US Becomes Nation On Wheels And Many Will Die On Holiday

Beaches, Parks And Woods Are Jammed

By United Press International

Americans from the President on down became a nation on wheels today, heading for outings to celebrate the 186th anniversary of their independence.

A United Press International tally at 9:30 a.m. (edt) showed 34 persons dead in traffic accidents since the start of the holiday at 6 p.m. local time Tuesday. The breakdown: Traffic 34, drownings 3, miscellaneous 2, total 39.

Beaches, parks, even the deep woods, were jammed with holiday goers. Approximately 2 million were expected at a fireworks display along the beach at New York's Coney Island. Michigan reported campers lined up at its state parks, awaiting space to pitch their tents.

At Philadelphia, Pa., more than 100,000 persons were expected to jam the 10-block national park area around Independence Hall, where President Kennedy and most of the nation's 50 state governors were to gather to celebrate independence within the sound of the Liberty Bell.

For some, the 30-hour holiday would be grim. The National Safety Council estimated that from 110 to 150 persons would die in traffic accidents.

The highest 30-hour Independence holiday traffic toll on record was 137 persons killed in 1956. That same year 115 drowned.

The holiday death toll jumped off to a fast start. The first reported victim was Mrs. Frances Reames, 42, of Fayetteville, N.C., who died in a three-car accident near Raleigh, N.C., just 15 minutes after the holiday period began at 6 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

Tennessee led the nation with four traffic deaths.

Authorities invoked extraordinary measures in an effort to hold down the traffic toll. In almost every area of the nation strengthened police details patrolled the streets and highways.

Pennsylvania sent 11 cars with oversize speedometers mounted on the roofs to the state's highways to allow motorists to check their speed.

Half a million spectators were expected at a Houston, Tex., parade featuring the seven J. S. astronauts. But the parade of anti-Castro Cubans in New York was called off when police denied a permit on the ground that the demonstration might become "chaotic."

Dely Galvan, 7, was killed Tuesday night in a two-car crash near Odessa—the first recorded traffic fatality during the Texas 1962 Fourth of July holiday period.

The Department of Public Safety predicted that eight persons will die in traffic accidents in the state during the holiday.

Dely was one of four brothers and sisters riding in an automobile. (See AMERICANS, Page 2)

Researchers Test New Treatment

CHICAGO (UPI)—Medical researchers today tested a decompression chamber treatment for tetanus which they say cured two victims of the dread disease and may have applications for other illnesses, including cancer.

The team of doctors at St. James Hospital in suburban Chicago Heights were inoculating guinea pigs with tetanus in an experimental program to determine the effectiveness of the method.

The doctors treated a 72-year-old farmer and a 5-year-old girl, both tetanus victims, by placing them under three atmospheres pressure with oxygen fed through a trachea tube in their neck during two three-hour periods in a hyperbaric tank.

Drug Shortage Is Added To Woes In Saskatchewan

REGINA, Sask. (UPI)—Growing concern over a possible shortage of drugs Wednesday added to the woes of Saskatchewan's one-million residents, unwitting victims of the bitter struggle between the province's doctors and the government over compulsory medical care.

A spot check of drug stores in Regina and Saskatoon revealed many residents were fearful they could not get prescriptions filled. They were advised to go to the nearest hospital where an emergency center was located if they needed drugs or medicine, the check disclosed.

Adding to the fears of the inhabitants of the sprawling wheat province was the threat by many doctors to abandon Saskatchewan and set up practice elsewhere.

The government Tuesday night greeted with silence a defiant letter from Dr. H. D. Dalgleish, president of the council of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, calling on Premier Woodrow Lloyd to scuttle the province's medical care insurance act "while there are still doctors available."

The deaths Tuesday of Mrs. Maria Ferrara, 68, a heart attack victim, and five-month-old Mark Lonechild, an Indian boy who died of pneumonia, brought the death toll to three since the medical care act became law July 1. Dr. A. C. Pickles, medical director of the Regina General Hospital where Mrs. Ferrara and the Indian boy died, said it was "pure speculation" whether the deaths were in any way due to the doctors strike.

The passage of the law immediately sparked a mass walkout by a majority of the province's estimated 900 doctors. Only 240 are providing emergency medical treatment at 34 centers in the province.

Miscarriages Of Military Justice To Be Probed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A team of Senate investigators will tour U. S. military bases in Europe this month to check wide-spread complaints of miscarriages of military justice.

The investigators, representing the Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee, will leave this weekend on a two-week fact-finding mission to Army and Air Force bases in West Germany, France and possibly Great Britain.

Rift Deepens Between The Leaders In Algeria

ALGIERS (UPI)—Algeria's entry into the world community of sovereign nations was clouded today by a deepening rift among its leaders.

Vice Premier Mohammed Ben Bella, one of the original spearheads of the Algerian rebellion, was in Cairo and refused to join other members of the Provisional Government who arrived here Tuesday after the declaration of independence to assume formal direction of the new country.

In his dispute with Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda, Ben Bella had the support of a dissident military "commander" seeking the overthrow of the Algerian regime (GPRA).

Col. Tahar N'Biri, a nationalist guerrilla who controls the eastern Algerian countryside, Tuesday accused Ben Khedda of staging a counter-revolution and appealed for support for Ben Bella.

President Charles de Gaulle issued the declaration in Paris on the basis of the massive approval of independence Algerians gave in the self-determination referendum Sunday.

The French were anxious to get the GPRA firmly installed to ward off any attempted coup by Ben Bella and his followers. Some observers feared Ben Bella might try to set up a military dictatorship.

It was reported from Rocher Noir, Algeria's current administrative headquarters, that the GPRA may soon formally share power with the ruling Provisional Executive, Dr. Chawki Mostefai, a nationalist representative on the executive, has held talks with Ben Khedda.

The executive, made up of Algerian and European members, was appointed in March after the French-Algerian cease-fire to rule the country until a national assembly is elected, probably in about three weeks.

The power struggle between Ben Khedda and Ben Bella centers on the question of future cooperation with France.

Ben Khedda is a pro-Western leader who prefers continued close working arrangements with France as the new country makes its way. Ben Bella wants radical socialist reforms, with Algeria breaking all ties with France and seeking closer alignment with the Communist bloc.

Pampans Taking It Easy

Top O' Texans took to the highways and by-ways today for their own type of Independence Day observance.

Thousands of Pampans were having a holiday from work. Most stores and service places were closed for the day. Business, except for the absolute necessities, was at a standstill.

Every available park had begun to fill by mid-forenoon with family reunion outings and just plain picnickers.

Here in Pampa, of course, thousands were just taking it easy, relaxing in air-conditioned comfort. Others were on the golf course and planning for tonight's Fourth of July barbecue at the Pampa Country Club.

The swimming pools were filled early with many seeking relief from what was scheduled for probably the hottest day of the year—a mercury reading near the 100-mark.

Many who found other forms of relaxation during the daytime hours were getting ready to attend the big July Fourth celebration at Recreation Park tonight. The program starts at 8:45 p.m.

All city and county offices were closed for the day with the exception of the sheriff's department and the city police department which were operating pretty much with skeleton crews.

The Highway Patrol had special officers on duty to regulate an expected heavy traffic increase because of holiday travelers.

At many homes there were backyard cookouts and family get-togethers.

And if you were thinking about holding your own home fireworks display tonight for the kiddies (or anyone else) forget about it.

There is a city ordinance that says it is unlawful to shoot or explode any type of fireworks inside the city limits. And there's a stiff penalty for it if the police catch you.

Authorities said this morning they spent a lot of time yesterday afternoon and last night chasing space for everyone, they stated.

Polio Doubles In Texas

By United Press International
For the first time since Dec. 7, 1960, a person has died of bulbar polio in San Antonio, Mrs. Robert Robinson died of the disease, an autopsy performed Friday, showed.

So far, three persons have died in San Antonio from polio. The majority of the city's cases have come from about a four-block area on the city's southeast side. Seven cases from Laredo and eight cases from Dilley were taken to San Antonio hospitals.

Unprecedented filibuster marked a three-way fight over the civil rights issue, which never was thrust into the formal proceedings of the annual meetings until last year.

A bland statement came from the Resolutions Committee asserting concern for human rights after a Republican governors' caucus had voted to press for a strong resolution.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York introduced a resolution calling for endorsement of equal rights to jobs, housing, employment, public accommodations and education and federal protection of the right to vote. Republican Govs. Mark Hatfield of Oregon and Elmer L. Andersen of Minnesota were co-sponsors.

Gov. John B. Swainson, Michigan Democrat, responded with a liberal Democratic substitute which was even more far-reaching.

Gov. William L. Guy of North Dakota, a resolutions procedure man, said he found too much politics in the resolutions procedure

Parliamentary Wrangling Frequent

As the afternoon wore on, parliamentary wrangling was frequent and an assortment of ideas was offered to break the impasse.

It was almost time for the governors to assemble in their black ties and summer dinner jackets for their state dinner and an address by Japanese Ambassador Koichiro Asakai.

Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania, the host, proposed that the entire civil rights issue be shelved and that each governor sign any of the resolutions he wished. Rockefeller and his most staunch allies disapproved but the conference voted, 32 to 8, to follow this plan.

The Resolutions Committee also had produced a compromise statement on medical care for the aged, with no clear endorsement plan for financing under the Social Security system.

It was announced that the executive committee of the conference had chosen Florida, but no specific city yet, for the 1963 governors' meeting.

IT'LL BE LIKE THIS TONIGHT — This spectacular display of fireworks over Hudson River in New York has little over what Top O' Texans will see tonight during a special July 4th program at Recreation Park. Some 15,000 are expected to watch the show here, both from seats in the grand stand and private autos. It's a free show and everyone in the Top O' Texas is invited. The program starts at 8:45 p.m.

Fireworks Display Is Slated Here Tonight

Some 15,000 persons are expected to watch Pampa's annual Fireworks Celebration in Recreation Park tonight.

It's a free show and everyone in the Top O' Texas area is invited.

Shortly before noon today, officials of the Burnett Fireworks Co. of Enid, Okla., who are staging the display, said everything was set and ready to go.

The pyrotechnical display will follow a 10-minute program which is scheduled to start at 8:45 p.m.

The brief program preceding the fireworks display will consist of presentation of the colors, pledge of allegiance to the flag, invocation by the Rev. Donald Hauk, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, and a brief treatise on the Declaration of Independence by Cameron Marsh, Pampa High School principal.

Kay Fancher will serve as master of ceremonies.

Traffic will be controlled to and from the park on all highways and streets by city, county and State Highway Patrol officers.

Concession stands will be operated by members of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce.

There will be no admission charge to the park. The fireworks show, which will run for 25 minutes, is being sponsored by Pampa merchants and professional people.

The fireworks display is scheduled to start promptly at 8:55 p.m.

Officials advise that Pampans wishing to see the display should start to the park at least 30 minutes before the program starts at 8:45 p.m.

There will be plenty of parking space for everyone, they stated.

The sources said the United States is awaiting an indication from the new Laotian coalition government of the nature of assistance most needed before making an offer.

Laos' independence and neutrality currently is being negotiated here by the 14-nation conference called in May, 1961, to help settle the civil strife in the country. The conference resumed sessions Monday after a five-month lapse.

Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs W. Averell Harriman, who heads the American delegation to the conference, may hear this week from Laotian Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma exactly what sort of American aid the Laotians have in mind.

Souvanna was expected here today from Paris for consultations with Western, Communist and neutral leaders to speed completion of the Laos peace settlement.

The United States, which stopped its $3-million-a-month grant to the Royal Laotian government before the coalition was formed, recently resumed payments as a temporary measure.

But new arrangements are under consideration with the new government, which will be in need of considerable outside assistance to restore the country's life to normal.

The 1962 conference appeared near collapse Tuesday when an unprecedented filibuster marked a three-way fight over the civil rights issue, which never was thrust into the formal proceedings of the annual meetings until last year.

A bland statement came from the Resolutions Committee asserting concern for human rights after a Republican governors' caucus had voted to press for a strong resolution.

Prowler Is Frightened By Screams

An intruder who broke into the bedroom of 16-year-old Phyllis Dalsing, 1113 Huff Rd., was frightened away early this morning and fled through the back door.

According to police reports, entrance was gained by prying off the rear screen door. Awakened by a noise in her room about 4:30 a.m., Miss Dalsing screamed and the man ran.

Earl Dalsing, the girl's father, told police his daughter did not get a description of the prowler.

Mrs. Marian Woodard, 519 N. Starkweather, reported the theft of some $12 worth of clothing from an automatic washer in an E. Francis St. laundromat. She said the theft occurred after she left the laundry to do some shopping while the clothes were being washed.

A shorted out wire under the dash board resulted in a small fire inside a late model car Tuesday evening.

Rittenhouse was not injured in the fire.

4TH OF JULY ★ 1962

Man-made accomplishments are far different on this July 4th than they were 186 years ago on our first Independence Day.

But the day still belongs to America — and Americans. For it was 186 years ago that 13 States United took their places as the world's newest nation with a unanimous Declaration of Independence.

It was based on a simple precept — "Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

Space-age rockets don't change principles — YOU are the government's master in this nation — let's keep it that way!

Kennedy said all this will not be completed in a year. But he said: "Let the world know that this is now our goal."

The President said the Atlantic partnership he has in mind would look not only to its own welfare and advancement but also "outward to cooperation with all nations in meeting their common concerns."

Nucleus, For Union

"It would serve as a nucleus for the eventual union of all free men—those who are now free and those who vow someday to be free," Kennedy explained.

The President said this "European-American union could assist developing nations to throw off the yoke of poverty."

In appearing before the 50 participants in the annual conference of state governors, held for the last two days at Hershey, Pa., Kennedy said the occasion was "both an opportunity and an obligation" for him.

As governmental administrators, he told the governors, he and they "are the executors of the testament handed down by those who gathered here in this historic hall 186 years ago today."

Human Goal

While holding aloft a doctrine of interdependence, Kennedy laid heavy stress on the age-old importance of independence as a human goal.

The President said that "even those unwilling or unable to take sides in a struggle between East and West are strongly on the side of independence."

But interdependence, he said, is the future's theme—as exemplified in Western Europe where nations "long divided by feuds more bitter than any which existed among the 13 colonies, are joining together."

East Berlin and East Germany, the need for our standing guard," he said "And in West Berlin, a prosperous and free city, we can see the result of our protective task."

Clay returned to Berlin Tuesday with a message from Kennedy in fulfillment of a promise to the people of the divided city. The retired general, who will be in Berlin three days, left here early in May but promised to return for visits.

Shortly before Clay arrived, Communist police threw smoke bombs along the border to cover erection of a new wall replacing the barbed wire fence that now surrounds the city separating West Berlin from East Germany. The city wall erected by the Reds last August divides East and West Berlin.

Western officials believed the Communists wanted to plug gaps along the border to block the flight of refugees. The smoke screen was designed to hide the construction project from West Berlin police.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas
A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

July Fourth Document Reflects Basic American Principle

What do we mean when we say that in the United States we have a "government of law" and not a "government of men"? Basically we mean that we have certain individual rights, guaranteed by our federal and state constitutions and laws, which may not be denied by any governing body.

The early American colonists had their fill of government by men, and the Declaration of Independence, signed 186 years ago, set out their complaints against that type of government and revealed their belief in a principle which we now accept as basic to our American way of life.

The indictments set out in the document against King George III of Great Britain charged him with numerous violations of that principle. Among the complaints enumerated are the following:

"He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people."

"He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent for laws for establishing judiciary powers."

"He has made judges dependent upon his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries."

"He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good."

"He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation: . . . For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury; For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses; . . . For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments; . . . For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever."

Our forefathers who subscribed to the principles of the Declaration of Independence were willing to fight for their beliefs. The Revolutionary War followed, dragging through weary years of suffering and suspense. Each of us takes pride in their eventual triumph over gigantic obstacles.

In 1787, when the framers of our Constitution met at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, where the Declaration of Independence had been signed 11 years previously, they set to work to create a system of checks and balances in government which was to perpetuate the fundamental theory mentioned in the preamble of the earlier document:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

"That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; . . .

Some 5 years later, the first ten amendments to our Constitution were adopted at one time, specifically detailing various basic civil rights stemming from the underlying theory of the Declaration of Independence.

Our courts day by day guard these rights for us.

Rule Of Conversation

Choose Pleasant Topic

In his new book, "How to Put Yourself Across," Elmer Wheeler, supersalesman, lists eight rules for conversation.

The last, but for women, perhaps the most important, is "Talk weddings — not funerals."

That is, of course, just Mr. Wheeler's breezy way of saying that given a choice between happy talk and unhappy talk we ought to choose happy talk every time.

Men seem to follow this rule much better than women. It's not that men don't know as much unpleasant news as women. They just don't seem as eager to pass it along.

Men would much rather talk about pleasant than about unpleasant subjects, to pass along the latest joke rather than a tale of woe.

But all too many women think the sadder the news the more impact it will carry. When you run

Daberry-Brummett Say Vows In Kelton Church

WHEELER (Spl) — First Baptist Church of Kelton was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jean Daberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Daberry, and Russell Brummett, son of Mrs. O. L. Brummett and the late O. L. Brummett, of Borger.

Nuptials vows were exchanged in a double ring ceremony with the Rev. Loyd Hamilton pastor of the First Methodist church of Borger.

The altar was decorated with floor candelabra entwined with jade leaves which were joined with garlands of pink satin ribbon. Tall white baskets of white mums and pompons and the prayer bench completed the setting.

Mrs. Jack Young, pianist, played a prelude of wedding music as guests assembled and the traditional wedding marches for the professional and recessional. She accompanied Tommy Ryan as he sang "Black is the Color of My True Lover's Hair," "Entreat Me Not To Leave" and "The Wedding Prayer".

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Bill Perryman of Lubbock, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Julia Teegerstrom and Miss Janie Brummett. They wore identical waltz-length dresses of pink glazed cotton, fashioned with a fitted bodice with round neckline and short sleeves. They wore headpieces of pink tulle and carried a single pink rose.

Larry Brummett served his brother as best man. Groomsman were Mark Blonstein, Gary WHEELER (Spl) — Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips announce the marriage of their daughter, Gail, to Kelly Carl Newman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Newman of Plainview.

The wedding has been planned for August 16 in the Church of Christ in Tahoka.

Both the bride-elect and her fiance are sophomore students in Lubbock Christian College and plan to continue their studies there.

FORD'S BOYS WEAR OLLIE HARE STORE FOR MEN

Dear Abby... Not Always Blessed To Give... Mumps!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A minister and his wife who live in our neighborhood have a brood of children who are happy, outgoing and generous — especially with communicable diseases. Their children are never too ill to stay at home, and instead of welcoming these happy children, many neighborhood and Sunday school parents are beginning to dread their arrival. This couple probably feels that the Lord will watch over their little ones, but don't you think they could serve Him by giving Him a little help?

'POXED IN AND POOPED OUT'

DEAR POXED: A measles, mump or pox doesn't assume a more lovable quality just because it came from a minister's child. Advise the offending Mamma and Papa that it's not always more blessed to give than to receive.

This wonderful "prayer" was sent to me by a friend. Does anyone know the author?

"Slow me down, Lord. Ease the pounding of my heart by quieting my mind. Steady my hurried pace. Give me calmness amidst the confusion of my day. Break the tension of my nerves with soothing music that lives in my memory. Help me to know the magical restoring powers of sleep. Teach me the art of taking minute vacations. . . of slowing down to chat with a friend, to read a good book, to look at a flower.

"Remind me each day of the fable of the hare and the tortoise, that I may know that there is more to life than speed. Let me look upward toward the branches of the towering oak and remember that it grew great and strong because it grew slowly. Slow me down, Lord, slow me down."

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. This girl in my office eats onions for lunch every day and I have to work with her. Her breath could almost knock you down. I mean it. Don't tell me to eat onions, too. I can't stand them.

FLOORED

DEAR FLOORED: Your corner drugstore has a variety of "breath-killers." Either present her with a complimentary package and tell her to try them, or ask her in the name of mercy to eliminate the onions from her luncheon meal.

DEAR ABBY: What makes Americans think that there is no place in the world like their country? Their superiority complex is very irritating.

IMMIGRANT

DEAR IMMIGRANT: Immigration is still the sincerest form of flattery.

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

ASK THE DESIGNER by gaille dugas

Dear Gaille: The way you help other ladies with their fashion problems is wonderful. I hope that you will help me with mine. In July, we plan a trip to Canada by car. I am enclosing samples of things I know have and hope some will be suitable.

My husband and I have no plans to attend any formal luncheons or parties. Will stop at Seattle Fair for a day or so; will also attend some informal dinners and dances. I am 45. I have warm brown hair, blue eyes, am 5 feet 6 inches. Should I take a full-length, lightweight wool coat in oatmeal color? Please mention suit to take.

—M. E. C.

Dear M. E. C.: Excellent advice on a capsule wardrobe for your trip comes from designer Vera Maxwell. She says:

"As a sound investment, I would buy a full length coat in mohair or spongy tweed with matching skirt. This is a basic travel costume. Have it in black or cherry red and have it collarless. Later on, back home, you can wear the coat with a little choker fur piece. If the coat has a collar, ask the store to remove it. Now, with this you can wear your black-and-white suit."

"Invest in some sleeveless overblouses in wool knit and silk or synthetic knit to wear with the coat and skirt. Have a black-and-white print overblouse, too. For evening, have a shoulder strapped sheath (if your arms are good) or a low necked, short sleeved black dress. With these, your black coat or one of those long stoles in double chiffon and a lovely color, perhaps violet. Have a black patent leather handbag for daytime and plain black patent pumps with oval toes and low, stacked heel.

"Remember this: When you travel, you are never with the same people very long. Thus a carefully planned, basic wardrobe gets you through looking and feeling chic."

Dear Gaille: My sister is having a formal afternoon wedding in July. Could you give me some helpful advice on accessories for my mother? She has chosen a lovely beige silk organza sheath for her dress and a small beige pillbox. The hat is covered with little silk petals shaded from beige to chocolate. What color for bag, shoes and gloves? I love your column. Your advice to others is helpful in many ways to all of us.—Mrs. B. B.

Dear Mrs. B. B.: Your mother's choice is excellent. From designer Paul Parnes comes advice as to accessories. He says:

"I suggest that shoes, bag and gloves be all in a shade to pick up the darkest of the petals on the hat. Shoes and bag might be in silk and the gloves in kid."

Please send your fashion problems to Gaille Dugas in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Teen-agers: Please send your personal problems to Kathy Peterson in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for a people to alter their former mode of government, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles, and organizing its Powers in such form, as shall seem to them best to secure these ends. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest continuance of a Government under a King, whose character in our opinion was such as to justify our complaint. When a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce us to absolute Tyranny, it is our duty to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for our future Security. — Now, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress assembled, solemnly publish and declare, that the thirteen united States of America are free, sovereign, and independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connections between them and the said Kingdom are and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as a consequence of the foregoing Declaration, all former confederations with the said Kingdom are declared void, and all former treaties, alliances, and connections, with the said Kingdom, are declared null and void, in law, in equity, and in conscience. We do hereby declare our independence of the Kingdom of Great Britain, and we do hereby declare that we are now, and we hereafter will be, free, sovereign, and independent States, entitled to send and receive Ambassadors and Consuls, to enter into all sorts of treaties, alliances, and confederations, to contract loans, to borrow money, to emit paper money, to make war, to conclude peace, to enter into alliances, to establish a flag, to create a coat of arms, to send and receive Ministers, Plenipotentiaries, and Consuls, to send and receive Commissioners, and to do all other acts and things which independent States may lawfully do. We do hereby declare that we are now, and we hereafter will be, free, sovereign, and independent States, entitled to send and receive Ambassadors and Consuls, to enter into all sorts of treaties, alliances, and confederations, to contract loans, to borrow money, to emit paper money, to make war, to conclude peace, to enter into alliances, to establish a flag, to create a coat of arms, to send and receive Ministers, Plenipotentiaries, and Consuls, to send and receive Commissioners, and to do all other acts and things which independent States may lawfully do.

These Men Signed Our . . .

The Declaration of Independence still stands, after 186 years, as the symbol of man's desire to free himself from the oppressions of tyrannical rule. "We hold these truths to be self-evident," says the document. It speaks of the truths of man's desire to be free, to have rights, to be considered equal among his fellow men.

Yet, at the time it was written, many persons considered it to be radical, dangerous and completely idealistic. "It is the work of fools," said these doubters. Today, it and the Constitution are the foundations of the mightiest democracy in the world.

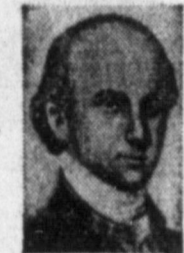

It took brave men who had full confidence in their convictions to sign it. Surrounding a copy of the Declaration of Independence are pictured those strong, courageous and far-seeing men who signed it.

Fourteen Proposed Amendments Will Be Voted On In November

AUSTIN (UPI)—A proposed constitutional amendment providing workman's compensation to all employees of all political subdivisions in Texas drew first place today on the November general election ballot.

A drawing held by Secretary of State Frank Lake determined the positions of 14 proposed amendments, including a $5 million increase in the ceiling on annual aid to needy children.

The amendments will appear in the following order on the November ballot:

—Workman's compensation to be provided for all employees of all political subdivisions.

—Raising the limit on use of state funds to assist needy aged, needy blind and needy children from $47 million to $52 million.

—Creation of hospital districts in Ochiltree, Castro, Hansford and Hopkins counties.

—Providing for a state program of acquiring conservation storage facilities in reservoirs.

—Creating hospital districts and prescribing limitations upon the powers of such districts.

—Retirement Proposed—Authorizing retirement, disability and death benefits for elected and appointive officers and employees of counties and political subdivisions who have served in such capacity for 12 years or more.

—Insuring continuity of state and local governmental operations in periods of emergency resulting from disasters caused by enemy attack by providing for the prompt and temporary succession to the powers and duties of public office, except members of the legislature.

—Establishing a ceiling of $2.5 million per year on the amount that may be paid out of state funds for assistance payments to the totally and permanently disabled.

—Authorizing the construction, equipping, maintenance and financing of a home for the aged in Tulus County and for permitting the legislature to authorize the creation of two hospital districts in Brazoria County.

—Advisory Service—Permitting the state employees to serve as consultants or on advisory committees or as members of a public school board provided they are not members of the teaching profession, with a state agency, or any political subdivision thereof.

—Authorizing the resale of lands of the veterans land fund remaining unsold after having been first offered for sale to veterans.

—Delegating limited zoning powers to any county bordering on the Gulf of Mexico or tidewater limits thereof.

—Providing that taxes or bonds previously voted in any independent school district, the major portion of which is in Dallas County, shall not be abrogated, canceled or invalidated by any change in boundaries and authorizing the continuance of the levy of taxes after such change without further election.

—Providing for trials de novo on all appeals from actions, rulings or decisions of administrative or executive agencies of government.

—Fewer companies are able to increase profits by sales of established products in established markets.

—More companies are operating in industries which have substantial unused capacity—that could produce more than they are producing, even when business activity is high.

—For many industries, foreign competition has increased.

—Prices remain relatively stable even when business is turning up sharply.

First U.S. hydroelectric plant was built in Wisconsin, on the rapids of the Fox River, in Appleton, in 1852.

BECAUSE HEALTH IS IMPORTANT

Wise laws regulate the practice of pharmacy. We are regularly and unexpectedly inspected by officials from the Board of Pharmacy. The Narcotic Bureau and sometimes the Board of Health and Fire Department.

MEDICINES MUST BE PROTECTED.

If a medicine requiring refrigeration is not kept in a refrigerator, we are subject to a penalty. Many drugs must be dated, for they lose potency and cannot, after a time, be dispensed. Others must be stored away from exposure to light. This applies also to certain patent medicines.

PHARMACISTS ARE EXPERTS.

A pharmacist's license is obtained after many years study in a College of Pharmacy, the serving of an apprenticeship to gain practical experience and passing a state examination to prove the knowledge needed to protect the public from harm.

DO NOT GAMBLE WITH HEALTH

There are many stores, door-to-door peddlars, mailorder firms and even supermarkets trying to induce you to buy medicines from them.

DEPEND ON YOUR PHARMACY.

We have the knowledge to protect you. Any vitamin or medicine we supply measures up to our prescription quality standards. Our prices are always honest value.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U. S. Information Agency is grinding into pulp 10,000 copies of a pamphlet on U. S. space achievements.

The trouble is that after some of the copies had been distributed to embassies abroad, it was discovered that they contained descriptions and pictures of two satellites about which the Pentagon does not talk.

These were prototype versions of the Midas, designed to detect missile launchings by infrared sensors, and Samos, an observation satellite to examine "the nature of the globe."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's announcement that the Republican party is the businessman's party needs both further definition and practical application. Especially, it needs practical application.

What the Republican party needs more than a promise to be anybody's party is a commitment to a set of courageous political principles that clearly distinguish it from the Democratic party.

The Republican party also needs a blood transfusion to fire it up to the degree required to enable a Republican-national convention to function with the courage of the party's conservative convictions.

In addition to political principles that clearly distinguish the Republican party from the Democratic party, the GOP needs presidential nominees who are clearly distinguishable from Democratic presidential nominees. Above all, when a first class, all-out Republican statesman is available for the party's presidential nomination, the GOP needs enough self-confidence to name that man.

Ike Over Taft
That self-confidence was lacking, for example, in 1952 when the Republicans nominated General Eisenhower in preference to the late Sen. Robert A. Taft. As it turned out, God was good to the party and to the United States when Ike was chosen.

Had Taft been named there probably would have been some kind of compromise deal that would have put on the ticket with him the wooliest minded political maverick of stature in the Republican party. Taft soon died and had he been president, that woolly mind would have succeeded him in office.

Ike's claim that the Republican party was the businessman's party caught a lot of headlines. It would have been more newsworthy if Ike had said that the Republican party was a conservative party and hereafter would bid for the Republican vote, ignoring all others. That was Taft's political creed. He told me long ago that he did not give a hoot for independents, liberals, political drifters and such.

Taft said the Republicans were being licked time after time in presidential and congressional elections because the Republican vote was not cast. The Republicans did not go to the polls, he believed, because neither the GOP issues nor GOP candidates stirred real enthusiasm.

Proof of Theory
That was Taft's analysis and he made it look good in the 1950 senatorial election in which he carried all but four Ohio counties. This was against a second-rate Democratic opponent, but one who had a spectacular record as a vote getter.

General Eisenhower was drafted for the 1952 Republican nomination by a combination of Eastern Republican leaders who generally are responsible for moving the GOP steadily left toward the position most recently occupied by the Democratic party. With these so-called me-too Republicans in command, the Republican party since 1940 has lost 13 of 17 national elections.

Ike's election victories were personal triumphs, despite party. To get another Ike, the GOP would need to wait out another war.

Motor vehicle accidents during 1960 caused 38,200 deaths of the 83,000 accidental deaths from all causes that year.

Bob Hope Suggests 'Comedy Corps' Could Do Better Than 'Peace Corps'

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
HOLLYWOOD Correspondent
UPHOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Bob Hope thinks our country's prestige abroad could be helped with a rollicking "Comedy Corps" tickling the world's ribs.

"I think there should be a Comedy Corps instead of a Peace Corps," joked Bob. "Why not a Comedy Corps? It's working well in Washington."

"There's no doubt that America has cornered the market on humor. Almost anything we do gets laughs. Even the stock market has been acting funny."

As chief comedy corpsman old ski nose has a few candidates he'd dispatch overseas.

"In our Comedy Corps we'd assign comics on the basis of the country's needs," he explained, tongue in cheek. "I don't think we've got anybody funny enough for Russia."

Skelton For Russia
"We've got Red Skelton and they've got Red Khrushchev. And it's pretty tough to top a guy that works with his shoe."

"Sid Caesar would do great in Italy. All the Caesars did well over there."

"And there's no question about where to send George Gobel. He's the only one we've got who will fit into Monaco. Jack Benny has already volunteered. Soon he will find the gold has been leaving the country, he wanted to go too."

Bob has an idea where to send his pal Bing Crosby, suggesting the crooner visit "those under developed nations that don't know how to produce. He may not get laughs but he'd stimulate medical research."

Pondering his own Comedy Corps assignment, Bob said he'd stay away from France, asking, "imagine trying to get a laugh out of Gen. De Gaulle."

New York For Hope
"I think I'll save New York for myself. I've seen the Peppermint Lounge. There's a lot of work to be done among the natives there."

The Comedy Corps' horizons are unlimited, says Bob. A gang of globe girdling clowns might even help keep the peace.

"Think of the wars it would

Safety Rules Are Stressed In Boats

By KENNETH CARR
 United Press International

Safety rules are just so much pipe to many Texas boaters. But as being National Safe Boating Week, it might be profitable to mention a few common sense items for those who care.

Following boating safety rules is just important in a small central Texas lake as it is in the treacherous Gulf of Mexico.

There'll be more Texans out in boats this week than any other of the year. While out there, you might as well take precautions. Here are a few tips applicable to the Texas boating scene which, if followed, would prevent 90 percent of accidents involving small boats:

1. Be alert to the constant danger of gasoline and oil as fire hazards. Wipe up spilled gas and avoid smoking in hazardous areas or when fueling a boat.
2. Use discretion in boating during bad weather. Stay near shore when forecasts predict high winds or rain. If caught in the water in a sudden storm, keep the bow headed into the wind, unless you can reach shore safely.
3. Avoid sudden movement in small craft.
4. Keep an alert lookout forward and aft when towing a skier or other boat. Know your boating traffic picture at all times and obey the rules of the waterways.
5. Remain with your boat if it capsizes. Keep emergency gear such as fire extinguishers, life jackets, tow lines and first-aid kit handy and teach members of the family how to use each item.
6. Reduce speed and use horn discreetly when approaching bathers, fishermen, other boats and when navigating in shallow or narrow channels.
7. Master the water by learning to swim. Life jackets are valuable for survival, but do not depend upon them as a substitute for swimming ability.
8. Know your boat and its capacity to handle passengers. Never overload it.
9. Keep craft seaworthy. Know what equipment is required by law.
10. Use special caution when operating a boat for sports activities. Never fish while standing in a small craft. Always carry a spotter when towing water skiers. Swim near your boat if you decide to take a dip in a busy waterway.

Wimbledon In All-Australian Singles Matches

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Rod Laver, shooting for a unique tennis grand slam, met Neale Fraser and Marty Mulligan met Dr. John Fraser Wednesday in all-Australian men's singles semifinals matches of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

Laver, who hopes to become the first player since Don Budge in 1938 to win the Australian, French, English and American titles in the same year, was favored to beat Neale Fraser, a former champion here, who ousted American collegiate champion Raphael Osuna of Mexico in the quarterfinals.

The other semi-final match between Dr. John Fraser, Neale's "kid" brother, and young Mulligan, is rated a toss-up.

Laver, the No. 1 seed here and the defending champion, reached the semifinals via victories over Tony Pickard of England, Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., Pierre Darmon of France and Manuel Sainana of Spain. Reed and Santana were considered his toughest opponents through the draw, and barring an upset, he is a cut-and-dried favorite to go all the way and add the English title to his Australian and French victories.

The women's singles semi-finals are scheduled for Thursday with Vera Sukova, the unseeded Czechoslovakian housewife who scored a stunning upset over Darlene Hard of Long Beach, Calif., Tuesday, meeting former champion Maria Bueno of Brazil and Karen Hantze Susman of San Antonio, Tex., playing Ann Haydon of Britain.

Mrs. Sukova's victory over Miss Hard, American champion seeded No. 2 here, was as startling as last Tuesday's elimination of top-seeded Margaret Smith of Australia by the unheralded Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif. Mrs. Sukova took advantage of Darlene's nervousness and perhaps her worst performance in an international meet to win in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

Gill Catches Large Bass

Lynn Gill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gill, 1018 Huff Road, caught two large bass in Martin's lake, located northwest of Guthrie, Okla., Saturday morning.

Gill, who is seven, is temporarily living in Guthrie with his family while his dad is working for Brooks Electric company.

FOR MEN ONLY

By Mark Heath

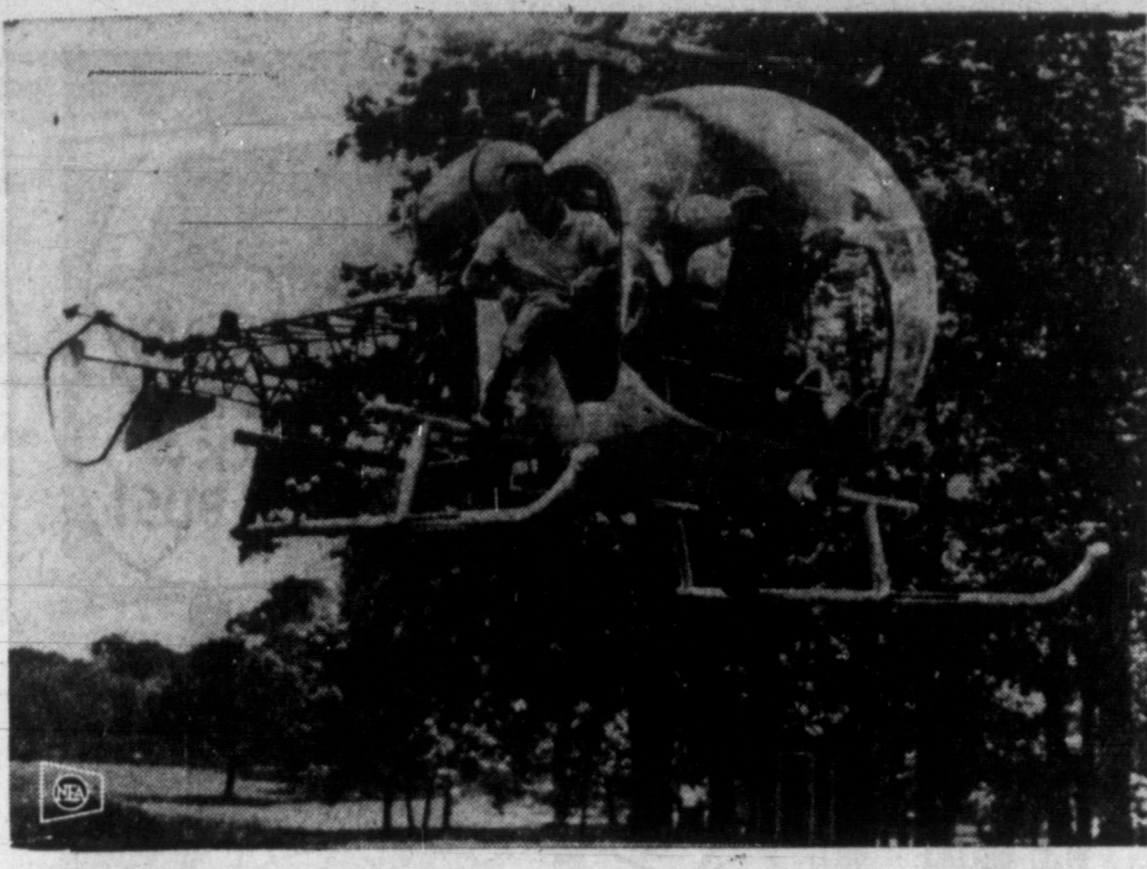

Although it may be a lot more convenient for you to throw your coat over the back of a chair, or lay your pants over the seat of the chair, it will pay you in the long run to hang them up properly. Clothes that are hung up properly give you much more wear.

Get rid of all those wire hangers; use only a shaped wooden or plastic hanger for your coats. Your trousers should be hung by the bottoms so the weight of the pants will help to hang out the wrinkles.

When sitting at a desk or driving, remember to unbutton your coat; this not only gives you more freedom of movement, but helps eliminate wrinkles from the front of your coat. The side pockets on your coat were designed for small articles such as cigarette lighters or matches; not your whole office. Many men use the pockets for just such a purpose and then they wonder why their coat pockets look so baggy and won't go back into shape when they empty them.

The whole idea is to give your clothes a little consideration and in turn they will give you better looks, plus longer wear. When it comes to replacing that old worn-out suit—or just buying a new suit, be sure to come in and see our large selection here at Heath's.

Regatta To Start Today

HENLEY, England (UPI)—Members of the Detroit Boat Club were hoping to avoid a swim in the River Thames Wednesday when they faced Kingston of England in the Thames Cup competition that opened the historic Henley Royal Regatta.

Twenty-five ribs were discovered in the Detroiters' shell after its 3,500 mile flight here and crewmen repaired it themselves with sticky tape and glue.

Ken Blue, the club's coach, reported that the shell "held together okay in practice" but he admitted he would keep his fingers crossed during Wednesday's opening heat for lightweight eights.

Fifty Detroit club members flew from the states to root for their boys, the only private American club in this year's regatta. The rest represent U.S. colleges and schools.

Mantle, Maris Lead NY Yankees Over Athletics

By MILTON RICHMAN
 UPI Sports Writer

That long dormant "M and M" combination seems to be stirring again and as Mickey Mantle says: "It's about time."

Mantle and Roger Maris both picked the same day to snap out of their doldrums when each slugged a pair of homers Tuesday in an 8-7 victory over the Kansas City A's that brought the New York Yankees to the Fourth of July milestone with a half-game lead over the rest of the American League pack.

Between them, Mantle and Maris drove in a total of seven runs, Bobby Richardson accounting for the other run with a seventh inning homer.

Maris' second homer of the game and his 18th of the year came with two on in the eighth and tied the score at 7-7. Mantle then followed with his second, and 13th of the season, for the winning run off loser Gordon Jones.

"I guess I was about due," said Mickey, who collected three of the Yankees' 12 hits. "I haven't had a good day in a long time."

Maris, who also had three hits, wasn't so sure that this might mean the end of a slump which has shrunk his batting average to .246.

"Naturally, it makes me feel good to contribute something," he said. "But you can believe it or not, the thing that counts most with me is winning."

The Yankees did it the hard way after the A's built a 7-4 lead with the help of homers by Manny Jimenez, Jerry Lumpe and Gino Cimoli. The total of eight homers by both clubs didn't make it much of a day for pitchers, although reliever Bud Dales hurled hitless ball for two innings to gain his third victory.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Minnesota Twins edged the Boston Red Sox, 4-3; Chicago, the Angeles-Washington contest and the Cleveland Indians and Baltimore Orioles were idle.

The San Francisco Giants climbed to within a half-game of the National League lead with a 10-1 romp over the New York Mets; the Cincinnati Reds beat the Chicago Cubs, 6-1; The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Houston Colts, 5-2, and the St. Louis Cardinals nipped Milwaukee, 6-5, in the opener of a doubleheader, then settled for a 5-5 tie in the suspended nightcap. The Los Angeles Dodgers and Philadelphia Phillies were idle.

Minnesota dealt Boston sophomore Don Schwall his 10th loss when Harmon Killebrew tripled in the seventh to drive in what proved to be the winning run. Jack Kralick racked up his sixth victory with help from Ray Moore in the ninth.

Bill Bruton scored the winning run in the 11th for the Tigers on a fielder's choice when the White Sox failed to complete a double play. Reliever Ron Nischwitz pitched hitless ball over the final four innings to win his third game without a loss. Mike Joyce, 21-year old bonus rookie from the University of Michigan, suffered the loss. Bubba Morton homered for the Tigers while Floyd Robinson, Charley Maxwell and Bob Roselli connected for the White Sox.

Supported by a 15-hit attack that included a homer by Felipe Alou, Jack Sanford coasted to his eighth victory for the Giants with a nine-hit effort against the Mets. Harvey Kuenn, Jim Davenport and Alou each had three hits for the Giants, who kayoed loser Al Jackson in the fifth inning.

Jim O'Toole of the Reds won his seventh game by pitching a five-hitter against the Cubs and striking out 10. Jerry Lynch tagged loser Bob Buhl for a two-run homer in the fifth.

Smoky Burgess' fourth hit of the game, a three-run triple in the eighth, snapped a 2-2 tie between the Pirates and Colts. Harvey Haddix recorded his seventh victory in 10 decisions although he was judged for homers by Aim Pendleton and Bob Aspromonte. Ken Johnson (4-10) was the losing pitcher.

The Cards won their opener with the Braves by rallying for five runs in the sixth inning. Bill White and Ken Boyer hit homers during the outburst against loser Bob Shaw (9-5) and winner Ray Washburn (6-4) doubled home two more runs.

The second game was suspended after eight innings because of the 12:50 a.m. curfew after the Cards rallied again with five runs in the seventh to tie the score. Until the seventh, Tony Cloninger and Hank Fischer had pitched hitless ball.

Sleek Yacht Match Race Wednesday

NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI)—Un-defeated Nefertiti, a neophyte among 12-meter ocean racers, and the veteran Weatherly left off Wednesday in the third of a series of America's Cup observation trials off Newport.

The match race of the two sleek yachts, both unbeaten thus far in the trial series, should prove to be as hot as a Fourth of July firecracker.

Nefertiti took the measure of Easterner Tuesday by 2 minutes, 37 seconds, while Weatherly was whipping Columbia, the 1958 cup defender, by 2 minutes, 44 seconds.

During Monday's run on Rhode Island Sound, Nefertiti edged Columbia and Weatherly scored a top-sided victory over Easterner. Nefertiti, with designer Ted Hood, of Marblehead, Mass., sailing at the helm has shown she can move exceptionally well on spinnaker runs.

But Weatherly, skippered by famed Emil (Bus) Mosbacher, has shown a marked improvement in performance over previous years.

The observation trials, watched by the New York Yacht Club's cup selection committee, are held to provide competitive experience for the 12-man crews and their skippers and do not necessarily influence the committee's judgment.

Time To Grow Down

It's a travesty on air progress in America that while plane travel between our major cities and world capitals has attained incredible opulence and time-saving with the advent of the 100 passenger, 600 mph jets, it has actually lost ground where it is most needed - in scheduled service to the smaller cities of the nation, such as Pampa.

In an address before the Annual Aviation Conference of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Tom Harris, vice president and general manager of Aero Commander, Inc., of Bethany, Okla., pointed out that no more than 600 US cities are now receiving scheduled air service of any kind - while over 6,000 communities have airports adequate for the needed integration with the nation's airlines on a regular scheduled basis.

To correct this incongruous situation and provide convenient, efficient, economical air transport to the neglected half of our population, Mr. Harris revealed, his firm has formally petitioned Civil Aeronautics Board for an investigation into the necessity, desirability and feasibility of a "third level" air service equipped with modern, light, twin-engine aircraft for small communities.

This third level would augment the "first level" of major trunk airlines and the "second level" of regional airlines. By employing light planes, carrying six to seven passengers instead of the more costly 20 to 24 place transport type, third-level operations would permit multiple daily flights out of many communities that cannot now support one.

Mr. Harris cited as pilot examples, the Trans Air Lines of New Orleans, which, with a fleet of five Aero Commanders, is providing scheduled service to a group of hard-to-reach towns surrounding the Louisiana metropolis; and the current experiment of the New England Council in operating scheduled service between Boston and Concord, Berlin and Whitefield, N.H., and Fryeburg, Me. A number of other applicants in other areas, said Mr. Harris, have recently asked CAB for certification of scheduled air service to such smaller communities. "Universally," he said, "these applications propose to use one of several available types of modern, light, twin aircraft such as the Aero Commander."

Perhaps it's time to start thinking harder of Pampa as a flying community, and insist harder that we are entitled to our place in the scheduled air service picture, which, it appears, is about to expand.

Pampa, with many other cities of the Southwest, now has its case before the CAB in Washington after recommendations already have gone against us.

Perhaps this new "third level" plan of air travel may be the answer to Pampa's problem in getting some service to Dallas and Fort Worth, to Lubbock, Odessa, Midland and other cities in the Southwest where many Pampans would like to go without having to travel 60 miles back and forth to an airport.

So This Is Tax Equality

A year ago President Kennedy promised the country he would put before Congress a major tax reform bill - aimed at equal treatment of equally situated persons.

Nothing wrong with that. He would ask Congress for tax cuts for all. Certainly nothing wrong with that either. Not on the surface anyway.

But from the evidence at hand the new tax bill that's been brewing for over a year now will prove to be more like a 50 - megaton bomb than a soothing syrup in its effect on the US taxpayer. It will, on the face of it, provide tax cuts alright. But it will then reach back into every taxpayer's hind pocket - big and small - to pay for them. And it also appears that somebody forgot to pass along whatever formula the President had for "equal treatment of equally-situated persons."

This evidence is provided by the stated policies and objectives of the principal architects of the on - coming bill. They are Stanley S. Surrey, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for Tax Policies; Walter W. Heller, Chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors; and Mortimer K. Caplin, Commissioner of Internal Revenue. All are long-time advocates of drastic tax reform - and if they favor tax equality, their devotion is strictly rhetorical.

Here's an example of how they would achieve "equal treatment of equally situated persons" and of what tax payers may look for in the new bill when it is presented to Congress in August:

They would end tax credits on dividends because they consider this a loophole for the wealthy. They would remove exemptions for the aged and the blind because such exemptions "erode the tax base". They would wipe out the benefits of joint returns because this constitutes "favored" treatment. They would eliminate deductions of state and local taxes as being another loophole for the "wealthy" and if you own and occupy your home they would tax you a portion of its rental value which they consider "investment income".

Such is tax equality on the New Frontier.

Pull Up A Chair

Medical research shows that only 10 per cent of children of average-weight parents become fat; that if one parent is fat, 50 per cent of the children are likely to become fat. And if both parents are obese, 80 per cent of their offspring will also be on the heavy side. Thus the example of the family table is important. . . . At one of Pennsylvania's great department stores, any item may be brought back to the clerk who sold it - or to any other clerk in the store - and that person is empowered to make an instant refund without going to higher authority. In effect, each sales person is an executive in the field of adjustment.

Today's favorite gag: JONES - "What were you and Mrs. Brown discussing?" MRS. JONES - "Oh, just business, dear." JONES - "I know that - but whose business?"

Flashback: In mid-1940, when President Roosevelt was approaching the end of his second term and had not announced his intention of running for a precedent-breaking third term, a Fortune magazine poll asked what Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt should do if FDR left the White House at the second term's end. And 39.1 per cent of the men queried favored her continuing her activities such as writing and lecturing, while 30.3 per cent of men ungalantly felt she should retire from the public eye. Of the women queried, 49.3 per cent felt she should keep up her activities, and only 17.7 thought she should retire from the public scene.

President Kennedy may be interested to know the greatest milk drinkers in the world are the Swiss, who consume an annual average of 252 quarts per person.

Thoughts while shaving: 1. Never thought of it before, but some great thinker comes along with the assertion that there is no such thing as the opposite of a joke or a jest. And after a little time out for thought, darned if we can contradict him. . . . 2. In some sections of our country, we wonder if there are the equivalent of hillbillies who live in the valleys. And if so, what do they call 'em? . . . 3. Half a dozen years ago when the improvement was announced, it was greeted as being a safety factor as important as the safety seat belt - but what ever became of it? We're referring to a radar brake for automobiles. Hidden behind the grill, the contrivance bounced signals off the vehicle immediately ahead, and automatically applied the brakes when the car came too close for safety. . . . 4. Every year or so we like to repeat this observation, which is as valid today as when it was first uttered: Did you ever notice that in the so-called "people's democracies" or "people's-republics," everything is the people's - except everything?

Shun Cancer Treatments Failing Objective Tests

In the first of these columns, dealing with unproved methods of cancer treatment, reference was made to Krebiozen and the measures suggested by the late Dr. Gerson and by Dr. Jacob Pawlitzky whose articles first appeared in Russian literature.

Here are other UNPROVED methods concerning which the American Cancer Society has found no evidence that their use results in any objective benefit in the treatment of cancer in human beings.

Revisi Cancer Control or lipid therapy, described as "biological guided chemotherapy," consisting of nine products for the treatment of "acid symptoms" and eight others for the treatment of "alkaline symptoms." Repeated attempts to evaluate the claims of Dr. Revisi have been made by the Universities of Wisconsin and Chicago and by the National Cancer Institute and the Committee on Cancer Diagnosis and Therapy of the National Research Council.

"In every case, it has been impossible to reach agreement with representatives of the (Revisi) Institute on procedures which would assure an objective scientific evaluation."

Glover serum, presumably prepared by injecting animals with a living organism obtained from the blood of cancer patients. A committee of the Toronto Academy of Medicine reported that it could find "no evidence to warrant the hope that a specific cure had been discovered" after examining 12 patients treated and selected by Dr. Glover. And Dr. Francis Carter Wood, after injecting purchased serum into white rats with experimentally produced malignancies, noted "no beneficial effect."

Antineol, presumably prepared from the posterior pituitary gland, is the "discovery" of Dr. H. K. Wachtel. An attempt by the National Research Council to set up a clinical study of Antineol failed "when Dr. Wachtel said it would be impossible to supply the agent for such studies."

Anticancerogen Z-50 has been proposed as a treatment for cancer by G. S. Zuccala who holds a doctor's degree in science. Prepared from "pooled cancer tissues" or the patient's blood or urine, the preparation is given by intramuscular injection. At Mr. Zuccala's request, Anticancerogen Z-50 was investigated by the National Research Council which found the product "without the reputed activity in human cancer."

Mind you. All these are unproved claims, listed so you can steer clear of them.

Edson In Washington

Plenty Of Fuel In The Economic Machine

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Strange behavior of the stock market again has raised questions of how good a barometer of general business conditions it really is.

One of the most amazing manifestations of the recent market break was that no one seemed to know why prices dropped so precipitously, but lots of experts were citing reasons why the market should not be misbehaving.

Thus Ladd Plumley, new president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, when asked at the National Press Club, "Should I sell my A.T.&T.?" could only reply, "I wish somebody else would answer that question so I could follow him to the brokers." It was no disgrace he didn't know.

Plumley made the speech that many have made before him to the tune of, "Business must have confidence" and, "What we need is to re - create an atmosphere of stability and growth." Nobody ever argues against those principles.

The day before the Plumley speech was made Dr. Walter W. Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, cited statistics on stability and growth of the economy since the end of the first quarter of 1961.

Gross national product is up $48 billion or 8 per cent. Labor income is up $29 billion or 10 per cent. Corporate profits are up $12.8 billion or 32 per cent. Industrial production is up 15 per cent. Payroll employment is up 1.6 million jobs. Unemployment is down 1 million or 20 per cent. This is not considered a declining economy.

But the key figures which contribute most to the image of stability are found in consumer expenditures. Dr. Heller says they have risen $21 billion in the last four quarters - $10 billion for services, $8 billion for nondurable goods, $5 billion for durables, mostly autos.

Consumer debt has risen only $1.5 billion and savings have risen over $20 billion. This is a lot of potential spending power, once it is turned loose.

Federal Reserve Board's new quarterly survey of consumer buying intentions gives some hints where some of this money may go. More consumers are reporting plans to buy automobiles, household durable goods and houses in the next three to six months than in any recent January to April quarter. In the past, consumer buying intentions have usually declined in this first quarter of the year.

National Consumer Finance Assn., a private research group, also reports that the 17 million senior citizens aren't behaving like grandpa and grandma used to. Their income has been built up by better private industry retirement plans and social security, plus generally higher pay during working years, resulting in higher retirement income.

These people spend for travel, hobbies and modern gadgets and appliances intended for younger families, resisting products developed for people over 65. The invasion of these people on the market place is assuming increasing economic importance.

Robert H. Myers, professor of marketing at Miami, Ohio, University, has just written a marketers' aid letter for Small Business Administration here, urging merchants to pitch their sales appeal at modern buying habits.

Pegler Says:

Chinese Famine Refugees Might Cause Problems

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Unless there has been important improvement in the quality of the poor backwoods people, of China since 1876, any important number of refugees from the current famine probably would cause a terrible situation in any American area. I write from the record of a Legislative investigation by the California Senate held at Sacramento in 1876 which sent an "address" to Congress proposing to stop immigration of Chinese laborers and prostitutes. The Legislative Committee also composed a tentative "address" to the august Emperor advising him that "morality seems to be a virtue entirely unknown" to Chinese immigrants.

Although the Chinese were predominantly laborers and by almost unanimous opinion liars and thieves, one witness said nevertheless that in China farming had been ennobled by the Government and that farm workers were "regarded with great consideration in the social ethics." This witness was F. F. Low, an American white man who had lived in Peking about three years.

"In the gradation of Chinese society, officials hold the highest rank," he said. "Next come agricultural laborers; then the manufacturers who increase values by working raw materials into useful articles, then the trader. Let him trade in anything - peanuts or dry goods at wholesale. They exchange commodities, producing nothing. A lawyer is pretty near as bad as an actor or a barber, who are without the pale of social life. Lawyers are a stage above actors and barbers. They are men who hang about the courts - men who draw papers. We get the bulk of our immigrants from the laboring class. Customary wages for them in China are about ten cents a day. Most of the lower classes can read and write. It is all private education. Neighborhood schools are supported by voluntary contributions."

There were then about 100,000 Chinese in California. The Central Pacific and Union Pacific had imported "thousands and thousands" for construction and Chinamen were found way over in Texas. Some drifted down to Chile. A few turned up in Mexico. In the outback they were not as bad a problem as in San Francisco and Sacramento, where the fumes of opium were familiar in the open air of the slums, although back home the Emperor had tried to stamp out the drug traffic to maintain the physical strength of the toilers. However, in theory at least, the opium smoker lost productive power and this was a potential economic boon because there were at least 300 million people and only a cup of rice a day for most of them.

In California, back in the country, the Chinese laborer raised little patches of beans and peas and ate them, pods and all. Most of our Chinese were Canton water rats with a high resistance to sanitation. This made trouble with the American white people, who were not aristocrats, either.

B. A. Lloyd, of San Francisco, gave them a going-over in a fat volume published in '76 called "Lights and Shades in San Francisco." Those white people were the Okies of their time, shiftless irresponsible and not too who some, who neglected their kidd who became criminal delinquent and gave us the word "hoodlum". Chinaboy hogged the men jobs, cooking, laundering, a fetching, and undercut the white in the few factories where ciga and other little things were made. The white working girls and a gle white men would not stick farms and ranches because they were restless, lonesome and lazy.

So many a girl went wrong the cities, but it seems inevitable that by evolution and survival they were the great grandmas of some of the leading citizens California today.

The Chinamen were simply beyond the reach of American law. A cop testified that a Chinese fellow who married a prostitute was tracked down and arrested on warrant on some fake charge. Left alone, the bride was kidnapped back into a dive in San Francisco. These females cost $400 $500 delivered in San Francisco. They were supposed to be out, but they all got sick and died in the gutters. Meanwhile they infected white boys as young as or 12. The venereal incidence was awful.

The railroads had paid $300 month and rice to the laborer but the Chinamen kept coming and beat down their own price $26. They all belonged to the several tongs, which were primitive models for the AFL - CIO with dues, trials, fines and death penalties. The police couldn't much with them, for they included a lot of grafters on the shak among the brothels, hop - joint and gambling houses. Fan tan was the big game and lotteries were grinding all the time.

It might be simpler to send thousand shiploads of surplus American flour and so forth - some Chinese beach and let the wallow the pots and pans. If our feelings are altruistic and hungry is their problem, that would solve that and we could save money on the dead storage which we have been paying to Willie S. Estes.

We are told every day that the dieting fad has seized everyone in the nation. However, the candy manufacturers are not feeling the pinch. For the fifth consecutive year record sales of candy have been reported. More than 1,500 wholesale and about 2,000 retail candy manufacturers sold 3,120,507,520 pounds of candy with wholesale value of $3,120,706,560 a gain of 4 per cent over 1960.

Grass Roots Opinion

SALMON, IDAHO, RECORDER-HERALD: "While there are no doubtedly cases of hardship where elderly citizens have trouble meeting medical expenses, we can't agree that the solution to the problem is under social security."

Social security was designed as retirement insurance and for that purpose it is excellent. If, however, all types of services are to be added to it, there is no end to how costly it could become. Besides, the relationship between patient and doctor is a personal matter and we, for one, would hate to see this change. With the rules and red tape that would accompany medical aid under social security this undoubtedly would restrict this relationship."

REDFIELD, IOWA, REVIEW-SENTINEL: "I am told that a farmer can sell a dozen fish-worms for more money than he can get for a dozen hen eggs. One thing sure, if the Washington boys find out that there is a profit in fishworms, they'll soon be holding an investigation."

ALBERT LEA, MINN., TRIBUNE: "Lawrence Henry Gipson . . . has just won the Pulitzer prize in American history at the age of 80 . . . 'Needle Eye' Gipson 'retired' from active teaching at age 67 to do research work, and finish the 10-volume history of 'The British Empire Before the American Revolution' which he had begun in his spare time in 1927. . . . He finished Volume Ten, wrote a couple of other books, and found time to return to England and teach at Oxford in 1951-52. His achievements offer something of an example for all those who retire and, like bumps on logs, sit around doing nothing, waiting for tomorrow."

You Can Close The Gap Between...

The Dream And The Reality Of Women In Bathing Suits

The dream . . .

It's Beachtime, U. S. A. and, judging by all those ads, slim and beautiful girls are decorating beaches, pools and lake areas, clad in perfectly fitting bathing suits. Not so. Instead, the average Miss and Mrs. America are wearing insufficient bathing suits and displaying lumps, bumps and rolls of fat.

Why is there such a gap between the ideal and the reality? Is something wrong with swimsuits? With American women? Or both?

According to the people who design, manufacture and sell swimsuits, the suits are fine. But the way that the average woman buys them is all wrong.

If a woman is going to look well in a swimsuit, it must fit. This sounds so simple as to be laughable but it isn't.

The top swimsuit companies are in complete agreement on this: most American women buy their swimsuits too small. In the words of one swimsuit stylist, "This results in that all-American gesture—yank, yank."

"They try on a size 12 and it fits perfectly," says Marguerite Coughlin, fashion stylist (for Lee Beachwear). "So what do they do? They buy a size 10. They like to fool themselves into thinking that this actually fits their size."

The second biggest fault lies in the way many women put on a swimsuit. They step into it and haul it up. All wrong, says Mrs. Coughlin.

"We try to tell them to step into the suit, fold the top half down and gradually roll it or ease it up over the body," she explains. "It makes a world of difference in the way a suit fits."

There are, of course, any number of middle-aged women who think they're still kids and therefore get themselves into bikinis, skimpy two-piece suits or white knits, all impossible for anyone out of her 20s.

And then there are the women who grab a swimsuit from a rack or counter and buy it without ever trying it on. This generally proves disastrous.

"There are women who insist on wearing the suit with the strapless top," Mrs. Coughlin says. "It is never good either for heavy women or for overweight young girls."

To the immense credit of the

. . . and some . . .

swimsuit companies, they have produced swimsuits with built-in fit and types to take care of every common figure problem.

"If only, says Betty De Cillis, fashion stylist (for Rose Marie Reid), "women would not only try on swimsuits but ask for expert help. We want to see that they are properly fitted."

Betty, who works for her company in the fitting rooms of East Coast department stores, says the average woman comes in saying something like "I'd like to see a pink swimsuit." That's about the only requirement she has.

Betty runs an expert eye over the woman, asks her to step into a fitting room. Then she tells her that she is sure that she would rather have a perfect fit and look well on the beach or at the pool than have a pink suit. The woman almost always agrees.

"I don't rule out the pink suit," Betty explains. "But it's just that I know that she will look far better in a small, fine print in a pale green. And that she may need a certain suit to take care of a bulging stomach, heavy thighs, a bustline problem or large hips."

Your dress size is no guide to buying a swimsuit, Betty says, for the very good reason that a swimsuit, like a foundation garment, must fit smoothly and perfectly. It is, in fact, first cousin to a foundation garment.

There is general agreement

What Glass Do You Pour Into?

With a bow to the hourglass ideal of the turn of the century, one major swimsuit manufacturer (Jantzen) has crystallized its experience with American figures into six basic shapes:

- The Pilsner—tall, statuesque, heavier at shoulders, slim hips.
 - The Inverted Goblet—small bust and heavy hips.
 - The Champagne—large bust and small hips.
 - The Snifter—large mature figure.
 - The Cordial—petite, short-waisted.
 - The Perfect Parfait—perfectly proportioned with bust and hips both 10 inches larger than waist.
- The latter, swimsuit people say, is so rare you may never see one.

among swimsuit companies that the most common figure problem of women in this country is the combination of small bust and large hips. Therefore, all swimsuit companies offer the built-in bra in combination with various designs to handle hip and thigh problems.

Here are the figure solutions these people have learned through years of experience:

Small bust: bustline padding improves the fit and figure here. V necklines, tucks and shirring help.

Large bust: suit with elasticized deep inner bra. High underarm cut; V necklines.

Full hips: boy shorts, sarong drapes, long torso suits with flounced skirts. Wide straps or cap sleeves.

Heavy, flabby thighs: Half-shell silhouette with skirt front—a n-d shorts-back. Tapered boy shorts, sarongs or flounces.

Legs too thin: The maillot, or the sheath or sarong.

Thick waistline: Diagonal lines to and across the waist.

Spare tire or protruding stomach: Control panels front and back to whittle down stomach and derriere.

Extra-long waistline: All knits, especially two-way stretch, or two-piece suits.

Short waistline: Knits are the answer to proper fit. Patterned fabrics help keep her secret. Shirred panels for camouflage and comfort.

Now, the Marilyn Monroe-Elizabeth Taylor figure type has produced some curious thinking on the part of American women. It's this: even women who wear a 36D bra size want a swimsuit with padding. This produces, what the swimsuit companies refer to as the shelf or balcony. It is a heavy, pouter pigeon, unattractive look. Only a very tall, well-proportioned woman can carry it off. And the average American woman is neither tall nor well-proportioned!

But she is a wishful thinker, swimsuit people report. "Oh, I'm going on a diet and will lose weight, so I'll take a size 12," says the woman who needs a 14. Of course, she doesn't go on the diet, but she does squeeze herself into the size 12.

And here we are, back on the beach, and just ahead of us is Miss or Mrs. America—bulging out of her swimsuit.
