West Berlin, Communist Police Fight Border Duel

Here's Why Secrecy On Berlin Dealings Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kennedy administration officials believe there is now a better chance than at any time in recent years of reaching agreement with Russia to ease tensions in Berlin.

This fact, and the urgency surrounding it, explain a good many puzzling developments recently in the Berlin story.

Administration officials have determined to walk very carefully in order not to boot away what they see as a possibly historic opportunity.

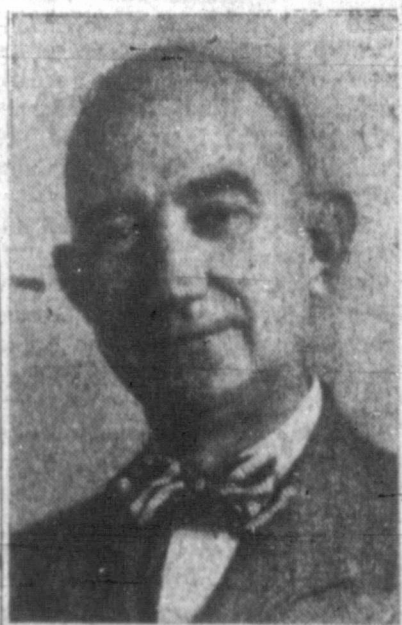

This is the reason behind an order that went directly from President Kennedy to the State Department recently for a general "news black out" on details of Berlin negotiations.

The only exceptions have been grudging confirmation of some details which were leaked mainly out of Bonn, Germany. These were confirmed without bothering to put the correct shading on them or put them in proper context.

The biggest leak from Bonn disclosed that the United States had circulated among its allies a "four-point Berlin plan," proposing the Western Allies adopt it and that it then be presented to Russia.

The four points were (1) an international commission to control Berlin access; (2) commissions of East and West Germans to handle trade and other matters; (3) non-aggression declarations by NATO and its Communist equivalent, the Warsaw Pact; (4) a U.S.-Soviet Pact not to give nuclear weapons to other countries.

The second piece of information to come to the surface was a disclosure that in its Berlin access proposal, the United States had suggested an access control commission composed of 13 members.

K-FC SPEAKER — Edmund H. Harding, noted humorist, will be the speaker at the Top O' Texas Knife & Fork Club's meeting here Tuesday. The dinner meeting will be held in the High School Cafeteria and Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Dinner tickets, on sale at Malone Pharmacy, are $2.04 per plate and must be purchased by 1 p.m. Monday.

Tourists Witnessed Exchange; None Hurt

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berlin and Communist police fought a gun duel across the border Saturday in full view of a group of tourists visiting the divided city on the Easter week end.

No one was injured although the Communists fired two machine gun bursts across the border, and West Berlin police replied with 10 carbine shots.

The shooting brought quick reinforcements to the border from both sides. Saturday night about 50 French gendarmes and West German police, backed up by three armored cars, faced 50 East German border guards on the walled-off Bernauer Strasse. The road and sidewalk there are in West Berlin and the houses on the east are across the border.

By the time the reinforcements arrived the shooting had stopped. There was no further trouble although the opposing forces continued to face each other across the border.

West Berlin police moved back scores of tourists who had watched the exchange and barred the area in the French sector of the city to hundreds more who were touring the anti-refugee wall Saturday.

An estimated 100,000 West Germans and foreigners jammed into West Berlin for the Easter weekend, and authorities called the influx a demonstration of solidarity with the encircled city.

All hotels and lodging houses in West Berlin were filled, and many of the visitors overflowed into private homes which were made available at the request of West Berlin city officials.

Solid lines of West German automobiles moved slowly through the two available entry points into East Berlin for a few hours' reunion with friends and relatives trapped behind the wall.

The border flareup at mid-morning came at a time when it had appeared the border tension was easing. Only two days ago the Soviet Union disclosed the return to Moscow of Marshal Ivan S. Konev who was sent to East Germany to back up the East Berliners when they built the wall last August.

The border skirmish started when a Communist policeman threw a tear gas grenade from a

Easter Sunday Services Set By Local Churches

Easter Sunday, anniversary of the day of Christ's resurrection, will be observed by thousands of churches in special services throughout the country today.

Many Pampans will attend special Easter services, some beginning at sunrise, which will climax Holy Week activities.

A sunrise service was to be held at 5:30 a.m. today at the Top O' Texas Drive - In, sponsored by the Zion Lutheran Church.

At 3 p.m. today the annual American Legion Easter Egg hunt will be staged in a field, one-half mile west of Highland General Hospital on the south side of Kentucky Street.

Legion officials said thousands of candy eggs will be hidden with some containing a lucky number good for cash prizes. The event is for children 12 years of age and under.

College and high school students and instructors will trudge back to classes Tuesday, climaxed a 4-day spring Easter holiday.

Texas in crowds of up to 15,000 will celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ Sunday in Easter observances ranging from modest church services to mammoth outdoor sunrise services.

Mild, sunny weather was expected to greet early morning worshippers, including those who turn out at 4:30 a.m. for services in both Spanish and English in the Sam Houston park in Houston.

The services have been in Spanish in the past and are being offered in both languages for the first time Sunday.

Also in Houston, about 18,000 persons were expected to attend the second annual Easter sunrise service of combined Negro churches in Jeppesen stadium. A thousand-voice choir was assembled for the event.

Other observances across the state include a pageant play at San Antonio, a military Easter (See CHRISTIANS, Page 3)

Mrs. McPhillips Dies In Her Home Saturday

Rites for Edith Frances McPhillips are planned for 2 p.m. Tuesday in the First Christian Church with the Rev. Glyn B. Adair, pastor, officiating.

Mrs. McPhillips, known as "Mother" to her many friends, died at 8:05 p.m. Saturday in her home, 428 N. Christy. She had been ill with arthritis and bedfast for over 20 years.

She was born Sept. 30, 1889, in Shillingstone Dorset, England, and had been a resident in Pampa for 20 years. She was a member of the First Christian Church.

Though confined to her bed and in pain, Mrs. McPhillips wrote 12 religious tracts and, also, a book, "Broken Alabaster," which is a collection of inspirational essays and poems. All of the proceeds from her writings were used to start and complete the Ginger Hill Chapel Mission Church in Jamaica. Ground was broken on March 25, 1962, for a second mission in Jamaica, which has been named the McPhillips Chapel in honor of Mrs. McPhillips and her husband, R. W., who died June 9, 1956.

She was also interested in world-wide missions and helped to support several missionaries of all denominations.

During World War I, she served as a voluntary aide in the Detachment Corps of the British Army and it was during World War I that she married R. W. McPhillips in Hearston, England.

She is survived by four daughters, Miss Edith McPhillips, Mrs. T. N. Watson, Mrs. S. L. Storseth, all of Amarillo, and Mrs. O. G. Evers of Lubbock; three sons, Tommy, Jimmy and Raymond, all of Pampa; two brothers, Archie Robbins of Australia, Percy Robbins of Shillingstone Dorset, England; two sisters, Mrs. Elton Webber of Swanton, England, Mrs. Charles Inkpen of Sturminster Newton, England; and eight grandchildren.

Interment will be in Memory Gardens under the direction of the Duendel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

Seattle World's Fair Opened By President

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — The Seattle World's Fair, America's first since 1940, officially was opened Saturday when President Kennedy punched a golden telegraph key 3,000 miles away at Palm Beach, Fla.

The opening of the sparkling fair grounds was marred by tragedy. An air force jet participating in precision drills as part of the ceremonies swept over Memorial Stadium and crashed into a cluster of homes not far from the fair.

At least two persons were killed, but the pilot, Capt. Joseph Wildt, 33, of Cincinnati, bailed out and was rescued from Lake Washington.

Few of the 10,000 persons gathered for the fair opening were aware of the tragedy. They heard President Kennedy on a special telephone hookup say "by closing this key, may we open not only a great world's fair, but may

White Deer Youth Hurt In Scooter, Auto Collision

A 12-year-old White Deer youth was hospitalized with injuries he received in a motor scooter-car accident at a White Deer business intersection Saturday afternoon.

Investigating officers said Gary Pettit, White Deer, was driving a motor scooter which was in collision with an automobile driven by Rayford Andrew Clifton, 54, also of White Deer, at the intersection of 5th and Grimes St.

Officers said both vehicles were traveling north on Grimes St. when the accident occurred.

Clifton told officers the Pettit youth was riding his scooter on the right side of the street and when he attempted to pass the scooter, the boy started to make a left hand turn and smashed into the right side of the car.

Young Pettit was thrown from the scooter and dragged several feet when his clothing caught on the door handle of the car. He was taken to Highland General Hospital where hospital officials reported he is suffering from a broken arm, cuts and bruises.

Highway Patrol officers were still investigating the accident late Saturday night.

Approximately 150 friends and supporters of State Rep. Grainger McIlhaney of Wheeler gathered at Coronado Inn here Friday night to honor him for his service to the 87th Legislative District.

Dolph Briscoe of Uvalde, past president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, was principal speaker for the occasion and praised Rep. McIlhaney for "his service to the district and Texas" and called him "Mr. Agriculture of the Texas House of Representatives."

Briscoe said McIlhaney was "a valued leader in the field of state affairs, water conservation, public school improvement and public lands." He added, "We owe it to the people of Texas and future generations to work for a man of the stature of Grainger McIlhaney. I will do all in my power to tell the people of this district and of the whole state of McIlhaney's great value and contribution to the Legislature and to the people of Texas. General Powers Says

'Nuclear War Can Be Ruled Out'

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Gen. Thomas S. Power, who commands more than 80 per cent of the free world's military fire power, said Saturday that nuclear war can be ruled out indefinitely because of America's deterrent strength.

The Strategic Air commander said 1,500 jet bombers and expanding missile forces in his global command exist to prove to Russia the "futility" of starting a war.

There is no way the Soviet Union could destroy the Strategic Air Command (SAC) by surprise onslaught today and avoid its own destruction from the retaliatory blows, he added.

Deterrence has worked up to now, the air officer said. With continuing fantastic developments which "inevitably" will include manned and maneuverable spacecrafts for SAC, "We can continue deterrence indefinitely." The general also challenged claims by some that "atomic idiots out here in Omaha are ready to blow up the world."

Power discussed U. S. deterrent power with newsmen who have been visiting underground missile bases in Colorado and Montana. They are seeing the almost impossible task that would confront the Soviet Union in trying to knock out America's ability to retaliate.

Rapidly taking shape in a Montana area that is as big as the state of Maryland is a force of Minutemen intercontinental ballistic missiles that by mid-1963 will be able to salvo 150 rockets in a few seconds. Each launcher is far enough away from its neighbors so that a single Soviet missile could not knock out more than one. And that would have to be a direct hit.

Candidate To Be Here Wednesday

Charles Ballman of Borger, Democratic candidate for State Senator, 31st Senatorial District, will be in Pampa Wednesday on his campaign tour throughout the Panhandle area.

Ballman will be honored at a coffee reception from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Cibola Room of the Coronado Inn. Everyone is invited to attend the reception.

Ballman, who "carried the ball for economy in state spending" during his three terms in the House of Representatives, stated, "I will continue my fight against waste and unnecessary spending in state government."

Ballman is a Borger attorney. He is married and resides in Borger.

Hearings To Start On Transit Bill Tuesday

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the second of two dispatches on President Kennedy's mass transit plan, assessing its chances of approval and the means administration supporters plan to use to win approval of Republicans for the complex program.

bill from becoming a strictly partisan issue.

They also claim support from allied business interests, some of which are traditionally conservative.

To prevent the legislation from being labeled a "big city" bill, its managers will stress potential benefits to the smaller towns and cities suffering from bus service problems.

The bill was endorsed by the American Transit Association, whose members include many of the smaller bus operations.

Sponsors of the legislation feel that strong administration support is its most powerful asset this year. In the previous session, the White House was reluctant and held off its endorsement until it reached the critical stage in congressional conference.

Supporters also say the fact the administrative machinery already is set up and operating will make their jobs easier this year.

The argument is that the present legislation could be represented as merely an extension of a program authorized last year.

This line would be followed in hopes of softening built-in congressional resistance to the federal government expanding its subsidy role to new segments of our society.

women's trio; Beltones, men's quartet; Sextet, women's group of six; and Gentlemen 4, men's quartet.

Regular feature of the LCCA Cappella chorus since it was first organized in 1957 when the junior college first opened, is a series of "Sermons in Song." In these numbers, selected men in the chorus give a memorized narration while the rest of the singers hum the melody of a familiar hymn. The chorus then sings one or more verses of the hymn, and the procedure is repeated four times.

The current "Sermon in Song" is entitled "The Peace of God" and it includes five hymns related to the theme and to the accompanying narration: "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," "Lead Kindly Light," "My Life, My Love, I Give to Thee," "Dying With Jesus," and "You Never Mentioned Him to Me."

Jim Shewmaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Shewmaker of Pampa sings in the bass section of the LCCA Cappella Chorus.

A prayer by the late Dr. Peter Marshall, former chaplain of the U.S. Senate — the favorite of Richard M. Nixon, former Vice President of the United States.

Our Father, with so much bitterness abroad in the world — this poor bleeding world, stumbling from blunder to blunder, hollow with graves, hard with hate — may we who own the name of Christ shed abroad Thy love.

We pray for a broader vision of the needs of all mankind and a deeper compassion to fill those needs, for a planting of the seeds of concern for all humanity in our hearts, for a tapping of the wells of generosity.

Help us to live together as people who have been forgiven a great debt. Help us to be gentle, walking softly with one another. Help us to be understanding, lest we shall add to this world's sorrow or cause to flow one needless tear. Help us to stand for what is right, not because it may yield dividends later but because it is right now.

Help us to be as anxious that the rights of others shall be recognized as we are that our own shall be established. Help us to be as eager to forgive others as we are to seek forgiveness. Help us to know no barriers of creed or race, that our love may be like Thine — a love that sees all men as Thy children and our brothers.

God, help us all to be ministers of mercy and ambassadors of kindness for Jesus' sake.

Peters Hollow Egg Fight Renews Today But Champion Hen Is Gone

PETERS HOLLOW, Tenn. (UPI) — Raymond Lowe's little red-scrabble yellow hen "got her foot hung in a tree" a few years ago, but Lowe has been combing mountain country for ammunition to retain his championship of the century-old Peters Hollow Egg Fight Sunday.

You won't find Peters Hollow on a map. But for more than 100 years, the farm families in the Staunton Valley of northeast Tennessee have been gathering here each Easter Sunday to answer the challenge of "I fight ye . . . come me."

The weapons are hard-boiled, fresh hen eggs. Goose eggs or rooster hen eggs are frowned on.

The challenger poises his hardest egg, small end up, in the cup of his hand. His opponent taps it with the small end of his own egg. The one that cracks loses.

The 66-year-old Lowe, in front of whose home the contest is staged, dominated the event for years because of a little yellow hen that laid eggs with a rock-hard shell. But he has "no chickens a-tall now" and has been forced to buy his six dozen entries from chicken farmers in Hampton and Shady Valley. He knows what to look for.

"Hens fed on laying mash lay soft eggs," he said. "A chicken that has to get out and scratch for anything it can find lays the hardest shelled egg. I always fed mine on scratch feed, corn and oyster shells."

Several hundred families will gather in front of Lowe's home after church Sunday. Some will bring as many as 25 to 50 dozen eggs—there's no limit on the number of entries.

No one knows for sure just how the Peters Hollow Easter egg fight started. Lowe said there are participants 90 years of age who have been competing since boyhood.

The story is that one Easter morning at least a century ago the men of Rome Hollow on one side of the valley challenged the men of Peters Hollow on the other side to find out whose hens laid the hardest eggs.

Lowe was the champion until his yellow hen died. Then Paul Peters beat him two years ago, and Freeman Taylor beat Peters last year.

Advance indications are there will be at least 6,000 eggs in the contest this year, and the fighting will last until after dark when only one of them is left uncracked.

Negro Family Given 1-Way Ticket North

NEW YORK (UPI) — A destitute 10-member Negro family arrived Saturday from New Orleans with warm praise for the segregationist group that paid their one-way bus fare from Louisiana.

"They're the finest people in the world," said 41-year-old Lewis Boyd after the two-day bus trip with his wife and their eight children, aged 3 to 12.

Boyd, a stevedore who has been out of work for a year and was taken off Louisiana welfare rolls five months ago, received several job offers on his arrival, primarily because of widespread publicity given the family.

Theft, Vandalism Reported Here

Tools valued at $85 were stolen early Saturday from a car belonging to S. E. Beavers, 1250 S. Barnes, an employee of the city street department.

Beavers told police his automobile was parked at the City Warehouse where he is employed nights. He discovered at 3 a.m. Saturday that someone had broken the windshield and door glass of the car. Further investigation revealed the theft of the tools.

Dewey B. Johnson, 827 Brunow, reported to police that someone threw a bottle through a plate glass picture window in his home about 2:30 a.m. Saturday.

Ex-Pampan Loses In Tiff With Government

Jimmy Weir, former Pampa barber and auto dealer, has lost another round of his battle with the government over crop acreage allotments on his farm near Dermott, Ark.

On Wednesday of last week a U. S. marshal auctioned off Weir's 995-acre rice farm for $6,000 to pay off penalties the government said Weir owed for overplanting rice in 1959.

Two other suits, one for $10,200 for overplanting rice in 1959, and one for $1,200 for planting nearly 60 acres of wheat without a wheat allotment.

Weir got into trouble with the government by his unswerving stand that acreage allotments are unconstitutional. His first run-in came in 1958 when the government granted him a 10-acre allotment for rice and then charged him with planting 40 acres. Weir paid a fine of $8,900 on that count.

When the government charged in 1959 that he planted 146 acres when he had only a 10-acre allotment, Weir refused to pay a $18,000 fine and carried the case to federal court, again charging that acreage allotments were unconstitutional. But the court upheld the government and ruled against Weir, who still refused to pay the fine.

The farm then was ordered sold. The former Pampan claimed the farm was worth $500,000, but it went at auction last Wednesday for $60,000.

According to reports from Lake Village, Ark., where the auction sale took place, Weir has stated he will carry on his fight.

"I just don't like to be pushed around," Weir said.

These reports also stated the farm was bought by a Louisiana planter who is friendly to Weir and that about 125 farmers attended the sale, most of whom were on Weir's side.

Weir operated barbershops in Pampa for a number of years and established the first barbershop in the Hughes Building. He left Pampa in the mid-fifties to begin his Louisiana operations.

Moments after the crash, a trio of German high wire aerialists performed unperturbed about 200 feet above Memorial Stadium, scene of the opening ceremonies, on a 1,200 foot cable stretched between the stadium and the space needle.

The fair got off to some lifted eyebrows over the presentation in its nightclubs of show girls with bare bosoms.

Secretary Of Commerce 'Roasted' At Meeting Of Saints And Sinners Club

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — When a member of the President's cabinet is being honored at a luncheon, you expect to see some kind of an unveiling.

But the unveiling that took place Wednesday at a luncheon given in honor of Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges was, for me at least, a new experience.

It was the first time I ever saw a striptease at high noon.

Let this give you the wrong idea, let me hasten to add that Hodges had nothing to do with the performance. He was merely the innocent victim of a group of local intellectuals who are members of the Saints & Sinners Club.

Club members meet periodically to break bread together and roast some government official.

Wednesday, it was Hodges' turn to be panned. In addition to bump-and-grind artists, the cultural part of the program included the life history of the guest of honor, as related by Walter Kiernan.

Hodges, said Kiernan, was born in a log house which was built by his father. The building no longer is standing. In fact, it never did. It leaned.

The elder Hodges, explained Kiernan, "was a nice guy but a lousy carpenter."

The Hodges family, he continued, was underprivileged, "but there was no one in Washington to tell them so, so they never knew it."

From that humble beginning, Hodges rose to become governor of North Carolina and later head of the Commerce Department.

According to the Saints & Sinners, the department has undergone many improvements under his stewardship. For one thing, the old slogan "You never had it so good" has been changed to "You never had it done to you so good."

Kiernan said that Hodges extended the olive branch to business — and the steel companies climbed out on it.

But perhaps the major improvement has been in the Weather Bureau, one of the branches of the Commerce Department. Thanks to the new weather satellites, the guests were told, it now is possible for the forecast to be wrong two weeks in advance.

I don't know how Hodges felt about the strippers, but he seemed to enjoy the ribbing he was getting. In fact, he managed to jest a bit about the recent clash between the President and steel executive Roger Blough.

When he told his secretary he was going to lunch with the Saints & Sinners, he said, she thought he was referring to the Kennedys and the Bloughs.

Although Cause Is Still Argued, You Can Fight Cancer Of Lung

(Last of Three Articles)
By HAROLD SHEEHAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — Superimposed on the lung cancer problem is an irony. The American public this year will spend about 250 times as much money on cigarettes as it will donate to cancer drives.

It is upon cigarettes which many medical men pile much of the blame for a disease which is growing sharply in numbers.

Present odds against surviving a lung cancer attack are about 20 to one. About 45,000 Americans will get the disease in 1962. This about equals the population of Stratford, Conn.; Tallahassee, Fla.; or Quincy, Ill.

One reason for the high mortality among lung cancer victims is because the lungs, unlike some other parts of the body, cannot be removed entirely. People need lungs to live. There is no plastic substitute.

Surgery which attempts to check the spread of the disease through a stricken lung has not been highly successful.

How, then, can lung cancer be combated?

The answer, say many authorities on the subject, is simple: Quit smoking.

Or, if you can't stop puffing away, have chest X-rays taken frequently, says Dr. Ronald N. Grant, of the American Cancer Society staff.

In addition to the A. C. S., other influential health organizations have taken up the cudgels against tobacco, a product on which the American public Health Assn., the National Tuberculosis Foundation and the Federal Public Health Service have hoisted warning flags on smoking.

Just what is the relationship? First of all, nobody has yet proved that tobacco smoke actually causes the disease. The statistics as compiled by ACS, however, are these:

The incidence of lung cancer among heavy smokers is between 20 and 30 times as great as it is among people who do not smoke.

A youth embarking on a career of heavy smoking stands a one-in-12 chance of eventually dying from lung cancer. The odds for nonsmokers are about one in 300.

Chances of contracting the disease increase sharply in proportion to cigarettes smoked per day.

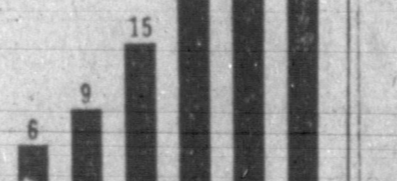

Incidence of lung cancer has risen with the popular acceptance of cigarettes in the past few decades.

Incidence of lung cancer is comparatively low among those persons who have stopped smoking for a few years.

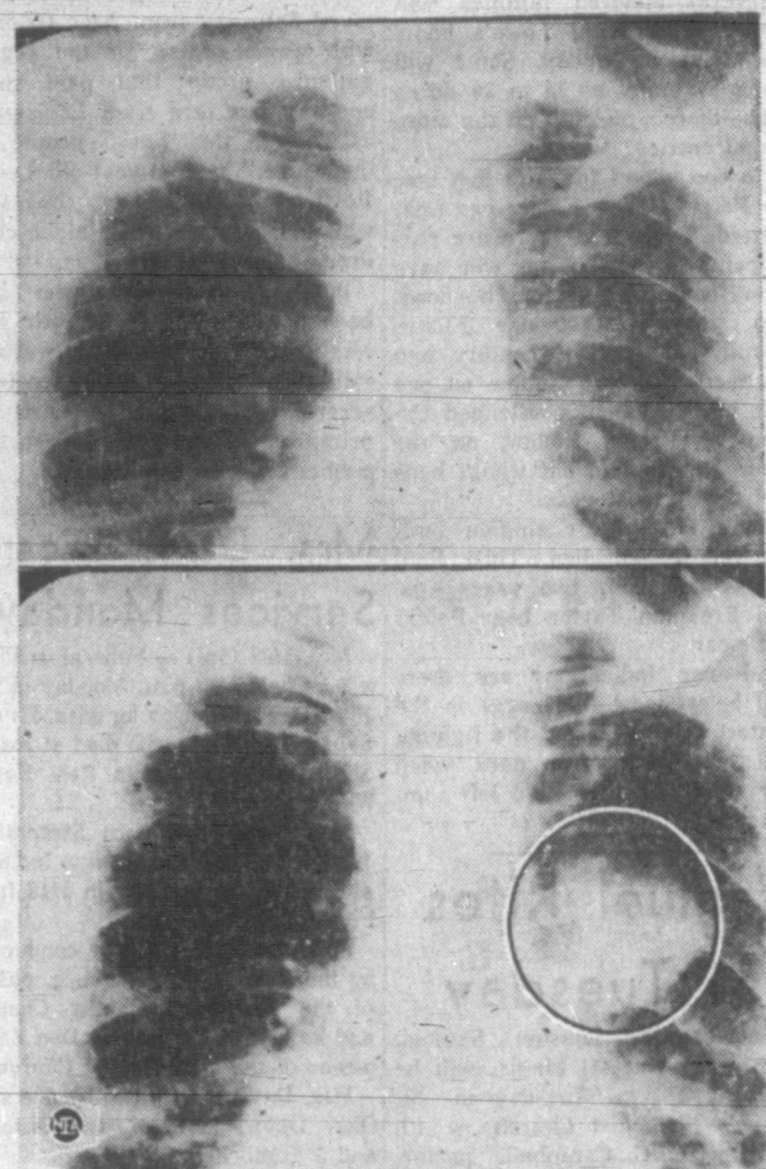

On the other hand, a few researchers are critical of the smoking-lung cancer statistics. Tobacco interests have sponsored some surveys of their own. Their argument runs:

More smokers may be dying of lung cancer, but a higher ratio of divorced and single persons also die of this disease (as they do, curiously, of almost all diseases) than married people. Yet nobody claims that divorce is a cause of lung cancer.

While the incidence of lung cancer seems to have risen in line with tobacco consumption, it may be that modern diagnostic Deaths from cancer of the lung in men have increased more rapidly than deaths from any other cause; almost 500 per cent in 25 years.

X-RAY PLATE at top shows normal, healthy lung. At bottom is lung with tumor circled.

methods are recording the disease more accurately. It is possible that many deaths which were once attributed to tuberculosis and other respiratory ailments were actually caused by what we know today to be lung cancer.

Concentrated tobacco substances have been used to induce cancer on the skin of animals. But this experiment is meaningless, say the tobacco people. They point out that lung cancer has never been induced in the laboratory with normal cigarette smoke. They say that with the right methods skin cancer can be induced even by concentrated tomato juice and some forms of sugar. However, most scientists close to the problem, according to ACS, consider cigarette smoking the principal cause of lung cancer in the United States. And until people become convinced of the facts and wish protection from the disease, says ACS, many thousands will die needlessly of lung cancer.

Meanwhile, the public continues to puff up a storm, and lung cancer — the leading cancer killer among men — threatens additional thousands.

Army Doctors Advise Soldiers' Diet Change

By CHARLES W. CORDDRY
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Army doctors have sent a shudder through the U.S. armed forces by suggesting that the average soldier eats too much rich food and should be put on a diet.

The Army said recently that these findings are under review. But that the doctors had armed themselves with facts and figures and were likely to prevail.

Almost as bad as the change in the menu for some of the GI's was the prospect of learning the difference between saturated and polyunsaturated fats. The former predominate in the present chow, but the latter would get a vigorous nod of approval in the new diet.

"This is a reduction in foods such as whole milk, cream, butter, hard cheeses, beef, pork, salad shortening and chocolate, which are high in saturated fats," the doctors explained.

"In contrast," they continued, "chicken, turkey and other fowl, fish and shellfish, cottage cheese, cereals, fruits, nuts, and natural vegetable oils are all relatively high in polyunsaturated fatty acids and are therefore recommended.

Not too convincingly, the doctors added that "this does not represent a radical change in the American diet."

"Many of the changes are substitutions: certain margarines for butter, skim milk for whole milk, vegetable oils for salad shortenings, sponge and angel food cake for richer pastries, more fish and fowl and less beef and pork," they said.

The findings were turned in by Col. Weldon J. Walker, chief of the cardiology service at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, and Lt. Col. Jacques L. Sherman Jr., chief of the medical research branch. They were published in the last issue of "Military Medicine," official journal of the Association of Military Surgeons.

The two doctors began by demolishing the idea that heart attacks affect only senior officers about to retire. They said the average age of men dying of heart trouble in the Army is 43.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bache & Co. says one of the factors used in attempting to determine the level at which a decline is exhausting itself is the trend of odd-lot short sales. Usually, when these sales show a distinct rise following a period of market decline it means that a bottom may be near at hand.

Last Friday odd-lot shorts rose to the highest daily level since late January. Taking this factor into account along with the overall condition brought about by a 10-day total of declines, Bache concludes that the drop of the past month is probably near an end.

Kenneth Ward, writing for the General Technical Survey, says that recent market weakness has been quite effectively offset by the favorable countertrend action of such groups as the paper, oil and aluminum, and purchases on any further weakness of specific issues within these groups are strongly recommended.

Standard & Poor's says the does not warrant any bullishness profits outlook for the steel industry over the remainder of 1962 for most steel equities.

According to the Dow Theory Trader, we may get a bit more spotty selling the test the 685 Dow-Jones level but after that we can expect the early beginnings of a sizable summer rally which may push all three D-J averages to new highs over a period of several months.

W. I. La Tourette of Shearson, Hammill & Co. says with the business background indicating continued gains in the economy at a healthy rate, combined with the fact that stock prices are about 1 per cent below their peaks, "we can generate more enthusiasm for buying common stocks than we have been able to for some time."

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The good old days of the income tax came briefly after William Howard Taft proposed it (1909) and Woodrow Wilson began (1913) to collect it. From 1909 to 1913, Congress submitted and the states ratified the 16th or income tax amendment to the Constitution. You wouldn't believe how lightly in the beginning the income tax flicked the pocket-book. A few lower brackets escaped taxation altogether when levies first were applied.

In 1913 a married person with two dependents and a $5,000 net income paid $10. At $8,000 the bite was $40, rising to $60 on the $10,000 family; $260 on $25,000; $2,510 on $100,000; $25,010 on $500,000.

Times have changed. Wars and the welfare state boosted taxes over the years until the $5,000 family was paying $577. It became $1,282 on an $8,000 income; $1,844 on $10,000; $7,004 on $25,000; $56,032 on $100,000; $411,224 on $500,000.

The foregoing figures, however, do not represent the actual highs and lows of income taxation. The record over the years as compiled by the Internal Revenue Service shows income taxes generally rising sharply under Democratic administrations and declining under Republicans—not merely declining for rich folks, but for the little fellows, too, and sometimes a bigger proportionate cut for the little taxpayer than for the big one.

For example: The family man with $5,000 net who paid Woodrow Wilson's treasury $10 back there in 1913 paid only $3 to Herbert Hoover's tax gatherers in 1929. The 1913 $40 tax on $8,000 had been reduced to $14. But the $100,000-a-year family which paid $2,510 in 1913 was hit for $14,846 in 1929 income. The $500,000 family paid $110,846.

Upper bracket taxes zoomed in World War I during the Wilson administration. The principle of more or less confiscatory taxes in the high, high brackets had come to stay. That principle has been reaching into lower brackets ever since.

The Hoover administration's 1932 revenue act, a depression measure, started taxes upward again. But it remained for two more wars and two more Democratic administrations to show what really could be done in the field of individual income taxation.

Franklin D. Roosevelt never made good on his idea that taxes should limit the income of any individual to a top of $25,000. But he did pretty well. FDR's 1942 revenue act took $730 from the $5,000 family that used to pay $10 and the 1944 act hiked it to $755. The $500,000 family paid $439,931 and $442,985, respectively. FDR's $23,000 income limit was a wartime idea to prevent deadly currency inflation.

Roosevelt had some ideas about inflation that never became basic in the New Deal. He warned in 1942, "If the vicious spiral of inflation ever gets under way, the whole economic system will stagger." That spiral has been winding upward for years, checked sometimes on one front and then another but never checked on all fronts. If taxes would stop it, that spiral would be stopped now.

Conservatives warn that the middle class is being taxed out of existence. They note the Marxist prophecy that the surest way to destroy a capitalistic society is by steeply graduated income taxes and heavy levies on estates of the dead. If Karl Marx was right about that, the U. S. number is up.

All three will advance to the State finals, along with Bill Ed Abraham who took second place in Ready Writing. Bill Ed also placed second in the Extemporaneous Speaking contest, but will not be eligible for state finals in that event. Linda Moon placed third in Persuasive Speaking; and Janie Mae placed third in the Journal-

You May Not Believe This But.... You Can Actually Bruise A Tomato!

The Lighter Side
By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Friends that tomato you picked up, so fair, unblemished and seemingly in the pink of condition, could be a case of beauty being only skin deep.

The poor thing may be suffering from internal injuries. The theory that tomatoes are highly susceptible to internal bruising has just been resoundingly confirmed in the research laboratories of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

A report on the study brings to light some of the most fascinating discoveries that I have seen in many a day. First of all, the researchers established various ways that tomatoes can be bruised. They found that bruising can occur when tomatoes "are squeezed tightly together in a box," when there is "rough handling of the boxes," and "from dropping individual tomatoes on hard surfaces."

As far as I know, nobody had previously suspected that dropping a tomato on a hard surface might cause it harm. The researchers then made some laboratory tests "to measure the amount of damage at various stages of ripeness when they were dropped distances ranging from 6 to 18 inches on a hard surface, and when dropped on a foam rubber."

This led to the startling revelation that "injury to those dropped on hard surfaces was much the more serious." If I interpret that correctly, it means that tomatoes are more badly bruised when dropped on a hard surface than when dropped on a soft surface. Eureka!

And that isn't all. The researchers also found that — hold onto your hats! — "the ripest tomatoes were injured most" by the dropping.

That may be hard to believe, but the report states it as a fact. Furthermore, it says that injury from the dropping "was found to be cumulative; that is, when tomatoes were dropped two or more times, the damage was found to extend to more and more internal parts."

That conclusion especially came as a shock to me. I had always believed that the more you dropped a tomato, the better. The tomato research, valuable though it may be, had what I regard as one serious shortcoming. Apparently, the tests did not establish whether the damage is greater when tomatoes are dropped at 6 inches, or at 18 inches.

I trust that point will be cleared up in future experiments. And then I hope the researchers will do some comparable work on the effect that dropping has on eggs.

Hundreds Of Millions Are Spent Yearly On Sports

DALLAS (UPI) — Sports is BIG business in Texas. The amount of money shelled out by Texans alone for one form or another of athletic participation — as spectator or participant — would put to shame the national debt of not many years ago.

The financial aspects of athletics reaches into nine figures — or hundreds of millions of dollars — just as it does in the heavy industry field.

For instance, hunters and fishermen alone of the participation sports spent an estimated (U. S. Census figures) $382,769,000 in 1960.

Or, to take another example, the state's bowlers spend an estimated $150 million per year in some 1,400 bowling establishments erected at a cost of $250 million — and that doesn't count the land value involved.

And, speaking of land values — what about the thousands of acres of fertile soil covered by golf courses in the state?

These participation sports — and there are many others on which figures are difficult to come by like tennis and archery — completely overshadow moneywise the spectator sports, both amateur and professional.

Game and Fish authorities, for instance, claim there are as many hunters and fishermen as there are paying customers at all football, baseball, basketball games, all other spectator sports, and movies and stage attractions combined in any given year.

They also contend that the state's hunting and fishing bill is greater than the total spent in the state for medical and dental care and hospitalization.

Census figures indicate 2,400,000 Texans hunt or fish or both — that means roughly one out of every three over 12 years of age.

That means that they spent an average of $137.84 per person, including $81.83 for equipment and $64.40 per person for fishing or hunting trip. License fees and lease fees account for the rest.

In the golfing field, there are an estimated 400 courses in Texas with each 18-hole layout covering approximately 105 acres. The land value involved is tremendous since many of the country club courses lie in one-time fringe areas which in these days of suburban expansion has suddenly become high-priced acreage.

The 150,000 golfers have approximately $125 million in clubs and bags — or $17.7 million — and they spend from $75 yearly for public course green fees to $300 in club dues for the right to play. This adds another $30 million to the financial exchange picture.

Getting back to the fishermen, the state's boat licensing law has enabled authorities to gather a rather accurate picture of the number of boats used by Texans.

As of this week, the state has sold licenses for 179,741 boats, not counting rowboats and sailboats which do not require licenses.

Of these, 141,299 were of the "under 16-foot" outboard motor type and another 25,515 outboards of from 16 to 26 feet in length.

But there are quite a few of the costlier in-board types, too. There of the 26-40 foot type and 225 of the luxury cruiser type of more than 40 feet, some of which cost from $30,000 up.

Among the spectator events, football is the big money sport. Southwest Conference games last year, for example, drew an estimated 1,409 persons to 42 home games, of which only 245,000 were of the cheap "student" admissions.

That means, at $4 per regular ticket, some $4 million. Post-season bowl games, radio and television rights will increase that to about a $7 million dollar business.

Then, there are nearly 1,000 Texas high school football teams in Texas, drawing anywhere from a handful to 20,000 spectators for the 500-odd games played each fall. And, the 25,000 or more players have to wear uniforms which cost $100 or more.

Two of them in Dallas are reported to have lost $1.5 million or more between them in their first year of operation, while the Houston club reportedly broke even last season. The red ink figures give some inkling of the size of bankroll involved in these ventures.

Minor league baseball has all but vanished from Texas, which once led the nation with 40 or more teams in seven leagues. The only minor league teams now are in Dallas-Fort Worth, Austin, San Antonio, Amarillo and El Paso.

But, major league baseball came to Texas this season in Houston. That called for a $1 million "temporary" stadium to use for two years while a $22 million plus air conditioned domed stadium is built. The backers paid $300,000 for a franchise, laid out nearly $2 million for players and another $1 million for miscellaneous expenses before the first game was played.

But, the club sold $1,100,000 in advance tickets and sold the radio and television rights for $1,250,000. That puts them "in the black" for the first season.

The stadium costs will be amortized over the long stretch and only this year's proportionate payment can be charged against this year's income.

Also figuring in the baseball picture are the hundreds of teen-aged league teams — their equipment and uniforms.

So, whether you are a spectator or a participant in sports, you are a part of big business in Texas.

Clark, Glover Wrack Up Wins With Mound Gems

By DICK RABE
News Sports Editor

Mike Clark and Jerry Glover, a couple of strong-armed righthanders, combined to limit the enemy to a single run in two weekend games as the Pampa Harvesters rang up number four and five in the victory column to begin the second round of play in District 3-AAAA.

Glover set the Plainview Bulldogs down Friday afternoon in Plainview on just three hits while carding a 1-0 shut out. Clark then fired a nifty one hitter at the Tascosa Rebels Saturday afternoon at the Optimist park as the local nine posted a 4-1 victory over their neighbors to the west.

The Harvesters are now 5-4 in loop play.

Friday, Glover allowed but three singles while walking three and striking out seven. The broad-shouldered fire-baller recorded his second loop win of the year to even up his league record at 2-2.

The Harvesters picked up their lone run in the first inning. After Howard Reed flew out, Kenny Hebert, Jerry Glover and John Arthur stroked successive singles to send Hebert home from third with the deciding run.

Saturday, Clark winged his way to his third win of the year in loop play against two setbacks. The stylish right-hander pitched no-hit ball until the top half of the sixth inning when Bill DeFee sent a looping single to centerfield with two outs to score John Bowman from second base with the Rebels lone run.

Clark walked five and fanned six in recording the victory. Clark went into the game third in the loop in strikeouts and upped his total to 41.

Pampa picked up two runs in the first inning. After Reed struckout, Hebert and Glover

Major League Stars Due Army Release

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

The New York Yankees are ready to welcome soldier Tony Kubek back with open arms, but it hardly figures to make much difference in their drive to the American League pennant.

The Baltimore Orioles, though, expected by many observers to make the strongest challenge for the AL flag, concede their chances are vastly improved with the imminent return of Army reservists Steve Barber, Ron Hansen and Barry Shetron.

All this came about Thursday with the disclosure by the Army that some — and possibly all — of the 20 major league baseball players summoned to duty as military reservists last fall may be able to rejoin their clubs in May on grounds that they hold seasonal jobs.

According to the edict, such stars as Kubek, Barber and Hansen and Jim Mudcat, Grant of the Cleveland Indians are eligible for release ahead of the August date set for reservists generally by President Kennedy. An Army spokesman, who cautioned that each individual case will be determined on its own merits, said that professional baseball players fall in the same category as other seasonal employees such as school teachers and farm workers.

There is, however, no guarantee that applications for release in May will be granted. For one thing, the player's commanding officer must determine that his release will not seriously impair military effectiveness of the unit to which he is assigned.

In the cases of Hansen and Barber, apparently this will not be a problem. Barber, one of the brightest new pitchers in the AL, currently is on duty at Fort Bragg, N.C., but is being granted

A's Post 9-6 Victory Over Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Norm Sieben and Jerry Lumpe each belted two-run homers Saturday to lead the Kansas City Athletics to a 9-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox and spoil Early Wynn's 1962 pitching debut.

Wynn, seeking his 293rd major league victory in his first start since July 22 of last season was saved from the loss when the White Sox rallied for five runs to tie the score at 6-6 in the sixth inning.

But the A's scored three runs in the seventh off reliever Ed Fisher.

Sneed Confident Of Open Win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sam Sneed threw the lie today at the impression that he is to old or chokes up too much to win the U.S. Open golf championship.

"I never think about finishing second four times," said Sneed. "I've finished second more than 70 times in various tournaments and the only thing I feel about it is that it's better than finishing third."

And, says the Slammer, he just might win it this year.

Yanks Belt Indians On Three-Run Homer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees maintained their "hex" over the Cleveland Indians when they beat them for the 19th straight time at Yankee Stadium, 3-1. Saturday on Johnny Blanchard's three-run homer and the combined six-hit pitching of Whitey Ford and Luis Arroyo.

The Indians haven't won a ballgame in New York since May 12, 1960.

They lost Saturday's contest in the very first inning when Blanchard teed off on Barry Lantieri for his second homer of the season, after Bobby Richardson had led off with a walk and Mickey Mantle also drew a base on balls with two out.

Ford, credited with his first victory, gave up all six of Cleveland's hits during the eight innings he worked. The only run he allowed was Gene Green's homer into the left field bleachers with the bases empty in the fifth.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The undefeated Pittsburgh Pirates stretched their victory streak to nine games Saturday by routing the winless New York Mets, 8-4.

The Pirates are now one game shy of tying the modern major league record of 10 consecutive victories at the start of a season set in 1955 by the Brooklyn Dodgers. They tied the American League record of nine games established in 1944 by the old St. Louis Browns.

Pittsburgh was paced by first baseman Dick Stuart who drove in four runs with his first homer and a bases loaded single. Roberto Clemente scored twice and accounted for another RBI.

Right-hander Bob Friend was credited with his third victory of the season, although he was forced to leave the game in the seventh inning when he was struck by Ed Bouche's line drive.

The Mets' eighth defeat was compounded by a head injury suffered by catcher Hobie Landritsch. Pirate outfielder Bob Skinner swung and missed and turned around, his bat striking Landritsch on the head.

The catcher dropped, blood oozing from the wound. He was carried off the field on a stretcher to the dressing room where four stitches were taken to close the wound.

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox scored four fifth inning runs Saturday to offset home runs by Al Kaline and Norm Cash to give Don Schwall a 4-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Schwall, whipped in his first two starts, had to beat the veteran Detroit ace Frank Lary for his

Washington (UPI) — Johnny Temple drove in all three runs for the Baltimore Orioles and Art Quirk and Wes Stock combined for a seven-hit shutout Saturday to hand the Washington Senators their fifth consecutive defeat, 3-0.

Earl Robinson of the Orioles walked in the third inning, was sacrificed to second, stole third, and scored on Temple's single to right. In the seventh inning, Claude Osteen of the Senators walked Gus Triandos and Stock. With two out Temple again hit in the clutch, driving a double to center for the Orioles' second and third runs.

Boating Is Becoming One Of Top Outdoor Recreations

PERRYTON (Sp) — Compared to the way Americans have taken to pleasure boating in recent years, the proverbial duck is a model of reticence in its affinity for water. One of the fastest growing forms of outdoor recreation, boating this year will attract more than 40 million Americans.

"While this growing interest in a popular water sport is to be cheered, it also boosts the risk of increased water accidents and drownings," points out Jack Maxey, general secretary of the Perryton and vicinity YMCA. "As the number of boats on our waterways goes up, so do the chances for mishaps. Already, some eight million boats are crowding our inland and coastal waters and the number keeps rising."

As part of its yearly campaign for water safety, the YMCA repeats its first law of boating: learn to swim first. Most boating accidents are caused by carelessness, YMCA water experts point out and forgetting or ignoring a few basic rules of safety. If you can't swim, you should stay out of boats.

"That many boating fans will ignore this advice is unfortunate," says Maxey. "But ignore it some will. The lucky ones will get by. The unlucky ones won't and will contribute to the total of nearly 7,000 drownings predicted for the United States this year."

Based on nearly 80 years of experience in water safety, the YMCA has set down simple, basic guides designed to keep the "pleasure" in pleasure boating.

"First," Maxey says, "learn to swim. Make sure you are prepared for emergencies while afloat, and avoid going alone. Every boat should carry some kind of approved life preserver. There are many types available, ranging from simple floating seat cushions to full size 'Mae West' life jackets. Small children should never be allowed in a boat without life preservers, no matter how well they can swim. Strap them on youngsters the moment they step aboard and don't take them off until they're safely ashore again. However careful you may be, children sometimes do fall overboard and boats will capsize at times."

If your boat has a motor, a fire extinguisher as part of your regular equipment is recommended.

When entering or leaving a small boat, especially rowboats, YMCA aquatic experts advise, step in only at bow or stern ends. Stepping into the middle can tip the boat and overturn or swamp it. And, for your own safety, never stand up in a rowboat or canoe while afloat.

Horseplay in a boat has been the cause of more than one tragedy, experience has shown. If you must be a showoff, do it ashore where your shenanigans are less likely to endanger the lives of yourself and others.

"Swimming off a boat is fun, but do it the safe way," cautioned Maxey.

Men Are Losing Last Of Retreats

FOND DULOC, Wisc. (Sp) — Beware, men, we're rapidly on the way to losing our one remaining sanctum sanctorum.

For years now the insidious forces of womanhood have been infiltrating our areas of retreat. Remember when our saloons became cocktail lounges, and gals started occupying them? Well, it happened.

And the racing game, long a racket that belonged to man alone, now bothered by the chattering companionship of female-type women. They are driving racing automobiles, motorcycles and boats, and beating lots of men in the process. It's a sobering spectacle.

The same is true of barber-shops, where in days of old men gathered to sing and enjoy the companionship without being bothered. Now, however, women by the hundreds are going to "out" barbershops to have their hair cut.

The one area that remained aloof, long after the others had succumbed, was fishing, where slimy bait and difficult casting reels defied the advance of femininity, the fishing men at Mercury outdoors report.

But now even that is going by the board. The invention of the American closed face spinning reel made the most fumbling female an expert caster. The development of featherweight canoes and cartop boats that can be launched and derailed as easily as falling off a log made boating available to the most willowy participant.

Then Mercury outdoors developed light weight motors that can be transported easily, clamped on a transom with a minimum of effort, and operated safely by the most inept gal.

So what happened? You can tell by counting female noses at almost any fishing dock in the country. "Our" sport has been adopted.

There's only one answer, men. We can't whip'em, so join'em. Take your wife fishing the next time you go. And you know, you just might enjoy it!

"Never dive in out of a boat. Slide in over the side and climb back in over the end. If you're alone, hang to a rope fastened to the boat."

Rough water and stormy weather are dangers every boatman should guard against, warns the YMCA. If you're going to spend any time afloat, learn to read and heed danger signals and keep up on weather reports. If the weather is threatening, keep your boat tied up until it calms. If you do get caught in a sudden squall or storm in open water, head at once for the more protected shoreline.

Most small boats will float when capsized or swamped and can support several persons, reminds Maxey. If your boat overturns, remain calm and hang on. Sooner or later another boat is bound to come along and pick you up. Trying to swim to shore in most cases is an unnecessary risk, even for good swimmers.

It should go without saying, notes Maxey, not only for safety but to add to the enjoyment of boating that every boatman should observe the rules of common courtesy when afloat. Unfortunately, many boating fans seem never to have heard of courtesy. They go roaring full throttle, cutting dangerously close to swimmers, fishermen or other boats. They zoom into tight turns at high speeds, risking a capsizing and endangering every life aboard. Headless to the threat to themselves and everyone around them, they recklessly invite disaster everytime they pull away from the dock.

Too often, the invitation is accepted, and one more tragedy in the water goes into the records.

"Boating has much to offer as a healthful, enjoyable and relaxing form of recreation," says Maxey. Common sense, courtesy and care can make it safe recreation as well.

MAKE REPAIRS

PERRYTON (Sp) — With the approach of the summer months, the Young Men's Christian Association is making repairs to the ball park and getting them into shape for the season.

With the help of the Jaycees, lights will be installed at the other boys' ball park. The men's industrial softball league will play their games there.

The YMCA is expecting approximately 350 boys and girls to participate in the three leagues, middle boys' baseball, older boys' softball and girls' softball.

Jack Maxey, General Secretary of the Y, announced applications will be distributed at school during the first week of May.

Texas Parks Are Big Attractions

United Press International — Texas outdoors writers have thrown the spotlight this year on the state's parks and what they offer the hunter, fisherman and camper.

From R. W. Barlow, assistant executive director of the State Parks Board, comes a rundown of the standouts among parks with facilities that appeal to outdoorsmen.

Lake Corpus Christi State Park near Mathis is one of the most popular. The park's land area of 599 acres brings visitors to 29,999 acres of the 54,426 acres covered

Lefors Could Be Threat For Crown

LEFORS (Sp) — Who will win the district 2-A football championship this year?

If starting early has anything to do with winning, the Lefors Pirates, who met defeat in the district championship play-off last year, are already planning for the coming season.

The Pirates will lose six starters from the senior class but will gain much in weight from their sophomore class.

From all outlooks a heavy line is in store for the Pirates. There will be five boys contesting for positions on the team who weigh near the 200-pound mark. The new line may not be as fast as last year's but will have a definite weight advantage.

The new backfield will be considerably lighter than last year's. There will be no great loss of experience in the backfield as most of the boys saw much action last year.

According to the area newspapers the Pirates are picked to come in first in the district race this year.

WOMAN'S PLACE — Linda Godfrey, black tights and checkered apron, made the first try for the girls. Thirty of them representing South-West Essex Technical College power drove their way to a 13-10 win over 15 boys in Rugby match at Walthamstow, near London.

Texas Lakes Offer Fishing Havens Throughout Texas

United Press International — State Game and Fish Commission biologists have completed a series of reports on fishing in a score of Texas lakes, for guidance in management, restocking and fish regulations.

The reports are virtually a fishing manual for several areas of the state. Here are the highlights:

Lake Lavon in North Texas — Game fish total only a fifth of Lake Lavon's fish, including mainly white crappie, some channel catfish and a very few white bass. White bass, introduced in 1957, continue to hold a minor niche in the game fish populations at Lavon, the commission reports.

Lake Texarkana at the Arkansas border — This lake sports a diversified fish population, including nearly half game fish. Game species included channel cats, white and largemouth bass, blue bills and white and black crappie. Channel cats taken from the lake average nearly two pounds, and white bass over a pound.

Lake Texoma on the Oklahoma border — Usually abundant, white crappie were totally absent from the selected net collections of Lake Texoma by biologists. Game fish total only a fraction of the lake's fish, including channel catfish. Legislature recently broadened the rules for the Texas part of the lake and the lake was closed to general fishing. Channel catfish in the biologists' sampling averaged more than two pounds and blue cats about a pound. Biologists say rough fish seem to be on the increase in this and other large bodies of water. The game and fish scientists also reported fish will reproduce at an earlier age and smaller size in a lake with low fish population than in more crowded lakes.

Lake Tawakoni in Northeast Texas — This new lake on the Sabine River has a scattering of game fish, but despite rough fish control methods has many species of rough fish.

Lakes in general in North and Northeast Texas — Fish biologists report rough fish seem to be increasing in most large reservoirs. Boaters and skiers interfere with summer survey work on lakes near large population centers, the biologists say. Treatments for rough fish removal was recommended if new reservoirs are to be built on Sanders and Big Pine creeks.

Lakes Arlington, Weatherford, Whitney and Worth — Gizzard shad populations have risen seriously, creating control needs. Biologists suggest planting striped bass in Lake Whitney as a test.

The report also suggests pollution of the west fork of the Trinity River by Fort Worth should be curtailed or stopped to prevent frequent fish kills.

Lakes in South Texas — Rough fish and undesirable vegetation are still bothering fishermen in most South Texas lakes. Biologists say effective rough fish control depends on control of re-infestation from the lake's source.

Falcon Lake o Rio Grande — Blue catfish have increased, but rough fish species still dominate with 75 per cent of the fish population. Other game fish include channel cats, white and largemouth bass, redear sunfish and white crappie. There is no development work planned for Falcon in future and the lake has very little aquatic vegetation.

Bentsen State Park Lake in the Lower Valley — Game fish species are growing in number, although efforts to screen native fish from the incoming water of the Rio Grande were unsuccessful. A restocking of largemouth bass two years ago following a complete fish kill has left the lake with good numbers of largemouth bass, blue catfish and white crappie.

The Rio Grande generally — Biologists say much of the Rio Grande is the most productive stream for fishermen in the region. It is the longest and most desirable stream area for fishing that is now open to the public. Roads are helping give access to the river, which affords generally good catfish catches and some bass.

Lake Waco near Waco — Habitat improvement has given an increase in populations of channel catfish, largemouth bass and redear sunfish. Game fish are now more than 38 per cent of the fish population, up from the 23 per cent in a 1956-57 survey.

Red Sox Will Rely On Defense During Season

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox, with the bat of Jackie Jensen added to the museum case alongside that of Ted Williams, will depend on defense more than ever this season instead of their traditional fence wrecking.

"Lack of power is a problem," manager Mike Higgins says of his club that placed sixth in the American League last year. "Chances of landing a good long ball hitter are few and far between, but we hope to improve on last year's finish."

Jensen bowed out this winter after several retirements. Higgins looks to Carroll Hardy or Lu Clinton, also right-handed hitters, to fill Jackie's old spot in right field.

Left field seems to be in the capable hands of Carl Yastrzemski, one of three bonus rookies who had a good year with the Sox in 1961.

Yastrzemski closed last after his batting average had dipped to .219 and wound up with a .266 mark that featured 11 homers. He feels that he is set to have a better season now that he knows the pitchers better.

Gary Geiger, a veteran left-handed batter who is notoriously weak against southpaw pitching, presumably has the call for center field.

Higgins is much more encouraged about his infield which seems steady at all four points. "We are more set there than last year and now know that we have a fine second baseman in Chuck Schilling," Higgins says of the bonus player who made only eight errors in 839 chances last year.

In addition to Schilling, Higgins counts on reliable Frank Malzone at third base. Pete Runnels at first and E. Bressoud at shortstop. All three are proven veterans.

Bressoud came to the club from the Houston Colts in a straight trade for shortstop Don Buddin. The later was well booted in Boston. Bressoud, a gifted fielder without much sock, had been drafted by Houston from the San Francisco Giants where he was a popular player.

The pitching staff is headed by Don Schwall and Bill Monbouquette. Schwall, called up from Seattle when the veteran Tom Brewer started to fade, posted a 15-7 record and earned the league's rookie of the year award. Monbouquette, starting his fifth campaign at the hub, was 14-14. "We have high hopes for our pitching," Higgins says. "And you can discount that 2-7 mark that Tracy Stallard had last year. It marked this first season as a starter."

A big question mark, stand six feet eight inches, is G. Conley. He posted an 11-14 record last season for Boston but is back from another season of pro ball. The little finger on his left hand is still bent after a fight on the hardwood. The right knuckle on his throwing hand was jammed against the boards.

"But I'll be okay," Conley says.

A good scramble is on among the kid hurlers for a starting spot although the realistic Higgins declares, "I doubt if they are ready for the majors yet."

Among the younger men are Earl Wilson and Dick Radtke both up from Seattle and both hard throwers; Bill MacLeod, Steve MacDonald, Dave Morbey and Dave Busby. None over 20.

Among the time-tested pitchers on deck are Mike Fornieles (9-3) and Chet Nichols (3-2). The latter is one of the few left-handers on the pitching staff and might yet reach his potential after bouncing around in organized ball since 1949.

The catching seems adequate protected by Russ Nixon and Jim Pagliaroni with Big Bob Tillman ready to back them up.

Higgins indicates that he would be satisfied with a first division finish this year.

Moulton Places Fourth in Meet

PERRYTON (Sp) — The trampoline team representing the Perryton Young Men's Christian Association competed in the AAU West Texas Gymnastics meet held at the Maverick Club in Amarillo April 7. Members of this trampoline team were Romana Moulton, Larry Eisenman, Jerry Helfenbein, Glenn McLain and Vicki Cutting. Instructor for the group was Larry McLain.

Romana Moulton placed fourth in the girls' trampoline novice with Nards Trampoline School placing first, Dallas Athletic Club second, and Oklahoma Twisters third. First place score was 24.9 while Romana Moulton scored 22.0 in fourth place.

In the boys' trampoline novice, Larry Eisenman and Jerry Helfenbein placed 4th and 5th respectively with Nards first, Texas Tech second and Nards in third.

Glenn McLain placed third in the boys' trampoline championship, following first place by only 1.5 score. Texas Tech was first with 25.8, Portales, New Mexico, second with 24.5 and Perryton's Glenn McLain third with a score of 24.3.

Vicki Cutting won second place in the girls' trampoline championship following the first place winner, Dallas Athletic Club. Vicki Cutting scored 24, with the first place scoring 27.

Amarillo, Tascosa Shoot For Sprint Medley Mark

LUBBOCK (UPI) — Amarillo Tascosa and Denison will be shooting for a national sprint medley relay record next Saturday in the feature event of the Red Raider Relays.

The recognized schoolboy mark for the event is 3:22 flat, posted by Long Beach Poly of Los Angeles in 1960. Lubbock High, which has a 3:30 clocking, and Fort Worth Arlington Heights also will be in the race.

Denison owns the best mile relay time in the state this season, a 3:18.7, while Tascosa has a 3:19.2.

Aside from the special sprint medley relay, all athletes entered in the meet must have qualified for the state meet in Austin May 4-5.

Thirty-nine teams with more than 100 athletes already have entered the meet, which has been won by Abilene the past four years.

BILLOW FLIGHT — Barbara Cooper, left, and Judy Rosch peit each other with pillows on the billows of Florida's Cypress Gardens. They jump in Dixie Water Ski Tournament.

BROWNS TRADE

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns Saturday traded offensive tackle Ed Nutting to the Dallas Cowboys in exchange for fullback Merrill Douglas in a move to add more reserve backfield strength.

Douglas, a 205-pound combination fullback and halfback, was understudy to Rick Casares of the Chicago Bears for three years before going to the Cowboys last season. The former University of Utah player was the Bears' sixth draft choice in 1958.

Nutting, a Georgia Tech graduate, suffered a knee injury in the Browns' fourth game last fall and spent the remainder of the season on the injured reserve list.

Stengel At Home on Polo Grounds

NEW YORK (UPI)—Inside the of Casey Stengel when "Old-esser" returned to the Polo Grounds for the first time in 10 years.

Now, maybe it's some kind of nightmare, like Western Den- College for a feller who's left- ed back there in K.C., but here place looks—horribly liar like that there feller I on third last year.

There ain't no last year maybe I been dreamin' all time about guys named Man- and Berra and even for the dozen years or so I couldda n in a comma which in itself, this here ball park, is a sen- ce anybody needs like Sing- g, and you gotta know what I an.

I pinch myself because if I 't shave this morning on ac- nts the photographers and me- ng and another, like another e I remember but can't place, y I gotta think this last time remember is a dream about I when I'm managin' the Yan- s and we beat these here Jints this here very same ball park. Only it can't be because the is is gone West, I happen to member, it seems to me, and if it ain't so then this has to be l and I'm managing a Boston m which is gonna finish sixth d that'll be the end of it for me the National League. And if a think that's bad, then you'd ter think again.

Now as I said when we were kin' about that feller from Jop- who came up that time with e bases loaded, and you remem- r the previous spring what hap- ned and I don't have to tell u, but anyhow if I hadn't ayed this morning I'd think aybe it was 1923 all over again, d that's a year I view with r mixed connotations.

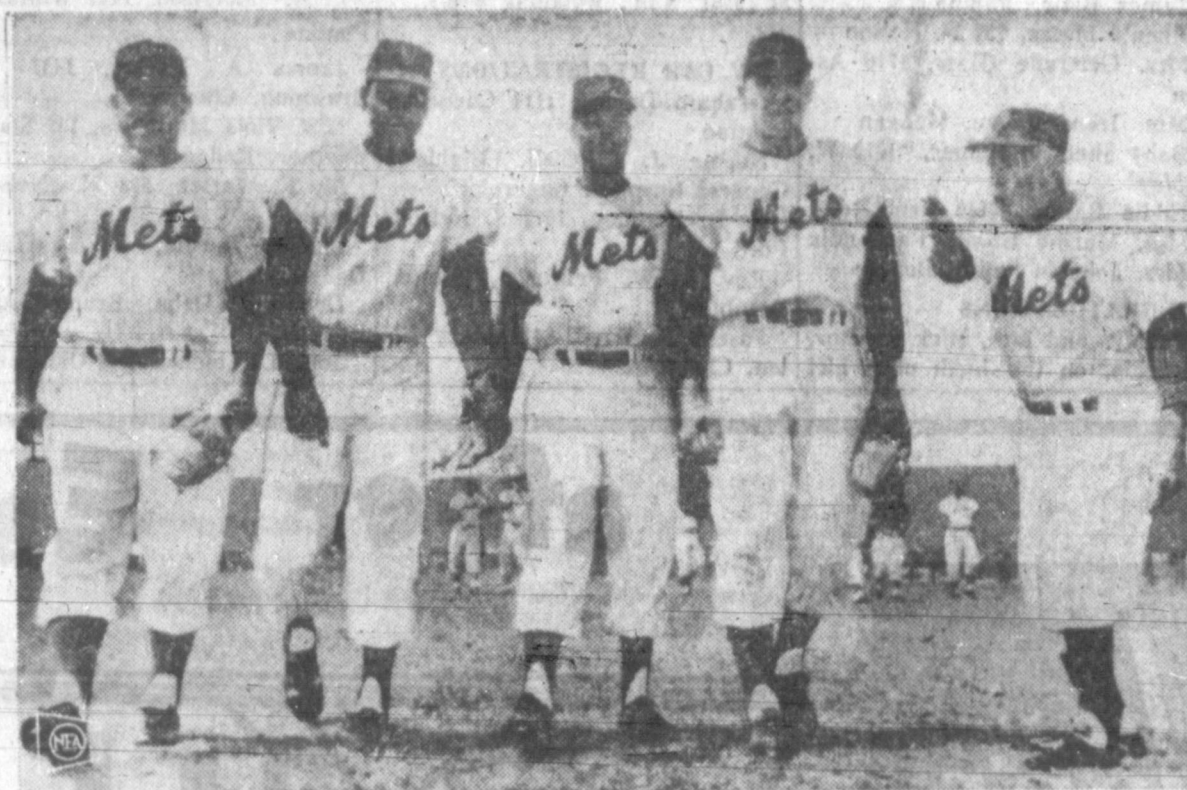

Anyhow, that year I'm playin' enterfield for the Jints and uggy was quite a man himself, ong with some other guys med, let's see now, the Dutch- an, Frisch, and a few others, yhow, so I hit two in the Se- es against the Yankees, it's a ct and you can discount the st dozen years or so, but any- w I hits one way up there and ve it the old turkey trot with e wave of the cap and all of at, hammin' it up a bit you ight say for the fans, but the econd one I hits way out there n that corner and I gotta leg it ll the way.

Now at this time I am a mere 2 years old, just a young squirt, ou might say, but for some rea- on they hang an old man tag on e and when I finally get to the late with my second homer of the series I gotta think maybe they got something there, at that, puffin' and all, and so right after that when I go West to meet Edna's family, us having decided to get married up, why they figure I'm an old man who's gonna walk in on crutches and it's quite a shock all the way around, kinda like today only not quite so bad.

So the last thing I remember is a great big ball park called Yankee Stadium and it's quite a lovely dream to take down the old pike with you but while over the years the guys from Brook- lyn, where I did a stretch, too, is supposed to hate these guys over here, but I never really can get my heart into this kind of a feel- ing, if you know what I name. So I'm half of one and half of another and half of something else and unless that's not enough for a whole percentage why you can take my word for a time 'ack when I sat it out a whole season and got the cash anyhow.

Meaning it sure is all mixed up, clubs and years and things, but as I said about that feller from Joplin, that feller I got on third being what he is, like the writin' feller who said what's in a name, who cares whether it says "Jints" or "Mets" or what- ever, let's get on with this here good-old ball game.

Walter Rogers Reports

H. R. 10977
On March 28, 1962, I introduced the following measure in the House of Representatives:

A BILL
To provide that certain information relating to the national security shall be made available to the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that, notwithstanding any other provision of law, of any Executive order, or of any rule or regulation, when ever the head of any department, agency or instrumentality of the United States determines, as the result of information developed in the course of any investigation, that any officer or employee of the United States or any person seeking employment as an officer or employee of the United States would not be consistent with the interests of the national security, he shall transmit all information developed in such investigation to the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Sec. 2. The Speaker of the House of Representatives is authorized to make available, for purposes of possible legislation, all or any part of the information transmitted to him under this Act, to such of the committees of the House of Representatives and to such of the Members of the House of Representatives as he determines necessary in the interests of the United States.

This bill was referred to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service and requests have been made of several departments of government for full reports and recommendations concerning it. As soon as these reports have been prepared, I hope to request hearings on the subject matter and ask for passage of the bill.

Some have expressed doubt as to the need for such a measure. They have taken the position that this is a matter presently within the jurisdiction of the FBI and the other security agencies of this nation. It is argued that the files as to present and prospective employees of the government are kept secret in order to protect the particular individual from possible unfair conclusions with relation to certain fact situations.

Certainly no one wants to be unfair or to create a cloud of suspicion over an American citizen simply for the satisfaction of gossip mongers. However, this is a matter having to do with the safety and interest of this country, and it is my opinion that every possible opening for a Communist or Communist sympathizer or one subscribing to an ideology conflicting with ours to get into government employment should be closed.

Contrary to the general belief, the FBI does not issue clearances or nonclearances or express opinions regarding the suitability of persons for employment with the government. Nor does it make recommendations regarding the hiring, firing or retaining of applicants or employees of other Federal agencies.

I must confess that for a great number of years I have been proceeding under the false impression that the FBI, the body charged with the internal security of this nation, made recommendations as a result of facts gathered by it concerning the employment or retention in employment of Federal employees. Having discovered the contrary, it occurred to me that under a true representative form of government, the duly elected officials of the people should have information on the subject. Primary responsibility for the preservation of the United States of America rests in the hands of the Congress.

Unless that body has full access to information concerning the employees of this government, whether they be Civil Service employees, Foreign Service employees, or purely political appointees, this responsibility can not be effectively carried out. As the matter presently stands, the FBI gets together facts and submits them to an official of the Federal government who has been appointed rather than elected and who, along with others, makes the decision as to whether or not the particular individual is to be employed. H.R. 10977 simply permits the duly elected members of the Congress of the United States to know what is going on in the executive branch of the government, as well as the judicial branch of the government, with regard to employees. It will provide a most effective bulwark against possible infiltration of undesirables regardless of ideology.

FIGHTS FOR FARMERS
GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI)—Attorney Glenn Henderson, representing tavern owners, asked the Guilford County Commission Thursday to permit Sunday beer sales in the county so rural residents "can drink out of the same gourd as city folks."
Beer sales are permitted in this county seat after 2 p.m. on Sunday.

English Lady Notes Birthday

By DORIS E. WILSON

An English lady with a humorous and refreshing viewpoint of present-day life celebrated her 90th birthday on Thursday of this week. Of equal note, and for all we know, she might be the record-holder for the longest distance elopement in the history of romance!

Mrs. Elizabeth Gething, who was born April 18, 1872 in London, England, now makes her home at 1304 Mary Ellen. It should be noted here that the walls of her living room are hung with delicate and intricate Samplers. "But in England, all of the young girls worked on Samplers," she told us.

About the romance and elopement, Mrs. Gething's husband, Arthur, was a Welshman and a barrister. He came to America first and discovered the wonders of the West, which he wanted to share "with his girl back home in England." So he went back to London and got his Elizabeth and they eloped to the Panhandle of Texas in 1896. They settled on ranchland just southeast of Lakeeton and 10 miles east of Lefors, which is still owned by Mrs. Gething and which her grandson, Bill, now oversees for her with help of tenants.

Arthur and Elizabeth Gething first lived in a "broken-down shack", as she described it. "The east window was in the south and the north window was in the west, so we built a dug-out and moved over the original site of the dug-out, which they used as a basement for their home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gething, who came to the Texas Panhandle 66 years ago as an English bride, celebrates 90th birthday this week.

They had one son, Edward, who died at the age of 62, just one year ago, on April 17. Mrs. Gething's birthday last year was sadly unobserved.

But not this year. There was a pretty birthday cake, baked by her granddaughter - in-law, Grace, decorated with a green coconut nest holding candy eggs with two pert Easter Chicks peering proudly over the rim and it was lighted with nine pastel candles, each representing a decade of life. There was also a lovely dinner with fresh Hot Cross Buns baked by Carrie West, wife of Mrs. Gething's minister.

And a Card Shower from members of St. Matthews Episcopal Church of which she is one of the three remaining charter members; the other two being, C. P. Buckler and M. K. Brown.

Another nice surprise was the bouquet of yellow paper jonquils in a yellow cardboard pot, which kindergarten students of St. Matthews' Day School made and presented to her with each jonquil autographed by the student who made it. Her great-grandson, Grant, is a member of this class. "It was such a surprise that he didn't tell me about it beforehand," Mrs. Gething mused. And six-year-old Grant replied, "You should have seen Nana, when she saw those cards and flowers. She just pucker'd up and cried."

Mrs. Gething also has a granddaughter, Mrs. Mary Ellen Lilly, who lives in Burbank, Calif.; and three other great-grandsons, Mark Gething of Pampa, George and John Lilly, both of Burbank.

How did she spend her days as an English bride on the wide and wonderful prairies of the West? Life was never dull from what she told us.

She loved to ride horses at a fast speed over the prairies and to sing while she rode. She didn't ride a-straddle the horse, but rode side-saddle in "a lady-like manner." She had learned to ride thoroughbreds at an English academy and had brought her own saddle with her when she came overseas to the West. That saddle now has been given to the West Texas Historical Museum in Canyon.

Her singing, while riding, came to her rescue about dusk one evening, when she became lost in the sand dunes. She was lost and she knew it. So she began singing at the top of her lungs out in that uncluttered countryside. She hoped that her voice would carry to someone who would help her find her way home. It did. Some cowboys found her and when she asked them what they thought of her singing, they replied, "don't know about the singing, ma'am, we thought it was a new coyote."

"Cowboys are the gentlest, most well-mannered people. They're not mean and rough as a lot of people think."

"Our family read an awfully lot," Mrs. Gething reminisced. "We would send to New York for those paper-back books and we would read and read and read. One of my favorites was 'The Three Musketeers', then and it is still. I also like the stories in 'Field and Stream'."

Reading is denied Mrs. Gething now, but she is a great radio fan. "I live with the radio on from 7:30 a.m. until seven o'clock at night. I keep it on all day."

One of her friends told us that she is a well-informed person on national and local events. On the national scene, Mrs. Gething thinks that it might be a good idea "just to put a lot of women in Washington to run the government. At least, they wouldn't give everything away."

Due to scarcity of doctors back in those days, Mrs. Gething also served as a nurse for her ranching neighbors. She nursed typhoid fever patients and helped deliver babies into this world. "I've helped 50 babies be born and not one of them has died," she said with great pride. She would ride horseback to where the stork was hovering over the housetop; help with the birth; and ride back to her own chores at home.

She also held Sunday School classes in her home for ranching families and oil field workers. "I told them they could come to the dinner parties if they would come to Sunday School. And they came to Sunday School."

Later, when the St. Matthews Episcopal Church was established in Pampa, she placed her membership here. She would ride by horseback from her ranch to services in Pampa. And she didn't come empty-handed. She raised chickens and turkeys and sold them for pocket-money to bring to the church.

Another favorite pastime of Mrs. Gething's in those days was to arise early in the morning-put a pot of coffee on to boil; and then go out on the front porch to sit on the steps for a while and listen to the early-morning sounds. "There were sounds you heard at that time of day that you didn't hear at any other time. I loved country life. I remember telling one minister that you can find God easier there."

Mr. Gething passed away in 1917 after three years of ill health. Eight years ago, a broken hip forced Mrs. Gething to give up her beloved "country life" and move to the city.

When she went into the hospital with the hip injury, she vowed she would not leave until she could walk. And she didn't. It took seven long months, but when she left she wasn't using a wheel-chair. "And I really don't need the crutches," she said, "but they are a support."

In reminiscing about birthdays, Mrs. Gething remarked that her sister, who is two years younger than she and who lives in Gloucester, England, will be having

Book Review For TC Cotillion Club

Twentieth Century Cotillion Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Howard Greenlee, for a review of the book "Behind the UN Front," written by Mrs. Alice Widener and reviewed by Mrs. Jim Campbell.

Mrs. Campbell explained that Alice Widener is a free-lance political writer, who worked for the "Voice of America" for five months but was dismissed for being "too hard-hitting and too anti-communist."

"While doing a series of articles on Americans participating at the United Nations," Mrs. Campbell explained, "Alice Widener learned that there was a 'kind of freedom underground operating within the UN'."

"At the risk of their jobs, men and women with dependent families sent me accurate and documented information on the subversive activities of American and foreign communists in New York City, Paris and Geneva," the author wrote.

"This book was written," Mrs. Campbell said, "to provide the underground with an outlet through which they could send a regular flow of information to the general public."

Members present were Meses, Alvan Agan, Gene R. Barber, James T. Brown, Jim Campbell, Frank Carter Jr., Harbord Cox, Lee Fraser, Don Lane, Ralph McKiney, Howard Greenlee, Ed Watts and Buddy Cockrell.

Presbyterian Units Have Bible Study

Circle I of the Women's Association of the Presbyterian Church met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Warren Hasse, 1704 Christine. Bible study, taken from the Book of Romans, was given by Mrs. D. W. Bond and Mrs. A. G. Crosby. Mrs. Will F. Graham read from the World Book of Prayer. Seven members were present.

Mrs. George Hrdicka, 1619 a birthday next month. "She's a pretty little thing, just like a doll."

Speaking of her love for horses, Mrs. Gething wryly remarked that she "had ridden everything from an ox-cart to an airplane. But I don't think I'll go to the moon."

We had never heard of water-cress sandwiches. We thought water-cress was something you used to decorate a plate. But, no, Mrs. Gething said it is delightfully tasty and used to be sold on the streets of London. She planned some of it along the creek that runs through her ranch, so that she would have a supply handy when the "craving for water-cress" became acute.

Before her birthday was over, we hope that Mrs. Gething got some water-cress. For this wonderful lady, who seemingly has lived her 90 years worthily, and to the hilt, deserves anything that her young heart desires!

DENIM, WITH ELEGANCE

Carlye does it, surprisingly, in a newsworthy sailing blue denim. Beneath the arc-detailed jacket, a soft fantasy plaid overblouse of woven Dacron voile. The denim, too, is a wonderful Dacron-cotton blend, so perfectly drip-dry you probably won't even want to touch it up with an iron.

WITH A CUP OF steaming hot sassafras tea, laced with a tablespoon of Black Molasses Syrup at our elbow, we begin today's column of gossip, giggles and gush... our friends tell us that there is nothing like the mixture taken internally to make a person able to enjoy all the glories of Springtime... we'll see... in reflection, poor, younger generation!!... just think if you had been wearing those long-legged underwear that reached to your ankles, today, Easter Sunday, would be the day that you could remove them... unless you've gone through those months of twisting the long legs around your ankle in a neat fold... so that the long, black cotton stockings (white for Sunday and if you were really lucky you had a beige pair, too) worn over the long underwear would look neat... you really can't appreciate what an occasion it was!!... usually a Spring time cold of deep proportions followed the removal of the winter garment... but no matter how warm the days preceding Easter Sunday, our parents were resolute in their refusal to allow any deviation from the Easter Sunday rule... so see, youngsters, what you have missed by being born about thirty years too late???

Spring passes over mountain and meadow, waking up the world. — Mary Baker Eddy.

WHILE ON THE subject of spring fashions... and who doesn't love to talk about them!!... from far-off Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri, comes the news that two Pampan, Anne Tripplehorn and Carol Tripplehorn... who are cousins, by the way... walked off with top honors in the best designs in the annual "Susie Stephens Originals" fashion show held April 14 in an ultra-chic department store in St. Louis... Anne, who is the daughter of Jim and Anna, won first place design award with a sportswear ensemble of ruffled bare midriff blouse in a zinna print with ruffled capri pants in a coordinated color... Carol, daughter of Bob and Albertine, won the second award (this is Carol's first year in competition) with a Chanel-type suit of beige-red-black print with black blouse... both the girls are Fashion Design students at Stephens... and they modeled the garments they designed and made themselves!!... bet their moms and dads are proud!

THOSE BUSY BETA SIGMA PHI gals... no sooner do they successfully complete one lovely affair... The Woman of the Year Tea... than do they start on another... this time they are honoring four members from their own membership at their Founders' Day Banquet to be held April 30 in the Black Gold Motel... four girls... one from each of the four chapters... will be selected by her own chapter membership and singled out for honor because of her outstanding service and contribution to her chapter during the year... who she is will not be revealed until then... a cute story we heard the other day was about a "lost lunch hour" a couple of Upsilon Chapter members had... you've heard of "lost weekend," well, Myrt Pafford and Louise Fletcher spent their lunch hour recently in one of the hot departments and "got lost" everything they saw went to their heads... another cute story is one that Kathryn Steele is telling on herself... she was invited to give a book review... which she does so well... for the American Business Women's Association dinner meeting last week in the Pampa Hotel dining room... she was looking forward to it... so one night she dressed carefully... gathered up her review notes... and traipsed down to the hotel... only to find that she was one night early... the dinner was scheduled for the next night... fret not, Kathryn, it happens to the best of organizers!

A SCENE THAT'S PASSING... from the American scene... a parent sitting in the driver's seat when their teenage daughter or son is in the car, too!

ANOTHER NICE HONOR accorded a Pampan... was the election of Billie Osborne as third vice president of the Top of Texas District of Texas Federation of Women's Club at a convention held recently in Shamrock... she's been active in federated club work for many years and has just completed a successful year as state chairman of Conservation... her husband had a clever and husbandly remark to make when he heard of the honor... "well, what do you do now?" he asked... Billie answered, "I'll be going to the state convention in San Antonio this Spring"... "Just like presidents and vice presidents," her husband remarked, "when they get elected to office they start traveling"... wonderful to hear of Joan Rogers' approaching marriage to Dr. Richard F. Hutton in June... he's a fella she met while she was teaching Army personnel's children in Japan a couple of years ago... they resumed their friendship state-side and now they are getting married!... there was a lovely shower for Judy Smith Nesloge on Tuesday evening in Betty Henderson's home on East Foster... Judy came home especially for the shower given by a group of her friends and then left Thursday to re-join her husband, Fred, who is stationed with the army at Fort Sill in Oklahoma... and pretty Betty Sprinkle is getting married, too!!... in June to Bradley Burkhardt... think they met while students at Abilene Christian College.

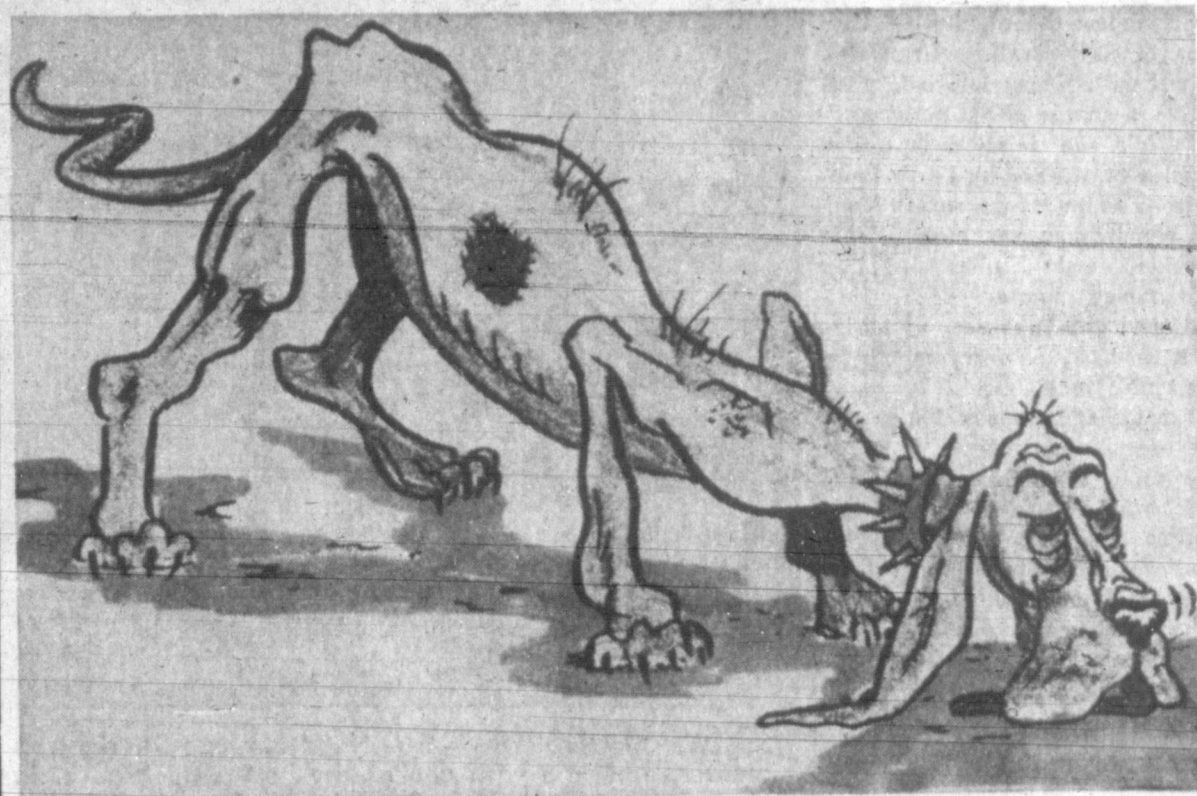

THERE WAS A LOVELY group of ladies having luncheon recently in the Coronado Inn... just caught glimpses of Dorothy Teed... Mamie Maguire... Anne Lee Gordon... Eleanor and Jean Braly... Melba Wade... Betty Cain... Lucille Gordon... Elaine Waters... learned later it was the Pampa Lawyers' Wives Club "cooking up" some fun for their husbands.

OUR FAVORITE SPY tells us that Pampa Little Theater's new play "The Night Is My Enemy" is bound to be a smash... it is a mystery drama... and long rehearsals have gone into its preparation... and if you don't believe that just ask Homer West, the director... Marie Jones, the production manager and any of the cast members... Joyce McCausland... Jim Terrell... Jim Douthit... Dorothy Walker... Bob Hale... Roberta and Don Hickman... Mary Sue Black... Pasty Rawlings... Frank Hatcher... and there is a behind-the-scenes crew... the list is too long to mention here... but they are working so hard to provide Pampa audiences with two enjoyable evenings in the theater... Friday and Saturday of this week... Joyce has particularly challenging role as a blind girl, which she has mastered beautifully... she does a bit of stage business, too, with crocheting... and by the time rehearsals are over and it is curtain time, she should have a length of crocheting that would reach from here to Mobeetie... we think Bob Hale deserves an academy award for the sacrifice he is making to the theater arts... his role, that of a dull-witted son in the play, has called for his going without a haircut for over a month!... Easter Sunday or no! He is abiding by the directors decree!

Spring hangs her infant blossoms on the trees, rocked in the cradle of the western breeze. — William Cowper

THOSE WHO JOURNEYED to the AIME Spring Dance in the Amarillo Country Club on Friday evening tell us that it was a ball!!... The Panhandle Chapter is composed of members from Amarillo, Borger and Pampa... and Pampa can boast that the chapter choose a Pampan, Nate Turnbo, to head this illustrious oil men's group... and there were as many Pampan at the dance as from the host city... or Borger... among them Don and Angie Fry... Billy and Bob Bruner... Jack and Glenna Lea Miller... Charlie and Pot Norton... Nate and Barbara Turnbo... just to name a few.

See you in church this morning and at the American Legion Easter Egg Hunt this afternoon... Love, Peg.

Dear Abby...
Three Strikes And
A Lover Is Out!!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend told me he loved me and wanted to marry me. He said his wife was older than he was and he never loved her. He moved to Dallas and paid my way there so I could be near him while he waited for his divorce.

That was a year ago. Now I find out that two other women beside myself followed him there. One is a brunette about 24, and the other is a gray-headed woman in her fifties who even divorced her husband and brought her grown daughter along!

All this time he has been feeding us all the same line. His wife is not older than he is. She's a nice-looking blonde woman. Should I tell the other women he has made fools of us? (I feel kind of sorry for the old one.) I hate to hurt his wife by telling her, but I think she ought to know what a rat she married. I am going back home, but why should that liar get away with anything?

WORRIED DEAR WORRIED: Your wife should see a doctor at once for a thorough check-up. Insist on it, and don't take "no" for an answer.

DEAR ABBY: My heart doesn't yearn for wall-to-wall carpeting and fancy clothes, but oh, Abby, how I would love to have my husband bring home some foolish little gift on some unspecial day. He isn't a thoughtless guy, but when you have to "hint" it's no fun. He's a grand guy and a wonderful husband, and if he'd only do this little thing to let me know I am as special to him as he is to me, I'd be the happiest woman in the world.

FOOLED DEAR FOOLED: Tell the others. They'll get over the disappointment when they learn they've been part of a harem. And his wife should know, too. He's had his three strikes.

DEAR ABBY: I swear my wife has sleeping sickness. We both work to help pay off our house. She gets out of work before I do (half an hour) and falls asleep waiting for me. At supper time she is always the first one through and she often lays her head on the table and falls asleep while waiting for me and the children to finish. When I finish, I clear the table, put the children to bed, and then I wake her up (at the table) so she can go to the couch and sleep some more while I watch TV. She sleeps on the couch until midnight, and then I wake her up so she can go to the bedroom, get into her nightclothes and go to sleep. She sleeps all night and wakes up at 7:00 a.m. The next day it's the same story over again. When we go anywhere, she falls asleep in her chair. Her mother and father both have sugar diabetes and take insulin daily. Could this have anything to do with it? My wife refuses to go to a doctor. I am worried.

Never Had It So Good

Without question, one of the most difficult questions to be posed by today's political collectivists relates to the apparent good times we are experiencing. How can things be so terrible, we are asked, when standards of living are rising, when industry is expanding at least marginally, when there is only a fractional unemployment, when the "gross national product" is at a new high, in short, when we "never had it so good?"

Whenever this question is asked we are reminded of the story of the man who jumped off the top of the Empire State Building and as he passed the 14th floor, he shouted to a startled observer: "Nothin's goin' wrong yet!"

We are informed by those who have tried it that a free fall in space can be a rather pleasant experience. But some way, so long as the laws of gravity pertain, a landing must occur. If there is no parachute or other device to break the fall, catastrophe can be safely predicted.

In a very real sense, this is what has happened to the American economy.

Beginning some years ago, the government began to intervene more and more in the operation of our economic structure. To do this, it began to tax more and more. Finally, it began to regulate and to control. It has been in process of violating economic laws ever since. But so long as economic laws remain, and lacking some workable device which can call a halt to the fallacies, a smash-up can be predicted.

Just when it will occur is not known. It would be equivalent to try to find out how high is "up." But it will undoubtedly be true that so long as governmental economic doctoring continues, the illusion is going to be fostered that the government is a parachute. There are going to be some very surprised people when the forcible contact with reality ensues.

Without a doubt, the reason for so much confusion in the economic area relates to the Keynesian philosophy which has been adopted in this nation officially ever since the second Roosevelt acquired the reins of power. This Keynesian philosophy supposes that ALL economic ills can be remedied by spending more money. Thus, any time a lag in spending ensues, the government, true to this philosophy, loosens the purse strings and in effect prints more money.

And to make the matter even more acute, if private firms or individuals don't spend "sufficiently" to please the political fulminators of our ruin, then the government steps into the breach waving contracts and largesse and subsidies and "benefits."

So long as there appears to be lots of money floating around, then the tendency to spend freely is encouraged. And without question, this stimulates the feeling of success and affluence so often noted in this particular kind of "free fall."

Perhaps we can illustrate our precarious position best by talking briefly about gold.

Gold has been officially priced at $35 per ounce. The figure is silly at the moment, but when the pegging occurred it was probably slightly above market value. With the passing of the years, the true value of gold (on the open market) has continued to rise.

Today, no one knows what the true price of gold would be if buyers of gold were free to bid on it. But foreign claims against American gold reserves now exceed the total amount of such reserves.

This means that our entire money system is at the mercy of foreign claimants. Should they elect to make their legally justified demand, only one of two things could happen: (1) We would lose all our gold reserves and be in arrears in the final payments. Or, (2) we would repudiate these payments before this final moment was reached.

In either case, American credit would be ruined, and the value of the paper dollar, private funds which are related to the paper dollar, bonded indebtedness and other examples of money or credit, would drop rapidly. This does not mean that we lack the ability to produce more gold. On the contrary, there is probably more gold available for the digging than has ever been mined to date. But to get it out of the ground today at inflated wages would require more money than the gold is worth at the artificially pegged price.

Determined Man's Strength

There seems to be a tendency among most of us, that when trouble knocks at our door we want to bring others in to share it with us. Misery loves company.

It is possible that this inclination we so often feel arises from a very ancient idea that in union there is strength. We band together in the face of difficulties. Or we try to. The individual man who must face a danger or a problem alone is apt to feel unequal to the obstacle before him.

Naturally, there are two sides to this point of view. And the other side, almost always overlooked or neglected, may be found finally to have true merit. The other side is that perhaps the individual is in a stronger position when he is alone than he might be if others joined him.

Through this seems incongruous on its face, let's consider it. James L. Hoffa, the renegade teamster boss, has been conducting quite a campaign lately to enlarge the membership of his revenue-producing racket. In so doing, he finds himself up against management of both large and small companies.

If there is validity to the proposition that size and strength are to be equated, that in union there is strength — one could safely conclude that Mr. Hoffa would meet his most serious opposition from the larger firms.

It goes without saying that any management would oppose Hoffa. It is not on principle, at least on the basis of immediate ability to stay in business.

Here is Hoffa's own evaluation of the problem he faces in trying to enlarge his income:

"Nine times out of ten, you're up against one man who owns the company. In the past we've largely concentrated on larger industry where company policy is dictated by a board of directors elected by shareholders. And realizing that a lengthy strike might get the shareholders clamoring for their heads, a board of directors is inherently inclined to be more reasonable. But with these small outfits, the owner sometimes just closes up shop and walks away rather than see his workers organized."

A most interesting observation. In the instant case it would seem that a single rugged individual would have more chance of defeating Mr. Hoffa than a large corporation. This is particularly important when we recall that the bulk of all union membership comes from large business and industry. Union gangsterism apparently doesn't have the might of a great many people think it has, when it confronts a resolute single person.

We recall a recent union organizational drive against farm workers on the West Coast. The union strategist who performed the qualitative and quantitative analysis outlining objectives and tactics pointed out the major problem.

There were 150,000 farmers scattered over as many square miles. To terrify all of them; to unionize them; to take them over one at a time was beyond the

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

A news dispatch before me announces that during the current decade the Soviet Union will turn out 2,500,000 engineers of university graduate grade. By contrast in 1959 the United States produced 65,989 graduate engineers with bachelor's master's or doctor's degrees. If we multiply this by ten to make it a full decade we will have just under 600,000 engineers in comparison with the Moscow figure of 2,500,000.

If these figures are correct it will mean that the Soviet Union is training almost four times as many engineers as the United States. The dispatch also says that the Soviet science and engineering graduate is as well trained as the American graduate. It says further that the Communist plan is to outproduce America on the basis of more and better trained engineers.

In the last analysis industrial and commercial leadership will go to the nation whose people are willing to work the hardest. While we argue about a four-hour day and indulge in footdragging and featherbedding the Russians are working a full eight hours with a minimum of slow down. Let us read the handwriting on the wall and change our ways while yet there is time.

According to the National Industrial Conference Board fringe benefits paid to American workers in 1960 amounted to $18,600,000,000. Dividends paid to owners amounted to $14,100,000,000. Total compensation paid by private industry amounted to $248,000,000,000. Total earnings of corporations, after taxes and before dividends, amounted to $22,700,000,000 as a percentage of the total amount paid by private industry in compensation, we find that owners received in dividends slightly more than 9 per cent of the amount paid to workers. Taking fringe benefits alone we find them 1-13 times as large as the sum paid to owners in dividends.

These figures ought to make it clear that the lion's share of the wealth created by American industry is being paid to labor. Only about 1-13th of this sum is paid to those whose savings make possible the highly paid jobs which labor enjoys.

"I am not a liberal at all," said Senator Kennedy in 1963. "I never joined the Americans for Democratic Action. I'm not comfortable with these people."

Poor President Kennedy must be very uncomfortable indeed for he is surrounded by 37 members of the far-to-the-left Americans for Democratic Action—three White House aides, three members of the Cabinet and 31 key administrators in important positions dealing with finance, labor, civil rights, public works, power housing and foreign policy.

What was the first order of business? It was to get the farmers to organize into groups. If the individual agriculturalists could be encouraged to join into groups, co-ops, associations, etc., then it would become a relatively simple matter to take over such organizations.

Those who sought to "represent" the farmer would be reluctant to stand firm in the face of pressure knowing that in many cases were dependent on him. The very fact of his being a member of a group made him more apt to crumble when threats were applied.

In other words, a joining together of persons does not necessarily enhance their strength. Place yourself in the position of a military commander with the objective of taking over an enemy country. Then ask yourself which you would rather face: (1) a hostile army, which by military means you could overcome on a test of strength or (2) a nation of persons, each one determined, individually to do all in his power to thwart such a takeover.

Examine the question. Think of the numerous times in history, one man or a small, closely knit group of men have actually wreaked havoc behind enemy lines. Imagine a total population so dedicated.

Perhaps it is time to analyze the amazing effectiveness of a single individual. It is quite likely that the generally accepted position that in union there is strength isn't a reliable guide to human conduct.

Nuclear Engine Tests Scheduled Every Two Months In Nevada, To Ready Rover For Flight Trials In '66

WASHINGTON — The National Aeronautics & Space Administration is stepping up the development of Rover, the nuclear-powered rocket, so it can be flight tested by 1966.

Tests of nuclear reactors at the rate of one every two months are being scheduled at the Atomic Energy Commission's testing site in Nevada to permit scientists to select the first nuclear engine this year.

A nuclear engine selection in 1962 is essential if NASA scientists are to meet the proposed flight test schedule calling for the use of nuclear-powered rockets for space exploration to the planets in the late '60s.

These exciting plans to speed up the ROVER's development were outlined by Harold B. Finger, NASA's nuclear systems manager, at a private meeting of the House Space Committee.

Finger called on the legislators to support the accelerated program by authorizing NASA to more than double its spending on Rover during the year beginning July 1. He asked for $123 million as compared to $50.2 million voted by Congress last year. The AEC will spend another $100 million on the nuclear rocket project.

In his testimony, Finger revealed that the first nuclear-powered rocket would be launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., in 1966 as the third stage of the advanced Saturn, a chemical rocket booster with 7.5 million pounds of thrust.

After the Saturn burns out, the nuclear rocket will be ignited by a ground control station while the missile is high over the Atlantic Ocean. In this manner, any possible radiation hazard at the launching site will be significantly reduced.

The Saturn-Rover rocket combination is being readied as an alternate means of landing on and exploring the moon, as well as for trips to Mars and Venus to determine if there is life on these planets.

NEVADA TESTS — Finger indicated the tremendous significance NASA is attaching to the coming reactor tests in Nevada, stating:

"During this year we are planning to test reactors at the rate of one every two months in order to permit us to make a selection for use in designing the first nuclear engine. A reactor selection this year is essential if we are to meet our proposed flight test schedule."

"The first reactor test using liquid hydrogen rather than gaseous hydrogen as a propellant will be a major milestone in our program, and will be conducted in May. An indication of successful reactor operation with liquid hydrogen is required before we commit major engine hardware procurement and development."

According to Finger, anywhere from 30 to 40 reactors (engines) will be ground tested to obtain the reliability desired before one is installed to power a rocket.

"Our most difficult problem is the development of a nuclear engine which will withstand the high temperatures that are required by the imposed thermal and flight systems," Finger reported. "The engine must be capable of re-start and re-use in space. This involves solution of materials and fabrication problems as tough as any ever faced by U.S. atomic and space scientists."

Three research reactors were tested during 1960 and 1961 as part of the so-called Kiwi-A series under the Rover project. These reactors were not intended as flight reactors.

The new series of nuclear reactors are being tested under the code name Nerva. They are being designed as flight reactors by Aerojet-General Corporation with help from the Westinghouse Astronuclear Laboratory.

The actual nuclear rocket Rover will be fabricated and assembled at NASA's Michoud plant in Louisiana. When combined with its chemical rocket booster, the Saturn-Rover rocket will be the world's largest — measuring 360 feet long and 33 feet in diameter.

ATOMIC FALLOUT — Another proposed nuclear propulsion system receiving considerable attention from NASA space scientists is Snap, a nuclear reactor electric generating system. The objective of this project is to develop for flight use a nuclear power system that can provide up to 60 kilowatts of electrical energy for auxiliary power applications, or for powering electric propulsion rockets. In 1963, NASA will begin developing a 30 kw flight test engine using the Snap reactor principle. . . . The U.S. is planning three moon satellite launches this year. In one of these attempts, a Ranger spacecraft will attempt to make a rough landing on the moon. The capsule is designed to survive the landing and send back data to earth for a period of approximately one month. Six TV cameras will be carried by the Ranger spacecraft to take high-resolution photographs as it approaches the moon. . . . NASA scientists will launch two Mariner spacecraft toward Venus this year. The plan is to have these satellites fly by the planet, obtain data enroute through the interplanetary system, and make measurements of significance in the vicinity of the planet Venus, including direct measurements. An Atlas-Agena-B rocket will be used to launch these satellites.

Pegler Says:

Nixon's Hiss Case Story Has Impermissible Defects

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Soon after the publication of Richard Nixon's book entitled "Six Crises," a mistake was discovered in that part of the Alger Hiss case which dealt with the old Woodstock typewriter on which copies of documents stolen from the State Department had been typed for subsequent delivery to Russian spies. Nixon blamed his memory, always a fallible authority, and there was so much other evidence that this error in a hastily written campaign book should not upset the verdict of the jury or history.

There are other defects in Nixon's story of the Hiss case, however, that are simply impermissible.

Actually, Nixon almost torpedoed the case early in the game and it was not his ingenuity that rescued the so-called pumpkin papers from the clutches of Harry Truman's Department of Justice but the foresight of Robert Stripling, the chief investigator of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Nixon had no right to take the "papers" from Washington to New York for scrutiny by a New York Federal Grand Jury, and he almost lost them to the Department of Justice, which undoubtedly would have smothered the whole affair to vindicate Truman's "red herring" lippancy. This probably would have destroyed the committee.

Nixon was not wholeheartedly with the committee when he became a freshman member of Congress in 1946. He now writes "no one was more aware than I that the Committee's past record had been vulnerable."

He soon fell in with Bert Andrews, the New York Herald Tribune's Washington man who was secretly hostile to the committee according to his paper's editorial policy. Andrews proposed that Nixon offer a suggestion that the Hiss case be lifted out of the committee's jurisdiction and handed over to a Commission which would have had absolutely no legal jurisdiction and undoubtedly would have smothered the case with long words. One of those whom Andrews proposed for this Commission was Judge Learned Hand of the U.S. Court of Appeals, a philosophical benchmark of Felix Frankfurter, Oliver Wendell Holmes and other members of a self-qualified cult. Goddameighties who feasted the pompous souls on reciprocal flattery.

Nixon and Andrews went so far that Andrews had his story written the night of the committee executive examination of Whitaker Chambers in the Commodore Hotel in New York and kept popping into the suite to urge Nixon to hurry up and give him the "go ahead" for his deadline. Finally, Stripling beckoned Nixon into the bathroom and said "that guy prints that story. I am going to destroy you." It never was printed.

Later, on a Sunday afternoon in Washington, Nixon showed up at the committee's office where the pumpkin papers were kept in a safe under an armed guard and demanded all the documents and microfilms. He was going to take them to New York and show them to the Grand Jury. Stripling summoned Rep. John Rankin, of Mississippi, and Rankin told Nixon the material belonged to the U.S. Congress and that no other Department of the Government had any power to seize it. "That stuff is the dead cat in Truman's family cistern," Rankin said. There was a loud fight and Nixon settled that by assuming personal responsibility. He was determined to take the stuff to New York. Stripling secretly ordered two committee investigators, William Wheeler and Don Appell, to go up to New York and hang around the Federal Building next day.

Sure enough, the Department of Justice tried to seize the stuff after Nixon had testified and Nixon was hailed before a Judge. He got a recess to phone Stripling in Washington and Stripling called in Congressman Rankin, Karl Mundt, Edward Hebert and Parcell Thomas. Then Stripling phoned Nixon to ask permission to go to the men's room and to slip the material to Wheeler and Appell. He did and they took off for Washington.

Nixon now writes that "we" had confidence in the lower echelons of the Department of Justice but "no confidence" in their superiors, which is high-octane hogwash. The committee had no confidence in any level of the Department of Justice, except for a few employees who sometimes fed the committee secret tips on intentions within the department. No explanation ever has been made of Nixon's desire to tip the committee's hand to the Department of Justice and expose its evidence to seizure and sabotage.

The "platoon system" is a very important part of football. Many police departments work on the "platoon system" also. In both cases the words describe teams of comparable strength who alternate duty. In the 17th century the term "platoon" referred to a small body of musketeers who fired in a volley alternately with another platoon.

Aluminum Propping Agents Help Results Of Fracturing Treatments

TULSA — High-strength aluminum alloy propping agents will improve the results of hydraulic fracturing treatments, Pan American Petroleum Corp. reported today.

Comparative tests to determine the effectiveness of aluminum pellet propping agents were conducted in upwells of 50 wells in southern Oklahoma, West Texas and Canada. Wells producing from both sandstone and limestone formations were involved, with formation depths ranging from 2,200 to 6,400 feet.

Pan Am said in 25 wells, aluminum pellets were "tailed-in" to the fractures, following the introduction of conventional sand.

In each case, one or more offset wells were fractured, with sand alone used as the propping agent. All wells involved in the tests were active producing oil wells.

Pan Am reported the results were basically the same in all cases: Wells propped with aluminum alloy pellets produced at high rates and the production gain was sustained for an appreciably longer period, than in wells where sand alone was used. Payout time on fracturing costs was reduced, and there was marked improvement in the return on treatment investment.

Typical comparative results revealed by Pan Am showed:

- In the Walters field, Oklahoma, production gained 225 percent with sand and aluminum pellets, 150 percent with sand only.
- In the Yellowhouse field, West Texas, daily production rose from 9 barrels of oil to 138 barrels of oil in wells where the pellets were used as compared to an increase of 109 barrels daily with sand alone. Moreover, production rates in the pellet-treated wells, had declined only 14 percent 90 days after treatment as compared to a 41 percent decline where sand alone was used in wells of similar production potentialities.
- In the Pembina field, Alberta, Canada, production increase, five months after fracturing, averaged 35 barrels of oil daily where aluminum pellets were used, and only 5 barrels of oil daily where sand was the propping agent. Aluminum-treated wells showed a payout of the treatment cost in 1 1/2 months less time.

George C. Howard of Pan Am's Research Center pointed out that the basic objective in the tests was to improve the capacity of the fracture in the immediate vicinity of the wellbore. This is accomplished by the "tailing-in" technique, which utilizes relatively small amounts of aluminum pellets.

In the test wells, from 140 to 180 pounds of pellets were injected into the fractures. The pellets are introduced into the fracturing fluid after the formation is fractured by fluid pressure. Sand moves further back in the fracture while the aluminum remains closer to the well bore.

Where sand alone is used, Howard pointed out, it tends to crush into powder because of the weight of the overburden. This is particularly true in deeper zones.

VICK VICKERY... named engineer

Vick Vickers Field Rep For 'Dick Evans'

The appointment of Vick Vickers as field sales and application engineer for Dick Evans, Inc., in the Borger service area, has been announced by Dick Evans, president of the company.

In making the announcement, Evans stated that, "The addition of Vickery to our organization is part of our service expansion program in the Texas area." Dick Evans, Inc., recently completed the move of its home office operations from Wichita, Kansas to Pampa.

Vickers was formerly associated with Triplehorn Oil Company before joining the Evans organization. He has had extensive experience in oil field operations and served as Crude Oil Buyer for Phillips in the Pampa-Borger area for nine years. He was Safety Chairman for Phillips Pipeline in the Borger area.

He is a past president of Phillips JC's, active in the Masons and the Baptist church. Vickers, with his wife Billie and two daughters, make their home in Pampa.

Methods Of Cutting Costs, Solving Drilling Problems Talked At Institute

OKLAHOMA CITY — Methods of cutting costs and solving problems of drilling were reported in four technical papers delivered recently at the Mid-Continent District Meeting of the American Petroleum Division of Production.

Selection of the proper bit for the formation to be drilled is one of the most important decisions made on a drilling rig, C. W. Hadden of Reed Roller Bit Company, Oklahoma City, said. He urged that a selection program be drawn up before the well is started and this program be altered as the well progresses if problems arise that are not anticipated in the original program.

The overall efficiency of the dusty representatives consider much more far-reaching. Independents have expressed hope that Swidler will take this occasion to clarify Commission policy distinctions between independent producers and gas transmission companies.

entire drilling operation depends upon one variable — the bit type selected to drill the hole, Hadden stated.

Federal Power Commission Boss Sets TIPO Speech

AUSTIN — Joseph C. Swidler, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, will address the Sixteenth Annual Meeting of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association. The convention is to be held at the Shamrock Hilton Hotel in Houston, May 17-19.

Swidler will discuss natural gas regulation on Saturday, May 19.

Chairman Swidler's address is expected to draw close industry attention because of mounting concern over the regulatory policy which the "new" Commission will follow.

Outcome of the "area pricing" hearings — now underway in Washington in the Permian Basin case — may depend largely upon the attitude of Chairman Swidler, who supports the area pricing concept. Tipro is cooperating with the FCC in coordinating testimony of 300 small gas producers in the hearings to set a "just and reasonable" area price for the gas sold in the Permian Basin of West Texas and New Mexico.

Unanswered questions concerning the "area price" concept are numerous, and many independents hope Chairman Swidler will provide more positive clues on this occasion. One persistent question on which the Chairman's attitude is considered particularly important is whether an area price will be an absolute ceiling. Much interest hinges on the Com-

Independents hope also that such Commission terms as "stable and uniform" area prices" will be clarified to simply that settles under old contracts with no escalation and renegotiation rights can be accorded the area price.

Of equal concern to independents, as well, is the Commission Chairman's view of certain pending bills before Congress, including one which has been described as "clarifying authority of the Commission" but which most in-

Pampans Are Told To Be Wary When Leaving On Big Vacation

MUSICIANS TO SWING
MADISON, Wis. (UPI) —The Philadelphia orchestra plans to do a little swinging when it plays a May 10 concert here.

The orchestra has asked the University of Wisconsin student newspaper to find a fraternity softball team to play the musicians' nine.

GETS WRONG "LION"
BURLINGTON, Iowa (UPI) —Farmer Ray Creelman tried to call his wife on their two-way radio system and found himself tuned in on a mountain lion hunt in Colorado.

Creelman finally got his wife when atmospheric conditions changed but he's still wondering how the hunt ended.

In the last-minute rush of vacation packing, you may forget a shirt or a toothbrush, and no harm done. But — don't forget the watchful eyes of would-be intruders. Beware and be wary. There are some important vacation preparations for your house that shouldn't be overlooked if a carefree time is to be had.

Police Chief Jim Conner issued a reminder today that now and during the coming vacation months is a good time to look over the line-up of burglar-discounting precautions recommended by police. Burglars turn thumbs down on a house that looks lived-in, where there are lights and other signs of activity. You can keep the lived-in look at your house, Chief Conner stated, by following these 10 safety tips:

1. Let there be light! Best way to thwart entry. Keep at least two lights (and possibly a radio) connected to an electrically operated, automatic timing device. The timer will turn your lights on at dusk (or whatever hour you set), and turn them off at your normal retiring time. A completely dark house or apartment — or one with lights left burning continuously day and night — is the best advertising there is that "no one's home". Automatic timers are available at department, hardware or appliance stores.

2. Install pin-tumbler cylinder locks on all exterior doors, if you do not already have them. These are the strongest and most pick-proof locks available. If you are not sure whether your present locks are this type, check with your hardware store.
3. Be sure each window is equipped with a secure lock, which is locked before you leave. As added protection at all times, it is desirable to have window safety latches installed. These latches permit you to open windows wide enough for ventilation, but there is a stop that keeps them from opening any higher than you wish. These latches are inexpensive and easily installed.
4. Tell one trustworthy neighbor where you'll be and how long you'll be gone. Tell your local police station, too, and ask them to give a look at your house on the regular rounds. Tell the officers about the lights you've left on, so they'll investigate if there's any irregularity in the pattern.
5. Ask the same neighbor if he will pick up circulars or handbills that might accumulate outside the door. If you know the neighbor well, you might also want to leave a key for use in an emergency.
6. Telephone to stop milk, newspaper and mail deliveries while you're gone. A porch full of papers is a giveaway that you are away.
7. Arrange to have your lawn mowed and your hedge trimmed if you're going to be gone over a week.
8. Don't advertise your departure or the length of your absence. A would-be burglar would be delighted to see in paper that the "John Smiths planning a vacation from July 10th to July 1st."
9. Last thing before you leave: Close and lock the garage. An open, empty garage can be seen from the street and is an invitation to further investigation by intruders.
10. These are the preparations Chief Conner added, and if you heed them — when you return from that vacation, your home will be waiting and welcoming just as you left it.
