"He is finished as a cadet. He can never be a cadet again," Col. Joel Stevens, the West Point public information officer, said.

Weaver, 18, went AWOL Aug. 30 and touched off a nationwide search. He traveled through six states, worked for a carnival and last Saturday returned home to his parents who did not know until then if he was alive or dead. The plebe voluntarily gave himself up at his parents' home in Portsmouth, Ohio. Stevens said an investigation starting today would help decide whether Weaver would face a court-martial for being absent without leave.

He told interrogators in Portsmouth that while he was gone he worked for a time in Birmingham, Ala., painting television antennas; and that in Kansas he picked up a job with a traveling carnival for $50 a week.

The Nation's Press Pegler Says:

SOME THOUGHTS ON SOVIET ACTION (Wall Street Journal)

The Soviet bomb announcement has set off a week-end of speculation about propaganda gains and losses, and about whether it was a sign of weakness or of strength. Much of this is interesting, but it seems to us that all of it is beside the point,

It may be true that the Soviets have suffered a propaganda blow from their announcement they will resume nuclear bomb testing. At least it seems incredible that even the most myopic of the. If our "affluent society' keeps expanding as it did in the first half of this century, soon it'll be hard to find a poor man. Some sociologists say our working class is on its way out-or rather, up. By the year 2000, at present growth rates, the working class of today will move to middleclass living standards. The suburbs will boom and with luck, the slums will vanish.
