Pampa public school students are in the midst of the exams which will continue through tomorrow. According to Jack Edmondson, superintendent of schools, all public schools will dismiss classes Thursday afternoon and will not re-open until Monday to give teachers an opportunity to grade examination papers. 8-Day Allowable Set For Texas Oil Output Dutch Quiz 12 Captured Indonesians New Hike Will Establish Limit At $308-Billion

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Texas Railroad Commission cut back February oil production to 8 days at its monthly allowable meeting today, and an estimated 2,867,437 barrels of oil will be produced daily next month in the state. The figure is a decrease of 26,196 barrels daily from the January production of nine days. Eight purchasers requested the eight day pattern, two purchasers sought a continuation of the present nine day pattern, one firm wanted 10 days of production and one asked for a seven day production in February. Commission chairman William Murray said the shorter 28 day month of February, with normal buildup of production, might result in the same average production as the longer month of January. The purchasers seeking the eight day pattern, and their nominations, were: Indiana Oil Purchasing Company, 239,000 barrels; Sinclair Crude Oil Co., 117,800; Gulf Oil Corp., 211,000; Shell Oil Co., 172,800; Humble Oil Corp., 394,350; Texaco Inc., 157,000; Cities Service Oil Co., 85,000; and Standard Oil Co. of Texas, 36,800. A nine-day pattern was requested by spokesmen for Socony Mobil Oil Co., with a nomination of 249,900 barrels, and Atlantic Refining Co., 92,705 barrels. A representative of Sun Oil Co. asked for a 10-day production in February with a nomination of 129,902 barrels. But in answer to questions he said the industry could not take a 10-day month. A Phillips Petroleum Co. representative asked for a seven-day month and nominated for purchase of 120,229 barrels. Texas Oil Production has never been limited to less than eight days. F. B. Cochran, representing a group of Corpus Christi independent oilmen, joined in the request for an eight-day production.

HOLLANDIA, West New Guinea (UPI)—A dozen Indonesians captured at the scene of Monday's naval clash off the south New Guinea coast were brought to Hollandia today and three were hospitalized with serious wounds. The prisoners included three officers. Dutch officials have said a total of 50 was captured. Rear Adm. Leendert E. H. Reeser, commander of Holland's New Guinea forces, told newsmen that one of the captives had admitted the Indonesian units were bent on military action against New Guinea. Informed sources in The Hague said the Dutch government was redoubling its efforts for a negotiated settlement of the dispute. But in Jakarta, the Indonesian navy issued new threats of an invasion and a dozen of President Sukarno's political opponents who might oppose action against New Guinea were reported to have been arrested. Reeser said a captured Indonesian non-com, whose name was not given, gave information making it clear that the naval units "had from the first intended to commit an act of open aggression." He said the Indonesian reported he and his infantry company embarked Jan. 11 in the Kel of Tamber islands knowing that military action against Dutch New Guinea was planned. Reeser quoted the Indonesian as saying the ship was a large one which he had been told was built in Japan. The prisoner was quoted as saying the infantrymen were transferred to three Indonesian motor torpedo boats and rubber boats with outboard motors at night on the open sea. Dutch ships intercepted the little convoy and sank one and perhaps two of the torpedo boats. The great concern in The Hague now was that Sukarno will feel he must retaliate for the Indonesian defeat and launch a major operation regardless of the consequences.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy will ask Congress for a quick $2 billion hike in the national debt limit to help the government pay its current bills, according to the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. And before Congress goes home this year, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said, Kennedy wants another $8 billion increase in the ceiling through June 30, 1963. If Congress passes both requests, it would bring the debt limit to a record $308 billion. The national debt on Jan. 11 was $295.8 billion, only $2.2 billion below the present ceiling. Byrd made the announcement as Kennedy prepared to send Congress Thursday his budget for the 1963 fiscal year, which starts July 1. The budget was expected to call for $92.6 billion in spending — a peacetime record — and show a surplus of $400 million. Both Byrd and Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said they would back

Kennedy's request for an immediate $2 billion hike in the debt limit, but they said the longer-range $8 billion increase required thorough study. Even if the government finished fiscal 1963 in the black it would need an increase in the debt ceiling. The Treasury usually has to borrow money to meet obligations when tax collections are light in the summer and fall. It likes to have a $3 billion cushion between the debt and the ceiling, and this cushion sank to a few hundred million dollars for several days last month.

President Calls For Re-Shuffle Of Million-Man Army Command

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy has asked Congress to approve a far-reaching command reorganization program designed to speed-up operations in the country's million-man Army. The program will virtually eliminate the Army's technical services, including such historic offices as the quartermaster general, chief of Ordnance and the chief of the Chemical Corps, and will create two new commands with sweeping powers like those of the Air Force's Strategic Air Command. Under terms of the National Security Act of 1947, the proposals will become effective immediately unless vetoed within 30 days by either the House or Senate armed services committees. The President sent the plan to these committees Tuesday. The new commands are to be known as Materiel and Logistics, to be headed by a four-star general, and Combat Development, for which at least a three-star general will be selected. They will take places beside the Army's Continental Command, headed by four-star General Herbert B. Powell at Ft. Monroe, Va., which will be retained. Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr said he expects it will take 18 months to complete the transition. Stahr emphasized that the reorganization is a top-level reshuffling which will not concern most field installations. Powell will be assigned almost all of the Army's training activities, including those now conducted by technical services, but other development and operations units will be assigned to the new commands. The offices of quartermaster general, chief of ordnance, and chief of the chemical corps will be abolished, while the chief signal officer, the adjutant general, the chief of finance and the chief of transportation will assume subordinate roles. Only the surgeon general, Lt. Gen. L. S. Heaton, will be retained as a separate entity. The chief of engineers, Lt. Gen. Walter K. Wilson, will retain his statutory position because of his civil works responsibilities.

Woman Victim Of Blast Dies Today In Borger

BORGER, Tex. (UPI)—Mrs. C. A. (Juanita) Ross, 39, one of four persons injured in a gas pipeline explosion, died today at a Borger hospital. The other three persons, Mrs. V. D. Ross, Mrs. Cora Alexander, 42, and Linda O'Steen, 5, remained in critical condition. The blast occurred at the Tex-Roy plant pipeline booster station, operated by Phillips Petroleum Co., about five miles east of Borger. A company spokesman said a leaky pipeline apparently formed a pocket of gas that exploded. The blast and resulting fire destroyed two of the seven homes in the community, seriously damaged another and scorched the rest. A car and pickup truck were demolished and livestock in the area were badly burned, some destroyed. The flash of the blast was seen four miles away.

Governor's Program Now In Senate For Decision

AUSTIN (UPI)—The success of Gov. Price Daniel's program for the third special session depended today upon the Texas Senate, where his past proposals have not always been treated with brotherly love. The House waited today for Daniel to throw the session open to consideration of local bills. The House cleared its docket of major issues Tuesday. Representatives completed work on major bills by giving 141-2 final passage to a measure by Rep. J. W. Buchanan of Dumas to abolish the State Board of Water Engineers and create a three member Texas Water Commission with a chief engineer. The measure passed the House last year, but died in the Senate. Daniel said he believed the Senate's objections to the bill have been removed and may pass this time. Here's the box score on Daniel's other major recommendations to the session: —Escheat legislation. Passed the House as a compromise bill to require reporting of dormant bank accounts to protect the missing owners, but ran into trouble in the Senate Banking Committee. The hostile committee has not acted on the measure, but Daniel expressed confidence the bill would be reported favorably. —Small loan regulation. Passed the House, and is scheduled for a public hearing by the Senate State Affairs Committee late today. Like abandoned bank accounts legislation, the bill to outlaw loan sharks passed the House during the regular session last year, but died in the Senate. —Farm road maintenance. Passed by both chambers and sent to Daniel for his signature.

20 Missionaries Reported Killed By Congo Troops

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—United Nations sources said today that marauding Congolese troops beat 20 Belgian Roman Catholic missionaries with bicycle chains before killing them on New Year's Day. The sources said the incident took place in Kongo, in northern Katanga about 20 miles south of the Kivu Province border. They said their information came from an African seminarian who told his story under oath to the U. N. representative in Bukavu and a Roman Catholic missionary. An earlier report Tuesday said 11 white missionaries and seven African Roman Catholic nuns were massacred at Kongo by troops loyal to pro-Communist strongman Antoine Gizenga. Today's massacre report apparently included the 11 white missionaries. Premier Cyrille Adoula said Tuesday he had received reports the 11 and seven nuns were killed by marauding troops under the command of Col. Joseph Pakassa, a cousin of Gizenga. At Elisabethville, Brian Urquhart, U. N. civilian chief in Katanga, said today he had no information on the reported massacre of Roman Catholic priests in Kongo. (However, in Vatican City, Pope John XXIII told a general audience that news of the massacre had reached there in press dispatches and he compared the murders to Cain's slaying of Abel. "About a score of them have been killed," the Pope said. "The sons of Adam were two, Cain and Abel. In today's events we have merely a repetition of the beginnings of human community—brothers slaying brothers.") The U. N. sources said each of the priests was given 12 lashes (See MISSIONARIES, Page 3)

TV 'Riggers' Admit Guilt, Escape Jail

NEW YORK (UPI)—Charles Van Doren pleaded guilty today to lying about his appearances on rigged TV shows and received a suspended sentence from a judge who said he could "read the humiliation on your face." Van Doren, 35, the former Columbia University instructor who won $129,000 on the show, "Twenty One," five years ago, changed his plea to guilty to the perjury charge when he appeared before Special Sessions Court Justice Edward F. Breslin. Van Doren spoke only the word "guilty" as he appeared, gaunt and sober faced, along with 10 other former contestants on TV quiz shows. All were charged with getting the answers in advance. Van Doren's attorney told the court his client was "penitent and remorseful." His wife, Geraldine, whom he married shortly after his sensational TV appearances in November 1956, was near tears. Breslin told Van Doren that his punishment had begun the very day the rigging of the TV shows was exposed in the press. Van Doren at first told a grand jury that he had not been given the answers but subsequently admitted that he not only received them but was coached in expressing mental anguish on the broadcast. The second degree perjury charge carried a possible maximum sentence of one year imprisonment and a $500 fine. Hank Bloomgarden, who won $98,500 on "Twenty One" and Elfrida Von Nardoff, 36, who won $220,500 on the same show, also changed their pleas to guilty and received suspended sentences. Guilty pleas were entered and suspended sentences also received in quick order by six other TV quiz winners, Neil Wolf, David Mayer, Mrs. Terry Curtis, Morton Harelik, Richard Klein, and Paul Bain. Man-Into-Orbit Flight Set Back Until January 24

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—The "magic date" for America's first manned rocket flight into orbit has slipped to Jan. 24—but the new target day is shaky at best. The rocket launching that will send 49-year-old astronaut John W. Glenn Jr. on a three-orbit trip around the globe will not come sooner than one week from today, and chances are it will skip at least a few more days on the calendar. Scientists on the $400 million Mercury "man-into-space" program are having troubles with a balky capsule — the bell-shaped spacecraft that will be Glenn's "home" for 4½ hours on his 81,000-mile voyage. Tuesday, a faulty valve in the capsule forced scientists to call a 24-hour delay in their preparations for the free world's first manned orbital flight. The target date was switched from Jan. 23 to a very tentative Jan. 24.

'Friendliest, Courteous' Editor Swamped Under Pile Of Ballots

The votes for Pampa's friendliest and most courteous man and woman employee literally are flooding the desk of the "Friendliest, Most Courteous Employee" editor. He's been swamped for two days trying to get the ballots counted and the new nominations sorted from the votes for those already nominated. Today The News is publishing a list of additional nominations. Another list will be published Sunday. Voting for your favorite employee will continue through Feb. 15. The ballot that must be used in the election appears daily in The Pampa News. One vote came today all the way from Phoenix, Ariz. It was sent air mail, special delivery. It cost the sender 37 cents postage to cast the ballot. It has gone into the ballot box and already has been counted for the person for whom it was intended. The man and woman employee voted friendliest and most courteous when the final count is made. (See NOMINEES, Page 5)

Democrats Act Fast On JFK's Measures

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congressional leaders today hung a priority label on President Kennedy's $2.7 billion college aid bill. They said its chances of enactment were good. It was set for debate in the Senate starting Jan. 29. The House meantime readied for almost certain passage next week a compromise version of the President's proposed increase in postal rates, including a five-cent stamp for letter mail. As both House and Senate settled into the legislative grind, Democratic leaders promised early action on other administration measures to: —Create a new Cabinet-level Department of Urban Affairs. —Set up a Youth Conservation Corps modeled after the old CCC of the late 1930s. —Finance retraining of workers thrown out of their jobs by automation. Notably not on this priority list as agreed to Tuesday at the White House were the President's $2.5 billion program of federal aid for construction of grade and high schools; his plan for medical care for the aged under the Social Security program; and his request for broad new authority to make further reductions in import duties as a means to bolster U.S. sales overseas. On the thorny issue of a general program of school aid, House education experts have agreed in nothing more so far than a new testing of House sentiment. After last year's loss of all school legislation in the House, the most enthusiastic backers of the President's program are doubtful that a general school bill can now be revived, despite the fact the Senate already has passed it. Medical care was still locked up in the House Ways & Means Committee and nobody had figured any way to pry it out.

Congressmen Get Bang Playing Pinball Machines

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A bunch of congressmen got together here Tuesday and played the pinball machines. Of course, it was a little unusual to have all those colored lights flashing and bells ringing in the middle of a congressional hearing room. But the lawmakers, all members of the House Commerce Committee, got quite a boot out of the whole thing even if their purpose was a serious one. The pinball machines were "Exhibit A" in another move by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to crack down on the big-time racketeers and organized crime. Kennedy has asked Congress to make it illegal to ship certain types of pinball machines, roulette wheels and other gambling devices across state lines. He told the committee that the "immense profits" from them helped the underworld to finance more sinister operations such as narcotics and prostitution. But Kennedy also assured the congressmen that pinball machines made for amusement only would not be affected by the bill. The Senate already has approved his proposal.

New Cold Front Is Due Friday

A new Canadian cold front was on its way toward the Panhandle today but the Weather Bureau said it will be the least severe of three that have chilled the state during the past week. Pampa's low last night was 23. Meanwhile, all sections continued to warm up today under generally fair to partly cloudy skies. The Weather Bureau called for the new cold front to sweep into the Panhandle and Northwest Texas Friday and spread over North Texas Friday night. But increasing cloudiness will help moderate the chilly air.

Plan For FDR Memorial Moves Writer To Rhyme

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Behind many newspaper editorial desks, cloaked in the anonymity of the all-embracing "we," sits a scrivener with the soul of a poet.

At least one such bard currently labors for the Washington Post and Times Herald, and this week he summoned the muses in a manner that I admired immensely.

Taking his text from Edward Lear, the Imerick man, he administered a versified bludgeoning to the proposed design for the projected Franklin D. Roosevelt memorial.

In case you came in late on this controversy, I should explain that plans are afoot to monumentalize our 32nd President with an abstract arrangement of concrete slabs that would protrude from a prominent place in the capital.

Some critics have ridiculed the design as being reminiscent of Stonehenge, a pre-historic pile of stones located in England.

The Post editorialist suggested, therefore, that this type of memorial architecture be known as "instant Stonehenge." In his view, however, it would more closely resemble "a neglected country churchyard."

This image aroused in him the dark suspicion that the design possibly was inspired by someone seeking to get revenge on the late President by creating "a sort of New Deal burial ground."

If such were the case, he continued, it might then be considered appropriate to have the slabs engraved, tombstone fashion, with epitaphs commemorating various New Deal measures that flopped.

For instance, he conjectured that a slab designating the National Recovery Administration might be inscribed as follows:

"Here lies beneath this pillar gray
The late-lamented NRA.
"It lived and breathed and had its day.
"But thank the Lord it went away."

Another slab, fancied the poetic editorialist, might immortalize the Agricultural Adjustment Administration thusly:

"The agency that's here interred
Proposed to 'cut our crops a third.'
"But every summer since it tried They've all increased and multiplied."
The editorialist ended his lampoon by proposing that the design

MEATY FIGURES—Little Uruguay leads the world in per capita meat consumption, while large Russia trails most Western countries. Chart above, based on U.S. Dept. of Agriculture figures, lists the record of 10 important nations. In total consumption, the U.S. is far and away the leader. Americans consumed 29 billion pounds in 1960, 28 per cent of the world total.

be amended to include "an heroic reproduction" of Roosevelt's cigarette holder giving forth clouds of "derisory smoke."

Although he obviously meant it as jest, I think there may be some genuine merit in that final suggestion. I mean, a good many of the memorials that already have been erected here would look a lot better under a cloud of smoke.

Water Engineer Board Is Voted Out By House

AUSTIN (UPI) — The House yesterday voted 141-2 to do away with the State Board of Water Engineers and create a Texas water commission.

The bill, by Rep. J. W. Buchanan of Dumas, was sent to the Senate.

Legislation designed to curb municipal annexation abuses was introduced in the Senate, indicating a compromise may have been reached on the controversial issue.

Sen. Preston Smith of Lubbock and Crawford Martin of Hillsboro, both candidates for lieutenant governor, joined forces to propose the annexation measure. Gov. Price Daniel was expected to add the subject to the scope of the third special session.

Buchanan's measure would establish a three member water commission to serve six year terms and a chief water engineer to be appointed by commissioners. Reorganization of the board would be primarily along the lines of the Texas Highway Commission.

The House opened the day with heated debate on a resolution asking the national congress to not approve any more federal aid to education.

Winter Storms Hit Pocketbooks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The storms that have racked Florida and the produce belt in the Gulf area are hitting the country's housewives in the pocketbook, New York Commissioner of Markets Albert S. Pacetta said today.

Shortages have run up winter prices in nearly all the "tender" green vegetables—snap beans, tomatoes, lettuce, cabbage, onions and sugar, Pacetta said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said three freezes in Florida ran the price at the farms of snapbeans from $2.25 a box in mid-December to $5 last week. Sweet corn more than doubled to $4 a box.

Burglars Visit 3 More Places

Burglars struck again last night with three break-ins reported to city police today.

Dr. R. A. Thompson, reported that burglars broke into his business office, 1427 N. Hobart, sometime last night and stole $20 in cash from a desk.

Police received a report from M. F. Miller, owner of Miller Plumbing Co., 1421 N. Hobart, just south of the Thompson office, that someone had broken in last night and ransacked several desks and file cabinets. Miller told police about $5 in small change was missing.

In the third burglary, Herbert Whitener, owner of the Whitener Milling Co., 825 S. West, reported a break-in sometime last night. The burglars pried open a file cabinet, broke into a small safe and looted it of $1.50 in change. Whitener told police the keys to a soft drink machine were also missing.

Girl Scouts Will Hold Swim Class

The Girl Scout swimming program will resume its weekly schedule Saturday, with a swimming session and instruction from 9:30 to 11 a.m., at the Pampa Youth Center, according to Mrs. Leon Richter, swimming coordinator.

The program is open to all Girl Scouts and will continue for 10 weeks. Parent permission is needed for each session, and for those who have not previously turned one in, a health card is required, which may be obtained at the Girl Scout office. For Scouts who are not members of the Center, a fee of 25 cents will be charged.

Swimming instructors will be Misses Betty Jackson and Jean Jones, and aides will be Misses Chris Grayson, Linda Belmont and Natalie Skelly.

Quivira Council To Hold Annual Meet-In Phillips

The annual Council meeting and installation of new officers of the Quivira Girl Scout Council will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, at the Real-Pit Barbeque, Phillips, according to Mrs. John Holt Jr. of Pampa, president.

Deadline for reservations for all outgoing and incoming board members and delegates from neighborhoods is Thursday. Mrs. Holt stated. The meeting is open to husbands and wives of board members and delegates. Reservations may be made for the dinner meeting by calling the Council office.

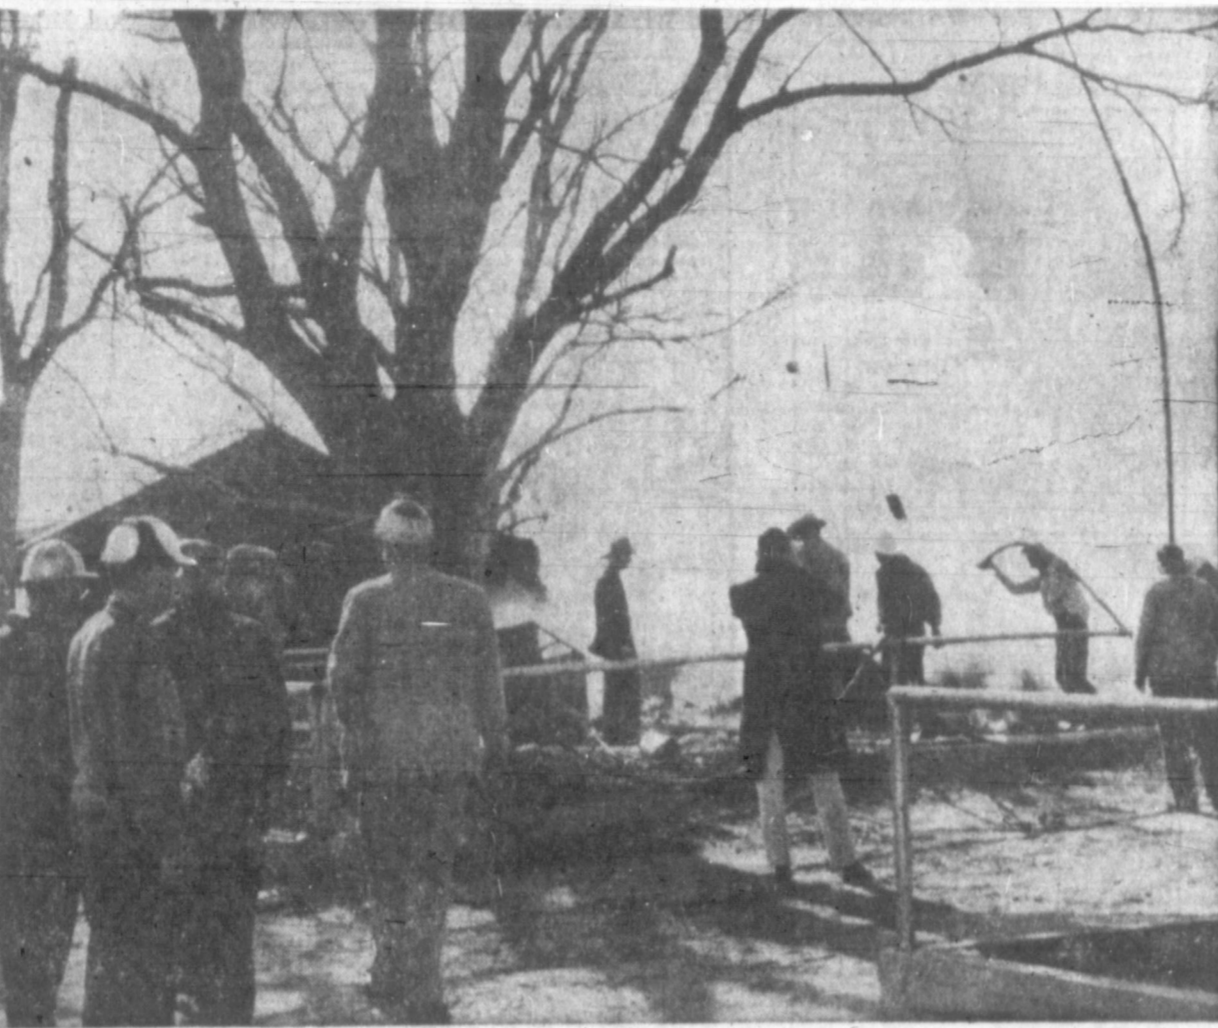

New officers and board members from Pampa to be installed are Mrs. J. B. Maguire Jr., second vice-president; Paul Keim, treasurer; Mrs. James Scholl, personnel committee chairman; Mrs. Herschel Wilks, member-at-large; Mrs. Eugene Turner, chairman of District II, and Mrs. Jack P. Foster, nominating committee member. Other board members from Pampa include Mrs. Bob Andis, T. M. Whiteley and B. M. Behrman.

The agenda will include a summary of annual reports, a report on regional conference, discussion of special activity permission blanks, the new program change, presentation of awards, the installation and a resume of the Girl Scouts 50th anniversary.

Youth Fined $25 In Aftermath Of Traffic Accident

Joe Robert Gallett, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie D. Gallett, 1117 Sandwood, was fined $25 and costs when he pleaded guilty in county court today to a charge of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle in connection with the Jan. 8 accident in which a 15-year-old Pampa girl was struck by an automobile driven by young Gallett.

EXPLOSION SCENE — Firemen are shown still fighting the blaze in the ruins of one of two houses destroyed in yesterday's gas pipeline explosion east of Borger. Three women and a small girl were injured. One of the women, Mrs. Juanita Ross, 39, died in a Borger hospital this morning. The other three still are in critical condition. (See story on Page 1).

Crash Victims Were Sisters Of Pampa

Dr. and Mrs. Eben Warner Jr., 1221 Christine, were in Chillicothe today to attend the funeral of Mrs. Warner's two sisters who were killed Monday when the car in which they were riding was struck by a freight train in Chillicothe.

The two sisters, Mrs. Carabel Tabor Porter and Miss Ida Tabor, both of Chillicothe, were killed just inside the northern city limits of Chillicothe. Both women apparently failed to hear and see warning signals at the Ft. Worth and Denver railroad crossing.

Reports Heard At C-C Meeting

Chamber of Commerce directors and members of the board of city development, met yesterday in the Coronado Inn for their January monthly meeting and to hear reports from activities chairmen.

Foster Whaley, chairman of the agriculture committee of the chamber, presented the schedule on the Top of Texas Livestock Show to be held March 5, 6 and 7 at Recreation Park. Whaley said approximately 100 pigs and 75 steers would be exhibited by 4-H and FFA boys and girls in the six county show. He also reported the agriculture outlook for Gray County is very good at this time.

Mrs. Meadows Rites Pending

Funeral services are pending for Mrs. Grace Meadows, 705 E. Jordan, who died at 11 p.m. Tuesday in Highland General Hospital.

She was born Feb. 7, 1878 in Wichita, Kan. She and her husband, A. N. Meadows, who died in 1948, came to Pampa in 1919 from Oklahoma City, Okla. For a time, they operated a hotel in Spearman.

She was a member of the First Christian Church.

Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Lewis Meers of Pampa; one son, Herman Meadows, Perryton; two brothers, Homer Baker of South Gate, Calif., and Palmer Baker of Long Beach, Calif.; three grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

Original Usage — The word "bead" is derived from the Saxon word "bidan," which means "to pray." Originally, the word was used only in connection with the beads of a rosary.

Cosper Infant Rites Thursday

Graveside rites for Larry Lynn Cosper, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Cosper, 630 N. Starkweather, will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Baby Gardens in Fairview Cemetery with the Rev. Therman O. Upshaw, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, officiating.

The infant was born at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and died at 2 a.m. today in a local hospital.

In addition to the parents, he is survived by a sister, Pamela Sue of the home; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Cosper of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Hodge of Clarendon.

Funeral arrangements are under direction of Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

Draws 90-Day Term

D. W. Cook, Pampa, was fined $1 and costs and sentenced to 90 days in jail yesterday when he pleaded guilty before County Judge Bill Craig on a charge of swindling with a worthless check.

Dear Abby....

Gift Of Freedom
Would Be Best Gift!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The man I love is married to someone else — but not by choice. He has begged his wife for a divorce ever since he met me eight years ago, but she will not give in. She uses her children as her first line of defense. I would like to surprise him with a divorce as a gift, but don't know how to go about it. I have plenty of money for the lawyer, and am willing to pay whatever it costs to get this done in another state fast, without any public notice. In what state can I do this?

NO TIME TO WASTE
DEAR NO TIME: The only state in which a woman can "surprise" a married man with a divorce is the state of delirium. If you want to give him a present, why not give him something his whole family can enjoy? His freedom — from you!

DEAR ABBY: I like a boy who I am sure likes me because all of his friends have told me so. We are both 15. He comes over to see me very often, but he never comes alone. He always brings someone from one to six boys with him. When he is with his boy friends, he usually ignores me. But once in a while, if I get him alone, like last night when I asked him to come in the kitchen and help me get the ice trays loose so I could make lemonade, he was just marvelous. How can I tell him I would rather see him alone without hurting his feelings?

GOT A CRUSH
DEAR GOT: You can't. And if you could, I would advise against it. The boy needs his friends around him to give him courage. He's a bit shy. Don't try to get him alone or you'll be the one who's alone.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is lending clothes to my girl friends. I am 16 and have very nice clothes, all bought for me by my very generous parents. A few months ago a girl asked me if she could wear one of my sweaters. I let her wear it. When she didn't bring it back, I asked her for it. She told me she had already given it back to me. (She didn't.) Another girl asked to wear my stiff petticoat. I let her, and then she told me she rang my door bell and no one answered, so she left it on the porch. (I never found it.) Now another girl wants to wear my car coat to a football game out of town. Should I punish this girl because the others were dishonest and tell her no? My parents refuse to replace what I've lost through lending.

TOO EASY
DEAR TOO EASY: Since you appear to have rather poor judgment in sizing up your "customers," you'd be wise to lend nothing. It's frequently the nice people who must suffer because the not-so-nice ones abuse friendships.

How is the world treating you? Unload your problems on Abby, care of this paper.

Three-way mirror provides complete and clear view and puts to good use the narrow wall space, left between room and closet door. Almost a necessity for the home sewer, right, this three-way is in a pegboard frame which provides space for sewing aids to be hung up.

Three-Way Mirror Puts Wall Space To Good Use

By KAY SHERWOOD

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. Few accessories are of more help in encouraging better family grooming than an honest mirror. Better than one honest mirror are three that tell the full story, in the round, so to speak. Any member of a family will be forced to take a more critical look at posture, hem lengths, clothing fit and general appearance if placed in line with the revealing glass. Our daughter, like most young girls, can spend hours scrutinizing her face and hair in a dressing table mirror but the examining stops at the neck. Would a longer mirror encourage a longer view and more attention to the petticoat showing or the hang of a coat on slumped shoulders? I'm willing to try, but finding space for a three-way mirror in a bedroom with limited closet and wall space is difficult. Such a mirror ranks almost as a necessity for a home sewer so I sought the advice of the best home sewer I know. Sure enough, Lucile had designed her own mirror arrangement for her tiny sewing room. Her design utilizes the wall space between a closet door and the room door. Although the making of this unit is not too difficult for a home handyman, Lucile had a local carpenter make hers for speed's sake. To avoid blocking passage in and out of the room, this three-way folds flat when not in use.

Pegboard is used as the base and frame for the mirror. A sheet about four feet wide by six feet long is mounted on a frame and braced solidly. The mirror consists of a center one about 24 inches wide by four feet long and two side panels, each about 12 inches by four feet. The side panels are hinged to the sides of the center so they fold shut like a screen. Opened, they give complete front and side views. The mirrors are attached to the pegboard and the side panels are faced with more of the pegboard. To the sewer the pegboard area around the mirrors offers space for hooks to hold fabric swatches, special threads, pictures of future projects.

Dignity Essential To Glamour In Maturity

By ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Middle-age has a strange way of playing tricks on women. Many mature women feel as light-hearted as girls; but interior feelings are not matched by their exteriors. The result is something we've all seen: a middle-aged woman being ludicrous. And all the time, she had no intent of doing anything but enjoying herself. This was brought forcibly to mind at a party last week, where a number of middle-aged women who should have known better were doing the twist. They looked silly but they weren't aware of it.

It's fine to keep up with things contemporary but it's equally important to have sufficient sense to avoid those which are graceless.

And the twist is not for the mature.

Meanwhile, it's best left to the really young to whom all such fads belong. If you feel that you look dashing doing the twist, try it out in front of a full-length mirror!

PREMATURE AGING
It was startling, the other day, to see a teen-ager (early teens, by the way; wearing a bouffant hairdo that would have been perfect for a woman of 35. It was puffy, sophisticated and ridiculous on the youngster.

Even though she was 13 or 14, it contrived to make her look far older. It was out of place, to say the least, with a storm coat, flat-heeled shoes and a pile of school books.

Most teen-agers would like to look sophisticated, it's true, but some of them are so eager to appear older that they are actually passing up the teen years for a sort of premature aging. This doesn't make much sense.

In the teen years, a girl can wear her hair simply, keep it clean and shining and appear a beauty. Back-combing, sprays and elaborate hairdos are all wrong for her — and in poor taste.

CONSERVE ASSETS
This is really a story with two parts. The first part unfolded last summer when a friend of mine asked me what she could do about her hair. It would not hold a permanent, she said, nor a setting.

I told her to make daily use of a good hairbrush, give herself weekly hot oil treatments at home and to use a shampoo containing olive oil or lanolin to counteract the extreme dryness.

I saw her again the other evening. Her hair was flat, lifeless and dry. She was apologizing for it and complaining again that it would not hold a set.

The moral to this is that if we want to possess good looks, we must learn to take care of them.

ASK THE DESIGNER by gaile dugas

Dear Gaile: Please help me out. This Christmas, my husband gave me a black nightgown and matching peignoir. I look simply ghastly in them without make-up. I tried them on once and put them back in the box. Would it be wrong to exchange them for another color? I hate to hurt his feelings but I really can't stand black lingerie. Why on earth do men fall for the idea that black gowns are alluring?—Mrs. M. J. B.

Dear Mrs. M. J. B.: To answer your question, I went to lingerie designer Ralph Montanaro for help. This is what he has to say: "I'm afraid that all you can do is exchange the set for another color. After all, you can't apply make-up at night before you retire. Colors are not limited now. Lingerie has undergone a color explosion the last few years. To my way of thinking, the jewel shades of green, blue and gold are lovely.

"Men buy black lingerie because they've been sold on the notion that it has allure. Women have long shunned it, associating it with mourning. And though men were sold on it long ago, most women invariably dislike it. It does tend to emphasize pale-ness."

Dear Gaile: Not long ago, a relative gave me a beautiful pair of paste buckles to be worn on shoes (I believe they are French). But while I would like to use them for evening wear, I'm uncertain as to the kind of shoes they would look well on. Would you please let me know what you think? The buckles are oval in shape.—R. V.

Dear R. V.: You're very fortunate. Having seen really sparkling examples of paste in the Victoria and Albert Museum in London last summer, I know how beautiful it can be. Fine work in European paste is costly and should be cherished. Now, as a background for your lovely buckles, here is advice from designer Beth Levine:

"Paste buckles look their best when they are poised on a simple after-five or evening shoe. I would suggest a plain black pump in suede or patent leather. Or a highly polished white calf leather. For more formal wear, you might consider pumps in crushed gold leather with pointed or slightly squared-off toes."

The Mature Parent We Can Overdo Being Non-Protective

The youngest of six nearly grown brothers and sisters, he was born when his mother had thought she was through with childbearing. One day when the minister was being entertained at tea out on his family's spacious lawn, he ran away and climbed to the roof of the house. Then, a small figure against the sky, he called down to the party assembled around the tea table. "Hey, look where I am! Hey, look at me where I am!"

intense resentment at his parents. A man of 50, he said brokenly to his doctor, "I wanted them to tell me to come down from the roof. I wanted my father to rush up to get me. I wanted my mother to scream with fear for me. I wanted to know that they cared about what happened to me — but they never showed me they did. They never showed me the work problem is solved. He's come to understand how people in their 40s may not welcome an addition to a big, half-grown family they are struggling to make ready for life. But he still has to labor with his belief that he must do most remarkable things in order to rate your attention. In our eagerness to avoid the overprotective parent's anxiety over imagined dangers to children let's not forget that it's fine for children to know that we will withdraw them from real dangers.

Miss Chastain Notes Birthday

LEFORS (Spl) — Miss Margie Chastain celebrated her ninth birthday by entertaining her friends with a party. Her father, Ray Chastain, who is a pilot, took the guests for plane rides. Between rides, they were entertained with games in the hangar. Following the rides and games, the group went to a drug store in Pampa for refreshments. Attending were Patricia Moxon, Peggy Cox, Paula Beck, Marsha Brewer, Martha Carlton, Gaylene Swann and the honoree.

Financial Review

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)— Proposals designed to lead to congressional legislation setting up two private corporations in the mortgage field are under consideration today by members of a group representing factors in the mortgage lending and housing industry.

Members of the group believe that legislation should be introduced at the current session of Congress, although no date or deadline has been set.

Known as the National Mortgage Market Committee, formed on the initiative of the American Bankers Association, the group is headed by D. Clair Sutherland, a member of the ABA Mortgage Committee and senior vice president of the Bank of America. A director is Dr. Kurt F. Flexner, deputy manager of the ABA and director of its mortgage finance committee.

Flexner has said that there is

Montgomery Ward Spring Catalog Is Distributed

New and novel products in the 1962 Montgomery Ward spring and summer general catalog of more than 125,000 items include build-it-yourself kayak kits; his 'n' her terrycloth jump suits; three-piece pearwood musical recorders with Baroque fingering, and a do-it-yourself swimming pool kit that slopes from three to six feet in depth and measures 27 feet long and 12 feet wide.

W. G. McComas, manager of the Montgomery Ward retail store at 217 N. Cuyler, said the new book, now being distributed to Pampa area customers and to more than six million families throughout the United States, also features imported Italian sandals and wedgies; a full line of guitars; a complete tropical fish aquarium with all supplies; walkie-talkie radios, hi-fi and stereo kits; cast iron garden furniture, and a multi-colored jockey hitching post four feet tall.

Official From Texas U Will Speak At Meet

Dr. Norman Hackerman, vice president and provost of the University of Texas, will be the speaker at the January meeting of the Panhandle Plains Section of the American Chemical Association.

Members and guests will gather for dinner at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Rendezvous Room of the Berger Hotel in Borger.

Dr. Hackerman will address the group on the subject "Molecular Structure and Organic Corrosion Inhibitors." Dr. Hackerman received his Ph. D. degree in physical chemistry from Johns Hopkins University in 1935. He then was employed as an assistant professor of chemistry at Loyola College in Baltimore, Maryland.

Following service as a research chemist for the Colloid Corporation in Baltimore, he returned to the educational field as assistant professor of chemistry at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

In 1944 he became a research chemist with the Kellogg Corporation in the Manhattan District Project. It was in 1945 that he joined the chemistry staff at the University of Texas where he is now vice president and provost and was formerly dean of sponsored research and sponsored programs.

Dr. Hackerman's research interests, dealing principally with the chemistry and physics of solid surfaces, qualify him to speak on the announced subject. In the summary of his talk he states, "Corrosion reactions may be retarded by separating the reacting phases, or by reducing the reactivity of one or both phases. Chemicals added to the environment can carry out either of these functions." Dr. Hackerman will limit his discussion to those materials which exert their effects at the metal-fluid interface, the corrosion inhibitors.

Interested guests are invited for both the dinner and lecture, or may attend the lecture only at 8 p.m.

Cotton Ginners To Meet Sunday

DALLAS (Sp) — Texas cotton ginning industry leaders will gather in Lubbock Sunday for their annual meeting of the Texas Cotton Ginners' board of directors and allied industry leaders to formulate policies for the coming year.

Officials of the association and representatives of allied industries will make their headquarters in the Pioneer Hotel for the three-day meeting.

About 175 ginners and allied leaders from industry will be present for the meeting said TCGA President R. L. Massey, Pilot Point.

Committees will begin their work Sunday afternoon when standing groups meet for their year-end reports.

He said the rate of self-employment tax for the taxable year of 1961 is 4 1/2 per cent, and is in addition to any income tax payable.

Under the federal Social Security law, the IRS representative said, Social Security taxes are paid by employees and their employers; and the self-employment tax must be paid by persons who are self-employed. These taxes are used to pay old-age, survivors and disability benefits under the federal Social Security program.

He explained a self-employed person is one who operates his own business, and that a farmer rancher who operates a farm or ranch or who operates a farm or ranch rented from someone else, is therefore considered self-employed. This is true, he said, even though he may employ someone else to do the work and does not live on the farm or ranch himself.

He reminded farmers they must file federal income tax returns and pay any self-employment tax due, even though they owe no income tax.

Ordinarily, he added, no self-employment tax is due unless net earnings from self-employment amount to $400 or more for the year.

Self-Employed Tax Due From Most Ranchers

A majority of farmers and ranchers in this area must pay a federal self-employment tax for 1961, Wiley E. Davis, administrative officer at the Pampa Internal Revenue Service office, stated today.

He said the rate of self-employment tax for the taxable year of 1961 is 4 1/2 per cent, and is in addition to any income tax payable.

Under the federal Social Security law, the IRS representative said, Social Security taxes are paid by employees and their employers; and the self-employment tax must be paid by persons who are self-employed. These taxes are used to pay old-age, survivors and disability benefits under the federal Social Security program.

He explained a self-employed person is one who operates his own business, and that a farmer rancher who operates a farm or ranch or who operates a farm or ranch rented from someone else, is therefore considered self-employed. This is true, he said, even though he may employ someone else to do the work and does not live on the farm or ranch himself.

He reminded farmers they must file federal income tax returns and pay any self-employment tax due, even though they owe no income tax.

Ordinarily, he added, no self-employment tax is due unless net earnings from self-employment amount to $400 or more for the year.

However, he continued, farmers who have actual net earnings from the operation of their farms of less than $400 may, under certain circumstances, elect to pay the self-employment tax and may qualify to receive benefits under the Social Security system.

Democrats Give Powerful Job To Woman Member

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats broke precedent today by assigning a woman, Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., to the powerful Ways and Means Committee.

Mrs. Griffiths, a liberal, was picked unanimously at a closed-door party caucus of the Democratic lawmakers.

The Democrats also were unanimous in the choice of Rep. Clark Thompson, D-Tex., to fill a second vacancy on the committee which has jurisdiction over key parts of President Kennedy's legislative program. Thompson describes himself as a moderate.

The appointments did not affect the balance of power on the committee. The President's tariff-cutting program is assured a friendly reception in the committee but

Harlem Stars Parade Cage Antics Monday

Those amazing clowns are coming to town.

The Harlem Stars, who have captured the hearts of crowds all over the world with their crazy basketball shenanigans, will be at the Harvester fieldhouse Monday night, facing the Pampa All-Stars. Game time is 8 p.m.

The cage group, which makes a point of winning despite their antics on the court, will face a home town aggregate composed of Merl Terrell, Gib Winton, Sam Condo, Roy Pool, James Lee, Roy Kieval and Terry Culley. Kieval and Roy Cull... coaches of the Shocker and Harvester basketball teams, respectively, will be newcomers to the team this year after seeing some action for the local stars last year.

The All-Stars bring an 8-2 record into the game, but it probably will mean very little against the Harlem "pros." The local stars and the Harlem five have met twice before, with the pros' gaining both decisions.

Howard "Babe" Rand is rated the best all-around player in the Harlem organization. The 6-2 giant has enormous hands and an amazing reach and occasionally stops action in a game to play an impish game of hide and seek with the ball.

Taylor (Loud Mouth) Billingsley, 6-0 forward for the Stars, is one of the greatest drivers and jump shot artists in the game today. He has been termed to "move with the speed of a tornado, the accuracy of a Swiss watch and the strength and stamina of a panther."

Young Blood Curtis, 6-3, was the most talked about high school player on the East Coast. Curtis was offered some 16 scholarships to major colleges and universities throughout the United States and Canada, but chose to join the Harlem crew instead.

Maurice Harris, 6-6 center and corner man was voted the most valuable player on the team last year. He is a Texas boy, hailing from San Antonio.

Rounding out the quintet is big Ed Wallace, 6-5 from Ft. Worth, Tex. Wallace, who is the team's leading rebounder, made All-American two years in high school and then played alongside "Wilt the Stilt" Chamberlain for awhile at Kansas.

The Stars begin their season in October in Canada and will hit between thirty-six or forty states and then into Mexico, Australia, Japan and some parts of Europe. Their antics are many and their routine endless. Tickets are on sale at Richard Drugs. Prices include $1.25 for adults, 75 cents for students and 50 cents for children under 12.

Ford, Berra Sign For $102,000 Pact

United Press International

Roy Hamley, general manager of the New York Yankees, today turned his attention to Roger Maris after doing out an estimated $102,000 in signing Whitey Ford and Yogi Berra for the 1962 season.

Ford became the highest paid pitcher in Yankee history when he was given a $14,000 boost to $50,000 Tuesday. Berra signed for a reported $52,000, which represented a token raise of $2,000 over his 1961 salary.

Maris may not be as easy to deal with. The blond outfielder reportedly is seeking a 100 per cent increase to $70,000 on the strength of his record 61 home runs last season.

Hamey, though, is confident he will land Madis before the end of next week.

Hamey has estimated that the Yankees' payroll this year will hit a record $500,900. He has already doled out almost one-quarter of that figure in signing only three players — Ford, Berra and Mickey Mantle, who accepted an $85,000 pact last month.

Gus Triestel, who only recently asked to be traded, became the first member of the Baltimore Orioles to come to terms. Sidelined for three weeks last season with a broken right thumb, the 31-year-old catcher finished with a .244 batting average and 17 home runs.

The Cleveland Indians bagged their 14th player when outfielder Willie Kirkland signed for what he termed "a nice raise." Obtained from the San Francisco Giants in December, 1960, Kirkland was the team leader in home runs (27) and runs batted in (97) last season.

Jimmy Piersall indicated he might be tough to deal with this year when he turned down a small raise from his new bosses, the Washington Senators. The veteran center fielder reportedly received $35,000 from the Cleveland Indians last season, when he hit .322.

Other signings by clubs:

Pittsburgh Pirates — Catchers Jerry May and Elmo Plaskett.

Chicago Cubs — First baseman Moe Horwath and outfielder Danny Murphy.

Minnesota Twins — Infielder Billy Martin, outfielder Lerney Green and Bill Tuttle.

Former SMU Gridder Will Seek Congressional Seat

LUFKIN, Tex. (UPI)—Benton Musslewhite of Lufkin, a former Southern Methodist University football star, announced as a candidate for Congress from the Texas Gulf Coast 7th District Tuesday.

Musslewhite, a 30-year-old Lufkin attorney, said he will seek the seat in Congress now held by John Dowdy of Athens.

Dowdy won a special congressional election in 1952 to represent the 7th District, and has been re-elected five times. The district the 7th, District, and has been re-elected five times. The district the 7th, District, and has been re-elected five times. The district the 7th, District, and has been re-elected five times.

Musslewhite, star quarterback of SMU's 1951 football team, took a law degree at SMU in 1954, and then earned a master of law degree at Georgetown University in Washington.

He said he would campaign on a platform calling for "an East Texas bill of rights." It points the way for East Texans in every community to join together and build a better place in which to live.

Musslewhite, a member of a pioneer Texas family long active in politics, said the East Texas representative in Congress should consider the creation of more jobs in the district as one of his "primary tasks." Better job opportunities, he said, could stop the movement of people out of East Texas.

Tapers Beaten By Pittsburgh

United Press International

The New York Tapers' first American Basketball League game in their new home at Commack, N.Y., turned out to be an artistic failure but a financial success.

The Tapers, who fled Washington, D.C., because of lack of fan support about a month ago, made their debut in the Long Island Arena Tuesday night before a crowd of 1,600. Whether it was stage fright in front of all those people or the quality of the opposition wasn't clear but the Tapers bowed to the Pittsburgh Rens, 105-97.

Connie Hawkins led the Rens with 29 points and Si Blye of the Tapers led all the scorers with 30. The Rens led, 52-42, at the half.

In the opener of the double-header, the Kansas City Steers won their second straight of the second half of the ABL split-season schedule with a 116-100 triumph over the Cleveland Pipers. Bill Bridges scored 48 points for the Steers and Dick Barnett had 20 for the Pipers.

Johnson Scores Heavy Decision

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Alonzo Johnson of Pittsburgh, cut over both eyes and constantly threatened by the right-hand thunder of Houston's Tod Herring, rallied in the final rounds to score a unanimous 10-round heavyweight decision Tuesday night.

Herring, who weighed 204, knocked Johnson down with a roundhouse right at the bell in the first round. It was the second time Johnson had ever been down in his fight career.

Herring sliced cuts over both Johnson's eyes, and the crowd of 4,500 roared.

But Johnson started his comeback with an explosive right cross in the sixth round. It caught Herring flush on the jaw and he tumbled to the deck. He made it up at the count of eight.

It was the 21st win against 7 losses for Johnson, who weighed 193 pounds. The loss was the second in 20 fights for Herring.

Elkins Trying For 16 Feet With Little Or No Practice At All

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—Dexter Elkins isn't a rabid believer in the old theory that practice makes perfect.

The 21-year-old Southern Methodist senior is the latest threat to the coveted 16-foot level in pole vaulting.

But, he didn't achieve this lofty prominence by constant practice. Actually, his theory has been the reverse.

He'd done very little vaulting, actually only four or five times, prior to the Alamo City Indoor Track Meet at San Antonio Jan. 6 when he hit a new career peak with a jump of 15 feet 4 1/2 inches.

But, he admits, he has been getting plenty of exercise since the NCAA and AAU meets last June.

"I've been running, doing gymnastics and lifting weights to give me more strength and speed," he said.

His theory paid big dividends in San Antonio, considering it was the first meet of the season and he had never been any higher than 15 feet 3/4 inch previously.

But, even bigger dividends came his way last week at a meet in the Bluebonnet Indoor Meet at Houston when he pushed his personal ceiling to 15-6 1/2 and barely flicked off the crossbar on the way down at 15-10 1/2.

Naturally, Elkins would like to crack that 16-foot barrier, but he "kinda has a feelin' others will hit 16 feet before I do."

Elkins, born and schooled in Dallas before going to SMU on an academic scholarship, actually feels that competition has pushed him to his new found zenith.

He pointed out that both Fred Hansen of Rice and John Pennel of Northeast Louisiana had cleared 13-2 at Houston while he missed out on his first two tries. He made it on the third try, then cleared 15-9 1/2 on his third effort and came within a whisker of a

West Topples East In 150-130 Rout

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Bob Pettit won the "Most Valuable Player" trophy, and Wilt Chamberlain set a scoring record, but there are many who will argue today that Oscar Robertson's shooting and leading decision the 1962 National Basketball Association All-Star Game.

No matter who was the hero, though, there was no debating the West's supremacy in the 150-130 romp over the East Tuesday night before a crowd of 15,112, largest ever to watch a basketball game in St. Louis.

Pettit won his fourth All-Star MVP trophy on the strength of his 25 points and a record 27 rebounds right over the shoulders of Chamberlain and Bill Russell.

Elgin Baylor, playing on a pass from Fort Lewis, Wash., proved that he has not lost his shooting eye during his first two weeks in the Army. He led the West scorers with 32 points.

Chamberlain demonstrated that an All-Star setting isn't much different from a regular season game by scoring a record 42 points. That total topped the old mark of 29 set by Pettit last year.

But for all-around artistry with a basketball, none among the stars outshone Robertson.

He did not score a point during the first quarter but he made 8 assists as the West moved away to a 33-21 lead. When coach Fred Schaus replaced him during the second quarter, the East tied the score at 59-59, just before the "Big O" scored a three-point play that gave the West a 64-60 halftime advantage.

The game still was close in the third period when Robertson found his shooting touch. He scored 7 straight West points, fed Jack Twyman twice for field goals and then hit on a three-point play that put the West in front, 87-81. And that was just about the ball game.

Robertson made us move in the third period," Schaus said after the game. "The way he did it and the rebounding we got from Pettit and Walt Bellamy made the difference in the ball game."

The East played Chamberlain and Russell at the same time for most of the game, yet the West had an edge in rebounds, 95-80. The West's total and the two-team total both were All-Star Game records.

Faulkner Is Top Denver Choice

DENVER (UPI)—Jack Faulkner, defensive backfield coach of the San Diego Chargers, was considered the top candidate today to succeed Frank Filchock as head coach of the Denver Broncos.

In fact, the 36-year-old Faulkner already has indicated who at least one of his assistants would be if he got the Denver job. He said he would retain defensive line coach Dale Dorrill from Filchock's staff, and possibly backfield-end coach, Ken Carpenter.

Faulkner was scheduled to meet with Bronco president Calvin Kunz again today, and then return to San Diego. The two conferred Tuesday.

"Kunz admitted that he 'is high' on Faulkner as a candidate," he said.

"We likely will have other candidates here for interviews," Kunz said. "Some of the candidates I can't name because they are assistant coaches with NFL teams."

"But I can tell you that we have talked to (Frank) Pop Ivy (former St. Louis Cardinal coach), and I don't know whether or not he's interested."

Kunz said that Dorrill and Bronco quarterback Frank Trippucka had applied for the head coaching job of the American Football League team—and both will get consideration.

Faulkner, mentioned also as a candidate for the job as head coach at Buffalo of the AFL, said he would not go to Buffalo until he found out about the Denver situation.

Faulkner also said, he thought Tom Brookshier, former Colorado University star and now a defensive back with the Philadelphia Eagles, would fit into the Denver staff. Bronco officials said they have been conferring with Brookshier as a possible Denver assistant.

Bearcats Are Hot, Cold, Cage Team

United Press International

Cincinnati's defending NCAA basketball champions have developed into the Jekyll-Hyde team of the current season.

Ranked second in the country although they are only third in their own Missouri Valley Conference, the Bearcats are either very bad or very good. The pattern of their performances even varies from one half to the next — as it did Tuesday night in an 80-61 victory over Dayton.

The score makes it appear that it was an easy triumph but the crowd of 11,492 at Cincinnati Gardens was amazed when Dayton led, 33-28, at halftime. The Bearcats had made only 28 per cent of their shots from the floor and seemed en route to their third defeat of the campaign.

But with Paul Hogue, Rm Bonham and Tony Yates showing the way, the Bearcats unleashed a brilliant 34-point second half to boost their record to 12 victories and two losses. First, they pulled to a 35-32 deficit; then they reeled off 10 straight points and in a 10-minute stretch outscored the Flyers, 27-8.

In contrast to the first half, the Bearcats made 70 per cent of their field goal tries in the second half. Hogue wound up with 21 points and Bonham and Yates each had 17 as Cincinnati scored its 9th straight win at home. The Cincinnati loss at home was to Dayton on March 1, 1957.

Notre Dame, which has had its troubles this season, scored an important victory when it defeated DePaul, 88-80, at South Bend, Ind. Maryland downed George Washington, 81-67, at College Park Md., and Virginia Military eked out a 74-71 triumph over William and Mary.

In other games, Cornell defeated Syracuse, 85-75. Penn State downed Colgate, 80-65. Manhattan topped Adelphi, 75-58. Louisiana State topped the Peru Olympic team, 81-49. Catholic University beat Washington, 88-53 and Bowling Green scored a 88-56 victory over Kent State.

Baltimore Might Get Cage Team

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The National Basketball Association today considered the possibility of creating a Baltimore franchise next season but said that beyond that the league had no immediate plans for moving into other cities.

At a meeting Tuesday, preceding the 12th annual All-Star Game, club owners discussed a promise to consider placing a franchise in Baltimore when a new arena is completed there, president Maurice Podoloff said.

"We have had three informal proposals so far from different Baltimore groups interested in a franchise there," Podoloff said.

"If a municipal auditorium now under construction in Baltimore is ready by next season, we would consider granting a franchise to the proper people."

But Podoloff added the NBA had no immediate plans for expansion "beyond honoring our Baltimore commitments."

Pampa Falters In Second Half

By DICK RABE
Daily News Sports Editor

Pampa's Harvesters made a gallant try again Tuesday night, but suffered a drouth of points in the second half as the local team went down to their third straight District 3-AAA loss, 53-42 in the Harvester fieldhouse at the hands of Monterey's Plainsmen.

The Harvesters were still very much in the game, going into the final period, but the boys from Lubbock caught fire and poured in 14 points while Pampa could only muster up three points. The win for Lubbock sent them into a tie for the loop lead with Borger, who eked out a narrow 42-41 decision over Tascosa. They are both 4-1.

Pampa now stands 1-4 in district play.

The Harvesters started the game minus two of their big guns, Wayne Kreis and Bob Neslage. Kreis finally made an appearance with three minutes remaining in the quarter, sinking one field goal. Russ Wilkinson sank a twopointer, just as the buzzer sounded to give the visitors a slim 17-15 lead at the quarter.

It was the same story in the second quarter with the Harvesters still playing catchup to the high-riding Plainsmen. Bob Neslage came in in the second quarter to bolster the Harvester of fensive might, and with 5:30 to go in the quarter, Lloyd Balch sank a two pointer, to tie it up at 24-24.

The Harvesters then went ahead to hold a 30-27 lead at the half.

The third period was a hectic one, with the lead exchanging hands constantly. After the dust had cleared, it stood 39-39 at the end of the quarter.

Randy Matson took over the individual scoring lead for the Harvesters with 19 points for his night's work. Kreis, who had been the previous leader, landed five points in a part-time capacity.

Jerry Morgan had 21 and Wilkinson 20 to lead the visitors.

The Pampa Shockers, with Larry Clifton sinking a last ditch field goal in the last five seconds of play in the first overtime, downed the Monterey B team, 48-46. The score at the end of regulation play was 43-43.

Aiding the Shockers in the scoring department were Kenny Hebert, 16, Donnie Ayers, 10 and Clifton, 9 points.

The win gives the Shockers a 4-1 record in district play.

Other Tuesday night results found Lubbock tripping Palo Duro, 66-65.

Life Is Simple For Flamingo Fish Guide

FLAMINGO, Fla. (UPI)—Life is an extremely simple as well as an earthy — and watery — proposition for handsome Tommy Williams.

"My grandma was 91 when she died and she had never been out of Florida," he said as he carefully freed a 15-pound tarpon and set it loose in the clear blue water. "But, then, why would she ever leave all this?"

Tommy is a fishing guide who works out of Flamingo, the tourist delight of the Everglades National Park.

"My folks has been here as long as anybody in the family knows," he added. "Pa was a moonshiner, long before this became a national park, and I just grew up here."

"Here" is a fantasy of fish and animals, a wild wonderland with limitless reaches of empty water and mangrove islands. Fishing, whether you stay at the comfortable motor lodge or at the nearby trailer park and camping site, is the piece de resistance.

Tommy knows it, its channels and the mudbanks over which he greases his skiff as if the bottom was made of lard.

"I reckon I oughta know it," grins the brown-eyed man. "We lived over-yonder when I was a sprout and I couldn't afford a boat and making a dugout just looked like too much work. So I took an old fashioned bhtub, plugged-up the drain and paddled around all year."

Which is why today the 33-year-old who has "about four children" is one of the most sought-after charter captains. He knows where they all are, whether you're after tarpon, the battling snook, palatifer red fish or sea trout, drum, sheepshead, Spanish-mackerel or red snapper.

The captains who take parties out of the well-ordered Flamingo marina get $55 a day and $10 additional for night tarpon fishing. And, at those prices, the captains see to it that the customer catches his fill.

For the fisherman who brings in a big haul of fish, Tommy has a wonderful tip on how to store them in a deep freezer and still keep the water-fresh.

"Wash out one of those cardboard milk cartons," he directed. "Fill the fish and pack them in the carton. Then fill it up with water and close it up and freeze it hard. Those fish will keep as long as you want 'em and when you thaw them out for use they're just like they just came out of the water five minutes ago."

Force And Morality

We have specified many times one is to understand the property question. Can we have a more moral world if wealth is more evenly distributed?

But the property question, while still under debate, takes on enormous overtones. It will be our contention that the whole concept of morality springs from the belief that many people have held for thousands of years, that stealing is wrong. We believe this conviction is valid and that theft is always immoral.

But it should be noted that many persons, notably communists, socialists, one-worlders, share-the-wealthers, and others however they call themselves, do not see themselves in an immoral light. Although they actually do believe in theft, provided only that it is performed legally and by government, they do not see such theft as immoral.

An examination of the leading documents provided by most of the thinking collectivists, will strike you at once in the pseudo-moral tone each of them takes.

The charter of the Fabian society of England provides us an excellent example. This document professes to establish a society which will work toward a "more moral world."

How does this apparent effort toward morality distinguish itself? The theme of the Fabians is that immorality and poverty can be equated. To have a moral world, poverty must be eliminated.

How does one eliminate poverty? By re-dividing the existing wealth.

How does one go about re-dividing the wealth? Ah, the solution is always the same, whether one is a communist, a socialist, a Fabian, a syndicalist, or whatever. One passes laws, or labors for the passage of laws, which will take wealth from those who have produced it to give it to those "less fortunate."

We have known many socialists in our time. Every one of them professes to be intensely moral. But every one of them is primarily concerned with the redistribution of property. By re-dividing the existing wealth.

Essentially, what is needed is a clear understanding of morality if serious studies recently conducted in the field of union operations reveal that the American labor movement is in a state of decline. There can be little doubt that this is the case.

Union membership is off. Dues are up. Employers are showing greater knowledge of economics and are resisting both union blandishments and union pressures more skillfully and more steadfastly than before.

But, as Solomon Barkin tells in his report for the Fund for the Republic, "A certain lassitude has overtaken the trade union movement itself. . . The image of unions as the social conscience of the community has been considerably dimmed. . ."

It is this area — the "union image" — where the major cloud as appeared to darken the union organizational phalanx.

Of course Mr. Barkin and the und for the Republic view the decline of unionism as a most serious threat to the American economy. We expected nothing so from either of them.

But the fact is that the "damning" done the "union image" has been wrought by unionism itself.

American workers are no longer entranced by the picture of a labor boss forcing his will upon the supposed "greedy capitalist." American workers themselves have become alarmed over repeated outrages committed against business and against

The Doctor Says:

By DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

Mechanics of Determining Patient's Blood Pressure

If you are puzzled about your blood pressure, you may be in the same boat as the old vaudeville comic whose partner wanted to know "How high is up?"

Like him, you couldn't answer sensibly unless you knew "up from where."

And, to find out the whereabouts of "where" you'd have to ask the right questions and receive reasonably informative answers.

That being so, I'll try in this and later columns to locate "where" for you so you'll know what questions to ask your doctor to get the information you need for your guidance and, I hope, peace of mind about your heart.

To discover the whereabouts of "where," you'll have to understand how your blood pressure is taken and something of the meaning of the figures you are given.

Here is what your doctor does when he records your tension: He snugs a cuff, containing a rubber bag, over your upper arm.

He inflates the rubber bag until he can no longer feel the pulse at your wrist.

He places the bell of his stethoscope over the course of the artery that lies under the skin at the bend of your elbow.

He slowly lets air out of the bag until he hears thumping sounds at regular intervals, corresponding to your heart beat.

He notes the level at which these are first heard clearly. And he records this level as your systolic tension, meaning that it represents the head of pressure at which the heart is pumping blood through the underlying artery.

This, as well as other readings, are given in millimeters of mercury for which the abbreviation is mm.Hg.

Having obtained systolic tension, he continues to deflate the bag until the thumping sounds disappear. And this level is the diastolic pressure that approximates the amount of resistance against which the cardiac pump has to act.

He then reports that your pressure is 150 over 100 and he writes 150/100 on your chart. By this he means that your systolic level was 150 mm.Hg. and your diastolic, 100 mm.Hg.

So much then for the whereabouts of "where." In another column, I'll try to suggest an answer to "how high is up?"

paid dues and gone out on strike even if they won the strike. Besides this, a number of non-union companies actually pay higher wages than union companies. And working in them is a joy. . . high morale, . . . employer concern, . . . growing customer satisfaction, . . . advancement through the ranks, . . . and so on.

Mr. Barkin's concern that labor unions may have permanently damaged themselves is understandable for his job for years has been within the ranks of the textile workers themselves. Hence, a bit of prejudice in favor of his own device is only to be expected.

What is really happening to the union movement, we suspect, is that many decent workers are increasingly disgusted with the image trade unions have created for themselves and find a growing personal unwillingness to associate with anything that smacks so of violence, mis-application of funds, and downright treachery and deceit.

What is beginning to emerge, of course, is the central fact. Individual men are not villains simply because they are managers. Nor are they heroes simply because they are labor bosses. Men are men and all are subject to much the same weaknesses.

The major realization comes when it is learned that management is compelled, thru competition and thru customer demand, to deal honestly and fairly with everyone. Management which will not learn this lesson will always fail, in time. But labor bosses are compelled by neither competition nor by union members. They have a giant combine which rides rough-shod over any and all opposition. And in the end they are frequently found guilty of every conceivable abuse.

Market place rules always can and will check management. Nothing but sound moral and economic intelligence will check the labor boss. And fortunately, at long last, such intelligence appears now to be on the upsurge.

Free School Lunch Plan Would Feed Half-Billion

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It has taken the New Frontiersmen, the show what a piker former Vice President Henry Agard Wallace really was, when it comes to free lunch, do-gooder ideas.

Twenty years ago this May, when World War II was really young, Wallace made a speech in which he said: "The object of this war is to make sure that everybody has the privilege of drinking a quart of milk a day."

For this humanitarian idea, the VP was lambasted unmercifully. His words were distorted into an interpretation that he wanted to give a quart of milk a day to the Hottentots.

He never said that, although this remark is frequently attributed to him. He didn't say "give" and he didn't say "Hottentot." He said everybody should "have the privilege" of drinking a quart of milk a day.

Today, the conservatism of Wallace's 1942 words would almost entitle him to an honorary membership in the John Birch society.

For the New Frontiersmen have cooked up a plan "to establish school lunch programs involving at least 500 million children within five years."

Ex-congressman George McGovern, D-S.D., now director of Food for Peace in the President's office, proposed this in a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and Foreign Aid Administrator Fowler Hamilton.

They're studying it. The prospects are not dim.

It might require congressional approval, but this isn't inconceivable, either. For the plan is being set up as something that will help get rid of American surpluses of wheat and dried milk. So it's a subsidy for American farmers as well as a relief project to feed hungry foreign kids.

Late in January, McGovern will make a round - the - world tour to survey possibilities and the acceptability of his plan in foreign countries. He is scheduled to meet with Presidential Assistant Arthur Schlesinger Jr. in Hong Kong. After looking things over, they'll proceed to India, Egypt and Tunisia.

The half-billion children they're talking about feeding are said to be in the Far East, South Asia, Africa and Latin America. This is one - sixth of the world population.

The lunch ration proposed is a glass of milk and four ounces of bread a day for an average 180-day school year. What the children have for lunch the other 185 days isn't explained and is not included in the plan now.

Food for Peace officials estimate the cost at $284 million a year for the two million tons of dried milk, which would make 90 billion glasses of milk. They estimate $432 million for 7.2 million tons of wheat, which would make 13 billion loaves of bread.

To this would be added $215 million for ocean freight. This would make total costs $911 million a year. Call it an even billion for short. (Are you listening, Henry?)

That would be at world market prices. If you figure what the government's Commodity Credit Corp. actually paid to acquire and store these surplus stocks of wheat and milk, you double the cost to $2 billion a year.

Actually, since it would take time to set up an operation of this size, only a fifth of these amounts might be spent the first year to feed a mere 100 million kids. Then 100 million more would be fed each year follows.

The food supplied would be on a grant basis under Titles II and III of Public Law 480. The grant would be government - to - government and would not have to be paid for, except by the American taxpayer.

This isn't, of course, a new idea. You may not realize it, but U.S. surplus foods are now being distributed to 30 million children overseas through school lunch programs run by foreign governments and American private relief agencies.

There is also the U.S. school lunch program — which goes back to Wallace's time. It now feeds a much better diet to 14 million American school children.

Federal government costs on this are $155 million this year. State and local governments spend $850 million on it and collect an average of 27 cents a day from those who can afford to pay. For others, it's free lunch.

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

The Socialists and Communists believe that it is wrong for individuals to own land, mines and factories because they think it gives the owners a monopoly on productive facilities which in turn enables them to exploit and control the public.

The error in this thinking arises from the fact that it is the use that is made of land, mines and factories rather than the ownership thereof which has significance for the public.

If private owners can get more food and fiber from land, more useful minerals from mines and more desirable goods from factories than can be obtained through collective ownership and operation, the public interest is better served than it is under socialism or communism.

We have only to look at the hunger in Communist countries arising from socialized farming, the failure of socialized mines and railroads in England, and elsewhere to produce coal and transportation in quantities and at prices prevailing under private ownership of these properties, and at high cost and scarce output of desirable goods in all Socialist or Communist countries to make clear that the public interest is not served as well by collective ownership of the means of production as by private ownership and operation thereof.

If it be said that under private ownership, although production is abundant, it gives some citizens control over their fellows and an unethical share of the wealth produced, the answer is that such is not the case under free competition. One must serve his fellows by making good use of the production facilities he controls or he will give place to others who can and will do it better. In addition, there is the concept of "Christian economics" which I proclaim, under which the entrepreneur will not only be compelled by competition to serve his fellows but will desire to do so. Such an individual will limit his profit - seeking to the making and distribution of such goods and the rendering of such services as will be of benefit to the public. He will not knowingly do anything that will injure them.

If evils develop in the free market — private ownership economic system, the remedy is more Christianity and not more government or socialism. If it be said that Christianity develops slowly, the answer is that the public is better served, production more abundant and distribution more equitable under the free market — private ownership system of economics, than it is under socialism, communism, government intervention or welfare statism. One has but to look at the slavery, unhappiness, poverty and suffering in Communist countries to be sure of that fact. Were it not so, there would not be constant streams of refugees fleeing from communism into the freer countries of the West. When thousands of persons risk their lives almost every day to escape from Communist lands, we may be sure there is ample reason for it.

(The American Way)

Our foreign aid program from the end of the shooting war in 1945 has cost us to date one hundred and one billion dollars, with no end in sight. This year Congress will be asked by the profligate spenders to lift the flood gates and pour out another five billion for so-called "mutual security" a term used to disguise the give-away racket.

The alibi offered by our foreign aid flounders is that unless we assume the white man's burden, also that of the black man, the brown man and those of indefinite shade, that the Soviet will subsidize and communize them. That scarcely explains how it is that countries that received millions and billions from us are firmly welded to the communist empire and not likely to be pried loose with anything less than revolutions behind the Iron Curtain.

Two and a half billion dollars went to communist Yugoslavia, and its president, Tito is asking for more. That country would now be non-communist had not our political leaders abandoned the anti-communist Gen. Mihailovich and instead given military and economic aid to the Moscow-trained Josip Broz Tito. We are paying billions for their perfidy in aiding our economy instead of our friend Mihailovich. India has had over 2 1/2 billion dollars, yet Nehru is flirting with Moscow while asking us for more aid.

Poland got 900 million dollars, is firmly grafted onto the Soviet bloc, yet some would send more money to Poland to save it from communism. Latin America got 5 1/2 billion dollars which did not keep communism out of several countries on that hemisphere and we have communist Castro established with a Soviet beach-head ninety miles off the Florida coast.

The Middle East got over 18 billion, the Far East and Pacific areas were blessed with over 23 billion of our dollars, part of that being frittered away in Africa and South Asia. What is happening in the Congo area, with the U.N. spending our funds by the millions is a chapter on its own. And a shocking, disgraceful chapter.

Foreign aid has paid dividends in a few instances. The recovery of Western Europe is the miraculous example. Anyone who traveled through France, Belgium, Holland, West Germany, Austria and Italy immediately after the hot war ended in 1945 would be amazed at the reconstruction that has transformed it in 18 years. During the final months of the war in Europe and immediately after, some of our pro-communists in Washington bureaus were advocating the so-called Morgenthau plan for the economic destruction of all Germany. Fortunately, saner minds prevailed before that plan of "aid to the enemy" was put into effect, though not entirely abandoned. The millions that were poured into West Germany resulted in recreating that industrialized part of western Europe. West Germany is today the greatest bulwark we and the free world have in Europe. Moreover, that country is paying off its debts to the U.S.A. in advance and lending billions to the World Bank to aid in the development of backward countries. We have bought mutual security there but the same amount of dividend on our investment cannot be shown elsewhere.

The recovery of France has been less spectacular, largely due to the burden of little wars in their colonial possessions which have plagued them for ten or more years. Since Austria shifted off the Soviet yoke, it has been remarkably prosperous and the same applies to Italy. Our aid did bring benefits in Western Europe which may be regarded as aiding our security in the war against the communist empire. But the record in many other parts of the world is the opposite. Today we of the United States are reaping the penalty and paying out billions of dollars to save sinking nations, some of them having been deliberately handed into the communist control by our political impotents.

Hankering

Banks Scare Hank Every Time He Walks Into Lobby

By HENRY McLEMORE

There is only one thing in the world that really frightens me, and that's a bank. Any bank. Let me walk into a bank, be it the Arkansas Boliveel Bank and Trust Company, or the Big Town Bank and Trust Company of New York City, and my knees behave in the manner of the most timid bridegroom.

Banks may not know it, but through the years they have developed an ability to frighten customers. Bankers excepted, no one has ever loved a bank.

The first person you meet upon entering a bank is a watchman or a doorman. He gives you the impression of being a trigger-happy fellow who wants to fill you full of lead slugs, each one placed where it will hurt the most.

What do you get in a bank after you pass the doorman? I will tell you.

They are scattered all over the place, each wearing a deep-freeze look. Their expressions seem to say to the customer, "No matter what you want, no matter what you need, we are here to see that you don't get it." I speak without fear of contradiction when I say that some of the most pompous individuals on earth, without having any reason to be pompous, are bank vice presidents.

As far as I have been able to discover their chief talent is an ability to get bald at an early age. Perhaps the best picture ever drawn of bankers was that done by J. P. Marquand in his best seller, "Point of No Return." It lacked only one thing — it made bankers out as human beings, and most depositors will swear they are not.

Today's discussion of bankers was prompted by my going to a well-known New York bank for traveler's checks, which I needed for a trip I am soon to make. I walked into the bank with the money in my hand. Perfectly good money. It would have been accepted without question by grocers, filling station attendants, restaurant owners, or train conductors.

The bank didn't like it. I was referred to a Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones said I would have to see Mr. Phillof. Mr. Phillof looked me up and down as if I were Jesse James and said, "Do you have an account here in this bank?" I told him that I didn't. His hair receded another quarter inch, and he asked, "Where do you have an account?" and his tone made it quite clear that he didn't believe that I had so much as a Christmas Savings Plan.

I held out all my money and told him that all I wanted were some traveler's checks.

Now, Mr. Phillof's bank was going to make money from my purchase of traveler's checks. For every one hundred dollars' worth I bought the bank would make seventy-five cents. Mr. Phillof kept eyeing me skeptically. He kept glancing at my money, looking at it as if he weren't in the middle of a place where the stuff grows, and didn't know what it was.

After about 10 minutes of this, Mr. Phillof rose to his feet, adjusted his bow tie and his second chin, and said, "Wait here for me, will you?"

That was too much for me. I walked out of the bank. When I leave here in a few days I will have my money, in cash, not traveler's checks. Risky? Sure, I will undoubtedly lose half of it before I get where I'm going. But I will have the satisfaction of knowing that for once in my life I was man enough to stand up to a bank.

Why can't banks be nice? It seems to me that banks, with all the money they have, could be as friendly as delicatessens, roadside diners, and a hundred other institutions you can name that have far less money.

You don't suppose banks have let money go to their heads, have you?

Yes, I'm afraid they have.

Rising Income

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Americans will enjoy an average family income of $10,000 by 1970, a leading economist predicts.

Professor Robert T. Davis of the Stanford Graduate School of Business says rising outlays for research and development, increased population, higher education and changes in family life patterns will fuel the long-range boom.

 It has led Britain to apply for membership over the strong objections of some members of the British commonwealth and it has caused the United States to review its own tariff policies.
 Industrially, it had led some U. S. firms to establish factories inside common market countries to make sure they are able to participate in the benefits. These moves have raised accompanying fears of an increase in the outflow of U. S. gold.
 Fears also have been voiced for the future sales of U. S. farm produce abroad. These are an important source of income, chiefly from grains, fats and oils and citrus fruits. Reportedly, the new agreement among the six assures that U. S. farm exports will not be hurt.
 It is most doubtful that even the most ardent supporters of the common market could have foreseen its success. It not only has gone far toward removing the sources of friction that lead to wars, it has seriously disrupted Communist plans to take over Europe piecemeal.

New Bill Seen As Compromise On Annexation

AUSTIN (UPI)—A new bill designed to curb municipal annexation abuses was introduced in the Texas Senate yesterday, indicating a compromise may have been reached on the controversial issue.
 Sens. Preston Smith of Lubbock and Crawford Martin of Hillsboro, both candidates for lieutenant governor, joined forces to propose the measure. Gov. Price Daniel was expected to add the subject to the scope of the third special session.
 House members side-tracked action on a bill by Rep. J. W. Buchanan of Dumas to reorganize the State Board of Water Engineers for heated debates on a resolution asking the national Congress to do away with all federal aid to education.
 Rep. Jake Johnson of San Antonio asked Rep. John Allen of Longview, sponsor of the resolution, "what's wrong with federal money? It is United States dollars and we are a part of the United States of America."
 Allen's resolution carried the names of 78 co-signers.
 The municipal annexation bill was similar to one passed by the House during the regular session last year that died on the Senate floor.
 Annexation limits would be based on a city's population. Cities with less than 5,000 persons would have jurisdiction up to one-half mile from their boundaries; cities up to 25,000, one mile; up to 50,000, one and one-half miles; up to 100,000, two miles; up to 250,000, two and one-half miles; and over 250,000, three miles.
 Cities would be restricted from annexing more than 10 per cent of their total area in any one calendar year. Within three years of annexation, cities must provide facilities to the annexed areas.

Winter Weather Deals Blow To Crops In Texas

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas' winter weather has dealt a $173-million damage blow to citrus and vegetable crops, the U. S. Department of Agriculture said today.
 The weather toll was one of the severest blows to Texas farming and ranching on record, the USDA said.
 Officials estimated citrus loss at $9.5 million, which it said may be reduced if frozen fruit is salvaged for the fruit juice market.
 South Texas vegetable growers suffered an $8 million loss, the USDA said.
