By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.
United Press International
CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Scott Carpenter rode three times in orbit around the earth today but overshot his planned Atlantic landing area and gave recovery forces an anxious 40 minutes before they found him.

Space officials lost radio contact with the 37-year-old astronaut shortly after 12:30 p.m. EST and said it appeared he had overshot by 200 miles the scheduled landing area 800 miles southeast of here.

But a Navy search aircraft subsequently picked up the spacecraft's radio landing beacon and followed it to find Carpenter perched in a life raft.

The plane's discovery was reported to reporters here at 1:22 p.m. The spacecraft, Aurora-7, was riding the waves near the raft.

At 1:32 p.m., the Navy plane reported after a close look that Carpenter was "apparently sitting comfortably in his raft."

Carpenter had embarked on his space fact-finding mission atop an Atlas rocket at 7:45 a.m. after the smoothest countdown in the history of the Mercury man-in-orbit program.

The overshoot brought his flight to a suspenseful conclusion which had officials and reporters biting their nails.

An Air Force search plane arrived over Carpenter's raft at 1:30 p.m., almost an hour after the capsule landed.

Two paramedics, men with parachutes, leaped into the sea to attach a large flotation bag to Aurora-7 to keep it afloat and to give Carpenter any help he needed while waiting for surface craft to recover him.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration estimated that Carpenter's spacecraft touched down about 12:41 p.m. about 1,000 miles southeast of here.

At about 12:18 p.m. EST, braking rockets to bring his craft down from orbit were fired as he approached the southwest coast of the United States.

He had reported everything aboard the craft in good condition for the fiery descent through the atmosphere to splashdown in the Atlantic.

As expected, radio contact was lost during the descent because of ionization of the atmosphere by the 3,000-degree heat generated by air friction.

Officials concluded when contact was not quickly regained that Carpenter's craft had come in an angle which meant he had overshot the mark.

They estimated the overshoot at about 200 miles.

Planes with para-medics aboard were dispatched to search (See CARPENTER, Page 4)

Life Imprisonment Sentence Given To Ex-Gen. Salan

PARIS (UPI) — A high military tribunal Wednesday night spared the life of Raoul Salan, leader of the terrorist Secret Army Organization (OAS) in Algeria. It sentenced him to life imprisonment on grounds of "extenuating circumstances" in his treason case.

The verdict was a surprise, because few observers here expected Salan to escape the death penalty which the same court last month gave his No. 2 man in the OAS, Edmond Jouhaud.

After the ruling was announced in a hushed courtroom, former General Salan, France's most decorated soldier, said quietly: "Thank you. Thank you for France."

The usual penalty for treason in France is death.

One of the first repercussions of the verdict was expected to be commutation of Jouhaud's sentence by President Charles de Gaulle. Jouhaud also is a former army general.

Kennedy On New Course Trying To Get Medical Aid Bill Passed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy is on a new course in an effort to push his medical care program through Congress. He is attempting to have the public equate opposition to medicare with a stand against the Social Security program, including old age pensions.

His discussion of medical care for the aged and attacks on the plan by the American Medical Association (AMA) dominated Kennedy's news conference Wednesday.

The President made it abundantly clear that he has no intention of accepting a compromise which would retreat from his plan to finance medical care through Social Security taxes.

"Social Security is the heart of the legislation," he said. "That would be just the giving up on the bill and we don't plan to do that."

Kennedy made two other points concerning the medicare battle. One was that the AMA is using almost the same language, including such phrases as "cruel hoax," to fight medicare that it employed against Social Security in the 1930s. The second point was that he has no intention of proposing extension of the pending program to include payments for doctor bills.

Other developments at the news conference, Kennedy's 32nd in Washington since taking office: — He believes the recently tumbling stock market will reverse itself over the "long haul" and follow the generally improving trend of the overall national economy.

— The government is trying to facilitate the entrance to this country of several thousand refugees from Communist China under emergency provisions of the McCarran-Walter Act used to admit Hungarian and Cuban refugees.

— He knocked down the idea that American soldiers in Thailand were without ammunition. He explained that because the U.S. forces were in a friendly country, they were not carrying loaded weapons, but that sufficient ammunition was available if needed in a hurry.

— He wants the recent White House conference on labor and management repeated in coming months to discuss basic national problems more than immediate labor-management issues.

— He would not be drawn into a discussion of the mysterious death of Henry H. Marshall, Agriculture Department official who died from gun wounds while studying the affairs of Texas financier Billie Sol Estes. The President said a public judgment of this particular aspect of the tangled case should await completion of an inquiry by the FBI.

Final Report Is Due From Pathologist

FRANKLIN, Tex. (UPI) — Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk, a Houston pathologist, planned to give his final report today of an autopsy he conducted on the body of an agriculture official he thinks was murdered while investigating the Billie Sol Estes business empire.

Jachimczyk said in a preliminary report to the grand jury on Tuesday he felt Henry H. Marshall, 52, was killed last year instead of committing suicide. He said he would make a final report today after completing studies of body tissue and other tests.

Efforts Continue In Fight Against Pollution By Salt

In their effort to fight salt water pollution, Red River pollution and health officers are in the Panhandle area checking oil leases for violations of required salt water disposal.

C. O. Glenn, chief enforcement officer of the Red River Authority of Texas, Pollution Division, Wichita Falls, said today he and O. W. Ross, deputy pollution officer, are making a detailed survey in Gray, Wheeler, Collingsworth, Carson and Hemphill Counties of the open oil pits and checking oil leases for violations of salt water disposal.

"Our purpose is to get all of the large and small oil companies to cooperate in our salt water disposal efforts on the oil field pollution, and we are finding it necessary to file injunctions or restraining orders on some of the operators to make them comply with our rules and regulations," Glenn said.

'The Dragon' To Be Given Here

Pampa will host the cast and crew of "The Dragon" Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 30, 31 and June 1, at 8 p.m. in the Junior High School auditorium. It was announced following a citizens committee meeting yesterday afternoon.

"The Dragon" is a play written by Nationalist Chinese students as part of the world-wide anti-Communist movement and carries a crew of 128 persons representing 51 persons from Nationalist China, now on the Island of Formosa, and representatives from 19 other nations.

The citizens meeting, held in the conference room of the Chamber of Commerce office, heard a brief background of the play and the necessary requirements for bringing the production to Pampa, from Allan Cook, of Canada, and Richard Wailes, Seattle, Wash., co-ordinators for the group which is now on a nation-wide tour.

Wailes explained to the citizens present that approximately 65 homes would be needed to house the cast and crew. He explained that the play was written, designed and acted in by the present members. Leading the production is Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, who is former prime minister of China and currently holds the post of chairman of the President's Military Strategy Board of the Republic of China.

Represented at yesterday's meeting were members of the Chamber of Commerce, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Jaycees, Eltes, Altrusa Club, and city officials.

Red Wedgworth, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who headed the committee meeting, asked for the vote on the issue of inviting the production to perform in Pampa and the vote was unanimously in favor.

General chairmen appointed for the production are Melvin Jayroe and A. J. Carubbi.

Carubbi announced the following committees to head up the various tasks of preparation to showtime.

Publicity: Bob Hale, Pampa Daily News; Coy Palmer, KBMF Radio; John Callarman, KPDN; and Hank Huntley, KHHH.

Ticket and financing chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hollar. The largest problem, Wedgworth said, is the housing. The following ladies were appointed to head this committee. Mrs. L. L. Harkins, Mrs. Bob Curry, Mrs. Vera Lard and Mrs. George Friauf.

Eddie Polnac, vice president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is in charge of the auditorium and facilities there.

The committee voted to set ticket prices at $1 for balcony and $1.50 for first floor seats. Curtain time for each performance will be at 8 p.m.

If any persons are interested in housing the cast or crew for three or four nights, they are asked to contact the Chamber of Commerce office in City Hall by telephoning MO 4-3241 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The group, in its tour of the world's nations, is presenting the drama built around recent events in China, to depict the fall of China's mainland to the communists, and the effect it currently is having on the Chinese people.

"The Ladder," a short allegory (See 'DRAGON', Page 4)

as Atty. Gen. Will Wilson announced today that Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman refused to provide a grand jury with a full report on an investigation of Billie Sol Estes that Henry A. Marshall made before he mysteriously died last June.

An unimpeachable source told United Press International Wednesday that investigators are now fully convinced that Marshall was murdered and that three suspects are being closely watched.

He said Marshall may have been shot for revenge or to prevent detection.

The grand jury has issued a subpoena for William Elliott, head of the investigative division of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service for this region, and ordered him to bring along his file concerning Estes' cotton acreage allotments.

The question a grand jury here is trying to decide is whether a man could commit suicide by shooting himself five times with a .22-caliber bolt-action rifle. Each shot would involve five separate hand motions. Or was Henry H. Marshall murdered? He was the head of the Production Adjustment Department of the U. S. Department of Agriculture office in Texas.

Ex-Pampan Is Seen Doing Capsule Work

A former Pampan was one of the key figures in the final check-up for Astronaut Scott Carpenter's orbital flight this morning at Cape Canaveral.

He was Billy Rogers Gantz, son of Shelby Gantz of Amarillo, who formerly managed the Friendly Men's Store in Pampa.

A number of Pampan reported seeing Gantz on television this morning. He was the man in the white coat who was the last to enter the capsule for a final check before the capsule hatch was sealed.

Americans Happy As Orbit Effort Succeeds

By United Press International
Mrs. Rene Carpenter watched from a Cape Canaveral beach, President Kennedy watched on television at the White House, and millions of other Americans followed astronaut Scott Carpenter's voyage into space by television and radio today.

All America rejoiced at the successful Cape Canaveral launching of the Aurora-7, but probably no one was happier than the astronaut's brave wife, first of the spacemen's wives to watch blast-off at close range.

Friends said Mrs. Carpenter was "in orbit herself—probably the happiest woman alive today."

Soviet academician Leonid Sedov, president of the International Astronautical Federation, said in Moscow that he found "great satisfaction" in the news that the "first phase" had gone successfully. He wished Carpenter a "safe return to earth."

Americans were well informed of the progress of Carpenter's three-orbit journey. Many newspapers rushed out first editions with large headlines. Subway riders deep beneath New York streets were posted with up-to-the-minute announcements on the public address system.

Americans were jubilant and many hailed the flight as another auspicious step in the space race with the Russians.

"It is something all people should be glad they can behold," said Mrs. Jerry Coan, a Cleveland housewife.

Carpenter's mother and three friends watched television coverage of the historic event on a set in her compact trailer in a Boulder, Colo., trailer camp. She was described as "elated—you bet!"

Carpenter's chemist father, Dr. Marion Scott Carpenter, stuck close to his television set at his rustic home in Palmer Lake, Colo. He admitted he was nervous but said he tried not to show it.

McClellan Creek Watershed Hearing Is Scheduled For McLean On Saturday

The McClellan Creek Watershed hearing is set for 2 p.m. Saturday in the McLean High School Auditorium. The general public is invited to attend this hearing where testimonies will be heard as to the need of this project.

In 1959, landowners and operators in the McClellan Creek Watershed, which is located in south Gray and Carson Counties, conducted two or three meetings to become informed on how the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Program could assist them in meeting their problems of flooding and erosion in the watershed.

The Gray County Soil Conservation District, McClellan Soil Conservation District and Commissioner's Courts of Gray and Carson Counties were requested to sponsor a Watershed Application for Assistance.

These groups agreed to cooperate with the local people in the watershed and signed an application to the State Soil Conservation Board for assistance. They appointed Billy B. Davis as chairman of the Steering Committee for watershed operations. Davis and some other members of the committee, Leslie Darsey, Milton Carpenter, Felton Webb and Curtis Schaffer, collected information on damages being experienced.

If it comes from a hardware store we have it, Lewis Hdws. Adv.

An application for assistance was submitted in May, 1960.

A field examination was held in November, 1960, to determine the economic feasibility of the project.

The state of Texas has at present 59 active applications for engineering planning assistance on this type project. There are planning parties to plan about 5 or 6 of these projects each year. For this reason, the State Soil Conservation Board has established certain criteria for watersheds to meet before planning activities are set. During April and May the Board has scheduled six Public Hearings to help them in setting planning priorities. One of these being considered is the McClellan Creek Watershed.

Airport Manager Is Sought Here

The Gray County Airport Board is looking for a manager for Perry Lefors Airport, according to an announcement today by Bob Price, board president.

Price said anyone interested in the post of airport manager should file application by letter to the Gray County Airport Board, care of R. E. Batson Jr., Secretary, P.O. Box 1101, Pampa.

Applications, he said, will be taken until June 3. After that date applicants will be given appointments for interviews by members of the board.

COULD THIS BE PREVENTED? — Shown here is the result of a flash flood on June 4, 1961, when this bridge was washed out on Highway 291 between Lefors and Alanreed on the McClellan Creek. A McClellan Creek watershed hearing is set for 2 p.m. Saturday in McLean to determine if the correct watershed structures could prevent such wash-outs as this. (Daily News Photo)

Former Pampan Awarded Year Of Graduate Study

Bryan T. Clemens, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Clemens, Skellytown, a 1952 graduate of Pampan High School, has been awarded an academic year for graduate study in the field of counseling and guidance at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

The grant was given under a provision of the National Defense Education Act and provides funds for the year of study beginning September 10, 1962.

Clemens has taught in the Stinnett School System for the past two years. He was a social studies teacher at Sam Houston Junior High School in Borger before moving to Stinnett.

While attending Pampan High School, Bryan participated in athletics and was a member of a number of organizations. He was Student Body President his senior year.

While at Purdue University, Clemens will attend the Basic Institute in Counseling and Guidance which will offer 30 hours of graduate credit toward the Master's Degree in Education. Upon completion of the course of study, he will be a qualified public school counselor.

The Board of Education of the Stinnett schools has granted Clemens a one-year leave of absence to enable him to accept the study grant. Mrs. Clemens and their four children will accompany him during the year of study in Indiana.

Foreign Commentary

In Johannesburg, South Africa, this week, a group of women stood in quiet defiance, holding

Others receiving diplomas were Eugene Barnes, Daniel Bednorz, Carolyn Bell, Eta Ray Blalock, Val Gene Boothe, Kerrie Boyd, Patsy Branum, Stanley Chado, Judy Cheek, Emma Jo Crocker, Jim Elder, Nancy Ensey, Jenny Harper, Mike James, Frances Jones, Norman Marler, Frances Metcalf, Judy Orr, Sondra Price, Douglas Roach, Wayne Schickel, Linda May Sharp, Glenda Smith and Harold P. aloft their "flame of freedom."

Through successive nights they had withstood a mob of jeering youths in bright sweaters and leather jackets who pelted them with eggs, tomatoes and water-filled bags and kicked over a placard which read:

"Reject the sabotage-bill to end all liberty."

The women and the jacketed youths are symbolic of an ever-widening division of public opinion in the Union of South Africa over Prime Minister Hendrick Verwoerd's determined efforts to maintain white supremacy (apartheid), increasingly oppressive to white opposition and black alike. A new bill now on its way through parliament would give Verwoerd's Nationalist government the strongest police powers ever held in South Africa in peacetime.

The women, with their "flame of freedom," were members of the Black Sash Organization, so-called for the marks of mourning for the South Africa's loss of freedoms.

They, and many another South African, believed the police powers bill endangered freedom of the press, academic freedom and freedom of religion.

The bill, which includes the death penalty, covers a wide field, and, its critics say, places upon the defendant the responsibility for proving his innocence rather than the state proving his guilt.

Specifically, it defines sabotage as any act endangering law and order, safety or public health, or interfering with the free movement of traffic. It also covers acts interfering with public services, such as water and electric supplies and health services, or trespass on lands or buildings.

It does away with pre-trial examination or trial by jury. Apartheid in South Africa had its real beginnings in 1948 under Premier Daniel F. Malan who was elected by a Nationalist-Afrikaner bloc primarily representing descendants of early Dutch settlers.

It instituted acts prohibiting mixed marriages and requiring the South African population to carry identity cards according to color.

It also set up segregated areas specifying where members of each group, white, black, or mixed, might live.

THE PANHANDLE DAILY NEWS
THURSDAY, MAY 24, 1962

Even more stringent segregation acts were carried out by Malan's successor, Johannes Strijdom, and have been pushed still further by Verwoerd. His police have mowed down native demonstrators and he himself nearly was killed by a shot fired by a dissident farmer of English descent in 1960.

Demonstrations by women of the Black Sash are unlikely to change either Verwoerd's mind or policies but they are manifestations of a growingly impossible position.

for the craft, presumably bobbing in the Atlantic.

Officials said it would take them about an hour to reach the calculated landing spot.

After firing of the braking rockets, radioed information from the craft showed this sequence:

12:24 p.m. EST, control system still working.

12:26 p.m., spacecraft soaring over the Gulf of Mexico and in contact with Cape Canaveral.

About 12:30 p.m., Carpenter told as he sped over Florida that sea landing conditions were ideal.

By this time the spacecraft was plunging into dense layers of the atmosphere and braking sharply. Pre-estimates were that deceleration forces would multiply Carpenter's 155 pounds by about 7 1/2 times as the craft slowed from more than 17,500 miles an hour to about 270 miles an hour in five minutes.

At the same time, the temperature built up in the air around the craft's blunt nose, blacking out radio.

Carpenter fired three reverse rockets at about 12:18 p.m. to slow the capsule below orbital speed.

Aurora-7 began dipping deeper into the earth's atmosphere, meeting increasing pressure as it did.

Just as re-entry began, the astronaut said he was experiencing continued trouble with his altitude control system.

Carpenter angled the capsule so that its blunt front end shield would absorb the heat of atmospheric friction — protecting him from temperatures reaching up to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

It dipped into the atmosphere at a speed of a little less than 17,000 miles per hour. The rapid deceleration crushed Carpenter against his form-fitting couch and sent his apparent weight to several times what it actually was.

Carpenter rose into the sky at 7:45 a.m. E.S.T. after the smoothest countdown in the history of the Mercury man-in-space program.

There was a moment during his second orbit when ground monitors feared it might be necessary to limit his flight to two orbits.

This fear was caused by indications that the jet supply for the spacecraft's fuel controls was being used up too rapidly. Officials ordered Carpenter by radio to switch to hand control of the jets to conserve the supply.

They decided after looking at the information transmitted from spacecraft instruments that enough fuel was left to keep the cabin pointed right for another and final orbit.

Carpenter, flying at 17,532 miles an hour, completed his first orbit at about 9:19 a.m. E.S.T. and his second at about 11:47 a.m. E.S.T.

Throughout both orbits, Carpenter performed experiments designed to pile up information of use to astronauts in lunar and planetary missions of the future.

For the first time in the history of manned space flight, he ate solid food—bite-sized snacks which he said, went down all right despite the space condition of weightlessness which tends to make objects float. He said they were a little crumbly.

are given 10 days following the injunction order to cover open pits at producing oil wells. If there is no response, they are subject to fine of no more than $1,000 or confinement in the county jail for not more than 30 days.

The wells which are causing the damage are those which have fallen off on production and are producing more salt water than oil.

Ross pointed out that the Red River, which empties into Lake Texoma on the Oklahoma-Texas border, carries 11.5 million pounds of salt into the lake every 24 hours. These figures are released by the United States Department of Health, he said.

Ross said that about 50 per cent of the salt is natural and 41 per cent of the pollution is salt water prime from oil fields. For every one barrel of oil produced, there are nine barrels of salt water which is pumped from the ground.

Open pits which are located near the wells are left open and the salt water is forced down into the ground where it contaminates the fresh water supply. Glenn said. Many residents in the counties under study at this time are forced to haul water from other sources since this water is unsafe for drinking because of the high salt content.

"If this salt water problem is not corrected within the next 10 years, Pampa and surrounding areas may have to pump drinking water from other water wells many miles away," Glenn con-

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It is a simple fact that the reason for the cancellation of Bob Newhart's Wednesday night NBC-TV show was his inability to convince viewers to drink more of his sponsor's milk.

This defect heavily outweighs such comparative trivialities as his Emmy and Peabody awards for mere talent. And it should be remembered — as a reminder of where the real power rests — as television makes its annual spring promises to improve entertainment quality, and has visions of lollipops, sugar plum fairies and other assorted fantasies.

Watching Newhart Wednesday night, a sketch made it all too obvious again that he was predestined to commercial failure without the aid and comfort of an unusually sympathetic sponsor. The reason: He is the heart and soul of the anti-salesman.

The sketch concerned a sales meeting of a chariot company in ancient Rome, and beneath the hilarity was Newhart's continuing deadly indictment of the organization man and "the pitch."

The name of the ancient firm was "General Chariot." And Newhart read a testimonial that said: "Give me a General Chariot every time." It was signed "Ben-Hur."

As the meeting continued, Newhart, wearing a Roman headpiece, mentioned that in the future it might be a good idea to have chariots with fins or three holes in the side. An aide asked him if there was any purpose in the three holes.

"Yes," said Newhart. "They're going to keep us in business."

Newhart's basic attitude as a performer — and perhaps as a person — will, to his credit, prevent him from selling an ordinary product in an ordinary way. It is almost certainly necessary for him to be associated with a special kind of sponsor.

It is also understandable that Newhart's sponsor is more interested in selling milk than in outfitting a trophy room for him. Yet, by the nature of the television business, it is only when a sponsor is willing to rise above principle, as a fellow once said, that exciting achievements can be accomplished.

Two years ago, Groucho Marx said: "there's no new comedy because the networks won't allow comedians any freedom of speech. You can't do jokes about anyone. It's impossible to be funny unless you satirize and kid somebody. And there's no room for that on TV. Except Bob Hope, and he's a war hero. . . Television gets exactly what it and its audience deserve."

Concerning Newhart, one point must be admitted. He is a cerebral-comedian, not a warm one. He does not have the touch of humanity that a Jackie Gleason exhibited, probably because of his choice of subject. But it is a finely chiseled approach, delicate and incisive — and it courageously refuses to desert the minority audience.

As of now, Newhart is off NBC's fall schedule. Only a relative miracle could bring him back. But they do happen. After all, Sherwood Anderson once wrote advertising copy.

The Channel Swim: Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas guests on CS-TV's "Calendar" Friday. . . ABC-TV's "Close-up!" offers a show about political satire June 12, featuring Mort Sahl, Dick Gregory, Mike Nichols and Elaine May, Bob and Ray, Al Capp and Jules Feiffer.

CBS-TV repeats its Judy Garland special Sept. 19. . . The network says it is negotiating with Miss Garland for another special next spring. . . AC-TV says it will present Deborah Kerr playing three parts in a trilogy, "Three Roads To Rome," Nov. 25; the writer is Pulitzer Prize-winner Tad Mosel, it says.

The Total Net Assets Of Open End Investment Companies In Increase

By JESSE BOGUE UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Total net assets of open end investment companies have grown by nearly 50 times over a 22-year span to nearly $22.8 billion at the start of 1962, a newly-issued summary of their performance shows.

A statistical summary of the funds over the period 1940-1962 was published by the Investment Company Institute one of whose principal activities is collecting such information.

Published at a time when some sales practices and fee systems of the mutual fund industry are under investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the study shows the steady growth, particularly in the post-war period, the ICI noted, of the

Death Trap Claims Three Youngsters

STATESVILLE, N. C. (UPI)—

That warm weather death trap, the abandoned refrigerator, claimed three young lives in North Carolina this week.

Mrs. Theodore Waddell of the Belmont community near here began a frantic search in late afternoon for her 3-year-old son, Sammy Jerome, and his 18-month-old brother, Randy, when she discovered they were missing. She found them in a refrigerator which had been placed in the backyard a month ago.

Mrs. Waddell told officers the children could not have been trapped for more than 15 minutes. Efforts to revive them failed and they were pronounced dead at the scene.

Robert Spencer Broadnax, 8, and his sister, Thelma Louise, 6, were found by their father after being trapped in an abandoned refrigerator at Reidsville, approximately 5 miles north of here. The father said both were breathing when he found them, but Robert turned blue and died. His sister recovered.

NOTHING IS FREE

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI)—The Tower Elementary School was finished two years ago—complete with electric lights, but, through an oversight, no electric meter.

The oversight was cleared up Tuesday by Southern California Edison Co. It sent the school district a bill for $2,541 as estimated charges for electricity used.

Still Prevalent

Medieval Spanish folk dramas, brought to the United States in the 17th century by early colonists still are performed at Christmas in the mountain villages of New Mexico.

'Balanced Diet' Called Inadequate Food Advice

"Eat a well-balanced diet and you will be fine." "Watch your diet!" "If you don't eat your food, you won't grow." These are common words of advice heard by many of us from a variety of sources ranging from our parents to our family physician.

But this advice, according to a Marquette University nutrition expert, is far from adequate when we have a nutrition problem which may have serious effects on our health and well-being.

The expert, Dr. Willard A. Krehl, told a scientific meeting, held recently at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, that people want and need more specific and positive dietary information than they are now obtaining. To solve this problem, Dr. Krehl said, "practicing physicians need to have more training in the fundamentals of nutrition so as to be alert early when their patients may need closer supervision of their diet and nutritional supplementation."

Why the need for increased emphasis on proper nutrition? Dr. Krehl explained that although we are assured that the Recommended Daily Allowances of the National Research Council for various nutrients, with the exception of vitamin D, can be obtained through a diet of common foods, "U.S. nutrition surveys reveal that some segments of the population are not receiving the proper food supply to meet the Recommended Daily Allowances.

"One has to question how generally is a well-balanced diet actually consumed," Dr. Krehl reported. "These findings of less than adequate recommended nutrient intake are of special concern when they involve our youth and, particularly, our teen-age girls."

A major dietary dilemma facing the public, according to the Marquette University scientist, is how to break poor food habits.

"Food intake is so much governed by habit, custom and motivation that it may well be impossible to alter and significantly improve poor dietary practices after the age of 5 or 6," he said. "Education of the public to select a better balanced diet has been considerably less than a success in the hands of professional educators and nutritionists."

Dr. Krehl illustrated this point by reporting that food consumption statistics comparing the period 1930-34 with 1958 show a significant decrease in the consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables.

"Yet, good nutrition teaching has consistently placed great emphasis on this category of foods," he said.

Factors other than habit, motivation and inadequate education which may contribute to poor nutrition were cited by Dr. Krehl. These include chronic and acute physical disease and, quite possibly, our emotions.

"One of the most challenging and unexplored areas of nutritional biochemical research is the influence that emotion, anxiety and accompanying stress may have on nutritional needs and metabolism," he stated.

In the Orient, back in the Middle Ages, cucumbers and greens with spicy marinades commonly used today in salads, were eagerly sought and considered among the greatest luxuries.

Mayonnaise and salad dressings became very popular during World War I, when government agencies throughout the country strongly advocated the increased use of vegetables in the diet as an aid to reducing food storage.

It's Strawberry Harvest Time Again And Time For Mom's Luscious Desserts

It's strawberry time again! This scrumptious, seasonal fruit makes desserts such as shortcake, tarts and pie real family pleasers.

What is it about Mom's homemade pies that makes everyone take note? To some it's the filling, but one of the real tests of a good cook is her ability to make a fine pie crust.

To a great extent, the shortening determines the results. Reba Staggs, home economist, recommends lard for the tenderest, flakiest pie crusts. Lard's high shortening power makes it the natural choice.

FAVORITE STRAWBERRY PIE
1 cup sifted enriched flour
3/4 teaspoon salt
4 to 6 tablespoons lard
2 to 4 tablespoons cold water

Green Onion Pie Entree Feature

Green onions are featured in an entree that's a novel and pleasing choice for luncheon or a weekend supper, Green Onion Cheese Pie. Make the crust from prepared biscuit mix, then prepare a filling of the piquant onions, cream cheese, egg, milk and tangy Tabasco. Over the filling sprinkle buttered oven-toasted rice cereal to give a contrasting texture.

GREEN ONION CHEESE PIE
1 cup prepared biscuit mix
1-3 cup milk

2 cups sliced green onions
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash Tabasco sauce
1 cup oven-toasted rice cereal
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
Combine biscuit mix and milk according to package directions. Roll or pat out on lightly floured board to fit an 8-inch pie pan, making a shell.

Cook onions in butter until wilted and bright green. Combine cream cheese, egg, milk, salt and Tabasco sauce; beat until smooth. Spread onions over bottom of biscuit shell; pour cheese mixture over onions. Crush oven-toasted rice cereal slightly; combine with melted butter. Sprinkle over cheese mixture. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 35 minutes or until set. Serve hot.
Yield: 8 servings.

Strawberry Filling
Ice cream or whipped cream, if desired

Mix flour and salt. Cut lard into flour until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Add cold water, a little at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through flour with a fork until dough just holds in a ball. Use as little water as possible. Roll to about 1/4 inch thickness and line one 8-inch pie pan, allowing 1 inch crust to extend over edge. Crimp edge of pastry. Prick pastry with a fork before baking. Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees F.) 8 to 10 minutes. Cool. Make Strawberry Filling. Pour chilled Strawberry Filling into baked pie crust. Chill until served. Serve with ice cream or whipped cream, if desired.

STRAWBERRY FILLING
1 quart fresh strawberries, cut in half lengthwise
3 tablespoons cornstarch
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
Few drops red food coloring
Combine cornstarch, 1/2 cup sugar and 1/4 cup water. Add 2 cups strawberries and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Add remaining 1/4 cup sugar, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Stir in lemon juice, food coloring and remaining 2 cups of strawberries. Chill thoroughly.

BARBECUED POT-ROAST
3 to 4-pound beef arm or blade pot-roast
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup catchup
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Spicy Tang Of Barbecue Sauce Adapts Same Flavor To Meals Cooked Indoors

Everyone enjoys the spicy tang of barbecue sauce on food cooked in the open air, and you can adapt the same flavor to your indoor meals, as well.

Why not use a barbecue sauce in cooking that familiar meat dish, beef pot-roast? Instead of making the barbecue sauce separately to serve over the meat, the pot-roast is slowly braised right with the sauce. You'll discover a tangy and tantalizing flavor results after the long cooking.

The sauce is quite easily put together with ingredients common to kitchen shelves. After cooking, there will be extra sauce to serve in a gravy boat. You may thicken it with flour, if you wish.

Reba Staggs, home economist and meat authority, reminds you that beef pot-roast is one of the more economical meat cuts. However, it is considered "less tender" and must be cooked slowly with moist heat in a covered utensil.

Dear Abby...

Wife Needs To Finish Mom's Job

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been married three years and I am still picking up after my husband. He leaves a trail of clothes from the kitchen to the bathroom. He never puts the cap on a tube of toothpaste or shaving cream. He never hangs up anything or puts his soiled clothes in the hamper. Honestly, you would think he was a little boy. Why are men so lazy and what can a wife do about this?

in-law who is stuck with my husband's mother 24 hours a day. She has three daughters, all of them married, and much better off financially than we are. But they refuse to keep her or give us a penny toward her expenses. She is 68 and in poor health. Her mind is going, too, and I can't trust her alone in the house. I didn't marry my husband to be a 24-hour nurse for his mother, yet I can't put her out on the street. I told her daughters what I thought of them and now they aren't speaking to me. I am only 37 and look like 50. What should I do?

EXHAUSTED
DEAR EXHAUSTED: Your husband's sloppiness has nothing to do with laziness. His mother never finished "raising" him. Finish the job.

STUCK
DEAR STUCK: You are addressing your complaint to the wrong department. Your husband should take the matter up with his sisters. If they don't want to keep their mother, they should each contribute toward her care in a good nursing home. The squeaking wheel gets the grease. Squeak!

DEAR ABBY: I am a daughter-

DEAR ABBY: Our only son (22) is marrying a girl who is not speaking to us. A few months ago she found out something about us that happened years ago, which is nobody's business but ours. The wedding will be a big affair. Isn't her mother supposed to ask me for a guest list? And aren't we automatically invited to the wedding or must we have an invitation, too? This is very embarrassing.

MOTHER OF THE GROOM
DEAR MOTHER: Although the bride isn't speaking to you, I presume the groom is. Ask him about the wedding plans and straighten it out with the parents of the bride immediately.

How's the world treating you? For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Junior-Senior Students Dance Prom Night Away In "Gay Paree" Setting

CANADIAN (Spl) — An Evening in Paris was the theme of the annual Junior-Senior banquet held Friday evening in the school cafeteria.

The cafeteria was transformed into the "Cafe de Paree" for the event. The atmosphere of a Parisian sidewalk cafe was achieved with a mural featuring the Eiffel Tower, the Arch de Triomphe and a Paris street scene behind the orchestra. Trees at either side of the mural were silhouetted by a spotlight.

Quartette tables were laid with red and white checked cloths and centered with raffia-wrapped wine bottle candleholders. A red and white awning was hung over the buffet serving table, which featured a tall nine-candle wrought iron candelabra banked with greenery and flowers.

Spotlighted along with the serving area was a grassy plot in the center of the floor in which a three-tiered flower cart carried out the outdoor effect. White picket fence around the walls of the room and flowers banked on the window sills added to the effect.

"Cigarette girls" circled with trays of favors of French perfume for the guests.

Ann Morrow, president of the Junior Class, welcomed the guests and served as Mistress of Ceremonies. Tommy Waters, president of the Senior Class, responded to the welcome and invited all those present to remain for the senior prom following the dinner.

Cynthia Morey and Sam Shahan sang a duet and Jonie McMordie and Rob Parnell danced the "Twist." The Flowers sisters sang "I Love Paris in the Springtime."

Mrs. William Karr, Senior Class sponsor, and Mrs. Jack King, in the absence of Mrs. Preston Hut-ton, junior class sponsor, received the guests.

The mothers of the junior class, with Mrs. Ted Rogers as chairman, prepared the menu. Mrs. Jack King was in charge of the decorations. Junior Class fathers were the French waiters. And the Senior mothers served punch during the prom.

Take It From Kathy

Dear Kathy: I have never been good in science, but his year's chemistry has been my Waterloo. I can't get along with the teacher no matter what I do. He dropped my mark a whole grade on the last report card just because I talked in class. I don't think it's fair to change the mark because of one small thing I did. Things are going from bad to worse and my parents just keep telling me to get busy and work. Right now I'm afraid I'll flunk. What can you do about an unfair teacher?

—Fran S.

Dear Fran: One little whisper in a class is distracting but 30 or 40 of them add up to a loud roar. Classroom conversations are more contagious. In self defense, a teacher has to squelch even that first whisper.

It would be most unusual for a teacher to change a grade because of one single misbehavior. As a matter of fact, it would be unfair. Think back and be honest with yourself. Didn't he have to reprimand you on more than one occasion — perhaps a number of times?

Considering the number of teachers you have through the years, it would be surprising if you DID like every one. Just as you have personality conflicts with classmates, they are bound to occur with instructors, too.

The teacher could be unfair, but it's just as likely that you are prejudiced. He rates your respect because of his background and training. This will have to substitute for liking. You are with him for a short period every day and for a very tiny part of your lifetime. Playing the game by his rules is the only way to succeed.

Harvesters Looked Real Good At Times

Though the Futures lost to the Exes Saturday night, 20-14 in their annual grid contest, the loss really couldn't be taken as any indication of their hopes for next fall.

The Futures lost to a group which has played as a unit together for some three years. These boys knew how to work together as a team, as a unit and played accordingly.

The Futures, on the other hand, were playing under a new coach and many of the boys were playing on the "varsity" team for the first time after coming up from the B team or transferring from another school.

The Futures made their share of mistakes during the game Saturday night, but also looked real good at times, especially on offense. Kenny Hebert let fly with some of the spot aerials and displayed a talented right toe with the punting chores.

Donnie Ayres, who spelled Hebert at quarterback in the second half of play, also looked real good as the field general of the Harvester gridgers. Ayres pulled off some fine ball-handling tricks and together with Ralph Palmer, looked good lugging the leather. Palmer pulled off some good long scampers and Jerry Glover hammered out some good yardage through the middle and through the guard and tackle slots.

The forward wall looked good at times, but missed quite a few blocks during crucial plays. Their tackling was also spotty at times, especially on sweeps around end to either set up or score a touchdown for the Exes.

The Harvesters, however, exhibited a tremendous amount of team spirit-like they had all during spring training and seem to possess the depth and speed to make a good showing in the tough District 3-AAAA race next fall.

Mrs. Stripling, a 47-year-old housewife and mother of two children, had an easier time of it.

Pepitone Leads Yankees Past Kansas City, 13-7

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

Disenchanted Casey Stengel is getting up bright and early today to track down that smart aleck who would have everyone believe there is no place like home.

Casey thinks that's just a lot of sentimental pap. In a way, you can't blame him. He came home Wednesday night to Glendale, Calif., for the first time since last winter and among those who were delighted to climb within 1½ games of the Dodgers, who promptly hung a 3-1 shiner on his New York Mets to climb with 1½ games of the National League lead.

Fine way to welcome a fella home, wasn't it? The inhospitable Dodgers did the job up brown. First they let Casey sample some of that good home cooking. They even sat back quietly while many of his Glendale neighbors among the crowd of 19,985 at Chavez Ravine greeted him and cheered him before the game.

Then they went out and gave him the works, coming up with a pair of runs in the eighth off ex-teammate Roger Craig to break a 1-1 tie. Ron Fairly's sacrifice fly with the bases full scored the tie-breaking run and another run came over when Frank Howard hit into a fielder's choice.

Don Drysdale stopped the Mets on four hits, striking out seven and walking only one for his sixth victory compared with three defeats.

A sidelight on the game was Craig's valiant efforts to keep the fleet Dodgers from running wild on the bases. After Maury Wilks singled in the third inning, Craig threw over to first baseman Ed Bouchee nine times to keep Wilks from getting any ideas.

The Met pitcher finally balked Wilks to second from where he scored the Dodgers' first run on Jim Gilliam's double.

In other National League games, the Pittsburgh Pirates snapped the St. Louis Cardinals' six-game winning streak, 6-3; the Philadelphia Phillies handed the first-place San Francisco Giants their third straight defeat, 10-7; the Houston Colts blanked the Cincinnati Reds, 2-0, and the Milwaukee Braves beat the Chicago Cubs, 4-2.

The Cleveland Indians defeated the Chicago White Sox, 5-4, in the American League; the New York Yankees overpowered the Kansas City A's, 13-7; the Boston Red Sox knocked over the Minnesota Twins, 6-1, and the Washington Senators downed the Los Angeles Angels, 7-2. Rain washed out the Detroit-Baltimore game.

Bob Skinner's triple with two men on base highlighted a four-run first-inning rally that started the Pirates on their way against the Cards. Harvey Haddix, the first of three Pittsburgh pitchers, was the winner and Larry Jackson the loser.

The Phillies, pounded five Giant pitchers for 13 hits, including six off loser Mike McCormick. Don Demeter drove in three runs to help send the Giants down to their sixth loss in eight games. The losers didn't help matters any either, committing four errors. Art Mahaffey was the winner.

Ken Johnson held his former Red teammates to five hits in gaining his second victory for the Colts. Bob Purkey suffered his first loss of the season after winning seven straight. Carl Warwick and Al Spangler drove in Houston's runs.

Warren Spahn won the 314th game of his career and fifth of the season with a five-hit effort against the Cubs. Roy McMillan homered for the Braves, who clinched the game with two unearned runs off Glen Hobbie in the sixth. Hobbie, who has yet to win a game, suffered his sixth defeat although yielding only five hits.

Dick Donovan ran his record to 8-0 for the Indians even though the White Sox entered the ninth with a 4-3 lead. Pinchhitter Al Luplow led off the ninth with a home run and Chuck Essegian followed with his 11th homer to keep the Tribe within a half-game of the first-place Yankees.

Donovan, nicked for 10 hits, including a homer by Al Smith, gave way to Bob Allen with two out in the last of the ninth. The loser was Dom Zanni, victim of the two ninth-inning homers.

Rookie Joe Pepitone equalled a major league record by hitting two homers in one inning for the Yankees in their victory over the A's. Pepitone's pair came during a nine-run eighth inning rally that made reliever Tex Clevenger the winner.

John Blanchard and Phil Linz also hit homers for the Yankees while Manny Jimenez and Ed Charles connected for the Athletics.

The Red Sox ended an eight-game losing streak by raking three Minnesota pitchers for 13 hits, including homers, by Gary Geiger and Ed Bressoud. Earl Wilson was the winner with help from Dick Radatz in the seventh. Rich Rollins' seventh homer accounted for the Twins' only run.

Four errors by the Angels made it a cakewalk for the Senators, who scored all their runs in the first three innings. Harry Bright drove in three runs with a triple and a single for the Senators. Billy Moran collected four of the nine hits off winner Pete Burnside but "gave" Washington two runs in the second when he missed touching second base on a double-play ball.

One Bull, Evans Win LL Games

One Bull and Dick Evans carded victories Tuesday night in Western loop little league play.

One Bull won over Hardin and Roth, 8-3 and Dick Evans downed C. R. Hoover Oil company, 3-2.

Charley Price was both the pitching and hitting hero for One Bull, striking out 10 while walking six in gaining the win. Price also had a perfect night at bat with three for three.

Robert Schaub had a three-run homer and Bill Thomas had two doubles in three trips to the plate to share swat honors for the winners.

One Bull cracked the game wide open in the fourth with six big runs.

George Bailey was the losing pitcher, striking out eight while walking none.

Johnny Carlos carded the victory for Dick Evans while Mike Sublette was the losing pitcher for C. R. Hoover.

Texas Loop Race Remains Close As Tulsa Defeated

By United Press International

If the Texas League keeps ripping along at its present pace, it may take until this time next spring to decide the champion.

Front-running Tulsa stumbled again Wednesday night, 5-3 to El Paso. Alert Austin leap-frogged into second place just one-half game behind the Oilers blasting Albuquerque 17-12. In the other game Amarillo nipped San Antonio 8-7.

Albuquerque and San Antonio are tied for third place one game out of the top spot. El Paso, in fifth place is only two games away. Last-placed Amarillo is 9½ games off the pace. Austin scored 13 runs in the first two innings to club the Dukes. The Senators trotted across 9 tallies in the second frame. The Dukes had three home runs in a losing cause, and chipped in five errors.

Minervino Rojas with relief help put the skids under the Oilers. Tulsa was limited to seven hits, two of them home runs.

Amarillo jumped to an 8-2 lead over San Antonio, then held on for dear life. The Missions scored three runs in the 7th inning and two in the 8th, but the rally fell short.

Tonight's schedule is the same.

Wilt And Warriors Going To San Francisco Next Season

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Open warfare flared on the professional basketball front today following the announcement that the Philadelphia Warriors would be moved to San Francisco for the 1962-63 season to campaign against the Saints of the American Basketball League.

A syndicate composed mostly of San Francisco men put up $850,000 to purchase the Warriors, including the fabulous Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, and the team will open here in the fall.

Along with the announcement from the National Basketball Association of the move came a flat statement from the owners of the Saints that they would be ready to do battle.

"We already are negotiating to get Chamberlain away from them," said Kevin O'Shea, general manager of the Saints. "He has his 1962-63 contract to play out, but we hope to get him for the following season."

The Saints had announced earlier they would file a $3 million dollar suit against the NBA on an antitrust basis.

Negotiations to bring the Warriors to San Francisco had been going on for more than three months. NBA owners turned down the proposal less than three weeks ago but reconsidered and voted for the move, 7-2, at a meeting Wednesday.

The objectors were the Boston Celtics and the New York Knicks. They apparently are afraid that San Francisco would be placed in the Western Division and that they would lose the great drawing power of Chamberlain for their home games.

Eddie Gottlieb, the man who collected the $850,000 for sale of the Warriors, said after the sale there were no immediate plans to bring another team to Philadelphia.

At their earlier meeting, NBA owners had insisted that if the Warriors moved out of Philadelphia, Gottlieb should replace them with a "representative" team.

Addition of the club in San Francisco now sets up a natural rivalry with the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Louisville Colonels stayed off a three-run ninth inning rally by Dallas-Fort Worth to defeat the Rangers, 10-9, at Louisville. Tom Newton outlasted Jack Hannah for the pitching victory.

Today's schedule had Dallas-Fort Worth at Louisville, Omaha at Indianapolis and Oklahoma City at Denver.

Floyd, Sonny Might Fight In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Definite word was expected today that would put the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston heavyweight championship fight in Chicago — either Comiskey Park Sept. 17 or Soldier Field Sept. 24.

"I'm fully confident the fight will be held in Chicago," promoter Al Bolan of Championship Sports Inc., said. "I'm here to finalize negotiations."

He spoke shortly after Floyd Patterson, who won the vacant crown, by knocking out Archie Moore in 1956 in the Chicago Stadium, announced in New York that the fight would be held in Chicago "unless something unexpected happens."

The "something unexpected," he said, would be if a fee of $200,000 or $300,000 is asked for either of the fields.

This appeared unlikely. Bolan said he understood the normal rental at mammoth Soldier Field, which holds 104,000 persons, is 10 per cent plus other incurred charges. He said the Chicago White Sox had offered to return Comiskey Park which holds 65,000 for $40,000.

Bolan will meet with chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois Athletic Commission, Mayor Richard J. Daley, Red Weiner of Soldier Field and Eddie Short of Comiskey Park today.

The fight nearly went to Detroit. Patterson said Detroit was ruled out when it was learned Detroit promoters were planning to help stage the fight.

Fear Always With Us

Every schoolboy knows how Columbus was nearly forced to turn back on his voyage of discovery because of the fears of his crew.

But Columbus, the man alone, had a power that overrode the mutiny latent in the superstitious fears of his men. He had the power which comes from knowledge - knowledge that the world was indeed round and that land, not an abyss, lay beyond the horizon.

Modern-day Columbuses look to space, to what President Kennedy has called "the new ocean" on which we must sail. And mindful of the original Columbus, men recognized that not all the problems of conquering space are mechanical. Some are emotional, for human beings are involved.

On this aspect of the space age, as well as on the technical side, John Glenn has been an articulate spokesman for the new race of star sailors.

"People have repeatedly asked whether I was afraid before the mission," Glenn said after his flight.

"Humans always have fear of an unknown situation - this is normal. The important thing is what we do about it. If fear is permitted to become a paralyzing thing that interferes with proper action, then it is harmful. The best antidote to fear is to know all we can about a situation. It is lack of knowledge which often misleads people when they try to imagine the feelings of an astronaut about to launch."

The history of man has been the conquest of fear through knowledge - from the taming of fire to the discovering of the physical laws governing natural occurrences.

Yet new knowledge has ever increased the area of man's ignorance and brought new fears in its wake. The discovery of atomic power and the threat of its misuse is the chief modern instance.

Thus Glenn's words apply to more than just the one small field of physical challenge. They apply as much to the new knowledge being gained - and the new questions being asked - in the study of human psychology as they do to outer space.

Off The Other's Back

An old Russian proverb has it that if every man gives a thread, the poor man will have a shirt. While this may be true enough there are two necessary corollaries: "(1) No one in the country will have a whole shirt. (2) No new shirts will be made because everyone will be so busy engaged in seeing that no one has more threads in his shirt than anyone else.

Russia Not Doing Well

G. Warren Nutter, the esteemed chairman of the department of economics at the University of Virginia, has been engaged for the past several years in compiling a mammoth study of the Soviet Union. It is now out in book form (Princeton University Press) and will go a long way toward dispelling the myths about Soviet productive might.

Professor Nutter and the National Bureau of Economic Research, which has assisted him, have made no effort whatever either to downgrade or to glorify Russian efforts. As scientists and fact seekers, they have simply obtained the evidence and put it together. And the result ought to inspire a wave of confidence respecting two things: 1. Russia's inability to equal, let alone surpass, American productive endeavors. 2. Russia's inability to place herself on an equitable war footing with the United States.

In other words, America is out in front, way out in front, and unless our own government hamstring our efforts, can be counted on stay there.

All in all, the professor and his co-workers studied 47 basic products put out both in Russia and the U.S. in five categories: Russia has managed to forge ahead of American output. These five categories are rubber footwear, bicycles, fish, flour and sewing machines.

In 19 other products, Russia has made some gains. In the remaining 25 products Russia has fallen further behind American production than she was in 1912. And many of these 25 areas are the vital areas which reflect on the whole economy.

For example, in 1939 Russia lagged 13 years behind this nation in the output of electrical energy. But in 1958 Russia was 15 years behind. In the production of 14 years behind the U.S. In 1958 she was 25 years behind.

In the paper industry, Russia was 44 years behind the U.S. in 1913, and four years ago she was 54 years behind and not gaining ground at all. In the manufacture of motor vehicle tires Russia used to be 12 years behind (1912). Latest figures (1958) show her 42 years behind.

The production of railroad freight and passenger cars shows Russia slipping badly. In 1913, she was 23 years behind us in freight cars, 21 years behind us in passenger cars. In 1958 she was 71 years behind and 57 years behind, respectively.

The same type of increased lag is noted in such places as dairy production, meat processing, soap, boots and shoes and cotton fabrics.

One of the few basic areas where Russia has made substantial gains has been in steel production. But she has moved forward here because of her emphasis on work, while she has lagged terribly in all agricultural areas. The broad category of all types of food and food processing finds Russia way in the rear. Russian people are among the world's poorest fed. And this fact will be a constant worry to Russian politicians for years, as it is a well-known fact that regardless of bayonets or tanks, men have to eat.

To summarize, here's the way it looks. If Russia has no setbacks and continues to grow while American growth continues to falter as it has done recurrently at the hands of various politicians, we could expect Russia to equal our production by 1985, in 23 years.

But if Russia experiences the same kind of setbacks as are normal to any nation where massive governmental influence hampers and re-directs the economy, Dr. Nutter concludes that it would take the Soviet Union 553 years to catch up, or not until 2515.

However, when you figure that both Soviet and American economic factors will shift and fluctuate thru the years, you must also anticipate that the American economy rests upon a far broader and sounder base than the Russian equivalent.

Thus, just as a son's aging will occur at the same rate of speed as his father's and as the percentage of gap between them will narrow each year, the fact is that the son will NEVER catch up to his father in age. And this is the likelihood between Russia and the U.S. While percentage-wise, the gap may narrow each year, there is no reason at all why it should catch up.

That is, there is no reason provided we do not abandon our free economy. If we make the mistakes Russia has made and made constantly, then of course all predictions become meaningless.

Pull Up A Chair

By Neal O'Hara

Individual needs for sleep vary from about four to 10 hours a night, and the average is 7 1/2 hours, research at U. of Michigan shows. It usually takes 15 to 30 minutes to fall asleep, and you sleep longer and-or more soundly on some nights than others. As a stimulant to 1962 attendance, one chain of food stores in Canton, O., offers a half gallon of milk free to each customer who buys a ticket for any Cleveland Indians' baseball game.

Announcement in the University of Texas Daily Texan: "Now we are abandoning our University freshman test to use the College Broads altogether." A Swedish-made toothpaste new in the U.S. market is in a tube with a key at the end that keeps it rolled tightly as the paste is used.

Today's favorite gag: When one of little Elsie's friends came in to visit her, she found the youngster playing with her new housekeeping set. "Are you washing dishes?" little Doris inquired. "Yes," Elsie replied, "and I'm drying them, too, because I'm not married yet." Included in America's aid to Ethiopia this year is a U.S. Navy seaplane tender from our mothball fleet which we've refitted, at $3,000,000, to serve as a yacht for Emperor Haile Selassie.

Science plunges forward: There has just been developed an electronic device which counts and measures raindrops.

Those who squawk at what they call confiscatory income taxes may be assured to learn that in 1638 a prosperous tailor in Boston, Captain Robert Keyne, was summoned to court to face the charge of making too much money. The court's ruling was: "Inasmuch as he (Keyne) is already rich and has but one child, and inasmuch as he came over (from England) for conscience sake, he shall strive not to make money." And he was fined 80 pounds.

Thoughts while shaving: 1. Ever consider how important middle names are in the literary field? How strange to the ears it would be, if you heard persons discussing George B. Shaw, Ralph W. Emerson, Edgar A. Poe, James W. Riley, Henry W. Longfellow, Richard H. Davis, Edward E. Hale, William C. Bryant, Oliver W. Holmes, Julia W. Howe, James F. Cooper, James R. Lowell, and Robert L. Stevenson.

2. Have you ever been a victim of "catarrhes"? Well, it isn't anything like catarrh or any other disease. Catarrhes is the misuse of words such as "imply" for "infer," "mutual" for "common," or "flout" for "flaunt." 3. This quote by a jewelry store manager may or may not be startling to you, but here it is: About 90 per cent of engagement rings are sold on credit, and no fewer than half of the payments are made by the girl. (or maybe that isn't so startling to you.) 4. Those hoity-toity establishments are always called the Bath and Tennis Club, never the Tennis and Bath Club. But isn't it AFTER a session of tennis that one takes a shower? Yes, but they keep right on calling them Bath and Tennis Clubs.

Country editor speaking: (CR) "The State Department says the Communists have made Cuba the military giant of the Caribbean. And they appear to have made Castro the midget."

France to Have 4th Nuclear Striking Power By End of '63; All-European Force Seen

WASHINGTON - President Charles de Gaulle isn't idly boasting when he says France will develop its own nuclear deterrent force.

By the end of 1963, France will have the fourth largest strategic nuclear striking power in the world. Only that of the U.S., Russia and Great Britain will be larger.

According to the latest U.S. Intelligence estimate, De Gaulle's nuclear striking force will consist of 60 long-range jet bombers capable of destroying the key industrial cities of either Russia or the U.S., and killing more than 20 million people.

To support this powerful striking force, De Gaulle is building up a stockpile of 120 nuclear bombs with explosive capabilities ranging from a few kilotons to 10 megatons.

The French will have an estimated 40 to 50 atomic bombs by the end of 1962. Already, they have tested five atomic weapons or devices.

Cost of developing De Gaulle's nuclear striking force is estimated to be approximately $2.5 billion. The French government is now paying the entire expense of this development, which will include an expenditure of $500 million this year.

There are recurring reports, however, that President de Gaulle and Chancellor Adenauer are nearing a secret agreement whereby the West Germans will help finance this costly nuclear stockpile.

If these reports are accurate, as U.S. Intelligence officials believe, this French-West German financial link could mean the first step toward establishment of an all-European nuclear force.

HELP FROM EURATOM - Already the Germans, through their representative on Euratom, the atomic energy organization within the European Common Market, are preparing to give De Gaulle's nuclear program a big boost.

This indirect help for France will flow from Euratom's huge $480 million, five-year atomic research and reactor development program, which was adopted at German insistence.

This massive research program, to be paid for by the six European Common Market members, will permit De Gaulle to shift funds from basic nuclear research and atomic reactor development to his more costly weapons program.

Under the Euratom research arrangement, France will share fully in all nuclear research, including work in the organization's largest laboratories at Ispra, Italy, and Petten, The Netherlands.

For example, Ispra has big computers, both digital and analog, which are necessary for reactor and weapons calculations. Use of these costly computers by French scientists will save France millions of dollars in its atomic program. Other Euratom installations from which the French will benefit are located in West Germany, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Let Child Drink Water At Meals - If He Eats

Q - My children drink a lot of water with their meals. I always have a full glass at their places before they sit down. Sometimes, in addition, they will fill and empty their glasses a few times before they get through. Is this healthy? I remember that we were not allowed to drink water until the end of the meal though I was never told why we were supposed to wait.

A - Active children need a great deal of fluid to make up for the amounts they lose through sweating and skin evaporation. We, too, were not allowed to drink until after we had had our milk. The reasoning behind this order apparently was that the water we drank with meals filled the stomach to capacity leaving no room for the more sustaining milk or cocoa.

Since the stomach empties of fluid without much delay, there is no point in forbidding water drinking with meals so long as the child eats well and thrives. But if water drinking is done at the expense of a required intake of sustaining foods the restriction is warranted.

Q - Are sleeping medicines harmful?

A - Yes and no. "No" if they are taken occasionally for some particular purpose such as during the course of an illness or before or after an operation. "Yes" if they are taken regularly for no good reason. A "sleep crutch" is every bit as harmful as any other kind of support that's not really needed. And, since the "sleep crutch" is every bit as habit-forming as any other form of drug addiction, it is not something to be taken lightly.

In a recent column, I suggested that a probable cause for attacks of hives might be penicillin-contamination being antibiotics used in the treatment of infected udders. I said that detection of penicillin was not practical. Experts from Wisconsin inform me that in their enlightened state "dairy plants are continuously running tests for penicillin in milk. These tests are practical and rapid and can detect the minutest quantity of penicillin. Although federal law does allow minute amounts of certain chemicals in some agricultural products, the allowable amount of penicillin in milk is zero." I am happy to have this information.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

PECOS, Tex.—Years ago, Henry L. Mencken wrote a tribute to the farmer which has haunted me in my travels over the terrible high plains of West Texas inquiring into the embarrassments of Vice President Lyndon Johnson, Senator Ralph Yarborough, Congressman Slick Rutherford and other Democrats of high place and principle who carried on political and social traffic with Billie Sol Estes. The most conspicuous traits of the West Texas farmer that have been revealed in these embarrassments are his greed and his utter indifference to the Seventh Commandment.

Walter Holcombe, the president of the Security State Bank of Pecos, merrily agreed with my diffident suggestion that most of the cotton farmers who were lured into ruinous liabilities on chattel mortgages on hypothetical fertilizer tanks, were inspired by the instinct of larceny. Many of them knew someone was being robbed, they supposed the victim would be some soulless finance or loan shop corporation with an office far away, and they instinctively look to Washington to put through some amnesty to relieve them of their obligations, restore their mortgaged lands and put them back on the Government rolls for checks for unfarming their fields.

All this probably will come to pass. The alternative would be bedlam, revolution or even ultra-conservatism.

Of the farmer, Henry Mencken wrote in 1924, long before the farm program had invited the husbandman to express his true rapacity without embarrassment: "Let the farmer, so far as I am concerned, be damned forever. He is a tedious fraud and ignoramus, a rogue and hypocrite. No more grasping, selfish and dishonest mammal is known to students of anthropology. When the going is good, he robs the rest of us up to the extreme limit of our endurance. When the going is bad he comes bawling for help out of the public till. Has anyone ever heard of a farmer advocating any political idea that was not deliberately designed to loot the rest of us to his gain?"

It needs be said, however, that to the natural cupidity of the now vicarious tiller of the clods, there has been added the much more cunning rapacity of the learned but often no more than half-literate profession of the law. The laws of agriculture and Government bounty have become a frightful tangle.

The attorney at law in county seats wears neat suits of the latest synthetic fabric off the most expensive rack in the department store of his client. He knows the laws and precedents. More important, he knows the Federal judges whom he cultivates by polite deference in confidential drinking after formal sessions of conventions of The Bar. He knows all other counsel of his own area, mostly men of similar extra-professional interests and no better character. His literature is Time, Newsweek, Look and Life. And he does not condemn Liz Taylor, for the luck of the game may condemn him to three lonely nights in Chicago almost any time.

The lawyer knows how to file on Public Lands and he can obtain cotton allotments by phone for acres of his own and lease his acres also by phone, together with the allotments, never setting foot on soil except at his country club. By phone he can arrange for the Government to bulldoze water-holes for his cattle and to fence it with posts and wire to keep his kine quietly together, eliminating the wages of cowboys. And through friends in the courthouse he can learn what day the assessor's deputy will be coming out to count his cattle which, on that day, somehow will have wandered far out of sight and sound up the canyon.

He is, in his greedy soul, the farmer of Henry Mencken's exuberant salute, but twice as tricky and no less crude in his social outwards, being sprung from the same gnarly stalks in the recent backwoods. When you add the county seat bankers to these two elements, also learned in reticent cunning and the ways to detect sleepers on the property rolls, you have put together an apparatus of consummate scoundrels who have been robbing the entire People of the United States for 30 years.

This is no more local to the Texas realm of Billie Sol Estes than it is local to Dutchess County, N.Y., and the baronial domain of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Hundreds of members of Congress are country lawyers and parasites by the same sly niceties. So it is highly improbable that the drainage of the citizens' taxes ever will be diminished. The system "employs" more than 125,000 part-time wood-tick blood-suckers across the country, in addition to the headquarters help in the Department of Agriculture and in its outposts in state capitals. This payroll alone is more than three billion a year.

The most inviting temptation to the citizen is to find some way to latch on.

The Nation's Press

NOT SO STUPID (California Feature Service) A survey by the California department of industrial relations reveals that although nearly 90 per cent of the homes in California have television sets, hardly more than two-thirds have washing machines. We wonder what the Governor's consumer council thinks of that. Or what a similar czar in Washington would think, were he the reality President Kennedy evidently thinks he should be.

Probably these practitioners of the Galbraithian premise that the people are too stupid to spend their own money, would revel in the statistics: Imagine a TV wasteland receiver, but not a washing machine! Well, we have a riposte for these denigrators of the consumer. More than 83 per cent of our California families, according to the survey, have telephones.

The obvious conclusion is that California consumers spend their money on wants they cannot fill for themselves. Communication is one of these, a very important one. And in a good many homes clothes still can be washed by hand. Or there's always the laundry. And what's so bad about patronizing local industry?

First Skating Rink
World's first mechanically frozen ice skating rink was the Glacarium in London, built in 1876. It was a studio-type room, with an ice surface of 40 by 24 feet, frozen by means of a mixture of glycerine and water running through copper pipes and chilled by ether.

Yearbook Had A Quotation From Marx

MEMPHIS (UPI) — Leafing through a paperback book of quotations, the student editor of Kingsbury High School's yearbook found just the right words for one of the dedicatory pages.

The phrase, "From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs," seemed to express the idea of each teacher helping each student make the most of his time in school.

Mrs. Martha Long, the yearbook sponsor, agreed. "I never dreamed it would bother anyone," she said.

But when the yearbook, dedicated to the "Spirit of Freedom," was handed out to students and shown to parents the complaints poured in to Principal John Crothers and School Board Chairman William Galbreath.

The dedicatory quotation was from the works of Karl Marx, the German philosopher whose ideas form the basis for communism and socialism.

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — You never would have suspected when Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg addressed New York City Local No. 3 of the Electrical Workers Union that Local No. 3 was on a par with U. S. Steel in spurning the Kennedy administration policy.

The occasion, was the local's Communion breakfast. All was sweetness and light. No chilling reference by Goldberg, to the local's recently won 25-hour week. No reference, either, to the fact that President Kennedy has condemned this short work week contract.

Goldberg did not even wag a finger at the electrical workers. If his speech before Local No. 3 is a measure of President Kennedy's condemnation of union labor for spurning his policy guide lines, then the President's condemnation doesn't amount to much. Time will tell about that. Not much time, either.

Already AFL-CIO President

George Meany is in the headlines with plans for a 35-hour week to supplant the prevailing 40-hour week. These reductions in the work week, effected and proposed, might or might not be offset by reduced labor costs. The New York electricians have a formula by which the impact on construction costs of less work for the same pay would be more gradual than immediate.

Meany wants a 35-hour work week to provide jobs for the unemployed, but with the same take-home pay. You may be sure that Goldberg's speech before Local No. 3 has been carefully analyzed by AFL-CIO policy makers. If they have interpreted Goldberg's remarks as a green light for a same-pay, shorter work week, it cannot be said that such an interpretation would have to be merely wishful thinking.

The action of one local—even a big one—cannot have on the national economy anything like the impact of a price rise by a basic industrial giant such as U. S. Steel. The construction industry, however, is basic in the national economy as the steel industry is basic. The tendency in the steel industry was for other companies to follow the price lead of U. S. Steel.

President Kennedy smashed that price trend with a power play the like of which had not been witnessed in the United States. It seems reasonable to believe that there will be a tendency among the construction unions to follow the lead of Local No. 3. Why not? Who would not prefer a 25-hour work week to a 40-hour deal, especially if wages now or ultimately would not be reduced?

Local No. 3's new contract is effective July 1. It represents a 37½ per cent reduction in the work week. If such a contract became uniform in the construction industry costs would zoom, not by the full 37½ per cent, perhaps, because there are many other costs in construction.

Labor Secretary Goldberg could have made his Local No. 3 speech the occasion of a firm statement of administration price policy as it relates to union labor.

The Communion breakfast, however, was a warm and pleasant occasion for Secretary Goldberg. He left for some other administration officials the unpleasant duty of speaking frankly to friends.

WRONG WAY
HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—There's something of a standoff in the suburban community of Bellaire, where a highway sign on the outskirts reads: "Yield (sic) Right Of Way."

The city said it was a county sign and demanded the county make a correction. The county said it was a city sign.

Said a city councilman: "I don't know whose sign it is, but I demand an investigation. This is embarrassing."
