one everyday" set.

This class of buyers, the survey showed, like gay and colorful patterns.

Maurice L. Stonehill, president of the Jeanette Co., reported that 33,962 questionnaires were filled out in the survey.

They showed that along with the growth in numbers, the variety of glassware on the housewife's shelves and in the China cabinet has increased.

All the women questioned owned water glasses and juice glasses. More than three-quarters had cocktail and jigger glasses. Wine glasses were owned by 84 per cent; less than half owned "old fashioned" glasses—Old fashioned, meaning the type named for the cocktail rather than the contemporary styling—and a little less than a fifth of those questioned went right through to the bitter end and owned glasses designed especially for brandy or cordials.

The end is not yet in sight, Stonehill predicted, which is good news for the glassmakers.

"Ours is a mass volume business," he said of the machine-made glass makers. "To stay in it, you have to keep growing."

Odessa Jaycees Plan 'Big Feed' At Convention

ODESSA (SpI) — Jaycees throughout the United States will be treated to a genuine West Texas meal on the night of June 19, when the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce kicks off its national convention in Atlanta, Ga.

The unique Chuck Wagon Gang of Odessa will serve a Texas barbecue beef super to the 7,000 to 8,000 Jaycees with the assistance of the Texas Junior Chamber. And, it will all be free of charge, through the courtesy of the Odessa Jaycees and a group of private business men in this West Texas city.

Jay Alvey, assistant manager of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce and acting business manager for the Chuck Wagon Gang, estimated that 3,000 pounds of boned beef will be prepared for the Atlanta feed.

Add to that some 800 pounds of pinto beans, 600 pounds of cabbage for cole slaw, 750 loaves of bread, 1,400 pounds of onions, 300 gallons of iced tea, gallons upon gallons of pickles and olives and you have a true Texas - Style supper in the capital city of Georgia.

The Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang is the only organization of its kind in the U.S., and it has fed more than one million persons throughout the country. It fed 10,000 people at the Casper, Wyo., oil exposition, another 10,000 in the Black Hills of South Dakota, and still another 10,000 in Houston last year.

Members of the "Gang" include bank presidents, merchants, oil field executives, white collar workers, doctors, lawyers and engineers. All of them pay to join the group for the privilege of serving barbecued all around the country and of helping to sell the Odessa story.

A huge van and trailer will leave for Atlanta several days before the convention, and then 20 to 25 "Gang" members will fly to Atlanta in private planes. They will be joined by members of the Odessa and Texas Jaycees who will serve as official hosts for the State of Texas.

In huge crowds, such as the one at Atlanta, the visitors form 10 and often 12 serving lines so that the entire convention may be served in an hour or less.

Even West Texans often wonder aloud why these prominent Odessans seem so eager to work like slaves. Members of the Chuck Wagon Gang feel that it is community spirit.

Accidents in the U.S. take more than 42,000 lives among men between the ages of 15 and 64 each year.

Florida Handed Robbery Suspect

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Formal custody of Florida bank robber suspect Clarence N. Higgins, 43, today was turned over by the Harris County sheriff's office to deputy U. S. Marshal Neal Matthews.

Matthews received a warrant today from Tampa, Fla., charging Higgins, of Memphis, with robbing the National Bank of Tampa of more than $41,000.

Higgins is recovering at Jefferson Davis Hospital from a bullet wound in the abdomen received when he resisted arrest by Sheriff's deputies here on Friday. Officers recovered more than $16,000, believed part of the Tampa bank loot.

Union And Rubber Firm Sign Pact

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—The B. F. Goodrich Co. and the United Rubber Workers Union reached agreement Sunday on a contract affecting 11,500 workers in eight plants.

The contract provides for a 7½ cent hourly wage increase retroactive to June 5, 1960, and another 7½ cent rise June 11, 1962, for workers in plants in Akron, Ohio; Oaks, Pa.; Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Miami, Okla.; and Los Angeles, Calif.

Workers in plants in Riverside, N.J.; Marion, Ohio, and Clarksville, Tenn., will receive a 3½ cent boost retroactive to June 5 and a 4 cent increase June 11, 1961.

The contract expires April 20, 1963.

Moms Can Help Solve Cooking Mysteries

KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the most tangible pleasures of homemaking is cooking and this makes it the most popular area in which a mother can initiate her daughter into the broader range of household arts.

Most little girls are eager and attentive cooking students. A grubby 8-year-old may not yet appreciate the beauty of an orderly room but she will wash her hands and tie on a clean apron for a chance at the range.

Yet I know mothers who assign only the cleanup chores to their children. Cooking, they claim, can come later. They can't be bothered with kids messing up the kitchen. I think this is a shortsighted argument.

A little girl who is trained and encouraged gradually to master simple cooking procedures, to follow directions, to set oven controls, to follow basic safety measures such as using dry hot pan holders, turning pan handles away from edge of range and the like may be the gold mine of talent you'll need in an emergency.

Just recently, I was struck by a swift bolt of flu and landed in bed. And who do you think sopped nagging her little brother and biting her nails and put on the apron and calmly took over the kitchen? Our 11-year-old Merri. Sure, she is old enough to know the ropes but all the years she's been learning bit by bit gave her the confidence she needed.

You can't turn an untrained child loose in a kitchen, of course. Modern cooking appliances are complex. Any youngster who will be cooking under your direction at first must be guided through steps of starting, stopping appliances, of turning heat up and down (and off) when cooking is finished.

This is an impressionable time and the time to build good safe habits. (I am extremely cautious about certain cooking procedures, such as draining off grease during frying. I try to avoid recipes where this might be involved if a youngster is cooking.)

One home economist whose opinion I respect has said that youngsters should start with oven baking. Oven baking of little pizzas, cookies and cupcakes offers few hazards so long as hot pan holders in good condition are handy.

Along with the fun of cooking

The Mature Parent

Children Can Help With Emotional Block
By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: My husband gets angry with me because I am not demonstrative toward our two children. Though I love them I can't hug and kiss them like he does. He knows why I can't, too. It's because of my own childhood. My mother had a very bad temper, would get mad, hit me and then try to make up by grabbing and kissing me. With such an upbringing my husband should not expect me to be as outgoing as he is.

ANSWER: But you are not a rubber ball that can only move in the direction it is thrown. You are a human being who can take — if you want to — control of your own direction.

Do you want to develop a freer expression of your affection for your youngsters? If so, then admit this wish. Ask the children's help in fulfilling it. When you are certain that you want this development, say to them: "You know how shy I am about hugs and cuddlings. I want to get over it. I'll need you to encourage me. Sometimes soon I'm going to hug one of you suddenly and I'd like it if you hugged me back hard and said, 'That's fine, mother. Try it again.'"

I see no more reason why we should hesitate to ask the children's help with this kind of weakness than we'd hesitate to ask their support if we'd sprained our ankle.

Certainly a parent who hits us one minute and wants to embrace us the next can make us deeply suspicious of shows of affection. But we do not have to retain this infection. If some careless person infects us with a virus, we don't waste our time brooding over his irresponsibility to us. We call our doctor, get his prescription filled — and take other responsible steps for our own recovery.

Psychological infections are not so different. Knowing how we came by them in the past is important only as it rallies enough indignation in us to resist their domination of us in the present.

So the solution is in your hands. It's the want that counts. It's the vigor of the want that finds the way to satisfy itself.

Dear Abby... Courtship Tactics "Military Secret"

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old widow, until very recently I was dating a nice widower. He gave me a big rush and some lovely gifts. I was expecting him to propose and I really grew to like him. Then he told me he wouldn't think of marrying me until he was sure we were "compatible" in every way. You know what I mean. Naturally, when he found out he couldn't get what he wanted, he stopped seeing me. I felt so hurt to think he was like all the rest.

I had praised him to all my friends, and now the question is, what can I tell my friends when they ask why we aren't going together any more?

HURT AND DISAPPOINTED
DEAR HURT: Real friends would not embarrass you with such a cruel question. To the others, simply reply, "All is fair in love and war, and this is a military secret."

DEAR ABBY: My little five-year-old boy is deathly afraid of dogs and cats. I can't understand how he got this way, but it is getting to be a terrible problem. He refuses to stay outside alone for fear a dog (even a small one) or a cat will come near him.

When I take him downtown and he sees a dog or cat, he screams so loud people run out of the stores and even stop their automobiles to see who is being murdered. I have to pick him up and carry him until the animal is out of sight. I didn't mind when he was smaller, but he is too heavy for me to carry now. What shall I do, Abby? He is driving me crazy.

UPSET MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: Take your son to a pet shop where he can see the new-born kittens and the tiny puppies. When he becomes more familiar with these animals, he will realize there is nothing to fear. He probably was terrified by an animal when he was very young, and must now be helped to overcome his fright.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 13, but am very mature for my age. I have been going with boys since I was 12, but my parents will not let me go out with boys in uniform. I think this is very unfair, and would like to have you tell them so in your column. Thank you.

MATURED 13
DEAR MATURED: You may be "mature for your age," but in my opinion a 13-year-old girl is too young to be going with boys in or out of uniform.

DEAR ABBY: I am Spanish and the custom of my country is to wear the flower stems up and the flower "looking down" when the girl is single. That means she is "looking." When the girl is married, she wears her corsage stem down, with the flowers "looking up."

D'Amato, Promoters Disagree On Liston

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Cusick, manager of heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, and D'Amato, manager of heavyweights Liston and Isaac Cooper, today expressed their opinions as to what effect Sonny Liston's latest brush with the law would have on his career.

D'Amato and promoters Bill Fugazy of New York and Edwin Ahlqvist of Sweden expressed their opinions as to what effect Sonny Liston's latest brush with the law would have on his career.

The 26-year-old Liston and Cooper, 27, were accused of impersonating officers, resisting arrest, conspiracy, disorderly conduct and extinguishing automobile lights in an effort to evade arrest.

D'Amato said he believed Liston's conduct disqualified him as a contender for the title. He said he had not discussed the mat-

Tappe Is Cubs New Head Man

CHICAGO (UPI) — Elvin Tappe, smiling like a man who has just landed a steady job, today began an indefinite term as head coach of the Chicago Cubs.

Tappe, 32, a former Cubs catcher and current member of the eight-man coaching staff, was picked to direct the team "for an indefinite period." The Cubs said they were temporarily suspending their system of rotating coaches into the position of "managing coach."

The announcement was made as the Cubs left town to open a series with the Dodgers at Los Angeles. A club spokesman stressed it was only a temporary measure and did not indicate the Cubs were ready to junk their novel no-manager plan.

"Tappe will continue to direct play on the field for an indefinite period. The other coaches will continue the system of rotating among the parent club and the minor league associates," he said.

Cash, Maris Seek Home Run Record

By FRED DOWN
United Press International

Sluggers Norm Cash and Roger Maris are threatening a 23-year-old home run record today in a spectacular sidelight to that three-team American League battle among the Detroit Tigers, New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians.

Both the Tiger first-baseman and the Yankee outfielder have hit nine homers this month and are halfway to the all-time major league mark of 18 in one month set by Rudy York in 1937.

Cash, a 26-year-old ex-Cleveland and White Sox part-timer, raised his season total to 19 by hitting two homers and driving in four runs in a 7-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox Tuesday night while Maris hit his 21st of the season in the Yankees' 7-2 loss to the Indians. The Tigers' victory moved them into second place, one game ahead of the Yankees and one behind the Indians.

Cash, who has come out of nowhere to add terrific striking power to the Detroit offense, also took over the AL batting lead from Jim Piersall with a .374 average and raised his league-leading runs batted in total to 54. He hit only 18 homers and knocked in only 63 runs all last season.

The Chicago White Sox swept a two-night doubleheader from the Los Angeles Angels, 2-1 and 10-2, the Baltimore Orioles shaded the Washington Senators, 7-2, and the Minnesota Twins defeated the Kansas City Athletics, 8-6, in other American League games.

9 Americans Survive In British Am

TURNBERRY, Scotland (UPI) — Frank Bostock of Phoenix, Ariz., the little weatherbeaten owner of a "ghost town" for tourists in Colorado, was the first away of nine Americans remaining today in the third round of the British amateur golf championship.

Bostock, who celebrated his 39th birthday on Monday, played Scotch internationalist Ronnie Shade as America's surprising forces kept pace with the local shooters in the 61st edition of this famed tournament at the 6,770-yard Ailsa course near the North Irish Sea.

Teeling off just behind Bostock was Richard Davies of Pasadena, one of four Californians still alive, who faced Charles Lawrie, the Scottish-born non-playing captain of the British Walker Cup team.

Then in order came John Penrose of Miami Beach, Fla., vs. the seeded Leslie Taylor of Scotland; Frank Sugden of Hollywood Hills, Calif., vs. Gordon Cosh, the champion of West Scotland; portly Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia vs. Ralph Morrow of Oklahoma City, Okla., in the only all-American match; Lt. Munro (Blinky) Mitchell of Fort Worth, Tex., vs. Marshall C. Douglas of Scotland; health fadist Henry Timbrook of Los Angeles vs. Scot Leslie Renfrew, and Mike Korich of Roseville, Calif., vs. Scot L. G. Taylor.

Plain Ben Jones, Great Horse Trainer, Is Dead

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — A setting a record of 2:01 2/5 for plain Ben Jones was gone from the race that still stands; with racing today, his death of a heart Pensive in 1944, Citation in 1948, attack Tuesday leaving a void Ponder in 1949, and Hill Gail in that the kings and commoners of the turf agreed could not be filled.

The "man in the white hat" who, in his colorful lifetime trained the winners of six Kentucky Derbies and 1,513 other races, died at a hospital after his second attack in four days.

He had been ill for several years with diabetes, and was stricken last Saturday at his home on Calumet Farm, where he has been general manager of racing since his son, H.A. (Jimmy) Jones took over active direction of the stable in 1953.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but it is expected there will be services here and burial services at Parnell, Mo. For Calumet, Jones won derby victories with Whirlaway in 1941.

Mohawk Upsets Rotary, 3-1

Mohawk's Gary Molberg fired a neat three-hitter here Tuesday night at Optimist Park to hand Rotary its first defeat of the season, 3-1.

The win moved Mohawk into second place in the Western League with a 4-2 mark; Rotary is now 7-1.

Mohawk second baseman L. A. Hooten backed up Molberg's fine pitching with sterling defensive work. Leading hitters for Mohawk were Harlan Fease (2-for-3), Alfred Brow (1-hit) and Phillip Savage (1-hit).

Son Hopes To See Dad Win U.S. Open

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (UPI) — Sunday could be a big day for young Jack Sneed.

After all, it is Father's Day. And he feels that maybe he'll be the good luck charm which his dad has been missing up to now in the U.S. Open golf championship.

His dad, incidentally, is that long-time fairway favorite known as "Slammin' Sammy" Sneed.

Sneed's misfortunes in the Open are one of golf's greatest legends. It's a familiar tale how he has been second on four different occasions and another time kicked it completely away with a tragic eight on the final hole.

"Maybe I'll be the good luck he's needed," smiles 16-year-old Jack, who is a carbon copy of his father except that he has hair. "This is the first time I've ever been to the Open and it's a good time for Dad to win it."

Young Jack gets a lot of support in the locker room at Oakland Hills Country Club where the Open starts Thursday. His dad is 49 but "Old Sam" is as strong as a bull, is playing with ageless skill and has won the last three consecutive tournaments in which he has played.

"You can't count Sam out for another 10 years," marveled four-time British Open champion Peter Thomson who chased Sneed with utter futility in the recent International golf championship as Sam added that to his recent Greenbrier and Las Vegas victories. "He's playing better than ever."

Young Jack beams at these accolades and cautiously crosses his fingers. The thing that worries him — because they worry Sam — is those short putts.

SAM SNEED
... "Champions for two hours"

"I guess it runs in the family," he smiled. "The yips seem to be a trait of all us Sneeds." Jack knows. He shoots in the mid-70's and was the number one man on the Valley High School golf team back in Hot Springs, Va., the same school where Sam learned to read, write and arithmetic all that money he has won on golf courses around the world.

Young Sneed, like his dad before him, also plays on the football team. But, while Sam was a hall-back, Jack is an end.

"I'm not quite really sure what I want to do yet," says Jack, parrying questions as to his vocational aspirations.

Certainly it would be a tough chore to fill his father's famous brogans, because Sam has won such coveted divot titles as the Masters, British Open and just about everything else you can name — except the U.S. Open.

"I can hit the ball about as far as Dad can," he grins shyly in making a statement few can match. "But after all, I'm as big as he is."

At 5 feet, 11 inches and 188 pounds, Jack is as big as his famed father and he has, on at least one occasion, "outshot" the old man.

"That was on our last hunting trip," Jack recounted. "I got two deer and a wild turkey. Dad only brought down one deer and one turkey."

Such is the feverish space of Sam's life and travels when he hits the pro tour that they seldom have an opportunity to play together. But they have teamed up in pro-amateur events in Virginia and West Virginia.

"I still got a long way to go to get anywhere near him, though," Jack says with his pride in his dad showing plainly. "But he'd have just about everything if he can win this one. And, as I said, I hope I'm the good luck charm he needs."

"Maybe so," Sam grinned. "Ah sure does hope so."

Bonus Would Have Kept Bellino Out Of Navy

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WEST POINT, N.Y. (NEA) — Frank Gibson wound up in the eighth inning and threw a curve. Joseph Michael Bellino lifted a lazy fly which was caught back of first base.

That ended what to most moderns was the greatest athletic career in United States Naval Academy history. Fittingly, Joe Bellino struck his last blow for Navy at Army.

The game concluded, Bellino was surrounded by 100 or more youngsters. A Naval officer sought to bail him out, but the football hero elected to stay with the young autograph hounds, did so for more than 30 minutes. As any midshipman will tell you he's still the unspoiled Plain Joe, the son of the factory worker who came out of Winchester, Mass.

A group of old-Army men huddled behind the screen at Double-day Field, and while Bellino was little less devastating to the Cadets in baseball, the talk was of football. Listening to them, you would have suspected that no one other than Bellino played football for Annapolis the last three seasons.

That was perfectly natural, for no one in 82 years destroyed the Military Academy on two fronts quite as thoroughly as the stocky (5-9, 181) Bellino: He lost just one game to the Black Knights in two major sports in three years.

If Bellino didn't lead the current resurgence of all Crabtown athletics — football, baseball, track and field, crew, everything he gave the others the general idea of how to do it.

"Too bad he didn't take one of those baseball bonuses," remarked a brigadier general. "It was reported that Bellino had been offered amounts up to the Boston Brinks robbery loot to sign a professional baseball contract as a catcher."

"No truth to it at all," said Bellino, when we finally ran him down in the visiting team's dormitory. Plain Joe is as modest as he was before stepping all college football accolades last season in addition to the Naval Academy Athletic Association Sword and Thompson Trophy. It is the first time in 41 years.

Max Hickey and Melvin Chisum (who was nipped 2-1 by Douglas last year) and C. K. McKinnis he tabbed as probably the men to beat.

Ran into Bob Johnson, Oklahoma State wrestling champ the other day in Amarillo. The compact 157-pound collegian probably pulled off one of the most unique wrestling stunts attempted by Simon Pure grunt's groaners lost my coordination at bat. Like all players, my advice to a youngster who wants to play baseball is never to play football.

JOE BELLINO
"No regrets"

"I had a few baseball feelers while at Winchester High, but no one made me a definite offer," explained Plain Joe, a delicately featured lad who is big from the waist down.

"Did you believe then that you could have played major league ball?" he was asked.

"I was positive," he answered, "but the Middlesex League, in which Winchester played, had two catchers ahead of me. John Cjastiglioni and Russ Runge signed with the Boston Red Sox."

Would Bellino have signed for a bonus of, say $50,000?

"I most certainly would have," he replied, unhesitatingly. "Although I had made up my mind to finish college."

Bellino batted 428 in his sophomore year, 320 a year ago. His average dropped to .270 this trip and he played left field after eight games.

"Jammed up my throwing shoulder in the Duke game and hurt it again against Missouri," he explained. "couldn't throw well and

Malcolm Douglas, Lawyer, was trying to make a case for himself. "I really haven't played enough the past two months to be sharp enough for this tournament," he claims.

Malcolm, 30, was referring to the Pampa City Tournament championship which began Monday at the Country Club Course.

Malcolm, as defending champ, takes a dim view of his chances this year. "Golf is a game that requires constant practice," he said, "and that I haven't had."

What about his Opponent Saturday — Les Howard. "Les is a fine golfer, says the former Texas Aggie golfer (51-52-53). He'll be a mighty tough-hombre to whip."

Douglas refused to go out on a limb and predict victory Saturday, neither would he single out a favorite for the three-week tournament.

Baylor's Ronnie Bull, prime 1961 All-America candidate who made two first team All-Americans and four second teams last fall, already has been chosen cover boy for two 1961 annuals and made two pre-season All-America teams.

Another Ronnie Stanley, who has been named to the Pop Warner Conference All-America "All-A" scholastic first team, has completed 14 more passes than did famed Don Meredith through the latter's first two varsity seasons.

Stanley needs only 42 completions this fall to pass Adrian Burk and Larry Isbell to become the No. 1 all-time Baylor passer in career pass completions.

Louis Reyhers' second hit drove in the winning run as Berger nipped the Pampa Knights of Pythias 2-1 in an Industrial softball game Tuesday night.

Doctor Is Denied Hospital Release

LUBBOCK (UPI)—Dist. Judge Robert H. Bean has refused an application by Dr. Harold Eidinoff for his release from the state hospital for the insane.

Eidinoff, of El Paso, was committed to the hospital at Rusk on Nov. 13, 1959, eight days after a Lubbock jury ruled he was insane when he shot and killed El Paso attorney Ted Andress in the International Airport there.

The jury also ruled that Eidinoff was insane at the time of the sanity hearing.

Bean recommended at the time of the sanity hearing that Eidinoff never be released from the hospital. State statutes, however, provide that an inmate may be released if he is considered sane.

Bean's ruling was on the ground that he did not consider his court the proper place for action of Eidinoff's plea for a writ of habeas corpus. Eidinoff maintained he had regained his sanity.

Eidinoff had borne a grudge against Andress for years for showing around nude pictures that Eidinoff and his wife made of each other on their honeymoon.

Eviction Prompts Suit For $80,000

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—Two descendants of Jose Antonio Navarro, one of the signers of the Texas Declaration of Independence, has filed an $80,000 damage suit against two women who had them evicted from their home.

Mrs. Adella Rodriguez Navarro, 75, and Miss Adella M. Navarro, 56, were evicted from their home in San Antonio Friday on grounds they refused to repay a $2,000 loan to Fern E. Johnston and Louise de la Pena.

Miss Navarro took a check for $2,500 to court Friday to "show good faith" in wanting to repay the loan, but the court ruled against her anyway.

She claimed that she tried to repay the loan, but could not locate the two women to give them the money.

The suit, filed before District Judge Joe F. Brown, asks for $30,000 damages and $50,000 for "untold misery and humiliation suffered" in the eviction.

Their ancestor is the man for whom Navarro County is named.

Actor Succumbs In Mexico Home

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Famed Mexican stage, screen and television actor Domingo Soler, 59, died yesterday in Acapulco, Mexico, of a heart attack.

Soler was the oldest of the three Soler brothers, internationally known for their acting performances.

The other two surviving are Fernando and Julian.

He died at his residence in Acapulco, the Actors Association here reported.

Boys Complete Trip On River

BAY CITY (UPI)—Two teenage boys from Austin today completed an eight-day canoe trip down the Colorado River from Matagorda, Tex.

The boys are George McCulla, 14, of 1014 Brady Lane and Vince McLaughlin, 15, of 2800 Stratford in Austin.

They left Austin June 5 with their parents' blessing after packing food, water and fishing equipment into their 16-foot aluminum canoe.

Jury Selection Still Going On In Lufkin Case

LUFKIN (UPI)—A prosecuting attorney said he hoped jury selection will be completed today in the murder trial of Dennis Woodbury after 35 persons disqualified themselves as jurors Tuesday because they disagreed with capital punishment.

Two jurors were selected Tuesday, bringing the total to five. Angelina County Atty. Dan Brazil said the prosecution hoped to begin its case Thursday morning against Woodbury, a 28-year-old ex-Golden Gloves boxer from San Antonio who is charged with murdering Tyler druggist W. S. Carpenter last November. Dist. Atty. Hulon Brown is asking the death penalty.

Joan Brock, 27, Woodbury's companion in the case, was given a life sentence last March for her part in the crime.

Secret Service Found To Need Language Help

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Trips such as the one President Kennedy has just made to Paris and Vienna have convinced Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman he needs a new kind of agent.

Baughman is looking for young men who meet the traditional, stringent Secret Service standards, but who also speak fluent Spanish, French, Russian, Japanese, Polish or Portuguese.

With jet planes winging halfway around the world in a single day, U.S. Presidents can and do visit distant lands as a matter of course.

Where the President goes, the Secret Service — charged by law to protect the chief executive — goes, too.

In 1959 and 1960, when former President Eisenhower made an intensive try at personal diplomacy, he and Secret Service agents visited 22 countries. President Kennedy is not likely to do as much traveling as his predecessor did, but it is still likely that while in office he will visit many nations.

Each time a President goes on a trip, whether in this country or abroad, the Secret Service makes the trip twice. Naturally, agents accompany the President. They also inspect in advance the streets, hotels, rooms, ballrooms, stadiums, airports and other places on the presidential itinerary.

The "advance agents" must make this check to be sure they and local authorities get the

Restored Jefferson Birthplace Slated To Be Opened This Month

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (NEA)—Another piece of history-marked Virginia land will be opened to tourists by this month.

It is the site of Thomas Jefferson's birthplace, Shadwell. Twenty years of excavation, research and planning have been devoted to authenticating and placing the simple 1 1/2-story home on what is believed to be the exact spot. The original Shadwell was burned to the ground in 1770.

The home is on a parcel of land originally purchased by Jefferson's father, Peter, for a bowl full of punch, which was then considered a fair price. The house was built at a nominal cost by Peter himself with the help of several slaves.

President / maximum protection from would-be assassins, organized riots or overly enthusiastic crowds.

In making these advance preparations agents find it useful to speak the language of the country they are in. An agent who speaks the native tongue fluently can acquire a better understanding of local security problems. He also can do a little sleuthing on his own — something a person with a foreign accent would not get far with.

Baughman emphasized in an interview with UPI that he wants men who speak the foreign languages "like a native." This skill is so rare and so important, he said, that he is willing to waive in exchange the Secret Service's usual requirement that a fledgling agent have a degree from a four-year daytime college.

But on other standard criteria for an agent, Baughman is holding firm. He prefers men under 30. They must be in A-1 physical shape and have 20-20 vision. They must be U.S. citizens. They should be "of average build and appearance."

If an applicant passes the written exam his character and background must stand up under a wide and deep investigation — as intensive as the government makes. The service has rejected many otherwise excellent applicants because they had been convicted of minor offenses or had been mixed up in unsavory doings.

Men who make the grade are hired at $5,355 a year. After a year or so of satisfactory service they can expect a raise to a salary of $6,435.

A new agent's first assignment usually is to a special law enforcement school. Then he may be assigned to a Secret Service field office. Eventually he may be promoted to the White House detail — the agents who guard the President. Agents who speak foreign language may get there sooner — or at least join the detail for overseas trips made by the President.

Since then, prices apparently have gone up. The Jefferson Birthplace Memorial Park Commission in existence since 1955, has spent nearly $150,000 on the reconstruction project. More money will be paid out because eventually the entire once-prosperous tobacco plantation will be laid out, complete with a barn, outbuildings and a grist mill on the nearby Rivanna River.

In the meantime, tourists will see two miles east of here to see only the simple home furnished with authentic pieces of the mid-1700s, obtained by the commission through purchases, loans and donations.

The home still will be overshadowed by Jefferson's Monticello, the house and estate he laid out for himself at 28, on a mountain to the west of the place where he was born on April 13, 1743.

To the casual eye, Jefferson seemingly had humble beginnings since the birthplace carries on the wonder of awesome Monticello. But his father, a plantation owner and surveyor, was closely related to two of the leading families of the state and married a girl of the prominent Randolph clan.

Peter Jefferson was considered quite daring when he took his young bride to the wilderness of the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. He and his help cut and cured the lumber and fanned their own wooden pegs for nails to build Shadwell on the estate.

Some 1,000 acres had been bought by Peter around the Rivanna River but, when he couldn't find a suitable nemesite, he purchased an additional 400 acres from neighbor William Randolph for "Henry Weatherbourne's biggest bowl of arrack punch."

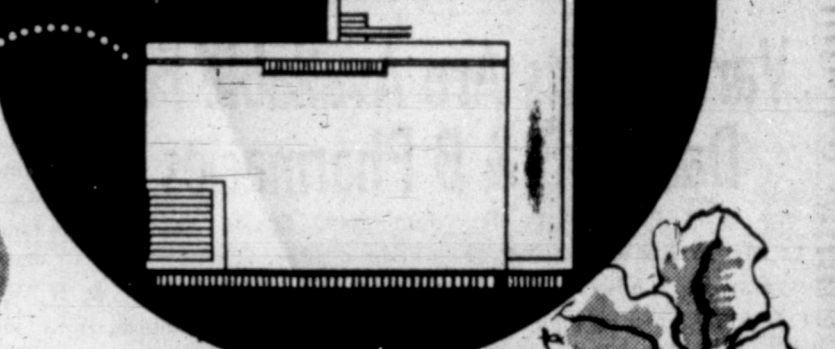

Shadwell was built a year later in 1736, seven years before Tom's birth, and destroyed by fire 23 years after the passing of time obscured the site.

The man who supervised Monticello's reconstruction, the late Fiske Kimball, began the search for the birthplace in 1941. Two pillars were found but later research discounted their being part of the home.

The Birthplace Commission came into being in 1945 and, 10 years later, archaeologist Robert Wells Robbins literally peeled off the hillside to establish today's accepted site.

Bricks, hand nails and artifacts were found. A pit, believed to have been under the original house, also was discovered; it contained 18th century china, glassware, pottery and utensils which experts believe may have been buried there after the 1770 fire.

Nearly 190 years later, the public will have its first chance to see them and gaze at the place where another "father" of American history was born.
