Three Prisoners Of Alcatraz In Escape

Could 'Intercept' Missiles Manned Space Vehicle Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department is pushing technical studies expected to lead to development of manned spacecraft that could intercept and knock out hostile space vehicles. Acknowledging the possibility of a future Soviet satellite-borne threat, the Pentagon is investigating not only unmanned but piloted vehicles that could rendezvous in space with unidentified craft and determine whether they are friendly or hostile.

These studies are seen as part of an inevitably expanding military role in space, barring some now-unlikely Soviet-American pact to ban warlike space machines and to explore it jointly and peaceably.

Though the Air Force is developing a manned orbital vehicle called Dyna-Soar and doing basic research on one called Aerospace Plane, the space interceptor for manned orbital satellite is now in the study stage.

A Defense Department spokesman denied a published report Monday that "the department has decided that the Air Force should develop the technology for a manned satellite capable of inspecting and destroying a hostile vehicle in space."

The report appeared in the New York Times. Technically speaking, no specific project has been laid down and assigned the Air Force for carrying through to development and flight test.

But there is going to be such a project beyond question, according to another well-informed official. Spacecraft such as the civilian space agency's one-man

If They Made It To Shore, They Will Be The First So Far

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Three bank robbers escaped from Alcatraz prison and law enforcement agencies today began a massive land, sea and air search of San Francisco Bay and its shoreline.

Acting Warden Arthur Dollison said the inmates presumably fled the island prison Monday night on an improvised raft or piece of driftwood in an attempt to reach nearby Angel Island or the mainland.

The men were identified as John William Anglin, 32, and his brother, Clarence, 28, and Farris Egbert Morris. It was not immediately known whether they were armed.

Dollison said the men escaped by removing a portion of the backs of their cells with a spoon, which admitted them to the utilities area pipe tunnel.

"They then climbed to the roof and removed or sawed a bar protecting a skylight and from there went down a pipe to the rear of the island and presumably went into the water on an improvised raft or piece of drift wood apparently in an attempt to get to Angel Island or the mainland," he said.

If the three succeeded in escaping, they would be the first convicts known to have done it since Alcatraz became a civilian prison in 1934.

"It takes 10 minutes to get here, and 20 years to get back," one convict once remarked.

Some 250 of the nation's most dangerous convicts are housed in the buff-colored cell blocks on the 12-acre island. It is separated from the mainland by a mile and a half of cold, tide-swept waters.

Several convicts have attempted to swim to freedom, but have failed, although two men who made the try in 1937 were never heard from again. Officials presumed they were swept out to sea.

The three men were discovered missing at a morning "bed check," and the alarm was immediately sounded.

Guards scrambled along the cave-pocked shore of the famed "rock," but found no trace of the men.

A Coast Guard helicopter, four patrol boats and prow cars of the San Francisco police department and California highway patrol joined the search.

The hunt was centered in the San Francisco Bay waters surrounding the island prison, San Francisco city and Marin County across the Golden Gate Bridge.

This Was A Real Hurray Wedding

GALVESTON (UPI)—A Galveston couple who heard of people getting married on their lunch hour decided to go themselves on Monday. They got married on their coffee break.

Mrs. Joe Ellen Friedman, a secretary in the office of city finance director H. L. Beneke, was gone from her office 45 minutes instead of the regular 15 minutes all city workers take twice a day.

Medicare Is Just About Dead; Farm Bill Is In Trouble

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy's medical care plan today appeared just about dead; his farm bill was in such trouble House leaders postponed floor action on it indefinitely.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Democratic congressional leaders, after meeting with President Kennedy, vowed today to push through as much of the administration program "as humanly possible" this year.

House Republicans claimed a good chance of winning their fight on the floor Wednesday to cut $2 billion off the President's requested new $308 billion ceiling on the national debt.

His bill to withhold taxes on interest and dividends, and also to give a new tax credit to business to encourage investment, remained in abeyance in the Senate Finance Committee.

Kennedy's request for broad new authority to cut import duties, and to subsidize workers displaced by resulting imports, was in better shape than his tax bill. But there was no assurance it would pass the House without elimination of its subsidy feature.

The legislative timetable of the Democratic 87th Congress continued to slip, prompting one Republican complaint that lawmakers might be in session until Christmas.

Highlighting Kennedy's legislative problems was the plight of his proposal to provide hospital and nursing home care for the elderly under the Social Security program.

Some foes of the plan jubilantly claimed they would block enactment this year of even a skeleton version of Kennedy's plan.

Backers insisted that any victory celebrations were premature. Some of them conceded privately, however, that their prospects were gloomy despite the administration's willingness to compromise.

Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff indicated Monday that the administration was willing to talk compromise on all features of the bill except the financing.

He said that medical care for the elderly must be financed through an increase in Social Security taxes.

Group Planning Traffic Education Program For City

Pampa's City Traffic Commission heard and approved several recommendations concerning the speed limits on highways through the city, and a plan to reduce speed limits upon entering the city, at the organization's meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Coronado Inn.

Bill Arrington and Ray Browning presented the recommendations after a 90-day survey on speed controls through and around the city, which will be presented soon to the City Commission for consideration.

E. E. Shelhamer, chairman of the educational committee, announced the Commission is undertaking a broad traffic education program and plans to work with traffic safety chairmen of all civic clubs in the city. The program will be designed to familiarize the public about city traffic rules.

In other business at the meeting, a discussion was held on the necessity of the public observing the "Stop For Pedestrian" signs at the crosswalk in front of the Post Office.

Bob Hudson, chairman of the Traffic Commission, appointed the following chairman to work on the Educational Safety Program: coordinator with civic clubs, Carl Beavers; traffic problems, "Doc" Stuart; education, E. E. Shelhamer; and publicity, Thelma A. Bray.

City officials present at yesterday's meeting were Monroe Moore, city engineer, and R. B. Cooke, director of public works. Members present were Don Conley, Claude Wilson, Dick Waldt, Jack Miller, Lillian Jordan, Browning, Arrington, Shelhamer, Thelma Bray, Bessie Lewis and Hudson.

Oil Company Official Shot By His Secretary's Brother

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police said a hulking, 250-pound accountant Monday night shot and critically wounded his sister's boss, oil company executive Taylor S. Gay, for "fooling around" with her.

Gay, 54, vice president of Phillips Petroleum Corp., was shot once in the side with a .25 caliber pistol as he sat in a telephone booth in the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Terminal in lower New York.

Gay had accompanied his secretary, Mary Mullooly, 42, to the terminal after a dinner date. She was waiting for a train to her home in Jersey City, N.J., when the gunman intervened, police said.

Gay and Miss Mullooly had dined at the Downtown Athletic Club and were driven to the terminal, which serves commuters riding the Hudson Tube trains between Manhattan and New Jersey points, in a chauffeur-driven rented limousine.

Officers said James Patrick Mullooly, 41, the secretary's brother, admitted the shooting. He is employed by Great Lakes Carbon Corp. here as a traveling auditor.

"The man needed killing," they quoted the 6-foot 5-inch auditor as saying. "Somebody had to kill him. I took it on myself. I just couldn't see a married man taking out a single girl."

Gay, who is reported to earn $90,000 a year and is a 1929 graduate of Harvard, had been separated from his wife for about five years. He resides at The Creek, an exclusive club in Locust Valley, N.Y.

He was listed in critical condition today following surgery at Beckman-Downtown Hospital in Manhattan.

Police said Mullooly's gun jammed after the first shot, leaving six live shells unfired. His sister, who witnessed the shooting, was treated for shock. Mullooly surrendered without a struggle, police said.

Commission To Consider Fund Transfer

Pampa's City Commission Thursday night will consider a transfer of funds to meet $34,000 plus interest and commission due July 1 on city waterworks and sewer system bonds.

In an agenda report released today by City Manager Harold Schmitzer's office it was suggested that $35,000 in U.S. Treasury Bonds owned by the Interest and Sinking Fund be sold to the General Obligation Bond, Interest and Sinking Fund, and a $47,000 time deposit held by the General Obligation fund be transferred to the Water and Sewer Revenue Bond fund.

In another item on Thursday night's agenda, the commission will be asked to authorize a payment of $75,000 by the Water and Sewer Fund to the General Fund.

Youth Critically Hurt In Car-Truck Mishap

Herman R. Hall, 17-year-old Skellytown youth, remains in critical condition today from severe head injuries he received at 5:30 p.m. yesterday when the car he was driving collided with a soft drink truck one mile south of Skellytown at the intersection of State Highway 152 and Farm-to-Market Road 294.

Investigating officers said Hall was approaching the east-west highway when his vehicle collided with a Dr. Pepper delivery truck driven by David Marler, 2228 Dogwood, Pampa. The truck was heading east toward Pampa.

Officers said Hall apparently was turning west on the Highway when the accident occurred.

The soft drink truck was overturned on the north side of the highway. Marler was taken by private automobile to Pampa where he received emergency treatment for cuts and bruises and released.

The Hall vehicle veered to the south side of the highway approximately 38 paces east from the point of impact and slammed against the dirt bank.

Bill Price, Skellytown deputy sheriff who assisted Highway Patrol officers in the investigation, said the Hall youth was thrown from his vehicle onto the pavement.

He was taken by Duenkel-Carmichael ambulance to Highland General Hospital and later transferred to St. Anthony's Hospital, Amarillo, where his condition remains critical.

Officers said damage to both vehicles was extensive. There were no reported witnesses to the accident.

.25 Inch Of Rainfall Here

Rainfall amounts in Pampa ranged from .25 inch to .14 inch as a result of yesterday afternoon's showers.

The weather bureau is calling for the possibility of more of the same for this afternoon and night. Tornadoes, winds of 80 miles an hour, torrential rain and hail slashed West Texas Monday night causing heavy damage to homes and automobiles. A heavy squall line bolted across the central section of the state today.

Forecasters warned that widely scattered showers and thunderstorms will continue over the state through Wednesday, some of (See RAIN, Page 3)

Few Left Wing Groups Are Willing To Stand And Be Counted

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first in a series of four articles on Communist organizational activities in the United States and what is being done to curb them. They are written by Peter Edson, Pampa News and NEA Washington correspondent, who has worked closely with the Department of Justice, FBI, House Un-American Activities Committee and Subversive Activities Control Board to bring our readers an accurate and informative series of dispatches on a topic of mutual concern to Americans in all walks of life.

By PETER EDSON
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Running down active Communist organizations in the United States — definitely low on finances and members, harassed by the government as well as by American public opinion and the anti-Communist right wingers — are pursuing evasive, underground tactics that make them hard to catch.

They continue operations by creating confusion through legal delays that tie up court cases and thwart government agencies charged with forcing the Communist party, its subsidiary organizations and members to register.

Old Communist organizations that have been exposed or whose purposes have been accomplished go out of business. They change their name and officers. They keep no records.

Fly-by-night committees for this or against that are organized without members for the sole purpose of propagandizing some pet Communist cause of the moment. As soon as these groups and their purposes are shown up, they fold.

When the Communist party of the United States held its last convention in New York, Dec. 10-13, 1959, General Secretary Gus Hall said it had 10,000 members. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy recently confirmed this figure. The members are concentrated in the New York, Chicago, Detroit and Pacific Coast areas. The party claims it's broke.

In the World War II years when the U.S. and U.S.S.R. were allied against the Axis powers, Communist party's late National Chairman William Z. Foster claimed 100,000 members. Actually it never got much over 80,000. The first impression drawn from this decline is that the anti-Communist crusade in America is beginning to pay off. But Communist lawyers are using every trick of their trade to thwart laws, regulations and court decisions intended to keep the party under control or obliterate it.

So the battle to force Communist organizations to register and disclose their membership is by no means won.

Director J. Edgar Hoover has told a congressional committee that Federal Bureau of Investigation now has under surveillance approximately 200 known and suspected Communist-controlled or Communist-infiltrated groups.

For policy reasons he cannot give out the full list. To do so would break cover on some organizations that do not now know they are being watched.

There are official records on over 1,000 United States organizations connected with the Communist movement since 1917. Most of them are now disbanded or no longer active.

But it is possible to identify some of the newer organizations that have come out in the open and disclosed themselves as Communist. In the list are:

- Citizens Committee for Constitutional Liberties.
- Advance, an Organization for Progressive Youth.
- Progressive Youth Organizing Committee.
- New York School for Marxist Studies.
- The Fair Play for Cuba Committee.
- Gus Hall-Benjamin J. Davis Defense Committee.
- Some 40 other organizations have been cited in various ways (See LEFT WING, Page 8)

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — I never thought I'd live to see the day when a television announcer would be allowed to plug a sponsor from a box in Carnegie Hall, but it happened Monday night on CBS' Julie Andrews-Carol Burnett special.

It was only one of many disappointments that prevents this viewer from joining the general gushing over the much-heralded hour by the two talented young ladies, Julie and Carol at Carnegie Hall.

It was an all right show, better than average, which isn't saying much. But it was nowhere near what it should have been, nor the millennium indicated by advance notice.

To begin with, it seems significant that the smash number of the evening, a Western spoof called "Big D," was merely a repeat of what the two stars had done previously on the Garry Moore show. It was this number, in fact, which led to the idea of the special.

In addition, maybe I'm old-fashioned, but somehow it just doesn't get me when two girls sing romantic songs together. Something seems to be missing. The facts that the audience was in black tie get-up and that the setting was the stately old music boxes, were all very well. But they had nothing to do with what was happening on stage. Nor did the irritatingly prolonged applause transmitted into our homes, apparently as a hint to appreciate what we were seeing.

What we were seeing, in fact, was two girls who had been deserted by everyone except the choreographer and a resourceful publicity staff. Miss Burnett's flair for broad, wild comedy was held too much in tow. And the dialogue by comedian Mike Nichols and Ken Welch was obnoxious and "show biz," as was a cloying and not-very-bright opening song in which the ladies paid tribute to each other.

No one sings a tune more beautifully than Miss Andrews, and she scored when she got a chance, although she also offered an endlessly long version of "So Long at the Fair." She was also funny when, swapping her English accent for Americanese, she tried the song "I Can't Say No," and wailed: "I Can't say 'cain't'."

There were mildly amusing takeoffs on visiting Russian dance troupes and Swiss family folk singers. And Miss Burnett also was a knockout when the opportunity arose. As the show started, she was hilarious when, to bump-and-grind tempo, she sang: "There'll be no Mozart tonight at Carnegie Hall." The hour needed more of that. Miss Burnett is gutsy, and the show was ladylike. She dominated anyway, but neither girl yet has Judy Garland's immense personal presence to carry off a show with hardly any help from anybody.

As for the announcer and his

Vandalism In Pampa Increases

A daily study of police reports indicates vandalism in Pampa is becoming not only a thorn in the side of Pampa homeowners and business places, but a knotty problem for police investigators as well.

The reports run the gamut of destruction all the way from trampled flower beds and windows, cracked with B-B pellets, to broken vending machines and match sticks wedged into pay telephones. Plate glass windows and auto windshields broken with rocks and mud splattered on the sides of houses add to the list.

Latest report comes from Mrs. T. E. Anderson of the Speed Queen Laundry, 2000 N. Hobart, where vandals last night cut off water to the washing machines, stuffed matches into the coin receptacle of a telephone, and stole an electric clock from the wall.

Another report came from Julius Nibblitt of the Ideal Laundry, 221 E. Archison, who reported thieves broke into cigaret and candy machines and stole an undetermined amount of cash.

Rutherford Suit Hearing In July

ODESSA Tex. (UPI)—A suit seeking to remove U. S. Rep. J. T. Rutherford's name from the November general election ballot will be heard sometime in July. Dist. Atty. Jack Tidwell said today.

Robert Frias, who was defeated in a primary contest for Rutherford's seat, filed suit Monday asking that Rutherford's name be stricken from the ballot because he improperly reported a $1,500 campaign contribution from Billie Sol Estes.

State Dist. Judge George M. Kelton granted permission Monday for the suit to be filed. He approved a quo warranto motion by Tidwell asking leave to bring the suit. The action came in 161st district court.

Tidwell said the legal rule on such cases calls for them to be given precedent on the court docket. But he said there would not be time to try the case this month.

Killer Says He Wants To Get 'Chair'

SHERMAN (UPI)—"I guess I'll get the electric chair. I want it," a Negro farm hand said Monday following his capture for what police described as the senseless killing of a farmer's son.

Eugene Welch, 27, of Celina, Tex., a two-time ex-convict made that statement in a confession to assist. County Atty. Richard Pennell. Welch said he terrorized the white R. J. Ballou family for two hours. Two white farmers made a citizens' arrest after a massive manhunt for the bushy-haired Negro.

Welch had shot Robert W. Ballou, 24, through the eye as the young man sat bound to a chair. He also tried to rape the youth's mother, and beat his father, and stole $104.

County Atty. Dean Martin asked that Welch be held without bond. Justice of the Peace A. L. McGuire consented to this request at a hearing for the jittery Welch, who sobbed softly. He was charged with murder.

The slaying is "a death penalty case," Martin said. Sheriff Woody Blanton said the killing was "a senseless act."

Graham Says We Don't Know How To Live The Life Of A Christian

CHICAGO (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham said Monday night the average American does not know how to live as a Christian.

"We have been told to live as Christians but we have not been told how," he told an estimated 39,000 persons at the 13th meeting of his three-week Chicago crusade in the McCormick Place convention hall.

Graham's aides reported that 374 persons came forward to make "Decisions for Christ," raising the crusade total to 9,750. Some 420,000 persons have attended the rallies, which will close Sunday with an open-air meeting in giant Soldier Field, at which Graham said there would be seating for 135,000.

"The average American Christian is not living up to the standard set by the early church. One of the reasons why other ideologies are making such inroads in the world today is that Christians have failed to accept seriously the message proclaimed by Jesus Christ," the evangelist said.

He said that "historians may conclude" that the increase in church attendance and in gifts to churches are "meaningless."

"The joy and thrill" of New Testament Christianity is absent in the modern variety. "There is only the dying ember of what used to be a mighty flame for Christ," he said.

He said early Christians had no churches, no Bibles, "yet they turned the world upside down."

For those who want to raise "the cross of Christian discipleship," Graham suggested:

"Learn to pray."

"Learn Christian discipline."

"Read the Bible."

Separation from the non-Christian world, "dominated by pride, ego, hate, jealousy, greed and falsehood."

Attend church. To be a Christian without going to church "would be like joining the Navy and refusing to go to a particular ship."

Mishap Hurts 15-Year-Old

Investigating officer R. C. Parker, said the late model automobile, driven by Delbert Morgan, 19, of Tulsa, was traveling west on Highway 66 during a heavy rain storm when the accident occurred. Fifteen-year-old Patricia Morgan, sister of the driver, was a passenger in the vehicle.

Parker said the auto apparently skidded on the wet pavement, struck several guard posts and turned over on the right side of the highway.

Both occupants of the vehicle were taken to the McLean Hospital by the Lamb Funeral Home Ambulance. Delbert was treated for bruises and released. Patricia was transferred to the Shamrock Hospital for treatment of head injuries.

Here's A 'Shirt' Dads Can Devour On Father's Day, June 17

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Many men say they don't want their womenfolk to select shirts and ties for them. They insist a man has the right to select his own.

However, on Father's Day, the surprise gift of a good special cake, resembling a shirt with polka dot tie and packaged in a regular shirt box, is perfectly safe. More than that, it will give dad a chuckle.

Start with your favorite cake mix. A chocolate or yellow mix is pleasant and a spice cake mix goes particularly well with the butterscotch frosting. When complete, the shirt cake should be placed in tissue paper and packed in a shirt box. Better take the precaution of setting the cake first on waxed paper, then on tissue paper so there will be no sticking when the cake is unpacked.

DAD'S DAY CAKE
(Yield: 8x13-inch cake)
1 package chocolate or yellow or spice cake mix

1 6-ounce package (1 cup) butterscotch morsels
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, divided
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons milk
1-3 6-ounce package (1-3 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
Prepare cake mix and bake in 8x13x2-inch pan according to package directions.
Melt butterscotch morsels over hot (not boiling) water.
Remove from water. Blend in 1/2 cups of the confectioners' sugar. Beat in butter and milk. Gradually add remaining sugar, beating until spreading consistency.
Frost cooled cake. Reserve a few of the semisweet chocolate morsels; melt remaining morsels over hot (not-boiling) water. Force melted chocolate through cake decorator or paper cone to outline shirt collar, pocket and tie on top of cake. Place reserved morsels, point side down, to make polka dots on tie.

HERE'S a shirt and tie that dad can eat if he objects to the selections of his women folks. It's a delicious cake.

INSURANCE

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a husband who is insurance-shy? We have been married for 15 years and have four children, and he positively will not carry one cent worth of insurance unless he has to. (He has auto insurance because he can't drive a car without it.) The place where he works has some insurance for him, but in case something happened to him we could never make it on that. I am worried sick over it, but when I bring it up he says, "You're a real looker, Kiddo, and if something happened to me you could get another guy in 15 minutes." How can you reason with a man who takes this attitude? We are not poor. We have a bank account in six figures!

DISGUSTED
DEAR DISGUSTED: Call a reputable insurance company and ask for an agent who can talk to a man who is bull-headed and ignorant about insurance. Insist that your husband hear him out. He will get an earful. A man who loves his wife and family OWES them this kind of protection.

DEAR ABBY: Seventeen months ago I married a nice woman. She was a thoughtful, tidy and affectionate girl. Now she doesn't even comb her hair any more, and her slip hangs down to her ankles. ### There's A Difference In Terminology For Kitchen And Golfing Activities

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—An apron is one thing in the kitchen something else in golf.

The difference in definitions also applies to carpets, to irons and to hoods.

Across this desk today came a set of daffy explanations of standard golf terms, as defined in the mind of a woman who's never golfed and thinks a chip is a break in her fingernail polish.

They're the brainchild of Morgot Coley and Sam Snead, the famous professional tournament golfer and head pro at the Greenbrier Country Club in White Sulphur Spring, W.Va.

To Snead, giving lessons to the novice, and to Miss Coley, doing some mind-reading, here are some of the definitions:

- Apron — Aunt Matilda's coming tomorrow.
- Bingle, Bangle, Bungle — My charm bracelet's caught.
- Birdie, Eagle — Duck!
- Bogey — That nasty man.
- Bunker — That's where the Nazis hid.
- Choke up — The car won't start.
- Carpet — Check dining room rug.
- Chip — My manicure's ruined.
- Divors — Like trivets?
- Duffer — Take off your hat.
- Fairway — Heckuva long walk.
- Fare — Is my hem even?
- Frog's hair — The hair at the back of my neck never takes a permanent.
- Hook — Oops, where's a safety pin?
- Iron — Did I leave it plugged in?
- Lie — Good or bad, there's no excuse.
- Match play — Male versus female.

lagers, who regard government agents only as tax collectors or unwelcome representatives of the army.

Ben Tuong and 2,000 other, similar strategic hamlets are part of a U. S.-supported effort to change that concept.

Except that the houses are of thatch and woven palm, Ben Tuong could be a village in early colonial America.

A deep ditch embedded with sharp bamboo spikes surrounds it, topped by an earthwork and a tangle of barbed wire.

An armed guard stands at the gate which each morning swings back to allow the villagers to work in the paddies or an adjoining rubber plantation.

In each family plot, a slit trench provides shelter in case of attack.

At the moment, two companies of Vietnamese troops guard the village, but in six months time it is hoped the villagers will provide their own defense.

The real test of Ben Tuong's success will come when the army is withdrawn. It is reasonably safe from mass attack now because the Viet Cong attack in the open only when sure of superior strength.

President Of Farm Bureau Hits Federal Turkey Marketing Order

CHICAGO (SpI) — Establishment of a nationwide turkey marketing order would subject an entire industry to marketing controls and further extend federal rationing of the right to produce farm products." Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, warned today.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has called for a referendum of a selected group of the country's turkey growers, June 18-22, to determine if the selected group of producers voting approve the program.

If the proposed order is approved, it would be the first nationwide order for any commodity and it would be the first federal order of this type applied to a livestock or poultry product, Shuman pointed out.

"Inauguration of a nationwide marketing order in this field would mean that the government's power to ration the right to produce has been extended to another segment of our agricultural economy," the farm leader said.

"In the case of the turkey order referendum, the small grower will not even be permitted to vote on whether or not he is to be 'fenced in' by rigid marketing controls," Shuman pointed out.

"If the marketing order becomes effective, rights to market turkeys — like acreage allotments — will become capital assets subject to political manipulation.

"One aspect of the Billie Sol Estes case involving the manipulation of cotton acreage allotments demonstrates the monetary value of government-allocated rights to produce and market farm products. An acreage allotment can mean an increase of from $100 to $200 or more per acre in market price of cotton land, for example, or many thousands of dollars in the value of a farm. This artificial increase in value rewards speculators, but penalizes young farmers and those who need to expand their operations to get enough volume to make a decent living," Shuman said.

The remainder of Shuman's statement follows: "The turkey marketing order is an administrative device by which the Secretary of Agriculture can control the production of turkeys by controlling their marketing. It provides for an administrative committee that would be empowered to say who may expand his production.

"The real threat in the turkey marketing order is that it constitutes a foot-in-the-door approach to the complete regimentation of all agriculture by administrative action.

"If the Secretary is successful in his efforts to dictate the operations of the turkey industry, similar orders to establish production controls can be expected for other commodities including eggs, broilers, potatoes and milk. This would mean taking the major decisions on economic policy out of the hands of Congress, and placing them in the hands of administrators who are on record as having little confidence in the market price system.

"As to the referendum itself, the Secretary has exerted every effort to set the stage for an affirmative vote.

"At least 85 per cent—probably over 90 per cent—of the turkey growers would be exempt from the provisions of the proposed order, except that they could not expand their operations beyond 3,600 pounds of annual turkey production without consent of the 19-man committee under the Secretary of Agriculture.

"The exempt producer has been denied the right to vote on an order that will prevent him from expanding his turkey operation as his larger competitors have already done. This is contrary to the objective of helping the family farm. It means the end of the line for the turkey producer who needs to expand his operations in order to stay in business. Most of the successful growers today are started with fewer than 200 turkeys and would have fallen into the 'exempt' category of producers who are now to be stopped from expanding under the proposed marketing order.

"The Secretary can determine the results either by the number of voters in the referendum, or by the volume of turkeys produced by those who vote. On a volume vote, a producer who has 100,000 turkey base will have twenty times as many votes as the man with a 5,000 turkey base. Thus, a small percentage of voters with exceedingly large bases may be able to impose their will on all turkey producers.

"The counting of the ballots is to be under the complete control of the ASC — the same agency of government that is involved in the Estes case. Challenged ballots are to be marked with a 'C' and opened in the state ASC offices. State ASC committee chairmen are political appointees — named by the Secretary of Agriculture. The results are to be announced only in terms of national totals.

5 Million In U.S. May Be Taking Piano Lessons

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The player piano with its paper rolls and foot power action may have filled a need for easy home music before radio and television yet it was not an unmixed blessing, says William N. Herleman.

"A whole generation didn't learn to play the piano," he said, "and it is a basic musical instrument. Today pianos—real pianos—are making their way into the home again, and I believe it will be a billion dollar industry within the next decade."

He estimated five million persons may be taking piano lessons today.

Herleman, of DeKalb, Ill., is executive vice president of the Wurliizer Co. The DeKalb division, last year sold more conventional pianos for home and institutional use than ever before in their history.

While the 88-key piano remains the basic product of the industry, Herleman said that the electronic organ is a major sales item; and the company has just introduced a new electronic piano, with 64 notes. It may be operated by plug in wires or it may be operated with a 10-pound battery pack.

American piano manufacturers have relatively little foreign competition at present in the domestic market, Herleman said; biggest share of it, comes from the Japs, who produce a low priced piano. Pianos and organs manufactured in this country are also sold overseas and some companies, including Wurliizer, have manufacturing plants abroad.

and the Secretary has thus far refused to make provision for the use of tellers representing those who support, and those who oppose the proposed referendum.

"The turkey grower is not the only one who would suffer under the order. The program would eventually mean higher costs to the consumer because the costs of operation would be added all along the line from the farm to market.

"To the average consumer, the entire fantastic scheme as proposed by the government planners, may seem like an 'Alice in Wonderland' story, but unfortunately it is all too real. Anyone who says that this can't possibly happen in America has only to read the daily accounts of the almost unbelievable Billie Sol Estes case as it unfolds."

CALLING CAROLINE
FORT LEE, N.J. (UPI)—Curiosity seekers, aware that the President was in the New York area, gathered quickly Sunday when the Palisades Amusement Park loudspeaker blared: "Caroline Kennedy to the administration building."

But Caroline turned out to be the 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kennedy of Jersey City, and only one of 53 children who were separated from their parents at the park.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam—The fortified village of Ben Tuong lies about 30 helicopter miles northwest of Saigon, separated from the South Vietnamese capital by the Saigon River delta and mile after mile of rubber plantations and water-filled paddies which glisten in the sun.

From the air it appears both beautiful and peaceful.

But the atmosphere of peace is an illusion, for this is the notorious "Zone D" through which only armed convoys can pass by day and which at night belongs to the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

The French only partially controlled it when they had Indochina, and the South Vietnamese government of President Ngo Dinh Diem never has controlled it.

Ben Tuong is a tiny oasis in the midst of the Viet Cong who in the month of May alone attacked it 14 times.

In Ben Tuong the government has gathered 955 men, women and children, some voluntarily, some removed from their jungle huts by force. In the village there is a marked scarcity of young men of military age, for they either have joined the Viet Cong or have disappeared into the jungle in fear of being taken into the army.

Their absence is illustrative both of the Viet Cong's influence and of the government's past failure to win either the sympathy or loyalty of these outlying vil-

The Lighter Side On Electronic Computers

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Hardly a week goes by any more that some company doesn't contribute to man's decline by bringing out a new type of electronic computer.

In fact, these so-called "memory" devices are coming on the market so fast it takes a computer to keep track of the names and numbers of the other computers.

This week's model, which went on display here today, is called "Cris." A product of the Information Retrieval Corp., it is billed as being "desk-sized."

It stores more than half a million pages of microfilmed data in a box no bigger than a loaf of bread. I assume that in emergencies it could even be used as a bread box.

The desk-size computer comes on the heels of a computing machine called the "automated reality services plan." Its purpose is to replace landlords, which in some ways could be a blessing.

It supposedly performs all of the functions that a landlord performs, like notifying you that the rent is overdue.

The literature I have doesn't make clear, however, whether it puts poor widows out into the street on snowy nights.

The electronic landlord apparently has one major advantage over the human variety. When you complain that your apartment isn't getting enough heat, it merely ignores your protest without giving you a lot of lip.

Another new type of computer, fortunately still in the experimental stage, may eventually replace the office secretary.

If it pans out, it will take dictation, translate the phonetic sounds into writing and type out the words without so much as a misplaced comma.

The only drawback is, it can't sit on the boss' lap.

In view of the havoc that computers are creating, you might be interested in knowing who started it all.

According to the Smithsonian Institution, which recently did some research on the subject, the culprit is a certain Charles Babbage, a professor at Cambridge University in England during the middle of the last century.

Babbage drew up a design for a computing device which was too complex for the technical skills of that day. Only part of the machine was built, but it was responsible for much that came later.

Any way you look at it, Babbage was a busy little man. In addition to designing the first computer, he is the genius who invented the cowcatcher for locomotives.

He likewise left his imprint on history as the first man to cross a railroad viaduct in a handcar.

Freeman Backs Down On Remark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S. D., said Sunday that Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman told him he wished he had never said the Billie Sol Estes case was blown out of proportion.

Mundt, ranking Republican member of Sen. John L. McClellan's investigations subcommittee, said Freeman in effect retracted the statement during a 90-minute visit to Mundt's office.

"He indicated that the first statement he made to the press—when he said it was being blown out of all proportion—was one of those statements all of us sometimes make but wish we could retract, because the thing is a lot more serious than he thought it was at the time," Mundt said in a radio-television interview.

Freeman indirectly rebuked Mundt for the statement. Through an aide, the secretary said he "does not feel he should comment on private conversations with a senator in the senator's office."

Freeman Threatens Suit Against Paper

AMARILLO (UPI)—The Amarillo Globe-News said Sunday it may be sued by Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman in connection with a story it printed on the Billie Sol Estes scandal.

The Globe-News, a Pulitzer prize winning newspaper, said the threat came last week in a letter written by Thomas R. Hughes, Freeman's executive assistant. The newspaper said Hughes said attorneys for Freeman had advised him they believe he has grounds for suit.

Opinions Mixed About Palmer

OAKMONT, PA. (UPI)—The golfers who have been losing to him in the tournament trail weren't going as strongly for Arnold Palmer today as the fans who have made him a 5-1 favorite to win the U.S. Open championship starting Thursday.

They think "the monster" which is what the pros call the rugged Oakmont Country Club course, may be too much for the Pennsylvania strong boy, playing in his own back yard on a course he has known well since he was a boy.

"This is a course you can't charge, and that is the only kind of golf Palmer knows how to play," pointed out Cary Middlecoff, the only two-time Open champion in the field.

"I'm not counting him out—one never does—but this course may be too much for him."

Palmer, who said he never is "too optimistic," was flashing his old grin Monday when he played Oakmont despite a gashed finger on his right hand.

"My finger didn't bother me as much as I expected it would. I feel fine and I was hitting my irons better," he said after a round in which he matched par 35-36-71 for the 6,894-yard course.

"My finger feels fine. If it continues the way it's going I'll have no trouble at all."

In addition to his iron play, Palmer was pleased with his putting—and putting is going to be one of the big payoffs in the open.

The greens at Oakmont are lightning fast—and probably will be faster starting Thursday because they will be rolled each night—but also sloping ones with peculiar breaks.

"One thing sure" said Palmer, "you don't charge your putts here so I felt good about the way I putted."

Palmer cut his finger when he returned to his home at nearby Latrobe Monday after playing in the Thunderbird Open at Clifton, N.J. As he was putting his luggage in a car, his hand slipped and he cut the third finger on his right hand, requiring three stitches.

"I never really was too much worried about it," Palmer said, "but with the way I've been playing I can't afford any handicaps, so I'm glad it stood the test yesterday."

Middlecoff, who won his first Open title in 1949 and repeated in 1956, believes that defending champion Gene Littler should do well here.

"He keeps the ball in play, has the patience which this course takes, and can putt well," Middlecoff added.

He said that distance on tee shots was not too vital.

"The spot where you put your ball is tough," he pointed out. "If you stray into the rough, you don't have much chance of hitting the green on your second shot. And when you miss a green here you are going to be extremely lucky, if you wind up with a par.

"I wouldn't be surprised to see a lot of the golfers use irons off the tee for greater accuracy," he added.

Middlecoff said patience was necessary "because this course takes a lot of fighting and is real tough on the nerves. He thinks Littler has the necessary patience to win."

As for the greens, Middlecoff went over to the 18th.

"The other day," he said, "I was playing with Lew Worsham and the pin was on the lower left of the green. By playing the roll to the left of the pin, I had a putt of about 15 feet. To play the sloping roll to the right, the putt was about 40 feet. Lew advised me to test it first. The short way home wasn't the best. My putt slid 10 feet beyond the cup. By going the long way, I laid it up for an easy second putt. And a lot of the greens here are like the 18th."

Worsham is home pro at Oakmont and like Middlecoff predicted "we'll see a lot of three put greens in this one."

Worsham failed to qualify for the Open so he will be on the sidelines looking on. Until two years ago, the host pro was an automatic qualifier for the big one.

As for his own game, Middlecoff isn't too happy.

"No one wants to win it more, and no one is playing so badly," he said, "but I'll be in there trying."

The Pittsburgh line which had Palmer the 5-1 favorite, listed Littler and Billy Casper, the 1959 Open champion, at 6-1 second choice.

"If Billy wins here he'll have to play a lot differently when he won at Winged Foot," Middlecoff said. "I played two rounds with him and he was missing a lot of greens. But he recovered remarkably. Here you just don't recover when you miss a green."

Gary Player, the little South African and the leading foreign threat in the field, and Doug Sanders were listed at 7-1 with Doug Ford and the 50-year-old Sammy Snead at 8-1. Mike Souchak and Jack Nicklaus, runner-up to Littler in the Thunderbird Sunday, were quoted at 9-1 with former U.S. Open champion Tommy Bolt and former PGA champ Jay Hebert listed at 10-1.

The 12-1 group included Phil Rodgers, Don January, Bob Rosburg, Jerry Barber, Art Wall and Johnny Pott.

Middlecoff was in the 15-1 class along with Dow Finsterwald, Jackie Burke, Lionel Hebert, George Bayer, Dave Ragan, Wes Ellis, Bruce Crampton, Stan Leonard and Mason Rudolph.

Ed Furgol, the 1954 Open champion, was a 20-1 shot.

Twins Take Over Sole Possession Of First Place

By United Press International
 It took the Philadelphia Phillies a long time to do it, but they finally caught up to lefty Curt Simmons.

Simmons, released by the Phils on May 12, 1960 and subsequently picked up by the St. Louis Cardinals, had beaten his old teammates eight straight times until they turned the tables on him Monday night in an 8-5 victory over the Cardinals.

Simmons, a member of the old Philadelphia Whiz Kids, had made nine starts against his old buddies and only once was he not involved in the decision—and that was more than a year ago. Included in his eight wins over the Phils were four shutouts.

Monday night, however, the Phils raked Simmons for nine hits and tagged him with four runs to knock the Cardinals out of fourth place in the National League race. Don Demeter and pinch hitter Johnny Callison caused the most trouble, each hitting his eighth homer and batting in three runs.

The Pittsburgh Pirates moved a half-game past the Cards into fourth place on the strength of two home runs by Dick Stuart which helped beat the Chicago Cubs, 6-1, and the New York Mets whipped the Houston Colts, 3-1, behind the seven-hit pitching of lefty Al Jackson in other N. L. games. San Francisco at Cincinnati was postponed because of rain. The other clubs were idle.

In the American League, the Baltimore Orioles beat the New York Yankees, 5-3, enabling the Minnesota twins to take over first place by one percentage point, and the Cleveland Indians beat the Boston Red Sox, 10-0, in the only scheduled games.

Stuart hit one of his homers completely out of Wrigley Field in Chicago and his second rolled under a tarpaulin in the Pittsburgh bullpen to give Joe Gibbon his first victory of the season. It was the Pirates' third straight win.

Jackson's pitching enabled the Mets, who now have won four of their last six games following a 17-game losing streak, to gain their first win over the Colts, who had beaten them three times. Two singles wrapped around a triple in the fifth inning accounted for all the runs Jackson needed.

Jim Gentile's 16th home run and Hobe Landrith's first accounted for three Baltimore runs and proved the margin of difference in a game which saw rival managers Billy Hitchcock and Ralph Houk ejected following a near riot. The trouble was touched off when Yankee starter Bud Daley hit Baltimore's John (Boog) Powell in the head with a pitch in the fourth inning and sent him to the hospital.

The Orioles retaliated when pitcher Robin Roberts threw at Roger Maris in the New York fourth and both teams raced onto the field to stop Maris when he advanced on Roberts. Houk, Hitchcock, Maris and Baltimore coach George Stallor squared off and it took three city policemen to break them up.

Jim Perry's seven-hit shutout pitching and the clutch hitting of Willie Kirkland featured Cleveland's victory, which moved the Indians into a second-place tie with the Yankees, each a half-game behind Minnesota.

Championship Sports Probably Will Promote Big Title Fight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite three record bids from outsiders, there's more than a 50-50 chance that Championship Sports, Inc., will promote the closed-circuit television as well as the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston fight itself at Chicago, Sept. 25.

That's what attorney Thomas A. Bolan, president of CSI, said today after studying the three bids for television and other ancillary rights to the fight.

The ancillaries have no connection with the live gate at Chicago's Comiskey Park.

Largest of the bids was the Teleprompter Corporation's guarantee that the combined promoters' and fighters' 77 1/2 per cent of the ancillary package — television, radio, movies, etc.—would equal or exceed $1,700,000.

That bid more than doubled the previous record ancillary bid of $800,000, made successfully by Teleprompter for the Patterson-Ingemar Johansson third title fight at Miami Beach on March 13, 1961. Teleprompter has had the ancillaries for most of Patterson's title bouts.

The other two bids opened Monday night by Bolan at the CSI executive, offices also bettered last year's record.

Martin W. Smith, representing the Graff, Reiner and Smith firm of Hollywood, Calif., guaranteed $1,200,000 against 85 per cent for the promotion.

Similarly, Oliver A. Unger, an independent operator of New York and Hollywood, guaranteed $1 million against the promotion's 82 1/2 per cent of the closed-circuit television, alone. The promotion could have the other ancillaries—radio, movies, etc.

New Interest Stirring In Things Here At Home

According to recent surveys, a general change is occurring in the American mind. Instead of being predominantly concerned with Khrushchev or with Castro, Americans are becoming much more concerned with matters closer to home.

The rise of big government in Washington and at state level is getting far more attention of the man on the street. What is happening in our schools is more important to many.

This is one of the healthiest signs we have seen in a long time and we hope the report is valid. For if Americans are going to begin concentrating on affairs in their own back yards, it is just possible that some pretty far-reaching problems can be lining up for solution.

Foreign Communists, looking at us from afar, have predicted again and again that they could conquer us by the expedient process of letting us do ourselves in.

When you get right down to it, foreign affairs from an American view, are little more than the domestic affairs of foreigners. And it would follow that foreign affairs from the standpoint of many foreigners, would simply be American domestic affairs.

For the past decade or more, Americans have tried to mind everyone's business but their own. Housewives have been speaking knowingly of affairs in Cambodia, Laos and Iran.

A few have traveled beyond the continental limits of the U.S. But what? A week in London or a month in Paris scarcely qualifies us as political or economic experts in respect to the facts concerning British or French subjects every hour of the day.

We have read quite a bit of material written by foreign commentators about our business problems, our racial problems, our tax problems and so on. We dare say these aliens have not missed fire any more than we have when we set ourselves up as experts on foreign affairs. But apparently this preoccupation with foreign things is losing ground. And we are beginning to realize that the problems we can and must deal with are much closer to home.

If Americans really begin taking an interest in affairs here at home, they are going to begin worrying about taxes and about the enormous inroads government has made into their lives. Freedom is rapidly disappearing in this country under governmental pressure.

The report sees it, there are various economic systems—capitalist, communist, or any other—and the task of economics is to describe and to compare the good and the bad aspects of each of them. In drafting a scheme for this pursuit, the authors are in some respects anxious to belittle the differences between capitalism and communism and other respects to find some reason to praise the communist treatment of various problems as against that effected in the market economy.

Thus the report correctly contends that American production is "guided by the demands of millions of individual consumers," although it tries to qualify this statement by adding to the verb "guided" the adverb "largely." It would have been accurate to continue that in Russia "the decisions on what shall be produced are made by the communist leaders."

It would have been logical to go on pointing out—in full agreement with the fact—that a Russian can get for the money he has earned only what the communist leaders deem to give him. But such a plain declaration, too, located, for the state, and for the federal government. As an incidental bonus, it will add substantially to the recreational facilities the country offers.

We need government in the electric power business to precisely the same extent that we need government in the newspaper business, the grocery business, the insurance business, or any other business. That is, we don't need it at all.

Whatsoever one may think of the wisdom or folly of steel's unsuccessful effort to raise prices, one thing is sure. The method chosen by Mr. Kennedy in dealing with this matter has aroused fear in the minds of great numbers of thoughtful people of all political views that a precedent may have been established under which the enormous powers of the presidency, tangible and intangible, will be used to fix wages and prices.

Action Or Words

It has been argued that only the federal government has the capability to advance the production and distribution of electricity on a grand scale, whether the source of energy be coal, oil, falling water, or the atom.

This is a favorite gambit of the public (or socialized) power forces. There is just one thing wrong with it. It isn't true.

The business-managed, investor-owned, taxpaying utility industry is now engaged in the greatest expansion and improvement program in history—and coal, oil, falling water, and the atom are all involved.

The list of huge projects that are being financed by private savings, not tax money, would fill pages. Take, for instance, a project that is planned by a California utility company, and for which it has applied to the state utilities commission for a certificate of public convenience and necessity.

It is a hydroelectric project, and will cost a neat $91,874,000. Its production will be an estimated 58 billion kilowatt hours per year—which adds up to enough power to serve a sizeable city.

Mr. Heller's generalized statements are encouraging. But actions, not words, will show which way the Washington winds are to blow.

A DANGEROUS RECOMMENDATION FOR HIGH SCHOOL ECONOMICS (Christian Economics) DR. LUDWIG VON MISES, Visiting Professor of Economics, New York University

The understanding of the American economy developed in most high schools today is not adequate for effective citizenship as admitted by everybody. In cognizance of this fact, the Committee for Economic Development, and the American Economic Association, a body that includes in its ranks almost all American teachers of economics, cooperated in entrusting a task force of professors and educational administrators with the study of the problems involved.

The report of this task force, published in September 1961, is one of the most interesting and characteristic documents of our age. It shows what is taught under the label of economics at most of the American colleges and universities and, as the distinguished authors of the report believe, ought to be handed down also to the high school students. It provides virtually a resume of the ideas held by the "progressives," men who have been most influential in this country's movement away from the free market economy.

As the report sees it, there are various economic systems—capitalist, communist, or any other—and the task of economics is to describe and to compare the good and the bad aspects of each of them. In drafting a scheme for this pursuit, the authors are in some respects anxious to belittle the differences between capitalism and communism and other respects to find some reason to praise the communist treatment of various problems as against that effected in the market economy.

Thus the report correctly contends that American production is "guided by the demands of millions of individual consumers," although it tries to qualify this statement by adding to the verb "guided" the adverb "largely." It would have been accurate to continue that in Russia "the decisions on what shall be produced are made by the communist leaders."

It would have been logical to go on pointing out—in full agreement with the fact—that a Russian can get for the money he has earned only what the communist leaders deem to give him. But such a plain declaration, too, located, for the state, and for the federal government. As an incidental bonus, it will add substantially to the recreational facilities the country offers.

We need government in the electric power business to precisely the same extent that we need government in the newspaper business, the grocery business, the insurance business, or any other business. That is, we don't need it at all.

was repugnant to the authors of the report. Instead they chose to say that the Russians "are generally free to buy what they wish," modifying this manifestly false statement only by the stilted proviso "subject to the overall availability of goods set by the central planners."

While in this matter of the direction of production activities and in many other regards the report sees but little difference between the market economy and the communist method of central planning, in other respects it lays stress on the divergence of the two and finds that the communist methods work better than the capitalist. This it proclaims in italics. "Communist societies have not suffered from economic instability (booms and depressions) to the same extent that private enterprise economies have," and it goes on in Roman type: "This is partly because of the extent to which all communist activities are controlled by central planning, but especially because decisions on capital investment are made directly by the state, thus avoiding the instability of profit motivated investment which characterizes private enterprise economies." We may pass over the fact that the return of periods of economic depression is not a phenomenon originating from the operation of a free market economy, not sabotaged by the interference of the state, but precisely the effect of the reiterated attempts of governments to create artificial booms by a "cheap money" policy, that is, by lowering the market rate of interest through an increase in the quantity of money and fiduciary media.

But let us ask the authors of the report: How do you learn whether business in a country is good or bad? In the free countries people publicly complain as soon as they think that they do not earn as much as they would like. You cannot open an American newspaper without getting information about the state of business. But in Russia a man who would dare to say that something is unsatisfactory with the course of Russian economic affairs would pronounce his own death sentence. Years ago many millions died from starvation in the Ukraine and no Russian newspaper or book ever mentioned this "minor" incident. It is well known that agricultural output has dropped considerably wherever socialist management has replaced private farming.

If the report had not been biased in favor of communism, it would have had to say this about the controversy of capitalism and communism: The communist doctrine as expounded by Marx and endorsed by Lenin emphatically declared that capitalism must and will inevitably result in progressing impoverishment and enslavement of all workmen, while communism will bring to all people unprecedented affluence and perfect freedom. Events have entirely belied this prognosis. In the capitalist countries of Western Europe and Northern America, the standard of living of the average common man is continually improving and is much more satisfactory today than in any previous epoch of history, while in the communist countries the masses are extremely poor and utterly deprived of any civil liberties. In order to demonstrate the inferiority of the market economy as against government action, the report takes pleasure in affirming repeatedly that there are things that private enterprise cannot achieve, e.g., police protection and provision of national defense. This observation is entirely irrelevant.

In defending the report against criticism leveled in the Wall Street Journal, the Chairman of the task force, Dean G. L. Bach, asserted that "careful definition of terms is essential to economic understanding." Everybody will agree. But did the report comply with this rule?

Without attempting any definition it ascribes to big business "extensive power" over its customers. What in this instance it calls power is the fact that an enterprise has succeeded in serving its customers better or cheaper or better and cheaper than its competitors do. Then again it speaks of the power of labor unions and mentions "strikes supported by union picketing" as "the most powerful union weapon" modifying this statement by appending the rather questionable proposition "but strikes occur infrequently." Nothing is said about what Dean Roscoe Pound called "the substantially general privileges and immunities of labor unions and their members and officials to commit wrongs to person and property" and to commit many other acts which are considered and punished as criminal offenses when committed by other people. The authors did not find it worthwhile to react to these words of the nation's most eminent legal expert or to the books of Professor Sylvester Petro. All they did was to declare that such issues as the "closed shop" and "right-to-work laws" are worth "brief" (!) student attention.

One thing must be acknowledged concerning this report: It unblushingly provides a faithful exposition of the ambivalent economic philosophy of the present day system of American government. All the evils that are plaguing the people of this country are the inevitable effect of policies that, under the misleading name of a "middle-of-the-road" program, are step by step, substituting government compulsion and coercion for the initiative of the individual citizens. These ideologies and policies make within the nation the "public sector" of the economy grow more and more at the expense of "the private sector" and make, within the sphere of world politics, the totalitarian "communist sector" expand and the free "capitalist sector" shrink. Hitherto in this country the propagation of these policies and ideas was the concern of the leftist parties and their press. Now it is suggested to indoctrinate the high school students. This will certainly provide jobs for thousands and thousands of staunch supporters of the allegedly "progressive" doctrines that in present-day America are expounded under the misleading labels "liberal" and "democratic." However, the ambitious expectations entertained by the

The Bureau of Public Roads tested in 30 states to find how fast the average motorist drives on a straight, level highway when traffic is light enough for him to set his own pace. The average was a speed of 53.7 miles per hour for passenger cars, with 21 per cent going faster than 60. On new freeways of the interstate system, the average was 57.2 m.p.h.

Today's favorite gag: The class had been told of the amazing speed at which light travels. "Just think of light coming from the sun all those thousands of miles a second! Isn't it wonderful!" exclaimed the teacher. "Not so very," said little Bobby. "It's downhill all the way." . . . A panel of architects reports this as one common error made by home buyers: A floor plan, that circulates traffic, youngsters especially, through the living room, soiling carpets and rugs, and turning this more formal room into a bin for toys.

Thoughts while shaving: 1. When British troops started burning Washington's public buildings during the War of 1812, the last one they turned to was the patent office. It was then the Patent Commissioner, Dr. William Thornton, pleaded with them to put down their torches unless the British, in burning hundreds of priceless patent models, wished to go down in history as barbarians. That argument stopped them. . . 2. There's the educated woman in the neighborhood who rankly confessed that until very recently she had thought "dipsomaniac" meant a pickpocket. . . 3. The sponsor who spends millions telecasting the world's series baseball games and All-Star games, bowl football games, Friday night fights, the Kentucky Derby and the Preankness (Gillette) finds there is no sport that can attract a big proportion of teenagers to TV. The only item on the air waves that really reaches them, it has found, is a disc jockey. . . 4. Speaking of disc jockeys, in the midst of a heat wave has any of them ever thought of playing such records as "Baby, It's Cold Outside" and "Let It Snow, Let It Snow, Let It Snow"? It might help.

sponsors and the authors of the report and by their political friends will hardly be realized. The greater part of the pupils, preoccupied with other things, will not take any interest in the subject. But the judicious students will not meekly acquiesce in the official dogmas of the textbooks and will be shrewd enough to ask questions that will embarrass their teachers. They may, e.g., ask: Why does the government spend billions of the taxpayers' money in order to make the most important foodstuffs more expensive for the consumer? Or: Did any government ever improve the methods of production or embark upon supplying the consumers with new articles never produced before? Or: Why do the communist governments prohibit their citizens from visiting foreign countries and from reading books and newspapers published abroad?

A sensible boy or girl will certainly not put up with the confused and contradictory observations that a teacher, imbued with the philosophy of the report, may bring forward.

The modern American high school, reformed according to the principles of John Dewey, lamentably failed, as all competent experts agree, in the teaching of mathematics, physics, languages and history. If the plans of the authors of this report materialize, it will add to its other failings, also, indoctrination with very bad economics.

Red China Now Purchasing Large Amounts of Grain for '63-'64; In Many Instances Peiping Acts as Agent for Red Bloc

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Food-desperate Red China is buying more huge quantities of grain. Three unannounced new purchases have been negotiated as follows:

— Canada —2 million tons of wheat and barley to be delivered in 1963 and 1964. This grain is in addition to the 4 million tons Canada is now delivering under an agreement reached last year.

— France —1 million tons of wheat, barley and flour for delivery in 1963 and 1964. France is now in the process of shipping 400,000 tons previously bought by Peiping.

— Burma —400,000 tons of rice to be delivered in 1963 and 1964. Last year, Red China bought about the same amount of rice from Burma.

Approximate cost of the new Canadian and French grain purchases is $125 million. Payment in both instances is 25 per cent cash, the remainder in two 90-day installments.

In addition to these still-secret purchases, Peiping is negotiating with Australia and Argentina for large quantities of grain and wheat to be delivered in the next two years. These transactions are still in the discussion stage, and their outcome is uncertain.

France's sale of another 1 million tons of grain and flour to Red China is highly suspect to U. S. authorities.

This quantity is far in excess of France's normal exportable surplus. There are strong reasons to believe the French may be contemplating making up the difference by obtaining it abroad—possibly covertly and indirectly from the U. S., which has the greatest grain reserve in the world.

This country has a grain surplus of 1.13 billion bushels.

U. S. IS FEEDING THE REDS —A joint U. S. and British Intelligence report throws a sensational light on Red China's immense grain purchases.

This study now being carefully scanned by White House, State Department and congressional leaders, reveals the startling fact that large amounts of this grain are being diverted to Cuba, East Germany, Albania, North Korea and North Vietnam.

In other words, Red China is acting as the agent for these Communist satellites. Despite the widespread hunger in Red China, causing tens of thousands to attempt to flee, the Peiping rulers are shipping hundreds of thousands of tons of grain to far less needy countries.

According to this Intelligence report, 30,000 tons of Canadian grain have been diverted to Cuba; more than 1 million tons to East Germany and Albania; and around 700,000 tons to North Korea and North Vietnam. Smaller amounts have gone to Poland, Rumania and Hungary.

Meanwhile, Secretary Rusk is letting it be known the Kennedy Administration is taking a tougher view on the issue of making grain available to Red China.

Previously, the President and Rusk had indicated willingness to consider an official Peiping request for U. S. surplus food. Now, Rusk is saying this would be done only on assurances of the halting of Communist aggressions in Southeast Asia.

This significant hardening of attitude is spelled out in a letter to the Foreign Relations Committee, headed by Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., as follows:

"Should the Chinese Communists in fact indicate an interest in grain purchases from the U. S., the matter would have to be considered carefully. With Communist pressures in Southeast Asia on the rise, the U. S. would have to take into consideration the effects that the availability of its grain would produce on Communist China's capabilities for political and military aggression."

"Our controls on trade to Communist China have been one means whereby we have attempted to limit the growth of the military potential of a regime which has declared many times its intent to destroy our political system. Under present circumstances, we must maintain our overall framework of controls on trade with Communist China and can make exceptions only when it is clearly in the national interest to do so."

In this communication, the State Department chief also states no plans are underway for a cultural exchange with Red China.

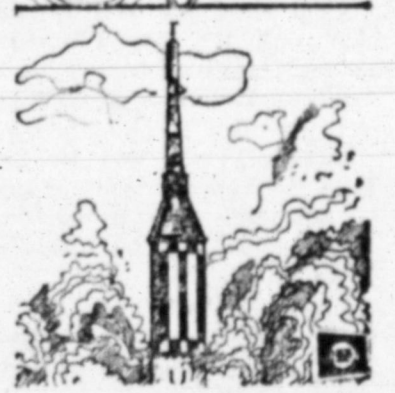

Some groups have proposed this, and Rusk was asked the Administration's position on the matter. He makes it clear that no cultural exchanges are contemplated, as follows:

"It is evident that Peiping has consistently used cultural exchanges as a means of advancing its political ends, of winning support and sympathy abroad, and of covering up the dismal picture of life in mainland China. No Chinese Communist individual or group has, up to the present, applied to enter the U. S. for cultural purposes."

"Any such application, would require careful consideration in view of the above mentioned record of political purposes in such activities."

RED SPARKS — Bulgaria is sending a group of professors to Havana University. The institution's Communist stooge President Marinello is beamingly proclaiming that, but carefully not saying who these Bulgarian educators are and what they are going to teach—if anything other than Red ideology. According to Rumania, its trade with Cuba has increased to $15 million this year—due chiefly to a credit of approximately the same amount. With these funds, Cuba is buying heavy machinery and two cement plants.

Truth of Fact

One of the hundred of facts which has to be kept in mind by scientists calculating space shots is the change in temperature at different altitudes. As one ascends to high altitudes the temperature of the air drops approximately two degrees centigrade for each 1,000 feet until at 35,000 feet and above the temperature remains constant at -55 degrees centigrade.

Walter Rogers Reports

Our Country

In recent months there has been a noticeable increase in bitter and caustic criticism directed against the government of the United States of America. This is not a new and unprecedented happening. It has occurred many times during our history and will, no doubt occur many more times. It proves the basic strength of our type of government. It proves that if constructive criticism is offered and properly utilized, great benefits can be the result.

It proves that a full and complete expression within the confines of the freedoms guaranteed under the Constitution can be enjoyed by the people without the danger of internal revolution. It proves that freedom of expression by all is one of the best safeguards against totalitarianism or dictatorship.

It proves that those who were the authors of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, and the Bill of Rights had Divine Guidance in creating the greatest government ever conceived in the mind of man. History records no similar example in the field of political science.

The Constitution of this Nation has been amended 23 times. Actually, only 13 times, because the first 10 amendments to the Constitution are what we commonly know as the Bill of Rights. This great document has been attacked almost daily since its inception. It has successfully weathered all the storms and will weather many more.

It has been stretched and strained by every conceivable argument, but stands today as the bedrock of the government of free men. It is the perfect answer to Communism or any other ideology of those who would subject mankind to slavery.

There are, no doubt, many imperfections in our form of government, as well as in other segments in the life of man. Constructive criticism should always be directed at the correction of those imperfections, and especially should this be done with regard to the governmental processes by which man must live. However, it must be appreciated that man is not perfect, and probably will never be perfect. In weighing our way of life, what it is, what it does, and what we would like it to be, we must not lose sight of our blessings. The United States of America stands today as the foremost Nation in the history of the world in providing the many freedoms which man enjoys, as well as the material things that contribute so measurably to provide a pleasant life span. Those who would condemn our free enterprise economic system, and our government need only look to the obvious to see a full, complete, and clear picture of the blessings that we in this country enjoy. The comparison with other countries in what we know as the free world reflects benefits which we accept in every day life, that are not even remotely hoped for in other nations. When compared with the Communist or Communist Satellite Nations, the picture is like night and day. All of the automobiles in the 16 Soviet Republics wouldn't make a good-sized traffic jam in New York City. All of the television sets wouldn't provide the needs of one good apartment complex in Chicago. All of the automatic washing machines wouldn't meet the needs of one of our medium-sized cities. (This would be interpreted in Russia as meaning that American cities and our people are dirty.) In that regard, it might be said that this country has the cleanest people in the world because we have the means by which to stay clean and healthy. Where else in the world do you have the fine food, the fine automobiles, the fine houses, the fine labor saving appliances and devices, the beautiful parks, the fine clothes, and the right and power to move about at will without being required to answer to anyone? These are only a few of the blessings with which God has seen fit to endow us. This has not come about without toil and sacrifices of those who have lived before us. It is our responsibility to see that this great country with all of its bounties be fully preserved and made better during our generation. We must also keep in mind that those who follow us must be armed with the knowledge, the understanding, the initiative, and the love of freedom to carry on.

THE SPELLER
We have just had a most enjoyable visit with the Spelling Bee Champion from Amarillo, Miss Vivian Salazar, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Antonio Salazar, and the very able Randy Rutherford who handles the entire operation. Although Vivian did not win the contest here in Washington, it was not because she did not know how to spell the word that stumped her. Under the rules, you can't take back any letter that you pronounce. If you get one letter out of place, even though you haven't finished spelling the word, they ring the bell on you. The Panhandle should be very proud of this fine young lady and the impression that she made on Washington.

The Almanac

Today is Tuesday, June 12, the 163rd day of the year with 202 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter, Mars and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1630, John Winthrop, first governor of the Massachusetts Bay Company, entered Salem Harbor.

In 1912, musical comedy queen Lillian Russell married her fourth husband, Alexander Moore.

In 1934, President Franklin Roosevelt signed the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

A thought for the day: The Greek philosopher, Aristotle, said: "To entrust to chance what is the greatest and most noble would be a very defective arrangement."
