Hel-p! Kennedy Wins It

WASHINGTON (UPI) — What does a president do when his defense secretary decides to close down a big defense installation in his own home state?
Like many lesser men, he calls for help.

That's what President Kennedy did last week when he learned that Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara had decided to phase out the Boston naval shipyard, along with the Philadelphia and San Francisco shipyards.
Kennedy apparently was bothered by the decision to shut down the shipyard in his very own backyard. But he remained obviously reluctant to reverse the decision.

Looking around for help, he finally landed on Rep. John F. Shelley, a tough but personable 55-year-old one-time labor leader, wartime Coast Guard officer and longtime Democratic representative from San Francisco.

Shelley, cornered by Kennedy during a tour of the White House with his wife and children, was told of the planned closing from what he later was to describe as an "unmistakably reliable source."
"But, Mr. President, they can't do that!" Shelley exploded.
"Well, you don't you go to work on it," Kennedy reportedly answered.

The one-time truck driver did exactly that.
He crossed party lines to get the help of Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, the effective Republican whip from California, and Rep. William S. Mailliard, his Republican colleague from San Francisco. He also was assisted by California's razor-tongued Democratic senator, Clair Engle.

Shelley and his staff got on the phone and alerted San Francisco leaders to the dangers of losing the shipyard which, with its more than 7,000 employees, is the city's biggest employer.

Within hours, Defense Secretary McNamara was deluged with telegrams and telephone calls protesting the planned closure.

The White House chose not to deny the report but to declare that the recommendation to close the three shipyards had been rejected by the President himself because of the Berlin crisis.

The statement made it clear that Shelley's fears were real and his protest against the planned closure was based on actual recommendation.

Once the word of the President's decision was out, a jubilant Shelley sat back in his office as the congratulatory calls poured in from his colleagues and from San Francisco.

His greatest moment came, however, when McNamara called and said laughingly: "Next time I'd like to have you on my side."

Russian Roulette Fatal For Youth

DALLAS (UPI) — Terry Williams 16, of Dallas died today in a Dallas hospital after he shot himself in the head playing Russian Roulette Sunday.

Companions said Williams began talking about playing the deadly game after the group returned to a south Dallas apartment from a picnic. They said Williams put a 22-caliber revolver to his head, spun the chamber and pulled the trigger twice.

Weekend Violence Erupts In Algeria

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Terrorist violence killed at least 18 persons and injured 22 others in Algeria during the weekend, reports showed today.

The incidents were isolated. Hardest hit was Oran, Algeria's second largest city, where four plastic bomb explosions killed one person and injured three others.

It is believed from a hardware store he came to Lewis Hdwe. Adv.

Pact Offer Awaited By Auto Union

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers Union today entered the crucial phase of new contract negotiations with the auto industry, confident the Big Three companies were nearly ready to make major economic offers.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler were known to be preparing such proposals. They were expected to be presented early this week, with GM or Ford taking the lead.

The UAW's contracts with GM and Ford expire Aug. 31. The UAW-Chrysler pact also will expire then if a 10-day notice is given today.

Indications were Chrysler and the UAW, both unhappy with the results of seven weeks of negotiations, would exchange cancellation letters at today's meeting.

The union said latest tallies from its strike vote of Big Three workers showed — as expected — overwhelming support for a walkout if necessary to back up the UAW's demands.
Returns from one Ford and 11 GM plants had 13,326 members approving a strike with 13½ percent, an average far above the two-thirds required to authorize a walkout.

One GM plant, however, will not take a strike vote and will not go on strike if one is called. The UAW said the 5,200 workers at the AC Spark Plug plant in Milwaukee, Wis. were exempt because they make guidance systems for the Titan and other U.S. missiles.

UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock said he believed "there should be uninterrupted production of these vital defense systems." He said he was confident the plant's "special problems" can be solved "jointly and without difficulty" by GM, the UAW and the government.

C-C Meetings Start Sept. 11

Regular monthly membership meetings of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will be resumed Monday, Sept. 11 in Coronado Inn.

Speaker for the first membership luncheon will be Dr. Robert Morris, president of the University of Dallas. Dr. Morris served for several years as chief counsel for the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security.

Formerly a judge in the Ninth Judicial District of New York, Dr. Morris also served in intelligence work during the war as a commander in the U.S. Navy. He is the author of a recent book, "No Wonder We Are Losing."

E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the Pampa chamber, said today the annual chamber of commerce meeting, has been set for Oct. 23. William J. Bird, vice president of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. of San Francisco, will be the speaker.

Wedgeworth said new officers and directors for the coming year will be elected and installed prior to the annual C-C banquet.

Announcement also was made today that the bi-weekly Congressional Breakfasts, sponsored by the chamber, will be resumed in September following a summer recess.

The annual membership roster of the local chamber is expected to be off the press and ready for distribution within a few days, Wedgeworth said.

Ogilvie's parachute was blown off course after a 2,400-foot drop with the result that he landed on Mrs. Warren's roof and crashed through. His feet came through the slate and he was hauled down unhurt.

Cuban Proposes Hijacked Vessel Deal With Fidel

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — A Cuban sea captain said Sunday he has asked President Kennedy to use the ship he hijacked to bargain with the Fidel Castro government for his relatives and those of 10 fellow defectors.

But Jorge Austin Navarro said his request did not take into account a court hearing which could also affect the fate of the Bahia de Nipe, a 3,800 ton Cuban freighter originally bound for the Baltic Sea and possibly Soviet ports.

Navarro, 45, a trim, gray-haired mariner, diverted the merchant ship to Norfolk last week to seek political asylum with 10 of his 33 crew members.

He told a news conference Sunday he had suggested that the President use the $1 million freighter to make sure that Cuba would not retaliate against the families of the defectors and to bargain for the families' freedom.

The court hearing, scheduled to resume today, was to determine whether the Coast Guard can keep federal marshals from attaching the ship in order to settle claims against its owners—the Cuban government and the Naviera Fabuca S.A. Shipping Co.

The State Department said shortly after the Bahia de Nipe arrived here that the ship and its 23 remaining crewmen would be allowed to return to Cuba.

Machine Invented To Give Cows Automatic Washings

ARTESIA, Calif. (UPI) — Teo Albers thinks he has invented the greatest thing for cows since milk-lined automatic milkers — a very hygienic machine that washes a bovine in 4½ seconds.

The contraption is called a "cowash" and might develop the cleanest, if not the most contented cows in the world.
Albers, a native of Holland who came to the United States in 1946, says the cow enters a concrete

She is Judy Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Bradley, of Hereford.

Budget Hearing Slated Tuesday

A public hearing on Pampa's proposed $1,447,339 municipal budget for the 1961-62 fiscal year is scheduled at the regular meeting of the City Commission at 9 a.m. Tuesday in City Hall.

The budget proposal, which also carries a five-cent cut in the city tax rate from $1.50 to $1.45, first was submitted to the commission on Aug. 1.

Mayor E. C. Sidwell and other members of the commission have gone over the proposed figures in the budget and it will be up for public hearing Tuesday. Taxpayers who wish to ask any questions about the proposed figures will have their opportunity at the hearing.

Tuesday's hearing will be held in the regular meeting room of the commission on the first floor of the City Hall.

Hemphill County's Tax Battle Reported Ended

CANADIAN (Spl) — An effort to obtain an injunction against Hemphill county taxing authorities was dropped here Friday possibly bringing to an end an unusual situation that could have had far-reaching consequences.

A temporary injunction had been granted 23 petitioners by District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich. A hearing on a permanent injunction had been scheduled for this morning.

County Judge Sanford Cole and various other county officials and interested citizens, somewhat alarmed by the developments, finally succeeded Friday in bringing about a settlement in the county's taxing affairs. The injunction petition was then voluntarily dropped by the 23 petitioners, Judge Cole said.

The complaint of the 23 petitioners was based on the contention that personal properties was not being assessed for tax purposes. The county commissioners, in action subsequent to the filing of the injunction petition, approved an order instructing the county assessor to immediately assess all personal properties, including bank accounts, stocks, bonds, etc.

The complaint on which the restraining order was issued, that personal properties were not being assessed, and the County Commissioners' answering action in ordering all personal properties put on the tax rolls at 100 per cent of value, could have had far-reaching effects.

Primary effect would have been to greatly increase the total property valuations for city and school district, as well as County, since all bank deposits held by residents of the county, all stocks and bonds, and all other securities (such as notes and mortgages) would have to be rendered for taxes at face value.

No one was prepared to estimate how much this could amount to. Bank deposits alone would add a nearly $5 million to tax rolls of each assessing authority, but other personal holdings would add many additional millions.

Any boost in county tax valuations would proportionately increase state taxes, since state assessments are based on the county valuation schedule.

And a collateral effect would be almost certain doubling of school district taxes... since the probable increase in county valuations would inflate the school economic index to such a point that no state funds would be available. Currently, state aid accounts for about 35 per cent of the total school district budget, with only about 45 per cent coming from local taxes.

Another side effect might have been an exodus of capital from the county to escape the personal property tax.

School Position Continues Open

Members of the Pampa Independent School board met in called session this forenoon to screen applicants for the post of assistant principal of Pampa High School.

Supt. L. J. Edmondson said at noon today no decision had been reached on an appointment to the post which became vacant several weeks ago when Weldon Trice, former assistant principal, was named to the post of school athletic director.

The board met at 9:30 a.m. and after a discussion of plans for sidewalk improvements at city school crossings, went into the matter of selecting a man for the job of assistant principal.

Board members indicated they wanted to obtain the best possible man for the job and were of the opinion the matter of selection should even be delayed for further study if no decision could be reached today.

Indications were that the school board was attempting to decide whether it would be better to hire an outsider or employ someone already in the local school system.

The board members were in agreement that whoever is hired should be an experienced educator and a good disciplinarian.

Superintendent Edmondson said it was possible the board would get into a brief discussion of the school's policy manual before today's session ended.

Bullied People Won't Give Up, 'Veep' Asserts

EN ROUTE WITH JOHNSON (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, buoyed by the enthusiastic reception he received in his hurried trip to West Berlin, flew back to Washington today to report personally to President Kennedy on the Berlin crisis.

Johnson originally had been scheduled to fly to the President's summer home, but Kennedy switched the meeting place to Washington. Accompanying the vice president were retired Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Charles Bohlen, State Department expert on Soviet affairs.

The vice president's flight was delayed for nearly two hours at Shannon, Ireland, because of a cracked windshield on the left side of the pilot's cockpit. A new windshield was installed and the presidential Boeing 707 jetliner took off for Washington.

While at Shannon, Johnson said his Berlin mission was highly successful and that he was very encouraged by what he had seen in the beleaguered city.

Johnson said his trip to Berlin was a mission of peace and most persons realized that "we are willing to do anything to protect that peace."

Despite the early hour, Johnson smiled and shook hands with his Irish greeters. He said he found the Allies in Berlin very united and added that his Berlin reception was the biggest and warmest seen in Europe since the liberation of France.

Limerick Mayor Dan O'Malley, who acted as President Eamon de Valera's representative, gave Johnson an Irish linen tablecloth for "Ladybird," the vice president's wife, and two linen place mats for his daughters.

Johnson arrived in West Berlin Friday and delivered a message from Kennedy to West Berlin Lord Mayor Willy Brandt.

During a massive rally earlier last week, Brandt issued an appeal for "action, not words" to counter the Communist border-sealing.

An estimated 800,000 Berliners turned out for the rally, kicking off celebrations that grew larger each day and were climaxed Sunday with the arrival of 1,500 U.S. troops in Berlin.

The Vice President said his visit to the beleaguered city convinced him that West Berlin "can never be bullied into the surrender of its freedom."

The U.S. garrison was reinforced Sunday by 1,500 combat-ready troops ordered to West Berlin by President Kennedy to face Communist threats. The troops rolled across East Germany without any interference and entered the city to a tumultuous welcome from a half-million cheering West Berliners.

Kennedy sent Johnson to Berlin and then ordered the U.S. Army battle group to the city. West Berliners complained that the Western Allies had failed to counter Communist moves.

The Communist East Germans sealed the 25-mile city border Aug. 13, barricaded it with barbed wire, concrete blocks, tanks and troops, and threatened to keep it closed.

West Berliners lined the streets to watch the 250-vehicle convoy enter the city. They tossed flowers at the smiling troops, blew kisses at them, whistled, cheered and cried.

In a farewell statement made on the eve of his departure, Johnson said he would tell President Kennedy that the Western powers "have never had better or braver allies than we have in the citizens of West Berlin."

The U.S. reinforcements traveled to West Berlin from Mannheim in West Germany, in 40 hours. (See GERMANY, Page 3)

Rusk Says U.S. Has 'Reassured' West Berliners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's Berlin visit and the arrival of another 1,500 U.S. troops reassured West Berliners that America will defend them, according to Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Rusk said "the events of the last two days have reassured" the people of West Berlin, dismayed at the Communist closing of the East Berlin border.

Rusk, appearing on a television interview Sunday, rejected suggestions that the United States was slow in replying to the Communist action. An "instantaneous" reaction would not be the best course in the Berlin situation, he said.

Rusk, declining to say at what point the United States might resort to force in Berlin, said the U.S. aim was to protect the West's "vital interest" there by peaceful means.

"We will not be pushed out of West Berlin," he said.

The West's vital interests in Berlin, Rusk said, were the freedom and security of West Berliners, Western access to the city and continued presence of Western troops in the city.

He predicted that Russia and the West would eventually sit down at the conference table to settle the Berlin situation, which he said involved a larger issue—"the great world wide confrontation between the Sino-Soviet bloc and the free world."

Rusk said there would be "follow up" moves to Johnson's visit in the diplomatic field, but declined to discuss them.

If the Berlin crisis worsens, he said, it will be laid before the United Nations.

UN To Discuss Bizerte Tangle

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The General Assembly opens a special session on the Bizerte crisis today with the powerful Afro-Asian bloc backing Tunisia in its dispute with France.

The 47 Afro-Asian members claimed sufficient voting strength to gain approval of a "moderate" solution critical of the French.

Special Tunisian representative Mongi Slim was expected to begin the debate with a long statement in support of his government's charges of French aggression at Bizerte.

France announced it would boycott the session and would not consider itself bound by any decision taken by the 99-nation assembly.

Western diplomats feared the Soviet Union might use the special session to force a wide debate on evacuation of all foreign military bases throughout the world. Such a move by the Communists could drag the meeting out for weeks.

The special session, the third in the history of the world organization, was instigated by the Afro-Asian powers.

ANTIQUÉ STIRRUPS — Mrs. Carroll Boutte, center, is shown explaining the history and use of the antique Columbian stirrups she purchased during her travels in Latin America, to her son, Brian, and her mother, Mrs. F. Mrs. Boutte Tells Of Life In Venezuela

By JANE KADINGO

How would you like to live in a country where the houses are built with live - in maids quarters - where the temperatures are mild the year around - where a woman, freed from housekeeping duties, is free to play bridge, swim, go horseback riding, play golf, take art lessons and the like?

Such is the life of Mrs. Carroll Boutte, who has lived four years with her husband and son in Venezuela. She is now visiting in Pampa with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Van Shoubrouek, 1800 Dogwood, awaiting the birth of her second child, after which she and her son, Brian, 5-years old, will return to Venezuela.

Calling Latin America "a woman's paradise," Mrs. Boutte explained there are nearly all the clubs there that we have in the United States and "everything you would want to do" in the way of entertainment - even go - kart races! And, with the household help so readily available, a woman has the time to indulge in interests and develop hobbies and talents.

"You're relaxed and rested when your husband comes home and feel up to doing the things with him that he'd like to do," she pointed out.

A person who has moved a great deal all her life and a person who likes to mix with people, Mrs. Boutte was able to adjust quickly to life in Venezuela, and loves it.

NO HURRY
There is no hurry in Latin America," she pointed out. "As the old saying goes, everything is manana."

She added that there would be a lot less people with ulcers and nervous breakdowns if Americans would adopt some of this attitude.

She mentioned that when you're invited to a dinner party in Venezuela, you'd better eat a snack before you go, as the meal is not likely to be served before midnight.

The Bouttes live in Lagunillas, in the state of Zulia, where her husband is a petroleum engineer with Creole Petroleum company.

The temperature there is 88 degrees to 90 degrees the year around, while in Eastern Venezuela, the year-round temperature is about 70 degrees.

DIPLOMATS
Mrs. Boutte pointed out there are about 40,000 Americans in Venezuela as all of the major oil companies and other major industries of this country have interests there.

"Satisfactory overseas personnel make good diplomats," she explained, "because we meet the everyday people. We like the job and the country or we wouldn't stay."

She added that it takes 10 of the Americans living there, who know the customs and taboos of the country, to make up for one error by a tourist.

Mrs. Boutte believes the United States should stress more foreign languages in their schools, so American tourists visiting other countries would be more likely to know the language and customs thus making better impressions on the people in these foreign lands.

THE PEOPLE
"A middle class is emerging in Latin America," she stated, adding this is partly due to improvements in education. And as the people are getting better educated, they are gaining more knowledge of world affairs and of democracy and want to better themselves.

Mrs. Boutte pointed out that there is a lot of poverty and illiteracy in Venezuela, and the people, who have been under a strong dictatorship, are having their first chance at democracy. "If they will follow and listen to Presidente Betancourt, I believe they will make it," Mrs. Boutte explained, adding that the new president is fighting the Commu-

Venezuela had the gold reserve to back it up.

The currency was named for Simon Bolivar, she pointed out, who was an admirer of, and greatly admired by George Washington. In all the paintings of him, she explained, Simon Bolivar wore a cameo which George Washington sent him. It was Bolivar's dream to make a United States of Columbia of the present countries of Columbia, Venezuela and Peru, and he liberated most of the Latin American countries from the "conquistadors."

Calling Venezuela an "up and growing country," Mrs. Boutte told of some of the sights, such as the Hotel Humble in Caracas, which she believes should be included in the sights of the world.

Built by a German, the hotel is situated atop a mountain, she explained. To reach it you ride a cable car to the first landing where there is a dining hall and ice rink. Then you take a "glass ball" up to the tip of the mountain to the hotel.

Another sight which she understands is about to be included in the Seven Wonders of the World is Angel Falls in Eastern Venezuela. Discovered by Jimmy Angel, a pilot who crashed in the area, the falls could, until recently, be viewed only from the air after a ride over mountainous country, often through fog, and with dense jungle below. However, Mrs. Boutte states a lodge has been built nearby from which sightseers can walk or go by horseback to a spot close enough to see the falls, if it isn't cloudy.

Another beautiful spot is the Andes Mountains, where Mrs. Boutte says it is cool, with the temperature reaching the 50's at night. The residents there are mainly German with quaint lodges, and they grow fields of flowers and vegetables on the mountainside.

LANGUAGE
Mrs. Boutte believes it is a necessity to learn the language when you are living in a foreign country. She explained that the men who work for the same company as her husband are sent to school to learn the language. Once each year they take a Spanish test, she explained, and their rating has to be higher each year.

Speaking the language makes shopping easier and enables you to purchase items cheaper, she explained. It is the highlight of a Latin American's day to bargain with you, and they feel kind of let down if you don't "haggle" with them, she commented.

"It's kind of fun," she stated. "It's an old tradition with them. It thrills the clerks if you can speak Spanish. They consider it a compliment that you think enough of them to try to speak their language. You haggle over everything even if it is a 10 cent item."

PURCHASES
And Mrs. Boutte has made some very interesting purchases. One of them is a bracelet of American gold coins, that included a $20 gold piece that will be 100 years old next year. The other coins on the bracelet are a $10 piece, a $5 piece, $2 1/2 piece and a $1 gold piece. She explained that the United States went off the gold standard around 1933 or 1935, but since Venezuela is still on the gold standard, the American gold pieces are still good currency there. They are considered "illegal" currency now in this country, she said.

Another interesting purchase is a pair of antique Columbian brass stirrups used in the days of the conquistadors, which, she explained, are getting to be collector's items. She is looking for a pair of women's and a pair of children's stirrups, which are more ornate, but which, she said, is like hunting for "hen's teeth."

In her mother's living room hangs a portrait of a llama herder, by Moncayo, a Latin American artist, which Mrs. Boutte gave her, and which, Mrs. Boutte explained, has tripled in value since she purchased it. His paintings are getting scarce and expensive, now, she said, although she hopes to be able to purchase a pair of his paintings someday.

Dear Abby...
Here We Go Again,
You Baseball Fans
By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to ball games and, believe it or not, "Bored" (the mother of five whose husband was a nut on baseball) hit an all-time low. When the husband sits around with the transistor radio plugged into his ear while his poor wife is dying for adult companionship, you tell her to work on needlepoint or take a bubble bath. Really!

My advice would have been, "When your husband comes home and settles down on the couch with his radio, get all dressed up and leave him with the dirty dishes and the kids. Go to visit friends or to a double-feature movie, and don't hurry home." I'll bet after you did that a few times, your husband would find time to talk to you.

"NOT ABBY!"

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to the lady who hates baseball was terrific. It reminded me of myself ten years ago. When we were first married my husband was crazy about baseball, but I didn't know a shutout from a dugout. I used to nag him when he'd listen to the games, and I refused to do something with him. Finally one day I decided to change my way of thinking. I forced myself to watch base-

I became as excited about them as my husband was. Now we each have our favorite teams and make small wagers with each other, and I can truthfully say that baseball has brought us closer together, and gives us more enjoyment, than I ever dreamed was possible.

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to "Bored" is another step toward helping baseball ruin the American people. Ask a small child who God is, and he doesn't know, but ask him to name all the players on the Yankee and Giant teams and he will name them and tell you their batting averages. The baseball parks are full every time there is a game - but the churches are empty. That woman asked you for bread, and you gave her a stone. Abigail Van Buren, in you I am -

"DISAPPOINTED"

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for advising "Bored," who didn't share her husband's enthusiasm for baseball, to do something else and let him enjoy the game. A wife who acts neglected and

American Women Score Upset Win Over Britain

CHICAGO (UPI)—The United States Wightman Cup victory over Great Britain's "greatest team in history" came as a huge surprise to almost everybody except socialite Margaret Osborne Du Pont.

Mrs. Du Pont, who captained and coached the three brash teenagers who paced the United States to a 6-1 victory over Britain's defending champions, said she "was not completely surprised" over what was hailed as the biggest upset in the 33-year history of the international women's tennis championships.

She said that her three youngsters—Karen Hantze, 18, Chula Vista, Calif.; Billy Jean Moffit, 17, Long Beach, Calif.; and substitute Justina Bricka, 18, of St. Louis—were "extremely competitive."

Miss Hantze fired the opening shot against the British by beating Mrs. Truman, co-holder of Britain's top rank, on Saturday and joined with Miss Moffit for a doubles victory to give the United States a 3-0 edge after Miss Moffit had scored an intervening triumph over Ann Haydon.

Miss Bricka sewed up the best-of-seven series Sunday at the Sadle and Cycle Club by pulling off the next surprise, a 10-8, 4-6, 6-3 victory over Wimbledon winner Angela Mortimer.

Miss Hantze ran the United States edge to five consecutive victories with a 6-1, 6-4 triumph over Miss Haydon.

The American girls were romping toward the U.S. Wightman Cup team's ninth shutout over the

Win Over Mexico Led By Bartzén

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—As long as Bernard "Tut" Bartzén is around, there's hope of bringing the Davis Cup back to America.

Bartzén, 33, America's old reliable, played the key role Sunday as the United States scored a dramatic 3-2 comeback victory over Mexico in the American Zone finals.

The Dallas southpaw easily defeated Rafael Osuna in the fifth and deciding match, 6-3, 6-3 and 7-5, to keep alive America's hopes for another meeting with Australia.

Chuck Mc Kinley, 19, of St. Louis, set the stage by overpowering veteran Mario Llamas, 6-3, 7-5 and 10-8.

David Freed, the U.S. captain, gave Bartzén full credit. "Tut is the sole reason we won," Freed said. "He works, fights and trains hard. He has less natural ability than any other member of this team, but he still is the key man."

Osuna beat Mc Kinley Friday and teamed with Antonio Palofax Saturday to down Mc Kinley and Dennis Ralston in the lone doubles match. Bartzén topped Llamas in his other singles match.

American will now play India, the Eastern Zone champion. The winner will face Italy, the European champion, for the right to challenge Australia.

GONZALES WINS TOURNEY GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI)—Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles won the Geneva Gold Professional Tennis Trophy Sunday by beating Ken Rosewall of Australia, 8-6, 6-0.

Phillies Break Losing Streak

By United Press International Forget Maris and Mantle a minute, and meet baseball's real man of the hour—Johnny Buzhardt—a guy who finally halted one of the worst backslides since Napoleon's retreat.

Buzhardt carved out a special place for himself in the hearts of all the Phillies when he ended the longest losing streak in modern major league history Sunday by beating the Milwaukee Braves, 7-4, in the nightcap of a doubleheader.

The victory for the Phillies, who had lost the opener, 5-2, was their first following 23 consecutive defeats.

The last previous time they won a game was July 28. Buzhardt was the winner in that one, too, beating the San Francisco Giants, 4-3, with a five-hitter in the second game of a doubleheader.

Elsewhere in the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals ended Cincinnati's six-game winning streak, 7-4, but the Reds remained three games in front when the Giants defeated the Dodgers, 11-8. The Chicago Cubs beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 1-0, in 11 innings.

Roger Maris hit his 49th home run and Mickey Mantle his 46th in a 6-0 and 5-2 sweep over the Cleveland Indians that preserved the New York Yankees' three-game lead in the American League.

Detroit, doggedly trying to keep pace with the Yanks, swept two games from Boston, 6-1, and 7-6; Baltimore walloped Washington, 9-3, in the first of two scheduled games, the second being postponed because of rain; the Chicago White Sox took two from the Kansas City A's, 5-3, and 7-0, and the Minnesota Twins dined the Los Angeles Angels, 9-7.

Ray Sadecki won his 11th for the Cardinals with an eight-hitter against the Reds.

Felipe Alou drove in four runs for the Giants with a pair of homers that sent the Dodgers down to their seventh straight defeat, their longest losing streak in 13 years.

Billy Williams' 11th inning single broke up a fine pitching duel between Don Cardwell and Bob Friend and provided the Cubs with their victory over the Pirates.

Maris and Mantle, each homered in the Yankees-Indians' opener as Ralph Terry brought his record to 10-1. Bill Skowron hit a two-run homer off Gary Bell in the nightcap to help rookie Roland Sheldon gain his ninth victory.

Frank Lary won his 18th for the Tigers when he stopped the Red Sox on seven hits in the opener, and Norm Cash hit his 31st homer in the first inning of the nightcap but the Tigers still had to come from behind to win on a two-run single by pinch-hitter Bubba Morton in the eighth.

Chuck Estrada hurled a five-hitter and struck out 12 Washington batters to win his 10th for Baltimore.

Gaffney's only major trouble came in the bottom half of the first frame when Joe Pepitone smacked a homer with a mate on board to account for all of the Gold Sox scoring. Al Nagel homered for Ardmore.

In other action, Austin whipped Tulsa 2-0 on Leslie Bass' seventh hit shutout and San Antonio trimmed Victoria 5-2.

Tommie Aaron homered for one of the Senator's runs. Lou Vickery was Tulsa's loser.

San Antonio bunched three runs into the fourth inning to take the lead the rest of the way. Harvey Branch went the distance, giving up seven hits including Larry Stubing's solo homer in the sixth that wrapped up Victoria scoring.

Tonight Ardmore moves to Tulsa, Austin plays at Amarillo and Victoria goes to San Antonio.

Gold Sox Defeated

LEADING THE FIELD

Halas Thinks Bears Better Than Sixth

CHICAGO (UPI)—George Halas unwillingly accepts the opinion of "experts" that his Chicago Bears will be a sixth place team in the National Football League this year, but he wants to play the season to find out.

"I think we're better than that," he said, "but when all the experts relegate you to sixth place, all you can do is prove they're wrong when you play."

Halas said the Bears would be better than last year because of three things—the addition of rookies Mike Ditka, Bill Brown and Mike Pyle, added experience for "the 11 first year men we had last year," and new coaching and teaching methods resulting in "better play execution."

He could be right about the rookies. Ditka, an end from Pittsburgh, has proven an excellent blocker and pass receiver in pre-season games. Brown, a full-back from Illinois, has pushed Rick Casares at fullback.

Another acquisition, quarterback Bill Wade, could help, too. Because Wade is present, Ed Brown appears better than ever, and if these two can't do the job, then rookie Dick Norman, from

Jofre Earns TKO

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI)—Unbeaten Eder Jofre of Brazil, kept his NBA version of the world bantamweight championship for the second time Saturday night on a seventh-round technical knockout over Ramon Arias of Venezuela.

Little Eder stretched his unbeaten string to 43 bouts, including three draws. It was his 10th straight knockout.

HUNT TOPS FIELD

RAMSTEIN, Germany (UPI)—Bernard Hunt of England fired a 64 Sunday to win the Woodlawn Open golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 284—three strokes better than runnerup Eric Brown of Scotland.

Pair To Represent U.S. In World Skiing Events

AUSTIN (UPI)—Chick Stearns and Vicki Van Hook headed back to their native California today as part of the United States water ski team to defend their world titles in the international skiing championships starting at Long Beach next Thursday.

They were picked Sunday to represent the United States after the 19th annual national water ski championships closed in Austin. Other members are James W. Jackson, Winter Haven, Fla.; Larry Penacho, San Diego, Calif.; A. J. Orsi Jr., Stockton, Calif.; and Janelle Kirtley of Birmingham, Ala.

Stearns is from Bellflower and Miss Van Hook is from Long Beach.

The overall men's title went to Mike Amsbury of Orange, Calif., although he failed to win a single first place in the national event. He scored 2,745 points to edge Jackson.

But Miss Van Hook, 17, won the overall girls' championship with a score of 2,982 and claimed the Scott Cup presented to the contestant winning the most points. Stearns won it last year.

Jackson won the men's jumping title with form more than distance. He leaped 134-feet and so did Pancho who placed second two scant points back.

Stearns, who last year became the first man in history to sweep all three divisions in the contest, finished third with a 133-foot jump.

Penny Baker of Austin, world record holder with a 150-foot jump that experts say compares with the four-minute mile, had three jumps that were all better than his other contests. But form was his downfall.

His best jump was 139 feet, and his other two were measured at 136 feet.

Miss Kirtley won the women's overall title and Jenny Hodges of Birmingham, Ala., won the women's slalom championship.

Orsi took the boys' trick division and also the boys' overall title. Dickie Ann Hoyt of Fair Haven, N. J., jumped 78 feet to win the girls' jumping championship. Miss Van Hook jumped 75 feet for second place in the division.

Gay Brewer Takes First Big Victory

SILVER SPRING Md. (UPI)—It took Gay Brewer Jr. five years on the pro golf circuit before he won his first major tournament, and he had to scramble plenty to get it.

The 29-year-old Brewer shot a final-round three-under-par 67 Sunday on a rain-soaked course to win the $5,300 first prize in the Carling Open tournament. Brewer's 72-hole total was 277, three under par.

Brewer beat Billy Maxwell of Dallas by one stroke. Maxwell, winner of last week's Insurance City Open, might have tied by hole, but his effort stopped on a sinking 35-foot putt on the final hole, but his effort stopped one foot short.

Bill Casper Jr. of Apple Valley, Calif., who led after the third round, soared to a 73 Sunday and wound up in a third-place tie at 279 with Paul Harney of Worcester, Mass. Harney shot a fourth-round 71.

GIANTS RELEASE TWO

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The New York Giants of the National Football League Sunday released end Jerry Richardson and rookie linebacker Jerry Fields. Richardson returns to the Baltimore Colts, who dealt him to the Giants for John Guzik three weeks ago. The Colts now owe New York a future draft choice.

Sam Or Price Mixed-up

There was a mixup in signals, and Gov. Price Daniel came out of the huddle calling the wrong play. It was all very embarrassing, but the game was as much as over anyway. The issue was a bill which would require a runoff in state elections when any candidate failed to get a majority of the votes cast. This was advertised as a way to keep the Republicans from winning elections. Presumably the GOP candidate could be counted on not to win a majority in, say, a field of six candidates. A runoff between the Republican and any one of the surviving Democrats would give the Democrat rather a favorable set of odds. That was the theory, although the last Senatorial election indicated this is not a fool-proof method. Anyway, the bill was put into the special call (it failed, as proposed, but a modified version passed) by Governor Daniel. The governor was accused of having been pressured by Sam Rayburn and, indeed, some of the House members said the pressure put on them by Mr. Sam was unprecedented.

Failure Or Success

Every tax in the history of the world represents a failure on the part of human beings to solve their own problems. The forward progress of the race is marked by tax repeal or by overthrow of governments which have refused to repeal.

New Field For Busy-Bodies

It is becoming increasingly clear that Americans, foremost of all the people in the world, have leisure time. The increase in leisure has been made possible by the amazing ability of the market place to introduce labor-saving devices in factory and home; to provide so many necessities and comforts at such small costs in human energy that even the average hourly-rated worker today lives like a king. During earlier years which we have classed as "dark ages," only the king and a coterie of privileged nobility had what we view today as ordinary necessities. Only these persons had leisure time to any degree. But leisure time, in itself, is not a boon. It is a great blessing in the hands of the man or woman who fills this time with study, with efforts to improve himself or his situation. But leisure time which results in empty heads and idle hands is a workshop of mischief. It has become, in this nation, a Pandora's box of misfortune. But we must be careful to examine this problem with some thoroughness. For like the automobile, which causes so many deaths on our highways, leisure time, in proper hands, is one of the greatest benefits and blessing to depend upon the human race. And just because some people do not properly employ their leisure time, is no reason to seek to eliminate it. Rather, the effort should be made to encourage constructive employment of one's leisure. The cure for bad or reckless driving, is learning. The cure for wasted hours, is self-employment of one's resources.

matter of fact... "Horses sweat, men perspire, and ladies get rosy all over." This humorous old saying has some basis in fact. Horses, along with mules and donkeys, withstand hot weather better than other farm animals because they have sweat glands to cool them off. Amongst humans, the sexes' reaction to heat varies. In experimental tests, men began perspiring at 84 degrees; women were merely "rosy all over" until the temperature hit 91 to 93 degrees.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — It may as well be said right out in the open engage what people it may, that I do not believe for one minute in numerology, astrology, palmistry, phrenology or any other humanly invented games supposed to guide and illuminate our way through life. I know that a lot of learned people do believe in one or more of these mental gadgets and that many people of importance never do anything more cosmic than sneezing without consulting their palms, skulls, the stars or a series of numbers. We have one thing in common: none of us will ever really know who was right and who was wrong. A devoted and passionate believer in numerology is an old music-making friend named Vincent Lopez who, driven frantic because uncounted millions still don't know about or understand it, has written a book about it. He calls it "Numerology: How to Be Your Own Numerologist." If this fascinates you, read it. If it doesn't, you will wend your way through life without feeling the lack.

Mr. Lopez goes right down the line in his book, offering you the meaning of the numbers 1 to 9, telling you how to define your personal year and month, what your three major life cycles are, what your path of destiny is and has a few consoling words to say concerning your soul. It's all there. He will show you by shifting numbers about that John Fitzgerald Kennedy is in the middle cycle of his productivity and that the soul urge of Walt Disney's name is 4. I doubt that even Walt knew that, but he may have although he never has seemed to me to be a practicing mystic. Mr. Lopez finds it significant that Walt's cornerstone letter is W, which vibrates to 5, suggesting that if it hadn't been exactly that Disney wouldn't have made it big in this world the way he has. I can't believe that if Mrs. Disney had named her son "Joe" it would have made that much difference.

There was a time when Vince thought I had the wrong name going for me, and this accounted for my not having set the world on fire. The name is and always has been John Whitney Bolton, as the birth records for the District of Columbia will attest, and the only reason that John got lopped off 6 years old is that even then I thought the sound of John Bolton had a hard, ordurate, granite sound — flinty, forbidding. Like the name of a villain in a Galsworthy novel, say. John Bolton sounded like a man who would found a mortgage without a twinge of conscience. But Vince thought I'd better do something about the residue — Whitney Bolton. I never did and it's too late now, but if you read his book you may want to change your name around to a more magic set of letters and numbers.

He does pin me down on a 23 date for birthday. He calls such people not the kind who should make fixed appointments because often enough they can't keep themselves to follow a rigid itinerary. He's right as far as I'm concerned — which is why this copy sometimes gets to the editor late. He advocates that we follow the line of least resistance and live from day to day. Vince: thank you! Now I have an excuse for being time-sloppy. He also says that we 23s run the gamut of human experiences and drink freely from the cup of romance. The smiles are his, not mine. Well, now, as to that, Vince there is a drop or two within the cup I haven't experienced and my gamut is pretty short at times. Something like from A to B as a lady once said of Katharine Hepburn's acting gamut. I've traveled, eaten vision - making mushrooms in a dark Mexican room, drunk a tank and learned to fly a plane in the days when planes were fairly simple. I've dived in a submarine, walked the bottom of the Pacific near Los Angeles amidst small barracudas and married an actress. But that's no real gamut. It's more experimental than gamut, to torment a German word.

Anyhow, Vince has his book out and if you like to cozen yourself with these minor branches of dubious science, his is the best of the lot.

WRITER SUGGESTES NEW YORK (UPI) — A letter writer to the Daily News today suggested a government program to buy worms because he said New York worm farmers were going broke. "P.S.G." also suggested in the letter that the government might pay farmers not to dig up worms.

It's Your Money Tree That Burns — Hankerings

Allen - Scott Report: Republican 'Summit' in Sun Valley In September; GOP Scramble Likely in Calif. ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

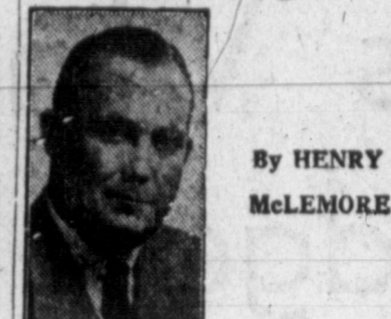

WASHINGTON — An exceptional Republican pow-wow is in the offing — in effect, a summit conference of the three top presidential aspirants. Senator Barry Goldwater, Governor Nelson Rockefeller and Vice President Richard Nixon will meet at a gathering of Western GOP leaders in Sun Valley, Idaho, September 25-29. Idaho's Governor Robert Smylie, the host, says he has firm assurances from all of them they'll be on hand.

Among other things, each is slated to give a speech. These talks and everything else they say and do will be closely scrutinized and analyzed. That applies particularly to Nixon because by then he will have made known what he will do about running for governor next year. His indicated intention is to announce that decision early in September.

Among Republican insiders, the betting is now 3 to 2 that Nixon will not be a candidate. Strongly influencing this belief is a statement being authoritatively attributed to San Francisco's Mayor George Christopher, who is ardently eager to run against Democratic Governor Edmund Brown. Close friends of Christopher are quoting him as saying he was flattered by Nixon he will not seek the California governorship, and for Christopher to do so. If Nixon doesn't throw his hat into this ring, it will be crowded with others. In addition to Christopher, also panting for the GOP nomination are former Governor Goodwin Knight, who has never forgotten nor forgiven being elbowed out of running for a second term in the failed 1958 "switcheroo"; former Lieutenant Governor Harold Powers, who it is being hinted may team up on a slate with Knight; and Joseph Shell, wealthy Los Angeles oilman, who insists he is "in the race regardless of whether Nixon or anyone else runs."

Also eyeing this prize are Representative Craig Hosmer, Long Beach, who is taking quiet soundings; and State Senator John F. McCarthy, San Rafael, who feels he would have a good chance in a free-for-all. Governor Rockefeller also has 1962 on his mind, but in a different way than Nixon. The New Yorker is thinking about the size of his re-election majority. That's what he indicated to former President Eisenhower at their mysterious conference in Gettysburg last week. "The way things are going in New York, particularly among the Democrats," Rockefeller said, "I should win without trouble. Of course, I'm not taking any chances. I'm running scared, because in politics anything can happen. But frankly, my principal concern is the size of my majority. "I'm extremely anxious to win by at least 750,000. That would help me immensely in 1964." "The way the Democrats are brawling among themselves," chuckled Eisenhower, "and with your outstanding record, you should do that handily." GOP POLITICALS — Edward Bennett Williams, attorney for Teamster boss Hoffa and other headline clients, is being propositioned by Maryland Republicans to run for governor. Williams would like to do that, but wants more assurances than he has gotten so far about his prospects of winning

Hankerings

LONDON — The English are in a flap worrying about the effect the joining of the European Common Market will have on their way of life, but it isn't a one-sided worry. The Italians, the French, and the Germans are also perturbed. What changes will England's line-up with Europe bring to the Continent?

The English have a reputation for taking a bit of England with them wherever they go — tea and dinner clothes to the jungles, for example, and crumpets and kippers to the innermost stretches of the desert. Will they, the Europeans ask, look upon Europe as a spot that needs a bit of civilizing and go about tidying things up and instituting a proper way of life? The French (in a humorous editorial cartoon) already have expressed the fear that the English, with their reserve and deep desire for privacy, will attack that least private of all French institutions, the street corner lavatory. Its presence has always shocked the English as tourists, and there is a feeling that they will strive to have it eradicated once they become working partners with a voice in European affairs.

The fall of this most typical of all French landmarks would be a greater blow to Frenchmen than the fall of the Bastille. Or nearly. The Italians I have spoken with on the subject of England's impact on the Continent have many fears. One is the Englishman's stubborn refusal to talk, even when spoken to. He likes to keep his thoughts to himself, and have others do the same. He likes a quiet chair in his club, a secluded corner in a train, and a meditative walk along the street. The very thought of such a thing horrifies the Italian. He wants to talk, even in his sleep, and undoubtedly does. He talks as he works, rests, eats, and plays. He doesn't care to whom he talks. Anyone with voice enough to talk back suits him.

So, if England should impose silence on the land, Italians would go mad. The Italian also fears that the English influence might cut down on hand-shaking, back-slapping, and loud and boisterous laughing, all things he admires, and does a lot of. The Italians don't want to dress conservatively either. They will be direct descendants of the peacock, especially the men, and have no desire to lessen the fineness of their plumage. The Englishman will have a difficult time imposing the somber business suit, or the dowdy flannel trousers, on the Italian male.

There is hardly any use in saying the idea of English beer makes the German positively ill. Accustomed to his own magnificent brew, the German would think twice (unforced to) before using pale and weak English beer even as dishwasher. It's the same with English coffee. Germans have what is probably the best coffee in the world, and few will deny that England has the worst.

The French pray that the English, with their passion for walking and tramping, will not make such exercise mandatory in France. A walk around the block is a walk enough to satisfy the average Frenchman for a year.

Pegler Says:

NEW YORK — It is impossible to calculate the relative productive powers of American and Russian agriculture but the Russians are notoriously clumsy and incompetent and American agriculture is now so efficiently mechanized that the conclusion in our favor is obvious. Our embassy in Moscow estimated two years ago that the Russians employed 10 agricultural workers to create as much food as one American produces with the aid of our marvelous machinery for work in the field and in the animal pens. The contrast grew blurry however as one tried to examine the industrial meaning of the equipment behind these respective workers.

The Russians at that time were showing off examples of their latest creations of such works at their permanent industrial exhibit in Moscow. It was paltry stuff by comparison with familiar American earth-movers and cranes and the gang machines which are seen on the abundant desert of California, Arizona and New Mexico. And they had so little of it notwithstanding their awkward friends of advertised "plans" that their propagandists explained that, really, they were doing much better than their exhibition revealed. But they were not wasting a single day's production by one sample of their latest marvels just to impress their own faceless people and the Western tourists.

Instead they were using it on the job, especially on construction in Siberia. At the same time in our country, marvels of efficiency had retired uncountable farm workers from the fields who then went to the cities to manufacture more farm machinery to displace more farmers and amass more hoards of food, leather and wool for storage at a cost which has become a leering menace to the economy. It remains to be seen whether the pinched and pallid waifs whom the likes of Egbert Murrow instinctively select in Florida to dramatize to our disrepute abroad will be retired from their depressing but not necessarily destitute migrations from crop to crop.

Facts have a mischievous habit of deprecating the spectre of poverty among these people. Many of them have extravagance and shiftlessness to blame for the squalor of their lives and the malnutrition and other sorrows of their children. But they are being retired silently and without realizing as much themselves as new mechanical marvels move into the fields of radishes and lettuce, potatoes and celery — machines which pick and knock the soil off many rows of root crops and pack them in the crates in one motion ready for a short ride to the siding and loading into the railroad cars.

Behind these machines and the factory workers who produce them under the regulation and discipline of President Kennedy's political protegee, Walter Reuther, are the oil and gas wells and the petrochemical laboratories and factories which multiply the rate of food production by means which were only experimental or theoretical by the end of World War II. The oil and the gas from below not only provide the power for these machines under the touch of, usually, one hired man of moderate skill but they suppress insects, rodents and weeds. In the Southwest, where modern reorganization of the cattle industry had retired vast areas of mesquite grazing, the onrush of mesquite and other parasites produced actual jungles in the few years since the war. Most of this land was meekly surrendered as though to a conquering fate although some land promoters with the realtors' cold gleam in their eyes went after mesquite with tractors and chains, yanking out the roots. Laboriously when cheap labor was available they burned a little of this offal but the more efficient way has been spraying with chemical stimulants from the same type of low flying planes that are used for dusting. The mesquite dies and its parasites with it and the economical way is to leave the roots in the ground to be devoured by termites which in turn thin out for lack of the abundance which made them formidable for a time. So now miles of land have been reclaimed for cotton and food crops wherever water is rich.

The American Petroleum Institute wages propaganda from offices in New York, one of the greatest farming centers of the world, to establish in the public and political mind due credit for its mighty contribution to the total of our agriculture. Certainly not even machinery has been more important than oil and gas in this great development since World War II. The machines could not run without this fuel and the conquest of pests has been a victory won by oil and gas by-products administered however by machines. Purification of salt and brackish water may be an urgent need for others but petrochemical products are pushing back the year of crisis all the time.

Ingenuity rather than the dismal figure of the Man With the Hoe has been the chief American producer. And, notwithstanding Henry Wallace, Harry Hopkins and Franklin D. Roosevelt the Russians have not been able to draw near us. They can't produce even a tolerable American county jail diet for their own people as all honest American observers have reported after encounters with the ugly fare available even in their best restaurants.

China in the Russian backbit is down to blades of grass as Pearl Buck reported 30 years ago. If it is possible for a famished people, however mighty in mere numbers of gaunt frames, to overpower the nourished world that miracle has not yet even been sketched by the Washington henchmen of the agrarian reformers. They used Russian food and weapons for their onslaught on General MacArthur's hand-cuffed army on the Southern banks of the Yalu.

GOP Senators Lash Censorship Proposal

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—Republican Sens. Roman Hruska and John G. Tower lashed out at President Kennedy's "voluntary censorship" for American newspapers Saturday.

Hruska, Nebraska, said, "I believe that Mr. Kennedy should censor his own agencies and the White House before taking it upon himself to tell American newspapers what to do."

"It is certainly not fair for these agencies to 'leak' top secret news to the press... and then have Mr. Kennedy chide them for using it," Hruska said.

Tower, junior senator from Texas and the state's first GOP senator since Reconstruction, said, "I think newsmen are responsible... as Sen. Hruska said, if Mr. Kennedy doesn't want these things printed, he should see that there are no high level leaks."

The senators were in Kansas City on a barnstorming tour at the invitation of the Missouri Republican Club. Their views were presented at the taping of a radio show for a local station.

Both senators said they are 100 per cent behind the president in his stand on Berlin — but both said they think he should have made the stand earlier.

Sen. Hruska added, "I am a little apprehensive about Mr. Kennedy's willingness to negotiate. Khrushchev has never given the U. S. a tactical victory in negotiations, and from this background I would say there is little to be gained in such talks."

Sen. Tower voiced an opinion being heard from many Republicans these days. "We must fix priority on military spending, and
