

War Risked In Decision To Send Johnson On Visit To West Berlin

EDITOR'S NOTE: UPI White House reporters Helen Thomas and Alvin Spivak have compiled a special report on the decisions that culminated in Vice President Johnson's visit to West Berlin. Both U.S. and West German officials say it ended the uncertainty of West Berliners and gave them confidence that they would be defended. Following is their report.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The brilliant lights glared on the white walls of the strangely shaped room and glittered on the French doors, closed against the unseasonably chill night outside.

It was Thursday, Aug. 17, and the plus chairs in the second-floor oval study of the President of the United States were arranged for a secret meeting.

The door opened and into the big room with its steadily curving walls filed some of the most important men in the free world.

President Kennedy, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Central Intelligence Agency chief Allen W. Dulles,

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara,

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer,

Presidential military adviser Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, McGeorge Bundy, Kennedy's national security adviser.

The men eased into chairs, glancing through the big windows at the great spotlights that play upon the Washington Monument and illuminate the flags of the world around it. Each knew why he was there.

The administration had deliberated, considered courses of action, consulted with its Allies since the Communists clamped shut the gates of East Berlin to stop a steady flow of refugees fleeing to the West.

In West Berlin, fear ran high and morale was low. West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt publicly demanded, in a letter to Kennedy, "not merely words but political action" from the United States.

Brandt's words were not happily received in Washington — to some officials it appeared a possible political gesture with an eye to the Sept. 17 elections, in which the mayor faces West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. But all agreed that Brandt's letter was not a motivating factor in the decisions to be made that cool night.

It did not take them long to make the decision. The action they decided to take would give the West Germans symbolic support only.

But it would also give the Communists a chance to start a war. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson would be sent to Berlin. And the day after he got there, a 1,500-man battle group would roll down the 110-mile autobahn through East Germany to bolster the West Berlin garrison.

The men also decided to send retired Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the hero of the Berlin airlift, with Johnson.

Kennedy called Johnson about 9 o'clock Thursday night and asked him to go to Berlin.

Friday morning Johnson spent 20 minutes with Kennedy at the White House. He went back that evening with Clay before leaving.

They talked about what he would do, and say in West Germany, and they drew up a reply to Brandt's letter.

The Germans knew that the vice president's visit and the troop movement were both symbolic; but they were welcome symbols, and they came when the people of West Berlin needed something to support them against the barbed wire, cement and guns of the East Berlin border.

Civil Rights Showdown Hits Block

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Southern Democrats stockpiled speech-making material today to stall any showdown vote over a controversial civil rights amendment.

The mounting Senate fight over the issue centered about a motion to suspend the rules and tack a two-year extension of the Civil Rights Commission on to a $761 million appropriation bill.

The dispute split the Senate into warring factions. Both sides accused the other of playing politics with the issue.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, declined to predict when a final vote could be reached, but several other Democratic spokesmen said it may not come until Wednesday, maybe Thursday.

The Senate met early to argue the matter for the second straight day, and Southern opponents were content to bide their time. A full-blown filibuster was not expected to develop.

The Southerners first wanted assurances that they had the necessary votes lined up to defeat other pending rights amendments.

A two-thirds vote is required to suspend the rules and avoid the ban on legislating through a money bill. Mansfield and Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen, co-sponsored the motion to suspend the rules and extend the life of the commission, which is due to expire Nov. 8.

Northern liberals then offered amendments seeking to tie the appropriations bill a wide array of general rights measures, including one by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N. Y., to abolish poll taxes.

Republicans further complicated the issue by trying to attach an extension of "impacted" school aid. It would continue federal aid to school districts crowded by children of federal employees.

A hand of battle-tested Southerners quickly countered by introducing a host of other bills as amendments. One by Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S. C., would require Supreme Court and federal district judges to take an oath of office swearing to uphold the Constitution, something not specifically spelled out in the present oaths.

Kingsmill Man Slain In Blazing Gun Fight

Jack Craig Dies As He Resists Officers' Pleas

A. V. (Jack) Craig, about 58 years old, Kingsmill resident and 1960 candidate for Gray County Sheriff, was slain in a blazing gun battle with Sheriff Rufe Jordan and seven other officers this morning about 10:30 o'clock.

The battle, in which Sheriff Jordan said only seven bullets were fired, broke when the sheriff, accompanied by the other officers, attempted to serve contempt of court papers on Craig. Craig was held by the District Court to be in contempt in connection with civil cases involving a natural gas company. Sheriff Jordan had been instructed by the court, he said, to arrest Craig on a contempt writ.

The sheriff and the other officers said they approached the shack in which Craig lived, almost in the center of Kingsmill, and called on him to surrender peacefully. Craig refused. In a further effort to avoid an open battle, the sheriff told Craig he would use tear gas. Craig still refused.

After continued refusal on the part of Craig to heed the pleadings and advice of the officers, a tear gas bomb was tossed into the yard of the home. Craig came out of the house. Sheriff Jordan, talking over a loud speaker, called again to Craig to surrender, and again Craig refused. A second tear gas bomb was tossed near him he opened fire on the officers.

The officers had been communicating with Craig from a nearby stone church building three blocks south of Highway 60. When the second tear gas bomb was thrown near him he opened fire at the church building. The sheriff said Craig fired twice and that the officers fired five times.

Nearby neighbors said the "bullets were fast and furious" during the battle.

In a statement made by Sheriff Rufe Jordan to District Attorney Bill Waters shortly after noon today, the sheriff said in part: "I was under orders of the district court to arrest A. V. Craig and bring him in for contempt of

Texas Tower Commander Faces Court

STEWART AIR FORCE BASE, N.Y. (UPI) — Col. William M. Banks, 46, a decorated World War II flying ace, faced a military court today on charges of negligence and dereliction of duty in the deaths of 28 men in a collapsed Texas radar tower.

Banks was acting commander of the Boston Air Defense Sector. He was stationed here on Jan. 15, the day the tower, collapsed in the Atlantic off the coast of New Jersey.

Fourteen officers and 14 civilians on the tower were killed when the Texas tower, battered by hurricane winds, plunged into the sea. Only one of the bodies was recovered.

Banks, father of two, shot down nine enemy planes during 237 combat missions in the southwest Pacific during the war. He received the Distinguished Flying Cross and other decorations.

The courts martial officers included three generals and six colonels.

Guard Told Enlistments Are Frozen

Company B, 1st Battle Group, 142d Infantry, Pampa National Guard unit, today was advised that enlistments in the guard had been "frozen" for one year. In military vernacular this means that the enlistment period of each guardsman has been extended for the year.

M-Sgt. Wesley L. Langham, administrative supply technician for the Pampa unit, explained that the extension included "all obligations and enlistments that would expire between September 1, 1961, and June 30, 1962. He said this would affect all members of the guard but that only two men at present were scheduled for discharge as of September 8 and 16. These men must remain in the guard for one year under the change order received this week.

"Young men between the ages of 17 and 18½ can enlist, take six months of active duty training with the Army and return to their hometown unit to serve for an additional period of three years with friends and neighbors. Upon completion of this training they will transfer to the Standby Reserve for a remaining 4½ years.

"Young men over 18½ but under 26 can enlist, take six months active duty training, serve 3½ years in their hometown unit and fulfill their military obligation at the end of six years.

"Many opportunities for technical training are available plus pay, promotions and other benefits.

"Due to the recent emergency in Germany many of the present advantages may be discontinued as noted today by information received from the Adjutant General that beginning September 1st the enlistment of non-prior service personnel 20 years of age and older will not be accepted but those men under 20 can enlist and not have to take their six months active duty training until after January 1, 1962."

Cooper Named To School Post

School Superintendent Jack Edmondson announced today that the Pampa Independent School Board had approved the appointment of William C. Cooper, science teacher at Pampa High School for the past five years, as assistant principal at the school.

Cooper's appointment was made on the recommendation of the school superintendent and Cameron Marsh, high school principal. Cooper will serve as assistant to Marsh.

The appointment came, Edmondson said, after board members had screened a number of applicants for the job. Cooper will assume his duties at once, replacing Weldon Trice who recently was appointed school athletic director.

Commissioners Ponder Library, BCD Budgets

Funds for Lovett Memorial Library and the Board of City Development held chief interest at today's public hearing on Pampa's proposed $1,500,000 budget for 1961-62.

The hearing was held during the regular weekly meeting of the Pampa City Commission in City Hall this forenoon and there was an overflow crowd in the commission room. All available space was taken up with extra chairs and others stood in the doorways.

Several in the audience took part in discussion of the budget proposal.

Jimmy McCune, a member of the library board, told the commission he had heard rumors the library budget for buying books was to be cut in half. He pleaded that the figure should not be cut, but, instead should be increased. Mayor E. C. Sidwell explained it had been suggested that the overall library budget figure be set at $29,720 which amounts to a $1,000 reduction over the suggested $30,720 fund for this year's operation. This would still be an increase of some $1,400 over last year's budget, the mayor stated. "Our library is the last place that should be considered for any budget reduction," McCune told the commission. "It is the only place outside the high school where we have an opportunity for furtherance of education."

Bill Watson spoke on the overall budget and suggested that the city government should be reorganized and cut from some 18 different funds and departments to three general departments — government, security and services. He charged that the city swimming pools are losing money and should be leased to private operators.

Said Watson: "Our city government as it exists now has too many chiefs and not enough Indians."

Mayor Sidwell reported he had a letter from the chief of police requesting $30,000 in police department funds. The money, according to the mayor's report of the request, would be used for additional policemen.

Floyd Watson opened the discussion on the budget figures for the Board of City Development. Figures showed that the 1959 BCD budget was $23,279. The 1960-61 amount was $23,763 and the proposed budget for 1961-62 is $23,889 which would be an increase of nearly $2,000 over last year.

Among those who spoke against a proposed $8,000 cut in the BCD's proposed $25,000 budget for the year were Watson, Reno Stinson, Lynn Boyd, C. A. Huff, Clinton Evans, Lou Troja, Gordon Lyons and E. L. Henderson.

Among those who spoke against any cut in the Library Fund was Lou Troja, M. K. Brown and McCune. Commissioner Newt Secrest also said he was not in favor of a cut in the library budget figures.

Mayor Sidwell gave the audience some figures on the cost of city operation and its increases in the last ten year period. Sidwell said the city budget was $500,000 in 1950. The proposed budget up for hearing today totals some $1,400,000 — an increase, he pointed out, of nearly a million dollars in ten years.

Commissioner L. P. Fort spoke briefly and said that most taxpayers complain of the increase in taxes, "but nobody wants to make any reduction in expenditures."

Troops, Planes, Dogs Join Hunt For Two Killers

LAKE DELTON, Wis. (UPI) — Two Chicago fugitives from a deputy sheriff killing struck terror into this resort area today and set off a 300-man search under fear they might be holding a farm family at gunpoint.

A carnival atmosphere that surrounded the search Monday vanished at dusk. Families deserted farms to sleep in town behind bolted doors.

A Chicago detective assigned to the manhunt said the fugitives, both believed to be professional burglars, are "not the outdoors type."

"They're the kind that are used to ordering their steaks medium rare," Lt. Richard Lewis said.

The fugitives, identified by police and FBI as William J. Welter, 23, and George Kristovich, 34, were accused in the fatal shooting of Deputy Sheriff James Jantz, 26, and critical wounding of Lake Delton Police Chief Robert Kohl, 46.

They abandoned an accomplice in their getaway from a gunfight before dawn Monday. Richard Nickl, 28, either fell or was thrown wounded from their car before it crashed into a ditch. Welter and Kristovich escaped on foot into the woods.

The fugitives tore their clothing on barbed wire near the bullet-riddled car. An Indian resident said the swamp and jack pine area was no place to hide unless "you know your business. If you don't, you won't last long."

The men aroused suspicion last Thursday when they registered at the Dell View Hotel at Lake Delton and spent up to $200 in taverns. A resort owner summoned Jantz and Kohl Sunday and the gunbattle broke out when the officers asked for the men's identification.

National Guard troops, airplanes and bloodhounds were brought into the manhunt. Searchers carried portable lights and radios and roadblocks on every surrounding road were bathed in light.

Castro Declares Cuba Advancing Despite America

HAVANA (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro said Monday that U.S. efforts to "starve out" Cuba have "backfired" because of Communist help and the revolutionary spirit of Cuban workers.

Castro told a group of prize-winning sugar mill workers that the country reaped one of its largest sugar harvest in the first year following nationalization of the industry.

"This is Cuba's answer to the great magnates who believed nationalization of the sugar industry would mean the ruin of Cuba because the people were not capable of managing their national riches," he said.

The premier spoke at the Francisco Castro Ceruto sugar mill in Oriente Province at the eastern end of the island. His 50-minute broadcast speech was one of his shortest of the year.

Castro said production at some mills rose as much as 36 per cent during the year in the face of U.S. refusal to buy the country's sugar.

"When our sugar industry was placed in the hands of the people, the Yankee imperialists suspended the sugar quota in an effort to starve our people and destroy our sugar industry," he said.

Castro said Cuba has been able to advance in the face of "such aggression" because of the friendship and because of the "revolutionary conscience of the sugar workers."

"Our laborers and peasants know that laborers and peasants like them in the Soviet Union, the Popular Republic of China (Communist China) and other socialist nations came to their aid by buying four million tons of sugar and supplying us with all the products the imperialist government of the United States refused to export to our country," he said.

The crowd shouted "Fidel and (Soviet Premier Nikita) Khrushchev, we are with you both."

Plane Thefts Bills Provide Death Penalty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Monday voted 373-5 for a bill that would impose, at the option of the judge or jury, the death penalty for "air piracy" or hijacking.

The Senate earlier passed a bill with differing language but carrying the same extreme penalty for seizure of an aircraft with the use of deadly weapons.

This provision, and some varying more widely, must be ironed out before an anti-hijacking bill can go to the White House. Members of both the House and Senate were confident today that agreement would be reached quickly.

One of the differences that was pointed up was in penalties provided for "interference with flight crew members."

Pigeons Reported Stolen By Pampan

Delbert Thurman, 1112 Sandlewood, reported to city police yesterday evening that someone had looted his pigeon cage.

Thurman, who raises homing pigeons, told police nine of the 37 birds he was training to race were missing.

Chief of Police Jim Conner issued a footnote to the reported theft — the pigeons will probably come home if ever released.

Reds Declared First Winners In Berlin Tiff

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press International
The Berlin border crisis has entered its second week today, and the West might as well face up to this unpleasant fact: The Communists have won the first round.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has been eager for a long time to do these things:

1. Stop the flow of East Germans who have been fleeing to the West. This has been done. The crisis became especially acute when the cream of East Germans began fleeing—doctors, lawyers, skilled engineers.
2. Make it impossible for East Germans to go into West Berlin and compare living conditions there with their own sub-standard economy. This has been done.
3. Establish the principle that East Germany is a separate and sovereign nation and that East Berlin is an integral part of it. This has been done.

While Khrushchev has been acting, the West has been reacting to his moves. The reaction has been defensive in nature. Last week Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin wrote an urgent letter to President Kennedy. It is known today that it was a desperate call for help.

The low point for West Berlin apparently was last Thursday evening. There was genuine fear that the morale of the city was collapsing and some officials even were predicting there would be a mass flight of West Berliners out of the crisis city into the safety of West Germany, 110 miles away.

Kennedy reacted promptly. Vice President Lyndon Johnson was sent to Berlin and the American garrison there reinforced by 1,500 troops.

Both moves were in the nick of time. Johnson, using the breezy Texas campaigning technique that he has developed into a political art, was a smash hit as he roared around West Berlin, making speeches and handing out souvenir ballpoint pens.

The American troops who paraded down West Berlin's main street Sunday brought the garrison there up to about 10,000 men.

The communists, with 400,000 men in and near Berlin, could overrun them in a matter of hours if they should suddenly attack some day.

But the mission of the 1300 Americans was more political than military. They restored the faith of the West Berliners in America's intention to stand firm.

So the extent of the Western alliance's success to date is that two firm gestures have been made without starting World War III.

The crucial question is whether they should have been firmer and insisted that travel between East and West Berlin be allowed to flow. There is no point in second-guessing Kennedy on this one, because the risk of an armed clash would have been enormous and probably prohibitive.

Washington Window

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Not long ago, a labor leader was regarded as a bush leaguer if he settled a big strike outside the White House and a sandlot player if he settled outside Washington.

Now, one of the chiefs of the larger unions says he is worried about the future of collective bargaining because he sees "so many in the field of labor and management looking to the government for their answers."

This warning comes from Joseph A. Beirne, president of the Communications Workers of America and a vice president of the AFL-CIO.

In his union newspaper, Beirne writes that in the early months of the Kennedy administration "we have seen more top level labor-management representatives yield to government solutions of negotiating problems than we have seen for a decade."

He was remembering those postwar years under the Truman administration when business and union leaders trooped to the White House to await their turn for attempts to settle disputes in the auto, steel, coal and railway industries. Other big strikes were settled in the office of the secretary of labor.

Being called to the White House became a status symbol for a strike leader. In one dispute, settled in the Labor Department, government mediators grumbled that the union side would have taken a pay cut if it could just sign its new contract in the White House.

Labor was usually, but not always, accused of seeking government intervention to get more favorable settlements.

Even John L. Lewis, who thundered against government intervention, made his breakthrough to start the mine workers' welfare fund in negotiations with the government, not the coal industry.

The trend was reversed under the Eisenhower administration, although then treasury secretary George M. Humphrey was reported involved in settling the 1956 steel strike. And, after President Eisenhower repeatedly insisted that the government should stay out of the 1959 steel dispute, he gave Vice President Richard M. Nixon credentials to work for a settlement.

Whether or not management was more responsible for inviting federal intervention in the big postwar strikes, Beirne puts them on an equal basis now.

He says he is not accusing the government of taking over collective bargaining and that it is "natural for a strong president and a strong secretary of labor to provide the answers when asked, even urged, to provide those answers." What is happening, he says, is that the government is moving in to occupy a vacuum.

When she gets a call from someone who asks for "Chucky," she says, "This is Chucky." She makes no attempt to mislead the caller. She says she is a girl, explains why she wants to make some money and gives assurance she can mow as well as a boy.

"I think it's best to tell them I'm a girl," Cheryl says. "If I didn't, they might get mad when I showed up for the job."

Surprised at first, prospective employers usually say, "Well, if you think you can do it, come on."

Although her employers have been pleased with her work, Cheryl fears it has got her in bad with some boys—those who rebel against mowing the yards at their homes—when their parents see a girl mowing the yard near a school or across the street.

"Well, I guess it's a little embarrassing for them," Cheryl says. "I guess they get mad at me."

An estimated 75,000 fans, undeterred by overcast skies and a stiff breeze that cut the speed of the sleek streamlined race cars, saw young Lawson, only the second 13-year-old to win the title, speed down the stretch at a 24 mile an hour clip.

He set the best time of the day with a mark of 28.12 seconds in winning a semi-final round down the 1/4 mile course. The fastest time last year was 27.46 seconds.

Waiting at the finish line for the winner who took the title on the third try, was a $5,000 college scholarship.

Gary Patchen, 15, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who finished second, won a $4,000 scholarship. Edmund Wotring Jr., 13, Huntington, W. Va., took the third place scholarship worth $3,000.

Printers Reject Work Proposal

NEW YORK (UPI)—Members of the New York typographical union have rejected a contract agreement reached by their negotiators with nine newspapers after almost ten months of bargaining. Opponents of the contract asked for shorter hours and longer vacations to offset a proposed introduction of Teletypesetters in the local papers.

Two thousand members of the local attended the meeting. About half abstained from voting and the tally was 474 to 317 to reject the contract.

The proposed contract, retroactive to December 1950, offered $4 a week increase in pay the first year and $3 a week increase in the second.

Senators Smith Claim Congressional Honors

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—You feel in the mood for a bit of poetry? Then try this on for size:
"Under the spreading family tree
The clan of Smith doth stand,
Counting all the Smiths you see
'Is like counting grains of sand."

This little quatrain ran through my brain as I was reading a copy of a joint press release put out over the week end by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and Sen. Benjamin A. Smith of Massachusetts.

Sen. Smith and Sen. Smith are not related and have different political affiliations, she being a Republican and he being a Democrat. But both take pride in being Smiths.

So they got together to reveal to the world the startling information that more persons named Smith have served in the U.S. Senate than persons of any other name.

"Twenty one Smiths from seventeen states have served in the Senate since the founding of our republic," their press release reported. "In second place is the name Johnson, with 15. Williams and Brown are tied for third place with 12 each."

I don't blame the Senators Smith for being proud of this record, but in all fairness I think it should be pointed out that they are currently outnumbered in the Senate.

The Longs now have three representatives in that body — Edward V. of Missouri, Oren E. of Hawaii and Russell B. Of Louisiana.

The Smiths didn't say how many other Longs have served in the Senate, but the Longs obviously are moving up fast on the outside, and may soon overtake the Browns.

It also should be pointed out that Smith of Maine bears the name of her late husband. Therefore, to be technical about it, there have been only 20 original Smiths in the Senate.

Of all the Smiths who have worn the toga, none had a more interesting career than Marcus Aurelius Smith of Arizona. He used to be the prosecuting attorney in the Tombstone territory.

Marcus Aurelius Smith, who died in 1924, wrote the epitaph for his own tombstone: "Here lies a good man — a lover of fast horses, pretty women and good whiskey."

As you can see, Marcus Aurelius was better off than Smiths who love pretty horses and fast women.

Marcus Aurelius also had the most unusual first name of any Senator Smith although Delazon Smith of Oregon ran him a close second. As for nicknames, that honor goes to Ellison Durant Smith of South Carolina. He was known as "Cotton Ed."

The two current Senator Smiths likewise hold a certain distinction. Margaret C. is the only woman Smith to have served in the Senate and Benjamin A. is the third Smith to hold his Senate seat by appointment.

I, for one, am grateful to them for bringing this to light. If I had been guessing as to the most senatorial name, I would have guessed Hickenlooper.

MANY MOTORISTS CONVICTED
TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—Nearly 1,500 motorists were convicted during the first six months of this year for failing to keep to the right of the road in New Jersey acting motor vehicles director Ned J. Pareskian said today.

THE EMPTY BUTCHER SHOP

Entering into a business of your own, either in your spare time or on a full time basis, is a big step. Careful consideration should be given every part of such a venture. However, John did not bother to find out what his rights were, and he lived to regret it.

While in the military service John learned the butcher trade. Upon returning to civilian life, he decided to open his own shop. After looking for some time, John learned of a small meat shop in a good neighborhood that was for sale. The shop was doing a thriving business, and seemed to have a substantial number of regular customers. The owner, Amos Jones, showed John the books which indicated a good return. This appeared to be just the opportunity that he had been looking for so John bought the shop.

Business went on briskly for about two weeks — just long enough, in fact, for Amos to open another butcher shop right around the corner. All of Amos' customers followed him to his new location. John, a newcomer to the town, saw his trade practically vanished. Yet he could do nothing.

John might have prevented this situation from arising. He could have put a clause into the contract of sale prohibiting Amos from opening another butcher shop within a given area around his old shop, or even in the same town. This clause could also have provided against Amos returning to the operation of a meat market for a certain length of time, other butcher shop within a given area around his old shop, or even in the same town. This clause could also have provided against Amos returning to the operation of a meat market for a certain length of time.

By his failure to discover and exercise his rights, John had lost them. In entering a new business, as well as in most other ventures in life, it is still a good policy to look before you leap.

White Deer-Skellytown School Registration Instructions Issued

With the summer vacation season rapidly drawing to a close, White Deer-Skellytown school officials have released the schedule for opening the 1961-1962 School Year. School Superintendent Ray Schultz, who supervised the school calendar this week, said he had received many calls for information about the schedule.

Registration for all students new to this district, grades one through eight, will run for two days beginning August 23 and 24, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Grade school students who attended the White Deer Elementary School and Skellytown Elementary School during the 1960-1961 School Year will enroll on Tuesday, August 22, at the beginning of the school day.

All high school students will enroll, both new students and students who were enrolled in this district last year, as follows: freshmen and sophomores August 23, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; juniors and seniors August 24, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All students registering in the White Deer-Skellytown schools for the first time will need to present a birth certificate and book card, and in addition, high school students will need a transcript of work completed. All students are required to have a smallpox and diphtheria vaccination. He also recommended that all students be inoculated against polio.

Buses will not run during the registration period, but will run August 23, the first full day of school.

Commissioner's Brother Dies

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday in Ames, Okla., for D. H. McCracken, 50, of that city, brother of County Commissioner Jim McCracken of Pampa. Mr. McCracken died at 3 p.m. Sunday in Ames. Born Oct. 4, 1910, in Ames, he was a farmer and cattle rancher there.

Other survivors include his wife, two daughters and one son, all of Ames, Okla.; an aunt, Mrs. Sally McCracken of Wheeler; and a cousin, Mrs. J. C. Jarvis of Skellytown.

The case of the missing owner of a packet of papers and Bible was solved late yesterday.

City police reported that the owner, Kenneth Carroll Ford, who recently moved to Pampa has claimed the articles. A packet of papers and a Bible held together by a rubber band was found Sunday by Rex Wheeler of White Deer on Chestnut St. Wheeler turned the papers, which bore the name of Kenneth Carroll Ford, over to police headquarters.

Radio Is Stolen From Automobile

City police received a report yesterday at 10:45 p.m. from W. E. Jacques, 309 E. Browning, that someone had stolen his car radio. Jacques told police he had parked his automobile in the 1200 block of S. Barnes for a few minutes while visiting friends and when he returned to the car, the radio was missing.

JFK Forecasts Difficult Days Ahead During Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "We are going to pass through difficult weeks and months in the time ahead in maintaining the freedom of West Berlin — but maintain it we will."

With those words President Kennedy last night expressed U.S. determination to justify "the confidence and trust which the people of West Berlin have in this country and in its commitments."

He said Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's report on his 2½ day mission to West Germany and the Red-encircled allied sector of Berlin showed the trip was "remarkably successful and important."

Johnson briefed Kennedy for nearly an hour. He was sent to Europe last Friday to help quiet West German fears that the United States and its allies were not prepared to act in the face of the border closings by Communist East Germany.

The vice president, who returned before noon Monday, said after reporting to Kennedy that his exchanges with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt were "useful and fruitful, and I think will be productive."

"No person can see what we saw without deeply feeling the great responsibilities that America has to the people of West Berlin and to humanity," Johnson said.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (UPI) — Two government vessels stood ready today to remove women and children from three villages threatened by a fresh outbreak of forest fires that were burning in the direction of the Gander International Airport.

Commission Asks Citizens To Mark Opening Of School

The City Commission today granted the request of Pampa Key Club for a general city-wide observance of the opening day of school, Wednesday, Aug. 30.

The commission joined with the school board and school administrators in the issuance of a proclamation calling for observance of the day.

Wayne Denson, Key Club president, asked that the request be granted in a statement to the commission at its meeting today in City Hall. The proclamation asks public display of the American flag on homes and business houses on the first day of school. It says in part: "The 50 stars and 13 stripes of our American flag are symbols of all that make America great. Therefore, let every citizen in Pampa and all those who are served by the city demonstrate their dedication to the principles of personal and individual education of all our youth, through the public display of the American flag Wednesday, Aug. 30."

Court Choosing Jurors To Try 'Freedom Riders'

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The first "freedom rider" jury trial was scheduled today in county court. Selection of a jury was expected to consume most of the day.

William A. Kunstler of New York, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, said he would dislike having segregationists on the jury which will hear the state's case against Negro Henry J. Thomas.

Kunstler was expected to ask at the start of the trial that the jury be quashed on the grounds only two Negroes were among the 60 veniremen from which it was to be chosen.

Thomas, 20, of St. Augustine, Fla., was on the first bus to reach Jackson when the "freedom rider" movement made the city its target May 24. A student at Howard University, he is a field director for the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

Negotiations

Communist radio stations started the high-powered campaign during the night with news broadcasts blaming American troops for rape, murder, thefts, rockets and rock 'n' roll music in West Germany.

The Communists filled the air waves with "authentic crime figures" allegedly from Mannheim police and they told West Berliners that their lives were endangered by the U.S. troops. The force, which arrived in Berlin Sunday, originally was based at Mannheim.

However, the East Germans propagandists remained silent on reports from Moscow that a group of prominent Soviet officials would fly into East Berlin today.

Reports circulated in Berlin that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev would visit East Berlin, but this could not be confirmed.

Firms Hand Auto Union Work Offer

DETROIT (UPI)—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler handed the United Auto Workers Union almost identical three-year contract offers today but warned the union the offers will be rescinded in nine days if not accepted by that time.

All three offers, the first made in current contract negotiations by the Big Three, called for six-year hourly pay hikes in each of three years of a new contract, or 2½ per cent, whichever is higher.

The offers also provided for improved benefits for workers in "fringe" areas and retention of the cost-of-living plan.

Leftists Leading Guiana Election

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (UPI) — The extreme leftist Peoples Progressive party of Dr. Cheddi Jagan took the lead today in the important national elections looking toward independence for British Guiana.

Partial returns from yesterday's polling for the 35 seats in the colonial legislature gave the PPP 12 seats, the Peoples National Congress 8 and the United Force 1.

The election is one of the last steps to complete independence for British Guiana, the first colony in South America to reach this stage since World War II. P-11-18 Village In Peril.

Gun Battle

(Continued From Page 1) succeeded Empire Southern in the suit. The judgment of the court in 1953 and again on Sept. 12, 1958 and June 3, 1960 was that Craig was in contempt of the court order and on Aug. 21, 1961 (last Monday) the district court ordered me to arrest Craig for contempt.

"On prior occasions I had difficulty in serving the writs. I had had difficulty in June of 1960 in persuading him to be arrested peacefully.

"I advised the judge that I had grave doubts if he could be arrested peacefully. The judge ordered me to carry out terms of the writ.

"At 7 o'clock this morning Craig called me on the telephone and told me he would not submit to arrest. He said he would kill me or any other officer who tried to take one step on his cattle-guard. I knew he had several guns. Before going out to Kingsmill to try to arrest him, I talked with members of his family and friends whom I thought could reason with him. I found none who thought they would be able to persuade him.

This morning three deputies from my office, the highway patrol sergeant, and Texas Ranger Bill Hensley went to Kingsmill. Sheriff Jordan said this was about 10 a.m.

The statement continued: "I first tried to talk by loud-speaker from the little church nearby. I was unarmed. I didn't even have a pistol. I thought this would persuade him to lay down his guns. I told him over the loud-speaker I was unarmed.

"Craig was in his front yard. He had two rifles and a shotgun. I called to him to surrender. He had one rifle in his left hand and another resting on his right arm. "I asked him if he could hear him to surrender. I talked with him 20 minutes and pleaded with him to surrender. He refused. I told him we would have to use gas. He still refused. I waited a minute and then lobbed a tear gas shell into the yard near the corner of the house.

"It was then that Craig fired his first shot.

"Sgt. E. G. Albers fired a shot over the house. Deputy Shirley Nichols fired into the air. Deputy D. L. Day fired a shot. Craig was hit and died shortly thereafter.

"I deeply regret that it had to happen, but apparently he wanted it no other way," the sheriff concluded his statement.

Officers at the scene were: Sheriff Jordan, Sgt. E. G. Albers, Highway Patrol: Deputy Sheriff Day, Deputy Sheriff Nichols, Deputy Sheriff Jimmy Bowers, Constable D. A. Doggett, Texas Ranger Hensley, Dist Atty. Bill Waters and Justice of the Peace J. W. Graham, coroner.

Russian Concludes His Visit To Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan ended his nine-day visit to Japan today by blasting the U.S.-Japan security treaty and urging the United Nations or the "great powers" to "guarantee the status of free Berlin."

"I first tried to talk by loud-speaker from the little church nearby. I was unarmed. I didn't even have a pistol. I thought this would persuade him to lay down his guns. I told him over the loud-speaker I was unarmed.

"Craig was in his front yard. He had two rifles and a shotgun. I called to him to surrender. He had one rifle in his left hand and another resting on his right arm. "I asked him if he could hear

Berliners Fear Steady Nibbling Away Of Rights

By LEON DENNEN
BONN (NEA) — This is what Berliners feared would happen — not war but a steady nibbling away at their freedom.

By closing West Berlin to the East Berliners and East Germans in flagrant violation of Soviet-Western agreements, Premier Khrushchev's puppets have resorted to "salami tactics" — demoralizing an enemy step by step as one cuts a sausage slice by slice.

Allied personnel and even West Germans are still free to visit East Berlin, but East Berliners are now compelled to remain behind the barbed wire erected by the Communists.

East German underground reports to Socialist leaders in Bonn say that if Khrushchev and East German's Walter Ulbricht get away with this "nibble," their next move will be to impose a tight ban on all travel and communications between the two Berliners.

Thus, if the Summit meeting for which the Western ambassadors are now negotiating in Moscow finally took place, Khrushchev would be in a position to confront the Allies with an accomplished fact.

There is now doubt that the desperate Ulbricht persuaded Khrushchev to take the risk gamble when the German Communists visited Moscow Aug. 3. According to East German reports to Bonn, Khrushchev ruled out any suggestion of Russian troops directly intervening to help Ulbricht cut off the flow of refugees to the West.

But, these reports say, the Soviet premier reluctantly agreed to let Ulbricht try to close the escape route with his own East German forces.

Bonn's contact men with the East German, anti-Red underground fear that closing the access to West Berlin may bring the already tense mood of the East German population to the boiling point. They urge the East Germans not to revolt.

A Socialist leader in close touch with the anti-Reds told me: "It would be only another massacre as in June, 1953. Even desperate men cannot fight Communist guns and tanks with bare arms while the West does nothing to help them."

"And on the other hand, a revolt would give Ulbricht an excuse to seal off East Berlin from West Berlin completely."

This same source urged that the West impose a trade blockade against East Germany and a NATO-wide travel ban against East German officials in retaliation for the Red ban of travel by East Berliners to West Berlin.

Solon Confident Impacted Areas Aid To Continue
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., says he is confident a federal impacted areas bill, which provided more than $13 million to Texas school districts last year, will be renewed this year by Congress.

The program provided $10,677,000 for operation and maintenance of schools in 245 Texas districts during fiscal 1961, and $2,994,000 for classroom construction, Yarborough said.

The bill has been in effect for several years, but this year it was included in the general school bill. Later, however, the impacted areas legislation was voted out of a Senate committee as a special bill for fear the overall bill might be stopped in the House.

School districts in Texas which get this federal money include Abilene, Corpus Christi, Fort Worth, San Antonio, El Paso, Amarillo, Waco, Sherman, Irving and several smaller towns.

Children Versus Video Experiment Revealed

By DOC QUIGG
NEW YORK (UPI) — I put a vegetable in front of a television set the other night to see if it would turn into a child. Nothing happened.

But the vegetable seemed to be enjoying itself. It sat through "Death Valley Days," "Wagon Train," "Danger Man," "Hawaii Eye," "Naked City," the news and weather, and was just settling down for an old movie when I removed it.

The action was in the nick of time. It was beginning to take root. All those re-runs had got into its system. If this vegetable is ever eaten by anybody, it probably will repeat on them.

The noble experiment of fusing horticulture and art through electronics in the living room — my first and last laboratory work as a scientist — was occasioned by recent advice to parents by the secretary of health, education, and welfare, Abraham A. Ribicoff. He said mothers and fathers should get tough with kids who sit for hours like a vegetable.

"If the youngster, Ribicoff told the Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee, is 'permitted to sit like a vegetable pursuing morose murders and ceaseless crimes, he suffers, and his parents do, too — in the end.'"

Well, that's where hours of sitting will get you, just as the secretary said — in the end. And sitting for hours deprives a child of physical exercise. It can be debated whether the child would be exercising if he were not watching television — but it can hardly be denied, in the face of the many tests, that the American child is becoming a wan specimen compared with moppets of other countries.

I had to turn on television to learn that American girls, specifically, are frail. The newscaster was quoting the great coach and physical instructor, Bud Wilkinson: "Many American girls are so frail that they can't hold a tennis racket in their hand for a single game."

Now, I don't think it can be proved that girls watch TV more than boys. But they seem to have stressed indoor gamesmanship more than outdoor. In recent track meets in Moscow, Stuttgart, London and Warsaw, the U.S. men won every meet; the women lost four times.

Last week I shook hands with Jan Crawford. What a grip. She'd probably crush a racket handle in one game. "I shake hands like a truck driver," she said. We had cocktails and shook hands goodby. "Oops," she said, "I did it again." She sure did. They don't make 'em like that anymore.

We used to worry a lot about child labor, and you may remember the old bit of verse by Sarah H. Cleghorn:

The girl links lie so near the mill
That almost every day
The laboring children can look out
And see the men at play.

Nowadays we are worrying about child non-labor — that is, non-exercise — and with Secre-

Municipal Judges To Hear Johnson At Houston Meet

HOUSTON (UPI)— Vice President Lyndon Johnson is included in a list of speakers who will address delegates to the annual convention of the National Association of Municipal Judges to be held in Houston Oct. 31-Nov. 5.

Delegates from 27 states, two Canadian provinces, the Virgin Islands and Mexico are expected to attend the sessions at the Shamrock Hilton hotel.

The list of speakers also include Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark; Health Secretary Abraham Ribicoff; Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona; Rep. Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania; James V. Bennett, director of federal prisons, and Gov. Price Daniel.

Judge Ray Harrison of Des Moines, Iowa, the convention chairman, said: "Never before in America have judges of courts at the lower level been presented such a program of progressive ideas as that planned for the Houston convention."

"Any judge who misses this show is bound to be out of step with modern concepts of judicial efficiency."

The Mature Parent

Simple Acceptance Meets Reality Best

(Mrs. Muriel Lawrence is on vacation. This is the second of three articles which will appear during her absence taken from the book, "The Lord," by Romano Guardini, house chaplain to Pope Pius XII. Copyright 1954, Henry Regnery Co.)

(EXCERPT NO. 2 FROM ROMANO GUARDINI'S "THE LORD")

Jesus makes the prerequisite of heaven childlikeness.

What is it that the child has which the adult in Jesus' eyes so sadly lacks?

Certainly it is not childish charm. That would be lyricism, something Jesus had nothing to do with. Innocence, perhaps? But the child is not innocent. The Bible is much too realistic to call a child innocent. The "innocent child" is the invention of grownups eager to stake a sentimental claim to the vanished purity of their own childhood.

If it's neither charm nor purity what is it then that Jesus praises in the child? Apparently the exact opposite of the chief (and negative) characteristic of maturity. The grownup seeks security and in the process becomes shy and hard. He is afraid and fears abases.

The child, on the other hand, does not yet have the instinct of self-preservation — at least not so strongly. He lives in a world of unruined trust. The attitude is no credit to him, for, it springs from ignorance rather than virtue. Nevertheless, it is there and engenders an unconscious courage toward existence.

The adult sees everything with an eye to its usefulness, thereby rendering everything un-free. He has intentions and nothing so hampers existence as these which trammel action and falsify vision. The child has no intentions. (This is, of course exaggerated. Of course it has intentions, too, as well as fear and everything else that grownups have; for, it begins to grow with its first breath!)

Strictly speaking the child too desires this and that, but for Jesus' purpose here, which is to illustrate an idea rather than demonstrate psychology, it is correct to say: the child meets reality as it is with simple acceptance. Therefore, in his presence things can move freely; he permits them to be themselves.

In the adult is much unnaturalness. He does not leave life alone, but instead, he constantly tries to improve it. The result is what is known as culture and has many precious values but values bought with artificiality and distortion. By contrast, the child is simple and candid. Its honesty is untried, but it is there, a living reprimand.

The adult is self-centered; he is constantly examining, testing and judging himself. The immediacy of things and people is broken in the grownup world, for, the adult is constantly projecting himself between them and him.

Miss Barbara Lewis, William Eckles Exchange Wedding Vows In Canadian

CANADIAN (Sp) — Wedding vows for Miss Barbara Ruth Lewis and William Sparkman Eckles were exchanged in a candlelight ceremony in the First Methodist Church at 7 p.m., August 4. The double-ring ceremony was read by Rev. Clayton Lewis of Waco, uncle of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lewis are parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Eckles are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a formal gown of white satin with net overskirt. The bodice was of lace with sleeves coming to fingertip points. The skirt, ending in a long train, was accented with sequins and lace. Her veil was caught by a crown accented with sequins and lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses centered on a white Bible.

Candlelighters were Miss Brenda Lewis, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Karen Butler, a cousin of the bride. They wore dresses of blue satin trimmed with white. Flower girls were Karen and Gloria Ball who wore blue satin dresses trimmed with white, also. Ringbearers were Bruce Butler of Dumas and Larry House of Amarillo.

Miss Sylvia Wright was maid of honor and wore a dress of blue embroidered peau de soie, fashioned with a wide cummerbund and puffed sleeves. She also wore a blue picture hat.

Bridesmaids were Misses Sue Huyck, Linda Huyck of Amarillo and Kay Sessions. They wore dresses identical to the maid of honor and blue picture hats. They carried bouquets of white gladioli.

Best man was David Rowntree of Grand Prairie, and groomsmen were Glen Hostutler, Robert Lewis Jr., brother of the bride, and Frankie Muir. Ushers were John Rogers and Tom Lemons.

The altar was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and candleabra trimmed with greenery.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. W. A. Kessie Jr., and she accompanied Miss Barbara Hulme who sang "Because." Jim Cline sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Miss Mary Evelyn Jones.

A reception held in the church's Fellowship Hall was given by the bride's parents. A white linen cloth over blue covered the serving table, which was centered with the wedding cake and blue candles.

Registering the guests was Miss Deloris Batts. Other members of the house party were Misses Frankie Smith, Judy Brock, Marcia Crowell, Nadean Streeter, Jo Brown and Mrs. Archie Lard.

Mrs. Eckles wore a pink dress and white accessories for the wedding trip to Galveston.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Eckles were spring graduates of Canadian High School. After Sept. 1, the couple will be at home in Lubbock where the bridegroom will attend Texas Technological College.

Dear Abby... Aren't You Being Oversensitive, Lady?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My older brother recently passed away. It was God's blessing because he had been sick in the hospital for over a year and there was no hope for him. While he was in the hospital I went to see him often and brought him little things to cheer him up. The week after his funeral I got a note in the mail from my brother's wife THANKING me for being so kind to her husband. Abby, I am deeply hurt. This man was my own flesh and blood brother, and I don't think I need to be THANKED for being good to him during his illness. I want to speak to his wife about it, but my children tell me to forget it. I am not going to forget it. But first I want you to tell me what to say to her.

HEART-BROKEN SISTER DEAR SISTER: I agree with your children. Your brother's wife did not want to slight you; therefore, when she thanked everyone else for their kindness to her husband, she included you. Let the matter drop. Your sister-in-law has enough to worry about.

DEAR ABBY: My husband drinks. When he really gets a snootful, he goes out on the porch flaps his elbows and crows like a rooster. What is the meaning of this?

ROOSTER'S WIFE DEAR WIFE: Maybe he's trying to tell you it's time you woke up. He's a lush.

DEAR ABBY: I feel terrible. My best friend dropped me because my sister had her baby three months early. My friend told me to my face that she couldn't go around with me any more because it might hurt her reputation.

Abby, I never did anything wrong, and I don't think it is fair that I should suffer for something my sister did. What should I do? I am 13.

NEEDS A FRIEND DEAR NEEDS: Your "friend" doesn't know the meaning of true friendship, so you haven't lost much. Just continue to be a good girl, and you will win the friendship of someone who accepts you for what YOU are, and realizes that you are not your sister's keeper.

Foreign Commentary

By WILLIAM J. FOX
United Press International
Notes from the foreign news
cables:

Algerian troubles:
There is every likelihood that France's President Charles de Gaulle will soon have more trouble in North Africa. While the situation is being played down officially, he faces a two-pronged problem there. One comes from the regular army men there who are the backbone of the fight against the Moslem rebels. They resent the idea of abandoning Algeria and are beginning to act up in some Algerian cities. They lack a focal point around which to rally their resentment. But Gen. Raoul Salan, champion of a "French Algeria," still is at large and might provide that force. The second part of De Gaulle's dilemma is the fact that hope of settling the Algerian issue by negotiation has foundered. As a result, the French have partly abandoned their unilateral cease fire, and the Moslem rebels are likely to build up for a more intensive fight. If Algeria doesn't provide enough difficulty, neighboring Tunisia promises to do so. Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba remains determined to drive the French out of the air and naval base at Bizerte.

Laos buildup:
The West probably will call for a full plenary session of the Laos conference in Geneva very soon to present evidence of a new Communist military buildup in that Southeast Asian kingdom. In recent limited sessions in Geneva, the West has relaxed its pressure to give the International Control Commission for Laos necessary transport facilities and authority to make on-the-scene investigations of reported truce violations. But the rainy season is nearing an end in Laos. And some Western delegates fear the Reds may be readying a new offensive against the royal Laotian forces.

Bumbling Mikoyan:
Unless he makes a fast recovery, Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's "goodwill" visit to Japan will go down as one least likely to win friends for the Kremlin. Ever since he arrived on an "unofficial" trip to open a Soviet trade fair and explore part of the country, Mikoyan has acted as a rude guest. He has lectured the Japanese on their foreign affairs and criticized the United States-Japanese treaty. But all he has done is to antagonize virtually all elements of Japanese society, and may have done more to harm than help Japanese-Soviet relations.

Vatican streamlining:
Expect some streamlining of the Vatican's "foreign office" following the appointment of Amleto Giovanni Cardinal Cicognani as new vatican secretary of state. Cicognani spent 25 years in Washington as a Vatican diplomat and is considered more open to modern suggestions than any of his immediate predecessors. The Vatican's diplomatic service, while excellently informed, still is centuries behind as regards speed in making the information known, collating it and making decisions.

Neutral Nations Fail To Forge Bloc In UN

By GABE KAIMOWITZ
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA)—The U.N. General Assembly will convene in regular session next month without a "third force" of neutral nations to take the lead in easing critical problems of the cold war.

The development of a cohesive bloc of nations uncommitted to either the West or the Soviets generated heated discussion at last year's Assembly. But talks with U.N. delegates indicate such a force thus far has failed to materialize.

Instead of a power shift to a new group which might have stood as an "honest broker" between the two contending blocs, a power vacuum has been created. On issues that do not directly concern their national sensitivities or the independence of colonial territories, the uncommitted countries of Africa, the Middle East and Asia are reluctant to join in taking strong positions which might antagonize East or West.

The so-called neutral nations apparently will leave the U.S. and the Soviet Union largely to their own devices on such issues as Berlin, world disarmament and nuclear testing.

Although some observers here believe chances of acceptable solutions might be improved if some group of nations outside the major power camps took positive action on these touchy problems, the non-aligned nations at present decline the role.

On Berlin, for example, a member of the Irish delegation says: "It's a bit early to talk of compromise before the question is placed on the U.N. agenda. No, Ireland has not considered placing the question on the agenda, nor does it expect to offer compromises when the question is put forth."

School Board At Lefors Sets Budget Hearing

LEFORS (Sp1)—The Lefors School Board of Trustees met in regular meeting recently and set Sept. 12, as the date for the 1961-62 School budget hearing at 7:30 p.m.

Harley Lewis, junior high teacher, was hired as assistant junior high coach. He will assist coach Eddy Clemons in football, track, and boys basketball, in addition to his regular teaching duties. He will also coach junior high girls basketball and all junior high tennis.

The school award policy has been changed regarding sports. It is now possible to letter in track on the same basis as football and basketball. Each student who letters will receive a certificate to include all activities that he or she letters in.

It is not definite that a driver's education car will be secured this year. The question is now before the board and arrangements will be completed soon.

"That is up to the powers directly concerned."
In previous instances, such as Red China's actions in Tibet, Ireland was instrumental in putting the questions to the U.N. and following them through to mild resolutions.

Even in an instance where a "disinterested" third party, Liberian President Tubman, called for U.N. consideration of Berlin, no concrete steps were considered. Nathan Barnes, Liberian delegate to the U.N., explained:

"Liberia only was supporting the U.S. statement by Secretary of State Rusk, who suggested the question eventually might be considered by the U.N."

"Liberia cannot be expected to take a leading role in gaining consideration of that question."

Yet, the Liberian delegation did take an active role in suggesting U.N. consideration of the dispute between France and Tunisia over Bizerte.

One U.S. observer at the U.N. sees the situation this way:

"Except for the Soviet bloc, no particular grouping of nations is sufficiently unified to vote together on more than one or two matters. On very controversial issues involving major powers, extensive diplomatic negotiations precede the introduction of resolutions."

"If no agreement is found, the issue frequently is not pressed to a vote. This procedure precludes U.N. action when action is most needed."

Another result is that, on many controversial votes, the Western alliance lines up against the Soviet bloc and a handful of others while the great mass of non-aligned nations abstains.

Most of these nations have won their independence in the last 16 years; they seem jealous of surrendering freedom of action to any "bloc." For example, a spokesman from Ceylon said:

"Ceylon will follow a neutral policy independent of decision by the countries in the non-aligned coalition."

This is said even though Ceylon intends to be a full member of such a coalition.

Another splintering factor among the "neutrals" is conflict between each other's nationalism and self-interest. The Arab nations and Israel obviously will not work closely together. A number of West African nations are at odds with Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah and his vision of enlarging Ghana's role in Africa.

Yet some uncommitted nations have not given up on the idea of a strong "third force." Their last chance for welding it together before the General Assembly will come at the Conference of Leaders of Non-Aligned Countries, opening in Belgrade.

Noises May Bare Life On Planets, Scientists Think

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — U.S. astronomers have plans for a 30 to 100-year search through 10 million potential solar systems for signs of "intelligent life."

Thus far, they've gone through two solar systems without finding anything. But the astronomers of Project Ozma at the National Radio Observatory at Green Bank, W. Va., are not discouraged.

Ten million solar systems is the number they think they may have to survey with their radio telescopes before finding a civilization that's intelligent enough to understand our signals.

The astronomers think that 60 per cent of the stars in the heavens may have planetary systems. They figure that sometime or other most of these stars have had or will have an intelligent civilization in its planetary system. It takes about five billion years, they have figured, for a civilization to arise from a barren uninhabited solar system and become intelligent.

But they figure that intelligent civilizations come and go. Some blow themselves up with a tom-bomb. Some get tired and lethargic. A few live on.

The astronomers estimated, mostly out of thin air, that 15 per cent of all intelligent civilizations are wiped out 30 years after they develop the ability to send messages through space.

They estimated that 60 per cent of all intelligent civilizations go through a devastating atomic destruction — but that some form of higher life remains and redevelops.

They estimated that 25 per cent of intelligent civilizations last for 1,000 to 10,000 years, but that none live on indefinitely.

The radio astronomers have figured out that there is probably one intelligent civilization for every 10 million solar systems.

Their plan is to measure the electromagnetic waves sent out by the regions near the likely planetary stars. They of course, pick up a great deal of noise in their telescopes. But they figure they can tell intelligent signals for any world they sight in on, because the intelligent signals will vary according to a different pattern than random noise.

They don't expect any civilizations they find to be like ours. They're not certain either how they would decode any space messages they find.

Paper Industry To Benefit From Business Upturn

NEW YORK (UPI)—The paper products industry found the benefits it expected in the recent months' upturn in the national economy, industry sources reported today.

A study of earnings per common share for the first half of 1961 showed that with only a few exceptions, figures were down from those of the same period of 1960.

But some of the big industry names showed a definite improvement in their first half earnings as compared with those for the first quarter.

Most firms three months ago were able to see light ahead, and their feelings at that time seem to have been justified.

"The paper industry is benefiting in the second half from a definite upturn in the national economy," said William H. Walters, chairman and president of Diamond National Corp.

"The recent rise in price of corrugated box materials initiated two weeks ago by major companies appears to be holding well". These companies included Crown Zellerbach, American Can and Owens-Illinois.

Standard and Poor's Corporation earlier this month reported the business upswing was lifting the demand for paper; that despite a poor start in the first nine weeks of 1961, the demand for paperboard, for example, may exceed that of a year earlier in each month well into 1962.

S&P regarded the prospects for the white paper segment of the paper industry as somewhat better than for the paperboard segment and that coarse paper production faced some problems because of competition from other materials used in certain types of packaging.

Shrimporree Set At Aransas Pass

ARANSAS PASS (Sp) — The shrimp will be boiled, but the crabs will run when this city on the Texas Tropical Coast presents its 13th annual Shrimporree on September 1, 2 and 3.

Each year, in September, thousands of vacationers pour into the shrimp capital of Texas to join in the celebration that includes among its standard attractions, a carnival, parades, coronations, beauty contests, dances, et al.

Although shrimp is king, it's doubtful they can enjoy their reign as gigantic shrimp boils are one of the events best attended. While these succulent crustaceans are devoured by the hundreds of pounds, their kindred creatures, the crabs, are off to the races.

Two hours after the shrimp boil the crab races are held on the water front. This year a special committee has been experimenting with different types of tracks and have come up with a course the crabs like to run on.

Another attraction has been added to the Shrimporree this year to the water front performances. On Sunday, the Starlight Sky Divers will perform at hourly intervals.

British Princess Marks Birthday

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret, who expects her first child in three months, quietly turned 31 yesterday.

As is her custom, she observed her birthday in Scotland where she was born. She was at Balmoral Castle with her husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones, Queen Elizabeth and other members of the royal family.

The quiet celebration in the privacy of the royal palace was in line with the wishes of Margaret's sister, the queen, and her mother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, according to court sources.
