Court Rules Against Non-Compulsory Official State Prayer In Public Schools

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court ruled today that daily recital of an official state prayer in public schools, even though non-compulsory, offends the religious freedom guarantees in the Constitution.

The 6-1 decision came in a New York case but will affect many thousands of schools throughout the country.

Justice Hugo L. Black wrote the court's decision. The dissenter was Justice Potter Stewart.

Black said "it has been argued that to apply the Constitution in such a way as to prohibit state laws respecting an establishment of religious services in public schools is to indicate a hostility toward religion or toward prayer."

"Nothing, of course, could be more wrong," he said.

But he added: "It is neither sacrilegious nor anti-religious, to say that each separate government in this country should stay out of the business of writing or sanctioning official prayers and leave that purely religious function to the people themselves and to those the people choose to look to for religious guidance."

The decision came as the court cleared out a backlog of cases on the final day of its 1961-62 term.

In other major decisions handed down today, the court:

Struck down that part of California's health and safety code which punishes addition to narcotics except when administered by a licensed person. Writing the majority opinion, Justice Stewart said it was unlikely that any state "in this moment in history would make it a criminal offense to be mentally ill, or a leper, or to be afflicted with a venereal disease."

This applied to the drug statute, he said.

Clarified its obscenity test and at the same time set aside an order barring from the mails copies of three magazines said to appeal to homosexuals. Justice John M. Harlan wrote that although the magazines can be described as "unpleasant, uncouth and tawdry," this is not enough to make them obscene.

There is also a possibility that the administration's controversial medicare proposal might show up as an amendment to a welfare bill.

In addition to those measures, both the Senate and House must resolve a stalemate over appropriations bills that are supposed to finance government agencies after the new fiscal year starts July 1.

Other congressional news:

Entertainers — The Senate rackets subcommittee planned to ask top officials of the American Guild of Variety Artists (AGVA) to answer charges that they did not protect female members of the entertainers union. The subcommittee has heard testimony that union officials collaborated with some night club owners in forcing AGVA members to double as B-girls and prostitutes.

Pensions — A veterans group reported that it was virtually certain now that a discharge petition that would force an $11 billion pension bill to a House vote would receive the required number of signatures.

James Mason To Divorce His Wife

MIDDLESBROUGH, England (UPI)—Movie star James Mason is planning to leave for the United States soon to "put the wheels in motion" for a divorce from his author-actress wife, Pamela Kelino. The couple have been married 22 years.

Mason, visiting his parents' home here, said "the trouble is that my wife and I have a completely different aspect on life. She has become American—I am still English."

Goldberg Pondering Legislative Blow Against Airline-Type Strikes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Striking flight engineers failed to send representatives to scheduled New York negotiations with Eastern Air Lines today as Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg weighed a proposed legislative crackdown against such walkouts.

Jack Robinson of Miami, president of the Flight Engineers International Association Eastern chapter, wired the National Mediation Board here that he had not been notified of the scheduled New York meeting.

He said he would fly to Washington, however, to be "available for any such meetings" later.

The development apparently had no effect on other negotiations here between the FEIA and Pan American Airways in an effort to prevent resumption of a brief walkout against that airline.

The Pan Am talks were delayed an hour while Goldberg met with Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., chairman of the Senate aviation subcommittee. Monroney is considering legislation to avoid future jurisdictional strikes against the nation's airlines.

The senator said Goldberg wanted to study the matter and made no commitment after their conference.

The Mediation Board insisted that Robertson and the union's were sent telegrams Saturday advising that the meeting would be held in New York. The union denied receiving any such advisory.

Engineers for both Pan Am and Eastern walked off Saturday. Pan Am strikers returned to work within a few hours after the airline obtained a temporary injunction to halt the strike. Eastern did not join in the injunctive procedure.

Eastern completely closed down operations and furloughed 17,500 of its 17,906 employees after the FEIA went on strike Saturday afternoon to enforce its demands for a new contract guaranteeing that engineers on jet aircraft be licensed mechanics.

Eastern has 575 flight engineers, all of whom hold a mechanic's license. The engineers fear that with the license requirement removed, the way would be opened for pilots to take over the engineer's seat in jet cockpits when planned reduction from four crewmen to three is carried out. Crews now consist of three pilots, members of the Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA), and an engineer.

Pan American's nearly 500 engineers also went on strike Saturday afternoon, but were ordered back to work a few hours later when Brooklyn Federal Judge George Rosling issued a temporary restraining order.

The order extends until 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday. Rosling has set a hearing for 2 p.m. on whether a permanent injunction should be issued against the engineers union.

All Pan American flights were reported operating normally today.

Eastern said it did not follow Pan Am to court in seeking an injunction because its position was "somewhat different."

President Kennedy labeled the walkout "unnecessary." The strike came as summer vacation travel was climbing toward its peak — a time when airlines hope to fatten revenues after the lean winter season.

Kilday started his crackdown. Henry Gomez, 18, was shot to death while swimming in a creek Saturday.

Witnesses told investigators Gomez was swimming with several companions when eight to 10 Latin American youths stopped and demanded to know to which "gang" they belonged.

"Well, we don't like you," one of the Latin Americans was quoted as saying. He shot Gomez as he stood in the water. When Gomez's companions pulled him from the water, the youth shot him again.

A police department spokesman said today special patrols had been added and that police would join Kilday in stopping and searching cars driven by juveniles. They would look for weapons of all kinds.

The spokesman, Capt. L. G. Dupway, said police had started adding extra patrols several weeks ago.

Kilday telegraphed Atty. Gen.

Robert Kennedy Sunday for help in controlling the wave of killings which he said had claimed about 100 lives during the past two years.

"We urgently need your assistance," Kilday told Kennedy. Friday, Kilday ordered deputies to stop cars driven by juveniles and search them for weapons.

Since that time, 35 youths have been arrested and a variety of weapons ranging from pistols to ice picks have been seized. Many of those arrested were minors who were charged with illegal possession of alcoholic beverages. The latest killing came after

Senators Study Laws Slated To Die This Week

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate today considered the first of three important laws that will expire at the end of this week unless Congress takes action before then.

The week shaped up to be one of the busiest of the session for the Senate.

Today it called up a House-approved bill that would extend for one year corporate and excise tax rates that have been in effect since the Korean War.

Before June 30 it must also vote on whether to increase the federal debt limit and extend the Sugar Act.

There is also a possibility that the administration's controversial medicare proposal might show up as an amendment to a welfare bill.

In addition to those measures, both the Senate and House must resolve a stalemate over appropriations bills that are supposed to finance government agencies after the new fiscal year starts July 1.

Severe winds in the Conway area damaged the chimney of the Otis Weatherly farm home, two miles northeast of Conway.

The Groom area reported hail and rain Sunday night.

Republicans Set Panel Tuesday On Medical Aid

The Gray County Chapter of the Young Republican Club will sponsor a panel discussion of "Medicare," the health program under Social Security, Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Pampa Youth and Community Center.

All Senior Citizens of the area are especially invited but all persons are invited who will be interested in details of this program.

The panel will be made up of Dr. Joe Donaldson, Joe Cree, and Bill Dixon. Griswold Rogers will act as moderator.

"This program will be most informative. If you have questions in your mind that need answering about this program, this will be the time and place to have them answered. Time permitting, there will be a short business session of the club immediately following the panel discussion," a club representative said.

Loan Testimony

Previous testimony by company witnesses showed the firm lent Estes $900,000 late in 1958. Estes used $225,000 of the loan to go into the grain storage business. He used the remainder in connection with his fertilizer operations.

Commercial Solvents supplied fertilizer to Estes and in return received all of Estes' grain storage revenues from the government. The state of Texas has called this a violation of state antitrust laws.

McConnell was a director of the company at the same time he served the Agriculture Department as a consultant, according to government records.

The subcommittee planned to question McConnell on his activities in behalf of Commercial Solvents during the time he was on the company's board while also serving as a consultant to Benson.

It was during that period—early in 1959 — that Estes got his first grain storage contracts from the Agriculture Department.

4 Die At Higgins; One Near Conway

Five persons were killed and at least four severely injured in two widely-separated Panhandle accidents Sunday.

A Santa Fe freight train slammed into a pickup truck at a crossing in Higgins late Sunday night, killing four Oklahomans, and a five-year-old child was killed in a car-truck collision a mile east of Conway early Sunday morning.

BULLETIN

Two-year-old Wendy Gale Beam, injured in a car-truck collision early Sunday near Conway, died of her injuries this morning.

A funeral home at Shattuck, Okla., just across the state line from Higgins, identified the dead in the pickup-train mishap as Jerry Fields, 21, of Gage, Okla.; Herbert S. Jenkins, 52, Kenneth Joe Ward, 25, and Willard P. Duggan, 26, all of Shattuck.

All were oil field workers returning home from their jobs. The truck was knocked into the Higgins train depot, and the station caught fire. The fire was quickly controlled.

The train engineer, Taylor Norman of Amarillo, said the freight was traveling at 60 miles an hour at the time of impact.

"It just wadded the pickup truck into a ball of iron," said Lipscomb County Deputy Sheriff Earl Meade. "The train wasn't damaged."

The accident occurred at a crossing on Farm Road 1423.

"The accident happened about 11 p.m. last night," Mead said. "The truck apparently just drove in front of the train."

Kenneth W. Harrison of the Department of Public Safety said all signals were working properly. In the Conway accident, one child died and four persons were critically injured at 4:30 a.m. Sunday in a collision a mile east of Conway at the junction of highways 66 and 15.

Donnie Morgan, 5, of Gainesville, was thrown clear and killed instantly. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Matthews; Arlene Morgan, 8, and Wendy Gale Beam, 2, a step-sister of the dead child, are in Groom Memorial Hospital with severe head injuries.

Dale Morgan, three-year-old brother of Donnie, is in good condition this morning.

Investigating officers said the Matthews car collided with a frozen food truck driven by George Cundiff Jr. Cundiff was not injured.

The grandparents and grandchildren were en route to Borger to visit relatives. The children's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Beam, drowned in Lake Texoma in April. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews are the children's guardians.

Market Has New Selling Spree Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market came under new selling pressure as the high speed ticker ran late in recording sales through most of the first hour today.

Some blue chips recovered part of the opening losses but Texaco, Union Carbide and Procter & Gamble showed losses running past a point in the industrials along with Norfolk & Western in the rails and Public Service Gas in the utility column.

Nearly all the leading steels and motors were off fractionally along with the chemicals and many of the oils. Beckman rose 1/2 while IBM dipped around 2 1/2 in a mixed list of glamor growth issues.

A number of drugs were down at least a point, among them Abbott Labs, Sterlin and Smith, Kline & French. In the related cosmetics, Revlon dipped 1/2 on news of a government price-fixing suit.

Ex-Marine Breaks Down, Admits Killing Two Young 'Cheerleaders'

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (UPI)—James Vance Jr., who broke down and admitted the brutal lovers' lane slayings of two pretty teen-age girls, told police he was driven into a homicidal fury when one of his victims called him a liar.

The 18-year-old ex-Marine who was honorably discharged from the service after receiving psychiatric treatment, Sunday confessed to murdering the two Morris Plains girls, Noreen Buckley, 17, and 15-year-old Margaret Ann Kennedy.

Police said it was Margaret Ann's charge that Vance, was a liar that sent the slender crew-cut youth into a rage and triggered the crimes.

In his confession, Vance insisted the girls had asked him to drive them home from the Colonial Luncheonette in Morrilton last Wednesday, the night of the slaying.

Vance said he agreed. Then the girls asked him to take them to the lovers' lane where he had wrecked a car in a recent accident. The girls said they wanted to see the car.

But the car was not there because police had removed it earlier.

Vance, who had a reputation among his schoolmates for telling wild stories, said Margaret Ann called him a liar when she didn't see the car. He then picked up the tire iron and hit her. Vance said Noreen tried to flee, but he caught up with her and beat her to death.

He was arraigned Saturday afternoon in Morris Township Municipal Court. Although he had been nervous at a Saturday morning questioning session, he appeared composed as he was charged with bludgeoning the girls to death "willfully and with malice aforethought."

Frank C. Scerbo, Morris County prosecutor, said Vance called out from his jail cell and confessed the murders because "he wanted to get the matter off his chest."

Sheriff Asks For Federal Help In San Antonio Juvenile Slayings

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—Sheriff Owen Kilday Sunday appealed to the federal government to help stop a wave of teen-aged gang killings in San Antonio and Bexar County.

A police department spokesman said today special patrols had been added and that police would join Kilday in stopping and searching cars driven by juveniles. They would look for weapons of all kinds.

Dear Abby... Preserve "Shock" Until Son's Home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter-in-law is living with us while our son is overseas. She has been running around with every Tom, Dick and Harry. We have tried everything to get her to act like a respectable married woman, but we can't reach her. Her own parents live in another state and know nothing of this. Our son will be home in three months. Do you think we ought to write and tell him she has been running around? He'll find out when he gets home and we might as well prepare him for the shock.

BROKENHEARTED PARENTS: DEAR ABBY: Don't write your son news of this kind when he is thousands of miles away and he can do nothing about it but worry. There is no "preparation" possible for a shock like this. It will keep.

DEAR ABBY: My wife has all day to read the paper, but she waits until I get in bed before doing it. The light bothers me, and the rustling of the paper drives me out of my mind. We've been married for almost 20 years and I think that's long enough to be a good sport. Any advice?

HAROLD: DEAR HAROLD: Have you ever told HER? Give her a little heat and perhaps you'll get less light.

DEAR ABBY: I have a skin ailment. Unfortunately it is on my face and neck where everyone can see it. Sometimes it is very conspicuous and other times it is not. My problem is that every time I run into friends they say, "You MUST try my doctor!" I am satisfied with my own doctor and don't want to try anyone else's. I take the names of their doctors just to be polite, but have no intentions of seeing them. Many of my friends have phoned to ask me if I've gone to their doctors yet. Some have had the nerve to make an appointment for me! How can I shut them up?

CONFUSED: DEAR CONFUSED: Why appear interested in "trying" another doctor when you are satisfied with your own? If you feel that progress is being made in curing or controlling your rash, say so. Otherwise, perhaps it is time for a change.

DEAR ABBY: Tell the woman who complained because her husband snored not to gripe. At least she knows where he is at night.

NOT SO LUCKY: How's the world treating you? For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Tap Other Lands For Home Fun And Games

By KAY SHERWOOD

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. Ideas for children's parties and games we can borrow from other countries are foreign aid of a practical nature for the home-maker who is fresh out of home-grown inspiration.

After a batch of birthday parties this spring I thought I was finished entertaining shrill and lively little ones.

I was too hasty. Our house has been selected as the site for a family hoodown this summer, and for another large neighborhood bring-the-kids affair, I don't feel it necessary to plan elaborate entertainment, but it's nice to spring a surprise or have suggestions for games should tempers grow edgy.

Happily suited to almost any type of children's party is the Mexican pinata. Because some of our family will be here from Latin America, this strikes me as a perfect time to try my hand at the pinata.

A true pinata is a clay pot covered with colored paper and filled with candy, toys, small gifts or whatever one wishes.

The pinata is suspended by a rope or cord over a beam or tree limb and it is controlled by the pinata manager who, by pulling on the rope, swings it high and wide or low and shallow. The children gather around the pinata. Each is blindfolded in turn, handed a stick and allowed to try to break the pinata. When one succeeds, all the goodies fall to the ground and so do the youngsters in a mad scramble to grab the loot.

A clay pot pinata is not very practical for me, but many variations are possible. In some cities there are Mexican shops where pinatas are sold. I have directions for making them, too. Pinatas are made in fanciful animal shapes, balls or whatever you like. One set of directions calls for cutting newspapers into strips and soaking these in wallpaper paste to make a sappy papier mache. These wet strips are wrapped around a long or round balloon to form a basic shape. When the papier mache dries (about six hours), you deflate the balloon and remove it.

Hole, about three or four inches, is cut in the form for filling it later with candies. You build up this basic form into a definite shape by adding cardboard rolls, a styrofoam head and so on. Decorate with crepe paper ruffles, tissue paper curls, paint, metallic papers or plastic tapes. Punch holes in the sides for the cord. A simpler method is to use a stout paper bag as the base and decorate this. Paint a funny face, add crushed crepe paper beard and frizzled tissue paper hair. The open end of the bag is closed, after the sweets are pushed inside, with two or three sheets of paper taped or stapled into place. If the bag is large enough, you could gather the open end, tie it tightly and add a ruffled collar. Use lightweight cord or thin wire for suspending the bag.

In Mexico, I have read, the wise mother usually has a bag of goodies in reserve to fill the pockets of those who were crowded out in the scramble. This would seem to be a good idea to copy. When very little children want to play, a young mother told me she lets them swat the bag without the blindfold.

Other games played by children in foreign countries may be learned from books. I have an inexpensive paperback which gives the rules for several. Our children enjoy them, and many are variations of familiar ball games, hide-the-button and relay races.

Memo to June brides. A lot of you will return from your honeymoon to a full-time job in addition to the job of making a home for your husband.

The plan will probably be for you to work "a year or two." That's how most young couples plan when they marry on the strength of the wife's being able to add her pay check to her husband's.

But unless you avoid the mistakes so often made by young couples — that "year or two" may stretch on and on.

The first mistake to avoid is to base your standard of living on two pay checks, without anything left over for a savings account.

No matter how you have to scrimp or cut corners — put something aside each month for a nest egg. Without that cushion you will find it very difficult to ever stop working.

The second mistake is for you to start thinking of your husband's pay check as "our money" but your own as "my money." The wife who gets used to having her own money finds it mighty hard to give up her own pay check.

The third mistake is to let your husband get so used to the idea of two pay checks coming in regularly that he loses his drive and ambition to increase his own earnings. You can avoid this only by setting a date when you intend to quit working and mentioning it often enough so that he thinks of your job as only temporary.

There's nothing wrong with a young wife working for a "year or two" after marriage — just so long as she is aware that it is up to her to see that the year or two doesn't become "another year or two" and then another.

Remember that — you working brides — or 10 or 15 years from now you will still be working wives.

Sophia Loren To Be Tried For Bigamy

ROME (UPI) - Italian magistrates today ordered actress Sophia Loren and her husband Carlo Ponti to stand trial on charges of bigamy.

The investigating department of the Rome tribunal in a ruling filed with the court chancery ordered the trial.

The charges stem from the couple's Mexican proxy marriage of Sept. 2, 1957, which they have been trying to annul just to escape the bigamy action.

Under Italian law, Ponti still is married to his first wife, Guiliiana Fiandra, daughter of an Italian general.

If Ponti and Miss Loren could get their Mexican marriage annulled, this would mean they never were married and thus could not be prosecuted in Italy for bigamy.

Overnight low temperature ranged from 57 degrees at Daltart to 79 at Galveston early today. Hot readings are expected today.

Some light rain was reported in Northeast Texas, the eastern portions of the South Plains and along the lower coast this morning.

Violent thunderstorms Sunday and during the night touched off flash floods, killer lightning and tornado scares in areas from the Rockies to the Atlantic. A heat wave gripped the Northwest.

Yankees Win Marathon Contest In 22 Innings

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

Jack Reed for President!

That was the heartfelt cheer voiced by the nearly numb New York Yankees in the clubhouse after their utility outfielder finally sent everyone home with a two-run homer in the 22nd inning.

Reed's blow gave the Yankees a 9-7 victory over the Detroit Tigers Sunday in a game which took exactly seven hours to play.

Insofar as actual time was concerned, it was the longest game in major league history. The most time consuming game previously was a five-hour and 20-minute contest between the Braves and Dodgers on July 5, 1940. But that game went only 20 innings.

The longest game in matter of innings was that historic 26-inning 1-1 tie between the Braves and Dodgers on May 1, 1920.

Now, who's Jack Reed?

He's a quiet, easy-going 29-year-old outfielder from Silver City, Miss., whose only real previous claim to fame was that he served as "Mickey Mantle's legs."

Actually, Mantle started Sunday's game in right field and Reed finished up there.

His homer, off Phil Regan, was his first of the season and only his fourth hit.

A majority of the 35,638 fans in Detroit remained until the final out and saw along other things:

—Rocky Colavito collect seven hits in 10 trips.

—Yogi Berra catch the entire game.

—A total of 43 players used, only one short of the American League record.

—The Yankees held scoreless for 19 innings between the third and the 22nd.

Clute Boyer's three-run homer off Tiger starter Frank Lary highlighted a six-run first inning rally and after rookie Purnal Goldy hit a three-run homer off Bob Turley in the bottom of the first. The Yanks stretched their lead to 7-3 with another run in the second.

The Tigers came back with three runs in the third and another in the sixth. That was all the scoring until Reed unloaded on Regan, who came into the game in the 22nd. Jim Bouton.

last of seven Yankee pitchers, blanked Detroit on three hits from the 18th on, was the winner.

And if you think you're tired, just remember the Tigers and Yankees played a day-night doubleheader Saturday and are all set to meet in another single game today.

Elsewhere in the AL Sunday, Washington beat first-place Cleveland in the first of two, 3-1, but the Indians won the nightcap, 4-2, and moved 1½ games in front when the Los Angeles Angels swept a pair from the second-place Minnesota Twins, 3-2, in 10 innings and 7-8. Boston topped Baltimore twice, 3-2 and 8-5, and the Chicago White Sox split with the Kansas City A's, winning the opener, 6-1, but losing the second game, 5-2.

In the National League, Cincinnati outlasted the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers, 12-10, and the San Francisco Giants climbed to within 1½ games of first place with a 3-1 victory over the Milwaukee Braves. The Cubs clipped the Pirates twice, 4-3 and 8-4, and the Phillies beat the Cardinals, 3-1, then dropped the nightcap, 5-1. Rain washed out a doubleheader between the Colts and Mets.

Claude Osteen of the Senators limited the Indians to six hits in their opener. Frank Funk was credited with the second game victory when Bubba Phillips singled home what proved to be the winning run in the sixth. Harry Bright homered in the opener and Chuck Essegian in the nightcap.

The Angels rallied in the ninth to tie their opener with the Twins, then won it in the 10th on Leon Wagner's sacrifice fly. Homers by Joe Koppe and Billy Moran in the ninth inning of the second game gave the Angels a sweep. Dean Chance and Jack Spring were the winning pitchers.

Bob Tillman's ninth-inning homer and Bill Monbouquette's fourth-inning pitch led the Red Sox to victory in the opener against the Orioles and Gary Geiger drove in three runs with a pair of homers to help Gene Conley to his seventh triumph in the second game.

Kansas City broke a seven-game losing streak in the nightcap by routing Early Wynn during a three-run sixth inning rally after the White Sox had run their winning streak to five games in the opener on Ray Herbert's six-hit pitching. Manny Jimenez, the AL's leading hitter, had four of KC's 15 hits in the nightcap.

A grand-slam by Hank Foiles plus two more homers by Frank Robinson were the big blows in the Reds' victory over the Dodgers, although the league leaders rallied for four runs in the ninth. Norm Sherry hit a two-run homer during the uprising. Jim O'Toole was the winner and Stan Williams the loser.

Juan Marichal held the Braves to four hits in winning his 11th for the Giants. Willie Mays settled matters with a two-run double in the fifth off Warren Spahn, whose record now is 6-9.

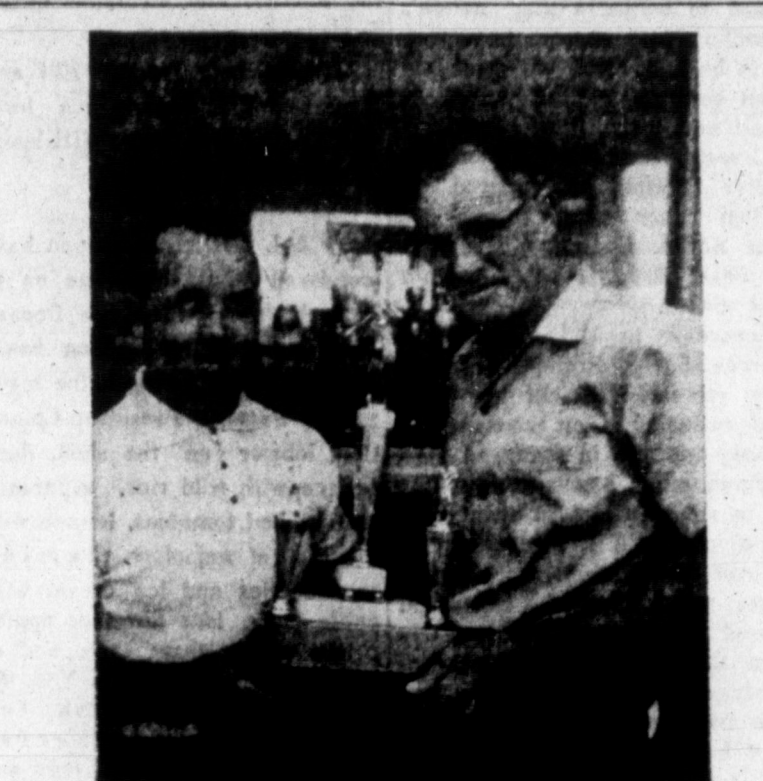

Beaten nine times in 10 previous games with the Pirates, the Cubs erupted for three runs in the first inning of the opener at the expense of Al McBean and never trailed thereafter. Ernie Banks belted his 20th homer in the nightcap to help Cal Koonce post his fifth victory. Lou Brock collected five hits during the twin-bill.

Don Demeter's two-run homer off Ray Sadecki featured a three-run rally in the first inning that wrapped up the Phillies' opening game win over the Cards. Chris Short allowed seven hits to even his record at 4-4.

Curt Simmons, making his sixth try, finally scored his seventh victory in the nightcap when St. Louis snapped a 1-1 tie with four runs in the seventh.

Top O' Texas Champion Winner With 207 Total

Les Howard fired a final round 66 Sunday afternoon to win the annual city golf tournament at the Pampa country club with a three-round total of 207.

Haskell Maguire and O. M. Prigmore battled to a tie with 228 each to share low honors in the first flight play.

Pete Blanda and Roy Webb also tied at the end of the third round of play in the second flight with 230 each. Dr. Frank Kelley and Jim Triplehorn each tied for second place in the tourney with 233.

Joe Davis fired a 227 total to take honors in the third flight with George Thompson carding a 237 to finish in second place. John Adams won the fourth flight with a 241 while Jim Nation snared second-place honors with a 243.

Stu Youngblood and Fred Tinsley tied for fifth flight honors with 258 each.

Wiley Reynolds emerged victorious in the sixth flight with a 259 while H. E. Joyce finished with a 267 to take second place.

Mack Choate won the seventh flight with a 261 total while Buddy Lankerson fired a 263 to take second place honors.

The tournament began June 17 with 18 holes and then wound up

Those tied for flight leads after Sunday's play will battle it out sometime this week to determine the individual flight winners.

Bramalea Snares Club Victory

By United Press International

Not that he needs the money, but Christopher T. Chenery probably cost Cicada had his brilliant filly, Cicada, moved out of the gate a little quicker Saturday.

That's the opinion of jockey Willie Shoemaker, who rode Cicada as she finished a half-length behind Bramalea, an 18-1 outsider, in the $120,125 Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park—third leg of the filly triple crown.

In second guessing himself, Shoemaker said the maneuver probably cost Cicada the victory which would have meant a clean sweep of the filly triple crown, having already scored in the Acorn and Mother Goose Stakes.

Instead, Bramalea, ridden by Bob Usserv, picked up the first prize of $78,081.25 for capturing the 1½ mile event. Had Cicada taken the race she would have earned an additional $25,000 for winning the three events. She already stands as the top money winner of her sex in history with earnings of $599,200.

At Delaware Park, Crimson Satan boosted her stock in the 3-year-old picture by winning the $47,500 Leonard Richards Stakes. Noble Jay finished second, 1½ lengths back.

Larry Gilligan rode Crimson Satan to a $3,800 payoff.

Black Sheep, with Johnny Longden up, won the $56,300 Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park and returned $29,400 in beating Indian Blood by a head.

At Arlington Park, Gushing Wind paid $5.40 in winning the $54,550 Warren Wright Memorial Handicap. Oak Knolls, the runner-up, trailed Gushing Wind by four lengths.

Ulm scored his fourth victory in as many starts this year in the Suffolk Downs Feature. Ulm paid $5.40 and was ridden by Larry Grubb.

Laver Gunning For Tennis Grand Slam

WIMBLEDON (UPI)—Rod (The Rocket) Laver of Rockhampton Queensland, today starts forging the third link in his grand slam bid for major lawn tennis titles when he opens the 1962 all-England championships here with a center court appearance against Indian's Naresh Kumar.

If the reigning southpaw Aussie title-holder pulls it off, only the American championship remains to be won as he attempts to join Don Budge in the winning of the Australian, French, Wimbledon and United States championships in one season.

When Budge pulled off that grand slam in 1938, the courts were bulging with personalities such as Gottfried Von Cramm, Fred Perry, John Bromwich, Jack Crawford and others.

Last week alone Laver hammered the 1961 runner-up, Chuck McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., and fellow Australian Roy Emerson in successive matches to win the London grass court championship. Emerson is seeded number two in the men's singles, while McKinley is rated number five behind Australia's Neale Fraser, and Indian Ramanathan Krishnan. McKinley meets Owen French of Australia today.

The bookies virtually have washed their hands of betting on the men's singles by tabbing Laver a 4-6 favorite. By the time he takes the court (9 a.m. EDT) to meet the 34-year-old Kumar, a tropical fish expert and amateur fortune teller the odds may have tightened even more.

Emerson is quoted as the second choice at 4-1 and McKinley the only U.S. player seeded, is fourth at 10-1.

Most likely obstacles between Laver and this year's title are Emerson, McKinley, Tony Pickard, Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., Iyo Pimental, of Venezuela, Manuel Santana of Spain, and Neale Fraser, the man who beat him in the 1960 finals. All are experienced campaigners but appear unlikely to halt his championship aspirations.

Although Margaret Smith of England is the overwhelming favorite for the women's title, the winner could easily come from the United States, Brazil, South Africa or host Britain.

Besides Miss Smith, other strong candidates include two-time champion and third seed Maria Bueno of Brazil, second-seeded Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., and eight-seeded Mrs. Karen Hantze Susman of Chula Vista, Calif., from the U.S., unseeded Sandra Reynolds Price and fourth seeded Renee Schuurman of South Africa; Aussies Lesley Turner, seeded seven, and Jan Lehane and the home contingent's sixth seeded defending champ Angela Mortimer, Ann Haydon, seeded fifth, and the unpredictable Christine Truman.

Omaha Splits Two To Stay In Close

By United Press International

The Omaha Dodgers, trailing the league-leading Indianapolis Indians by three games in the American Association, split a doubleheader with Dallas-Fort Worth Sunday, losing the first 2-1, and taking the second, 6-2.

Meanwhile, the Indians were losing to the Denver Bears 9-7. Oklahoma City moved into fourth place with a twin win over Louisville, 5-3 and 7-5.

Dallas-Fort Worth, behind the seven-hit pitching of Don Williams and two home runs by Ray Jablonski, took the opener from the Dodgers. Jablonski connected in the fourth and again in the fifth. Losing pitcher was Burbon Wheeler. In the second game Dodger hurler Nick Willite won his tenth game of the season, but gave up homers to Leo Burke and Micky Harrington. Bob Bullargeon took the loss for the Rangers.

Denver won the game in the eighth inning when they came from behind and scored five runs. Oklahoma City scored four times in the fourth inning of the first game to erase a 2-0 Louisville lead. They used three pitchers, George Witt, Tom Borland and Jim Umbrecht to turn back Louisville. Borland took the win and Phil Niekro the loss.

In the second contest, Oklahoma City scored four in the first and two in the second and coasted home to gain the fourth place spot.

In today's games, Louisville is at Oklahoma City; Indianapolis at Denver, and Dallas-Fort Worth at Omaha.

American Cinder Stars Are Ready

WALNUT, Calif. (UPI)—American track and field forces, confident in the wake of outstanding performances in the National AAU meet over the week-end, prepared today to take on the world.

A 40-man United States team was named to meet Poland in Chicago this week-end and approximately the same squad will tangle with Russia at Stanford Calif., July 21-22.

Another half dozen athletes were named to tour Europe July 4-14, with stops in Oslo, Helsinki, Zurich and London.

"We're in real good shape," said coach John Oelkers of Tulane, who will coach the United States team against Poland and Russia. "We've got just about every man we had hoped to have."

There were some surprises in the AAU meet, resulting in some of the top men failing to qualify for the teams set to meet Poland and Russia.

Among these, Frank Budd, recognize world record holder in the 100-yard dash, will be absent—sidelined by a leg injury. The top three javelin throwers in the country this year failed to make the grade; and John Uelses, the vaulting Marine who first cleared 16 feet, didn't come up to specifications.

But there were other saving graces.

Al Oerter of the New York Athletic Club tossed the discus past the 200-foot mark twice. His best shot was 202 feet, 2 inches—half inch off the pending record set by a Russian.

Possibly the outstanding race of the AAU meet was the mile, where little Jim Beatty had to survive a flock of pitfalls to win in 3:57.9. Three other men in the field, Jim Grelle, Cary Weisiger and Bill Dotson also bettered the four-minute standard.

Ron Morris, former USC athlete, became the fourth man in history to vault 6 feet when he topped that mark by a quarter-inch to win the event.

Johnny American

The trouble with Johnny American is that he is far too brilliant for his own good.

Johnny works for a firm of manufacturers and has the task of handling one part of the firm's giant warehouse. He has difficulty in storing the items turned over to his care because the management always seems to think it can put more in the space than Johnny knows how to put there.

Johnny has trouble with the paper work. He has trouble with warehousing generally, because of the way things are packaged. But Johnny knows that his trouble is passed on down to him. He is the "fall guy." He has to suffer for the bumbling incompetence of those favored guys who run the business.

Johnny knows that, really, he is very brilliant. Not only does he know that the problems he faces are caused by others, he also can tell you how the firm ought to be run if only he were running it.

But Johnny doesn't stop there. He can tell you why television does such poor programming.

If he were in television, he could straighten it out. He would have the government step in and regulate it right up to the hilt. We'd get better programs then, and not so much of this silly stuff.

Johnny knows about automobiles, too. He is certain that automobiles are manufactured by crooks, not to please the customers but to make fortunes for those "lucky stiff" who have nothing to do but clip coupons and count their profits. He is an expert on "planned obsolescence." If he had his way, he'd have the whole automobile industry investigated by a congressional committee.

He doesn't see why the government shouldn't take over the automotive business, make just one kind of car and make it cheap, and then furnish that car to every American. Certainly, everyone in this country ought to have a car.

And Johnny knows about those crooks who are in the advertising business. They are all wealthy and getting wealthier, while the poor people who are forced into buying the products promoted are helpless in the face of the welter of choices offered. It would be a lot better, Johnny opines, if the government would take over advertising. Then, only those things which were really worthwhile could be promoted. And there would be no ads on billboards or in newspapers or on radio and television. Or if you are going to permit a little bit of advertising, then size of ads should be controlled and a government bureau should run the whole thing.

Every manufacturer is a villain, Johnny knows. He knows this from experience, because one time he bought a toy for his young son and the boy broke it. It was obviously made of shoddy material and the man who produced it should have had a stretch in jail for that kind of performance. Johnny would have the government regulate all manufacturing.

And take milk deliveries. He knows how inefficient they are. One day, he counted three milk trucks from different firms in the same block. This was a duplication of effort. Now, if the milk business were to be taken over by the government, there would be only one milk truck in the block because the government would have all the customers. And that would eliminate waste.

Like the Post Office has done. You don't see competing mail trucks covering the same territory, do you? It's as simple as that.

Also, Johnny is very well informed on racial and religious issues. And on national and international issues. We ought to have just one church in the country, one that would cooperate with the government and not keep asking for money all the time. There ought to be a cabinet post for religious affairs because there are lots of racketeers operating churches and fleecing the public. Then, the government could license the decent churches and keep out the crackpots.

Yes, Johnny is very brilliant. Everything wrong in the world is caused by those profit-seeking persons who are nothing but crooks. And by the fact that some people are so stupid that they oppose things like the regulation of the market place and the control of business, like the President wants.

And to prove just how wrong the whole set-up is, look at the small wage that Johnny earns. Doesn't that prove something?

Yes, sir, Johnny American is the fall guy of the whole system. We wonder just how many Johnny Americans there are in your neighborhood.

Invest In America

A million new jobs a year call for at least $17,000 new capital investment per job — seventeen billion dollars per year. And at least another twenty billion dollars a year is needed to maintain the plants and machinery providing the 67 million jobs we now enjoy. Where is the money coming from?

The answer. From the same source of capital that has provided it in the past—savings in the form of retained earnings of business enterprises and the savings of the American people — your savings.

You don't have to own stock in a corporation to be a capitalist—an investor. That's only one way. If you put your savings in a bank or savings and loan institution, or take out life insurance or buy real estate, your money — your savings—is put to work by business and industry to develop jobs, production of goods and services. That's what investment means—putting money to work.

Let's voluntarily and wisely invest in America: our funds and our faith in our future. We are all capitalists — investors of our savings.

A DILETTANTE AT YALE

Of all the speeches that John F. Kennedy has delivered since he entered the White House, none is more revealing of the man and his political philosophy than the commencement address he gave at Yale University early in June. And no speech gives reasonable citizens more cause for concern than this address on a university campus.

In this major address, Mr. Kennedy made it plain that he has firmly rejected the idea of being a middle of the road President. Instead, he intends to steer the republic down the left lane. And if anyone gets in his way, that person can expect to receive some hard presidential blows.

The wealth of serious argument which conservatives have used against extremist policies of the New Frontier, all was dismissed by Mr. Kennedy as so many "myths." He declared that his critics sound "like old records, long playing, left over from the middle thirties."

In a display of pure dogmatism, Mr. Kennedy said: "The myth persists that federal deficits create inflation and budget surpluses prevent it. There are also, he said, 'myths about our public debt.' And he added that 'there is a mythology that measures all our soundness on the single simple basis of this same annual administrative budget.'"

In other words, keeping costs down, reducing the national debt, and avoiding deficit spending — this is myth-making — foolishness, in short.

Mr. Kennedy wants his critics to forget about these matters. "What we need," he insisted, "is not more labels, and more clichés, but more sophisticated and technical questions involved in keeping our mighty economic machine moving steadily ahead."

Well, Mr. Kennedy may be a very sophisticated man—so sophisticated that he doesn't want to talk about dull, dreary subjects such as debt and deficits. It may be that he has been so insulated by his own personal financial condition from the grim realities of economic life that he truly doesn't believe such realities exist.

But more responsible, less insulated, Americans can't avoid the realities — call them clinches, if you will. No matter what you call a debt, it is a hard fact that cannot be ignored. And if debt is a good thing, as Mr. Kennedy suggests it may be, why have generations of human beings in every country sought to stay out of debt?

Mr. Kennedy is a man who is surrounded by palace guardsmen who come from the universities, who are, as Americans say, "eggheads." They have the Ivory Tower approach to national issues. Unquestionably, they prefer the "sophisticated" talk that the President prefers. Undoubtedly, they would rather engage in a long, windy "dialogue" — that's JFK's word — to a rough political battle over the economic facts of life.

But the overwhelming majority of Americans don't live in Ivory Towers. If they make a mistake, it isn't like giving the wrong interpretation in a classroom lecture. Real life is a lot more rugged than the life of the college classroom.

Unfortunately, the Kennedy administration is led by a man who hears words when he should see facts, who listens to theorists when he should heed men of practical affairs. When John F. Kennedy took up the burdens of the presidency, he was in a position to seek sound advice on the national economy. He did not have to commit the country to any intellectual faction eager to prove a point — a socialist point, at that. But the mind of Mr. Kennedy has been captured by the Yale speech was a victory for the Arthur Schlesingers and the Walt Rostows — the professors who are grey eminences in the Kennedy administration. The Yale speech also was a crushing defeat for Americans who want the nation's economy to be guided by men who are well grounded in the principles and practices of the free enterprise system.

It is bad enough to have a dilettante in the White House, but a ruthless dilettante is even worse. And the leader of the New Frontier not only clearly intends to persist in his egghead economic theories but aims at silencing rational voices counseling more prudent policies for the ship of state.

Food Rationing Ordered for East Germany After Workers Quit Assembly Lines for Food Queues

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Communist East Germany is preparing to follow Red China and Cuba in rationing food.

This drastic economic move, designed to conserve that nation's dwindling food supply, is expected to be announced early in July when controls will be placed on bread and meat.

Already, East Germany's Boss Walter Ulbricht has ordered 16 million ration cards printed in East Berlin. General distribution of these cards is scheduled for next month.

According to U.S. Intelligence sources, Soviet Premier Khrushchev directed Ulbricht to begin food rationing after thousands of factory workers in scattered East German cities began taking time off to stand in line to await food shipments from the rural areas.

These unorganized work stoppages, which hit a peak last week, caused Ulbricht to depart early from the recent Soviet bloc economic conference in Moscow and rush back to East Berlin to prepare for possible food riots.

This situation was so explosive for a time last week that Ulbricht cabled Khrushchev for permission to use military force if necessary to put down any riots caused by food shortages. At one point, Soviet troops stationed in East Germany were actually alerted for action in seven cities, including East Berlin.

So far, there have been no major incidents of violence because of an unannounced decision by East German authorities not to try to force workers back to their jobs.

However, this uneasy situation could explode overnight. Once rationing is announced, Ulbricht is expected to issue a flat ban against workers leaving their factories to seek food during working hours.

WORST TO COME — U. S. Intelligence officials believe the tense situation in East Germany is going to get a lot worse before it improves. Growing food shortages are being forecast throughout the remainder of 1962 because of reports of poor crops from within East Germany. The potato crop is expected to be one of the poorest in recent years.

During 1961, the Sino - Soviet bloc imported more than 10 million tons of food from Canada, Australia, France, Argentina and the U.S. The Communist countries have contracted for another 7 million tons in 1962, and Communist China has even contracted for 1963-1964 crops from Canada and France.

Red China, which is acting as purchaser for Eastern European satellite nations, obtained more than a million tons of wheat, barley, maize and flour from Canada for East Germany during the past year.

East Germany is now seeking to repurchase surplus farm commodities that Poland and Yugoslavia recently obtained from the U.S. Already, the State Department has warned these governments against any trans - shipments.

There are other definite signs that the Communists are expecting additional trouble within East Germany this year. A new "Siegfried Line" of fortifications is being constructed along the entire line that divides East and West Germany.

This new Communist wall, according to the West Germans, is designed to block Western forces from going to the rescue of the East German people should they revolt against their Communist regime.

Note: Secretary of State Rusk cautioned West German officials against encouraging any East German uprising. He warned that a massive revolt inside East Germany could easily touch off a nuclear war.

GOING ALL THE WAY — The National Institutes of Health is assured of a record amount of money to spend on medical research during the coming year.

The Senate is expected next week to vote $900 million — or the full amount the Senate Appropriations Committee is recommending for the government's famed research center.

The Committee's recommendation is $60 million above the $840 million already approved by the House.

A final compromise budget of $870 million is expected when Senator Lister Hill, D-Ala., who handles the NIH budget in the Senate, and Representative John Fogarty, D-R.I., the agency's champion in the House, bring together House and Senate conferences to iron out differences.

That budget figure will represent an all-time high in funds for research in cancer, heart, arthritis, allergy, and all types of infectious diseases.

Already, both Senator Hill and Representative Fogarty are forecasting that next year's NIH budget will reach $1 billion.

SOCIAL WHIRL

If you have wondered what they dine on at those high - flower State Department banquets for visiting heads of state, the following is the menu served Panama President Chari: Cold lobster on the shell, duck orange with wild rice, asparagus and broiled tomatoes, lettuce with mousses of roquefort, flaming strawberries and ice cream with petits fours, four different appropriate wines, champagne, and of course cigars and coffee. Yes, the taxpayer picks up the tab for these lavish affairs. . . . Several others just as lush, but only one at U.S. expense, were a luncheon and banquet for Australia's Prime Minister Robert Menzies. The luncheon, a stag affair given by the President for 35 guests, started with melon wrapped, Italian style, in ham, followed by tourneys with pate de fois gras served with potatoes rissole, green beans and almonds, a green salad and strawberry tarts. How much work the diners accomplished in the afternoon after this gourmet feast, is not known. In the evening, Australian Ambassador and Lady Beale had a black-tie dinner for Menzies and the menu, tailored for a hot day, consisted of consommé Madrilene, filet of sole, roast stuffed pheasant with wild rice, green vegetables, and a dessert of parfait marron place plus appropriate wines, etc., etc. It sure is tough to be a VIP in the Capital. Hard on the digestive system, albeit not on his personal purse.

Former Senator and Mrs. H. Alexander Smith, R-N.J., celebrated an unusual event this week — their 60th wedding anniversary. The exceptional occasion was commemorated by a party by their three children and attended by numerous official friends. . . . What will they think up next! To celebrate the marriage of Mrs. Polly Guggenheim, wealthy widow of the Ambassador to Portugal, to Jack Logan, friends gave them a "champagne and bluebirds" luncheon. The ingenious affair was explained as follows: "The champagne is for gaiety, and the bluebirds for happiness." . . . Ghanaian Ambassador W.M.Q. Halm's big housewarming for his new Chancery featured a unique touch — a set of native drums and two beaters who hammered them exuberantly throughout the evening. The Chancery is a 30-room mansion that had fallen into disrepair and was completely restored to original magnificence. Several hundred high - ranking guests attended the lively party, at which champagne flowed freely and gaily singing accompanied the throbbing drums.

Pull Up A Chair

U. S. census takers posed this question to 26.2 million home owners in 1960: "How much do you think your home is worth in the market?" The median reply was $11,900, an increase of nearly 61 per cent over the same question asked in the 1950 census. Hawaii's median of $20,900 was highest in the 50 states, probably because of high land prices and costly shipping expenses of building materials. Connecticut homes were second, with a median value of $16,700.

Something New -- Footnotes To GOP Policy Statement

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Not given general release with the "Declaration of Republican Principle and Policy" recently issued by a joint committee of 12 GOP senators and representatives was a series of 30 confidential "annotations." It was the first time a political platform ever came out with footnotes, which are usually pretty dull stuff.

In this case, however, the GOP committee's staff under National Committee Research Director William B. Prendergast took the trouble to document their statement of general principles with specific examples of what they were talking about, and citing Democratic sources for their charges. Footnotes were thus more interesting than main text.

There isn't space for all 30 citations here. So what follows, "in quotation marks" are the main statements of broad, general GOP policy, after which (in parentheses) come the specific charges in the hitherto unpublished footnotes.

"They" — meaning the Democrats — "have argued that government must protect individuals from foolish spending by taking their money and spending it for them." (The writings of Economic Advisory Council Chairman Walter W. Heller, Ambassador Kenneth Galbraith, White House Aide Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and Harvard Economist Seymour Harris are cited as having advanced this argument.)

"Government should not compete, nor fix wages or prices, nor substitute its decision for free bargaining in the market place." (It is charged this was done by the Kennedy administration actions in the steel controversy.)

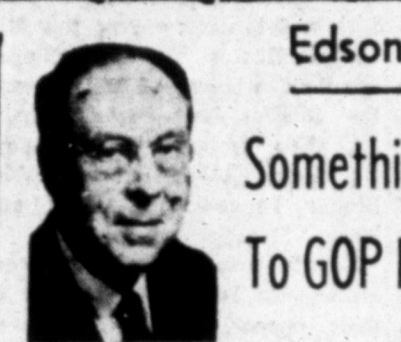

"We" — meaning the Republicans — "believe in meeting unemployment with real jobs from the released energy of private initiative." (The administration proposal for stand-by public works is said to violate this principle.)

"A thorough overhaul of the tax system . . . is overdue." (Administration tax proposals are said to have been partial and discriminatory.)

"Waste must be eliminated." (There has been 16 per cent increase in federal spending over the last Eisenhower budget.)

"Economic responsibility requires more than lip service to a balanced budget." ($8 billion federal debt increase last year, compared to $2.8 billion average annual debt increase under Eisenhower.)

"A stable dollar . . . is not likely to result if control of the Federal Reserve System is placed under the White House." (President's proposal to reorganize Federal Reserve Board, appointing chairman for four-year term.)

Thoughts while shaving: 1. Although obesity often shortens the life span, our 27th President, William Howard Taft, who once weighed 280 pounds, not only completed his four-year tenure in the White House, then served as Chief Justice of the United States, and lived to be 73. . . . 2. A top official in the government's wildlife division recently invited 20 sportsmen to a dinner at Washington, D. C., featuring a mysterious main course. Asked to guess what the meat was—after they'd devoured it—they ranged anywhere from veal to pork and to rabbit in their speculations. But roast mountain lamb had been the piece de resistance. . . . 3. Asked to define a "personal" in the newspaper sense, a journalism student at one midwestern university put it this way in his exam: "A 'Personal' is where someone visits someone else out of walking distance." (Well, that's close enough, so far as country journalism is concerned.) . . . 4. Wonder how many who employ the expression "Decorate the mahogany," meaning to put up cash, know it originated with bartenders many years ago? When a suspicious-looking bum ordered a drink, the bartender would tap on the mahogany bar and say, "Decorate the mahogany" before he'd serve the drink.

Child-Centered World Basis For Problem?

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—In summing up psychiatry's experiences with misbehaving children and distraught parents, a noted psychiatric scientist traced most of the trouble to children being given the upper hand by parents who have no confidence in themselves as parents.

Prof. Franklin G. Ebaugh of the University of Colorado, Denver, said our world has become "child-centered" rather than parent-centered and that is bad both for children and parents. Parents are confused and "children get jaded and tired instead of growing up."

But "the really disturbing fact is that the harder children seek cannot be 'cook-booked' for they represent a way of life."

Dr. Ebaugh then laid down these five rules:

"1. The parent must be a person himself with ideas, goals, moods, desires, and aversions all his own. He must live within the context of what he is, and consider this so important that he cannot live vicariously through his children.

"2. The parent establishes authority. There isn't room in this vale of tears for any more uncertainty than necessary. Children are not born knowing how to compromise with society's rules and to consider the welfare of other people. Social adjustment is taught and whether we wish to admit it or not it is taught almost exclusively by parents.

"3. According to age, children demand varying degrees of privacy in their inner lives and activities. If the limits of authority are firmly set, no parent should need to intrude unduly upon his child's privacy. The problems children solve within themselves build individuality.

"4. The parent should remember that seeing a child's point of view doesn't require agreeing with it, even if the child pillories him as a vile traitor. For his young child, the parent is the mentor of reality, and responsible for teaching him to live with things as they are.

"5. Within the limits of practicability and the requirements of education and home training, let the child develop his own interests and use his own time. A fabulous modern round of dancing lessons, sports lessons, camps, parties and other planned recreational activities leave most children limp with bewilderment and frustration."

Dr. Ebaugh set forth the psychiatric rules for child-rearing in the technical journal of the American Psychiatric Association of which he is one of the editors.

1 At the refinery, Skelly Gasolines are first purified by sedimentation, then pass through 2-stage coolers.

2 In the pipeline, Skelly Gasolines pass through 3 to 17 separate filters, depending on the distance traveled.

3 At our terminals, Skelly Gasolines are carefully filtered once more before they are loaded into our tank trucks.

4 Tank trucks filter Skelly Gasolines through screens as they pump them into service station tanks.

5 At Skelly service stations, special filters built into every Skelly pump filter the gasoline once more as it goes into your car.

Ladies Tired Of Being Studied

NEW YORK (UPI)—Are women tired of being constantly the subject of study by psychologists, sociologists, educators and others? Dr. Millicent McIntosh suggests they are.

At the farewell luncheon in her honor when she retired as president of Barnard College, she noted the often articulate but nevertheless staggering volume of material on "the woman question."

Said Mrs. McIntosh, "Many of us are desperately tired of the subject and would like to settle back and live our lives and do our work without self-consciousness and without constant discussion of our 'problems'."

Skelly Gasolines Are Filtered Not Once... Not Twice... But At Every Vital Stage From Refinery To You:

Years ago, in the early days of automobiles, it wasn't uncommon for a car to stall on the road due to a clogged filter screen in the fuel line.

Today, it almost never happens. The reason is the extreme care modern refiners take to keep gasoline free from impurities and contaminants—both during transportation and in dispensing fuel at service stations.

Skelly's 5-stage filtration process is typical of this care. It is your assurance that when you buy Skelly Gasolines, you know you are getting clean gasoline.

Your engine deserves the best. Keep it Skelly-Clean with Skelly Clean Gasolines.
