Dr. Will F. Graham Is New Commissioner

Dr. Will F. Graham, Pampa orthodontist, was elected city commissioner in a special Ward 2 election yesterday.

Dr. Graham will take over the post vacated by the resignation of Newt Seccrest on April 17. He will serve the unexpired term until the next city election in April of 1963.

The total vote in the Ward 2 election yesterday was 338. Dr. Graham won over two other candidates for the post, George Hamlin and H. M. Brown.

The vote was as follows:
Graham . . . 233
Hamlin . . . 79
Brown . . . 35

One vote was cast for Roscoe C. Elmore, Cabot Corp. attorney, who resides at 1326 Collee.

Since Dr. Graham received more votes than the combined total of his three opponents, he will take office without a runoff election.

The vote, unusually light in the ward where there are nearly 1,400 eligible voters, will be canvassed at next Tuesday's regular meeting of the City Commission.

It is expected Dr. Graham will be sworn in as a city commissioner immediately following the official canvass.

The new city commissioner lives at 1928 Grape with his wife, Evelyn, and their two children, John, 16 and Barbara, 13.

Trotting Track Fans Yelling 'Fix' In Riot

YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI)—Nearly 1,000 trotting track fans yelling "fix" rioted at Yonkers Raceway Tuesday night, forcing cancellation of the last race and causing an estimated $100,000 damage. The management of the raceway, one of the most modern and beautiful in the country, refunded all bets on the ninth race which was called shortly before midnight when hundreds of fans invaded the track. Bettors got back about $265,000. The disturbance began when a rush of betting money dropped the odds on a longshot horse, Miss Chief Moken, from 10 to 1 to 5 to 2 shortly before the starting bell for the eighth race. Miss Chief Moken hadn't won a race since last November. Booming started as the tote board showed the diminishing odds. It rose in volume as the race began, with Miss Chief Moken in the lead. There was a roar of anger as the longshot finished two and one half lengths in the lead, paying $7.30. At intermission, hundreds of fans lined the track fence shouting disapproval. One man, identified as James Green of New York burst through the fence beckoning the other men to follow. He was hit by the mobile starting gate which was rolling at 35 miles an hour. The horses got off to a jumbled start and were ordered off the track at the quarter post. The crowd of 31,054 in the stands rained beer cans onto the track, striking the departing horses. Hundreds more angry fans streamed onto the track and set dozens of small bundles of programs and other papers afire. They ran riot, burning many tribune seats and attempting to set the ultra-modern structure itself afire. Others tore down concessions stands and burned them, wrecked bars, scattered food and china and pulled down light stanions. Bricks were heaved through windows, fences demolished and tote boards smashed. The tracks 66 private detectives were unable to restore order and sent out a riot alarm to city, state and parkway police and to fire and police departments in neighboring communities. More than 100 authorities responded and quelled the riot. The last fire was put out about 1:30 a.m. EDT. Police arrested three persons, including Green, for inciting riot and another man for felonious assault on a policeman. Green was sent to a hospital where his condition was listed as fair. Track officials said they hoped to be able to restore the damage in time for tonight's program.

seeking stocks at what they regarded as bargain prices. "A mass of bargain hunters sent in orders to buy collapsed stocks," said Eldon Grimm, vice president of the brokerage firm of Walston & Co. "It's a thrill to see the market get some kind of support. I heard from people I haven't heard from for 20 years," he said. L.O. Hooper of W.E. Hutton Co. said the day could be described in analysts' language as a "full blown selling climax, and as usually follows such a climax we had a strong advance." In a sanguine mood, he said he expected the advance to continue Thursday and the Dow-Jones average to climb to about 650 in the next month or so. Hooper was among those who discounted effects of talk from the capital in turning the market up. "Most of this thing about Washington having an effect is just folklore," he said. But the heavy sales for the day took their toll of spare time among the Wall Streeters. The New York Stock Exchange directed members and specialists to have their office manned today, to provide telephone service that would tie up the incompleting transactions caught in the squeeze of the record trading. Other major exchanges across the nation reported record trading, and in cities outside New York, as here, staff members of clearing corporations and brokerage houses worked late to clean up. The midwest exchange at Chicago and the Pacific exchange at San Francisco reported 340,000 and 336,050 shares traded, both records for the year. Some effects of the great volume of trading were brought home to tape-watchers late Tuesday. Two hours after the close of trading, the "opening" quotation appeared on the tape for one issue, Rexall Drug & Chemical Company, making its first appearance on a block of 22,000 shares. At the time, the tape was plowing methodically through the prices in order, quotations which had been jammed by the inability of the circuit to keep pace.

Colorful Protest Against City Hall

GRAND PRAIRIE (UPI) — A resident of this Dallas County city is making a colorful protest against city hall. The city commission rejected his request to build a 10-unit apartment house. So he painted the house already on the lot like a rainbow. It is black, blue, red, pink, yellow, green, white, tan and a host of other colors mixed and mismatched in obvious and calculated bad taste. Mayor C. P. (Curt) Waggoner said Tuesday he has been besieged by complaints. "There's no ordinance against a man painting his house any color he likes," Waggoner said. "There's nothing I know that we can do about it."

GOP Prober Wants To Hear Estes' Answers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The top Republican member of a House investigating committee demanded today that Billie Sol Estes be summoned to Washington to answer questions about his multi-million dollar grain storage activities. Rep. Florence P. Dwyer, R-N.J., said after two days of hearings that the House Government Operations subcommittee inquiring into the dealings of the indicted farm magnate had "just scratched the surface." "The investigation has raised more questions than it has answered so far," she told United Press International. Mrs. Dwyer said Estes should be required to testify at "our next hearing" along with Texas Atty. Gen. Will Wilson and other key figures. But Chairman L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., said he would not be stamped into calling any witnesses before he is ready.

"As a lawyer," he said, "I know it takes study and preparation before you should put a witness on the stand." Fountain already has promised that Wilson will be called, but he has reached no decision on Estes. Informed sources said it was believed that Estes would take the Fifth Amendment and his appearance would be a waste of time. Mrs. Dwyer said the subcommittee had only heard the testimony of current Agriculture Department officials in the Kennedy administration. "I want to get the other side," she said. The subcommittee's hearings Tuesday lasted more than seven and a half hours and did not break up until 7:37 p.m. EDT. No new date has been set yet for their resumption, but it probably will be a week or 10 days.

FPC Opposed To California-Texas Natural Gas Line

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission opposition to a plan to pipe natural gas from Texas to California by way of Mexico has been revealed. Lloyd Dietrich, attorney for the FPC, revealed the opposition at a FPC hearing Tuesday as he began cross-examination of witnesses for Southern California Edison. Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. seeks to build the $225 million pipeline to supply gas for steam power plants operated by Southern California Edison Co. The FPC staff thus lined up with Pacific Lighting Co. and El Paso Natural Gas Co. in opposition to the 1,185 mile pipeline, dubbed the Enchilada Inch. Edison now gets most of its gas from Pacific Lighting. Edison's chief competitor in the California market, Pacific Lighting, in turn, buys much of the gas from El Paso, which wants to bring additional gas to California from Wyoming through its proposed Rock Springs pipeline. The Mexican pipeline would be operated by Pemex. Dietrich said it would result in a "waste of fuel (already in short supply) if the gas were transported for use in Edison's boilers. The FPC counsel said the plan would not appreciably help solve smog problem in Los Angeles. Supporters of the project said it would. Dietrich also said the Texas supplier, Humble Oil Co., would be paid an excessively high price for the gas. Mexican supplies also would be picked up along the route. He said the staff believed sales of the gas by Humble would come under FPC jurisdiction. Supporters of the pipeline plan say such gas would not because it would be exported to Mexico.

The Tragedy Of Alcoholism In Women

By GAILE DUGAS
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — This is a story written for a friend. I hope it reaches her in the shadows where she dwells. But it is written, too, for all of those women who share those shadows with her, not daring to face the day.

My friend is an Alcoholic. She is the victim of a disease, just as surely as if she had cancer or diabetes. For alcoholism is a disease: it is chronic and progressive. We know no cure for it, just as we know none for cancer. But alcoholism can be treated and halted and the alcoholic can live out a happy and useful life. She can never drink again because alcohol is poison to her. She has, what might be called an allergy to liquor.

There are five million known alcoholics in the United States. Of these about one million are women. And of this million, three-quarters are housewives simply because more women are housewives. Often, their drinking is hidden.

My friend does not want to drink. No alcoholic ever does. But she cannot help herself. Every alcoholic carries a dreadful secret burden of shame and guilt. But with women, this is intensified because society sees drinking as a greater stigma on women than men.

For every person, man or woman, who has worried about alcoholism personally or for others, the National Council on Alcoholism has devised a simple test. Here it is:

For at least the next six months, decide to take not less than one and not more than three drinks per day. If you are not a daily drinker, use this pattern when you do drink. You must not exceed this limit and you must not abstain from liquor. Many alcoholics are able to stay "dry," unaided, for varying lengths of time.

That's all there is to it. If you can pass this test without cheating in any way, stop worrying. If you can't you need help. And help is there.

My friend has heard of Alcoholics Anonymous but she is not yet convinced she is alcoholic. She believes she can "take it or leave it" despite evidence to the contrary. And to become a member of A.A., you must admit that you are powerless over alcohol.

Alcoholics Anonymous, a uniquely American fellowship of men and women who have stopped drinking completely, is international in scope. There are A.A. meetings throughout this country. You are welcome to attend no matter what the reason: help for yourself, for a member of your family or just plain curiosity about alcoholism.

You'll like the men and women you meet at an A.A. gathering. They've been through a lot; much human pettiness has left them. And this may surprise you: they laugh easily.

At an A.A. meeting I attended at a church on New York's Park Avenue, a tall, witty man stood up to say:

"I am an alcoholic; my name is Hugh X. I started to drink when I came to New York out of college. A buddy and I started to drink one Christmas Eve and the next time we looked at the calendar, it was New Year's Day. I met him in a bar that day and he said: 'Say, I must have had something to eat yesterday. I feel great.' And I said: 'You did, we went to a party and there was this butler passing a crystal bowl filled with black caviar. You ate about $45 worth.' He said: 'Gosh! I wish I'd been sober. I just love caviar!'"

"Well, years of stupid and uninteresting drinking followed, with my family holding regular summit meetings to decide if they should hot up the cold war on me. At 45, I ran away from home. I had $8. I kept five and gave three to my wife, one for her and each of my two kids. I figured my mother-in-law could make it on her own."

"Next, I wound up in a psychiatrist's office. He kept asking me about my dreams. I didn't care for his general nosiness anyway, and besides, I didn't have any dreams. I was drinking a fifth of brandy a day and couldn't sleep. That was my problem. One night, I showed up at his office drunk. He called the police and they informed me that the romance was over. After that, I was in and out of institutions until I finally came to A.A. years ago. I haven't had a drink since."

"Lately, I've heard about something called Nicotine Anonymous. As I understand it, you wake up about 3 a.m. just dying for a smoke and you dial this number. Two guys come over and drink with you until you get over wanting a cigarette."

To the housewife, struggling in a secret fog of alcohol to perform her daily chores, the idea of attending an A.A. meeting may be frightening. But once she's there, she will find herself among friends who understand, who do not nag, condemn nor make cruel fun.

She has another and very important source of help: The National Council on Alcoholism. Mrs. Matty Mann, its executive director, recovered from the disease in 1939. Mrs. Mann founded the National Council. (She also has written a book, "Matty Mann's New Primer on Alcoholism.") Through the council's efforts, Alcoholism Information Centers, where alcoholics or their families may go for help, have been established from coast to coast. The National Council on Alcoholism and Alcoholics Anonymous supplement one another.

Up to the point of A.A., alcoholism is a tragedy. After that, you've never seen people have so much fun. They treasure their sobriety. At an A.A. meeting, one woman member told me: "Drinking wrecked my first marriage. One weekend, I expected friends who were heavy drinkers. My husband didn't like either them or drinking. He was supposed to meet us at a restaurant on Friday night for dinner but didn't show up. I was furious inwardly, but outwardly I was the life of the party. We had many drinks, dinner and then brandies after dinner. Then we went on to an all-night bottle club.

"We arrived home at 8 a.m. to find my husband at the kitchen table eating eggs and drinking coffee. I was so furious that I stalked in and said: 'Well, where have you been all night?'"

"It wasn't until much, much later that I saw the humor of the remark."

Nearly all alcoholics are married, says A.A. (Married people are often very lonely.) But whose wives will stick with alcoholic husbands, it's the rare man who stays with an alcoholic wife.

Alcoholics Anonymous is a two-way street. The people in it stay sober both because they are being helped and helping others. The first of the famed Twelve Steps of A.A. says: "We admitted we were powerless over alcohol, that our lives had become unmanageable." This is the giant step for all alcoholics. It's truth to admit that you can't drink normally, like other people, but the admission is essential to getting well.

The idea that an alcoholic likes to drink belongs to the Middle Ages. The alcoholic loathes drinking but is powerless to help himself. And by the time he reaches the point where it is always, as Scott Fitzgerald put it, "three o'clock in the morning," death or an institution looms darkly in the future. Unless there is help.

The A.A. prayer says: "God grant us the serenity to accept the things we cannot change, courage to change the things we can and the wisdom to know the difference."

If, like my friend, you need help, look up Alcoholics Anonymous or an Alcoholism Information Center in your telephone book. No one need know but one other woman who was once tormented, too, and who will understand.

Or write to: Alcoholics Anonymous, P.O. Box 459, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N.Y.

There's nothing catty about saying, "I like your hair" when a blonde suddenly becomes a redhead.

Dear Abby... Son's Either Teasing Or Psycho Case

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: How can a mother teach her son obedience and respect for his elders? When I tell him to pick up his clothes or straighten out his bureau drawers, he sticks out his tongue and makes faces at me. Then he runs to his father for protection. I am tired of his acting up. I certainly have tried my best to raise him right, but I don't know where I got off the track. He is no child, Abby. He is 28 years old. What can be done?

than I do." It was signed with the boy's signature but in his mother's handwriting. I don't think this mother ever gave the boy my gift. Should I write and ask him or what?

VERY, VERY HURT
DEAR HURT: If the mother intercepted your gift (which is likely), she wouldn't hesitate to intercept your note to her son. Wait until you see the boy alone and give him your gift in person.

FED UP
DEAR FED: Either this son of yours is teasing you, in which case you should ignore it — or he has the mentality of a six-year-old, in which case he needs a psychiatrist and all the help he can get.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FEELS GUILTY": You are not your brother's keeper. Neither are you his banker. It's up to him to pay off his own debts. Failing to do so, his relatives need not feel guilty in the presence of his debtors.

DEAR ABBY: I have never been married, but I have nine children running from 10 months old to 18 years old. The children are living with my mother and my aunt, but the Welfare is supporting them. I am not in love with their Daddy any more, but he hangs around my mother's house and also my aunt's house to be where the children are. He told the Welfare people that he would marry me and take care of the children if I would marry him. Should I marry him when I don't feel any love for him? I am living with someone else who treats me nice.

How's the world treating you? For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, care of this paper.

Epperson, Carl Laffin, Carl Farley, Ray Jackson, Joe Allison, Velma Garrison, LeeRoy Allen, Bob Hudson, D. W. Tracy, Harry Mums, Johnny Dawes, Lee Gilleland, Choile Atchley, Ronald Scott, A. M. Giesler, Carol Goad, Gail Kirksick, Ken Jones, Shirley Steward, Clyde Laycock, Wayne Phillips and Billye Tidwell.

PENSACOLA
DEAR PENSACOLA: Get back where you belong, marry the man and raise those children. Whether you are "in love" with him is unimportant now that you have nine children who didn't ask to be born.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor boy sent me an invitation to his high school graduation. I wasn't able to go, but I always liked this boy so I put a five-dollar bill in an envelope with a little note wishing him success and telling him to buy himself something with it. The following week my five-dollar bill was returned to me with the following note: "Thanks just the same, but I have a good-paying job now and you need this more

Jones Is Ruled '500' Favorite

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Racing's daredevil drivers challenge death today for the chance of gold and glory in the 46th 500 mile auto race, expected to set a record speed mark in hot humid temperature, for a record purse of nearly $425,000.

The top favorite was record-setter Parnelli Jones, who qualified at 150.37 miles per hour, the only driver ever to tour the 2½ mile asphalt track in less than one minute, and who will open the race from the pole position.

But four former champions, some outstanding experienced drivers and some challenging rookies were given a chance, too, in the usual "anybody can win" philosophy of this struggle.

Rodger Ward, the 1959 winner who was second in 1960 and third last year, A. J. Foyt, last year's winner, Jim Rathmann, who won in 1960, and Troy Ruttman, the 1952 victor, were in the field. Ward qualified second fastest in this year's field and will start next to Jones in the front row.

The forecast called for the possibility of scattered thunder; howers, winds of enough velocity to be a factor in driving at high speed, and a high temperature in the mid-80s.

A crowd of 250,000 was expected long before the start of the spectacle at noon EDT. The general admissions gates were opened at 5 a.m.

The race will pit the 33 fastest cars ever to qualify for this annual struggle of man and machine against nature's resistance against superspeed. The starting cars qualified at an average speed of 147,330 miles per hour, more than two miles an hour above last year's record mark of 145,302.

Foyt will start from the middle of the second row, Rathmann, from the middle of the eighth row, and Ruttman from the outside of the 10th row.

Classed as youthful threats were Bobby Marshman, co-rookie of the year with Jones last year, starting from the outside of the front row with the third fastest qualifying speed; Dan Gurney, driving an engine-in-the-rear creation powered by a stock engine, and Jim McElreath, who also qualified over at better than 149 miles per hour.

Others in the pack who rated inclusion as potential winners included Eddie Sachs, runner-up last year, Dick Rathmann, Jim Hurtubise and Len Sutton, all with considerable speedway experience.

The starting drivers got final instructions and warnings Tuesday from Chief Steward Harlan Fengler, who cautioned them to slow down and maintain their position whenever the yellow flag comes out to signal an accident which partially blocks the track. Violation, he warned, would result in a penalty of one lap.

Most drivers expected the early pace to be 145 or 146 miles per hour and should they reach that figure, an average of 141 for the race would be possible easily.

Giants, Dodgers Returning To New York To Battle With Mets

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is bittersweet memory week for baseball aficionados in the big town.

The Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants, born and raised within New York's city limits, are returning to engage the newly-formed Mets in their first official competition hereabouts since they deserted their faithful flocks late in 1957 and fled to the western shores amid a shower of boos and tears.

The Dodgers were scheduled for a three-game set starting with a Memorial Day doubleheader and the Giants were due for four games starting Friday night.

Survivors of the teams that fled were few but important — Willie Mays, Stu Miller and Mike McCormick of the Giants; Duke Snider, Jim Gilliam, John Roseboro, Johnny Dodger and Don Drysdale of the Dodgers.

And the number of memories revived by the appearance of players wearing "Giants" and "Dodgers" was almost without limit. Of the Brooklyners, there were these: Dixie Walker, the "peepul" cherche, who led Brooklyn's pennant surges in '41 and '47. Hilda Chester and her cowbells, perhaps the daffiest Dodger fan. Babe Herman, Van Mungo and Uncle Wilbert Robinson, among the old-timers who laughed and stormed in the era when three Dodgers sliding into the same base was accepted as "unsual" but inevitable.

Jackie Robinson, officially breaking the color barrier — and running wild on the bases.

Leo Durocher, his feuds with the umpires, with general manager Larry MacPhail, with commissioner Happy Chandler, with anyone who stood in the way of a Dodger victory.

The old Dodger-Giant donnybrooks and of Bill Terry's fatal remark, "Is Brooklyn still in the league?" (The furious Dodgers knocked the Giants out of a pennant for that remark.)

And the old-timers still remember the classic photo of a 145-pound Brooklyn truck driver sitting astride prostrate, 230-pound umpire George Magerkurth, flailing away at "Mage" with both fists right in the middle of Ebbetts Field. The trucker had dashed out of the stands to protest a decision as only a Brooklynite can.

Of the Giants, of course, the memories are keen but they've been dragged out pretty thoroughly since baseball came back to the old Polo Grounds when the Mets opened the season.

They'll never forget McGraw, Terry, Ott, Merkle's boner, Bobby Thomson's pennant winning homer, Casey Stengel's cavoring as a Giant outfielder, Sal Maglie, Carl Hubbell, or even Willie (The Wonder) Mays.

As time passes and the Mets begin to grow to a respectable stature perhaps the memories will dim. But this week they're mighty powerful among the millions who long regarded the "Dodgers" or the "Giants" as their very own.

Omaha Belts Denver, 6-4 As Willhite Sets Whiff Record

By United Press International

Omaha pitcher Nick Willhite struck out seven men in a row Tuesday night while hurling the Dodgers to a 6-4 victory over Denver, to tie an American Association record set by Toledo's Monte Pearson in 1933.

In other circuit action, Louisville knocked out Herb Score in the 5th inning and snapped the Indianapolis win streak at six, 7-2. Dallas-Fort Worth won its fifth straight game, 6-4, over Oklahoma City.

Willhite fanned a total of 13 batters, walked only one and gave up six hits. His mates jumped on starter Fred Gladding, the loser, for all six runs in the first three innings, three of them unearned. Denver tallied two in the first inning and added a pair in the sixth, all unearned.

Louisville collected only four hits off Score, but the Indians committed four errors. Score departed after a home run by second baseman Lou Klimchick in the fifth frame, a five-run inning for the winners. Southpaw Tom Newton went the distance for Louisville.

Bob Baillargeon scattered 12 hits in winning his third straight game without a loss for Dallas-Fort Worth. With two outs in the ninth inning he weakened, however, and needed relief from Ed Donnelly. Starter Jerry Nelson, who left in the seventh, was tagged with the defeat.

Indianapolis is at Louisville and Denver at Omaha for Memorial Day doubleheaders, while Oklahoma City plays a single contest at Dallas today.

Pitchers Are Ready To Raise A Flag Of Truce

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

Those poor long-suffering pitchers considered one of two courses today — either flying the white flag of surrender or tying it around the throat of that practical joker who keeps putting more and more rabbit into the baseballs.

Statistics generally put ball players to sleep. Here are a few though, guaranteed to keep most pitchers awake.

—The total of 22 homers in the six major league games played Tuesday was only five shy of the all-time record for a seven-game slate.

—Nine home runs, only one short of the National League mark, were hit in one game alone. That was the one in which the Milwaukee Braves outlasted the Chicago Cubs, 11-9, despite three homers and a double by Ernie Banks.

—Seven more homers were belted during a game in which the Detroit Tigers bombarded the Baltimore Orioles, 12-4.

The worst may be yet to come, as far as the pitchers are concerned. There are 18 games on tap for today's Memorial Day card. And it was exactly six years ago that the majors set an all-time one-day record of 50 homers, with 26 in the National and 24 in the American.

The Cleveland Indians were idle Tuesday, but still took over sole possession of the AL lead when the Kansas City As nipped the New York Yankees, 2-1.

Jimmy Piersall's 10th inning homer gave the Washington Senators a 7-6 victory over the Los Angeles Angels and the Boston Red Sox hammered four homers in an 8-5 triumph over the Minnesota Twins.

In the only other game played, Pittsburgh took over fourth place from St. Louis in the NL by clipping the Cardinals, 7-6, with a two-run rally in the ninth inning at Pittsburgh.

Banks produced most of Tuesday's fireworks even though he was back in the Cubs' lineup for the first time since being benched last Friday and was tormented by a headache through most of the game.

Ernie doubled his first time up off Milwaukee starter Bob Hendley and then hit three successive homers off Hendley. Don Nottbart and Lew Burdette to raise his season total to 14. It marked the third time in his career that he had three homers in one game.

Despite those blows, and three more Cub homers by Billy Williams, Bob Will and George Altman, the Braves scored six unearned runs in the third inning and never trailed thereafter. Joe Torre collected a homer and two singles for the Braves, while Joe Adcock and Amado Samuel also homered. Burdette was the winner and Bob Hull the loser.

The Pirates came from behind to win after the Cardinals had gone ahead, 6-5, with two runs in the top of the ninth. Don Leppert singled home the tying run in the bottom half of the inning and Don Hoak scored the winning run on Curt Flood's error. Tom Sturdivant gained credit for his third victory while Bobby Shantz suffered his second setback.

FOR MEN ONLY

By Mark Heath

Did you know that over 50% of all men's clothes sold are purchased by women? It appears that the women actually are more concerned about their husband's appearance than they are. In fact, if it weren't for the many wives, there would be men in this country who would have few or no clothes at all!

I have never been able to figure out why some men actually have a real fear of going into a store and purchasing clothes. Perhaps at some time or another a real sharpie got hold of them and sold them a bill of goods. This could have happened at some other place, but you will never find this type of salesman here at Heath's Men's Wear. We are really a friendly lot of men who are interested in you and your appearance. We never use high pressure tactics to get you to buy something you don't want. So, if it's only a 25c handkerchief you want for show or blow; or a suit, slacks, or whatever you need; don't be afraid to come in and shop for it here.

Pampa 4-H'ers Will Compete In Contest

A Gray County 4-H Club team will compete in the statewide Farm and Ranch Management Contest as a highlight of the annual 4-H Club Roundup at Texas A&M College on June 6.

A team composed of Stephen Maddox and John Paul Bowers, both 14, won second place in District One competition. Maddox and Bowers both live on Route 3, Pampa. The team is coached by Cecil Reigier.

A Wheeler County team, composed of Vivian Newsome, 14, and Mike Anderholt, 15, has been named an alternate to the two winning district teams. The team is coached by Mrs. Gerald Anderholt.

The state contest, which will attract 23 teams from throughout the 12 state 4-H districts, is sponsored by the Production Credit Associations of Texas. Representatives of the agricultural credit organizations will present awards to winners of the state competition as well as to district representatives, following the statewide contest at College Station.

"It is a great pleasure for our association to participate in this worthwhile competition for these outstanding 4-H Club members," declared Erbin L. Crowell of Canadian, general manager of the Canadian Production Credit Association, which serves the Gray and Wheeler County areas.

"These teams show a remarkable grasp of sound farm and ranch management practices, so important to the successful agricultural operation of today and of the future," he said.

The Canadian association, serving a six-county area of the north-east Texas Panhandle, is one of 36 home-owned and operated associations providing agricultural credit for more than 30,000 farmers and ranchers throughout Texas' 254 counties.

The state 4-H Roundup will be held on the Texas A&M Campus June 5-7.

Houston's CoC Hits Trade Act

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Houston Chamber of Commerce has branded President Kennedy's trade expansion act now before Congress as a contravention of the constitution.

In its first statement on the trade proposal which would give the President broad powers to adjust tariffs, the chamber's executive committee declared the constitution gives Congress "exclusive power" to regulate commerce with foreign nations.

Granting power to the President to negotiate new trade agreements would violate the traditional system of checks and balances in our national government, the chamber statement declared.

Artificial Respiration Via The New Mouth-To-Mouth Method Explained

A person can live three weeks without food, three days without water, but only three minutes without air.

Would you know what to do if your neighbor became unconscious and stopped breathing and there was a member of your family or no doctor around?

In just a few minutes anyone can learn the technique known as mouth-to-mouth-breathing. This method has been known to man since biblical times but has recently been proven much more popular than any other method of artificial respiration.

This technique may be used to revive all unconscious and non-breathing victims of drowning, electric shock, smoke or gas inhalation, drug or chemical poisoning, injuries to head, chest, neck, and abdomen, convulsions, cardiac arrest, and other causes.

Mouth to mouth rescue breathing starts with clearing the mouth of any foreign objects such as tobacco, food, seaweed, toys, loose teeth or other small objects. Then, with one hand grasp the victim's chin, placing the other hand on top of the head and with a rotating motion tilt the head backward. A roll of clothing or blanket placed under the victim's shoulders will help keep the neck in favorable position.

Insert the thumb of one hand between the victim's jaws. Grasp the lower teeth and pull the jaw forward. Never let the victim's chin sag or let his head return to normal, relaxed position. Stop air leakage through the nose by pinching the nostrils closed with the thumb and index finger of the other hand.

Next, take a deep breath and place your mouth over the victim's mouth as firmly as possible in order to prevent air leakage. Keeping the mouth open wide breathe deeply into the victim's lungs.

As soon as you see the victim's chest rise you have delivered adequate breath. You must then remove your mouth so that the victim may exhale naturally. Repeat rescue breathing about once every three or four seconds, about 12 to 20 times a minute, until the victim breathes naturally or until a doctor arrives. If the victim is an infant or small child, breathe gently using only small puffs from the cheeks and throat.

Foreign News Commentary

U Thant soon must make up his mind whether he wants to be secretary general of the United Nations for a full term. Some friends of the mild-spoken, cheroot-smoking Buddhist express doubts that he wants the job beyond next April 10—the end of the late Dag Hammarskjold's term to which the General Assembly appointed him last November.

Despite the lame-duck nature of his appointment, Thant's six-month conduct in the office has not looked like that of a man treading carefully to avoid anything that could wreck his election to a full term. He has been sharp, in a quiet diplomatic way, with East and West alike on occasion.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, visiting here last month, was reported to have given Thant his government's backing for a five year term in his own right.

Washington has been careful to steer clear of official endorsement lest it prove a coldwar kiss of death that could bring Russia's veto if only because he was supported by the United States.

But last Sunday, U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, in nationwide television interview, waxed enthusiastic about Thant.

"The United Nations was fortunate, I think, to find such a distinguished diplomat to fill this demanding post," Stevenson said. His ability and his equanimity are universally recognized and he has served well in his first months of office."

The answer to whether the "acting" will be removed from Thant's secretary general title probably will come late this summer, when he visits Moscow.

Economics Of Protection

We are in the midst of discussing the validity of the concept that a social system based upon limited property ownership and limited government is the best possible system.

In prior articles we have shown that when we rely upon government as our protector, in point of fact we are not protected. Rather, government, because it is a socially universal device, MUST delay any action it might take until after a crime has been committed.

Then and then only may the government move in to bring retribution to the one who has erred.

But thoughtful men are growing weary of a system which permits them to be victimized before action is taken. Even more are they becoming weary of the endless predation committed by government against them under the guise of getting the money so that the necessary retaliatory devices can be supported.

What most of us want is protection that protects, not the joy of knowing that the man who has wronged us will be wronged in turn. It may be of some comfort to feel that the man who robs us may be captured, tried, found guilty and then incarcerated. But our comfort wanes as we recall that the cost of his capture, trial, judgment and incarceration is borne by all of us, in addition to the loss occasioned by the act of robbery in the first place.

Is there anything we can do to mitigate this series of wrongs which follow, as a matter of course, the original wrong-doing?

Yes, there is. We can begin by realizing that government is not a protector in fact, but only an agent of retaliation. If we realize that we are NOT protected by government, then we can begin to provide our own protection in our own way.

How do we do this? We do it by patronizing the market place. And we do not mean by hiring our own bands of thugs to rove the streets in an effort to act in the same manner a government might act, so that we, instead of government, can find and punish the individual who has wronged us. This is NOT satisfactory.

By going to the market place we mean hiring protection, not retaliation.

We want a society that is SAFE and not a society that relies for its purported safety by permitting crimes to occur before action is taken.

Each and every one of these devices can be made useless by a determined crook. BUT, each and every one of these devices raises the cost of the robbery to the would-be thief. When you have made the cost so large that it exceeds the value of the item to be stolen, the chances of theft are minimized to the point that it will undoubtedly not occur. And even if you did all these things the cost to you would not begin to total the amount you now pay to government for a protection, that does not exist in fact, but which becomes retaliation AFTER the theft of the silver.

What can the market place do for us? It can do many things. It can sell us a lock for a door. It can manufacture a safe or a safety deposit box. It can provide bars for windows. It can install alarms. It can put in photo-electric eyes. It can sell watch dogs. It can furnish watchmen. It can teach us to take our keys out of the ignition in our cars. It can sell us insurance.

Can the market place actually provide a foolproof device which no intruder can possibly breach? Probably not. We dare say that for any protective device the market place can contrive, it can also contrive another device which will make obsolete the particular form of protection relied upon.

Then what is the use? To understand the reason for providing our own individual protection at our own cost, one must understand a principle of economics. That principle is: that for every raise in price (cost) fewer buyers will be found. If the cost is high enough, there will be zero buyers.

How is this principle applied in the instant case?

We will provide an extravagant illustration to demonstrate our point.

Let us suppose that you own a set of silver that is valued at $1,000.

How do you go about seeing to it that no prowler ever gets his hands on it?

You provide a safe place of storage which would require hours of time to break open. You hire a watchman. You buy a dog. You install alarms. You plant mines in your front yard. You put in an electric fence. You fill the vault in which you store the silver with cyanide fumes.

Each and every one of these devices can be made useless by a determined crook. BUT, each and every one of these devices raises the cost of the robbery to the would-be thief. When you have made the cost so large that it exceeds the value of the item to be stolen, the chances of theft are minimized to the point that it will undoubtedly not occur. The Doctor Says:

Apple a Day May Keep Doctor Away After All

By DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

Q—Is there any truth in the axiom "An apple a day keeps the doctor away"? I was brought up on it. But, my children insist it is an old wives' tale.

A—Score one then for old wives' tales. For the results of a three-year study made at Michigan State University showed that 1,300 students volunteers who ate an apple a day had one-third fewer respiratory infections than those who did not eat their daily apple. And, one-sixth as many disorders caused by tension.

Q—My 10-year-old son has very heavy bosoms. He is chubby and overweight, but otherwise normal in every way. My husband is very much concerned and thinks he ought to have gland treatments before he develops any tendencies that might have a bad effect on him later in life. What would you advise?

A—Many adolescent boys have a temporary enlargement of their breast tissues that usually disappears without treatment in a year or so. If your boy is otherwise normal in every way, as you suggest it would be well to ignore the condition lest the boy becomes self-conscious about his appearance.

At a recent survey in a Boy Scout camp, more than one-third of the lads examined had varying degrees of breast enlargement. Only where the enlargement is persistent and extreme is treatment required. And then, surgical correction is recommended since gland therapy may produce disturbances beyond the target area.

Q—Can weight reduction be accomplished without diet by means of pills or tablets?

A—It depends on the composition of the medication. If you have a thyroid deficiency and your doctor prescribes corrective doses of thyroid extract, you will lose weight as your basal metabolic rate rises to normal. And, if you have a heart condition and your tissues are waterlogged, you will lose weight until the water content of your tissues approaches normality.

But, if you have normal thyroid and cardiac function, weight loss will not occur with these drugs, and they will, sooner or later, produce untoward effects not to your liking. And, if you are referring to nonprescription drugs that are nationally advertised or sold by door-to-door sales persons, you may be interested to learn that the Food and Drug Administration has just filed a suit in Denver, charging misbranding of tablets, U.S. marshals seized a quantity whose claim of appetite control and weight reduction "without drastic diet changes" the Government held to be "false and misleading."

Please send your questions and comments to Dr. Harold Thomas Hyman, M.D., in care of this paper. He will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

on market place PROTECTION, the cost of being criminal would rise to such a degree that even this percentage (if accurate) would dwindle. We have no way of anticipating how small it would become. Conceivably, there would always be a minor fraction of humanity which would be criminal, inclined.

But is it rational to burden the 96.3 percent with an aggressive government which does not protect, but which becomes the chief source of predation? Actually, were we to rely on the market place, not only for our protection but for other things, it seems inevitable that there would be more jobs, and better jobs. The cost of finding work would diminish and the cost of committing crimes would increase. When both of these trends had been developed to their optimum, we submit that the argument concerning "limited government" would also diminish.

Not that we want it to stop entirely. It is always important that all premises be challenged and checked.

But we see little point in stating that we are opposed to socialized food distribution while at the same time contending that in the difficult area of crime we must rely on socialized police. If socialism is practical in the one place, what makes it impractical elsewhere?

If we have not satisfactorily answered the charges of our critics we can only plead to ineptitude in expression. But even so, we hope we have given them something to think about.

We are unwilling to accept socialism or communism in ANY particular, not even "limited" socialism or communism.

We believe in freedom, the right of the INDIVIDUAL to make his own way in the world; to win or lose on the expenditure of his own money and energy.

Another New England-born President, Calvin Coolidge, often swayed in a rocking chair, but just for sitting down and relaxing. Calvin even sat in that rocking chair on the front porch of the White House, in long-range view of pedestrians.

Pegler Says:

This Frightful Treatment Could Even Happen To You

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I do not remember a story which was as badly tangled as the account of the frightful treatment, including physical violence, of a gentle woman of 51 years employed in the Department of Agriculture, who tried to preserve for her boss records which might support his bold charges of favoritism toward Billie Sol Estes, of Texas. The victim was Miss Mary Kimbrough Jones. The effect of this harassment has been to impugner her mental stability and thus discount anything she might say in support of her boss' contentions to the embarrassment or worse of the Kennedy Administration.

Her "boss" is N. Battle Hales. His job was to investigate cotton "programs" in the purview of Emery E. Jacobs, who quit under fire. Jacobs was an assistant to Horace D. Godfrey, of a higher echelon in the Department of Agriculture.

On May 4, the Department put Hales to an extraordinary and scandalous ordeal by calling him without notice into a "press conference" which lasted three hours, and subjecting him to insulting attack as a "liar." It was called by Rodney Leonard, press agent to Secretary Orville Freeman, and held in a room adjacent to Freeman's own office. The purpose of this ordeal obviously was to discredit Hales' statements. The examination by his associates and superiors was hostile; he was not sworn, he had no counsel and he was not given a chance to prepare himself with documents or reflection. In fact, he had been excommunicated from his records by a transfer to another section of the Agriculture Department some days before. His office was barred to him. The seizure of Miss Jones in the office where she had worked for 11 years with Hales was suppressed for about two weeks.

Sen. John J. Williams, the Delaware Republican, publicly charged that she was "railroaded" for refusing to cooperate in covering up the Estes scandal. An AP story disclosing Miss Jones' ordeal said she struggled with one male, apparently a Department doctor, and one female employee, who seized her in Hales office on April 25. She hit the male employee on the head with her shoe. The AP reprinted an interview with Miss Jones written by Mary McGrory, of the Washington Star, in which Miss McGrory said Miss Jones told her she was taken to the D.C. General Hospital, stripped, handceding Gandhi? In those days he not only worked 16 or 18 hours a day, but the first thing he did on getting out of bed each morning was to stand on his head. He explained it helped him to gain a proper perspective of the troubled world.

Country editor speaking: "You're an old timer if you remember when the rapid growth of a small town was welcomed, and it didn't bring demands for more schoolhouses, more sewers, and more free parking spaces."

How to Get Food to the Starving Chinese — Administration Split Over Dealing With Reds

WASHINGTON — A sharp policy dispute has developed within the Kennedy Administration and Congress over the dark heart of the Chinese Communist refugee problem — should the U.S. furnish surplus grain to Communist China.

This backstage debate, which could explode into the open at any moment, has been going on at the very top government levels the past two weeks, with President Kennedy getting conflicting advice from his principal administration advisers and Democratic leaders in Congress.

State Department officials, headed by Secretary of State Rusk, are arguing the President must find a way to furnish U.S. grain to the famine-hit Chinese mainland or face the haunting specter of upwards of 50 million Chinese refugees pouring into and swamping Hong Kong before the end of the year.

Secretary Rusk's group includes Averell Harriman, Assistant Secretary for the Far East; Dr. Walt Rostow, chairman of the State Department's Policy Planning Council; Seymour J. Janow, Assistant Administrator of the Agency for International Development for the Far East; McGeorge Bundy, the President's chief foreign policy adviser in the White House, and Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, U.S. representative at the UN.

They cite warnings from the British that this unprecedented exodus, which would dwarf the recent outpouring of refugees, is clearly possible if food conditions inside China continue to deteriorate, and Peiping fails to get help from the U.S. — the only grain-producing country that still has a large reserve of wheat.

The Rusk group favors solving this refugee problem by having the United Nations or the International Red Cross distribute U.S. surplus grain inside China. They are proposing that the President offer to make available upwards of 10 million tons of wheat and barley for this purpose.

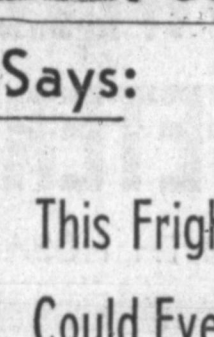

OPPOSING VIEW — Congressional leaders headed by Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., and Representative Francis Walter, D-Pa., chairman of the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Refugees, are arguing against giving Peiping any help that would strengthen that Communist regime.

Instead, they want the President to (1) help feed and resettle the Chinese refugees escaping to freedom in Hong Kong, and (2) give U.S. surplus food to the Chinese Nationalist government on Formosa to be air dropped into areas of China.

Also, they want the President to review U.S. policy on Communist China to determine whether the State Department can take advantage of the deteriorating situation on the mainland to use this country's vast influence to topple the present Peiping regime.

These legislators are planning to bar any U.S.-Red China grain deal by including a prohibiting amendment in the Agriculture bill when it comes to the House floor.

TAKING A STAND — Representative Walter made these congressional views known to President Kennedy when called to the White House to discuss the Chinese Communist refugee problem.

"How far do you think Congress is ready to go to help the refugees?" asked the President.

"The House will support whatever you propose in the way of aid to these refugees as long as it doesn't save or strengthen the regime responsible for their present plight," answered Walter.

"Would you favor furnishing surplus grain to the present Peiping government if that would stop the outpouring of these refugees?" inquired the President.

"Absolutely not," replied Walter. "If we give the Chinese grain now, it would only strengthen that regime. Some members I talked to believe that if we help them now, we will save that government."

"What would you propose?" challenged the President.

"I have talked this over with Speaker McCormack, Representative (Thomas) Morgan (D-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee) and a bipartisan group of other members, and they favor giving all the aid we can to the refugees coming through Hong Kong. They will support any measures to resettle them."

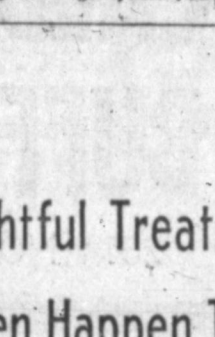

"What about bringing them to the U.S.?" asked the President.

"Would you favor opening our doors to 5,000 of the refugees?"

"I'll go even higher if you want me to," answered Walter. "I plan to fly to Hong Kong after Memorial Day for an on-the-spot check. If you want me to tell the British that we will take 50,000 refugees, I will. I don't think we should announce it now, but we should give them assurances that we stand ready to take our fair share."

The President, who had been told by his advisers that Walter opposed admitting any Chinese, thanked him profusely. He wound up the meeting by promising Representative Walter he would await his report on his Hong Kong visit before making any decision on supplying food to the Chinese Communists.

Note: Chinese Nationalist Ambassador T. F. Tsaiang has privately informed Representative Walter that his government on Formosa is ready to air-drop U.S. food parcels throughout China. All that is needed is the food.

NEVER SAY DYE
Be careful what your words imply
If she is getting gray,
Modern women just don't dye—
They simply rinse away.

—Harry Durgin.

An Irish widdler, in a Louisville court, presided over by an irascible judge, persisted, while testifying, in relating what his wife had told him. He was warned time and again to relate only what he saw, and not what he had heard, but persisted in violating the orders of the court. Finally the judge lost his patience and thundered out:

Judge — Do not tell me what your wife said, sir! Suppose you were to go home tonight and your wife told you the moon is made of green cheese — what then?

A look of pride and conscious faith came into the Irishman's homely, honest face as he said, Irishman — Then, judge, O should believe my wife!

Television In Review

Yet, though the program was one of the most worthwhile innovations of the past season, Sunday's offering was disappointing because of what it had promised in advance.

An ABC press release had said Stevenson would "reply to criticisms of the U.N., the U.S. mission to the U.N. and himself."

The program did not at all take this strong tack, except by the most liberal inference that his positive approach constituted a reply to critics. The matter of personal criticism never was taken up directly by host-producer Arnold Michaelis.

One of two conclusions seems apparent:

—The press release was exaggerated, either through misinformation from the makers of the show or unfortunate overstatement.

—The advance billing was correct, but those associated with the program decided it would be better to take a different approach.

If the later was the case, it was unfortunate because the result was a mostly bland, antiseptic half-hour full of the usual generalizations.

The main fault for this rests with Michaelis, who allowed his admiration for Stevenson and his U.N. to impair his effectiveness as an interviewer. He was more in the nature of a straight man. His questions were set-ups.

At one point, even Stevenson seemed aware of the lack of interviewer control after making a lengthy dissertation.

"Forgive me for making a speech," he said.

"Adlai Stevenson Reports" will be back next season. And it is certainly a fine service for the ambassador to take time from his duties to keep the public informed. But one wishes that those who guide the show would remember that being labeled "educational television" is no excuse for putting on a program in a less attractive or stimulating manner than a commercial venture.

The Channel Swim: Jack E. Leonard and Dorothy Collins guest on Perry Como's NBC-TV show Wednesday... Jack Carson appears on same network's "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" June 5... Susan Kohner and Ilka Chase star on CBS-TV's "Checkmate" June 6.

Europeans in 12 nations watched Scott Carpenter's orbital flight on television via a tieup with NBC... CBS-TV offers a one-hour special Wednesday on the 1962 elections... Same network uses the old "Brenner" series for summer reruns starting June 7.

Jack Kelly, of ABC-TV's defunct "Maverick" series, stars in "The Music Man" at the Wharf Theatre in Monterey, Calif., starting July 30... Anthony George, of CBS-TV's cancelled "Checkmate," headlines "The Voice of the Turtle" at Chicago's O'Hare Theatre beginning June 21.

Ding Dong At Last Has A Real Bell

DING DONG, Tex. (UPI) — At long last, the little town of Ding Dong, which got its name because of a pictorial pun, has a bell. You can hear it for miles.

It is a brass bell, salvaged from an old locomotive, Charles Hold, one of the dozen residents of this South Central Texas town near Killeen, (located, ironically in Bell County) has it mounted on a post in front of his general store.

It has a rope, and when you pull it, the bell goes.

R. D. Shelton of Chicago, acting vice president of Santa Fe Railroad, delivered the bell to Ding Dong. It was presented in formal ceremonies to Rev. Grant Townsend of the Baptist Calvary Church.

It may be mounted in the church later.

In a way, Shelton has a personal interest. He was born at Youngsport, about 10 miles down the Lampasas River from Ding Dong. But actually, the railroad donated the bell because it felt a town with such a picturesque name needed a bell.

"It's almost as bad as the little town of Telephone, Tex., which until quite recently did not have telephone service," one newsman remarked.

The town got its name because of an artist with a sense of humor.

In 1930, when Z. O. Bell and his brother, I. V., settled in the community and put up a general store. They asked Cohn Hoover, a farmer-artist, historian who has lived all of his 75 years just west of Ding Dong, to paint them a sign for their store.

He made a long, rectangular sign with a picture of a bell at each end. In the bell on one end were the initials Z. O. and in the other bell, the initials I. V. In between the two bells, he painted a large "Ding Dong."

TIE DRAGON

PRESENTED BY MORAL RE-ARMAMENT

The Dramatic Stage Representation From Free China)

DIRECT FROM ITS EUROPEAN TOUR
SEEN BY 300,000 IN SIX MONTHS

ADMISSION: MAIN FLOOR $1.50 — BALCONY $1.00

THE DRAGON, written in the spirit of Moral Re-Armament, deals with the fateful road of the largest nation on earth. The Chinese actors and actresses, with great force of expression, exciting choreography, and colorful Chinese music, make this play an experience for every audience. Hates and passions clash, spiritual confusions lead to tragedies, but the play shows a way which can bridge the seemingly irreparable conflicts of East and West. For the first time in the history of ideological struggle, representatives of Free China have appeared on the scene blazing a trail with the answer.

"We were literally shaken as the play unfolded before our eyes — a play that ends with a brilliant finale. We made our way home with great hope in our hearts."

—Vaterland, Catholic Daily, Switzerland

"The crowds went wild with enthusiasm."

—Der Bund, Switzerland

"The whole splendor of the folklores of the Far East... the dramatic skill of the traditional Chinese theater... dancers in gay silk costumes whirled across the stage."

—Stuttgarter Zeitung, Germany
