

Pampa Exchange Student Home- Says Germans Just Live In Hope

By JANE KADINGO
(Daily News Staff Writer)

"Most Germans have a great deal of faith in America and think our country is their only hope," is the opinion of 17-year-old Anna Jo Watson of Pampa, who returned Thursday from Germany where she spent the summer as an exchange student and lived in the home of a German family.

"Sometimes I think they have too much faith in us," she commented.

Sent to Germany as an American Field Service exchange student, Miss Watson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Watson 1100 Terry Road. She is a senior student in Pampa High School.

Miss Watson calls Berlin the "showcase of the West, the focal point of all our main political actions, and an example to the West Germans of the power of the West."

Every German town has a sign, she pointed out, showing a map of Germany, with the country divided in three parts. Representing Berlin is the Brandenburg Gate, with the gate and the dividing lines in white. Over the gate, she said, is a big black bear. Each sign contains the words, in German, "three divisions — never."

"They believe it will ultimately be one country," she commented. "They don't know how it can be reunited. They just have to keep on hoping."

On this country's political implications in Germany, Ann Jo stated that most Berliners liked Eisenhower and backed Nixon in the presidential election. However, when Kennedy was elected, they accepted it and gave him their full support, she said.

"They can't be overly worried about their political situation, or they would go insane," she explained, adding that most Germans are not outwardly worried about what is happening in their country today.

"But there is tension that everyone feels, and they feel it very deeply," she said.

Miss Watson related that her roommate on the return trip received a letter from her German "sister" before they reached New York. She said the letter explained that the Germans were really beginning to be frightened, but couldn't allow themselves to panic.

Miss Watson lived in Eckernförde with the Theodore Grewe family, consisting of the parents, a daughter, Sylvia, 18, and a son, Bodo, 22. "The family didn't discuss politics," Miss Watson said, adding that they seldom listened to the news on the radio, but did subscribe to three newspapers — a local paper, a paper from the "state" capital and one from Frankfurt, which they considered was equivalent to our New York Times and the best newspaper politically.

But the political tensions were felt by the family with which she lived. She said they had one aunt who lived one mile within the Eastern sector of Berlin and another aunt, who lived about two miles within the Western sector. She said it was almost impossible for them to communicate with one another and a letter from East Berlin took weeks to reach the other aunt, and a telephone call, which had to be routed through Frankfurt, took three or four days. Miss Watson said that sending packages between the two aunts was difficult, as a package was likely to be opened for inspection at the border, and if it held anything "suspect," the names of the sender and the recipient would be put on a list for investigation.

"The Germans think that a change in status in Berlin has to be undertaken by the allied powers," she commented.

Recent history has left its mark on the life of the people of Germany today. Miss Watson explained that the Nazi Era is either skipped over lightly in history classes or it is never mentioned at all. She said the father in the family with which she lived served in the army of the Third Reich, and after perusing the book, "Exodus," that Miss Watson was reading, he apologized, saying, "We didn't know this was going on."

Since the Nazi era, the German people seldom gather in groups. Miss Watson said they are "quite wary of anything in a group."

She said the recent Eichmann trial was never discussed by the family and she found only a small mention of it in one newspaper.

Tensions in Europe, other than Berlin, affected the family, too, she said. They had planned a vacation trip to a town in Switzerland, in Italy and to part of France. However, an Italian-German border incident, made them cancel their plans. They didn't feel the proposed trip would be safe.

The "incident" was in a border state, Miss Watson explained, where both Germans and Italians lived and where there are tensions due to the fact that the Italians force the Germans to speak Italian.

About her trip in general, Miss Watson stated she wishes she could have stayed about five months. She said by the time her visit was ended, she had reached the point where she could understand some of the language and could really begin to learn "something."

Cape Canaveral Chosen As Site For Moon Shot

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced today that Cape Canaveral will be the launch site for sending a man to the moon.

Three Florida Democrats—Sens. Spessard L. Holland and George A. Smathers and Rep. Syd Herlong—said they were informed by NASA of the selection of Cape Canaveral as the site of the U. S. moon shot effort.

The selection of Cape Canaveral, scene of many previous satellite shots, was one of three steps planned by NASA to accelerate the space program as ordered by President Kennedy.

The other two steps, designed to get a man on the moon by 1970, will be the selection of a manned space flight laboratory and a booster fabrication and test facility. Site selection teams are now working on these two projects.

The Cape Canaveral site, which now encompasses about 17,000 acres on Florida's east coast, will be enlarged by about 80,000 acres north and northwest of the present location.

It will be administered by the Air Force as part of the Atlantic missile range. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara concurred in the decision.

Florida Gov. Farris Bryant said in Tallahassee that Canaveral had been chosen as the site for manned moon shots using advanced Saturn and Nova boosters after an "intensive" survey by the Department of Defense and NASA.

West Berliners Declared Almost Fearless Of Reds

By LEON DENNEN
BERLIN (NEA) — West Berliners would be the first casualties in a shooting war here. Yet I find them singularly without fear of a Russian attack.

They are confident that the U. S. has the power to check any Red threat to their freedom.

They do have vague fears and suspicions about U. S. intentions.

These worries center around one man, whom they call "Senato-Meeke." He is Sen. Mike Mansfield, (D-Mont.), the majority leader in the U. S. Senate. Mansfield has proposed several times that Berlin be turned into a "free city" under international guarantees. His latest utterances several weeks ago followed hints by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev that the Communists might be willing to settle for some sort of "free city" scheme.

Berliners realize, of course, that Khrushchev and Senator Meeke have vastly different definitions of "free." But they believe passionately that no guarantees would be strong enough to prevent this island of liberty from being engulfed by communism once the present barriers and symbolic Allied garrisons were removed.

"Isn't Senator Meeke the chief leader of President Kennedy's Democratic party?" demanded a young engineer who had escaped from East Germany. He pleaded with me to tell Senator Meeke that any "free Berlin" plan would just be the first step in ending West Berlin's political and economic freedom.

"The West could not satisfy Hitler in Munich with concessions," the engineer said. "Neither will Ulbricht be satisfied with concessions."

(The consensus here: Walter Ulbricht, East German Red chief, is the chief architect of the current Berlin crisis, not Khrushchev.) Berliners are cheered by the display of Allied unity. They're encouraged by President Kennedy's firm reply to Khrushchev's Vienna memorandum. But they find it hard to believe that Mansfield was talking on his own and not sending up a trial balloon for some Western compromise plan.

Many of the Germans with whom I've talked believe Khrushchev is now looking for a way out of the blind corner into which he was steered by Ulbricht. One such is Stephen Thomas, the Social Democrats' top expert on communism and the contact man with the East German anti-Communist underground.

Thomas says Ulbricht's strategy has several prongs. First, he seeks to maneuver for advantage between Russia and Red China. Second, he seeks to persuade the Russians that the Allies could not defend West Berlin. Third, he is trying to show the West they could not hold West Berlin. And finally, he clumsily maneuvers to undermine the West Berliners' spirit of resistance.

He hasn't succeeded very well in any of these efforts. Certainly the West German nerve and vitality burn as brightly as the lights on the Kurfurstendamm. If the West stands firm, they will not allow the Communists to nibble their freedom away and incorporate their thriving metropolis into the drab pattern of East Berlin, clearly visible across the sector border.

Electronic Diagnosis
NEW YORK (UPI) — Physicians now can determine quickly the existence of glaucoma, a serious eye disorder, by linking a tonometer with an electronic recorder.

When placed against the eyeball, the tonometer measures pressures exerted by fluids inside the eye. The readings previously were recorded by hand, a time-consuming job.

The new electronic recorder, developed by Leeds & Northrup Co., of Philadelphia, not only has speeded diagnosis, but has made mass examinations practical.

Brazilians May Deny Presidency To 'Veep'

BRASILIA (UPI)—Acting President Ranieri Mazzilli met in secret Saturday with the chiefs of Brazil's armed forces to decide whether Vice President Joao (Jango) Goulart should become the nation's chief executive.

Goulart, who had been touring Red China, was heading home with all possible speed in the expectation of succeeding Janio Quadros, who resigned abruptly Friday as president of Brazil.

Sources here said, however, that some military groups were opposed to letting Goulart take office because of his "radical ideas."

Goulart left Singapore Saturday by British jetliner, but had to return a few hours later when the plane was grounded by engine trouble in the Malaysian capital of Kuala Lumpur. He made a new start in a second jetliner. He is expected back here late Sunday.

The vice president is regarded as the "political heir" of self-slain ex-President Getulio Vargas, who was forced to resign by a group of generals seven years ago almost to the day.

Mazzilli, who became acting president when Quadros resigned by virtue of his position as speaker of Congress, was closeted for more than three hours Saturday with War Minister Odilio Denys, Air Minister Grun Moss and Navy Minister Silvio Heck.

Chief Justice Barros Barreto of the Brazilian Supreme Court was called into the meeting for a time, presumably to advise the generals and the admiral on the legal aspects of the situation.

Informed sources said Sen. Jefferson Aguiar, a member of Goulart's labor party, was drawing up a constitutional amendment which would deprive the vice president of any right to the presidency and provide for a presidential election, probably within 90 days.

Aguiar was said to be hopeful of finding means of maintaining legality and forestalling a military coup d'etat.

There also were unconfirmed reports that Denys had told Afonso Almino, Laborite leader in the Chamber of Deputies, that Goulart would not be allowed to assume the presidency.

The war minister's only public comment on the situation was a statement that "the constitution will be followed."

Troops throughout the nation had been alerted, and armed soldiers were patrolling the streets of Brasilia as a precaution against demonstrations.

Mobs in Rio de Janeiro attacked the U. S. Embassy and other American offices Friday night, but no disorders were reported elsewhere in the country.

The three armed-forces chiefs were the only cabinet ministers still in office. Civilian members of Quadros' cabinet resigned in a body Friday and had not been replaced.

Another Berlin Wall Being Built

BERLIN (UPI)—The East German Communists Saturday began building a second five-foot wall behind their border defenses at Brandenburg Gate and then sent in East German army units to take over patrol duties behind the second barrier.

The Communist action came shortly after Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, the U. S. Army commandant in Berlin, delivered a stiff 45-minute oral protest to the Soviet commandant against East Berlin harassment of American military traffic into the east sector.

Thousands of West Berliners poured out of their homes Saturday to see the Communist barricade and at the Communist soldiers behind the second Brandenburg wall—one of the few times the Communist army has been noticeable in the occupied east sector.

West Berlin police doubled their guard forces for fear the West Berliners would demonstrate against the Communists on their day off but no major incidents were reported. At one point near Friedrichstrasse in the U. S. sector police continually had to chase groups of 20 or 30 off a rubble pile overlooking the closed border.

The East Germans did not roll out their water cannon immediately as they have done in the past. On the east side of the border East Berliners were held well back from the barriers and showed no inclination toward challenging the guards.

Many on each side waved at friends across the barricades.

Watson backed up his protest by sending four busloads of American military dependents in Berlin through the triple-barrier checkpoint at Friedrichstrasse to emphasize U. S. determination to move freely in Berlin and ignore Communist border police.

The buses passed through without trouble, toured the streets of East Berlin and returned without difficulty. On Thursday the East Germans held up three U. S. Army buses at the same checkpoint for 70 minutes—and provoked Saturdays' protests.

GROOM (Sp) — Richard Allen Craggs, 18, of Fort Stockton, Calif., remains in critical condition in the Groom hospital following a highway accident Friday near here in which his companion, Edward S. Katchner 21, of Fords, N. J., was killed.

Officers said the two men were traveling east on U.S. Highway 66 about 11 a.m. Friday when the convertible in which they were riding ran under the trailer of a heavy truck that was traveling north on State Highway 70.

The truck driver, identified as Herbert L. Cox of Decatur, was uninjured.

Chilchtree Voters Reject Hospital

PERRYTON (Sp) — Voters in Chilchtree County in an election Friday rejected a proposed $80,000 bond issue to pay an estimated one-half the cost of a 65-bed county hospital.

The proposal was defeated in each of the four county precincts. The total vote was 642 against the issue and 452 for it.

The issue of federal aid was blamed, in part, for the defeat of the bond issue through its dependence on federal money assistance from the Hill - Burton fund.

The $80,000 derived from the bond issue if it had passed would have been matched by a like amount in federal money.

Another objection to the bond issue, authorities said, was the size of the hospital. The 65 beds would provide only 15 more beds than the two existing Perryton hospitals.

Two Arizona Schools Shun Lunch Program

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Two of Arizona's largest high schools have rejected federal aid in school lunch programs.

But spokesmen for the districts express different reasons for their action.

Nicholas L. Fitch, supervisor of the Food Services Department for Phoenix Union High School District, dropped the federal-aid lunch plan with a slam at government red tape and control.

"Any time you get federal money you get dictatorship," he said. "You can't get something for nothing. We got so tied up in book-keeping that it would have cost a fortune just to keep the beans straight."

A year ago, Fitch recommended dropping the federal plan except for price-supported items and reimbursement on milk purchases. The district's cafeteria operations made money this year for the first time.

Fitch said demand by high school students for certain types of dishes and snacks helped make the federal program inoperable.

"The government has certain nutritional recommendations which high school students frequently do not like to follow."

Foes feel it virtually means running two cafeterias and two sets of books.

"If the government wants to help schools, let it send money and let us buy locally," Fitch said. "If we buy cheese here it ought to have as much effect on the cheese market, for instance, as when the government buys it in Wisconsin and sends it to us."

But William Pedersen, who, as director of food services for Scottsdale School District, abandoned the federal school lunch program two years ago, presents a different picture.

"I want to make this clear this was not a revolt against the program," he said. "It was to give the high school students a greater opportunity to be adults and to make choices."

Pedersen said his district was offering three main courses for three different prices.

"The government felt we were discriminating against some students because of higher prices," Pedersen said. "It was either discontinue or lose the subsidy."

Pedersen said district officials wanted to keep the youngsters on campus during lunch hour, so felt it was necessary to let them eat what they wanted.

Scottsdale school officials, who also operate the district's elementary schools, retained the federal lunch program for the younger students.

Arizona schools last year received $11,600,943 in federal aid in five major categories, including $2,620,091 in the school lunch program. Other large totals were $2,549,075 for construction and $4,467,121 for instruction and maintenance.

Harry Broderick, assistant state superintendent, said Arizona's participation in federal aid is "among the most modest" in the nation.

Legions Of Cats Inhabit Various Ruins Of Rome

ROME (UPI) — As famous as the Seven Hills, and apparently just as eternal, are the cats of Rome.

There are legions of them. And they have survived Roman Imperialism, pestilence, famine, kingdoms, invasions, Fascism and world wars.

Estimates of the uncommonly large cat population in Rome run as high as one million, or half the human population of the ancient city.

They are tolerated by Romans more so than dogs or birds. Stray dogs get short shrift on the cobblestoned streets of this city. They are quickly picked up south of the city, and released.

The story goes that a good 50 per cent of the "deportees" returned to their favorite haunts.

Not so with cats, which seem to live a charmed life and regard Rome as an "open city" as far as their existence is concerned.

It was not always so. There are "characteristic" types of cats in Rome, depending on where they live.

The roughest and toughest are found in the damp cellars and dungeons of the almost 2,000-year-old Colosseum.

The Colosseum seems to be the favorite place of Romans to drop the five or six of more kittens they don't want.

Street Renamed For Benefactor

LUFKIN, Tex. (UPI) — The city of Lufkin has renamed its busiest thoroughfare Calder Square in honor of a New York businessman most residents never have seen but one they all know.

Louis Calder Sr. has never lived in Lufkin, nor even in Texas, but he has contributed more to the welfare and improvement of the city than any other single man. In the past few years he has donated nearly one-half million dollars to this East Texas town of nearly 18,000.

His most recent donation was $2,500 to the Kurth Memorial Library, which stands in the center of the square that now bears his name. It was formerly called Cotton Square, the area where the three major streets of Lufkin connect.

Calder, chairman of the board of Perkins - Goodwin Company, has been one of Lufkin's biggest boosters since the late 1930's when he became associated with Ernest L. Kurth Sr., a personal friend, in establishing Southland Paper Mills, Inc.

It was a major push to Lufkin economy, and probably would in itself have given him a permanent place in the hearts of area residents.

But Calder wanted to do more and in the years that followed poured funds into the city to help its residents live better. In five separate donations, he gave a total of $375,786 to the Lufkin Memorial Hospital.

Down the road from the Colosseum lives another exclusive breed — the cats of the ruins of the Roman Forum. They are tough too, but a bit more domesticated.

Regarded as the most gentle and sophisticated of Roman cats are the vast colonies living around the Piazza Navona and on the Via Margutta, where Rome's artistic colony lives.

Maybe that makes this breed the toughest in all of Rome — survival of the fittest.

Solon Has Own Ideas About 'Tensions' Cure

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Of the many theories that have been advanced to explain the cause of the stresses and tensions that beset the world today, perhaps none is more breathtaking than the one just put forward by Rep. Samuel S. Stratton.

If I am reading him right, and I lay no claim to infallibility where interpreting congressmen is concerned, it is Stratton's hypothesis that mankind's troubles come in part from walking on bare floors.

This, I think you will agree, is a thought-provoking conjecture. There is also a certain beauty in its simplicity.

And, having laid his finger on the source of the ills, Stratton does not just let it rest there. He uses it to point the way to a solution, or cure, which is equally transfixing.

The answer, he asserts, is the installation of wall-to-wall carpeting.

"I have long urged the emphasis on carpets as the ideal type of floor covering in our hectic and often overwrought civilization," Stratton says in setting forth his theory in the Congressional Record.

"By dimming the noise and easing the pressure underfoot, carpets can do much to restore the kind of calm and sober equanimity this nation needs to confront and to surmount the manifold obstacles that lie ahead of us in the world struggle against communism."

The perceptiveness shown by this statement makes me acutely aware of my own blindness. I have been walking on carpets for years without realizing they were a weapon against communism."

Stratton goes on to tell of a visit he recently made to the White House where he found President Kennedy "calm, confident, quiet and self-assured" in dealing with the Berlin crisis.

The congressman could not help but wonder "whether something of the quiet and calm air of assurance which has characterized his handling of the delicate world situation may not have been imparted as a result of the similarly calm and quiet atmosphere of his beautiful office, carpeted of course in the modern manner, wall to wall."

I find myself wondering about this, too. I also wonder whether Premier Khrushchev has a wall-to-wall carpet in his office in the Kremlin. If not, that may be one of the reasons why he has been so nasty about everything recently.

I noted that there is a big carpet plant in Stratton's home district in New York, but I think his statement is more than just a commercial plug for a constituent.

It could be a contribution to world peace if some way can be found to keep Khrushchev's feet off the bare floor.

Lincoln Center Will Be A Huge 'City Of The Arts' Within A City

NEW YORK (UPI) — On a September evening in 1962, a glittering audience will assemble in a glass-walled building overlooking a glittering construction site. The fiddles will skitter in a last disorder of tuning. The conductor will raise his baton.

And the $142 million Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts will be open for business.

In the months following this inaugural concert in Philharmonic Hall, the steel and marble clutter outside will give way to a landscaped plaza. The Metropolitan Opera will move into its new home at its western face. A new theater for opera and ballet will open under state auspices. The curtain will rise on the first performance of a new repertory drama company. And a band will play on the corner.

World's Fair visitors in 1964 and 1965 may share with New Yorkers the final openings of what is expected to be the greatest complex of artistic endeavor in the nation, perhaps the world.

The center is rising on a 14.5-acre double square block of five blocks west of the southwest corner of Central Park, in an area which until recently was one of the city's sorriest slums.

Audiences totalling 11,000 persons may eventually be seated in its halls and theaters for a single performance. They may park under the plaza in a city garage or reach any of the halls from a nearby subway station through underground passages.

There is no counting the number of students who may share the evening with them. An overstreet bridge will connect the center plaza with the new home of the Juilliard School of Music, which also will contain the center's smaller recital and concert halls. Beside it, the city is planning to build, in architectural harmony, a new home for its High Schools of Music and Art and the Performing Arts. The New York Public Library is expected to house collections on the dance, drama and music in a new branch planned as part of the repertory theater building.

Lincoln Center was born of coincidence. It has grown into a sort of mammoth artistic cooperative under the combined planning of its artistic constituents, the city and state governments and a group of hard-working citizens.

Of its $412 million cost, $10 million was a federal grant for land, $15 million has been contributed by the State of New York and another $15 million is expected from the city. More than $71 million of the remainder is now in hand, mostly from large donations of foundations, business organizations and private citizens.

The late John D. Rockefeller Jr. gave more than $10 million. The West German government recently made a gift of $2.5 million toward the Metropolitan Opera House "so that in some small measure we can share in the tradition of its art." The New Orleans Opera Guild sent a neighborly $1,000. More than 3,000 individuals have made gifts of $1 to $100.

Physically, Lincoln Center will be a group of beautiful buildings, light in color and airy in design, set around a landscaped plaza and cornered at the southwest with the city's Damrosch Park, with a bandshell for outdoor music.

In their minds and plans of its founders, however, it is a great deal more than the sum of these parts.

John D. Rockefeller III, chairman of the center corporation and one of the chief visionaries in its conception, sees the center as a point of light which will focus national and international attention on the importance of the arts in the life of the individual and lead both this and other communities to give them larger support.

"With greater leisure time and with more mechanization in jobs, so that work is less satisfying as such; with the problems of the world weighing on us constantly because of modern communications, people need to find satisfaction in their leisure. They are seeing what I have sometimes called creative fulfillment," Rockefeller said.

"People need that. I think the arts are one way, and a very important way, they can find it. Lincoln Center is very timely in coming into being."

For the arts themselves, Rockefeller foresees new stimulation between them as neighbors and for all of them in the closer relation the center will provide with students of all kinds.

Of the $102 million in non-governmental contributions budgeted for the center, $1 million is set aside for education and development in the arts, and part of this program has already begun. Under center auspices, philharmonic rehearsals and performances have been opened to 29,000 students from the city schools. The Met and Juilliard's musical groups have taken performances into 103 schools.

The first Juilliard group available to a junior high school in a depressed city area, one center official recalled, was a woodwind quintet. "You'd think it would be like artichokes," he said, "something you'd have to learn to like."

"I wish you could have seen those kids. They couldn't get enough. It was as if we'd arrived with something they were hungry for."

The center's performances will go out to an even wider, if no more appreciative audience. The National Educational TV Network will have headquarters in or adjoining the center, and each hall is fully equipped for radio and television broadcast. Outstanding performances will be recorded and videotaped for future listeners.

How did the plan begin?

"The opera had decided after long deliberation to seek a new home," Rockefeller recalled. "The philharmonic's landlord gave notice its lease on Carnegie Hall would be up in three years time. And the city decided to embark on a very large slum clearance project, all at about the same time."

"Robert Moses, who is an imaginative, alert individual (He was at that time head of the city's Title I slum clearance program) got together with the opera and the philharmonic and suggested they move to the Lincoln Square site."

The Met had decided to do so and the philharmonic was still considering the plan when their officers and directors began to realize that the coming together of two such great musical enterprises involved "more than just two plots of land," Rockefeller said. "They brought together a larger group of citizens such as myself."

College Replaces Trip To Hawaii For News Carrier

TOKYO (UPI) — "Ooki" won't be going to Hawaii. He's going to college instead.

"Ookie" is Tatehiro Ooki, an 18-year-old newspaper delivery boy, who delivers the Pacific Stars and Stripes at Iwakuni U.S. Marine Base in southern Japan.

The Marines, miffed because he was passed over for a free trip to Hawaii after winning a Stars and Stripes popularity contest in Japan, had collected $550 to send Ooki to Hawaii as their guest.

They had another big "send Ooki to Hawaii" drive coming up. They had lined up a meeting with Hawaiian Gov. William Quinn, fun, frolics and girl-watching on Waikiki and VIP treatment by marines at Kaneohe naval air station in Hawaii.

Then Ooki decided to forego the trip to Hawaii. He decided to take the $550 already collected and put it in a trust fund for his education.

"I do not want my many friends to think I am ungrateful in not wanting to go to Hawaii," Ooki said, asking that no further collections be held for him. "I hope that they understand that part of my decision was that I thought they had done too much for me already. I don't know how to thank for what (sic) Marines, Navy and dependent personnel at Marine Corps air facility have done for me."

The opera and ballet theater will open as the New York State Theater and through the World's Fair will house performances and exhibits which will be the state's participation in the fair. It is then expected to become the permanent home of the New York City Center opera and ballet companies.

The new repertory company being formed by Robert Whitehead and Elia Kazan is a creation inspired by the center itself.

"Here will develop a mighty influence for peace and understanding throughout the world," said President Eisenhower, as he broke ground, in 1959, for Philharmonic Hall and the entire center.

THIS IS YOUR LIFE

In these days of uncertainties, forebodings and stress, the statements of our world seem to be groping in darkness. It is no secret that we in America have suffered one heart breaking disillusionment after another. As Charles E. Jefferson once said, "We expected great things from liberty and education and have found they are broken reeds. Neither our wealth nor our science has given us peace or joy. Liberty and education, wealth and science have performed their mightiest miracles under our flag but they cannot do the one thing essential. They cannot keep the conscience quick or the soul alive unto God."

Probably no one knows the immediate answers to the economic, social and political dilemma of our day. There may be some who because of adversity, disillusionment, sorrows or humiliations are ready to give up their faith in God of our Fathers. It might be well therefore for all of us to read again that comforting bit of verse by an unknown author, entitled "MY LIFE".

MY LIFE

My life is but a weaving
Between my Lord and me;
I may not choose the colors
He knows what they should be,
For He can view the pattern
Upon the upper side
While I can see it only
On the under side.
Sometimes he weaveth sorrow,
Which seemeth strange to me;
But I will trust his judgement,
And work on faithfully;
'Tis He who fills the shuttle,
He knows just what is best,
So I shall weave in earnest
And leave with Him the rest.
Not till the loom is silent
And the shuttles cease to fly
Shall God unroll the canvas
And explain the reason why —
The dark threads are as needful
In the Weaver's skillful hand
As the threads of gold and silver
In the pattern He has planned.

Perhaps THIS IS YOUR LIFE too. Our scripture memory verse: For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known. I Corinthians 13:12.

AROUND THE WORLD

BANK DEPOSIT—Looking like craters of the moon, the holes dug in this clay bank in Chicago are filled with topsoil. Later, trees and shrubs will be planted, not only to beautify the bank, but to prevent erosion. As a supervisor looks on (of course), the diggers deepen the "beauty marks" so they can start filling them up again.

RUSSIA'S IN FASHION—Hand-in-hand with a child model, pretty Russian mannequin Natasha Borodina displayed a cotton skirt and blouse of traditional design during a preview of the first Soviet fashion exhibition in London. Natasha certainly doesn't look like a farm girl!

FARMING IT OUT—"Agriculture" is the title of this almost-finished modernistic statue, designed by Jose de Albers for a modern office building in Somerset, England. But the 13-foot, 6-inch piece was too big to be moved through the narrow side entrances of the house. A crane had to be hired to lift the 1½-ton giant over the top of the house to a waiting truck.

CIGARS, CIGARETTES?—The young lady on the left is a cigar store signboard of the 19th Century which was found in Maine. Mrs. Mary Black is helping the wooden miss prepare for her journey to Bath, England, where she will be on display at the American Museum. It's a first journey outside U.S.A. for the piece.

WOEBEGONE WENDY—Little Wendy Gordon, 4, isn't sure she's big enough to pilot a sightseeing yacht, even with Capt. Reginald Pinto by her side. The moppet was the 10-millionth passenger to cruise around Manhattan Island on the Circle Line.

ROMAN HOLY DAY—Moving slowly toward Rome's ancient Colosseum which saw the martyrdom of many early Christians, Roman laymen carry a crucifix at the head of a religious procession. Pope John XXIII officiated at the brief service at the Triumphal Arch of Constantine.

DEMANDING LEAP SERVICE—Sticking out her tongue in a vain effort to make her giant bullfrog leap into the race, Lois Matthews, 11, of Dallas, Tex., felt frustrated when "Slow Poke" wouldn't budge. The race was almost over when he finally left starting pad.

SNOW JOB—On Matterhorn Peak, 14 stories above the Valley of the Magic Kingdom, Arthur Olson applies frostless "snow" in Disneyland, Calif. It took more than 1,000 gallons of paint to cover the make-believe mountain.

THIS IS '41—High bathing fashion has certainly changed over the years. In the 1920s, when the bosom was not, this chic little number turned all heads at Coney Island, N. Y. The bathing suit attracted attention, and so did the young lady in it. The lass is Clara Bow!

BREAKING THE LANGUAGE BARRIER—With the help of a nurse (dark apron) from the Bethesda Hospital in Wuppertal, West Germany, three Chinese student nurses tackle the German language by struggling with a German-Chinese dictionary. Refugees from Red China, the girls will spend the next five years in West Germany learning nursing.

HAIR NETS WINNER—Creating an elaborate coiffure that goes back several centuries, hair stylist Bernd Pawlowski, 21, put the finishing touches to a "Duchess of Orleans" hairdo in Hamburg, Germany. The creation earned him the Ladies' Hairdressing Championship.

KUWAIT

DESERT VIGIL—Waiting is a tedious game, especially when the stakes are high. Armed British troops and wealthy Kuwait sheiks wait on the sheikdom's border for signs of Iraqi restlessness (left). Off-duty British Royal artillerymen cool off in a small ornamental pool (right) as the temperature reaches a sweltering 120 degrees in the shade.

ANACHRONISM?—The rip-snotin' son of the Old West is back in the saddle again. Corralled into another Western movie, Kirk Douglas whoops it up; but what about the telephone wires in the background? This time he's a cowboy of the modern West (1953) in "The Last Hero."

Issues In Berlin Tangle Outlined

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Allied rights in Berlin are more complicated than they sometimes appear. Some are written. Some are only "implied."

Two basic rights are involved. The first is Allied military and West German civilian access to West Berlin through East German corridors. The State Department says this right is "absolute" and in writing.

The second is freedom of travel within Berlin itself, that is, between the East and West sectors of the city. The Allies never quite got this in writing. But they claim it is inherent.

Travel within Berlin is the only right the Communists have so far hindered in the crisis that began 11 days ago. They have blocked the flow of refugees from East Berlin to West and restricted, but not stopped, Allied military and West German civilian travel from West Berlin to East Berlin.

Access to West Berlin is the major "vital interest" for which the United States has made clear it will fight. A new Soviet note Thursday hinted at possible future moves against this travel, and the White House responded with a firm warning.

The State Department bases the right of access to West Berlin on five agreements.

—A Sept. 12, 1944, protocol with Russia setting up joint administration of "greater Berlin."

—Documents by the Allied Control Council for Berlin specifying air, land and canal corridors to West Berlin.

—A 1945 exchange of letters between President Truman and Marshal Stalin, in which Truman claimed "free access" and Stalin indicated assent.

—A May 4, 1949 agreement in New York between the United States, Britain, Russia and France for lifting of the Berlin blockade.

—A June 20, 1949, agreement of man civilian travel within the city is implied in declarations for "normalizing" the life of the city. —It is a right based on use. With one exception, during the 1953 East German uprising, there has always been free travel within Berlin. Even during the 1948-1949 Berlin blockade travel within Berlin was not limited.

Foreign Students Welcome UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) —Foreign exchange students at Pennsylvania State University's College of Agriculture are encouraged to live for a week with a farm family.

Families who have been their hosts say they've learned more than the guests about the customs of a foreign country.

Cost Of Living Hits New High

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Living costs crept up to another new high in July, government sources said today.

They made the disclosure in advance of release later today of the Labor Department's monthly consumer price index.

The index was expected to be up slightly from June, when it reached a record high for the first time in six months. The index usually rises in July, when fresh food prices advance to a pre-harvest high.

**Hotter than hands can stand*

Faster than hand washing

A water temperature of 150 degrees would be mighty hard on your hands — even when protected by gloves. But that's how hot the water is in your dishwasher.

The hot water puts all the cleansing action of your detergent to work and gives you much cleaner dishes — much easier.

It can take as long as 2 hours a day to wash and dry by hand — and that amounts to 30 full 24 hour days a year. That's a lot of drudgery. On the other hand, washing and drying dishes electrically is simply a matter of getting the dishes off the table and into the dishwasher. No dirty dishes on the sink, either, you can store them in the dishwasher until you are ready to do them.

There's a dishwasher to fit your home — and your budget. Portable models require no special plumbing or wiring.

The cost of the electric service to wash and dry dishes is less — each day — than the price of one cigarette.

Molly Goldberg Turns Student In TV Show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — You-hoo! Molly's back.

Molly Goldberg, that is. The long-time star of radio and television (real name: Gertrude Berg), returns to TV this fall in a new CBS series entitled "Mrs. G Goes to College."

Only this time the "G" doesn't stand for Goldberg. Mrs. Berg will play Sarah Green, a widow who enrolls in college as a freshman.

And her co-star will be Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who portrays Professor Crayton, an exchange teacher from Cambridge University who becomes Sarah's English instructor.

The casting is a re-teaming of Mrs. Berg and Sir Cedric, who enjoyed enormous success from coast to coast in the play "A Majority of One."

The idea for the series was Mrs. Berg's.

"I've been kicking it around for a long time," she said during a break in rehearsals at Republic Studios.

"I know many widowed women. And I've often thought of the loneliness of widows, what they do to occupy their time."

"A lot of them now are doing what I do in the series — go to school."

"You know, I read an article that says the world is full of widows — and rich ones!"

How was the series conceived? The actress, 60, explained:

"I had lunch with Tom McDermott of Four-Star Productions, and I told him about my idea. He said, 'Put it on one page of paper.' I did, and here we are."

"I've been too busy to do it before, but now I'm glad I waited. I think it's just the right time for such a comedy, what with such a hullabaloo being raised about westerns and violence."

How did she convince Sir Cedric, a staunch critic of Hollywood, to join her in the series?

"Well, darling," she said, "we played together in the show for a long time, and I fell in love with him. So I asked him, and he said yes. And you know what a sacrifice that is for him because he loves the stage. I've been in radio and TV all my life."

Mrs. Berg, who wrote the old radio and TV show "The Goldbergs" — and will supervise each script on the new program — said she never modeled her "Molly" character after anyone in particular.

"Where do ideas start? Who knows? Ideas happen. I guess it's a composite. My father ran a hotel, and I met a million people."

Will Sarah Green be any different from Molly? Replied Mrs. Berg:

"How different can a middle-aged Jewish woman be? A Medea she won't be. Or a Macbeth."

Despite her feeling that her show is coming on at a good time — the first program is Oct. 4 — Mrs. Berg resents what she calls the "intellectual snobs" who criticize everything about TV.

Movies Claimed To Be Gaining Over Video Now

By MARTIN RACKIN

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — "The glass nymphomaniac is dying!"

"The electronic abattoir is ka-puff!"

These are the phrases being bandied about amongst those in the know. Television isn't dead, it's just that the public has started to tire of it like last year's Christmas toys.

The average guy, plunked before his home movie screen, is losing interest in the constant rehash of shoot-'em-up junk and slug-infested private eye-type of entertainment.

Sure, it was fun for a time. Sure, it was for free and all those new easy-to-take home conveniences were there. It all lacked one thing — quality. Now, slowly, the public is becoming bleary-eyed from watching the same old program under a different title every half hour or hour.

Sam Q. Public knows he has been had. He's been forced to swallow the same plot, the same actors, night after night and to top it all off he's been bludgeoned with smoking claims and under arm dynamite until he can't tell one program from the other.

Now he is rearing up on his mind legs and hacking his way out of the jungle of mediocrity back to something he can luxuriate in — motion pictures.

Every industry weathers a storm if it has any staying power, and the motion picture industry has a just that. Hollywood is hardened and unvanquished.

This is not philosophy, it is fact. Movie attendance is up. More people are going to the theaters this year than last. The product is better.

MOVIE ATTENDANCE IS UP. MORE PEOPLE ARE GOING TO THE THEATERS THIS YEAR THAN LAST. THE PRODUCT IS BETTER.

MOVIE ATTENDANCE IS UP. MORE PEOPLE ARE GOING TO THE THEATERS THIS YEAR THAN LAST. THE PRODUCT IS BETTER.

Gregory Peck, David Niven and Anthony Quinn star in the CinemaScope production, "The Guns of Navarone," which opens Thursday at the Capri Theatre for a week's engagement. The picture is based on the best-selling novel of an Allied commando team's raid on a German-held island in the Aegean Sea. The picture flames with unflagging excitement and suspense and especially thrilling are the storm and mountain-climb sequences.

Broadway

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The star of the Broadway musical "Irma La Douce" has written the following for vacationing Jack Gaver.)

By ELIZABETH SEAL

NEW YORK (UPI) — In New York the education of an actress never stops.

Bronston is not ashamed to say he lost nearly $5 million for his backers in his first attempt at an epic, "John Paul Jones." He offers no alibis, although many in the film industry know it was not his fault. He merely states with quiet pride that his principal associate, Pierre Dupont III, never lost confidence in him.

On the bleak day that he had to go before Dupont and his group to report the "John Paul Jones" debacle, he left with authority to spend as many millions as he needed to make the life of Christ.

That film, "The King of Kings," was not easy to make, although Pope John XXIII gave the project his blessings and even assigned a famous Catholic writer to join the experts of other denominations who acted as advisers. At one point, a representative of a film combine arrived and offered Bronston all the money spent up to then, plus $1 million for himself, to turn the picture over to them.

"I was personally broke," Bronston said frankly, "but I never gave the proposition a second thought. Mind you, I was a little bit discouraged when a hurricane promptly blew down our costly temple set. But a few days later M.G.M. saw some of our rushes and said they would distribute the film when it was finished. From then on our financial worries were over."

It may seem odd that an associate of the multi-millionaire Dupont should ever have to be anxious about money, but Bronston's relations with the men who have guaranteed his productions for upwards of $20 million is not the usual film industry deal.

He knows he can claim all or any part of this fund at any time, but it is a matter of pride to him to raise the money from other sources and use the Dupont guarantee only in an emergency. Thus he has ventured into oil and commodities and the word around Madrid is that he is now a rich man from these deals alone.

Bronston does not talk easily about himself — the tears in the preview theatre were the only outward indication of the many heartaches, now happily in the past.

Comeback Of Actor Ascribed To Courage

By ROBERT MUSEL

MADRID (UPI) — When the lights went up in the preview theatre there were tears in Samuel Bronston's eyes.

For two hours the wide screen had surged with the color and pageantry, the gold and purple of medieval Spain in the still uncut version of Bronston's new film, "El Cid."

Charlton Heston, as the legendary Spanish hero, had begun the long death drama with his wife (Sophia Loren).

But it was not the sight of "El Cid," demanding a pledge that he be strapped in the saddle to lead his troops in the final battle against the Moors, that evoked Bronston's emotion.

He was thinking of the past — of only five years ago in New York when he had to pawn his watch to get enough money for a taxi home to his ailing wife. And how far he had come since then.

If the mantle of Cecil B. De Mille fits any one person in the film industry today, it is this soft-spoken naturalized American, a graduate in political economics at the Sorbonne and friend of two Popes — a man who came back from a disastrous debut as a producer.

Bronston is not ashamed to say he lost nearly $5 million for his backers in his first attempt at an epic, "John Paul Jones." He offers no alibis, although many in the film industry know it was not his fault. He merely states with quiet pride that his principal as-

Arlene Francis Having 'A Ball' In Munich Work

MUNICH (NEA) — Arlene Francis is taking a "sort of vacation" — her first in 25 years — but it's definitely of the busman's sort.

Miss Francis is in Munich to make a movie. This is the first she's done (if you'll except some very minor roles years ago) and she's having a ball. The part in Billy Wilder's "One Two Three" came about when writer I. A. L. Diamond said, "Let's get somebody like Arlene Francis" and Wilder said, "OK, we'll get Arlene Francis." She plays James Cagney's wife in the movie. There are days when she's not needed on the set. So she takes off for London or Paris or Venice or Biarritz. And it's this on-again, off-again working routine that makes her say that it's a "sort of vacation."

"I'm afraid I may become spoiled," says Arlene. "After this, I may want a vacation every summer."

For Cagney, one of her co-stars in the picture, movie-making is old stuff. He says that working in theater only in an emergency. Thus he has ventured into oil and commodities and the word around Madrid is that he is now a rich man from these deals alone.

King Football Arrives On Scene In Panhandle

Bucks Favored For 1-A Crown

Pampa Readies For Grid Start

Most football experts have forecast the district 1-A football race to be settled when the Stinnett Rattlers and the White Deer Bucks tangle Oct. 13.

They may be right for both schools expect to have good clus again this fall. The tally at White Deer is bright with three returning starters and eight other lettermen to give Coach Collie Huffman a boost in ousting the Rattlers.

The Bucks, who lost only to Stinnett in 1960, have the potential to go all the way as it did in 1954 Huffman can throw speed, experience and Carl McAdams at opponents. McAdams, a 185 pounder, was a tackle last season but he may move to fullback this campaign to team with halfback Ricky Lowe, a 168-pound letterman, to give the Bucks offense a powerful one-two punch. Rough and ready guard Jimmy Lopez, 167, is the other returning starter. Lopez was bothered by a back injury most of last season.

Besides these three axes, Huffman will be able to fill his flush with such lettermen as Larry Short, 163, end; Phillip Dithmer, 165, and Frank Williams, 165, guards; Joe Gardziel, 170, tackle; and backs Jimmy Thurmond, 130, Johnny Spence, 140, Mike Hefner, 146 and Kenny Johnson, 145.

White Deer has the fifth best Class A record in the state over the past five years. The Bucks have won 46, lost nine and tied one which includes a state title and a brilliant 9-1 mark in 1960. Only Stinnett, White Oak, Crowell, and Albany tops White Deer.

Groom will be the Bucks opening game Sept. 1 at White Deer.

Coaches Pick Perryton To Take 5-AA Laurels

Is it Perryton's year again? District 5-AA coaches seem to think so as they voted Coach Ray Hopkins eleven as the team to take home all the marbles in November.

Hopkins is the newly appointed coach at Perryton, just up from Soudan where he enjoyed great success. He inherits a defending champion and winners of 5-AA four times in the past five years.

The Rangers return three starters from the 1960 outfit that had an 8-3 record, losing 7-0 to Anson in bi-district play. Two of those three are tackles Don Wagner, 185 and 200-pounder James Fountain. The other is end Terry McWhorter.

Hopkins will be able to draw upon nine returning lettermen which include Danny Witt, 165, end; guards Joe Coon, 150 and John Ellzey, 155; tackle Danny Hudson, 170; quarterback Fred Lewis, 140; fullback Joe Champion, 175; halfbacks Johnny Leicht, 145 and Benny Conley, 145; and center John Erickson, 155.

Perryton's toughest opposition in district will come, according to the coaches, from the Quanah Indians. They tangle Oct. 27. Childress could provide some fireworks as they have 16 returning offensive and defensive starters.

The Ranger 1961 schedule is a tough one which includes class 1-AAA favorite Dumas and arch-rival Phillips, also of 1-AAA. Perryton will open the season with Gruver, Sept. 8.

The Warriors open the season Sept. 8 at Turpin, Okla. and will meet Lakeview, Oct. 6 in their first district tilt.

Wheeler Has District 1-B Darkhorse

WHEELER (Spl) — Wheeler returns three backfield speedsters, three more 1960 regulars and four other lettermen as the Mustangs will bid to take the district 1-B crown away from Groom.

Coach Louis Boynton gets backs Jim Jolly, G. C. Baker and Mendal Hunter; ends Kenneth McCaslan and Larry Levitt; and guard Leon Watson from the 1960 club that posted a 4-6 mark.

Also returning to the Mustangs fold are numeral winners Bill Green, Bobby Meadows, Richard Hampton and Kent Sims. Thirty-six boys reported for practice this fall.

Others reporting for practice were: Jerry Hefley, Monroe Page, Randy Callan, Ray Owens, Charles Willard, Mickey Pride, Bobby Ely, Henry Lewis, Neil Rogers, Joey Sabbe, Darryl Snelgroves, Ronnie Smith, Bob Hink, James Don Hutchinson and Harry Garrison.

Nine freshmen reported for practice also, they were: Dunk Porter, Richard Wallace, Jim Jamison, Jim Adams, Don Burke, Billy Overcast, Terry Vanpool, Gene Watson, Gary Waters, Bobby Treadwell, James Henderson and Jimmy Martin.

Wheeler has been picked by district coaches to finish second behind Groom. They play Groom Nov. 3. The Mustangs rugged schedule includes two class A clubs, Canadian and powerful McLean, and a class AA team, Shamrock.

TITANS TO TRIM
BEAR MOUNTAIN, N.Y. (UPI) — With their exhibition season closed out with a 30-20 loss Friday night to Houston, the New York Titans settled down to "touching up" their offensive and coach Sammy Baugh said he would trim at least five players from the squad by Tuesday.

CHARGERS-RAIDERS PLAY
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The Chargers will make their second home appearance Sunday when they host the Oakland Raiders in an American Football League exhibition game.

COULD BE BEST — Coach Babe Curfman believes that Butch Crossland, Pampa Harvesters' Quarterback, could be the top signal caller in district 3-AAAA. Crossland, a senior, was injured most of the 1960 campaign and the Harvesters are expecting big things from him in the coming grid season.

Stinnett Team May Be Strong

One of the top names in Texas schoolboy football for the last several years have been the Stinnett Rattlers. And once again the Rattlers possess enough manpower to get into the state play-offs for the second straight year.

Even though district coaches picked White Deer to dethrone the Rattlers, the champs are always the team to beat.

Two words — Mainess Gibson — describe why the Rattlers are to be tough this year. Gibson, an all state end in 1960, may be shifted to fullback this season to take up the backfield slack at halfback left by the departed Anderson boys, Larry and Donnie. A 200-pounder, Gibson, fullback Jerry Laster, 180, and 200-pound guard Joey Hoffman are the starters returning to Coach Don Light from a 13-1 team last year.

That's a pretty good group to start with and then Light can reach into his bench and pull out such lettermen as Ronnie Williams, 175, end; guards Edward Lorenz, 170 and Robert Ballard, 165; halfbacks Buddy Burns, 150 and Terry Richardson, 160; fullback Floyd Watson, 135; tackles Don Davis, 160 and Robert Monk, 170 and Larry Wolfe, 170 pound end.

Stinnett holds the top Class A won-lost mark over a five year period of 32-7-2, barely ahead of East Texas' White Oak Roughnecks.

The Rattlers, 9-6 loser to Albany in the semi-finals in 1960, open the season against Clarendon, Sept. 1.

Pampa Readies For Grid Start

King Football arrives on the scene Friday night in the state with heavy activity scheduled to take place in the Panhandle area.

The world's largest high school grid organization — Texas Schoolboy Football — begins its 41st campaign under the Texas Interscholastic League with classes AA, A and B starting the gigantic grid warfare that will last till late December before four state champions will be crowned.

Opening games in the Panhandle pits highly ranked Class A White Deer against the Groom Tigers at White Deer; 1960 semi-finalist Stinnett opens at Clarendon; Booker takes on Fritch at Fritch; Canadian will be at Wheeler; defending 2-A champion Lefors hosts Panhandle; well regarded McLean clashes with AA Shamrock at McLean; and the Mobeetie Hornets play at home against Darrouzett.

Class AAAA won't start until Sept. 8 when Pampa goes to Ysleta to meet Bel Aire.

Coach Babe Curfman's Harvesters opened the 1961 fall grid drills Friday with eyes toward better things on the gridiron this season. The Harvesters will have to whip back into shape quickly as the opening game with Bel Aire is just 12 days off and Curfman's charges have a scrimmage tilt with Class AA Perryton, Saturday.

So called "experts" have picked the locals to finish seventh in the class 3-AAAA race. They finished last in 1960. But barring injuries and with a little luck, Pampa could give some of the "better teams" a run for their money.

Pampa will be a little heavier this season — 20 pounds over last year — and the Harvesters will have overall good speed. Quarterback Butch Crossland looks like the key to the offense which was somewhat inexplosive last year. In the backfield with Crossland will be Jerry Glover at full, Robbie Robinson and Mike Stewart at the halves.

Robinson and Crossland were defensive starters in 1960 and James Webb, a converted end, is the lone offensive starter returning. Webb also started on the defensive unit.

Other lettermen on hand are guards Danny Mathias, Carl Clark, Jimmy Hoyle and Dea Wright; end Corky Godfrey; tackle John Brown; and backs Gerald Been and Riley Walters.

The Harvesters will be working out twice a day until the start of school.

Bleak Outlook Down At Lefors

LEFORS (Spl) — New Head Coach Dunny Goode will have his work cut out for him at Lefors this season. Goode, who replaces Ed Lennik, has only six returning lettermen from last year's district co-champions.

Lefors shared the district 2-A crown with Memphis, a team they tripped 14-0, but fell into a deadlock for the title when McLean upset the Pirates 13-6 in the season finale.

But all six lettermen were starters in 1960. Goode will build his team around quarterback Mickey Archer, fullback Scott Dunniam, halfback Ronnie Line, tackle Larry Ables, and guards Jerry Harrington and Jerry Nichols.

Greenberg Quits Chicago GM Post
CHICAGO (UPI)—Baseball immortal Hank Greenberg quit today as general manager of the Chicago White Sox and was replaced by front office man Ed Short.

Greenberg, a former Detroit Tigers home run slugger, said he resigned to allow more time for his other business interests. His departure came only two months after he sold his stock interest in the White Sox to Arthur C. Allyn, Sox president.

Greenberg agreed to remain as a director of the club until the season ends.

Dodgers Cut Lead By Beating Reds

Podres Cops 14th Victory

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—The Los Angeles Dodgers cut Cincinnati's lead in the National League to 1 1/2 games Saturday by defeating the Reds, 10-6, with a 16-hit attack that enabled southpaw Johnny Podres to chalk up his 14th victory.

The second place Dodgers pounded six Red hurlers for 16 hits, including Frank Howard's 13th homer of the season.

Podres, who has lost only four games this season, bowed out in the seventh inning after a grand slam homer by Vada Pinson.

Larry Sherry and Ron Perrantowski finished up for the Dodgers.

St. Louis Cards Nail Giants 8-5

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Bob Gibson batted in four runs Saturday while pitching the St. Louis Cardinals to an 8-5 victory over the third-place San Francisco Giants, although he needed relief in the ninth from Ed Bauta.

The victory, Gibson's ninth to go with ten setbacks, was the Cardinals' sixth in a row and their 19th in 25 games.

St. Louis pounded out 13 hits off five San Francisco pitchers in gaining their 11th consecutive home victory.

Gibson allowed ten hits and gave up six walks, but struck out five Giants.

Cubs Late Spurt Topple Pirates

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The Chicago Cubs rallied for five runs on extra base power in the ninth inning Saturday to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-3.

Dick Bertell, who had a perfect day at the plate with four hits, tied the score at 3-3 when he led off the ninth with his second home run.

The Cubs continued their assault on loser El Roy Face. Richie Ashburn hit a pinch single. Al Heist followed a triple to right.

Shantz was called in from bullpen.

Booker To Play Opener Friday

Booker High School Coach Ray Robinson has eight returning lettermen from his 1960 club, that posted an 8-2 record in district 1-B eight man football, to bolster Booker's hopes to trip up perennial champ Miami.

Robinson, in his second season at Booker, finished in second place last year to champion Miami. Numerous winners Larry Henton, Leslie Lee, Jim Shearer, Marvin Trosper, Jim Cates, Ronnie Eccles, John Hughes and Kenny John returns from that squad.

Twenty boys are on the 1961 squad and experience is lacking since nine are freshmen. The other team members are Roy Hughes, Norman Coxwell, Al Lemons, Calvin Babitzke, Bill Hughes, Larry Lile, Jim Meir, Ben Rutz, Dennis Roth, Shane Slovacek, Larry Trosper and C. A. Seibel.

Booker opens the current grid campaign Friday night against Fritch in an eleven man game.

Maris Slams 51st Homer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Roger Maris socked his 51st home run and Billy Staiford spun a brilliant three hitter Saturday as the New York Yankees beat the Kansas City Athletics 5-1.

Maris' home run, his fifth of the season against Kansas City pitching, came in the sixth inning off Jerry Walker. The round-right-center field fence, came on the heels of Tony Kubek's sixth home run of the year.

Mickey Mantle had two singles in three trips but fell five behind Maris in this scramble to break Babe Ruth's home run record.

Fairfield, who started out Saturday four strokes behind Hebert and Bob Goalby, turned in one of his most brilliant rounds in golf history when he carded five birdies and 13 pars over the rugged, 7,165-yard Firestone Country Club course.

The old Firestone course record was 66, set by the veteran Jim Ferrier in the third round of the PGA championship in 1960.

Player matched Hebert's 68 in the third round.

Arnold Palmer, the tournament favorite, had a one-under-par 69 for an aggregate of 209, leaving him four strokes off the pace going into Sunday's final round. The leader, came in with an even-par 70 for a total of 210. Huston La Clair, with a 72, was next at 211.

Orioles Trounce Minnesota Twins

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (UPI)—Baltimore won their second game in a row over the Minnesota Twins Saturday as Chuck Estrada and Wes Stock combined to pitch the Orioles to a 7-4 victory.

Estrada, a lean 23-year-old right hander, went the first eight innings and gave up five hits. He also smacked a double in the fourth.

Stock hurled the ninth and was touched for a walk, a single by Bill Tuttle and Zoilo Versalles' two-run triple.

Baltimore made quick work of Twins starter Al Schroll, routing him in the first with a four-run blast that included Jim Gentile's 39th homer of the season, with Jackie Brandt aboard. Gentile now has 114 runs batted in for the season.

White Sox Whips Slumping Tribe

CHICAGO (UPI)—Al Smith drove in six runs with two homers Saturday in a 10-5 Chicago White Sox victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Smith, who hadn't hit a home run since the July All-Star "break," belted his 21st of the season to climax a six-run Chicago outburst in the third inning. He pushed his homer total to 22 in the 7th when he lined a long shot over the 415-foot bullpen fence in centerfield.

Warren Urges Early Entry For Tot Play

Entries for the annual Top O' Texas Golf Tournament which begins Friday, Sept. 1, will be accepted anytime before Friday according to Pampa Country Club Pro, Hart Warren.

Warren urged all local golfers who plan to play to register early. There will be no qualifying for local people except those participating in the championship flight.

In 1960, Follett managed just one win against eight defeats. The Panthers, of class 1-B, could surprise the experts and beat out Groom and Wheeler for the top prize this fall. Coach Gillespie said, "Out of the remaining 16 men on the squad, it looks as though we should have about six usable boys for immediate help."

He added, "This represents a big improvement over what we have had for the past three years, and we are looking forward to the coming season with a little more optimism than we have in the past."

The Panthers open their season September 7 with Laverne, Okla. "B" team. They play their first conference game, Oct. 13 against the Wheeler Mustangs.

Groom I-B Favorite

GROOM (Sp) — Six starters from the 1960 bi-district champions will form the nucleus of new head coach Dwain Currie's 1961 Groom Tigers.

Currie, who was an assistant at Canadian last year, inherits a Tiger team that won the conference title in 1960, beat Lasbuddie in bi-district before bowing to Anton in regional play.

The six returning starters are quarterback Wesley Cornett, 164; halfback Eldred James, 142; fullback Leroy Littlefield, 140; guard John Koetting, 172; tackle Wayne Kotara, 155, and end Jimmy Conrad, 163.

Currie and assistant coaches Don Hunt and Charles Banks can also call on lettermen Henry Nepper, Johnny London, and Bill Ruthardt.

Thirteen seniors make up the greater part of the club. There are just three juniors, eight sophomores and seven freshmen on the squad. The Tigers will have adequate weight on the starting eleven, but the remainder of the team is light.

Groom opens its 1961 campaign with a toughie — White Deer, Friday night. The Tigers will play a rugged non-conference card which includes five class A clubs, including district 2-A favorite McLean as well as the Bucks.

Wheeler and Claude are expected to give the Tigers their roughest opposition in district 1-B play.

Mobeetie Opens Season Friday

MOBEETIE (Sp) — Coach Paul Morris has 10 returning lettermen, including four two-year numeral winners, at Mobeetie for the 1961 grid campaign.

Mobeetie is a member of district 1-B eight man football league. Morris, a graduate of Texas Tech, will lend his hopes on two year lettermen quarterback Garland Lancaster, fullback Gene Coward, guards Benton Rogers and Don Rector.

Morris can also count on help from six other lettermen in backs Robert Kelly and Charles Risner; ends Ray Corcoran, Rayburn Corcoran and John Allen; and junior center Glen Hathaway.

The rest of the squad is made up of backs John Trout and Jackie Barton, guards Eddie Hodges and Jerry Rector; center Fred Mixon and end Jim Johnston.

The Hornets open their 1961 season with Darroulette, Friday. This is a non-conference tilt although Darroulette is a district member.

Ten Starters At McLean Bolster Grid Title Bid

Coach Darrel Davis' McLean Tigers gained the hot spot position in the district 2-A race when his team was picked by district 2-A coaches to cop the grid championship.

There was a reason for the choice. The Tigers are loaded. Davis has 10 returning starters from the 1960 squad that had a 4-6 record with a club comprised of freshmen and sophomores. Now McLean is ready to furnish some fireworks in the state play-offs with experience, size, speed and a fine passer in 6-1, 192 pound quarterback Ken Willingham.

Mobeetie Opens Season Friday

MOBEETIE (Sp) — Coach Paul Morris has 10 returning lettermen, including four two-year numeral winners, at Mobeetie for the 1961 grid campaign.

Mobeetie is a member of district 1-B eight man football league. Morris, a graduate of Texas Tech, will lend his hopes on two year lettermen quarterback Garland Lancaster, fullback Gene Coward, guards Benton Rogers and Don Rector.

Morris can also count on help from six other lettermen in backs Robert Kelly and Charles Risner; ends Ray Corcoran, Rayburn Corcoran and John Allen; and junior center Glen Hathaway.

The rest of the squad is made up of backs John Trout and Jackie Barton, guards Eddie Hodges and Jerry Rector; center Fred Mixon and end Jim Johnston.

The Hornets open their 1961 season with Darroulette, Friday. This is a non-conference tilt although Darroulette is a district member.

SIGNS OF FALL -- and there really are some! ... have you noticed how cool the mornings are? ... that you're back to that old thing again of not being able to dress for the day? if you put on something warm in the cool mornings you swelter by noon? ... so it's back to old routine of dressing for the warm weather, but wearing a sweater or jacket in the mornings ... it happens in the spring and it happens in the fall ... and since fall is the closest thing to us, I guess that's what's approaching ... and don't we know it, too ... with the flurry of getting things ready for the beginning of school ... there is many a sewing machine in furious activity throughout Pampa ... as well as many a mother-and-children team roaming the downtown stores ... and more and more of the teachers are appearing in town after their summer vacations ... and the clubs are planning and staging "into-the-swing-again" kickoffs for their fall activities ... like the girls in Beta Sigma Phi ... who are getting ready for a big kick-off luncheon early in September ... and the PTAs ... who already had a big gathering of the presidents and officers of the PTA City Council ... ha, yes ... the signs are all around us, it's "Harvest Moon" time and "Back-to-School" time and all that ... as fall descends upon us ... but, really have you thought of what life would be like without the change of seasons ... rather dull, n'est-ce pas?

A happy marriage is a long conversation that seems all too short.
—Andre Maurois

DEPARTING PAMPANS ... and there seems to be quite a few of them lately ... with rounds of parties in their honor ... most of them departing due to retirement ... or transfer among them are the A. A. Whartons who are leaving for Paris ... who have been feted by the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs ... and by neighbors and friends ... Yvonne and Bob Eddins are being transferred ... but don't know to where ... and the many friends of Shirley and Gene Lunsford are bemoaning their departure ... believe they are being transferred to somewhere in the East ... The El Progreso Club gave a lovely party this week honoring Mary Lynn Kinard ... understand she and her husband, Knox, will be departing soon ... and there are several parties in the wind for the Floyd Crumes ... also being transferred from Pampa ... it is always hard to see old friends and familiar faces leave.

The happiest wife is not the one who marries the best man, but the one who makes the best of the man she marries.
—Joseph Fort Newton

HEARTS AND FLOWERS ... and August is as much a month of brides as June, it seems ... there has been much excitement in the Traylor Price household this week ... as the wedding of lovely Ann approached ... she was married Saturday ... There have been showers for Ann Miller who will walk down the aisle soon ... and the Dr. Malcolm Browns are in Austin this week for the marriage of their son, Malcolm Jr., to a girl from Austin ... Viola Doggett is happy and excited these days over the engagement of her son.

The Boyd Stephens household is getting back to normal after the marriage of their daughter, Mildred, last weekend to Charles Terrell ... from all reports it was a lovely wedding ... and the flurry of preparations in the Warren Beale household is over ... after the marriage of their daughter, Nancy, last weekend ... there is just nothing like having a wedding in the family ... large or small, it always is preceded by much happy confusion ... to be climaxed with a wonderful, happy and touching ceremony.

Marriage! Nothing else demands so much from a man!
—Ibsen

TRAVELING PAMPANS ... Elise Waters is back in town after a fabulous trip to Hawaii ... went over by steamer ... she says she didn't realize there was so much going on about the ship ... they had swimming, dancing, bridge tournaments and the like ... sounds like they kept everyone well occupied ... she traveled with a tour group ... and said she was the only Southerner in the group ... she spent most of her time in Honolulu ... but did fly to the other islands ... she reports it was the most exciting trip she ever had ... ah, me ... how nice it would be! ... Joyce McCausland is excited over her approaching trip ... believe she and her four children will leave for England in November ... and hubby, John will join them in December ... Ruth and Floyd Lassiter and their daughters ... have returned from a grand vacation in Arkansas ... and it sounds like the William Wests had a glorious time vacationing in the Teutons ... ah, isn't it nice to travel?

Marriage should improve the human species, becoming a barrier against vice, a protection to woman, strength to man, and a center for the affections.
—Mary Baker Eddy

MAINLY ABOUT PAMPANS ... Fort Worth's loss is Pampa's gain ... as Jessie Newberry has returned to the fold ... she and George are living on Mary Ellen street ... Jessie is such a gracious and charming addition to our community! ... back to traveling Pampans ... one who has really had some wonderful ... once-in-a-lifetime experiences this summer is teenager Anna Jo Watson ... she returned this week after spending the summer in Germany ... as an American Field Service exchange student ... what a wonderful experience to live with a German family ... and what better way to learn of the people and the country! ... which reminds me, we have two AFS exchange students in Pampa getting ready for classes at Pampa High School ... believe the Julian Keys and the Coy Palmers are the hosts for the students' stay in this country ... Back to departing Pampans ... Bob Black, who is leaving, was honored with a picnic in Central Park last week by about 200 members of the First Methodist Church ... highlight of the picnic was the clever speech Janie Bowers gave as she presented him with a beautiful, engraved watch ... a gift from the group.

The happiness of married life depends upon making small sacrifices with readiness and cheerfulness.
—John Sheldon

POTPQUIRRI ... Seems the teenage crowd was busy getting out party togs this week in preparation for the party at the Country Club given by George Cree III ... understand it was a sort of "before-departing-for-school" event ... Dorothy and Fred Neslage's daughter, Marian, was in the limelight this week ... seems she was presented a curved bar award in ceremonies Thursday ... that is the highest rank in Girl Scouting and quite an achievement! ... And Albertine Tripplehorn and her daughter, Carol, were busy with plans and preparations this week for a lovely pre-nuptial shower for Marcile Gilson ... believe she is to be married early in September.

A person's character is but half formed till after wedlock.
—Charles Simmons

AND SO ... the sun goes down on another column for this week ... but, don't worry, it will rise on another one next week ...
As ever,

Make-Up Can Make Nose Look Smaller

If you feel that your nose is too large, you can camouflage its prominence with the correct use of make-up.

According to beauty authority Max Factor, if your nose is a trifle too long or wide, wear your hair in a style that will help balance the appearance of your features. Refrain from wearing bangs low on your forehead as this will only emphasize the size of your nose. Cheek rouge extended toward the nose will also point up its size, so always blend the color outward toward the hairline.

Pluck eyebrows so that they are slightly wider apart than you usually wear them. Brows which are close together add length to the nose.

Another way to make your nose look shorter is to apply foundation make-up one shade darker than your regular color directly under its outer tip. Use this same darker shade to diminish the size of a wide nose by shading along the sides and blending into the color of your facial make-up.

Concentrating eye shadow toward the outer half of each eyelid, and wearing lipstick in a slightly wider lip pattern, will also help to minimize the size of the nose.

Sneezing Time Is Here Again

The sound of the sneeze is being heard in the land — it's hay fever time again.

Millions of sufferers will be sniffing and snorting until frost comes, and for them it can't come too soon. If you're one of the afflicted and aren't able to head for an area blessed with a low pollen count, there are some things you can do to make yourself more comfortable.

An obvious step - check your yard or nearby vacant lots for ragweed, and take measures to get rid of it. Repeated digging and cutting may be necessary in the yard; vacant lots may be sprayed.

Other dusts can be a problem, too. Air purifier units can help. And hay fever shots administered by a physician before the season starts and antihistamine drugs also may provide relief.

BRIDE-ELECT -- Mr. and Mrs. Robert John Lewis of Indianapolis, Ind., announce the engagement of their daughter, Suzanne, to John Gerald Doggett Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Doggett, 915 N. Somerville, Pampa. A November wedding is planned.

Pointers Given To Teenage Girls Concerning Fashions And Figures

Today's teens are lucky: you need no fairy godmother to make your dreams of pretty clothes and a pretty face and figure come true!

You can wave your own magic wand — by eating the right foods in sensible quantities, getting enough sleep and enough exercise, selecting fashions with the lines and proportions that flatter your figure, making the most of natural assets with make-up, and wearing the proper foundations.

If you are tall, go in for bulky fabrics, big prints and plaids, dramatic coats, bloused tops and flaring skirts, contrasting separates.

Mrs. Kinard Feted At Farewell Party
Mrs. Knox Kinard was honored with a farewell party by members of the El Progreso Club in the home of Mrs. Carlton Nance, 1334 N. Russell.

A gift from the club of a silver letter opener was presented to Mrs. Kinard by Mrs. Grundy Morrison, who read an original poem during the presentation.

The serving table was covered with a white cutwork cloth, centered with a cascade arrangement of fall flowers. Refreshments of a fruit plate, cheese biscuits, miniature sweet rolls and coffee were served.

Mrs. Jess Clay, club president, presided at the silver coffee service.

Guests for the event were Mrs. Hazel Riggsbee of Hobart, Okla., and Mrs. Charles Kinsey of Casper, Wyo. Members present were Mmes. T. A. Perkins, G. C. Walstand, G. H. Newberry, V. J. Drew, George Hrdlicka, Rex H. McAnnelly, D. V. Burton, Elmer Fisher, Bob McCoy, Glenn Radcliff, Grundy Morrison, Harold Wright, J. F. Curtis and Jess Clay.

Tell the saleswoman what you are looking for: a bra to wear under sweaters, or one to wear under a dance dress; a pantie girdle to wear under skirts, or one to wear under slacks. For sweaters, the Corset and Brassiere Council suggests brassieres with minimum seaming to mold a smooth line, while for dance dresses there are teen-sized brassieres with convertible straps to suit different necklines. And the pantie girdle you wear under slacks will have longer legs than the one you wear under pleated or flaring skirts.

Have a wardrobe of foundations — not only for different fashions, but also to permit frequent laundering. Sundry bras and girdles, and putting them on properly, makes them last longer. Check tags and labels for care instructions.

Be sure your foundations are comfortable. One that's too tight wears it out in no time — if you wear it at all! On the other hand, one that's too loose can't do a thing for your figure. A bra or girdle is meant to shape, not to sag.

A brassiere's hand should lie flat beneath the shoulder blades, never bind or ride up. Straps should feel secure, cup fit smooth. And bend over in a strapless bra before you buy it, to make sure it follows the figure as you move.

Lefors Bride Feted At Wedding Shower

LEFORS (Sp) — Mrs. DeWayne Furgason was honored with a wedding shower in the civic center recently.

Hostesses for the event were Meses Daniel Rose, John Roberts, Bob Fish, J. B. Martin, Charles Roberts, Ann Glover, Ray Collins, Francis Cox, Alton Flinchum and O. R. Henry.

Mrs. Larry Stroud registered the guests in the bride's book at a table decorated with a dahlia in a crystal vase.

The honoree was presented a corsage of measuring spoons arranged on a dish cloth tied with pink and white ribbons.

The honoree was seated with her mother, Mrs. Royal Myres, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. G. H. Furgason, at the gift table covered with a pink cloth.

The serving table was centered with an arrangement of pink roses. The tablecloth was pink, the sheet cake was decorated with wedding bells, and the crystal punch service contained pink punch. Pink and white napkins were used, and favors were pink nutcrackers decorated with wedding bells and the date of the wedding.

Add Flair To Meal With Tomato Dish

Ripe red tomatoes are such a wonderful way to add color to a dinner plate that they have been favorites with homemakers for years. Here's a seasonal suggestion: sprinkle them lightly with herbs, saute them in butter and simmer them in Burgundy, the hearty red dinner wine from California. They will earn you a reputation as a cook with flair.

FRIED TOMATOES

- (Serves 6)
- 6 firm fresh tomatoes (medium size)
- 1/4 cup sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1/2 teaspoon rosemary or thyme
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons brown sugar
- 2-3 cup California Burgundy or other red dinner wine

Core tomatoes; remove skin if desired. Cut each tomato in half. Combine flour, salt and rosemary. Dredge tomatoes in seasoned flour. Saute on both sides over moderate heat in melted butter. Add sugar and wine; continue cooking until tomatoes are tender, about 5 minutes. Serve with any surrounding liquid.

Dear Abby... Give In A Little, Or Face The Music

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Sunday is the only full day my boy friend and I like together. It is also the day I like to wash and set my hair.

He told me one time that he didn't like to see me with a "headful of iron," as he put it. My hair is very straight, and I have to use those large rollers. Well, last Sunday he blew his stack. He came over and I had those rollers in my hair, so he left early and went bowling with a boy friend.

Abby, we are getting married in four months, and he will have to get used to seeing me with a headful of iron. He thinks my hair looks beautiful when it is all done, so I can't understand his objections. We are both very stubborn. Is there a solution to my problem?

"IRON HEAD"

DEAR IRON: Wash and set your hair in the morning when your boy friend isn't around. And use one of those portable electric hand dryers (they aren't expensive) to dry it quickly. DON'T insist on shoving those rollers down his throat or you'll be the prettiest old maid on the block.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a very upsetting one. I can't match colors for the life of me. I thought I could match colors pretty well, but I guess I can't, because almost every time I go out in public, someone says something about the way my colors clash. Is there some rule I can go by? I am getting so self-conscious about this that I don't want to wear anything but all black.

"COLOR BLIND"

DEAR COLOR BLIND: Perhaps you ARE "color blind." Have your eyes tested for color perception. If they are all right (even if they are not), buy "ensembles" with the guidance of a sales person, and wear the outfits together, as you bought them.

DEAR ABBY: We have trained our children never to address an adult by his first name, but always by "Mr. or "Mrs." We have some neighbors who have a little girl the age of our daughter. Our daughter is at their home a great deal. The child's mother has asked our daughter to please call her HILDA. Now, our daughter is confused. She doesn't think it is right to call this woman HILDA, but when she calls her MRS. R., the woman corrects her and asks her to please call her HILDA. How should we handle this?

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Tell your daughter to address adults by "Mr." or "Mrs." unless asked to be addressed otherwise.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JOE: Give some people an inch and they'll take a mile.

"Are things rough?" Let Abby help you solve your problem. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and send to Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

White Appliances Add Note Of Color To Modern Kitchen

White appliances can help to add a note of color (that's right) to any kitchen.

To have a bright, cheerful kitchen the large appliances — stove, refrigerator, washing machine — do not necessarily have to be in gaudy colors.

Many homemakers recommend using bright color accents in kitchen decor that contrast with the large all-white appliances.

One way to add a bright note of color is with real ceramic tile countertops and splashbacks. Practical ceramic tile is available in a wide variety of colors and patterns that can color-accent any kitchen.

The durability of waterproof ceramic tile adds an extra bonus of practicality for the busy homemaker.

A colorfully painted soffit, with matching curtain colors, is another way to add bright accents to your kitchen. The large white appliances provide the neutral background for the color accents.

All white appliances provide the ideal neutral background for the bright color scheme.

Lay Lifetime Claim To Cooking Island

"No man is an island," said a poet long ago.

"No woman should be without an island," say many of today's modern home designers and architects — a cooking island that is.

A cooking island can be defined as "a body of convenience completely surrounded by kitchen floor, invariably found in the home of a happy housewife." Details include built-in burners set in a surface of ceramic tile, which can't with the sharpest, hottest or heaviest scratched, scorched or dented with the sharpest, hottest or heaviest cooking equipment.

With a cooking island in the center of your kitchen, food preparation, storage and cleaning areas are brought within easy access of the burners — the heart of your meal preparation system.

Variations of the basic set-up can provide even greater convenience and time-saving. For instance, storage areas and/or food warmers can be installed right in the cooking island itself. In larger kitchens, two sinks might be installed — one on either end — so that one can be used for food preparation and the other to stack soiled dishes.

Another variation is to raise the cooking island on legs so that there are no hard-to-clean corners, and the floor can be kept dirt-free with less effort. Unglazed ceramic tile is excellent for use on kitchen floors because of its resistance to stains, easy cleaning and lasting beauty.

These are just a few of the reasons why the number of cooking islands is increasing in the world in direct proportion to the number of women "discovering" them. And once a housewife lays claim to an island like this, her dominion is destined to last a lifetime.

Bleach should be added to the wash water before cotton clothes are placed in an automatic washing machine. Pouring undiluted bleach on clothes may damage or weaken the fabric.

The first part of last week, Mrs. Enloe visited Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davis and sons, Andrew and Mark, in Perryton. Mrs. Davis is Mrs. Enloe's daughter.

We are glad to learn that Guy Dunwoody is improved in health, and we have hope of his being back with his wife and friends soon.

Uncle Billy Frost is just a litterbug at the Senior Center! He goes to all the tables and litters all their games by making all of the players shake hands with him.

Mrs. Lee Harris went to Elk City, Okla., Tuesday to be with her son, who was to be operated on. Mrs. Louise Sewell, senior center chairman, Mrs. Gladys Harkins, Altrusa president, Uncle Billy

Mrs. Ray Anderson, both of Miami; and Mrs. Harry Hardin of Miami, an aunt of the bride.

For the wedding trip to Denver, the bride wore a fawn-colored suit with black accessories. Her corsage was the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in Abilene where both will be seniors at McMurry College.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride was graduated from Miami High School and attends McMurry College where she is a member of Gamma Sigma social club. She was chosen Kiva Sweetheart her junior year, and she has served on the dormitory council.

The bridegroom was graduated from High School in Portales, N.M., and attends McMurry college, where he is a member of the Kiva social club. He has served as captain of the track team for the past two years.

Among the pre-nuptial events was a rehearsal dinner for the bridal party at the Black Gold restaurant in Pampa given by Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Rankin, parents of the bridegroom.

Frost and Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Norris were asked to meet with Hank Huntley of KHHH radio station to tell what we know about the Senior Center and the Altrusa Club. I told them I was at their first meeting and had not missed a meeting, except for illness, in five years. I think it is the most wonderful project I know of. I know the Altrusa Club and the other clubs that have helped to entertain us have been happy when they saw how happy the group was at these meetings. It gives the Seniors something to think about other than the ups and downs of this life. We thank Mr. Huntley for meeting with us.

The Seniors are celebrating their fifth anniversary and would like the Altrusans and Grey Ladies to be present at their party Sept. 14. Mrs. E. B. Smith visited with Corinne B. Smith, her daughter, in Augusta, Kans., last Friday.

There's Still Time For Seeding Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's too early to let your summer garden go to seed says the National Garden Bureau. There's still time to plant seeds for beans, beets, cabbage, lettuce, onions, peas, radishes and sweet corn for late summer harvest.

The bureau offered these tips for late planting:

Soak furrows thoroughly with water before planting. Plant the seeds a little deeper than you would in the spring and cover them with dry soil. Tamp seeds down lightly.

To protect tiny seedlings from the sun, cover them with a light mulch. Boards also may be used to shade vegetable rows. If you water regularly after planting, keep it up after seedlings come up. Select quick-growing varieties for these plantings.

And don't forget to weed, hoe and do all the other back-breaking chores that contribute to the making of a bumper crop.

Listening to recorded classics, poetry and conversational French stretches this homemaker's imagination and mental muscles while she tends to the routine task of letting down hems in the children's clothes. The new portable player features three speaker stereophonic high fidelity.

Listening To Recorded Stories, Poetry Stretches Housewife's Mental Muscles

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
A frequent lament among homemakers is their lack of time for reading. The steady unremitting round of homemaking duties leaves little time for relaxed reading and even less for reading material that requires greater concentration.
At the end of a full day, my concentration powers are at low ebb, and my eyes fall shut if confronted by anything more demanding than light fiction, a whodunit or the newspaper comics.
After a sound sleep, morning finds the brain clear and fresh and able to concentrate. I have made time for reading, literally, by waking up an hour earlier.
That's not very long but it's an hour when the children are still asleep, the telephone is quiet and there are no other demands on my time. My reading choices for these early hours lean toward non-fiction, toward religion, history, current exploration and foreign affairs.

This summer I added another approach to reading and exercising the mental muscles. Sparked by a friend of mine, I am trying her suggestion for doing two things at once — listening to classic literature via the record player while working on routine tasks.
With hems to adjust on school clothing and six dining room chairs to refinish and upholster this seemed like a splendid time to try. The list of talking classic literature selections and of authors and poets reading their own works is impressive. Our record player has the 18 rpm setting needed for the commercial talking books.
Some reading material is also recorded at 33 rpm. The prices of these records are about the same as for a book. Some have printed material to read along while listening. Besides listening to stories and poetry, you can refresh your knowledge of a foreign language. Conversational French for example, is one choice. Our public library also has records as well as books for the lending.

Our record player is in a non-portable cabinet and this proved to be a certain disadvantage. I moved it as close to the porch—where the furniture is "in process"—as I could and the sound was quite satisfactory.
One of the interesting points, to me, about the new record players is the introduction of a three-speaker stereophonic high fidelity. One new one, for example, could be carried to the kitchen counter or the basement work bench.
Speakers in two detachable wings may be unhinged from the unit to give a three-dimensional blending of sounds. While this is of importance in clarity of musical

★ Polly's Quiz ★

By Polly Cramer

In recent years, felt has felt its way to the top of a heap of decorating fabrics. It's natural for the clever home decorator who can't sew a stitch.

No sewing is necessary for felt curtains, either the short, cafe lengths or floor-length draperies. These can have straight cut or pinked edges and are clipped to brass curtain rings to slip cover the rod.

Back and seat pads on wooden arm chairs take readily to felt for covering. Nothing could be smarter as a cover for a footstool. Glue it right into the stool frame. It's easier than refinishing scarred wood. And of course, you all know what a floor-length circular felt skirt will do for an old round table.

Dear Polly: I understand that you recently answered a question about using family portraits for the living room walls. Is it true that they are now acceptable when properly framed?—E. McN.

Dear E. McN.: In the South, where I came from, "they" never did stop using family portraits (that is, paintings), in the living room. Newcomers who had none sometimes had a hard time making the grade. Crowding the living room with family photographs is a different story.

Dear Polly: We have light beige walls, solid beige drapes and a pale-beige brocade sofa in the living room. I have a forest green performance, the spoken word benefits from the richer sound reproduction, too.

In practice I find I can sew measure, paint, cut fabric or foam rubber while listening and not lose the thread of thought. Sandpapering surfaces is too noisy to hear a record properly. When I must concentrate on exact measurements, or intricate piecing of fabric, I suspend the readings. Don't forget to listen to some of the children's classics; both you and the youngsters will be delighted.

sofa I may or may not use. I have some beautiful antique blown glass in amber and orange that I'd like to include in the scheme. What color for carpet, four new chairs, lamps and lamp shades? Furniture is traditional dark mahogany. We would like the room to look comfortable and inviting—Mrs. A. H.
Dear Mrs. A. H.: Your new rug could be either green or a brown-and-green tweed. A pair of wing-back chairs might be covered in an orange-and-brown linen weave.

two occasional chairs could have seat and back pads of green-and-beige stripes. Do place your antique glass where the light will shine through it. Brass lamp bases with metallic gold paper shades should look smart.

Do remember that pleasant furniture arrangements and skillfully paced accessories do a lot to make a room inviting even though the color scheme is just so.

Dear Reader: A heavy volume of mail doesn't permit Mrs. Cramer to answer her letters and post cards individually. But she will comment in her column on decorating problems of general interest. She cannot undertake to return floor plans or fabric swatches which are enclosed with letters.

Making Girl Scout Sit-Upon is Easy

Your Girl Scout daughter can have her own light weight "sit-upon" for use on hikes and field trips this fall.

It's easy and inexpensive to make one at home. You'll need padding, such as newspaper, absorbent cotton or paper towels; Marvalon adhesive covering; one and one-half yards of cotton tape for a belt; about six yards of heavy knitting yarn, if you'd like to trim the sit-upon; scissors and a ruler.

First, cut the adhesive covering 14 inches by 28 inches; then remove the backing sheet and place the covering material on a flat surface, adhesive side up. Lay your padding in one strip, 26 inches by 11 inches, to half the desired thickness and place it on the covering material so there's a one-inch border. Now put the cotton tape across the middle, fold over and seal the one-inch edges together and cut round corners away from the fold.

To add trim, punch holes one inch from the edge of the sit-upon, fasten yarn and blanket stitch through the holes and around the edge, using a double strand of yarn.

With the wide variety of colors and patterns available in covering material, your Girl Scout's "sit-upon" will be both comfortable and colorful. It's easy to care for, too, since the plastic-coated covering material may be wiped clean with a damp cloth.

If bubbles form when you varnish, they can be removed before they dry by brushing them back into the surface with light feathering strokes of a nearly dry brush before the varnish sets. One way to avoid bubbles is not to stir or shake varnish. Secondly, do not brush varnish out vigorously as you do paint. Instead, flow the varnish on smoothly from a well-loaded brush with as few strokes as possible.

Judith Leland, Wayne Wood Are United In Marriage

Miss Judith Ann Leland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Leland, 104 N. Nelson, and J. Wayne Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wood, 721 E. 15th St., were united in marriage at 2 p.m. Aug. 20, in the parlor of the First Baptist Church. Dr. E. Douglas Carver officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white imported silk over nylon taffeta. The fitted bodice, enhanced by an embroidered floral motif, was styled with a soft roll collar that came to a "low V" in the back and brief cap sleeves. The bouffant waltz-length skirt, enhanced by an embroidered floral motif, featured a large bow of peau de soie at the waistline in the back. She wore short lace mitts, and her only jewelry was a diamond pendant, a gift of the bridegroom.

Her scalloped, shoulder-length veil of French illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls, and she carried a bridal Bible topped with a bouquet of white roses with cascading satin streamers tied in love knots.

For something old, she carried a lace handkerchief belonging to her grandmother; for something borrowed, she placed a sixpence, borrowed from her matron of honor, in her shoe; and for something blue, she wore the traditional garter.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. T. G. McGlohon, of Amarillo, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in a red silk organza dress, fashioned with a scoop neckline and bouffant skirt. Her headpiece was a hat of white veiling featuring a large white organza bow. Her corsage was of white feathered carnations.

Mike Johnson of Nocona served as best man, and Carroll Wood, brother of the bridegroom, was usher.

CEREMONY

Decorations for the ceremony included basket arrangements of white gladioli and fern. Miss Patricia Oakes of Amarillo, cousin of the bride, was pianist, playing traditional wedding music. Joe Whitten, vocalist, sang "Because," and, as the couple knelt on the satin-covered prie dieu, he sang "The Lord's Prayer" as a benediction.

Mrs. Leland, mother of the bride, wore a beige sheath of embroidered cotton satin with beige accessories. Mrs. Wood, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a navy blue silk sheath with rose accessories. Both wore corsages of pink sweetheart roses.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for a short wedding trip to New Mexico. The bride wore her wedding dress, and her corsage was of white roses from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will be at home at 5130 Bowie, Amarillo.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride was graduated from Pampa High School in 1960 and from the Pampa College of Hair-

Indications Are Apparent For Revival Of Lost Art Of Yeast-Bread Baking

By JEANNE LESEM
NEW YORK (UPI) — Yeast baking now is so popular that a Providence, R. I., gas company received more than twice as many ticket requests as it could handle for a two and one-half hour bread baking demonstration.

When two sessions failed to meet this demand, the firm launched two months of participation classes.

This revival of a lost art was documented for me by America's largest yeast manufacturer (Standard Brands, Inc.). Company files also revealed:

In a St. Louis suburb, University City, homemakers told the Adult Evening School that yeast bread recipes were among those they most wanted to learn about.

In Minneapolis, students in the adult homemaking program made the same demand. Most Minneapolis participants are young homemakers or prospective homemakers.

But classes also include bachelors, a widower and a cook for a charity home that feeds homeless men.

In Pomona, Calif., Mrs. C. W. Henderson thanked the manufacturer for a yeast baking award at the Los Angeles County Fair.

She recalled her childhood in the gay nineties when a penny bought enough yeast for a day's baking. Today's price is about a nickel a package.

AVERAGE BAKER

Another prize winner is teenager Kathleen Stowe, Atlantic, Iowa, who defeated 85 other youngsters at the Cass County 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America Fair. Kathleen is among today's typical average home bakers, says the manufacturer. Seventy per cent of them are under 55 years old.

Most are in small families. Most bake plain bread and rolls, but there is increasing use of yeast to make variety breads, such as onion and herb, coffee cakes like kugelhupf and striesel, and holiday breads like kulich, a Russian Christmas speciality.

The Midwest, Northeast and Pacific Northwest do the most home baking with yeast, the manufacturer said.

REASONS

The reasons most often cited for this renewed interest in yeast baking are pride of accomplishment and childhood memories.

Other factors are new easy-to-make yeast recipes and the convenience of active dry yeast, which has a long shelf life. About 75 per cent of all yeast sold is the active, dry type. The compressed, wet type is preferred mostly by women with close ties to old country ethnic groups.

WORLD - WIDE

Even some old world homemakers want to learn yeast baking. A woman who signed herself L. Barbosa, Beira, Portuguese East Africa, wrote to ask for literature and recipes for herself and her sister, in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia.

A packaged mix manufacturer Swansdown, also is contributing to the trend. It is currently test marketing in limited areas mixes for white, cinnamon, raisin and rye bread.

ONION BREAD

NEW YORK (UPI) — Onion bread, adapted from Italian focaccia, is crisp and crusty. This recipe is from Holiday Breads, one of two excellent bread-making pamphlets distributed free by the United States' largest yeast manufacturer.

Sprinkle 1 package of active dry yeast into 1 cup of warm, not hot, water. Or crumble 1 cake of compressed yeast into 1 cup of lukewarm water. Stir until dissolved. Add 2 teaspoons of sugar, 1 teaspoon of salt and 2 cups of sifted flour. Stir to blend. Beat thoroughly.

Stir in 1/2 cup more sifted flour. Sprinkle about 1/4 cup of flour on pastry cloth or board. Turn dough out on flour. Knead 5 to 7 minutes, or until dough is smooth and satiny, adding 1/4 cup more sifted flour as needed. Shape dough into smooth ball. Put into greased bowl. Cover and let rise about 1 hour, or until doubled.

Punch down. Divide into halves. Let rest 5 minutes. Pat dough into 2 greased 9-inch layer cake pans or 2 (8-by-8 - inch) pans or shape into flat rounds 1/2 inch thick on a greased baking sheet.

Brush tops with melted margarine or butter. Sprinkle evenly over tops 1/2 cup of coarsely chopped onion. With thumb or fingertips punch onions down into dough so that entire surface looks dented. Let rise about 45 minutes, or until doubled.

Sprinkle lightly with 1/2 teaspoon of salt and dust generously with 2 teaspoons of paprika. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in a preheated 450-degree oven. Serve hot or cold.

Unique Chicken Dish Is Fancy Grillwork

NEW YORK (UPI) — Orange-olive grilled chicken represents fancy grillwork. Combine 1 (6-ounce) can of frozen orange juice concentrate with 1 cup of water, 1/2 cup of chopped pimiento-stuffed olives and 1-3 cup of chopped chives. Mix well. Marinate 1 (3-pound) frying chicken, cut in serving pieces, in this sauce 1 hour, turning occasionally.

Removed chicken. Reserve marinade. Broil chicken about 5 or 6 inches from heat source 15 minutes on each side, or until chicken is tender. Brush with marinade frequently while broiling.

The pin is the biggest standout in the fall jewelry market. A beautiful pin at a collarless neckline of a new simple dress makes it fashion right. A pin used to accent some fashion point of the clothes—such as a hip-bugging sash, plumb center in a bias bodice—looks chic.

Popular Lunch For School Days

Soup and a sandwich! That's the answer to a satisfying lunch for children home from school. The combination—a favorite one with first graders to teen-agers. For a tempting bowl of goodness, serve a hearty soup duet... canned condensed bean with bacon soup mixed with rosy red tomato soup... studded with slices of canned Vienna sausage. All are handy pantry shelf foods that go together so easily and so well. Make the sandwich hearty too! Arrange slices of American cheese, tomato and lettuce on a toasted frankfurter roll. Garnish with stuffed olives and small sweet pickles. Sugar coated doughnuts and bright red apples to eat out of hand complete the "school day" lunch.

Rosy Bean With Bacon Bowl

1 can (1 1/2 ounces) condensed tomato soup
2 soup cans water

Unmarried Reader
Counts Blessings

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. "There's no reason why unmarried women can't count their blessings the way married women count theirs," says one of my unmarried readers. "We may be missing a lot, but we do have some things to be thankful for. "When I put a dent in the fender of my car, I don't have to worry about what George will say, the way my married friends do. "When I am extravagant, I don't have to try to justify it to George or explain how I just couldn't resist the thing in split of the price tag. "When I want to change my hair style or even the color, I don't have to worry for fear George won't like it. "When I'm not in the mood for cooking I can eat out or make do with a sandwich. There's never that nagging worry, 'What am I going to give George for dinner tonight?' And, when I am on a diet, I don't have to sit and watch George eat a steak with French fries. "Not being married to the mythical George, I don't have a nym-law problems, which is no small blessing, if in-laws are as big a headache as many of my married friend claim they are. "I spend my holidays the way I want to spend them instead of having to go where George wants to go. ### The Mature Parent Many Methods Used In Facing Uncertainty

(Mrs. Muriel Lawrence is on vacation. This is the second of three articles which will appear during her absence taken from "The Quest for Certainty" by Drs. Emanuel K. Schwartz and Alexander Wolf. The material first appeared in the January 1959 issue of the AMA Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry. (Reprinted with the permission of the authors and publisher.)

(EXCERPT 2 FROM "THE QUEST FOR CERTAINTY" BY DR. EMANUEL K. SCHWARTZ AND ALEXANDER WOLF.

People have many methods for dealing with uncertainty and attempting to achieve certainty.

One neurotic way is to withdraw from or avoid the uncertain situation — for example, the person who will not make a public address because of his uncertainty about himself or how his material will be received; or the person who will not get married because he cannot be certain of the outcome.

Another neurotic way is to force oneself, regardless of the reality to submit to the anxiety and uncertainty of the situation hoping at last to be desensitized to the threat of uncertainty.

Such a person might be one who, even though physically ill, finds himself unable to face the reality of physical illness and forces himself to undertake activities that his present resources do not warrant.

Equality and inequality are frequently fused with certainty maneuvers. There are persons who feel certain only if they are top dogs, if they are in a superior position, and who feel threatened at the possibility of equal achievement by another. They must experience everyone else as compliant, submissive.

Then there is the person who is uncertain if he is in a leading position and feels secure only if the other is top dog, makes the decisions, exercises the control. Both are neurotic maneuvers to obtain certainty.

The more realistic approach would be to tolerate uniqueness, difference — one of the aims of psychotherapy.

There seem to be persons who must always be blameless, be perfect, be right and always fix the blame and wrongness elsewhere. Some parents continuously blame the child under the guise of trying to fix "responsibility."

They are really fixing guilt in the child under the pretext of trying to establish a sense of responsibility in him.

A more appropriate way of becoming certain is to be selective about what one can do, what one cannot do — and to struggle.

Based upon a realistic evaluation of the real facts in the external situation and a realistic one of one's own resources and potentials, a happy integration and matching of real abilities and real demands lead to more certain conclusions as to what the outcomes will be within certain and inevitable limits.

Egg Citrus Coolers Give Pleasant Drink

GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Eggs, milk and citrus juice are all first-grade foods, rating high in nutrition. Combine them into an egg citrus cooler and you have a very pleasant beverage that can be used as a snack, a light meal or just as a bracing cooler.

EGG CITRUS COOLER

(Makes 8 servings)
1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate
1 can (6 ounces) frozen lemonade concentrate
2 eggs

In a large mixing bowl, dilute frozen concentrates with water according to directions on cans. Add eggs, and beat with electric or rotary beater until frothy and well-blended. Serve icy cold in tall chilled glasses, garnished with orange and lemon slices if desired.

Here's another variation of the egg and citrus theme:

ORANGE EGGNOG

(Makes one 10-ounce glass)
1 egg
3/4 cup fresh orange juice
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon sugar or honey
Blend ingredients with an egg beater, or blend in an electric blender for a few seconds.

A DILLY
NEW YORK (UPI) — Make dilly french fries the easy way, by browning frozen french fries in an outdoor grill or top burner of a slightly greased fry pan on an outdoor grill or top burner of a stove. Before serving, sprinkle with dill salt or salt and dried dill weed. Toss gently to coat.

SUCCESSFUL SWEET SMELLS

Don't forget what subtle and unexpected infusions of light perfume can do, when you open your purse to pull out a handkerchief or when you throw off a light summer wrap. They leave an aura of feminine daintiness.

The art of making a bath into a beauty ritual begins (left) with a cupful of fresh lemon-and-orange scented bath oil. The oil softens the water and helps to relax you, its makers say. Next, relax for at least twenty minutes (center). For much of the time, keep your shoulders immersed. As a final touch, follow your bath with a moisturizing lotion, then pat on a fragrant bath powder (right). A bath of this kind relieves both tension and fatigue.

Mary Picken On Sewing

Use Self-Fabric For Dress Trimming

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. The nicer the dress the less extraneous trimming it has. Designers like to use the same fabric whenever possible as the basic trimming on a dress. We have never had a better year for self-fabric trimming. Loops, soft bows, bowed belts, lapped-over belts, all is stitched in at each end three times for ease in turning the piece right side out.

Notice how the corners are clipped away to avoid bulk at the ends. Turn the strip right side out; push corners out squarely; clip the cords away; press the ends, then turn the edges in and are made of the dress fabric. Bows and belts usually are best cut on the length of the fabric. Piecing is permissible and often necessary. The illustration below indicates how two pieces can be joined on the crosswise (A) to obtain the desired length. Notice — (B) and (C) — how a strong piece of cord stitch the opening together. Press. There is a lightweight "press on" material that you can attach to your fabric before you fold it for stitching. This will help your bow or belt keep its shape. The belt or sash can be wider or narrower than shown in the illustration. Decide the width most becoming to you. Remember, before cutting allow enough fabric for the seams. Stitch with the fabric grain and press thoroughly. The pattern you are using may not call for this kind of trimming. But, it might be just the thing to make your dress unique. Self-trimming is fashionable and, carefully made, enhances a garment very much.

Dear Mrs. Picken: How do you stitch rick-rack in place? — M. G. Dear M. G.: If rick-rack is used to finish an edge, I turn edge 1/2 inch to right side, stitch through center of rick-rack and on the edge turn. If jumbo rick-rack is used on garment as a trim, I stitch top and bottom or apply with large zigzag stitch. Tiny rick-rack — one row of stitching or catch points by hand.

Making Daily Bath A Beauty Ritual Encourages Youthful Appearance

A relaxing bath is a pleasurable pursuit at any time. But it's particularly rewarding during the late summer.

Since the beginning of time, the bath has been a mark of luxury and beauty. Cleanliness wasn't the original intent of the ritual. Roman women languished in marble tubs filled with crushed strawberries and gallons of milk. They covered their bodies with oils and scented herbs. The purpose was to encourage a youthful skin and counteract dryness.

Today, of course, cleanliness is the primary purpose of the bath. But why not combine cleanliness with all the time-proved benefits of the bath as well? You don't need milk or strawberries to do the trick. The cosmetic industry has given you all the emollient and scented benefits in pretty packaged containers for a truly beneficial beauty bath.

First, have on hand a supply of beauty bath necessities: bath oil, after bath skin freshener, a moisturizing lotion and a fine dusting powder.

Provide yourself with freshly clean, soft absorbent towels and a washcloth. Take a good book with you, and then close the bathroom door. You're ready for a relaxing beauty treatment. Fill the tub as high as possible with warm water, and scent the water with either bubbling or dry skin bath oil. One such is scented with a delightful fresh lemon and orange-fragrance.

Now, put on a cap or scarf to protect your hair, and ease slowly into the bath. Lean back comfortably for 20 minutes of quiet relaxation. Or read while the warm water soaks away tension.

After soaking and sudsing till you've had enough, let the sudsy water run out, as you refill the tub with clean, warm water. Every care will go down the drain with the suds.

Then step leisurely out of the tub and wrap yourself in a soft large terry towel.

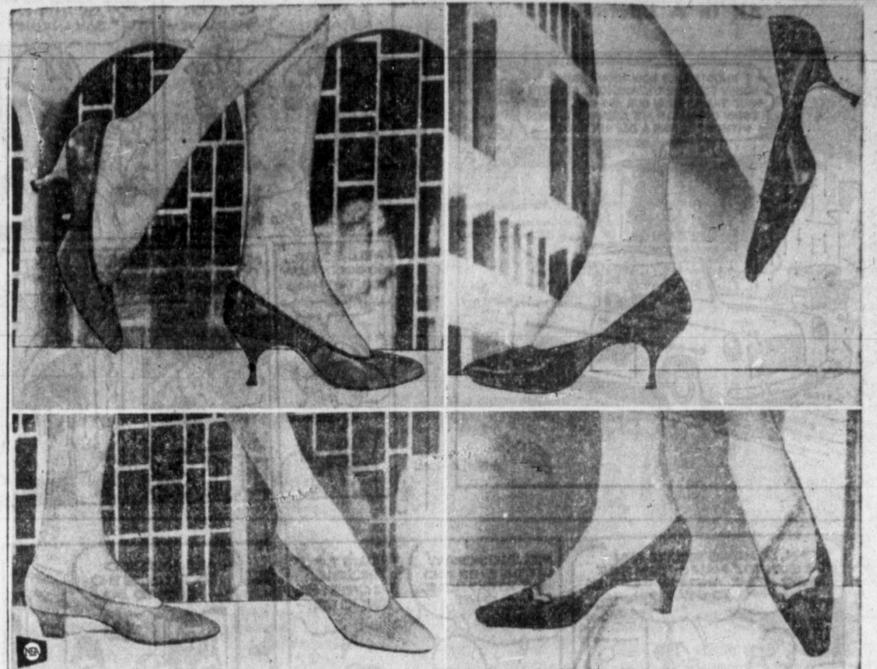

The personal, private luxury of the beauty bath is available to every woman who wants to feel and look lovely.

SMILE Many women forget that facial expression is just as important to their appearance as a beautiful complexion or attractive features. If you look glum or irritable, it goes without saying, you won't look beautiful.

FASHION FACES—Three interesting faces on the fashion scene. They're among the models who showed fall-winter fashions in Paris: Olga, left, Karen, right, and Varia, below. Make-up still appears centered about the eyes this season.

Hoe Down

With these hot sunny days are you having trouble keeping your flower beds moist? Do your beds crack and bake only a few days after rains or watering? One solution to this problem is providing a heavy mulch.

Just exactly what is a mulch? A mulch is any substance, usually of organic matter, spread upon the soil. Growing ground covers are, in actuality, living mulches. What are the purposes of mulches? Mulches conserve precious water by preventing it from running off, shade the soil, and in some cases certain mulches absorb the water. The shading of the soil not only reduces evaporation, but also reduces the soil temperature below that of the surrounding atmosphere. Bulbs and perennials under mulches will appear above soil somewhat later than those unprotected by mulches. Thus these mulched plants coming up at later dates have the advantages of blooming later during more favorable weather. Mulches also add humus, the broken down organic fraction of the soil, the vital part of any garden soil. Mulches are a necessity for shallow-rooted plants, such as chrysanthemums and coleus.

What materials can be used as mulches? There are many materials which can be used as mulches and among the more common are sawdust, hay, cotton seed, rice or peanut hulls, excelsior, shredded paper and grass clippings. In some instances pea-gravel and feather lime, a small, black volcanic gravel, are used, and their effect is most striking. Caution should be used when using Bermuda grass clippings for one should spread and turn the grass several times for at least one week to completely kill all vegetative parts of the grass. If a grass mulch is put around plants while still green, the heat generated by the green-decaying grass clippings is sufficient to kill plants.

One should avoid using mulches of cotton burrs and evergreen needles. Cotton burrs, not to be confused with cotton seed hulls, are high in potassium, and when the burrs finally decompose, the resulting total concentration of potassium in the soil is high enough to kill and prohibit plant growth for several years. Pine needles release resins upon their decomposition in the soil. These resins are effective in sterilizing the soil beneath the trees, and this is one reason why one seldom sees but a few plants growing at the base or under coniferous evergreens.

If one has sufficient mulching material, the past season's mulch should be turned under in the fall, allowed to decompose and enrich the soil with organic matter before the new cover of mulch is applied. As with all organic matter that is turned in the soil, a good supply of a water-soluble, nitrogen fertilizer should be added to the bed when the mulch is turned under. The nitrogen helps in decomposition of the organic matter, and yet, at the same time, provides

Ceramic Tile Walls Best For Laundry

Most laundry utility rooms have on thing in common; they are subject to excess amounts of steam. Steam, when it comes in contact with cooler walls of the room, condenses and creates a moisture problem. Even rooms that are specifically vented for steam should have walls that are impervious to moisture. An easy way to solve the moisture problem is to have utility room walls moisture drying on ceramic tile walls will not leave a permanent water stain, and can be wiped clean with a damp cloth.

GRAB TWO On way to increase the safety of your bathroom — the most accident-prone room in your house — is to install two ceramic grab-bars in your bath and shower enclosure. Set one low, just above the tub line, and the second at a convenient height for the average adult. Two grab-bars set firmly in the ceramic tile wall will give an extra measure of safety in slippery tub areas. The lower bar should be in easy reach of youngsters.

ROOM FOR MUDDERS A fall rainy season means one thing for sure for the busy homemaker with young children: muddy feet. What youngster won't go out of his way to sample a good mud puddle? One way to ease the mud cleanup problem is to have an entrance-way surfaced with an easy-to-clean material such as ceramic tile. Waterproof ceramic tile needs no special care. Just a swish with a damp mop does the trick.

Why New Berlin Pact?

Some foreign affairs specialists and observers say negotiation with Russia over Berlin is not only a wise course generally but that specifically we need an agreement strengthening our legal position in the city and our rights of access to it.

The argument runs that we are increasingly shaky ground when we just go on reasserting that these rights are rooted in our status as coequalers of Germany in World War II. It is said we should have from Moscow fuller written recognition of our position.

Well, if a kind of summit pact setting forth our Berlin rights, especially those of access, is really called for, then how about this language:

"The governments of France, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States agree that the New York agreement of May 4, 1949, shall be maintained. (That agreement ended the Berlin blockade.)

"Moreover, in order to improve and supplement this and other arrangements and agreements as regards the movement of persons and goods and communication between East Germany and West Germany, and between these areas and Berlin, and also in regard to transit, the authorities will have an obligation to take the measures necessary to insure the normal functioning and for such movement of persons and goods and such communications by mail, telephone and telegraph."

That puts it in pretty broad terms, but it covers virtually everything having to do with Western access to Berlin from West Germany, and the flow of people from East Germany through Berlin to the West. Besides, it has a nice legal tone.

So, if it should later be decided that Secretary of State Dean Rusk and allied diplomats should sit down to talk with the Russians about Berlin, why not propose something like this?

The answer is that — except for minor changes of wording and punctuation — the above quoted passage is in fact the formal agreement we now have with the Soviet Union. It was accepted by Moscow at a Paris meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers June 30, 1949, one month and eight days after the famous blockade was lifted.

Now it is proposed, therefore, that Western diplomats meet with the Russians, signatories to the above broad yet defined pact to sign a new agreement replacing this perfectly good one the Kremlin indicates today it does not want to keep.

Ouster Needed

To have a sound money system, politicians and government must be banned from manipulating and controlling the currency and credit of a nation.

Socialism's Folly

The proper antonym of socialism (or any of its sisters) is individualism. In ethics, the socialist takes the position that the individual is of no moment. He can readily be sacrificed for the "good" of the social structure, society.

The individualist takes the position that the rights of the individual are sacred. He believes that no social "good" can be attained in a society where at any time, any individual can be enslaved, taxed or eliminated in favor of a larger unit of society or of society as a whole.

The concept of socialism arises from cannibalism, which is a type of statism not normally inherent in savage societies. Also it is true that all savage societies are socialistic or communistic to some degree, the ultimate of socialism is seen in primitive cannibalism.

Here it is deemed entirely proper that, in the event of a meat shortage, one member of the society may be sacrificed for the "good" of the surviving members. It is argued (primitively) that it is better for the tribe to survive thru sharing the meat of one member of the tribe than that the entire tribe die, thru lack of food.

In modern times, dietary socialism has been largely abandoned. But financial socialism is in its heyday. For the same theory is applied to wealth and to the goods and services produced by the constructive element of society. Here the argument runs (in modern times) that it is better that the tribe (society) share in the goods and services which others have produced than that there should be a shortage of these goods and services.

Both financial and dietary socialism suffer from the same lack of comprehension of economic law. The answer to a meat shortage is to raise more meat. The answer to a lack of goods or services is to produce more goods and services.

But before anyone will run the risk of raising more meat or of producing more goods and services, he must be assured that neither he nor his product will be consumed without his consent. If he cannot secure this assurance, then he has little incentive, either to produce or to remain in the tribe. The folly of the socialist is in

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — A young lady telephoned the other day and asked me if I knew that beads were made by hand and I said no. I didn't because most of the people I know wear beads that are made by oysters. I said they all wear sweaters, summer or winter, and with each sweater they have to wear a string of beads made by oysters. Who, I said, makes beads by hand? She said there was a factory in Brooklyn where more than 80 people made beads by hand and I ought to see it. So we went to see it. It would have been easier to go on a safari in Kenya, but I finally found the place. It turned out that about 86 men and women whom Hitler overlooked managed to get out of Germany and into Brooklyn and they brought with them the old European skill of taking a colored glass rod and turning it into beads.

The plant has been in operation about 22 years now and it has millions of beads on hand, all made the same way—melted down in gas torches from rods, tested by other workers, stuck on toothpicks to dry in heat machines, whisked through several other stages and finally become finished beads. Good beads, too, the kind you find in the better stores. They make 150 different kinds.

Was this the customary way to make beads, I asked the guide, and he said no it wasn't. This was the last hand factory for making beads. All the others in the United States are machine factories. He said we'd best take it step by step and we started by watching a man choose several red glass rods from an imported shipment. This was to create blaze beads, the newest color fashion.

The rod was taken to a man who stood in front of two gas flames pointed at each other and the rod was twirled between them until it began to form a bead bulge. This was done purely by eye, yet each bulge was exactly the same size. A metal toothpick was then used to take each shaped bead from the flames and was passed on to a man with a little oven in front of him into which six glass flames converged, and he had a special eye. He made certain that each bead was exactly like the one before it. If special shapes were desired, he was the one to see that each bead achieved exactly that shape. For round beads, another man had little metal troughs about four inches long, with a half-round hollow from end to end. He rolled still hot beads back and forth to make them perfect in roundness.

As the beads cooled, the pear-shaped ones, tear-drop would be a better description, were taken on pins in trays holding 15 by 15 beads in cluster and there, one by one, they were dipped for pearling. After these dried, a man with the best eyes in the house took the trays and tested each bead by glance for symmetry, size, perfection and shape. Vogue beads never are "seconds."

If special dipping was specified, they went on to another man who had dip pans in front of him and he pearled, glazed, glittered or gilded. When all of these processes were ended, they went in racks of 225 beads per rack to the final drying machines. After being dried, they passed through narrow slots. While in the slots the holding pins were pulled downwards and the now freed beads rolled down into collection boxes for inspection and sorting.

After being sorted the various colors, shapes and sizes went to an expert stringer, who collected them by kind into velvet lined boxes which lay in drawered shelves. With designs drawn for him, he strung to fit the designs. Later, these would go to a plant on East 38th Street in Manhattan where women assembled the strings into vari-colored final ornament versions. Some are one string, some as many as five strings with all one-size or graduated sizes on the strings. Catches are added and then buyers from jewelry stores or jewelry departments of large stores come in and choose items for their merchants.

The refugees doing the work said they knew it was the last haven of the art, but that there is no bead like a hand-made bead. I believe them.

Communism's Modern Walled City Hankerings

By HENRY McLEMORE

VERONA, Italy — This is the city of bells, in a country of bells. Although not nearly so large, Verona out-rings Rome by a mile and, to judge by the ear, has ten times the number of bell-ringers working in Venice, Naples, or Milan.

Our hotel is in a forest of bells. Hard by on the right are the bells of San Anastasia, which have been ringing since 1290, and which show no signs of hoarseness or sore throat.

A block or two away, on Piazza Della Erbe, banging their iron tongues high in the Scaligero Gardello Tower as if determined to rouse the entire peninsula of Italy, are the most authoritative bells I have ever heard.

They don't summon — they command. As if to help them out in their job is the oldest clock in the city, striking the quarter — hour, the half, and the hour. It has been banging away since 1370, making it completely unnecessary for any citizen of Verona to wear a watch, or have a clock on the kitchen wall.

The bells of the clock don't strike at the same time as the church bells. They are either two minutes slow, or their rivals in the church towers are two minutes fast. Just when the churches have finished the hour, and quiet is settling over the city, the massive clock speaks as if to say: "Listen, here is the CORRECT time. Go by it and no other."

Add to these bells, the bells of the Post Office, the City Hall, the Piazza Dei Signori, San Zeno, San Bernardino, Castelvecchio, San Nazzaro, San Giovanni in Valle, Castel S. Pietro, and scores of others, and you hear bells morning noon, night, and in between. No cluster of bells (if cluster is the word) sounds alike. The bells look as alike as identical twins, but each speaks in accents all its own.

After a few days, the visitor can identify the various bells, even when they are in full cry, like a pack of hounds on the trail. At midnight, when they all begin to peal (and I like to picture dozens of night-shirted, bearded little bell-ringers, swinging up and down in the air), they awake you, but there is this comfort — everybody else in town is awake and listening too.

Last night I listened, and even though I have been here only a little while, I could pick out San Anastasia, which sounded as if it were right in the clothes closet of my room, the softer tones of San Zeno, half a mile away, the higher pitch of the Piazza Dei Signori, and the exuberant bells of the Scaligero Gardello Tower.

In the darkness it wasn't hard to drift back into the Middle Ages, and into the Verona of Dante, the Della Scalas, the Viscontis, and the conquering Venetians. And a look from the window, with the city shrouded in night, increased the feeling that the present had been rolled back.

Verona looks old, feels old, and gives the visitor an almost eerie feeling that he is out of date, not the city.

Report:

Federal Aid to Education Closes; Kennedy - Delaney Accord on 2 Provisions

PAUL SCOTT

ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy appears to have made some further headway in dissolving the long congressional deadlock over federal aid to education.

Representative James Delaney, whose unyielding opposition in the Rules Committee has blocked House consideration of the Administration's $2.5 billion education bill passed by the Senate several months ago, is evincing willingness to go along on a compromise.

The Brooklyn Democrat did that in an unannounced meeting with the President.

It followed a similar discussion the President had with Senator Wayne Morse, D. Ore., chairman of the subcommittee handling this beleaguered legislation. Morse agreed to help try to put through a four-point "package" compromise if "no basic principles are sacrificed."

Delaney indicated willingness to accept this proposal — for a price. That consists of including two provisions in a five-year program of federal grants and loans for higher education:

(1) Such funds to be available for laboratory and research facilities in private colleges; (2) the cancellation of 50 per cent of students' loans to be extended to graduates of private schools if they become teachers.

Both items already are in the Senate version of this measure. "THE OLD ARGUMENT — The President expressed his approval of them, and strongly urged Delaney to support the entire four-point 'package' compromise.

"It seems all right as far as it goes," replied Delaney. "If my proposals can be satisfactorily worked out, this plan would be acceptable. Don't get me wrong. There has been a lot of misrepresentation and distortion of my position. I am not against federal aid to education.

"I never have been. I'm just as much for that as you are. I sincerely believe in it. But I contend it should apply to all schools, public and private. It's taxpayers' money, and all schools, public and private, are for the promotion of education. I can't see any difference in their purpose."

"But the Constitution specifically prohibits the use of public funds for private schools," said the President. "That's traditional in our country."

"I know that is the argument," asserted Delaney, "but the courts have not finally decided it. I say why not leave it up to them; why not vote federal aid for private schools and let the courts decide whether it is or isn't constitutional."

"I think we can safely say," the President concluded placatingly, "that the 'package' compromise is legal, so let's go ahead with that for the present. Your proposals would directly benefit students and not schools, so that should come within the law. The all-important thing is to enact some education legislation this year. It's unthinkable Congress should adjourn without doing that."

"We certainly should do something," agreed Delaney. "I'm for it."

ATTENTION, STOCKHOLDERS!

Joseph Imirie, Assistant Secretary of Air for Materiel, did some revealing talking at private business at a meeting of the House Armed Service Investigating Committee.

Representatives F. Edward Hebert, D. La., chairman, and Porter Hardy, D. Va., were closely questioning Imirie on the extent of waste in industry as compared to the government. After service in the War Department during World War II Imirie was an executive of a large New York corporation until appointed early this year by President Kennedy.

"You were out of the government for some ten years," said Hebert. "Would you say there is considerable waste and inefficiency in private industry as compared to the government?"

"I would," replied Imirie. "Then how do you stay in business?" exclaimed Hebert.

"The stockholders don't keep close tabs on it," broke in Representative Hardy.

"In industry, we hide our sins," explained Imirie, "while government people can't. That is the major difference, I think."

"Yes, I guess it is easier to hide matters from stockholders than it is from taxpayers," observed Hardy.

"One thing is sure," laughed Imirie. "I don't ever recall having to appear before a committee like this one in my ten years in private industry."

UNDER THE DOME — Representative Dante Fascell, D. Fla., succeeded in writing a little-noticed amendment into the foreign aid bill, when it was being considered by the House, empowering the President to "establish and maintain a total embargo upon all trade between the U.S. and Cuba."

The provision was approved without opposition. Representative Louise Reece, R. Tenn., who succeeded to the seat of her late husband, one-time GOP National Chairman, has donated his large collection of busts of Lincoln, carved elephants and newspaper cartoons to the East Tennessee State College in Johnson City. The college has established a Reece Memorial Room in its new library for the collection.

Library of Congress copyright experts have sent to the Senate and House Judiciary Committees a 227-page report on proposed major revisions in the copyright laws — which haven't been revised for 52 years. The report is the work of Abraham Kaminstein and A. B. Goldman, two leading copyright authorities. The Committees plan to hold hearings on these recommendations next year. Most important of them is extending the life of copyrights from 28 to 48 years. Senator Ralph Yarborough, D. Tex., chairman of a special committee on communications, has published its third and last volume on the 1960 presidential campaign. This final report includes accounts of the historic TV debates between President Kennedy and former Vice-President Nixon, and all their speeches, press conferences and other statements.

Edson In Washington Congressional Battle Seen On Reciprocal Trade Pacts

By PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Appointment of Philadelphia banker Howard C. Petersen as special White House Assistant to develop a new international trade program marks the opening of the Kennedy administration drive for renewal of the reciprocal trade agreements program. Last renewed in 1958, the law expires June 30, 1962. A congressional battle is predicted that will make the current fight over foreign aid look like a preliminary bout.

World trade patterns are shifting faster than most people realize. And every American community where anything is produced that enters into competition with similar products made in a foreign country has a stake in the outcome.

The fact that President Kennedy has chosen a 51-year-old Republican lawyer to head up his White House staff on this effort is noteworthy. For much of the opposition to trade agreements comes from conservative manufacturers and businessmen.

Petersen came to Washington out of Indiana a little over 20 years ago as an assistant to the late Henry L. Stimson, another Republican, who as President Roosevelt named secretary of war.

When it was over, Petersen — then an assistant secretary of war — went on a mission with former Federal Reserve Board Chairman Thomas B. McCabe. Their job was to decide what to do with the billions of dollars' worth of Army and Navy supplies scattered all over the world.

McCabe, president of Scott Paper, was so impressed by Petersen's work that he suggested him for the presidency of big Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Co. He was a prime money raiser for the Eisenhower campaign and he rose in the councils of Committee for Economic Development — the progressive tycoon's research organization — becoming its vice president.

It is from this perch that he will take off to advise the Democratic Kennedy Administration on foreign trade policies.

These policies have been developing amazingly on several fronts that may seem to have little direct connection with reciprocal trade agreements extension, but do.

When the 1961 news roundups are written, it is now freely predicted that the biggest story of the year will be — not the Berlin crisis — but the British decision to join the European Common Market.

This may seem remote from American interests but it is not. It is considered a long step toward the development of a United Europe. From the U.S. viewpoint, this is considered a most desirable move to establish western world security.

The Common Market with Britain in it will require major readjustments in British Commonwealth and all European trade patterns. It will also create another mass market which will compete with and discriminate against American products.

One solution to this problem may be the reduction of tariff barriers to the lowest possible levels.

A FUNDAMENTAL DIFFERENCE (Life Lines, Washington, D.C.)

A basic tenet of the Mistaken Marxian creed is that it holds that man, as an individual, is incapable of solving his problems. A basic tenet of the freedom creed is that the individual fulfills his purpose on earth not through running away from his problems but by overcoming them. The difference between these two theories is actually the crux of the difference between Das Kapital and the Holy Bible.

We believe that man is not truly happy when he has no problems. We believe that true happiness lies in successful pursuit of a goal — and when that goal has been reached there must be another. The pursuit is, therefore, just as important as the goal itself.

Many of the goals of man necessarily are of an economic nature as he strives for a better life for himself and his family. But the pursuit is different; it is of a spiritual nature involving self-discipline, self-denial, and self-reliance. Let us recognize that self-reliance, even in America, is not an automatic trait. In fact, self-reliance for most individuals is properly developed only when they know they will rise or fall on their own efforts.

It is remarkable what man can do when he knows no one else will do it for him. History contains striking examples — such as ancient Rome — of entire nations

Kansas Helium Plant To Start Output In 1963

NEW YORK — Cities Service has signed a contract with the Secretary of the Interior for the construction of one of the largest helium extraction plants ever designed in the United States.

The contract calls for construction of the plant on a 60-acre site near Ulysses, Kansas, with a capacity to deliver 2,000,000 cubic feet of helium per day. Burl S. Watson, chairman of Cities Service Company, said. The next two helium plants are to be built at Liberal, Kans., and White Deer, Texas.

In producing the helium, the Cities Service plant will process 505-million cubic feet of gas daily supplied by the gas stream entering the system of the Cities Service Gas Company from the Kansas-Hugoton field.

Existing extraction plants are five smaller plants now operated by the Bureau of Mines.

Additional government approvals will be required before actual construction begins. It is anticipated that the plant will commence operation early in 1963.

Under the 22-year contract between Cities Service and the Bureau of Mines, an agency of the Department of Interior, crude helium will be supplied at the outlet of the extraction plant, and the Bureau of Mines will transport it by pipeline to its storage facilities near Amarillo, Texas.

Natural gas fields in Western Kansas and the Oklahoma and Texas Panhandles contain 99 per cent of the known recoverable helium resources in the free world.

Helium has become increasingly important to the nation's defense program. Once primarily used to lift dirigibles, blimps and balloons, its principal present uses are in the missile and atomic energy programs, which consume about 40 per cent of all helium produced.

Government agencies use about 90 per cent of total helium output.

Helium is also used with oxygen in hospitals to provide breathing atmospheres, in welding of certain metals and in aeronautical research. It is essential to research in the field of cryogenics, involving the study of materials at temperatures approaching absolute zero.

Other than natural gas, the only substantial source of helium is the atmosphere, which contains about one part helium in 200,000 parts of air. The cost of extraction from the atmosphere is, however, prohibitive.

The Cities Service extraction plant will employ a low-temperature liquefaction process to extract helium from natural gas. A cooling process of several stages will be utilized to lower the gas temperature to about minus 260 degrees F. in order to separate the crude helium from the natural gas.

Sinclair Buys New Mexico Cabot Plant

TULSA, Okla. — Sinclair Oil & Gas Company has purchased the gas products plant in the King field of Lea county, New Mexico, from Cabot Corporation, William H. Morris, Sinclair president, announced today.

The purchase was effective Aug. 1.

The plant, located in SE 35-13-37E, is 12 miles south of Sinclair's wholly-owned Gas Products Plant No. 29, also in Lea county. A line will be laid connecting the two plants so that enough gas may be transmitted to the King field plant to load it to capacity. This gas will come from the Gladiola and Bronco fields.

Sinclair plans to add an additional gas compressor, a cooling tower, and additional refrigeration equipment to bring the plant compression and process capacity up to 6,000,000 cubic feet per day.

Sinclair will make liquid hydrocarbons and residue gas at the King field plant.

This is the second consecutive year that the Society of Petroleum Engineers has sponsored a Distinguished Lecturer Program. The lecturers will visit the more than 40 "local sections" of the Society located throughout the United States. It is possible that some of them will visit foreign local sections of SPE, which are located in Canada, The Netherlands, Venezuela, Saudi Arabia and Sumatra.

Pipeline Firm Plans $28.5 Million Program

CHICAGO — Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America has received temporary approval from the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D.C., for the construction and operation of an expansion program designed to increase its daily natural gas sales capacity by 60 million cubic feet.

G. P. Garver, president of the gas transmission firm, said that the project would enable the company to increase its daily delivery capacity to 1 billion, 599 million cubic feet.

NGPL received FPC authorization for a 100 million cubic feet daily increase expansion program. Construction on that project is underway.

Garver said "The latest project involves the addition of 257 miles of 'loop' pipeline paralleling the company's existing 26-and 30-inch pipeline facilities along the Texas Gulf Coast-to-Chicago system in Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, and Illinois. The program, estimated to cost 28.5 million dollars, also calls for the installation of two compressor engines totaling 5800 additional horsepower."

About 71.5 miles of 30-inch line will be constructed in Refugio, Victoria, and Wharton Counties, Texas; and 185.9 miles at points in Panola and Harrison Counties, Texas.

Oil Meet Speaker — Richard Wagner, Chicago oil executive and president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, will be one of the principal speakers at the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, meeting September 25-27 in Ft. Worth, Estill S. Heysler, association president, has announced.

Berlin's Mayor Making Gains In Political Drive

By LEON DENNEN
BONN, Germany (NEA) — "The name is Berlin and not Brandt," Chancellor Adenauer's irate aid said.

He was commenting on Mayor Willy Brandt's effort to present himself to the West German voters as the symbol of West Berlin's resistance to Communist aggression.

Premier Khrushchev's threat to Berlin has increased Brandt's chances of being elected Bonn's chancellor in the Sept. 17 elections.

Some Christian Democratic opponents of West Berlin's young mayor-even hint darkly that one reason Khrushchev provoked the Berlin crisis at this time was to help the Socialists defeat Adenauer.

Few German voters believe that the Soviet Premier and his East German puppet Ulbricht love or trust Brandt any more than they do Adenauer.

If West Germans will vote overwhelmingly for Adenauer, it is because they consider "Der Alte" (the old man) their "man of destiny" and the architect of their unprecedented prosperity.

At 85, the vigorous old Chancellor is a medical miracle.

But the star of the 48-year-old Brandt continues to rise. Adenauer is facing a strong challenger for the first time since he came to power 12 years ago.

This is due in large measure to Brandt's courageous stand in Berlin. But the rising star also results from the fact that the now prosperous West Germans are eager to acquire "democratic respectability."

Sixteen years after Hitler's defeat, they are making a painful discovery that the world does not love them as they think they deserve to be loved.

The moment of truth for the ordinary German came this summer during the trial of Adolf Eichmann in Israel. Few Germans like to speak of Eichmann's revelations. Yet it is clear that his testimony made a greater impression on West German youth than is generally believed.

A law student in Bonn told me: "Yes, we were too slow in breaking with our horrible past."

A young teacher in Munich said: "Adenauer has ruled us for 12 years. If we reelect him, the world will be sure that Germans still love dictators."

Such comments were typical. Mayor Brandt is thus emerging as the symbol of young Germans who are ashamed of Germany's past and honestly want to break with it. His Socialist supporters and promoters even play him up as the "poor man's Kennedy."

There are indeed some points of resemblance between the American President and West Berlin's major. Both are personable representatives of the generation that fought Hitler.

Brandt's policy on Berlin and Red aggression is as firm as anyone could wish. But, like President Kennedy, he manages at the same time to suggest a greater tactical flexibility than Adenauer.

Also, in this year's German elections, unlike in 1953 and 1957, the U.S. administration has not taken sides with Adenauer's long-established and ruling Christian Democratic party.

Nevertheless, when the votes are counted on Sept. 17, Adenauer seems certain to be reelected chancellor for another four years. For the West German, economic prosperity and the good life takes precedence over Berlin.

In the end, of course, continued Soviet pressure on Bonn might force even an extremely reluctant Adenauer to agree to a government of national unity.

This is what his Socialist opponents hope will happen. In expectation of such a "grand coalition," they have trimmed their platform to a point where nothing socialistic remains in it. They have ditched Marx and the nationalization of industry.

The Socialists now favor NATO, European unity and even a German army integrated in the West's defensive alliance. They have become, in fact — as Adenauer claims — a "me too" party.

Growing Utah Gears For Missile Industry

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah, with vast areas of arid, rocky land, grapples today with problems of supplying itself with precious water, diversifying itself economically, and meeting the needs of a growing population.

The Beehive State, home of the active and missionary-minded Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, is going through the same problems as most states of the West that find industry in their midst.

For Utah, the newest, fastest-growing and most modern industry in the space-age sense is missile building. Two of the stages of the Minuteman ICBM are built near Salt Lake City and an assembly plant for that missile is being completed at Ogden. Work on the Polaris and Sergeant is going in this same complex of the Wasatch Front.

With the coming of the rocket factories 10 years ago, a new population mixture developed, heavily composed of skilled workers, technicians and scientists. At the same time, the federal government, through defense contracts and military installations, hired more and more Utahans. Today Utah has in its 890,600 population one of the highest percentages of government workers in the nation.

In a dry land where the snow on the mountains means water in the summer, millions of dollars is being spent to bring it down to the cities and towns. The Central Utah and Weber projects were built to take care of the water needs of the thriving Wasatch Front for 50 years. But with a 200,000 increase in population in 10 years — most of it in north Utah — they already are becoming inadequate.

The Colorado river always has been important to the state, and the Glen Canyon Dam water and power development at the southern border is the focal point as it moves to completion. In the north Flaming Gorge is rising to help control this vital source of water.

Utah's officialdom, like its citizens, spends much of its time trying to find ways of financing its government, bringing other industries to the state, and educating its children.

When the state Legislature met earlier this year it spent 60 days trying to figure out how it would keep the budget level and still not raise taxes. It found out this was impossible and hiked the state sales tax to 2½ per cent, a ½ per cent increase. Virtually all the money goes to a cause which Utah has championed for a century — mass education all the way to the college graduate level. Significantly, $4 million was set aside from the total for school districts where the missile industry and other new economic developments are centered. It will pay for new public school classrooms. Not only is education considered a matter of necessity by almost all tax payers — judging by their support of the tax raises out it is a matter of national measure. Utah has more college graduates per hundred than any other state in the nation. At the same time there are more children per family than in any other state.

Since every new government decision in the military field sends Utah's economic outlook up or down, depending on federal spending or lack of it, there is a move afoot to diversify. A tangible result in the last legislative session was to introduce the "Mississippi plan" for state encouragement of new industry. But lawmakers balked against the state spending tax money to acquire land and lease it at low rates to industry to make the area attractive.

Closely connected is tourism, a huge industry Utahans want to tap as they have tapped the oil lands of the southern part of their state. Some heads snapped back in the capital when it was learned the $143,000 budget for tourist development is next to lowest of all the Rocky Mountain states. Community associations to get money-spending vacationers to the state have sprung up to fill in some of the void there.

HONOLULU (UPI) — Actress Audrey Meadows and Continental Airlines President Robert F. Six, former husband of actress Ethel Merman, were married Thursday at St. Andrews Episcopal Cathedral in Honolulu.
