Orbit Attempt Postponed Until Thursday Or Friday

Heavy Overcast At Last Minute Forces Decision

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., undaunted by weather-enforced postponement of his round-the-earth flight will make another attempt to orbit the planet "not earlier than" next Thursday or Friday.

The new take-off time was announced by the Federal Space Agency Saturday shortly after Glenn, a "philosophical fellow," was forced to cancel his flight by heavy clouds that blanketed the tense launch area.

Unable to assure the astronaut the double safety of early stage optical tracking, scientists called off the epochal journey with only 18 minutes to firing time. Glenn already had spent 3 hours and 15 minutes strapped in his cramped capsule.

Project Mercury officials lost a gamble with time. Aware that bad weather was forecast for about noon, they pressed ahead with their countdown and "the weather deteriorated before we could catch up." The clouds swept across the Atlantic, ahead of schedule.

"I guess maybe we are eternal optimists," said Astronaut spokesman Lt. Col. John Powers when asked why the countdown was permitted to continue until 18 minutes before launch.

Powers, reporting that scientists hoped to "find a hole in the clouds to shoot through," said the countdown did not proceed as rapidly as expected—although nothing was found wrong with the capsule or the huge rocket booster.

In Palm Beach, Fla., President Kennedy hailed Space Agency officials for showing "good judgment" in postponing the shot.

Like millions of Americans, the President had watched preparations for the flight over television. Neither Project Mercury officials nor weathermen were willing to say yet what the weather might be next Thursday or Friday. The forecast was unfavorable for the Cape Canaveral area at least through Monday.

In any case, officials said weather was not taken into consideration in planning for a space mission except for a day or two at a time.

In setting the Thursday-Friday date, the space agency also said it depended on "technical evaluations."

The space agency said the Navy had indicated it could continue to support the manned space mission through Thursday or Friday with essentially the same forces now at sea. This indicated that any delay beyond Friday would bring some of the naval forces to port, at least briefly.

The re-scheduling was announced about 3 1/2 hours after Glenn, plagued by a heavy overcast, climbed from his capsule atop a towering Atlas rocket and retired to his hangar headquarters at Cape Canaveral to await "another day."

The 40-year-old spaceman, eldest of this country's astronauts, by the weather-enforced cancellation was disappointed but undaunted. He was aware that the countdown found his "Friendship 7" space capsule and huge Atlas rocket in perfect condition.

"Well, there'll be another day," he said with a smile, not knowing then that it could come Thursday or Friday.

As the jaunty astronaut left his capsule after being strapped inside 5 hours and 15 minutes, a heavy layer of clouds that became visible at daylight still blanketed the launch area.

Lt. Col. John (Shorthy) Powers, spokesman for the astronauts, said other problems that scientists might have to confront between now and late next week could crop up in several ways.

"For instance," he said, "we might have to change the carbon dioxide absorbent material." This is a substance that cleans the astronaut's air supply.

"The absorbent material has been used heavily during pre-launch check-outs," Powers said. "If we have to replace it, it would mean going all the way back into the environmental control system and retraining the crew."

OAS Agrees Cuba Must Be Ousted

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (UPI)—The foreign ministers of 26 American republics agreed Saturday that a Communist state cannot be a member of the Organization of American States (OAS). But they still had not decided how to expel Cuba.

A small work group of foreign ministers including Secretary of State Dean Rusk met to try to draft a final resolution that would carry out the obvious meaning of the OAS decision and still reconcile strongly divergent viewpoints.

The agreement that a Communist nation cannot belong to the OAS came at a meeting of nine foreign ministers representing all points of view—except that of Cuba. Rusk expressed optimism a final resolution to expel Cuba could now be worked out.

The agreement that a Communist nation cannot belong to the OAS came at a meeting of nine foreign ministers representing all points of view—except that of Cuba. Rusk expressed optimism a final resolution to expel Cuba could now be worked out.

Brazilian Foreign Minister San Thiago Dantas, who has favored a policy of "peaceful co-existence" with Cuba, said the group of key nations meeting today "made great progress" and predicted a document of major importance.

Argentine Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Canciano said there was general agreement a Communist state cannot be a member of the inter-American system and "we are now working out how to carry out that decision." Argentina has opposed harsh moves against Fidel Castro.

Uruguayan Foreign Minister Homero Martinez Montero appeared meanwhile to be swinging over to Rusk's point of view—that severe measures be taken against the Castro regime. It appeared he would join the bloc of 12 nations favoring a quick Cuban ouster.

Informed sources said Brazil and Mexico still insisted that the OAS charter must be amended before Cuba is ousted.

"There is unanimous agreement on some points," Martinez Montero said after this morning's meeting. "There are still discrepancies on other points and small work groups are trying to conciliate these. I am very optimistic."

Present at the meeting Saturday were the foreign ministers of the United States, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Venezuela, Uruguay, Guatemala and Mexico. Peru, a member of the working group, was represented again Saturday by Colombia.

BRIGADE FIGHTS POLIO—The annual "Bucket Brigade" for the March of Dimes was conducted in downtown Pampa yesterday and netted $1,446.48 for the drive. BUCKET BRIGADE ADDS $1,500 TO MOD FUND

Pampa civic organizations netted $1,446.48 yesterday in their annual "Bucket Brigade" for the March of Dimes.

The Rotary Club brought in the most money from the project, totaling $590.16. The Rotarians worked the intersection of Foster and Cuyler streets.

The Noon Lions Club ended up in second place with a "take" of $349.35, followed by the Kiwanis Club with $188.45.

Members of the various civic organizations were stationed at key intersections in downtown Pampa and solicited contributions from passing motorists and pedestrians.

The money, collected in buckets, was turned in at day's end to Mark Buzzard, 1962 MOD chairman.

MOD officials counted the money after the project was completed about 5 p.m. yesterday.

Buzzard last night expressed his appreciation to "everyone who had a part in this successful project." He reminded Pampans who still haven't contributed that they can do so by mailing their contribution to the March of Dimes, in care of the Pampa Postmaster.

Other civic clubs participating in the brigade yesterday and amounts collected were Key Club, $99.89; Top O' Texas Kiwanis, $86.02; Evening Lions, $125.78; Optimists, $67.66 and Breakfast Optimist, $38.17.

In addition to the "Bucket Brigade," $27.13 was collected from youngsters who were given rides in a covered wagon for their contributions to the MOD.

Buzzard said the covered wagon and team, donated for the day's activities, was owned by Otis Mangold, Pampa.

Believe Daniel Will Run Again

AUSTIN (UPI)—The belief Gov. Price Daniel will seek a fourth term was so strong Saturday that speculation turned to who may be his opponent in a Democratic primary runoff election.

A theory that Daniel has kept fourth term speculation alive to keep from becoming a "lame duck" governor during the current special session of the legislature has changed.

Informed capitol sources now say Daniel is definitely considering the race.

A source with an intense interest in the campaign said one reason Daniel is close to announcing re-election is a belief former Navy Secretary John Connally's handwagon is not moving fast enough.

3 Borger Boys Drown In Pond

BORGER, Tex. (UPI)—Three Borger boys drowned Saturday night while ice skating when they fell through a hole in a frozen pond three miles southeast of Borger.

The boys were identified as Billy Cox, Rusty Kite and James Langham, all 10 years old.

One of the boys told his parents Saturday afternoon that they were going ice skating on the pond.

When they did not return for dinner, a search was started. The bodies were found on the bottom of the pond by skiddivers.

DeGaulle Moves To Crush Terror Raids In Paris

PARIS (UPI)—Strong riot police reinforcements roared into Paris Saturday to back up President Charles de Gaulle's pledge to crush terrorism by the Secret Army Organization (OAS) which has carried its war to keep Algeria French across the Mediterranean.

Observers said the extra troops of the Republican Security Guard (CRS) also would bolster security precautions against the threat of any new "putsch" by the extreme rightwing against De Gaulle.

But even as the measures were being taken, saboteurs blew up two pylons near Paris, temporarily cutting off power supplies to parts of the capital and to Lille and Le Havre in the provinces. The two towers were dynamited near a transformer station at Villejust in the Seine-et-Oise department.

Between 400 and 500 CRS troops equipped with jeeps, radio trucks and motorcycles, moved into the capital during the morning. Four companies headed up the broad Champs Elysees avenue in the heart of the city, on their way to barracks in the outskirts in an obvious show of strength.

JFK And Ike In Conflict On Muzzling

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Apparent conflict between statements of President Kennedy and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower on one aspect of the alleged military "muzzling" controversy was under quiet scrutiny Saturday by a special senate subcommittee.

Involved was the question of the basic authority under which military facilities have been used to alert the public to the menace of Communism. Such activity by military officers is one of the issues being looked into by the subcommittee headed by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss.

In a statement issued Saturday night, Stennis announced that the group will resume hearings Tuesday morning. Chiefs of staff of the Army, Navy and Air Force will be heard.

Also to be called are the assistant secretaries of state and defense for public affairs, Roger Tubby and Arthur G. Sylvester, and their aides. Their testimony, however, will involve "close examination" of present speech clearance procedures and not the question of military participation in educating the public to communism's threat.

Jaycees To Conclude Tri-Regional Meeting

An address by Lewis R. Timberlake of Stamford, president of the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce, will highlight the second day of the Tri-Regional Jaycees convention which opened in Pampa yesterday.

Timberlake will speak at a 12:30 noon luncheon for Jaycees and their guests this noon in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

The Pampa club was chosen to host the convention at last summer's Tri-Regional meeting in Plainview.

Following a dance in the Starlight Room, a midnight breakfast culminated the first day's activities for guests being hosted by local Jaycees and Jaycee-Ettes.

Registration was held yesterday afternoon in the lobby of the Coronado, convention headquarters.

Many of the Jaycees had registered by late last night but 200 were expected to be in attendance today. Regions one, two and three have a total of 31 Jaycee groups in the West Texas and Panhandle area.

Visiting wives of Jaycee members were entertained from 2 until 7 p.m. yesterday in the Cibola Room of the hotel.

Today, registration for late comers was to start in the lobby of the hotel at 8 a.m. and conclude at 9 o'clock.

Following the registration, an all-region meeting will be held with Gene Hollar, state vice president, and A. J. Carubbi, state committee chairman, both of Pampa, presiding.

Following the regional meeting committee reports were to be held and several area Jaycee club members were expected to be nominated for election as delegates to the state convention to be held in Galveston in April.

17 Are Killed By White Hot Steel

VOLTA REDONDA, Brazil (UPI)—Seventeen persons were killed and eight others injured Saturday when a big crane dropped 76 tons of white hot steel on them.

The accident occurred at the Volta Redonda National Steel Company mill. Twelve workers were burned to death immediately. Five more died shortly afterwards.

The accident occurred when the arms which held the crane scowp broke.

The fire caused by the accident was quickly put out by fire-fighters. Fifty workers were in the shop at the time of the accident.

Russians Have Different Version On Rocket Delay

LONDON (UPI)—The Russian people were told Saturday for the first time of the unsuccessful U.S. moon shot and of American plans to orbit astronaut John Glenn. The Glenn effort, Moscow Radio claimed, was called off because of failure of the moonshot.

The government newspaper Izvestia told the Russians of the moon shot and the planned orbital flight but the postponement came too late to make the night edition. Moscow radio filled in the details with a not too accurate account.

Here is what Moscow radio told the Russian people about the flight:

"The U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported that at 7:45 a.m. today, a rocket with a man on board was to be launched into space in the U.S.A. The cosmonaut, Lt. Col. John Glenn, arrived at the starting point precisely on time.

The cosmonaut's wife and children also arrived at Cape Canaveral. (Actually they remained at home in Arlington, Va.) Faced with hundreds of lenses of cinema and television cameras and with representatives of the press, radio and television of 16 countries assembled on special stands, the U.S. pilot ascended to the hatchway and closed it after entering.

"However, according to a UPI report, the launching of the rocket was immediately postponed.

"The fact is, that officials of the observation point on Cape Canaveral were alarmed by the failure of yesterday's launching of a rocket in the direction of the moon. As is known, the rocket which started yesterday from the same point has already deviated from its set direction by approximately 65,000 kilometers.

"The rocket mechanisms of the rocket launched yesterday and the one which was to have been launched into orbit around the earth with a man on board are of the same type."

IT'S THE LAW

ENGLISH LAWYERS

Even though the American Revolution ended the dominion of the English king over the colonies, the common law of England as a tie with the mother country remained. It has stood as the common heritage of a sister people and has served as the fountainhead of American legal thought. However, in the years that have passed since the Revolution, the legal professions of Britain and America have proceeded along separate lines of development.

In the English legal profession lawyers are split into two classes. They are called solicitors and barristers. Broadly speaking, solicitors deal directly with clients and prepare cases. Barristers conduct cases before the courts. The closest analogy that can be drawn to the American profession is the practice that has grown up in some of the large firms of having office lawyers and trial lawyers. Actually, there is more difference. In the United States, when a lawyer is admitted to the bar of a particular state, he becomes a combination barrister and solicitor.

The profession of law in England came into being between the Eleventh and Thirteenth Centuries. During the earlier portion of this period, it was customary for a litigant to bring a friend to help him in his law suit. By the end of the Twelfth Century, the common law had become so complicated that the friend gave way to a professional called a "narrator." This narrator was the ancestor of the present day English barrister.

Toward the last part of the Thirteenth Century, a second class of professionals emerged. Many litigants, who were large landowners, found it difficult to make a personal appearance in court to assist with the case. In lieu of their presence, they sent an agent or "attorney" who was the forerunner of the English solicitor of today.

Thus, the distinction between the attorney or solicitor, and the barrister or narrator. As written pleadings became the vogue, it was the attorney or solicitor who saw the client, elicited the facts and prepared the necessary papers. The barrister then argued the case in court.

The American legal profession has not followed the English system since the frontier atmosphere and experimentation with new government and new laws did not lend itself to the divided English method of handling legal matters.

(This newfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Weather Has Been Rough On Texas Farm And Ranch

COLLEGE STATION (UPI)—Texas farmers and ranchmen would welcome a change in the weather. Some in the west and south would like moisture along with higher temperatures while in eastern and northeastern areas the preference is straight sunshine, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reported today.

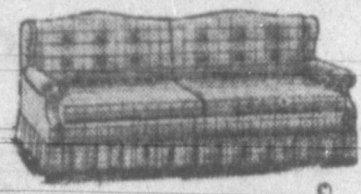

The cold front which hit the state last weekend has added to the damage caused by the blast of two weeks ago and forced stockmen to dig deeper into feed and roughage supplies in an effort to maintain livestock. Shrinkage has been heavy in all sections but death losses have been limited generally to newborn calves, lambs, kids and pigs, the service said.

Moisture is needed in most South Plains counties; parts of the rolling plains; in all far west and South Texas counties and parts of South Central Texas.

Grazing prospects declined with the continuing cold as reports of damage to small grains and clovers continue to mount. The service added that the full extent of damage would not be known until weather conditions become favorable for plant growth.

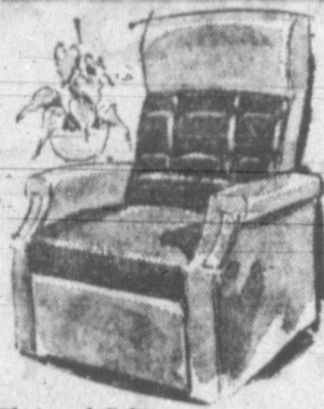

Vegetable crops in all areas have been damaged or killed, however, the service said the movement of citrus to juicing plants was continuing and that limited amounts of carrots and cabbage were being marketed in South Texas.

TO ADDRESS PAMPA GROUP—William G. Martin, supreme counselor of the United Commercial Travelers association, from Columbus, Ohio, will address the Pampa U.C.T. annual promotion dinner at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 31 in the Pampa Hotel.

check-out steps for every part involved. He said the result would be something similar to a three-day delay earlier this week in Glenn's flight. Powers said there were "no specific problems" with either the Atlas booster or the space capsule. He said scientists decided on the rather liberal delay to "make sure that all the systems could be rechecked as necessary. Glenn's flight, the first U.S. attempt to send a man round the earth, had to be called off when the heavy clouds barred the full-scale camera coverage that scientists demand for the epic flight. They rely on optical tracking as an extra safety precaution in the first few minutes of a rocket shoot. Glenn, an almost bouncy figure in his silver space suit, started what turned out to be his disappointing day when he rose at 2 a.m. After breakfast and final physical checks, he crawled into his little space capsule at 5:10 a.m. Once, as the minutes and hours ticked away, he talked by telephone from his capsule with his wife, Anna, who was watching on television along with daughter Lynn, 14, and David, 16, from their Arlington, Va., home. Finally, with the clouds growing thicker and covering a good 95 per cent of the sky, the order came at 9:12 a.m. to "scrub" the flight. It was not until an hour and 13 minutes later that the process of liberating the astronaut from his cramped capsule had been completed. The let-down at final cancellation spread from Glenn in his space quarters to millions of Americans, from President Kennedy at Palm Beach, Fla., to the astronaut's family in Virginia and his elderly parents in New Concord, Ohio. Presidential secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy, who rose early to watch over television, "expressed disappointment" over the postponement and asked immediately when the flight would be rescheduled. In Virginia, Glenn's wife and children echoed his "another day" philosophy. Said Glenn's ebullient teen-age daughter: "Oh well, it was just a dry run. My dad always tells me, 'There'll always be another day.'"

Pampans Glued To Television

Pampans, like Americans everywhere, were in front of their TV sets in large numbers Saturday morning. Lights came on in houses all over town between 5:30 and 6:30 a.m. as residents turned on their television sets to follow the story of the first U.S. man in orbit. Many of them stayed for three or four hours until the final announcement came of the postponement at 9:15 a.m.

Influenza Outbreak Hits Several Areas Of Nation

By United Press International. A mid-winter outbreak of flu and other viruses closed schools and afflicted children by the hundreds in several parts of the nation this week. The flu outbreak has reached epidemic proportions in Henderson, Webster and Union counties in Kentucky. Schools were closed Friday in Iron River, Park Falls and Durand in Wisconsin. In Ohio, state health officials said an outbreak of type B influenza could reach epidemic proportions within the next few weeks. As many as 2,500 children were absent from class in some counties of northern Georgia. Iowa was just getting over serious outbreaks at Luba, Mitchellville, Sioux City, Lime Springs and Peterson. Jaycees Ask Pampans To Help With Survey

A community development survey has been started by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in an effort to determine Pampa's most needed projects for city improvement.

Various civic and service organizations are being visited by Jaycees and members are asked to check items on the survey sheet which is reproduced on this page of today's Pampa News.

Carl Williams is chairman of the Jaycees Community Development Study Committee and John Osborne is directing the survey operations.

Chairman Williams is asking that Pampa News readers fill in the survey sheet on this page to

U.S. Farming Has Changed During Last 40 Years And So Has Farmer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farming in the United States has changed dramatically in the last 40 years. So has the farmer.

For instance:

In the 1920's, more than one-fourth of all people lived on farms.

Now, less than one-tenth live on farms.

In the 1920's, farmers were less productive. They could feed themselves and nine other persons.

Now: One farmer can feed himself and 23 others — even though fewer workers put in fewer hours.

The Agriculture Department says one reason for such high production is that today's U. S. farmers have more mechanized power. Improvements in power used on farms took giant strides in the 1940's.

Since then:

—Each farm worker has had nine times more farm machinery to work with.

—Farm families with electricity grew from 33 per cent to more than 95 per cent.

Living conditions among farm families also have improved tremendously since 1940. Now large

Flue Outbreak Spanning South

ATLANTA (UPI) — Respiratory disease continues to span the United States on an arc from California to Florida, the federal Communicable Disease Center said today. Many new outbreaks were reported, especially in the Midwest and Southeast.

The center said five states reported the presence of influenza-like outbreaks for the first time this past week to bring the total number of states, reporting outbreaks so far this season to 21. The new states were Alabama, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma and Texas.

CDC, in its weekly national report, also noted increased outbreaks in previously reporting states, and said that the most noteworthy states in that respect were Kansas, Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia.

The center said 10 of the 21 states have not confirmed their respiratory disease to be type-B influenza, Washington confirmed this type of flu in several additional counties, New Mexico in one county and Georgia in one.

The number of deaths was not reported but CDC said that there was no excess mortality among infants from influenza.

'Continued Stability' Seen For Living Costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's living costs declined slightly in December for the second month in a row. Government price experts forecast "continued stability" for 1962.

The Labor Department announced today that lower average prices for new and used cars, gasoline and clothing resulted in a dip in the consumer price index of one-tenth of one per cent last month.

The index fell to 128.2 to buy of average 1947-49 prices. This meant it cost about $12.82 to buy the same goods and services that cost $10 a dozen years ago.

For 1961 as a whole, the index climbed five-tenths of one per cent — the smallest increase for a December-to-December since 1955, the department said.

Robert J. Myers, deputy commissioner of labor statistics, predicted that prices at most would rise another one to two per cent in the year ahead.

Myers said the odds favored a small increase in prices in January and February. But for 1962 as a whole, he said, "the outlook is for a considerable degree of stability with modest price changes."

Lower prices for used cars and gasoline were credited with pushing down the December index. Food prices averaged one-tenth of one per cent higher. The cost of services continued to creep higher.

Walter Rogers Reports

Deficit Spending Order Of Day For Eight Out Of The Last 16 Years

On January 18th the Congress received the Budget Message of the President of the United States for Fiscal Year 1963. The 1963 Fiscal Year begins on July 1, 1962 and ends on June 30, 1963. The Budget Message reflected a balanced budget for 1963. However, it is well to note that very few budgets have ever been presented to the Congress in which balance was not claimed. It might also be noted that the final result was an unbalanced budget. In the past 16 years there has been a deficit 10 times. Deficit spending has been the order of the day 8 years out of the past 11. The year 1959 produced the highest peacetime deficit in the history of this country. This, together with prior deficits, continued to push up the public debt to near the three hundred billion mark. Another increase in the national debt will be requested. We cannot continue to operate on a deficit. It should not have been permitted as many times as it occurred in the past. There are times when deficit spending is necessary for the protection of our country. But in peacetime when we have the abundance that we enjoy in this country, recovery should be made to offset the deficits created during wartime. This has been a controversial issue every step of the way, and will continue to be a controversial issue. An analysis of the Congressional votes on spending matters will reveal that a substantial minority has consistently voted for an actual balanced budget rather than a proposed balanced budget. Had those of us who have strongly advocated an actual balanced budget every year been successful, there would be no need for a requested increase in the public debt.

One of the main reasons that we in this country have suffered from deficits is the age-old problem of greed. There are too many people who are willing to cut Federal expenditures so long as it does not personally affect them, their community, or their State. The result is deficit spending. If it is to be cured, every area of this country and every segment of its economy should take a long, hard look at its past fiscal policies, its requirements, and its demands, and come forward with some realistic and effective reduction proposals. The Congress should, in my opinion, authorize the appropriations committees to assign employees of the committees to work along with the bureau boards, and the agencies when they are preparing their budgets. These employees should be able to produce a documentary story that will result in measurable cutbacks in many of the departmental areas. If the appropriations committees cannot or do not desire to so proceed, a separate budget committee should be created to make a continuing and constant evaluation of the requests of the many, many departments of the government in their budget requests. It is my opinion that a full and complete story on this subject would afford the Members of Congress with sufficient information to effectively save several billion dollars a year. In addition to this, the Congress should adopt legislation requiring a fixed fund to be set aside out of revenue each year and to be paid on the public debt. It must be realized that to be effective, such a practice presupposes a balanced budget.

As for the present proposal, you will be interested to know that in the 1962 Federal Budget, which was the last budget of President Eisenhower, the tax dollar was divided as follows:

- Where it comes from:
- 55 cents Individual Income Taxes
- 25 cents Corporation Income Taxes
- 12 cents Excise Taxes
- 8 cents All Other Receipts
- Where it goes:
- 57 cents Major National Security
- 11 cents Interest
- 6 cents Veterans
- 8 cents Agriculture
- 18 cents Other
- 2 cents Debt Retirement
- It is interesting to note that the "2 cents Debt Retirement" item above referred to did not come into being, because that budget had a paper balance and not an actual balance. Hence, the so-called debt retirement feature was wiped out by the deficit.

The first Budget Message of President Kennedy divides the income and expenditures as follows:

- Where it comes from:
- 53 cents Individual Income Taxes
- 28 cents Corporation Income Taxes
- 11 cents Excise Taxes
- 8 cents All Other Receipts
- Where it goes:
- 63 cents National Defense, International, and Space
- 10 cents Fixed Interest Charges
- 6 cents Veterans
- 6 cents Agriculture
- 6 cents Health and Welfare
- 9 cents All Other

The difference in allocations is not unusual, as there are no definite fixed divisions of expenditures. There are fixed divisions of income because all of the income is from taxes. Each President has a different way of allocating expenditures. The major point is, however, that substantially 10 cents out of every tax dollar is earmarked for defense and associated purposes. The fact is that a substantial part of the interest charges could be allocated as defense requirements because most of the national debt was created during World War II. This charge alone could be measurably reduced if we would pursue a policy of reducing the public debt systematically, rather than increasing it each year.

Great Decisions Program Planned To Aid Americans

By PHIL NEWSOM
NEW YORK (UPI) — A program designed to help individual Americans understand and help determine the great decisions facing the United States begins its eighth year on Feb. 4 under sponsorship of the non-profit, non-partisan Foreign Policy Association.

Under the title "Great Decisions 1962," the program will have the participation of leading newspapers throughout the country and expects to reach 300,000 persons in active study groups.

Participating this year for the first time will be 58 non-commercial television stations, using as their central theme:

- "Only through a knowledge of fears, human prejudices and human motivations involved can the 'great decisions' be made."
- The program, prepared by the Foreign Policy Association—world affairs center, divides its subject material into these decisions facing the nation in 1962:
- Vietnam — Win, Lose, or Draw?
- Red China — Third Greatest Power?
- Brazil—Which Way Half a Continent?
- Nigeria—Democracy in a New Climate?
- Iran — Middle — East Pivot?
- Berlin—Test of Allied Unity?
- United Nations — Independent Force?
- United States—New Directions in Foreign Policy?

U.S. Was World Power

In its introduction, the program notes that for the first few years after World War II, the United States was the world's only "super power" in terms of vigor, wealth and its atomic monopoly.

Despite hindsight differences of opinion over how that power was used, the Foreign Policy Association notes: "The United States did not impose its singular power on the rest of the world, preferring instead to confer an equal sovereign state with others on the common problem of reconstructing a war-torn world. The rich U.S. did not hoard its wealth, preferring instead to invest in the rebirth of both its former allies and its former enemies, and the birth of new societies in the undeveloped southern two-thirds of the globe. The powerful U.S. did not destroy its emerging new enemy, communism, when it perhaps had the nuclear monopoly to do so, preferring to war—the difficult and equally uncertain struggle of ideas, politics, diplomacy, economic competition and moral force."

Noting that the "decisions" program is less concerned with an attempt to fix blame for actions of the past than in helping to fix a correct course for the future, the introduction notes:

"Politically the world has exploded into a host of independent states—some of them with ancient and stable cultures, many of them virtually unequipped—domestically or in foreign policy—for the responsibilities of modern nationhood . . .

Technological Explosion
"Technologically, the world has also exploded. Advances in transport have shrunk the globe to a 24-hour circuit by plane and a half-hour trajectory by rocket or missile. Advances in communications have expanded one man's immediate audience from those thousands who can fill a public square to those millions who have access to radio, TV and the press . . .

"For the first time in history, every man alive faces the prospect that he—or at least his children—may one day live better than generations of ancestors . . .

"What America does—or does not do—has a resounding impact on the rest of the world. The decisions America makes will help determine, not just our own future, but also the future shape of the world we live in."

Each of the decisions studied during the eight-week program is accompanied by fact sheets, containing maps and other pertinent details necessary to an understanding of the questions involved.

Participants then are urged to "say what you think, give others the same privilege, don't be afraid to disagree, relax, you're among friends."

Finally, it urges all to let their authority know of the decisions reached.

Emancipation Proclamation Taken From Lincoln's Hand

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — I've heard of some low crimes, in my time, but stealing from a statue is absolutely the living end.

Chances are that the culprit who snatched the Emancipation Proclamation from the hand of Abraham Lincoln's likeness in the capitol rotunda will never be apprehended.

But if he should be captured, then let the punishment fit the crime, I suggest that he be sentenced to stand on a pedestal in a public park on a day when the pigeons are out in force.

The Lincoln statue theft came to light this week through the efforts of Rep. Fred Schwengel, an Iowa Republican and amateur sleuth.

Schwengel started working on the case about six years ago when he noticed that part of the scroll held in the statue's right hand was missing.

Having failed in his own investigation to turn up any evidence, he finally reported the matter to the authorities, in this case the library subcommittee of the House committee on rules and administration.

Schwengel suggests that the subcommittee take steps to provide the late President with another scroll, this being the 100th anniversary of the proclamation it represented.

As soon as I read about the theft, I paid a visit to the scene of the crime, which apparently took place sometime between 1871 and 1927.

I wanted to see whether I might find any clues that Schwengel had overlooked, and whether any of the other figures in the rotunda and adjacent hall might have been similarly victimized.

All I can report is that the missing end of the marble scroll appeared to have been broken off with a blunt instrument. My suspicion is that a butler did it, but all evidence has been erased by the passage of time and tourists.

I also noted that a majority of the other statues in the hall have scrolls or other documents in their hands. The place would be a veritable paradise for a scroll thief, if left unguarded.

James Marquette of Wisconsin and Stephen F. Austin of Texas are shown holding what I took to be road maps. Charles Carroll of Maryland is flourishing the Declaration of Independence.

Henry Clay of Kentucky has hat, gloves and cane in hand. He has a tight grip on them, too. The sculptor was taking no chances on them being stolen.

The most difficult statue to steal from, however, would be that of Will Rogers. He has both hands in his pockets.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

In communism's "dialectic materialism" even the laws of nature have been expected to conform to the laws of the party.

These laws, as we now know, do not always rely on literal translations of Marx and Engels but also may be subject to interpretation by a chosen few. Illustrative is Nikita Khrushchev's de-Stalinization program and his current struggle with Red China's Mao Tse-tung over the role of chief party theoretician.

Under Stalin, the man who shaped Soviet agriculture to the mold of dialectic materialism was a half-educated plant specialist named Trofim Denisovich Lysenko.

Among Lysenko's claims was that by a method of refrigeration he could permanently change the characteristics of winter wheat so that it became spring wheat.

Then, as now, Russia needed desperately to increase its agricultural production.

Lysenko held sway in Soviet agriculture for more than 20 years and in one season is estimated to have cost the Soviet Union as much grain as could have been produced by six million acres.

In 1953, the year of Stalin's death, Khrushchev made the first of many denunciations of the state of Soviet agriculture. Simultaneously, Lysenko's influence began to wane.

In the succeeding years, no Soviet project has been more closely associated with Khrushchev's name than agriculture.

Radio Liberty, an organization which broadcasts in 18 languages of the Soviet Union from transmitters in Western Europe and the Far East, recently concluded an interesting study of the Khrushchev methods.

Khrushchev must face the fact that results of the virgin lands program so far have been disappointing and that yields throughout the Soviet Union for the last three years have been below expectations.

The Radio Liberty survey suggests that his efforts may prove as disastrous as those of Lysenko. In 1961, Khrushchev denounced, as wasteful the practice whereby hay was planted in rotation with other crops. He demanded the use of sugar beets, corn or such legumes as peas and beans instead of hay.

With Russia's varied soil and climate conditions, its lack of fertilizer, the experts foresee from Khrushchev's efforts first a vast increase in production and then the possibilities of a dust bowl as result of the abandonment of the crop rotation system.

Department Store Sales Show Gain

DALLAS (UPI)—Department store sales in the 11th Federal Reserve District increased an average of 12 per cent during the week ended Jan. 20 as compared with the same period last year, the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank said yesterday.

Houston reported the largest percentage increase, 17 per cent, followed by Fort Worth with 14 per cent, Dallas with 12 per cent, San Antonio, 8 per cent and El Paso, 5 per cent.

Americans tend to underestimate the crime problem and overestimate the size of the FBI. Not many people realize that there are less than 6,000 Special Agents of the FBI — about one for every 30,000 Americans.

J. EDGAR HOOVER "... $128 per person"

Crime has changed quite a bit since the "roaring '20s." The big bosses of organized crime no longer have to hide out. With the enormous profits from their illegal activities, they have been able to buy into legitimate business.

J. EDGAR HOOVER "... $128 per person"

It's strange but true that most citizens seem to want it that way. So long as there is a profitable demand for illegal gambling, prostitution and dope pushing, there will be criminals to supply it.

Harold Lloyd To Bring His Film Comedies Back

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The nation's younger folks, those who missed silent pictures and early talkies, will meet comedian Harold Lloyd when his old movies are released later this year.

"People up to the age of 25 have never seen me on the screen," Lloyd said. "And those 25 years old have only seen me in a couple of pictures. To many of those people I'll be an entirely new character."

Lloyd's plans for reintroducing himself to movie fans began more than 10 years ago when he put together some scenes from his old pictures to show friends.

Lloyd began his movie career in 1917. His last picture was made in 1945. He has appeared in some of filmland's brightest comedies.

The urging of friends set Lloyd to thinking that perhaps there was a place in the modern world of entertainment for his type of comedy, a style that made millions laugh and Lloyd millions of dollars.

"I've been working on this film since 1950," Lloyd said. "We previewed it seven or eight times over the years. People laughed but I wasn't satisfied. Laughs were not enough."

"I didn't want to have a variety show situation," he explained, adding that he finally set aside the project and concentrated on one of his earliest silent pictures, "The Freshman."

Lloyd put a musical score, sound effects and a short narration into "Freshman" and made plans to show it in theaters.

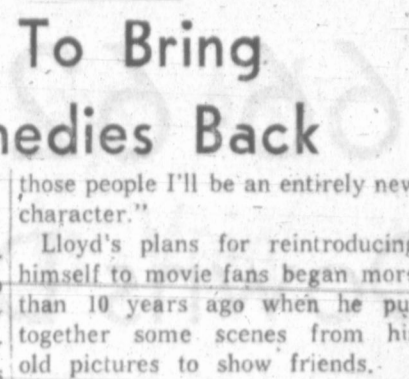

When Lloyd finished adapting "Freshman" for the current movie market, the comedian's advisers suggested he first release the film which contained scenes from his other old pictures.

Lloyd became convinced people could be more properly introduced to his comedy style by viewing parts of his old pictures.

The all-time great funnyman is calling his effort "Harold Lloyd's World of Comedy" — half silent and half talkie.

"I cut it down from the original 17 excerpts to seven large ones," he said. "Now it seems to have a progression to it. We have narration and music and figure to release it sometime in March. I'll hold the Freshman back until later."

TOP HIRED HAND — When Mitzie Gaynor takes the stage at the Flamingo in Las Vegas, both patrons and her bosses get their money's worth in big, big talent. It is because Mitzie wows her audiences in their off-gambling moments that she gets six-figure salary.

AT THE CAPRI — Deborah Kerr, in this scene from the suspense-shocker, "The Naked Edge," suspects her husband, the late Gary Cooper, of plotting to kill her.

Forget Your Partner In Doing The Twist

By CLAIRE COX
NEW YORK (UPI) — The Twist, loudly proclaimed new dance sensation, is nothing but a beatnik rumba.

It is not nearly so much fun as the Charleston or as hectic as jitterbugging or rock 'n' roll and it makes the Black Bottom seem positively risqué. The Bunny Hug, Turkey Trot and Big Apple required far more energy to perform.

In case everyone does not know by now, The Twist got its name from the title of a song called "The Twist." It's a style that came from the manner of presentation of the singer who made the song popular, a fellow known as Chubby Checker. A recorder of vital statistics doubtless knows Mr. Checker's rightful name. He acquired the Chubby Checker title when he was told he looked like Fats Domino. Get it?

That was in Philadelphia, which claims to be the birthplace of The Twist, a boast that has evoked no challenges.

Checker, or whatever his name REALLY is, manages to go through a variety of gyrations, mainly with his hips, while singing "The Twist." The dance being performed by teen-agers, their parents and even their grandparents represents a mass effort to imitate what Checker does while he sings.

Probably the best way to describe The Twist is to explain that when dancers perform it incorrectly they seem to be trying to do the hula or rumba.

In a correctly performed Twist, the shoulders are held stiff and the feet scarcely move. The arms are moved back and forth somewhat in the manner of participants in a walking race and the hips gyrate in a manner certain to remove inches from over-large expanses and send middle-aged men to the nearest orthopedist.

Most important — one never smiles while doing the twist. Nobody is supposed to be able to tell whether you are having a good time while doing it. Never look at your partner, and don't worry about whether you both are doing the same step. This dance is even more impersonal than the Virginia Reel.

It matters little whether you Twist at the Peppermint Lounge, the smoke-filled bistro in the New York Theater district where the dance became famous, or the more fashionable Stork Club across town. The technique is approximately the same, although the dress and demeanor are different.

The uniform for doing The Twist at the Peppermint Lounge is a shirt and skin-tight slacks for men and either tunic or long black stockings and short skirts topped by bulky sweaters for girls. At the Stork Club, one appears in whatever "they" are wearing this year.

Once in a while a Twister at the Stork Club will steal a slight smile, but at the Peppermint the demeanor is quite somber.

One advantage of the Twist — and there are several — is that it can be performed with some skill by persons well beyond their teens if they are careful either not to overdo it or to limber-up at a gymnasium before seeking the dance floor. This was not true of rock 'n' roll and jitterbugging, which featured an assortment of the more athletic caveman tactics.

American Track Stars Keeping In Good Shape

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — Don't call the cops if you're driving past Dorsey High School in Los Angeles some Saturday morning and see a bunch of nimble guys in their 20's climbing a fence.

They're only the greatest distance runners in America gaining entries to the track around the athletic field so they can find a place to stretch their legs. Jim Beatty, the premier miler of 1961, is among them.

That's what our boys have to put up with in competition with the rest of the world.

Beatty is 27, five years out of the University of North Carolina, married to charming Barbara, a Gastonia girl, and has to work for a living.

In the last year Beatty has moved here from northern California because Mihaly Igloi, the famous Hungarian distance coach, shifted operations and formed the Los Angeles Track Club to train America's distance runners.

Beatty arrived without a job but was lucky to catch on as an insurance claims adjuster, a position that enables him to sandwich in his running work-outs. Like a swimmer who devotes half the day to pool exercises, Jim estimates he runs 20 miles a day, spaced through three and a half hours.

What gets Beatty is the loneliness of it, even after he's climbed the fence with the other guys.

The L. A. club practically cornered the distance market with such men as Laszlo Tabori, Jim Greille, Bob Seaman, Max Trux and Willie Aterberry.

"I do whatever Igloi says," shrugged Jim as he relaxed before the first indoor meet of the season in the Los Angeles Sports Arena. "Sometimes I come out real early hoping Igloi will let me run with the other fellows. But he can be stubborn."

The relaxing took place in the grill at the Sheraton West on Wil-hire Boulevard. Track isn't completely Spartan when you're five years out of college. A vodka gimlet can even remind you you're human, though Jim still leaves the impression life as a working adult won't catch up to him until his track career ends.

"That might be after this year," he admitted. Jim talks precisely and softly, with barely a trace of his native Charlotte, N.C.

With crowds jamming indoor arenas all winter, from Portland, Ore., to Boston to New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Chicago and so on, it's impractical for Beatty to continue, though he's just approaching his peak.

"What we need," he said succinctly, "is a man like Jack Kramer, the tennis promoter."

The seismograph vibrated all the way back to the sanctuary of the Amateur Athletic Union high in the Woolworth Building in New York.

Meanwhile, Jim has to tackle such plebeian problems as whether to enter the New York Athletic Club meet at Madison Square Garden.

"I won't run there," he said, "unless they pay Barbara's way to come back."

In the crowd were Tex Maule, who writes for Sports Illustrated, and his wife, Dorothy.

"Who," asked Dorothy, puzzled, "will pay her way to go?"

That broke us up.

For this last track whirl, Jim Beatty has set himself a prospective goal of 3:53 to 3:55 for the mile run.

"I expect to reach it in May," he said, "about the time of the Modesto (Calif.) meet."

In case you haven't checked your stop watch lately, the world record for the mile is Herb Elliott's 3:54.5.

O'Malley Acts Like Kid With Big Toy

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — Comfortably ensconced in his eyrie atop O'Malley Mountain . . .

The cabbie, tooling along North Broadway from downtown Los Angeles, was one of those lyrical guys. As he turned left on Solano, through a cluster of ramshackle huts, you could see the outline of the Chavez Ravine project. It looked like the rim of a volcano against the sky.

"Inside," said the driver, "the Dodgers are toiling, bubbling."

The only bubbling as we pulled up to an impressive horseshoe stadium high above the smog was done by Walter O'Malley, getting out of his chauffeur-driven Chrysler. With him were Ernest Debs, county supervisor, and some bankers.

"All the right people," we suggested.

"No," grinned the owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers. "Just the ones I've got to live with."

He was like a kid with a toy hopping spray-over debris and equipment as Dodger Stadium neared completion.

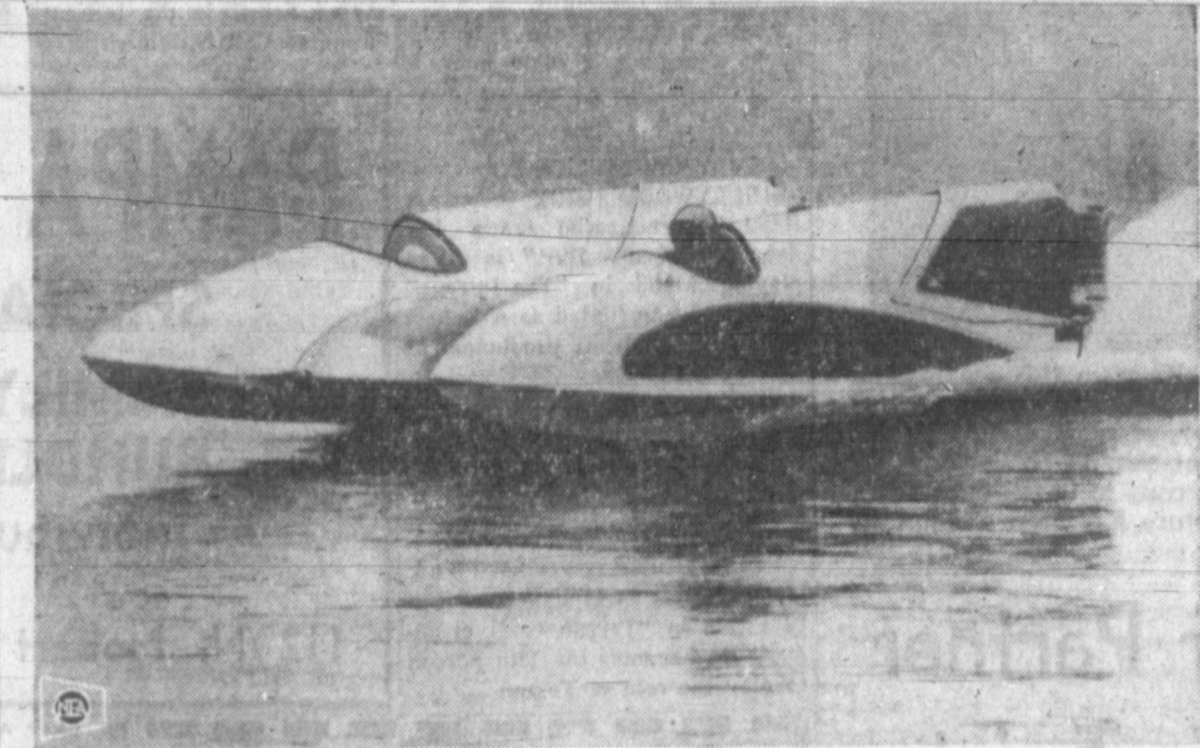

"Let's take one with the rows of seats showing," O'Malley said to a photographer. "Remember that last shot of me in Ebbets Field, with all the empty seats? Symbolic, wasn't it?"

Dodger publicity man Red Patterson, hovering like a protective hen, pointed to a concrete slab alongside the field that made a complete arc from third base to first base. On the terminals are dugouts, in between them seats at field level.

"It's a great stunt," said O'Malley, "putting all those people, 28,000 down there who can second guess or fire Walter Alston."

"We got the dugout boxes idea from our tour of Japan a couple of years ago. I thought it was a prison. They had bars on them. We'll have glass."

O'Malley swept his hands proudly around the infield. "A local university developed the ground

FAST LIVING—John Baskos of St. Cloud, Fla., pilots the world's fastest outboard pleasure boat to a new speed record on Lake X, not far from Orlando, Fla. Powered with twin 80-horsepower engines, the high-finned job was clocked at 80.467 miles per hour in the American Power Boat Association time trials. Nine class records were set.

Records Tied In Snell Sets Another Lubbock Tourney New Mile Standard

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Dave and Don Styron of Northeast Louisiana and former-University of Texas sprinter Ralph Alspaugh tied two American indoor track records Saturday night at the first annual Lubbock Indoor Track and Field Meet.

Don Styron zipped over the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.0 seconds in the preliminaries, equalling the indoor record set by Mill Campbell in 1957 and again by Hayes Jones in 1958.

But he was edged in the finals by Ray Cunningham of Texas as both were clocked in 7.1 seconds.

Alspaugh and Dave Styron each rocketed through the 60-yard dash in 6.0 seconds in the preliminaries, tying the standard set by Herb Carper and Roscoe Cook in 1960.

Alspaugh shaded Styron in the finals, when both were timed at 6.1 seconds.

Texas A&M sophomore Denny Roberts won his third straight indoor meet of the season by tossing the shot 56 feet, 1½ inches. It was the fourth best shot ever hurled by a Texan.

Whatever Elliott had expected, Snell until Saturday was not ranked among the world's four-minute milers. Snell first received international track fame when he upset Belgium's Roger Moens in the Olympic 800-meter final at Rome

Horse Wins By Nearly Six Lengths

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI)—Four-And-Twenty raced to the biggest victory of his career here Saturday as he scored a wire-to-wire victory by nearly a half-dozen lengths in the 15th running of the $153,910 Santa Anita Maturity for 4-year-olds.

At the finish, jockey Johnny Longden was easing Four-And-Twenty. Garwol was so far back in second position he had no chance of closing on the winner. Olden Times, who had forced Four-And-Twenty's pace, if that expression could be used, finished third and The Axi II was fourth in the field of nine starters.

Despite the ease of Four-And-Twenty's victory, his time for the 1½ miles was a sparkling 2:01, just three-fifths of a second slower than the stakes record set by Great Circle when he won the Maturity in 1951.

Collins was the leading ground gainer for the Longhorns until last season when he was switched to wingback and concentrated on blocking and pass receiving. He also handled the punting chore. Collins starred in the Longhorns' victory over Mississippi in the Cotton Bowl.

Other draft picks who signed are Ohio State all-America full-back Bob Ferguson; halfback Gerry Ballman of Michigan State and end John Powers of Notre Dame.

Ewell Baker, a member of the Panhandle Boat and Ski club of Amarillo spoke on the advantages of belonging to the American Water Ski Association at the meeting of the ski club Friday night at the Knights of Pythians Hall.

Business topic was nominations of board of directors to serve two year terms.

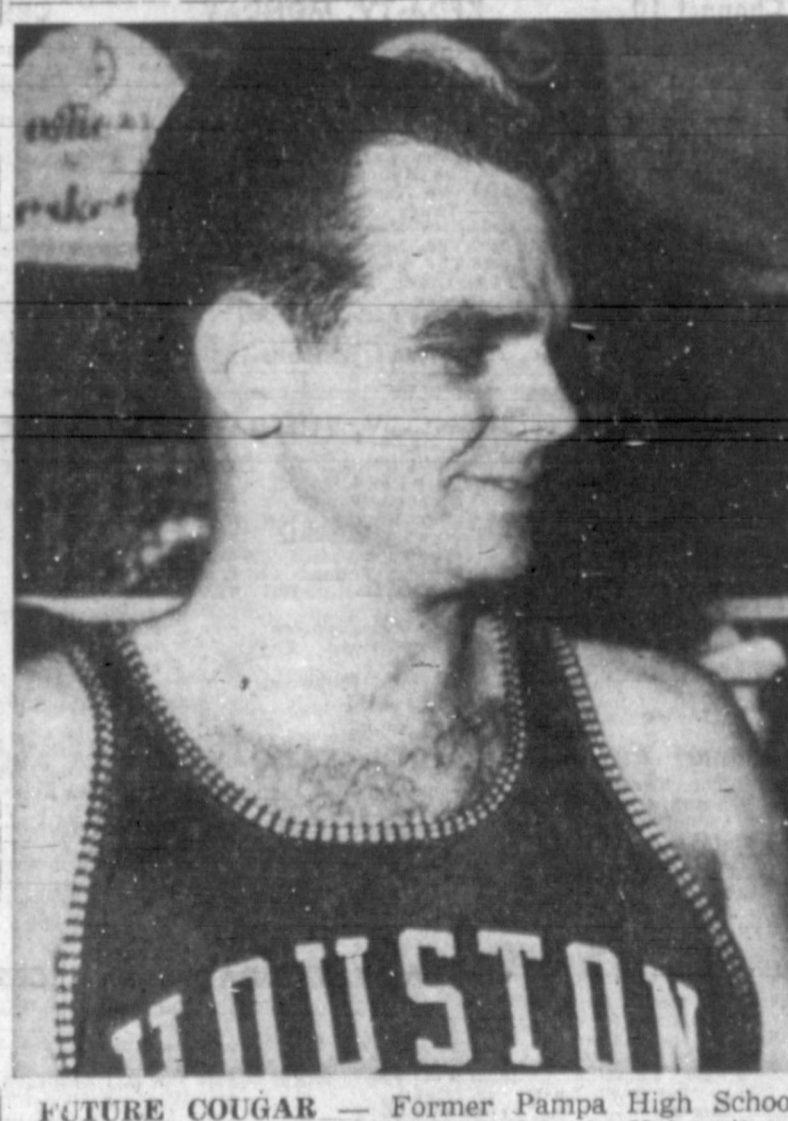

Nominees included H. L. Meer, Jim Keel, Bill Sargent, Tommy Sells, Red Morrison, Ray Duncan, Speck Winborn, Chester Huff and Mrs. Roy Pool.

Mrs. Dale Southard was elected to fill an unexpired term to fill a vacancy by Larry DeGraff.

New members joining the ski club were told they didn't have to join the AWSA. It was also announced that family memberships were now on sale.

FUTURE COUGAR — Former Pampa High School All-Star Mack Layne is welcomed to the University of Houston varsity basketball squad by student manager John Boyd. Layne, 6-5, will become eligible for varsity play on February 5 when the Cougars meet the Florida State Seminoles in Houston. Layne, 21, was a member of the Pampa state championship teams in 1958 and 1959.

Amateur Softball Association Sets Dates For Tournaments

DALLAS (UPI) — The Amateur Softball Association of America closed its convention Saturday with election of officers, setting of dates and sites for the 1962 world and regional tournaments and picking Clearwater, Fla. as site for the next meeting, Jan. 25-28, 1963.

The ASA awarded its men's and women's fast pitch tournaments to Stratford-Bridgeport, Conn., the former Sept. 14-22 and the latter Aug. 24-Sept. 1.

The world's slow pitch tournament's three divisions will be held Aug. 31-Sept. 3 with the industrial division at Pittsburgh, Pa., the open division at Cleveland, Ohio, and the Women's division at Cincinnati, Ohio.

FRED HOFFMAN of St. Joseph, Mo., was elected president. The five divisional vice-presidents named were Harold Markle of Williamsport, Pa., W. W. Kethan of Pasadena, Tex., Ron Hurst of Bloomington, Minn., John Fleming of Casper, Wyo. and Carl Boyer of Sacramento, Calif.

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Wayne Ballard, a 6-2 left-handed forward from Austin High School at Houston will enroll at the University of Houston in September. Ballard, a mid-term graduate, averaged 17.4 points in 27 varsity basketball games.

It was 9:27 on the scoreboard clock and time had run out in the Harvester fieldhouse Friday night. It was there, but it took a few minutes before the screaming crowd could believe their eyes.

Pampa 66, Palo Duro 62.

The fighting Harvesters, who it seemed were destined to become permanent tenants in the District 3-AAAA cellar, rose to the occasion and won a hard fought victory over the tough Dons for their second district victory of the year. The win ended a five game losing streak for the Harvesters and revenge an earlier loss to the Amarillo team at the start of the season.

To single out any individual heroes on the hardwoods would be if tough thing to do. You might cite Randy Matsons 20 points for high point man for the local crew. Or possibly Bob Neslarve who fired in 17 points and shone on defense along with Matson with their brilliant performances in grabbing off enemy rebounds. Or you might want to stand up and holler for Keith Swanson, with a heart of gold who paved the way for the victory with eight free throws out of nine attempts in the second half of play. Or then again Wayne Kreis' two 'vital' charity tosses in the last five seconds of play which padded the Harvesters thin margin and assured Pampa of the victory they well deserved.

Palo Duro's vaunted offense continued to roll in high gear but the Harvesters were the opportunists this night and they proved that the good teams come back. The heroics of Bruce Francis with 21 points and Tobie Hall with 14 points were just so many figures in the scorebook to the charges of Coach Terry Culley who would not be denied.

The Harvesters led all the way, jumping off to a 19-8 lead at the end of the first quarter as the result of Matson's 11 points, which included five field goals and one free-throw. The 6-6 post man went into the contest with a 17.1 point average per game, thus upping his average and keeping pace with the leading scorers in the district race.

At the half, the Harvesters had a 28-21 margin.

In the third quarter, Pampa forged to a 46-37 lead and the fans could sense that this just might be the night for a victory celebration. Swanson hit the bulls-eye five times in a row from the free throw line to bolster the Harvesters offensive attack.

In the final period, Swanson hit three more in a row before finally missing one. Kreis hit five out of six from the line and Neslarve dunked in three two pointers to help in the Harvester surge up the victory hill.

Two stalwarts for the Harvesters and Dons were given their walking papers in the second half. Gordon Balch fouled out in the third period and Gary Sikes was ejected from the game on a technical in the final period.

Nix fouled out in the third quarter and Hall was ejected in the fourth period also on a technical for the Dons.

Francis, who went into the game leading the district in scoring, missed two vital free throws in the last ten seconds of play for the Dons, with the visitors trailing 64-62. The Harvesters then added two more points via Kreis free throws to send the folks home happy and provided a much-needed shot in the arm for the Harvesters.

In other district games, Borger ripped Plainview, 49-40; Monterey smashed Amarillo, 69-39 and Lubbock trampled Tascosa, 53 - 30. Borger and Monterey thus continued to lead the loop race with 7-1 records.

The B team also had their day in the sun with a 60-57 victory over the Palo Duro B team in overtime to send the Shockers in to sole possession of first place with a 6-2 mark. They are 17-0 on the year under the guidance of Roy Kieval.

Donnie Ayers sank a last minute field goal for the Shockers to tie it up, 53-53 and send the game into overtime.

Kenny Hebert led the Shockers from the floor with 20 points while Ayers had 15 and Larry Clifton 13.

The Harvesters take on Tascosa Tuesday night in Amarillo in their next cage outing. Pampa chalked up its only other win in loop play over the Rebels earlier in the season, 53-49 and will be shooting for a second straight win over the rugged Rebels.

Steelers Sign Foldberg, Fry To Speak Feb. 16 Jack Collins Of Longhorns At Sports Achievement Dinner

DALLAS (UPI) — The South-west Conference's two new head football coaches will team as the headline speakers when the Texas Sports Writers Association honors its 1961 athletic notables at the annual Sports Achievement Dinner here Feb. 16.

The affair is jointly sponsored by the sports writers and the Saturday Morning Quarterbacks Club of the Downtown YMCA, which will be the scene of the dinner.

Hayden Fry, new Southern Methodist mentor, and Henry (Hank) Foldberg, incoming coach and athletic director at Texas A&M, will divide the speaking chores.

To be honored by the sports writers are Darrell Royal of the University of Texas as Southwest-erner of the Year and Senior College Coach of the Year; Texas all-America back James Saxton, as Amateur Athlete of the Year; L. L. (Red) Lewis of Howard County J.C. High Spring, as Junior College Coach of the Year, and Norm Cass of the Detroit Tigers as Pro Athlete of the Year.

Hogan, Nelson Given Invites

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Ben Hogan, who has won a third of the 15 previous Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournaments, and won here, were extended the first two invitations Saturday to this year's $40,000 affair May 10-13.

Both veteran pros, who between them have won more golf titles than any other duo, are former dues paying members of the sponsoring Colonial Country Club, but now are honorary members.

Hogan has played in all of the 15 previous tournaments, winning five of them and finishing in the Top 10 in all but three. He finished 11th twice and 19th last year to nick the sponsors for $29,704 in total Mearnsingor $1,890 per tournament.

Nelson has played in all but one of the earlier toursneys and has finished ninth or better five times, but third was his highest finish for an overall "take" of $6,363.

Aggie Swimmers Win Dual Meet

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) Texas A&M built up a commanding lead and coasted to an easy 61-34 victory over Gustavus-Adolphus College of St. Peter, Minn. in a dual swimming meet Saturday.

Gustavus-Adolphus' John Jarneck of Minneapolis was the meet's individual high point man with eight points on a first place day as he scored a wire-to-wire on the 50 yard freestyle.

Three Aggies scored 6½ points apiece, John McKinney and Bob Baker, both of Houston, and Bill Crenshaw of Weslaco.

The Aggies built up a 37-6 lead after five events and used reserves in most of the later events.

Nationals Dump Packer Cagers

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Syracuse Nationals scored 17 points in the last four minutes Saturday to knock the Chicago Packers their 10th loss in the last 11 games, 107-102, in a televised National Basketball Association game.

The Packers got a tremendous scoring performance from center Walt Bellamy with 45 points, but never could pull ahead by more than one point after Bellamy's game-opening basket and Syracuse took advantage of Packer errors to win in the closing minutes.

Connell Favored In Daytona Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Alan Connell Jr. of Fort Worth, Tex., was labeled the favorite Saturday in the Sports Car Club of America's (SCCA) first national championship event of the year at the Daytona International Speedway.

Connell, a wealthy Texas rancher, won the 1959 SCCA nationals here, and will head a field of more than 200 cars for the four-race meet, which began Saturday afternoon. He is driving a Maserati-Ferrari.

Cats' Coach Says ABL Isn't Playing In Vain

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — Even the teetering American Basketball League should fold, Bill Sharman doesn't feel it has been in vain.

That isn't because he has a five-year contract. "It's the brand of basketball we faced before the public," said the coach of the warring Los Angeles Jets, now in limbo. "For the first time, the rules were wanted for the spectators." Sharman's opinion merits attention because he was willing to risk his stature as a star of the Boston Celtics, and more important, a strong five-figure salary — to jump to the tenuous future.

"It's the three-point play," elaborated Bill. "In so many NBA games, the people wait until the last five minutes for the action to start. I remember being in Kansas City early this season scouting a game, Max Perry of Honolulu got the ball right after the opening tip and on the first shot of the game flipped a three-pointer. He people jumped up and screamed. I think the colleges would adopt it if they gave it an honest try."

The ABL outlined half a circle with a radius of 25 feet from the basket. Any shot beyond that line counted three points instead of the conventional two for a field goal. "Why should a bloop single," asked Sharman, who once was a Brooklyn Dodger out-of-field prospect, too, "count the same as a home run. A guy takes years and years to develop a skilled outside shot. It should pay off more than a dunk."

"It also brings the defenses out farther. That opens the lane for driving. We weren't selling exactly the same game as the NBA." (As it turns out, they weren't selling much of anything.) The ABL allowed 30 seconds, instead of 24, for the offensive team to get off a shot.

"Why was (Bob) Cousy popular?" asked Sharman rhetorically. "Why do the Globetrotters draw? For shooting? No, but because they handle the ball. We restored some of that with the expanded time to set up. Maybe it should be even 35 seconds. "We also played a rougher type of defense, with more contact. The scores go into the NBA. We got the better all-around players."

Sharman mentioned boys like Bill Bridges of Kansas City, a 6-6 workhorse, and Dan Swartz, the star of his Jets. "They could help any team in the other league," insisted Bill. "All a kid like Dan needed was a chance."

Swartz is a 6-4 graduate of Morehead State in Kentucky who reported to the Celtics a couple of years ago but left camp after three weeks when he assessed his chances of making the squad. Guess who the Celtics had then to block his way. Shagnan, of course. Does Bill Sharman have any regrets about cutting short his career in Boston. "I was sure they were going to put me on the negotiation list of the new Chicago team," he stated. "I'd rather go back to California than Chicago. "I miss the players. But most of all, I miss the winning. I got spoiled playing with the Celtics. I got so used to winning that it tore me up when we lost two or three."

It tore up the owner of the Jets, too. He landed in a hospital with a breakdown because no one would pay to see them lose . . . or win.

Tiger Rated Superior As Middleweight

NEW YORK (NEA) — When Dick Tiger and Florentino Fernandez exploded in the test tube that was a Miami Beach ring, several facts were scientifically established.

Most important is that the Nigerian maneuverer and the Latin Lariuper set a good example for the reluctant fighters of today. It was shown that the compactly built Tiger, who pounded Fernandez' prominent proboscis into a pulp, and otherwise man-handled the Havana Special to such an extent that the commission doctor called the whole thing off after the fifth round, is a very superior middleweight and all-around machine.

It was also definitely proven that there is nothing wrong with professional boxing which can't be cured by first-rate fighting men who operate at full speed ahead.

Tiger and Fernandez are all of that. Tiger has been knocking at the door of the 160-pound throne room for many an outing. He had everything to lose and not too much to gain tackling the converted southpaw with the devastating left hook. After all, he was ranked ahead of Fernandez, who dropped a 15-round decision to Gene Fullmer in the champion's native Utah.

Fernandez gave up a lucrative gas station business that he earned with his fists in Cuba to campaign in the United States. This automatically precludes the mustache Florentino's returning to Castroland and forfeits his business to Mattress Puss' government. It is still written and said that some fighters remain under underworld influence. Fernandez defied the top mobster of them all at considerable financial sacrifice.

How different from Floyd Patterson, who as the heavyweight champion automatically became the bellwether of the business, the man who sets the pace for the entire industry. Patterson has a good and bawled, alibied and made ridiculous excuses to keep from squaring off with worthwhile opponents ever since he laid his hands on the bauble that is the heavyweight crown.

Right now the holder of the highest honor the prize ring can bestow could rouse the anemic sport from its deathly torpor if he'd stop playing hide-and-seek and come out in the open. A match with Sonny Liston would gross more money, closed-circuit television, radio, movies and all, than any other engagement in history. If timorous Floyd chooses to still use Liston's lack of character references as a dodge, it is respectfully suggested that he consider Harold Johnson or Eddie Machen. If Patterson demands another "warm up," Alejandro Lavorante and Bob Cleroux would be pleased to be of service. The main idea is to get Patterson in a battlepitted with somebody who can fight even a little.

Colt 45s Have Five New Parks On Board

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Colt 45s, getting ready for their first National League season, are going about the business of starting a major league club in a magnitude that should make even a Texan expand his chest a bit.

The stadium in the immediate limelight is the "temporary" home where the 45's will play their 81 home games this season. Actually, it is temporary only with respect to the length of time the Colts will play in it. The main structure of the 32,000 seat stadium is galvanized steel set in concrete, and it will be there just as long as there is use for it. Houston Sports Assn. officials hope to work out an agreement with Houston public schools for use of the stadium for high school football.

This stadium, as it turns out, will have the biggest playing area of any in the major leagues, which is only natural, being in Texas. A stone's throw from the $22 million domed stadium site the Colts are putting up an $800,000 temporary stadium where they will open the baseball season here April 10 against the Chicago Cubs. A third stadium is being put in at Oklahoma City, where the 45's will operate their triple-A American Association club this season. Other stadiums are going up at Apache Junction, Ariz., and Chandler, Ariz. Apache Junction is where the

ICE SHOW

LAFAYETTE, La. (NEA) — Cypress trees and hanging Spanish moss, usually associated with a sultry bayou, formed an unusual setting for a skating scene on Cypress Lake on the campus of the University of Southwestern Louisiana. Students of the Lafayette institution lost no time getting out on the ice during the rare freeze-over — whether they had skates or not. To them, it seemed like a dream.

Westerners Tops In Bronc Riding

FORT WORTH (UPI) — A cowboy from Sacramento, Calif., rolled up the best score Saturday in bronc riding on the morning card of the rodeo at the 66th annual Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show. Bob Eidson scored 179 points aboard a bronc named "Chili Bean." In the morning calf roping event, Byrle Hartsell of Bridgeport, Tex. tied his calf in 18.3 seconds for top honors. The high saddle bronc riding score so far this season was made Friday night at the stock show's opening rodeo performance by Pete Fredericks of Halliday, N.D. He scored 185 points on a bronc called "Silver King."

Cash To Receive Texas Bat Honor

DALLAS (UPI) — Bob Schelfing, manager of the Detroit Tigers, will make the presentation when the Tigers' Norman Cash is honored as Texas Major League batting crown last season. Cash, a native of Justiceburg on the South Plains but now a resident of Eldorado, is a former Sul Ross State College baseball star. Cliff Cook, a Dallas product who led the American Association in home runs and runs batted in while with Indianapolis, will also be honored as the state's Minor League Player of the Year.

Little Still Is Leading Lucky Golf Tournament

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — National Open champion Gene Littler topped his lead in the Lucky International Golf Tournament to a whopping six strokes Saturday as he fired his third consecutive sub-70 round and posted a 54 hole total of 201.

Playing another bold game, Littler, from San Diego, went four under par after the first nine holes, ran into trouble when he got a double bogey on the 11th, but came right back to birdie the 16th with a 17-foot putt to hold his pursuers at bay.

Austin Beats Mann In 5th Grade Action

Six more games were unveiled in both fifth and sixth grade cage action Thursday and Saturday. In 5th grade play Thursday, Austin beat Mann, 18-7; Houston downed Lamar, 10-7; and Baker eased past Wilson, 9-8. Fifth grade action Saturday found Austin beating Wilson, 8-2; Houston downing Baker, 19-5 and Travis beating Mann, 12-10.

In 6th grade action Thursday, Mann beat Austin, 12-10; Houston downed Lamar, 25-20; and Wilson trounced Baker, 13-12. Sixth grade activity Saturday found Austin walloping Wilson, 28-12; Houston beating Baker, 24-15 and Mann thrashing Travis, 23-16.

five strokes in front of the field. Tony Lema, San Leandro, Calif. came in with a 208 and Billy Maxwell, Las Vegas, Nev., had 209.

The Hebert brothers, Lionel and Jay, threw a one-two punch earlier in the day. Lionel fired a 66 for 211, and Jay had a 67 for 212.

YMCA Slatés Ping Pong Tournament

PERRYTON — For the second successive year, the Young Men's Christian Association will sponsor a city wide ping pong tournament in Perryton. The tournament will be held Tuesday, February 20, at 7 p.m. in the Fellowship hall of First Methodist Church.

Each player who enters the tournament will receive a maximum of activity even though he does not reach the finals. In setting up the games the total number of entries are divided into divisions. Each division will play a two game round robin.

At the conclusion of the round robin play the two men with the best won and loss record from each division will compete in a two out of three game single elimination match for the city championship.

A trophy will be awarded to the winner of the tournament. All spectators are invited to view these matches free of charge. Refreshments will be served throughout the tournament.

In order to enroll one must be 16 years of age or over. Entry blanks may be secured at the "Y" office. There will be a $1.00 fee for entry into this tournament. The entry fee must be attached to the entry blank. For further information contact the "Y" office at 435-3691 or stop by S.W. 4th Street.

national PGA champions, had started the day trailing Littler by 12 strokes.

Big George Bayer of Miami, Fla., knocked in a four-iron for a hole-in-one on the eighth. It was the fifth hole-in-one on the young tour compared with only 11 ace on the whole 1961 campaign.

PGA champion Jerry Barber, who was in with a 219, got permission withdraw from the tournament because of pressing business. He was well out of contention anyway.

Masters champion Gary Player, the defending champion here, three-putted the 18th hole but still had a par 71 and a 54-hole score of 216.

Dr. Cary Middlecoff, well along on his comeback plans, had a fine 68 for a 216 total, along with Player and Bernard Hunt of England.

Los Angeles Open champion Phil Rodgers had a 71 for 219.

Coaches Meet To Be Held On Feb. 3

The 1962 Regional I Coaches Association will meet at West Texas State gym in Canyon Saturday, Feb. 3.

The meeting will be an all-day affair starting at 9 a.m. and closing around 4 p.m. All coaches who belong to the Texas High School Coaches Association are urged to attend.

The keynote address will be given by Burl Huffman, Texas Tech freshman coach. There will be two football lectures, one by Burl Bartlett of Amarillo High who coached Dumas to the Class AAA state championship, and another by Doug Ethridge of Dalhart who coached the Class AA regional champs. A track lecture will also be given by John McGuire of Tascosa on middle distance runners.

Basketball coaches will meet under the supervision of John Ethridge of Amarillo High who has been selected to coach the North squad for the All-Star game at Lubbock this August. There will also be an hour and fifteen minute business session to discuss and vote on several items. All coaches who want to recommend boys for the All-Star game are urged to attend and to make recommendations to the selection committee.

Villagers Stirred Over Sexy Novel Dispensers

LONDON (UPI)—Civil strife has broken out in Suffolk, and the marquis of Bristol finds himself in a state of siege. The village of Ickworth has risen against a plan developed by his lordship to dispense novels about sex and violence from slot machines.

The battle was joined when the villagers woke up one morning and found three one-armed bandits arrayed beside the town post office just outside the gates of the marquis' stately home. One bandit, when properly encouraged by a coin, yielded candy. Another would give a rattle and roar and produce chewing gum. The third dispensed the novels of Mickey Spillane.

A curious crowd assembled and there was much speculation about the identity of the person who had introduced a bit of Las Vegas into the rural beauty of Ickworth. The marquis of Bristol owned up immediately. Seems he opens his stately home to tourists for a small fee and, since most tourists with money are Americans, he wanted to make them feel at home.

Few residents of Ickworth were

Tower Asks For Bracero Leniency

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said Thursday the Labor Department's interpretation of the Mexican migrant labor law goes "beyond the intent of Congress."

Tower asked Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg to make a more "lenient interpretation" of the bracero law.

The present interpretation, Tower said, "virtually" prohibits the use of braceros as readily available replacements for domestic labor.

familiar with the collected works of Mickey Spillane, but one glance at the covers of the paper backs gave them a working knowledge of the author's literary style and subject matter. It was the eternal battle of the sexes with a male shooting, stabbing, striking or whipping a female. Sometimes vice versa. The females all apparently had just sent their entire wardrobes to the dry cleaners and were facing a blood-curdling situation attired only in wisps of tulle or satin.

Mrs. Monica Bumstead, the 26-year-old postmistress of Ickworth, led the first sortie against the marquis.

"We have complained to the parish council," she said, "and now the local planning authority is finding out whether he has any right to put up such machines at all. Why, even children have come into me for change to put in those machines."

The marquis of Bristol, meanwhile, had argued so long and loud that he lost his voice before he could complete his defense. So he issued this written communique: "Mountains are being made out of molehills. The slot machines belong to the Ickworth Automatic Vendors in which I have an interest and have been installed as a non-profit making amenity for the villagers. Opposition comes from a minority of people who see evil in anything."

TWO HAPPY PEOPLE... that's the best description of Mrs. Clyde Hollingsworth and R. L. Studebaker this week... in two un-related instances but on the same theme Mrs. Hollingsworth left Thursday to join her husband Air Force Captain Clyde Hollingsworth in Tachikawa, Japan and their plans now are to be away three years... we know the Hollingsworth children, Cheri, Greg and Stacy will be happy to see their daddy again... a group of Mrs. Hollingsworth's friends got together Tuesday morning for a farewell party in her honor... Mrs. Dick Seawright and Mrs. John Thompson were hostesses for the Farewell Coffee in the home of Mrs. Thompson's mother, Mrs. A. L. Weathered on Charles... table decorations followed an oriental theme with black-centered, red petalled poppies and a lacquered Japanese figurine forming the center of interest around a graceful branch of driftwood... tea was served from colorful cups of pottery... R. L. Studebaker received word last week that he had been accepted for training in the Peace Corps... a long cherished dream of his since graduation from Texas Technological College last Spring he was to leave Friday for Philadelphia... a fine young young man and a fine representative from Pampa to the Peace Corps... imagine Glennale Miller the director of "Arsenic and Old Lace", presented last Friday and Saturday... is most happy that the United States government didn't give him the assignment a week earlier... R. L. was a cast member of that play and it would have upset things just a little to have to re-cast at the last minute.

When the destination is desirable, expectation speeds our progress.—Mary Baker Eddy.

SPEAKING OF "Arsenic and Old Lace", which everyone has been doing this week, we are happy to hear of its success... our family enjoyed seeing it and were agreeably surprised with the talent, scenery and costumes... in the second night audience, we spied our city's First Family, Mayor Gene and Polly Sidwell with a party of friends... Jean Chisholm with her fiancé, Ben Martin of Amarillo... these days Jean is wearing a gorgeous Marquis-cut diamond on her third finger left hand and is telling friends that the wedding date will be in July... other "second nighters" were John and Bernice Hatcher... Marian, Ellen and Bob Fugate... we were so engrossed in the people on stage that we failed to make a mental note of all the others who attended... can hardly wait to hear what the Pampa Little Theater will present next... rumor has it that Homer West is to direct a production to be presented sometime the latter part of April.

Solitude, the safeguard of mediocrity, is to genius, the stern friend.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

SEEMS AS THOUGH we can think of nothing but "far-away places with strange sounding names" today... but always about this time of year we begin to get a wanderlust-feeling and love to hear of other people going places and doing things... even though it is our duty to "stay and serve"... just a martyr, that's all... John McCausland is back home after spending the holidays in London, England with his family and friends... John returned via jet... the six-hour trip was so speedy that he had time to read only six pages in a book that he had brought along to help pass the time... Joyce is to return the latter part of this month by boat with their children and is planning to bring her sister along for a visit in ye olde Pampa town... while "at home" John and Joyce had their young son, John, christened, during a raging snow storm, in the same church in London where they were married... John was describing the Christmas decorations in London this year as simply fabulous and rather out of conservative character for the English... all down along the center of Oxford Square (or was it Oxford Circle? we never were any good at geometry), huge replicas of the Queen's Crown were studded with colored lights to simulate the jewels in the crown... can just imagine how festive and beautiful it must have been... Inez Carter has more than the average citizen's interest in the launching of Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. into the three and a half times orbit around the earth... her great-nephew Robert Spillman, who was a holiday visitor in Pampa, was in charge of a recovery crew, which retrieved the capsule after the astronaut's whirl around the earth... as of this writing, we have no way of knowing if the launching did take place... if it did, Robert was in charge... if it didn't, he will be in charge, when it does... sounds confusing, doesn't it?

The only time you mustn't fail is the last time you try.—Charles Kettering.

MORE NEWS OF TRAVEL... Sandra Braly... Cliff and Eleanor's pretty daughter... is one of the group of students at Christian College in Columbia who is anticipating the traditional annual educational tour sponsored by the college February third through the ninth... this year's trip will include highlights of New York City and a preview of Spring during a visit to Bermuda... the students will be accompanied by a college official and his wife, the L. E. Lewises, and will travel first to New York City on their Spring holiday... they will dine in the Rainbow Lounge of Rockefeller Center and at Trader Vic's as well as at The Columns in the Savoy-Hilton... where they will be staying, while in New York City... they will also have the opportunity to visit the United Nations... see a Broadway musical and "live" television shows before they take-off for Bermuda on Feb. 6... "The Whispering Giant" will whisk them to their destination in Bermuda in three and a half hours... for a few days of swimming and sunning on a pink sand beach... yatching... sightseeing around the Island... on the last day of their holiday... a total of four and a hours by jet plane will permit Sandra and her classmates to have a final morning swim... to lunch in Bermuda and be back in their residence hall by Friday night, Feb. 9... in time for a weekend rest before morning class on Monday.

MOST OF US can't go to Japan, London, Bermuda or around the world in orbit... this week, we had to settle for our voice traveling across the United States in a long distance call to a member of our family... the astonishing thing about this is the manner in which the call was handled... we had memorized the code number of the area we were calling and the phone number... totalling ten digits in all... the call was completed in about the same length of time it takes to dial locally... the only problem is... it's going to take a lot of home-work to get those area codes memorized when we start dialing our own long distance calls in July... and what do you do, we are wondering, when you want to place a person-to-person call? do you just dial and ask for your party? guess we'll find out come this summer... see that we are at the bottom of the column, but we must leave room to remind that Fred Waring will be in town tomorrow night presenting a chorus concert of "Let Freedom Sing"... for Community Concert patrons... we'll be there for it isn't everyone who has the opportunity to see their teenage idol, while they're still young enough to enjoy it, Love 'n' kisses, Peg.

Double-Ring Ceremony Said By Leith-Puerifoy

Wedding vows of Miss Jeannine Leith and Jerry Glynn Puerifoy were solemnized in a six o'clock service performed on January 20 in the First Baptist Church with Dr. E. Douglas Carver as officiant for the double-ring service.

Miss Leith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Leith, 303 N. Faulkner. Mr. Puerifoy's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Glynn Puerifoy of Houston.

Miss Eloise Lane, organist, provided the pre-nuptial airs and the traditional wedding music. Joe Whitten, as vocalist, sang "I Love You Truly," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer" for the benediction as the couple knelt on a white satin prie die.

Given in marriage by her father, with the "her mother and I" avowal, the bride wore a chapel-length gown of Candlelight Taffeta fashioned with a Sweetheart neckline and three-quarter length sleeves accented at the elbows with a tailored, flat bow. Appliques of roses formed a portion of the neckline and extended down the front of the molded bodice into a bouffant skirt to the hemline. An overskirt draped from the side waistline into soft pleats.

Her elbow-length Veil of scalloped, Illusion tulle fell from a Queen's Crown of seed pearls, and iridescent sequins.

She carried a cascade of white roses centered with an orchid.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Richard Gardner attended as matron of honor wearing a Peacock Blue chiffon frock with blue accessories and carried a colonial bouquet of white split carnations.

Miss Loftus To Receive Degree

Miss Maynette Loftus, daughter of Mrs. Azelle Loftus, granddaughter of Mrs. Mae Boone and niece of H. L. Boone, 1615 N. Russell, has completed college work at Texas Christian University and is a candidate for a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in graduation exercises to be held in May, 1962. She was graduated from Pampa High School in 1958.

Miss Loftus is now visiting with her family until Feb. 1 after which she plans to return to Fort Worth and to become associated with Mrs. Gus Bates at the John Robert Powers School as a graduate instructor.

Miss Loftus will appear with the Fort Worth Ballet Association in February in "Giselle" and "Dega" ballets in the Will Rogers Auditorium.

Miss Billingsley Becomes Bride Of Joseph J. Leland

The marriage of Miss Janiece Billingsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Billingsley of Plainview and Joseph James Leland of Pampa, was solemnized on Friday evening at seven o'clock.

Dr. Roy E. McClung directed the exchange of vows in the chapel of the Plainview First Baptist Church.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Leland, 104 N. Nelson, was graduated from Pampa High School. The bride was graduated from Plainview High School. Both are juniors at West Texas State College in Canyon.

Vows were exchanged in a setting of white gladioli and white mums in an altar arrangement flanked by palms. The nuptial area was lighted by green tapers in branched candelabra accented with white satin bows. The satin bows also marked the pews of honor down the bridal aisle.

Miss Sharon McGuire provided traditional prelude music and Miss Irene McGuire sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was gowned in a Bianchi Original of white silk organza over slipper satin fashioned with a fitted shiffl embroidered basque bodice sprinkled with tiny seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The bodice, closed down the back with tiny, covered buttons, featured a scoop neckline and bracelet-length shirred sleeves and terminated to a point at the waistline.

The billowy skirt was accented front and back with panels of the shiffl embroidery, which extended to the hemline; the back panel in the Directoire fashion, swept to a chapel-length train.

Her fingertip Veil of Silk Illusion was caught to a tiara of pearls. She carried a cascade arrangement of white roses centered with a yellow-throated orchid atop a white Bible borrowed from the bride's aunt.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Sharon Billingsley served as her sister's honor attendant. She wore a street-length dress of Stone Green satin peau de soie fashioned with a fitted bodice, scooped neckline and bell-shaped skirt. Her headpiece was a matching pillbox hat with circular veil complemented with green and white brocade satin slippers.

She carried a bouquet of white baby mums arranged on a green peau de soie moff showered with white satin streamers.

Wayne Wood of Amarillo served as best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Billingsley chose a two-piece (See BILLINGSLEY, Page 12)

Tadlock-Borough Repeat Vows In Baptist Chapel

In a five o'clock service, performed on January 19 in the chapel of the First Baptist Church, Miss Linda Cheryl Tadlock became the bride of Robert Lee Borough. Dr. E. Douglas Carver was officiant for the double-ring ceremony performed in a setting of white mums and gladioli flanked by candelabra holding orchid tapers.

Miss Tadlock is the grand daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brady Davis, 1001 Fisher and the daughter of William S. Tadlock of Odessa.

Mr. Borough is the son of Lee Borough of Tyrone, Okla.

BRIDE

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, was gowned in a floor-length dress of white lace over taffeta fashioned with a low, scalloped Sweetheart neckline and cap sleeves complemented with elbow-length lace mitts. The full skirt was encircled at the waistline with a white chiffon cummerbund, which extended to the hem-line drape in back. Her shoulder-length Veil of Illusion tulle draped from a tiara of rhinestones.

She carried an arrangement of white carnations atop a white Prayer Book, borrowed from a young friend, Heather Harris, and showered with white satin streamers tied in Lovers' Knots.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Mary Sue Cass, sister of the bride, attended as maid of honor wearing orchid organza over taffeta complemented with a matching hat and white lace mitts. She carried a nosegay of pink split carnations tied with orchid, white and pink streamers.

Bill Ingram of Stillwater, Okla., served as best man. Jimmy and Ricky Cox served as ushers and candlelighters.

Mrs. E. Douglas Carver provided the traditional wedding marches and served as accompanist for Joet Shitten, vocalist; she sang "Oh, Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Davis, chose a desert beige brocade sheath topped with a short jacket. She wore rose accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Tadlock, bride's stepmother, chose a white wool sheath topped with a three-quarter length blue and white check coat with matching accessories. Her corsage was fashioned from white carnations.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor. The bride's table was appointed with a white linen cloth centered with a floral arrangement of yellow and orchid mums flanked by orchid tapers in crystal holders. The five-tiered wedding cake, served by Miss Judy Cullum, was decorated with miniature yellow roses topped with a bridal pair standing under an archway of roses and wedding bells.

Misses Katie Kenemer and Nancy Lam presided at the punch service. Guests were registered by Miss Judy Cullum.

For a brief wedding trip, the bride traveled in a white wool dress with black accessories and wore the white carnation corsage from the center of her bridal bouquet.

The bride attended Pampa High School, where she was a member of the Harvester Band.

The bridegroom completed schools in Stillwater, Okla., and is employed by the FWA Drilling Co.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William S. Tadlock, bride's father and stepmother of Odessa; Ray H. Davis of Gillette, Wyo., uncle of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ingram and daughter, Denise of Stillwater, Okla.; Mrs. Ola Bateman, aunt of the bride and Terry Don Cornwell of Skellytown.

The couple will make their home at 428 N. Russell.

Mrs. Hollingsworth Feted With Coffee

Mrs. Clyde Hollingsworth was honored with a Farewell Coffee in the home of Mrs. A. L. Weathered, 1322 Charles, on Tuesday morning by Mrs. Dick Seawright and Mrs. John Thompson.

Mrs. Hollingsworth, with her three children, Cheri, Greg, and Stacy, left Thursday morning by jet for Tachikawa, Japan, where they will join Captain Clyde Hollingsworth, who is stationed with the airforce there.

The refreshment table followed an Oriental theme with an arrangement of drift wood appointed with poppies and a Japanese figurine. Colorful pottery and Japanese bamboo mats completed the table decorations, where Fortune Cookies, fruit tidbits and miniature rolls were served with tea.

Attending were Misses Buz Tarpley, Howard Lee, Elmer Wilson, Jack Rose, Karl Stephenson, John Parker, Duane Copeland, Howard Thames and Buddy Cockrell.

Miss Lewis, John Gerald Doggett Jr. Repeat Wedding Vows In Church Rites

Miss Helen Suzanne Lewis of Del Township, N.J. became the bride of John Gerald Doggett Jr. of Camden, N.J. in a double-ring service performed Nov. 23 in the Trinity Episcopal Church in Moorestown, N.J. with the Rev. Bruce A. Weatherly as officiant.

Miss Lewis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert John Lewis of Indianapolis, Ind. Mr. Doggett is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Doggett, 915 N. Somerville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in bouffant ivory peau de soie. The molded bodice was edged around the neckline with Alencon lace and long sleeves extended to bridal points over the hands. Her bouffant veil of Illusion Tulle was held to a flat bow of matching dress material. She carried an arrangement of white Fuji mums.

Miss Doris Trout, wearing a street-length dress of gold taffeta and carrying an arrangement of bronze mums, served as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Miss Joyce Doggett, bridegroom's sister, Miss Nancy Lewis, bride's sister and Mrs. Richard Miller, cousin of the bride. They were dressed as the maid of honor.

Peyton Z. Peebles served as best man. Wedding ushers were Daniel L. Mikuta, Mario F. Ciarracca and Donald K. Matter, cousin of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Lewis wore a beige brocade jacket dress. Mrs. Doggett, mother of the bridegroom, wore a Moss Green silk suit. Their corsages were fashioned from autumn-hued mums.

A reception was held in the parish hall of the church immediately following the service.

The couple motored to Florida for a wedding trip.

The bride is employed as a secretary in the personnel department of the Radio Corporation of America in Moorestown. The bridegroom was graduated from Pampa High School in 1954 and from Texas Technological College in Lubbock in 1958. He is employed as an electronics engineer for the RCA in Moorestown.

The couple are at home at 3029 C. Washington in Camden, N.J.

Papers On Africa Form Twentieth Century Study

Mrs. Bob Andis was hostess to the Twentieth Century Club on Tuesday afternoon in her home, 1710 Mary Ellen.

During the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Richard Stowers, it was announced that the Top of Texas District convention will be held in Shamrock on April 12-13. It was also announced that the club will be hostess at Senior Center on Feb. 15.

Mrs. Jack Stroup was introduced as a new member.

Mrs. Frank Culberson, program leader, introduced the topic, "Africa" by giving a brief resume of the geography and general conditions of the continent. In the introduction, Mrs. Culberson stated, "Africa is a land of contrasts. It has snow on the equator; rivers that run away from the sea; diamonds laying about in the sand; gorillas, lions, mysterious pyramids standing since the dawn of civilization; weird beatings of a savage tom-tom; and the hum of an American motor car crossing the desert. These are only a few of the contrasts of today's Africa."

Mrs. Culberson introduced Mrs. W. R. Campbell, who discussed the part Portugal had in colonies and the products which had been developed.

"White settlements are not welcome in the Portuguese colonies," she said, "and it was the Portuguese who introduced the hammock and guitar to the Africans."

Mrs. Andis discussed the part the French played in Africa. She illustrated the colonies' locations, chief products and mode of life. "France spent hundreds of millions of francs to colonize Africa, and from this they hoped to receive needed raw materials and supplies for their industries."

Mrs. Al Knox discussed the United Kingdom's colonies in Africa. "The territories of Great Britain cover over one half million square miles," she said.

She brought out that "it is the little things that create differences" as she told about the Golden Stool of Ashanti. "The symbolic nature of the Stool was very hard to understand by the British and this caused a great deal of trouble until there was an understanding."

"There are 250 different tribes

brown and bone brocade satin dress with bone and brown accessories. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Leland wore a gold two-piece silk and linen dress with green and gold accessories. The mothers' corsages were fashioned from white carnations.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors. The bride's table was appointed with a white linen cloth centered with a silver heart encircled with white mums and snap-dragons. Lighted green tapers and the bride's bouquet completed the arrangement.

A crystal bowl containing green-tinted punch and a colonnade cake topped with a miniature bridal couple completed the table decor.

Background music, during the receiving hour, was provided by Miss Sharon McGuire, Miss Nicki Bruce presided at the guest registrar's table, which was decorated with an arrangement of white mums centered with a miniature piano.

Members of the reception house-party were Mrs. Nadine Mallow, Mrs. Wayne Wood, Mrs. Jerry McGlohan, both of Amarillo, Mrs. Clarence Lewis and Miss Weita Kent.

For travel, the bride chose a Bone wool suit, with bone accessories, lizard shoes and bag and wore the orchid from her wedding bouquet.

Following the trip, the couple is making their home in Canyon, where both will continue with studies at West Texas State College.

The leisurely, warm tubbing at the end of the day does more than cleanse; it perks up the spirits, too.

Making Artificial Fruit Illustrated For Pampa Garden Club Unit Meetings

The Morning Unit of the Pampa Garden Club met Monday in the home of Mrs. Bob Miller, 2223 Aspen with Mrs. Melvin Stephens and Mrs. V. N. Osborn as co-hostesses.

Mrs. Waldon Moore conducted a demonstration-type lecture covering the creation of artificial fruit from such materials as magic modeling "goop"; modeling clay and popcorn. Mrs. Moore also demonstrated the technique of making Kleenex carnations for an arrangement and had one on display for illustration.

For such accessories as leaves for the artificial fruit and butterflies, she molded these from liquid plastic.

The refreshment table was appointed with a white linen cloth and white milk glass accessories. The centerpiece was an arrangement of red Kleenex carnations in a white vase. Coffee and tea were poured from a silver service.

Guests were Miss Nancy Gates, Mrs. Tilden Armstrong and Mrs. Sam Moot.

Members attending were Mmes. Lee Moore, Melvin Stephens, Floyd Watson, V. N. Osborn, Tom Price, Joe Griffin, Dorothy Francis, Joe Gates, Thelma Bray, Myron Dorman, Mary Weaver, Ira Carlton, D. A. Caldwell, W. E. Melton, H. H. Boynton, A. J. Mitchell, Bud Hogan, Stanley Brandt, Bob Miller, H. A. Hanks, Cloy Palmer and Waldon Moore.

The Afternoon Unit of the Pampa Garden Club met at 2:30 p.m. Monday in the home of Mrs. Miller, 2223 Aspen with Mrs. Albert Doucette and Mrs. Grace Purviance as co-hostesses.

A report of the Morning Unit's program was given by Mrs. Waldon Moore.

Attending were Mmes. Bert Robinson, W. L. Roundtree, Cordie McBride, Bob Miller, Waldon Moore, Ed Parsons, Lee Harrah, W. E. Hinton, Albert Doucette and W. A. Purviance.

Greene-McDonough Are Wed In Nuptial Rites

Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley McDonough with their daughter, Miss Nellie Beth Greene.
(Photo, Clarence Studio)

Wedding vows of Miss Nellie Beth Greene and William Stanley McDonough were solemnized in a double-ring service performed by Dr. E. Douglas Carver, on January 18 at seven o'clock in the First Baptist Church.

Miss Greene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Greene of Pampa. Mr. McDonough is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McDonough of Matador.

The wedding scene was formed with tiered candelabra holding white tapers flanked by baskets of white gladioli with a background of Jade Palms.

BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father with the "her mother and I" avowal, the bride wore a street-length frock of Bridal Taffeta designed with a scooped neckline and cap sleeves complemented with opera-length lace mitts. The bell-shaped skirt was caught on each side just above the hemline with two cabbage roses.

A shoulder-length Veil of Illusion tulle draped away from a tiara encrusted with pearls and sequins. White satin slippers completed her attire. She carried a bouquet of white Sweetheart roses showered with white satin streamers tied in Lovers' Knots atop a white Bible.

Tradition was observed by the bride in carrying a white handkerchief, which had belonged to her late grandmother, Mrs. C. E. Pochel; and she wore a strand of pearls from Japan borrowed from her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. H. Greene.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Marlana Sue Greene, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a dress of Royal Blue taffeta and carried a bouquet of white Sweetheart roses.

Charles Renfro of Matador was best man. Ushers were James Taylor of Matador, George Hinch of Canyon, Calvin Costley, also of Canyon.

Miss Ladell Greene, bride's niece, as flower girl wore a white lace frock and carried a basket of red rose petals in a white lace basket.

Mark Stacy Greene of Tucson, Ariz., bride's nephew, carried the bridal rings to the couple on a heart-shaped white satin pillow edged in lace.

Candles were lighted by Jimmy Greene and W. H. (Hunky) Greene, brothers of the bride.

As part of the ceremony, during the processional, the bride gave her mother a white rose and a kiss. In the recessional, she gave the bridegroom's mother a white rose and a kiss.

Traditional wedding music was furnished by Frankie Coy of Dalhart, college friend of the couple. Joe Whitten, soloist, sang "Whither Thou Goest."

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Greene chose a light blue suit with black accessories. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. McDonough chose a beige wool dress with black accessories. Their corsages were fashioned from white carnations.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the service, a reception was held in the church parlor. The bride's table was appointed with a white, crocheted cloth, which had been made by her grandmother, Mrs. Pochel.

The table was centered with a silver epergne holding an arrangement of white stock and chrysanthemums lighted with white tapers.

The all white tiered cake was decorated with white roses and topped with a bridal couple standing under a lace archway.

Mrs. W. F. Goode Jr. of Lefors, sister of the bride, presided at the punch service. Mrs. Jim Meece of Odessa, bridegroom's sister, served from the tiered cake. Guests were registered by Miss Linda Rhodes of Borger, former college roommate of the bride.

For a wedding trip to San Antonio.

Methodist Circle Meets For Study

Circle VIII of the First Methodist WSCS met Monday evening in the church parlor with Mrs. Weldon Carter as hostess.

Mrs. Duane Barte conducted the business meeting and led the study on "The Churches and Public Affairs."

Devotion was given by Mrs. Glen Cox.

It was announced that the next meeting will be on Feb. 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the church parlor with Mrs. Donald Nienstiel as hostess.

Facilities Of Pampa Youth Center Are Described To Newcomers By Director

The Newcomers' Club entertained with a Bridge Luncheon on Thursday in the Cibola Room of the Coronado Inn.

Preceding luncheon, Mrs. William Chafin, program chairman, introduced Doug Halley, director of the Pampa Youth and Community Center, who discussed "How The Youth and Community Center Serves Your Community."

Mr. Halley told the group that the Center was dedicated in April and was opened in May, 1961. He explained that there is room, about 10 acres, on which to improve and expand the facilities for the public.

"The program at the Center," Mr. Halley said, "is designed not entirely for the youth of Pampa but for the public in general. It is the interest of the Center to provide creative crafts and activities for all ages and to meet three basic needs of the community: social, emotional and educational."

"The Pampa Youth Center," he continued, "is working with the Pampa Senior High School by furnishing the swimming pool as a part of the physical education program for high school students. Part of the facilities in the 'Y' building include an activity room, which is very much in demand for parties, dancing, and, of course, the swimming pool along with very adequate dress and locker rooms. Swimming classes are taught to many people of various age groups throughout the year."

Memberships are available to anyone either on a six-month or annual basis for individuals or families. Memberships are $5 for six months or $8 per year for individuals; $12 for six months or $20 per year for families.

Mr. Halley extended an invitation to newcomers to visit the Center at any time. Immediately following the program, Mrs. Jack Riley cleverly not familiar to you.

directed the 30 members to their luncheon partners.

Mrs. Leo-Bankston was awarded the door prize, a gift certificate from B&B Pharmacy.

Games of Bridge and Canasta comprised the remainder of the afternoon following luncheon.

It was announced that the next meeting will be a Luncheon Bridge on Feb. 22 at 11 a.m. in the Coronado Inn.

MOD Theme Used By KKI Conclave

A March of Dimes theme was carried out in the Tuesday evening meeting of the Gamma Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota Sorority in the City Club Room.

A money tree, used as a centerpiece, blossomed out with $35 contribution during the evening.

Table games of Bridge, "42" and Canasta comprised the evening's entertainment.

Hostesses were Mmes. Roy Sparkman, John Evans, Dan Johnson and Herbert Coker.

Mrs. G. M. Walls announced plans for the Sweetheart Banquet to be held on Feb. 13 in the Pampa Country Club with husbands and friends as special guests.

Members attending were Mmes. Homer Bowers, Herbert Coker, Joe DiCosimo, J. E. Gunn, B. G. Gordon, D. L. Mackie, Charles Meech, W. L. Parker, L. B. Penick, W. A. Rankin, Austin Ruddle, C. W. Moose Women To Attend Meeting

Women of the Moose met Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. in the Moose Lodge, 410 E. Brown with Mrs. Ray Cales, senior regent, in charge of the meeting.

Mrs. Haysel Smith was initiated as a new member.

Plans were made to attend the Mid-Winter District Conference to be held in Amarillo today with the Women of the Moose from Pampa, Borger, Amarillo and Albuquerque participating. Registration was planned between 11:30 a.m. and 1:20 p.m.

A donation was sent to Moose heart from the Pampa lodge to be used on the new fieldhouse. All members brought Valentines to be mailed to Moose heart.

Door prize was won by Mrs. A. J. Kelley.

Meeting closed with prayer by Chaplain, Mrs. Truman Garrison. Members attending were Mmes. Lovie Fry, Connie Lockhart, Tom Beard, B. W. Lard, Jeff Lard, Sam Goodan, Bill Morse, Alvin Driggers and Charlie Webb.

'Wasted Brain Power' Talk For Civic Culture

Civic Culture Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. H. W. Waters for a program entitled "We Must Prevent Waste Of Brain Power" presented by the hostess.

In opening remarks, Mrs. Waters said "A columnist recently told about the rejection of 76 percent of the applications for admission filed with eight Ivy League colleges, then wound up his column with the thought that possibly too many high school graduates are going to college anyhow."

"A high school senior recently wrote to an education editor 'I want to go to college this fall, but thus far I have been turned down by five colleges. You see, I have only a 'C' average and didn't do particularly well in my college est. Isn't there a place for me?' How can we answer that high school senior?"

"Whatever the reason," Mrs. Waters continued, "he and tens of thousands of other 'C' students are discovering that more and more college doors are being slammed shut in their faces. It has become a mark of distinction for colleges to point with pride to the number of 'C' students they reject without any reduction in the size of their freshman classes."

"Of course," she said, "our colleges must develop programs that will provide opportunities for 'A' and 'B' students to achieve their highest potential. In fact, they must do a better job than they have been doing and many institutions are aware of this. This is why increasing attention is being given to "honor" programs, . . . programs designed to challenge students with outstanding abilities to do superior work. But our colleges and universities must also provide opportunities for the genuine 'C' student. If they do not, we will be faced with man-power shortage that ultimately will seriously undermine our country's strength."

"Parents of 'C' students can do something about this problem; first, parents can work with high school teachers and counselors in an effort to bring the 'C' student with 'A' talents to the point where his performance is consistent with his potential; second, parents can counsel their sons and daughters to consider colleges and universities that are willing to work with 'C' students."

"Recent findings," Mrs. Waters told the group, "indicate that IQ tests not only are insufficient and misleading, but usually fail to single out the child who thinks with originality and depth. Dr. E. Paul Torrance, an eminent psychologist at the University of Minnesota has said that one of the most significant achievements in the educational world in our time has been the development of creativity tests. They are almost the opposite of IQ tests."

"As Lincoln once said, 'The Lord must love the poor, there are so many of them. So the Lord must love the average student, there are so many of them.'"

Those present were Meses, Stanley Brandt, Irvin Cole, R. E. Dauer, A. D. Hills, W. J. Morris, Emmett Osborne, C. F. Pennington, W. C. Scott, K. A. Sorenson, Willis White and a guest, Mrs. D. W. Coffman.

Principles And Self-Evaluation Quiz Forms Program For Altrusa Meeting

Mrs. Irl Smith, Information chairman, presented a program on "Principles of Altrusa" at a dinner meeting of Altrusa Club of Pampa held Monday in the East Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

Mrs. Smith outlined with charts the three Altrusa principles as "Efficiency, Patriotism and Service." In discussing the twelve rules under these three principles, Mrs. Smith quoted from Mamie L. Bass, the first national president of Altrusa, who observed, "Altrusa believes it is not enough to be good. Altrusans must be good for something." Each member must be doing the piece of work that is hers in a way that puts her in the front ranks of accomplishment."

Sitting under a blue garden umbrella labeled "Altrusa Information," Mrs. Bonnie McCarley, Mrs. Lonnie Kenney, Mrs. Lalar Wilkerson and Mrs. Mary Wilson discussed "Relax," "Read," "Resolve," and "Realize" in order to be valuable to herself and to Altrusa.

In a self-evaluation quiz, conducted by Mrs. Kenney, members were divided into groups for a discussion and presentation of new ideas for club service during 1962-63.

Mrs. L. L. Harkins, president, presided during the business meeting. Dinner music was provided by Mrs. Fidelia Yoder.

The head table was appointed with an arrangement of Spring flowers; each guest's place was marked with a Japanese umbrella. Each member was given a clever cartoon, which illustrated her classification.

Miss Mary Phillips was introduced by Miss Martha Kelley as the Altrusa Girl of the month for January. Miss Phillips is president of the Future Nurses Club, a member of the Thespian Troup 1010 and plans to study nursing. Altrusa Views, the club's monthly bulletin, was distributed by the editor, Mrs. Kenney.

Each member also received a photostat copy of the "Principles of Altrusa."

A report from the Chamber of Commerce's luncheon meeting concerning how to attract new industries to Pampa was given by Mrs. W. A. Spoonemore.

Door prize was won by Mrs. V. L. Hobbs.

International News Flash was given by Mrs. Joe Tooley, who announced that Mrs. Inez Carter's great-nephew, Robert Spillman, had been assigned in charge of the recovery crew following Astronauts John B. Glenn Jr.'s orbit around the world.

Dear Abby....

Kindness Better Than Frankness!

By ASIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Every time we are in a crowd and someone tells a joke, my husband says, "I've heard that one before." Or else, when they finish, he'll say, "Here's the way I heard it" — and he'll tell it over, only a little different.

I was taught that it is bad manners to do that and whether you've heard a joke or not you should pretend you haven't and laugh for courtesy's sake. My husband says that is being phony, and he would rather be honest. Who is right?

PHONY BUT NICE
DEAR PHONY: I vote with you. It's more important to be kind than frank.

DEAR ABBY: The man I married has always detested eye make-up of any kind. I went to a make-up consultant and she told me to fill in the blank spaces in my eyebrows with a little eye-brow pencil.

I used the pencil for a month and my husband didn't even notice it. I thought it made me look a lot nicer. It wasn't pointed looking. Abby: It was neat and hardly noticeable. One morning my husband saw me using the pencil and he started to rave about how cheap eye make-up was. I told him I'd been using it for a month and he called me "deceitful" and cursed me as though I had taken a giant step toward degradation. The next time I went to use my eyebrow pencil, it was missing. I later found it broken to pieces in the waste basket. I am very angry. What would you do in my place?

SHAGGY BROWS
DEAR SHAGGY: Obviously it wasn't the "work" of the pencil — it was the principle of it that irritated your husband — but he certainly behaved in a childish manner. You knew he "detested" eye make-up when you married him. Write off the pencil entirely.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a man who can be the sweetest

Piano Students To Be Presented In Mid-Year Recitals At 3 p.m.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Church of the Brethren, piano students of Mrs. Fidelia Yoder will be presented in a mid-year recital.

Students of all ages will be included in the program. The compositions performed will be selected from both the classic and modern repertoire.

Of special interest in this recital will be performances by the three students, who will enter the Amarillo Symphony Contest on Feb. 3, Sylvia Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Graham, who is entering the 11 yrs. and under division, will play the Clementi Sonatina no. 2 in G Major, Jean and Janie Prock, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Prock, are both entering in the 12-14 year division. Jean, who is playing in the classic section will present the J. C. Bach Concerto in B Flat, and Janie will play the Rowley Miniature Concerto, which is the modern selection for that age group. Orchestral parts will be played by Mrs. Yoder on a second piano.

Two modern numbers to be presented will be the Bolero (Longas) played by Amy Earhart of Lefors and the Toccata (Khachaturian) played by Joyce Prock.

Others taking part in this recital are Jo Lynn Ellis, Gail Duncan, Susan Wilson, Jean Fischer, Jo Ann Hugg, Diane Graham, Kay Upshaw, Linda Chase, John Skelly, Brenda Terry, Gail Wilson, Jimmy Hugg, Joyce Fischer, Beth Gage, Cindy Hill, Kaye Forkel, Peggy Griffin, Terrie Watson, Katrina Spencer, Kathy Larsen, Joretta and Loretta Baird.

The public is cordially invited to attend this recital.

State Of Quiet Beauty Described For Forum

Twentieth Century Forum Study Club elected new officers at a meeting held Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Aubrey Steele, 1800 Grape.

Elected to serve during the 1962-63 club year are Mmes. Homer Johnson, president; William L. Ellis, vice president; D. M. Lawrence, secretary; M. McDaniel, treasurer; and reporter, Mrs. Joe M. Daniel.

Mrs. Johnson introduced Mrs. Frank Kelley, who presented a program on the state of "Wyoming."

She opened the program by giving the reasons for selecting the state of Wyoming as the subject. She said, "Wyoming is known as the Equality State because the territorial legislature in 1869 became the first to give women the right to vote. It's state motto is 'Equal Rights.' Wyoming was also the first state to have a woman governor, Nellie Taylor Ross in 1925 and Esther M. Morris became the first justice of the peace in the United States in 1870."

Mrs. Kelley said, "A woman cannot help but like a state, which emphasizes this equality. For this reason, and also, because I lived there as a child and acquired a great love for it, I have chosen to tell you about Wyoming."

"The whole of Wyoming's history, until recent time," Mrs. Kelley began, "can be told in terms of grass. First, the original nomads; then the Indians and finally the latter-day white men. Grass is what brought them to Wyoming and is what kept them there."

"Wyoming has a vivid past and exciting history. The feeling of emptiness one gets in Wyoming is not because it has no past. It is because the signs and monuments of the past are so meager and so few."

"The characters in its cavalcade... the Indians, the trappers, the miners, the scouts, the bull whackers, the mule skinner, the cowboys and the oil men, left hardly a trace in their passing."

"Wyoming is a grazing state, she continued. "There are twenty times more domestic animals than people. They still regard a man on a horse being rather more important than a man on foot."

"Now, let's turn to one of Wyoming's writers, one who can give you a true understanding of the Indians in Wyoming today. She is Bonnie Hunter, who, with her husband, Ted, operates the Hunter's Trading Post at Fort Washkie, on an Indian Reservation. Mrs. Hunter loves and understands the Indians. In her words, she says she has written about them that "we might all learn a new compassion for humanity and especially for these... the very lowly."

"Mrs. Hunter's first story 'Cookie' was selected by the Author's League as the best story of the west for that year. In her words she says, 'When I began writing, I didn't even know how to double-space my lines.' It was on an impulse that she decided to send 'Cookie' to McCall's Magazine. They accepted it and paid her $700 for it and she says: 'I almost fainted when I read the letter from them, as there was a depression on, and Ted had his back broken from being dragged by a horse and there was a mortgage.'

"Since that time, she has had numerous stories and poems published in McCall's, Good House-keeping and other publications."

American Field Service Students Guests Of First Methodist WSCS

Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church met Wednesday morning in the church with Circles VII and VIII as hostesses during the Tea Hour, which followed the program.

Mrs. J. L. Colville, president, presided as a letter of appreciation was read from the WSCS scholarship student, Miss Glenda Gorman.

Appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Walter Purviance for her gift of Silver Service to the WSCS and the Friendship Class.

Announcement was made of the District Day Apart meeting to be held in Shamrock on Jan. 29 with registration to begin at 9:30 a.m. A nursery will be provided.

It was announced that on Jan. 30, the Wesleyan Service Guild will be hostess for a party in the Patio Room and church parlor. All WSCS members and interested women of the church are invited to attend.

The Church World Service Blanket Appeal was also made. The United-Church Women will have charge of mailing the blankets for the churches. The only requirements are that the blankets be clean, any size is acceptable, and include 25 cents for mailing charge. It was announced that anyone, who has a blanket to give but cannot bring it to the church, may call Mrs. Clarence Lutes, MO 4-2600, and it will be picked up.

Mrs. Elmer Radcliff gave the devotion from Psalms.

The remainder of the program was presented by the American Field Service students, Chris Jonsson of Halsingborg, Sweden, who is at home with Mr. and Mrs. Coy Palmer and Miss Cathy Papa-

Manners Make Friends

In neither country, it was learned, has television taken over the everyday life of the people. They pay low license fee for viewing with no commercials.

In Sweden the Lutheran State Church has majority of members, but there are all denominations. In Greece, the predominant church is Greek Orthodox. There is freedom of worship for all groups.

Miss Pappanassopoulos brought out that food was not served in the schools. "Classes begin early and the students are out by mealtime, which they enjoy at home."

If someone joins your group when you are in the middle of a conversation, clue the newcomer to the subject.

Mrs. V. N. Osborn Garden Club Prexy

New officers for the Top of Texas Garden Club were elected at a meeting held Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. James Deal, 2144 Chestnut.

Mrs. V. N. Osborn was elected president for the 1962-63 club year. Named to serve with her are Mmes. Fred Hinkley, first vice president; Jamie Deal, second vice president; Helen Knox, recording secretary; Kay Fancher, corresponding secretary; John Hawley, treasurer; L. B. Robertson, historian; R. H. Samples, parliamentarian.

It was announced that Mrs. Samples will present a program on "Seed Propagation" at the Feb. 13 meeting to be held at 1:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Joe Rutledge, 602 E. Kingsmill.

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Two Kinds Of Rebellion

When governments become tyrannous, people rebel against them. Historically, rebellion against tyranny has taken two forms. There has been a rebellion against a particular person, clique or administration which results in the overthrow of the person or group by a second group. Then there has been the rebellion against a particular form of government, and the devising of a new form to guard against further abuses of power.

Let us examine the first one first. When men give their allegiance, their fealty, their loyalty to some king or potentate, they anticipate that their protection has been purchased in this manner.

When, after the passage of time, they find that their expectations of protection have been vain and visionary, they begin to grumble. When they find themselves in the position of having to defend themselves against their own government, they rebel.

The rebellion is a revolt of some sort. They may kill their king; banish him; or simply hold an election and retire him to the sidelines. But the objective is the same regardless of the system employed. An election is simply a bloodless revolution making possible the dismissal of some no longer worthy political leader.

Then a new political leader is enthroned or anointed, or given a mansion and a big salary, and he is warned not to repeat the errors of his predecessors.

Sometimes, the new leader is wise and does not repeat. In this case, he devises new ways to torment and harass his taxpayers. Or, perhaps he does not find new ways and continues with the old abuses. In time, his subjects rebel against him, toss him into the discard, and find a new potentate.

This process continues, sometimes for generations or even centuries. But since the abuses continue and only suffer modification or variation thru the years, the patience and forbearance of the subjects will finally wear thin. And someone will stand forth to proclaim that it is not because of "bad" men that these abuses and tyrannies are experienced; rather, it is because of the form of the government, which these men head is itself evil and can result only in evil.

Then the secondary form of revolution is called upon. This second form is far more epochal and earth-shaking than the first form and far more hazardous of success. Usually this is the type of rebellion that is recognized as rebellion.

The mere change of the name of the tyrant, which may have been in process for hundreds of years is, in the main, considered inevitable and, hence, non-revolutionary.

The French had such a revolution toward the close of the 18th century. So did we. The British people have had several of this type. So have many nations on earth. The Chinese began theirs in 1911. The Russians had one in 1917. The Cubans are still trying to make their recent one stick.

But whether the revolution upgrades or downgrades the nation, the first process is again resumed. The new form of government is adopted, be it dictatorial, democratic, republican, parliamentary, military or whatever; and then men move into power according to the new rules. Again, tyranny evolves as time passes.

Once more the people suffer under the new system. To begin with, of course, they are certain they will not suffer now that the change has been made. But suffer they will and do.

The process repeats. But when the process is continued in time long enough, tyranny again appears and rebellion again breaks out.

The entire history of man is a history of these rebellions; first against the Tudors or the Stuarts or the Hanovers; then against the monarchy, or the oligarchy or the democracy.

This is the melancholy fact which men learn after much painful reflection and with sorrowful recourse to the human record.

The Try-Angle

Difficulties rarely overcome us. It is the lack of confidence in ourselves combined with a lack of willingness to try. The correct angle by means of which all difficulties should be assailed is the try-angle.

Three Who Came Back

One of the things which visitors to Russia constantly tell us about is the incessant use of propaganda by the Russian government to convince the Russian people that everything the government does for them is marvelous.

As a matter of fact, all posters, promotional stories in the newspapers and the newspapers themselves, simply thump the drum for support of the party, support of the system, support of communism, support of Khrushchev and everything for which he stands.

These propaganda techniques are as old as recorded history. As a matter of fact, much that passes for history today is little more than the biased reporting of some "historian" who was hired by a particular monarch with the view to immortalizing his reign.

But for propaganda of the worst possible sort, we have only to turn to the American school system run by the government and the outrageous stuff it feeds to its captive children.

A fifth grade schoolteacher in a sister newspaper town recently sent us a "comic book" with the notation: "This was left in my pigeon hole to distribute among my fifth grade school children. We gather that the teacher restrained himself and didn't make the distribution. We hope we are right."

The brightly colored booklet is entitled, "Three Who Came Back." It contains a trilogy of adventures each of which is calculated to show how marvelous

Social Security is for young boys and girls. In the first, little dromedary, young Fred Lockhart was a promising student in high school. Everything was going his way. Then, suddenly, his father died. It looked as if the Fred might have to drop out of school to get a job. But, no. The athletic director told Fred to hurry down to the Social Security office. There, the kindly grey-haired government worker informed Fred that thanks to Social Security he, his mother and the two smaller children would get a regular check of about $200 per month. In consequence, Fred could keep on at school, and the farm where they lived could be rented at a good price.

The "comic book" failed to point out that as a result of Social Security, millions of workers had been gipped out of a portion of their pay; that costs for Social Security are on a scheduled increase every few years; that there isn't enough money in the so-called "reserve" fund even to meet current outlays; that taxes are going to have to be continually raised to meet the outlay. Nothing of this sort. Everyone is just supposed to jump up and down with joy to think about getting this $200 per month "absolutely free."

Oh, what a wonderful government! The next little item relates to a couple of likely lads looking for employment. After developing one of the lads into a "smart-aleck" type which no one likes, and the

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

When our government refused to aid Chiang Kai-shek against Mao Tse-Tung, resulting in the Communist conquest of China, it began a series of retreats which are rapidly destroying the free world.

When we refused to win the Korean war we suffered a great loss in prestige and encouraged Communist expansion.

When we failed to go to the aid of the French in Viet Nam we weakly submitted to further Communist advance.

Neutral nations have marked well the fact that all we did in Laos was to talk big and do nothing. Our SEATO allies—Australia, Pakistan, the Philippine Islands, Thailand and Chiang in Taiwan—would have joined us in preventing Laos from disappearing behind the Iron Curtain.

Do we think it will be easier to defend South Viet Nam and Thailand than it would have been to have defended Laos? We have now convinced the Asiatic peoples that we will not defend them and they are not impressed by or interested in our talk.

Moreover we give neutral India a billion dollars a year and our ally, Pakistan, $150 million. We have convinced our allies that they can collect more by being neutral. Meanwhile we continue to pay out very large sums to outright Communist countries such as Poland, Yugoslavia and Sukarno's Indonesia.

In Africa we have opposed our allies and our friends and have been soft toward communism. In the western hemisphere our State Department deliberately brought about the triumph of Castro and communism in Cuba.

Khrushchev has tested us in Laos and in Cuba and concluded, no doubt, that we will not offer any serious resistance, even in Berlin.

We are strong on meaningless conferences, not realizing that agreements and drawing lines on maps are only Communist maneuvering to further their territorial grabs. The Communists will agree to anything to allay our fears, cause us to lower our guard and make way for their further expansion at the strategic moment. Our faith in conferences and agreements is childish and inexcusable.

If we do not change our strategy the Communist plan of taking Asia, Africa and South America and finally isolating the United States will be achieved in a comparatively short time. We need not think that we can long survive as Fortress America.

We are submitting to our death by inches. Our very existence depends upon an abrupt change of policy. We must not retreat or appease. We must aggressively wage the cold war on all fronts. We must do this even at the risk of hot war. War is terrible to contemplate but surrender or death by inches is infinitely worse.

While these officials believe that it will be easy for this country to show up these allegations as completely phony, they want the State Department to start now preparing a strong counter case against Castro and his denial of human rights in Cuba.

Also, they favor a policy of quietly moving to the U.S. from the base any of the Cuban refugees that wish to leave the island. At present, the State Department is opposing the use of Guantanamo as a refugee escape hatch. They are taking the position that such a policy might give Castro a legal argument to void this country's 99-year lease on the

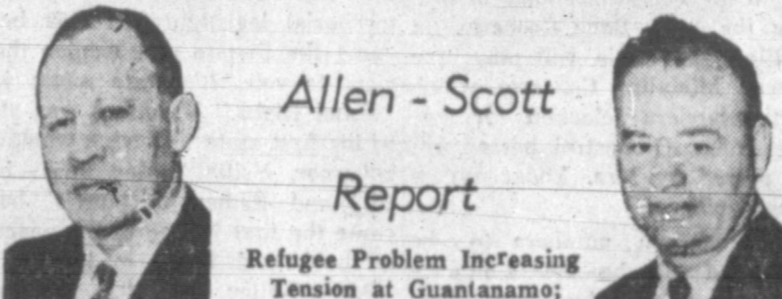

The final effort to compel outright admission of this wicked system comes in a story about Janet Bailey who wanted to get married. But her daddy became ill and had to enter a hospital. There it was learned that he would never be able to work again. Outcome? No marriage for poor Janet because her intended wouldn't be able to support her and start a business, too.

But enter the kindly gentleman who lets her know that good old Social Security disability insurance will be made available at $120 per and in consequence she can get married; the taxpayers will support her, and there is no need for her to postpone the nuptials.

This is the kind of bilge being circulated among fifth graders to help convince them of the wonders of their government, which looks after them in every way except at tax time.

We grow more and more like other nations every day in our use of propaganda for mendacious story telling.

Refugee Problem Increasing Tension at Guantanamo; Escapes Continue and Danger of Incident Mounts

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — An explosive Cuban refugee problem is building up inside the strategic U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

More than 500 of the 3,500 Cuban workers employed at the base are being permitted to make their homes inside the steel-fenced barricade that is guarded by tank-supported U.S. Marines.

This political asylum is being granted these anti-Castro Cubans by Rear Admiral Edward J. O'Donnell, U.S. commander at the base, with the full backing of superiors in Washington.

He is extending this temporary haven to these workers, many of whom fear for their lives, as they would be arrested and jailed by Castro's Communist government if they tried to return to their homes and families.

Asylum is also being given to another hundred Cubans, who made the daring escape from Communism by scaling the fence at the rate of 10 to 12 a week despite drastic new measures by Castro's militia to try to stop the escapes.

The explosive possibilities of this growing refugee problem are causing deep concern at the highest level of government here — as well as among military officers at Guantanamo Bay.

Top Navy officials are flatly warning that Castro, who is keeping an ominous silence, will soon try to use the refugee issue to cause an international incident by taking the matter to the United Nations.

To back up this warning, these officials cite an intelligence report that Castro is now sounding out the Afro-Asian bloc at the United Nations on whether they would support a Cuban charge that the U.S. is harboring war criminals at the base.

While these officials believe that it will be easy for this country to show up these allegations as completely phony, they want the State Department to start now preparing a strong counter case against Castro and his denial of human rights in Cuba.

Also, they favor a policy of quietly moving to the U.S. from the base any of the Cuban refugees that wish to leave the island. At present, the State Department is opposing the use of Guantanamo as a refugee escape hatch. They are taking the position that such a policy might give Castro a legal argument to void this country's 99-year lease on the base.

TENSE SITUATION — So tense is the situation at Guantanamo that Admiral O'Donnell ordered a general alert this week during the Organization of American States meeting at Punta Del Este, Uruguay, on Cuba.

The alert followed word from the Pentagon that Castro might try to stage an incident at the base during the conference in an effort to discredit the U.S.

Since taking office, President Kennedy has adopted the policy for Guantanamo that President Eisenhower laid down on November 1, 1960.

This policy makes it clear that the U.S. will take "whatever steps may be appropriate" to defend the base. Also, that the U.S. will not agree to abrogation or modification of the treaty assigning it the right to maintain a base at Guantanamo.

The treaty dates from 1903, after the Spanish-American war, in which the U.S. liberated Cuba from Spanish rule.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are urging President Kennedy to make a similar declaration of policy in public so that Castro will have a clear understanding that the U.S. is ready to use force to defend the base.

They take the position that the "inimicable relations" between Cuba and the Sino-Soviet bloc has increased the importance of the base to the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

In one study, the J.C.S. point out that the base would make an ideal submarine center for the Soviets underwater operations along the coasts of North and South America.

MORE ON CUBA — The Soviet Union has turned over two subchasers to Cuba. These speedy craft are believed to be the first of a fleet of ten ships that Soviet Premier Khrushchev has promised to give Castro. The base at Guantanamo is to Castro what Hong Kong is to the Chinese Communists. Cubans working at the base were fanned by the Castro regime to turn over 90 per cent of their $8 million earnings in 1961 in exchange for Cuban pesos. Castro's militia is increasing patrols near the Guantanamo base, setting up machine gun posts every 200 yards. A road is being constructed all along the steel-fence at the base by Castro forces so that they can spot defectors trying to reach the base.

NEW EXECUTIVE'S TASK: BUILD A 'TEAM OF TIGERS' BY FAYE HENLE

Here's the recipe for the new young executive. Ability is the most important ingredient. It counts more heavily than social background.

Education is a must. Over 75 per cent of today's corporate executives attended college and almost 20 per cent had post-graduate training. In a recent screening for executive talent, reports "Challenge," the magazine, of economic affairs published by New York University, the man with a master's degree rated nine to one better than the man with but a bachelor's.

The new management man will be judged by what his followers do. This means to hit the top rung of the executive ladder he will have to be a leader. Because he will be confronted with more "complex technical and commercial problems than ever before, he won't be able to do all the work himself. He must build a 'team of tigers'."

This new executive is not expected, according to Georges Odime, director of the Bureau of Industrial Relations at the University of Michigan and author of the article, to have a "definable executive personality but he will make things happen." What kind of things? His will be the responsibility, as it has always been, to decide how to increase sales, develop new products, cut costs, improve quality.

For the first time in at least the past 20 years, business is not looking to a specialist, but seeking instead a "generalist." Adaptability and flexibility are the needed traits; this man will face problems that go beyond any specialty.

The creative thinker is sought—the man who can analyze situations and classify problems identifying the proper course of action for others.

What will be wanted will be the organizer. The pitch will be on management teams, task forces. The growing numbers of people involved in a company will call for organizational talent, the sort that can delegate responsibility. For the lone executive at the top, it is predicted, the job will be too complex.

Business is looking for profits and growth; the executive who can produce these results be geared toward getting results and accepting responsibility. And, says the article, this man must "operate within a value system," meaning a code of ethics.

From what background does the present corporation president stem? According to a study of 200 leading companies, close to 20 per cent were drawn from the ranks of general management; over 15 per cent had engineering backgrounds; over 10 per cent originated in the financial, legal and sales departments; only about 8 per cent came in through family ties; slightly over 5 per cent were members of the clergy. Ranking lowest were men of science; under 5 per cent, and just about 5 per cent had production backgrounds. An equal number were classified as having "other" backgrounds.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, January 28th, the 28th day of the year with 337 to follow in 1962.

The moon is in its last quarter. There are no morning or evening stars.

On this day in history: In 1871, Paris capitulated to the Prussians in the Franco-Prussian War.

In 1902, a gift of $10 million from Andrew Carnegie established the Carnegie Institution for Research Grants in Washington.

In 1913, Congress passed legislation creating the Coast Guard, thereby combining the Life Saving Service and the Revenue Cutter Service.

In 1955, the U.S. Senate following the lead of the House, passed a resolution permitting President Dwight Eisenhower to use armed forces to defend Formosa and related territories and positions against possible attacks from the Chinese Communists.

A thought for the day: English novelist and poet George Meredith once said: "The well of true wit is truth itself."

Isometric Contractions

Latest For Exercise

By HENRY McLEMORE

I went to see my doctor the other day and the receptionist said I'd find him under his desk. "You mean at his desk, don't you," I said.

She said no — I'd find him under it. That's where he was, too. He was in a crouching position, pushing up against the desk as hard as he could with the top of his head.

"Be with you in a second," the doctor said. "Have about ten seconds more to go."

"A hard way to move furniture," I said. "Get up and I'll help you move the desk anywhere you want it."

It turned out he wasn't moving furniture at all, but was practicing what is known as Isometric Contractions. It's the very latest thing in exercise, and means Aggression Against The Inanimate, or Pitting Muscles Against An Immovable Object Without Moving.

To keep in shape, all toned up, a man no longer needs to do push-ups, tramp miles over the hills, skin the cat, skip rope, or do bends before an open window. That's as passe as bloomers for basketball.

You just find something that won't move and try to move it. The doctor advised me to try to pick up a station wagon by its bumper.

"You can't," he said, "but just standing there trying will make a new man of you. Corrugates will flow, muscles will sing, and you'll glow all over. Much better than running, tennis, golf or Ping pong."

I told the doctor I didn't have a station wagon, so that was out. "That's all right," he said, "just find a strong wall and push against it as hard as you can. Push ferociously. Use the arms, the forehead."

I asked if he were on the level. He said he was.

So I have been doing it. Have had the whole family doing it, too. It must make quite a picture—me, Mary and little Megan, foreheads pressed to the living room wall, shoving away.

Yesterday we all had a try at lifting the car. I gave Mary the front bumper, Megan the back one, and I took a door handle. We lifted and tugged for a good ten minutes, and I must say that when we had finished I felt just as if I had been trying to lift a sedan by a door handle.

Maybe that's the way a fellow should feel — as if he had been trying to hoist a car into the air. I asked Mary how she felt.

"Worn out," she said, asked.

"Let's do it some more, Daddy. It's fun," she said.

Tonight we are all going down to the Empire State building and give it a shove. And after that we'll have a shot with our foreheads at the Paramount Theatre, and then proceed along Broadway "lifting" cars.

My guess is that by tomorrow we'll feel so good we won't be able to get out of bed.

The Nation's Press

AFTER KATANGA

Chicago Daily Tribune

President Tshombe of Katanga has gone to talk to Premier Adoula of the Leopoldville Congo "government" in consequence of a cease-fire which ended the two week campaign of the United Nations army against Tshombe's autonomous regime. The hope is that Mr. Tshombe may be able to overcome his scruples and assent to the supremacy of the Leopoldville authorities, who, it must be said, have very little authority over anyone.

Leopoldville, since the establishment of a supposed central government a year and a half ago, has proved incapable of governing even a flea circus. The original premier, a pro-soviet maniac named Lumumba, was assassinated. A military dictatorship succeeded. Then the government was "reorganized" with Adoula nominally in charge.

The Moscow New Times, which presumably would know the score, reported last Sept. 8 that the followers of Lumumba had 22 posts out of 44 in the new establishment — or an absolute majority. Antoine Gizenga, a Communist trained in Prague, was made vice premier, but has not been seen around Leopoldville of late. He is skulking in his own bailiwick of Orientale province, and the "authority" of the so-called central government does not run there any more than it has to date in Katanga.

The assumption that the United Nations, by putting an army into the Congo and beating Tshombe's previously stable and anti-communist government over the head, could straighten out this mess is nonsense. The bounddaries of provinces established by the Belgians when they were administering the Congo as a colonial territory have no reference to the tribal organization of central Africa. Some tribes spill over provincial boundaries into other provinces, and even into other countries which are not part of the Congo.

There is no national cohesion in the Congo, only tribal loyalties. Even Katanga was split divided, although Tshombe was able to control the area in which Katanga's principal mines are situated. Katanga was the source of at least half of the wealth of the whole country in colonial days. Now it is probably even farther out in front, for almost everything has run down in the rest of the Congo.

Tshombe could compare the wealth, stability, and order of his domain, and also its hospitality to white people, with the rest of the Congo and find no reason why he should open his door to anarchy and pay the bills of the irresponsible politicians everywhere else.

The U.N., obsessed with a notion of a fictitious Congolese "unity," has engaged in armed activities which can achieve nothing and end nothing. U.N. has gone bankrupt in the process.

The only constructive proposal ever advanced for the Congo was that which was submitted by Tshombe at the Tananarive conference last March. The conference, from which Gizenga absented himself, accepted Tshombe's plan for a loose confederation recognizing both geographical states and tribal organizations.

9 TOI Committee Members Receive Awards For Work

DALLAS (Sp) — Nine members of the Texas Oil Information Committee this week were presented OIC's outstanding performance awards for their work in the Texas oil and gas industry's public information and service program.

Awards were presented by J. Clyde Tomlinson, Longview, president, Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn., at the 1962 annual meeting of the Association's Oil Information Committee, Jan. 18 in Dallas.

Recipients were O. H. Crews, Great Western Drilling Co., and V. W. Grodzich, The Western Co., Midland; John J. Brown, Standard Oil Co. of Texas, and W. I. Moody, Texaco Inc., El Paso; E. F. Foreman, Jr., Permian Brine Sales & Service, Inc., Odessa; James K. Kent, The Western Co., Seagraves; Joe L. James, Jr., Gulf Oil Corp., Port Arthur; B. O. Smith, Texaco Inc., Houston; and Mrs. Marjorie Williams, Midwest Oil Corp., Fort Worth.

In presenting the awards, Tomlinson said the recipients were selected for OIC's highest honor "in recognition of distinguished leadership and accomplishments in petroleum's information and service program in Texas."

The nine awardees are among more than 1,400 volunteer OIC committeemen engaged in the Texas oil and gas industry's state-wide public relations.

Amarillo Man Named Chairman For Panhandle

MIDLAND (Sp) — Bill Van Bepber, Mobil Oil Co., Amarillo, has been named Panhandle area chairman, Oil Information Committee of Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn., John Paul Jones, Midland, OIC regional vice-chairman, has announced.

Jones is division production superintendent, Standard Oil Co. of Texas. As OIC area chairman, Van Bepber will head the Texas oil and gas industry's public information and service program in 26 Panhandle counties, Jones said.

Texas Pipeline Employee Retires After 28 Years

Stanton R. Morton, who has completed 28 years of service with The Texas Pipe Line Co., will retire from the Wichita Falls Division at Lefors, effective February 1, it was announced by W. T. Palmer, Division Manager.

Morton is a native of Okmulgee, Okla., and attended Westworth Military Academy. He joined the company at Okmulgee, in 1933 as a welder.

Subsequently, he served as welder foreman, inspector of major construction projects, and welder in Louisiana, California, Missouri and Texas. He has been serving as welder at Lefors since 1960.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton live at 2225 N. Nelson, and plan to reside there after his retirement. Thomas Jefferson and Martin Van Buren were the only two U.S. presidents who had previously been vice president and secretary of state.

Gas Rate Price Pyramiding Is Likely To Stay

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—So-called price-pyramiding of natural gas rates by interstate pipelines is here to stay unless Congress gets going on the matter.

The Supreme Court made this unmistakably clear this week when it refused to take a hand in a legal checkergame between Willmut Gas & Oil Co., Hattiesburg, Miss., which buys gas from United Pipe Line Co., Shreveport, La., and the Federal Power Commission.

The commission, bound by terms of the Natural Gas Act, had overruled Willmut when it complained that United had illegally piled four rate increases on top of another before the commission could act finally on the original.

All the increases—$33,759,200—are being collected under suspension, subject to refund if found unjustified. Willmut argued that superseding rates invalidated previous ones. But the U.S. Court of Appeals here ruled otherwise. It said the commission had no other course under the gas act and inferred it was up to Congress to remedy this.

The Supreme Court, by refusing to review the issue, also upheld the commission and thus tossed the problem to Congress where it is pending.

The measures are backed mostly by state public utility commissions which assert they cannot adequately protect consumers from ever-mounting prices unless price-raising pressures from interstate pipelines are brought under control.

As of Dec. 31, pipelines were collecting $388,199,900 subject to refund at 7 per cent interest. This represented 85 rate-increase applications. At the same time there were 4,221 independent producer rate increases under suspension totaling $187,525,597.

The $388 million figure represents mostly previous producer increases—a fact of economic life the commission must recog-

WORKERS' WAGES RISE
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Labor Department has reported that wage rates of union building trades craftsmen rose above $4 an hour for the first time last year.

the union scale for journeymen construction workers climbed an average of 15 cents an hour to $4.02; bricklayers averaged the top hourly pay of $4.34; and helpers and laborers averaged $3.06 an hour.

Firemen faced peril above and beyond the call of duty in battling a blaze in a 60-year-old mansion.
The firemen dodged bullets from exploding ammunition stored in the building by its owner, Philip Schwab, a gun collector.

When It Snows — Putting On Tire Chains Is A Frustrating Task

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—In my list of the "most frustrating news stories of 1961," I included a press release sent out by the Safe Winter Driving League on the subject of tire chains.
It recommended that teen-age drivers be taught the easiest way to put on tire chains, but failed to say just what that method might be.
I found his frustrating, because I had always put on tire chains the hardest way.
It's true that I am not a teen-age driver in the sense that I am a teenager, but I am a teenager driver in the sense that I drive teen-agers occasionally.
Therefore, I felt that the league's recommendations applied at least partly to me, and that I should set an example for other teenage drivers.
In response to my complaint, the league sent me a sheet of illustrated instructions bearing the caption, "It can be done in six minutes, and without a jack!" To me, this was inspirational.
I had never been able to put on a pair of chains in less than 30 minutes, even with the aid of Jack Cahill, a helpful-type neighbor.
But when I examined the first illustration, I had a feeling of disquiet. It reminded me of some of those old magazine puzzles that ask the reader "What is wrong with this picture?"

One thing obviously wrong with this picture was that the automobile used in the illustration was parked on an open stretch of hard packed snow. In my experience, this is totally unrealistic.
I park my car in front of my house and each snowfall leaves it half buried. It usually takes me the allotted six minutes or more just to find the wheels, much less put on chains.
Furthermore, one of the wheels invariably is snugly nestled against the curb. If the Safe Winter Driving League has never tried to put on chains under those conditions, it hasn't really lived.
The second thing wrong with the picture was that it showed the chains being put on by a woman.
I'm not saying this chore could not be performed by a woman. I'm just saying that I would like to see the Safe Winter Driving League try to get my wife to do it.
I'll guarantee it wouldn't feel very safe about that.
With all due credit to the league for endeavoring to perform a public service, I question whether the method it illustrated is the easiest way to put on tire chains.
All things considered, it's hard to beat the time-tested method of telephoning your service station to send out a tow truck.

British Public Thinks Honeymoon's Over

LONDON (UPI) — Tony Armstrong-Jones (Lord Snowdon) had two honeymoons. One was with Princess Margaret and the other was with the British public. Both are now ended.
You would think it would be blue skies all day long for a man who had a beautiful wife, a good job, excellent social connections and a handsome new son. Instead, it's suddenly stormy weather for Tony and the forecast today is that things are about to get worse.
When he and Margaret return from their vacation in Antigua, they will find a letter from the Ministry of Works telling them work can be started at any time on their new home. This is a 22-room apartment at No. 1A Kensington Place.
The catch is that it is going to cost $196,000 to renovate the crumbling building. Queen Elizabeth will pay $56,000 of it from her private income. The British taxpayer will have to pick up the rest of the tab, and that's where the trouble is going to start. It is inevitable that the question will be asked — what the taxpayer is getting for his money.
The question already has been asked in a slightly different form. The British government pays Princess Margaret $42,000 a year. In return she is supposed to christen ships, appear at trade fairs and occasionally visit the Commonwealth nations. Tony is not paid anything but he is expected to accompany her, three paces in the rear, and smile. Right now that is a tough assignment because two British newspapers — the Express and the Guardian — have raised the question of whether Margaret is earning her money. She has been preoccupied with motherhood.
Tony did what any head of a family would do in such circumstances. He got a job (for maybe as much as $28,000 a year) as artistic director of a new magazine which will become part of the Sunday Times, published by Roy Thomson, Canadian newspaper magnate.
On Sunday, the Observer, rival of the Sunday Times, cried foul: "It will inevitably seem unfair to rival newspapers and magazines that the queen's close relative is used for the enlargement and enrichment of the Thomson empire."

Today, Daily Mirror columnist Cassandra (William Connor) wrote with tongue in cheek that until Tony "persuades his charming wife to become women's feature editor of the Daily Mirror, we shall soldier on alone, but not without a friendly cheer for Tony flying into the dark, dark tangled jungle (of journalism)."
The Daily Mail ran a cartoon parody of the Daily Times ad which says "Top people read the Times." It showed Tony with a crown on his head holding a camera and was captioned: "Top people run the Sunday Times."
Where all this could end nobody knows, but the question is whether Tony's troubles will rub off on the entire royal family. There are occasional signs that this already has happened as per the case of a cleaning woman who remembered that the queen's ancestors were members of the German House of Hanover. When asked to comment on the current activities of the royal household, she replied: "Oh, they're all Germans you know."

Which Stocks are Going Up?

Hardin-Simmons Prexy Resigns; Says He's Tired

ABILENE, Tex. (UPI) — Dr. Evan Allard Reiff, president of Hardin-Simmons University, since 1953, announced yesterday his resignation effective July 1, because "I'm dead tired."
Reiff said he has been working day and night and is "too worn out" to continue as president of the Baptist school.
"I am too tired to give Hardin-Simmons the strong, aggressive leadership it needs," he said.
Reiff said his resignation will become effective earlier than July 1 if the board of trustees can find a successor or make "adequate" arrangements. He said he has no future plans other than "to rest a year or two."
