Worst Single-Plane Crash Puzzles French Officials

Two Stewardesses Are Only Survivors

By PAUL EVE
United Press International

PARIS (UPI) — French officials were mystified today as to what caused a Boeing 707 jetliner to hurtle off the end of a runway on takeoff carrying 130 persons to their death, 121 of them Americans returning from a European holiday.

Close watch was kept over two stewardesses, the only survivors, in hopes they could provide a clue to the worst disaster involving a single airplane in aviation history.

Flying weather was perfect.

The pilot was expert. The plane had been checked and rechecked.

Officials said sabotage could not be entirely ruled out but was being discounted until the wreckage had been thoroughly examined.

Mayor Ivan Allen of Atlanta, Ga., home of most of the victims, flew in to give what help he could. Atlanta lost many of its most prominent citizens and was in a state of deep mourning. A U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) investigator also was flying in to join the investigation.

The Air France jetliner, half as long as a football field, roared down the runway at Orly Field Sunday with Commander Roland Hoche, a man of 13 years flying experience, at the controls.

The four jet engines poured out power but it never became airborne. Some witnesses said the wheels got a few feet in the air. Others said the plane seemed glued to the ground.

Pierre Loiseau, an Orly control tower radioman, said he saw puffs of blue smoke under the wheels about 800 yards from the end of the runway, indicating the pilot was braking hard.

Other witnesses believed the pilot also used his engines to try to stop.

"But the aircraft continued," Loiseau said. "At no time did it seem to leave the ground. A few yards from the end of the runway it went from one wheel to the other as if the pilot were trying to get off the runway."

"At the end of the runway it cut a swath through the posts carrying landing lights. Then it stopped its mad career after another 200 yards when it was near the houses in the Rue la Martine of Villeneuve le Roi."

What Loiseau described was one of aviation's greatest tragedies. The only one in which there was greater loss of life involved the collision of two airliners over New York City in which 134 were killed Dec. 18, 1960.

The big Air France jet, chartered to take the Georgians home from a "carefree and unforgettable" vacation, careened across a bare field, where one wing dug a trench in the soft earth, and shattered a fence separating Orly Field from the adjacent village of Villeneuve le Roi.

The four-story-high tail section snapped off and hurtled into a clump of trees. Two stewardesses, Francoise Authie and Jacqueline Gillet, were thrown clear. A steward, Marcel Lugon, also was taken from the wreckage alive but he died 10 hours later. All three had been in the tail section.

The other 122 passengers and 7 crewmen died immediately either from the impact or the searing flames fed by 17,000 gallons of jet fuel that engulfed the rest of the $6 million craft.

French aviation experts seeking an immediate cause of the crash said in disbelief. "It could not have happened."

The flames were so hot that it took two hours for firemen to cool the wreckage down enough to bring out the bodies.

The victims were laid under cherry and apple trees in a nearby orchard and then taken to morgues in a continuous stream of ambulances.

The Georgians were returning home from a tour sponsored by the Atlanta Art Association. They arrived in Paris May 10 and broke up into smaller groups to see England, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Holland and France.

They reassembled in Paris Sunday and happily compared notes. (See AIRLINER, Page 3)

West Texas In For More Rain

By United Press International Conditions favoring a new series of severe thunderstorms built up in west Texas today. The Weather Bureau said storms will strike that area tonight and move into North Central Texas Tuesday.

Thundershowers dumped heavy rains on the eastern half of the state Sunday. Unofficial totals ranged as high as 4.5 inches about four miles north of Austin. Barton Hills reported 2.5 inches.

Forecasters said a low pressure system moving eastward out of the Rocky Mountains would bring high level cold air into collision with warm, moist air at the ground level and cause the storms.

Scattered showers and thundershowers fell along the coast all plains early today as far inland as near the Waco and San Antonio areas.

Forecasters said those rains will continue at least through Tuesday, confined generally to the afternoon and early evening.

Skies were mostly clear across West Texas early today and partly cloudy to cloudy elsewhere in the state. Overnight low temperatures ranged from 50 at Dalhart to 76 at Brownsville and Corpus Christi.

Storms prowled the eastern half of Texas Sunday from the Red River to the upper Gulf Coast, packing large hail, heavy rain and at least one tornado. Several other funnel clouds were reported.

A rain-slick highway north of Paris was blamed for a three-car collision Sunday in which five persons were killed.

The Weather Bureau said a funnel cloud dipped out of dark clouds near Anahuac, but apparently did not touch ground. There were other reports of funnel clouds, all unconfirmed.

Hail peppered Austin and fell between San Antonio and Boerne; at El Campo, Victoria and Winnie. The biggest hail, described by Weather Bureau correspondents as the size of apricots, fell in the Victoria area.

The Jefferson County Airport between Beaumont and Port Arthur got an inch of rain in 20 minutes.

The other ordinance, No. 115, prohibits unnecessary loud noises and the use of amplifiers to broadcast music of any kind.

This applies, the police chief stated, to supermarkets, driveways and other business places throughout the city which have such devices. Complaints, police said, also have been received of bells on auto trucks used by ice cream vendors.

"They'll have to stop it," Chief Conner said.

Ex-Sportscaster Clem McCarthy Dies In Hospital

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former sportscaster Clem McCarthy, 79, known to millions of racing fans for many years as the colorful broadcaster of Kentucky Derbies, died today in a Manhattan nursing home.

McCarthy thrilled radio listeners for 30 years with his husky growl. "R-racing fans, the field is at the gate!"

He died at the Dresden Madison nursing home, where he had lived four years. He had been an invalid since suffering a hip injury in an auto accident, and he later contracted Parkinson's disease.

Latest unofficial returns gave Connelly 564,632 votes to 338,978 for Yarborough. Those totals included returns from all 254 counties, including 231 complete.

Connelly promised to pull the Texas Democratic party together for an all-out drive against the most serious Republican gubernatorial threat since Reconstruction.

State Republicans immediately attacked Connelly's conservative tag.

RUTH ANN GUTHRIE ... Lions Queen

Pampa Girl Is Queen Of Lions Clubs

Ruth Ann Guthrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Guthrie, 1310 Christine, was crowned "Lions Queen" of District 2-TI Saturday night at the conclusion of the three-day Lions convention held in Amarillo.

Forty-four contestants representing Lions Clubs throughout the Panhandle were vying for the top honor.

She was also named "Miss Congeniality" by the other queen candidates prior to the queen announcement.

Miss Guthrie, who graduated from Pampa High School this spring, was presented a diamond watch and $200 in gift certificates.

During the business meeting prior to the Saturday night banquet Ralph Thomas, Pampa, past district governor, was elected as state director to the Texas Lions Crippled Children's Camp, located in Kerrville.

District Governor for the 1962-63 term is Sam Pagan, Shamrock, who will preside over the District 2-TI 63 clubs. He was inaugurated.

House Group OK's JFK Request On Import Duties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee today formally approved President Kennedy's request for broad new authority to cut or eliminate import duties in return for similar trade concessions abroad.

The five-year trade bill, approved by voice vote at a closed-door session, would give the President essentially what he asked in the way of authority to compete with the European Common Market.

The committee acted after weeks of hearings and long drafting sessions.

The bill contains the unprecedented authority Kennedy requested.

To knock down U. S. tariff walls against foreign products in exchange for similar concessions that would give U. S. farm and industrial products better access to foreign markets, particularly the European Common Market, and:

To provide 52 weeks of cash

New Directory Available Here

A volume combining the elements of a civic booster and social "Bluebook" as well as a public utility and commercial reference work, has come off the press. It is the current edition of the Pampa City Directory.

By its nature, this book touches the lives of more local people than any other agency in existence, and everyone gets his name in print without dying, marrying, running for office (and being elected or defeated), having an accident, being arrested, being quoted as to his opinion on some public question, or winning a sweepstakes jackpot.

Special features of the new guidebook include the designation of tenant-owned and rented homes, heads of households, marital status, wives' names, and occupations; a numerical telephone guide, telephone number listings in the street section and an illustrated story about Pampa.

The variety of business hereabouts is demonstrated in the Yellow Pages of the Directory where different types of enterprise are catalogued alphabetically.

The Pampa Directory is not just a local record for local use. It gets around nationally, for each new edition is distributed to free-reference Directory Libraries maintained by members of the directory publishers at Chambers of Commerce in other cities of the U.S., Canada and Puerto Rico for public reference and to help focus outside attention on this area and its people and products.

Through the courtesy of the Publishers of the Pampa City Directory, a Directory Library is maintained in the offices of the Pampa Board of City Development (Chamber of Commerce) for free reference by the general public. This is one of more than 1,000 Directory Libraries installed in the chief cities of the U.S., Canada and Puerto Rico by members of the Association of North American Directory Publishers, under whose supervision the system is operated.

Moscow In Warning

Reds Urge Nuclear Shot Be Called Off

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union urged the United States to call off its high altitude nuclear test only hours before it was scheduled to be held and warned it would take "appropriate measures" to safeguard its security.

The Russian warning came in:

US Fails In First Attempt

HONOLULU (UPI) — The United States failed in its attempt to launch the first of a series of rocket-borne nuclear bombs at Johnston Island in the Pacific, according to an official announcement today.

Joint Task Force Eight, said that a Thor booster was launched at 11:47 p.m. Sunday night, but within minutes after the launching, the missile was destroyed by the task force safety officer because of a malfunction of the tracking system.

The Thor booster was destroyed without a nuclear detonation and the debris fell into the open sea well within the limits previously designated. There was no damage to the installations or injury to personnel, the announcement said.

Stocks Down In Brisk Morning Dealings Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks broke sharply in brisk morning dealings on the New York Stock Exchange today.

High speed tickers ran behind the trading floor throughout the first hour but caught up for the first time at 11:12 a. m. At 11 a.m. volume amounted to 850,000 shares against 1,170,000 on Friday.

Dow-Jones industrials showed a loss of 6.64, rails were down 0.83 and utilities off 0.61. The inclusive Standard and Poor's 500 stock index tumbled 0.78 indicating a fresh loss of around $4 billion paper value.

Declines in the leading groups — autos, oils, chemicals, steels, utilities and rails — generally ranged from fractions to well over a point. Du Pont, off $3.50, was the big loser among the blue chips. Others off $1 or more were Sears, General Foods, American Tobacco, Eastman Kodak and General Electric.

IBM, down around $10 at its low, paced a soft electronic sector. Further losses of at least a point showed in most tobacco on the threat of new scrutiny of the smoking-cancer link by the Public Health Service.

Cosmetics, aircrafts and building materials were also under general pressure but a number of other groups looked choppy at worst.

Agenda For Commission Meet Given

Pampa's City Commission tomorrow will consider the creation of two police sergeant posts and the abolishment of a police captaincy.

The proposal would replace the captain with the two sergeants at a savings of $30 a month. The police captain's job has been unfilled since the resignation of Police Captain Denny Roan two months ago.

Consideration also will be given tomorrow to a resolution authorizing the setup for citizen participation in civic affairs in Ward 4 for the betterment and improvement of living conditions, law enforcement, fire protection and safety of colored residents in the ward.

Other matters on the agenda tomorrow include:

Discussion of an amendment to the lease contract with the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association and the setting of a date for opening of bids on improvement of rodeo facilities.

Opening of bids on gasoline and oil for city vehicles.

Canvassing of last week's returns in the special election to name a city commissioner in Ward 2.

Swearing in of City Commissioner Will Graham, elected in the special election.

Also on the agenda are recommendations and reports of the city manager and the approval of monthly bills.

It's Connally Vs. Cox In November

DALLAS (UPI) — Democrat John Connally will face Democrat-turned-Republican Jack Cox in Texas' November gubernatorial election in what promises to be a bitter, no-holds-barred battle.

Former Navy Secretary Connally, who has been associated with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson since the late 1930s, won the Democratic nomination for the governorship Saturday in a close runoff election with Houston attorney Don Yarborough.

Republican Sen. John Tower said Connally is a liberal "sent down from Washington to lead Texas into the New Frontier. If he is really a conservative, let him deny his close association with the New Frontier."

Cox, an oilman who once ran and lost a bid for the Texas gubernatorial nomination as a Democrat, said the "Connally-Johnson combine of dollars and deceit is again at work in our state. Although this combine has succeeded shamefully in times past, I am confident that this time it will fail."

Yarborough still refused to concede the election. A campaign advisor hinted the election may be contested.

Yarborough is an all-out New Frontier liberal. Connally, a moderate conservative, served a year as Kennedy's first secretary of the Navy before he resigned last December.

OAS Gets 'Pirated' Newspaper Delivered

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — The terrorist Secret Army (OAS) brought out a pirated edition of this city's only remaining newspaper today.

Armed gendarmes at once occupied the building where the newspaper, the Depeche D'Algerie, is published. Soon afterward authorities announced that it has been banned from publication until further notice.

That meant Algiers will be entirely without newspapers.

The pirated edition appeared to be a normal issue of the newspaper. It was only after it had appeared on newsstands that police discovered that pages four and five inside were an OAS publication. They carried the title across the top of the two pages "Appeal by France," the name of a clandestine OAS tract which has been passed from hand to hand here for some time.

Articles on the two pages charged President Charles de Gaulle with betraying Algeria to the Moslem nationalists and gave a number of orders from OAS leaders.

Among these was a document urging of peace talks between the OAS and the nationalists.

It has been rumored for several days, despite official denials, that such talks have been going on.

This was the first time the OAS has succeeded in bringing out a pirate edition of an Algiers newspaper, although it did so twice with the Echo d'Oran in Oran. The Oran newspaper also has been banned from publication.

After surrounding the newspaper building, gendarmes entered and searched it but found the premises deserted. Since it is a morning newspaper, all the staff had long since gone home.

The Depeche D'Algerie incident followed the calmest weekend of the year. But the OAS announced it is resuming its terrorist campaign at midnight tonight.

Muzzling Controversy Is Entering Last Lap

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's marathon study of alleged military muzzling enters its last lap today with testimony from Undersecretary of State George W. Ball before a special Senate armed services subcommittee.

He will be asked to supply the reasons why the State Department delayed specific anti-Communist phrases from speeches by military leaders.

Ball's views already are well known. Last February he told the subcommittee, that the department has, by and large, done a good job in its review of speeches and publications.

Forwarding a recently written report on nearly 100 specific speech deletions, Ball said his review of the department's work makes him "more than ever confident" that his original assessment was correct.

Questioning of Ball will put the subcommittee well on the road to conclusion of the inquiry which began last January. Nearly a million words of testimony have been taken from 72 witnesses and 15 other authorities who submitted statements.

Ball's report, and his oral testimony on it, were requested after President Kennedy invoked executive privilege and refused to let the subcommittee question state and defense department speech reviewers on specific deletions from specific speeches.

When Ball completes his testimony the subcommittee will have only two major items of unfinished business. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara is expected to make a return appearance before the subcommittee turns to writing a report.

In addition, Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., has said the subcommittee plans to review the continued circulation of the left art tabloid Overseas Weekly through channels of the official service publication, Stars and Stripes, in Europe.

'Gate City Of South' In Mourning Mantle

ATLANTA (UPI) — The "Gate City of the South" wore a mantle of silent mourning today. Community shock stunned the million-person metropolitan area.

Atlantans spoke softly of the Sabbath tragedy 3,000 miles away in the crash of a plane that had dealt an agonizing blow to their cultural, business, and political life and struck this proud city with an impact unequalled since the Civil War.

Small things bespoke the sorrow of the community. A mourning wreath of Easter lilies hung in the Peachtree St. main entrance of the Atlanta Art Association, which lost 121 of its members when a chartered Air France jetliner crashed and burned at take-off in Paris Sunday.

The plane was to have brought them home after a 28-day art tour of seven European cities, sponsored by the association. The tourists had been a prime segment of Atlanta civic life, a moving force in its culture. They were leaders.

In country clubs of the north-west section of town — the moneyed section of stately homes and tailored grounds where the majority of the dead lived — flags were lowered to half staff. Sympathy callers left cards at front doors, brought ham and salads and other foods to grieving families in the old Southern custom.

Across the front yard of the two-story brick house at 495 Westover Dr., NW, a little red-haired dachshund, named "Padre," roamed as if searching for his two young mistresses, Ellen Bull, 18, and her sister, Betty, 14. The girls and their mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Bull Jr., and their father's mother.

The select cultural leadership of a whole city is decimated," said the Atlanta Constitution in an editorial. "Hundreds of the region's finest families are touched by bewildering tragedy. The contribution of generations to a maturing South is cut short."

The newspaper said the city was shelled and burned in its infancy and tempered to shock through the years by such disasters as the Winecoff Hotel fire, in which 118 died in 1946. But nothing could have prepared it for the impact of the tragedy of Sunday, the paper said. "They typified the best of Atlanta's conscientious and contributing citizenry."

As the final bell marks the end of another school year, families all over America are saying, "Let's go camping!"

This year a record number of folks will pile sleeping bags and cooking pots in the family car for a vacation under canvas in our woods and open spaces.

If you're lucky enough to find a spot in a regular campground, ordinary precautions with fires will do. But thousands of families will have to set up camp in undeveloped areas.

If you are one of these families, SMOKEY asks you to follow these rules to prevent forest fires:

1. Locate your fireplace in a circle of bare earth. Build up rocks or dig a shallow hole to enclose your fire.
2. Keep your fire small—and put it dead out when you leave.
3. Fill campstoves and lanterns in an area cleared to bare earth.
4. Soak used charcoal with water and bury in cool damp earth.
5. Sit down to smoke—clear a place for hot ashes, matches, and cigarette stubs.

Remember—only YOU can PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

PIERRE POLITICAL TUNE — Gene Austin, 61, crooner-composer and a living legend in the record business, tried a new drama this year. He is a candidate for the Nevada Democratic gubernatorial nod in the September primary.

Crash Witness Says It Wasn't Pretty Sight

By PIERRE CHERYMY United Press International PARIS (UPI) — Rafael Garcia has heard and watched hundreds of planes take off from Orly Field.

His house lies near the end of Runway 26 in the little community of Villeneuve le Roi.

Sunday he heard an Air France Boeing 707 roar down the runway. Something sounded different.

"You get used to the sound of the engines as the planes take off," he said. "When I heard this one coming along the runway I knew there was something wrong by the sound of the engine."

The jet engine was making that noise of desperation.

"I could see in my mind the pilot trying to stop the aircraft when he found he could not take off. It is a thing I have thought of many times since I lived here."

"When I looked I saw the plane crash. I saw the plane hit with its nose. Then there was a terrible explosion, flames everywhere, and big clouds of smoke blacked out the scene."

"I ran down the garden. It must have been after two or three minutes that I saw the two air hostesses stumbling towards me, each trying to help the other to walk.

"They had been blown out of the plane, apparently, by the explosion and landed on the grass. One seemed to be injured but the other apparently was only scratched."

"To help them I had to get them over the garden fence. There was a little ladder there. It was not big enough so I had to pull the rabbit hutch over."

"On the other side of the fence it was not a pretty sight."

"There was very little of the plane left except the tail."

"The passengers had been burned in their seats and they had melted into a mass that was indescribably horrible."

"From time to time when the fire had cooled, the firemen with their asbestos gloves managed to bring out a body. You couldn't call it a body any more, just a black shapeless mass."

"Police threw covers over them but the sight stayed in my eyes."

"It was two hours before the fire was out."

"I shall remember it all my life."

3 Senators And 11 Representatives Lost Their Jobs In Saturday Voting

By CARLTON WILSON United Press International Three state senators defeated Democratic runoff opponents but 11 incumbent representatives lost to newcomers in Saturday's election for the Texas Legislature.

Two other scrambles for vacated senate seats found Rep. D. Roy Harrington of Port Arthur and Walter Richter of Gonzales winning Democratic nominations.

Republicans have 74 nominees to run against Democrats Nov. 9 for some of the 150 House seats.

One of the major casualties in the House was Rep. Ben Glusing of Kingsville, who was a candidate for speaker of the 58th Legislature.

The voting Saturday followed the trend in the May 5 first primary toward a more moderate

Senate and a more conservative House.

Seven of the 11 representatives who lost their posts were conservatives.

In those races, Glusing lost to Lindsey Rodriguez; Rep. George Preston of Paris lost to E. M. Edwards of Clarksville; Rep. Tom Andrews of Arkansas lost to Leroy Wieting of Portland; Rep. Virginia Duff of Ferris lost to Bill Satterwhite of Ennis; Rep. Sam Parsons of Tyler was defeated by Guy McDonald of Austin; Rep. Charles Sandahl of Austin was upset by Don Cavness of Austin, and Rep. Jack Connell of Wichita Falls lost to Maurice Duke of Wichita Falls.

Liberal representatives who were defeated were Obie Jones of Austin, Mauro Rosas of El Paso, Ted Springer of Amarillo and Carl Wheatley of Haskell.

House members who were re-elected were conservatives Ben Jarvis of Tyler, Bill Walker of Cleveland, Homer Robbs of Columbus, John Blaine of El Paso; and Liberals Paul Haring of Goldi, C. W. Peary of Temple, and H. O. Niemeyer of Knippa.

Harrington won the nomination for the Senate seat vacated by Rep. Fuller of Port Arthur, who ran third May 5. Harrington got 24,558 votes in defeating conservative Rep. W. T. Oliver of Port Neches.

In a battle of conservatives in West Texas, Sen. David Ratliff of Stamford fought off Rep. Trotter Latimer of Abilene by a vote of 17,816 to 14,880.

In a race between Galveston liberals, Sen. A. R. Schwartz defeated Rep. Maco Steward by a 21,408 to 21,828 count.

Members of the full committee, including Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., have become concerned that the agencies might one day begin dictating to the Army, Navy and Air Force.

McNamara, who is already embroiled with Congress over the RS70 airplane and the size of the reserves, started most of the agencies. The congressmen fear they will lead to a single service, a traditional bugaboo of Congress.

Other congressional news: Censorship: Undersecretary of State George W. Ball will answer a Senate subcommittee's question today about a written report he submitted to the panel on speech censorship policies. He faced questioning by the subcommittee studying alleged "muzzling" of military officers. Ball maintains that the State Department has done a creditable job of speech reviewing.

Trade: The House Ways & Means Committee was expected today to give its final approval to President Kennedy's proposed liberalized trade policy. It will meet behind closed doors before reporting out the bill. The measure will probably face the expected tough floor fight the week after next.

Un-Americans: The House Committee on Un-American Activities was scheduled today to open four days of public hearings with a session devoted to Communist party structure and activities in the Cleveland, Ohio, area. Even before the hearings began, the committee was criticized because of the publication in Cleveland newspapers of 38 names identified as witnesses who have been summoned to appear at the hearings.

The Era Of Multiple Use Products Here

By DICK WEST United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you build a better mousetrap, you had better make certain that it will do something besides catch rats.

Otherwise, you won't make enough out of it to pay for the cheese to bait it with.

The age when fortunes could be made with single purpose inventions has just about vanished. Nowadays the world won't beat a path to your door unless you build a combination mousetrap and vacuum cleaner.

Any doubt that we are living in an era of multiple use products can be dispelled by looking over the list of winners in a recent design contest sponsored by a Pennsylvania department store.

Seldom has one contest produced so many clever ideas, if "clever" is the word that I'm groping for.

Take a bridal gown, which is ordinarily a big waste of money. A girl never gets to wear it a second time unless she shucks her husband and remarries, which also can be a big waste of money.

Well, one of the contest winners was a bridal gown that can be converted into a cocktail dress. Makes it possible to be practical without getting a divorce.

Another winner that caught my eye was a "krushable" hat, which I at first associated with the headgear worn by the Soviet premier, but, no.

This is a hat that a fellow can stick in his pocket when he enters a restaurant and thus avoid checking it in. Should go nicely with a prize-winning suit, which has 19 pockets.

I likewise fancied a casting rod with a radio built into the handle. Brings in rockfish and rock-'n'-roll simultaneously. Or maybe opera and octopus.

For really all-around use, however, I'll take the golf scooter that can be used for lawn mowing, or the combination ballpoint pen and flashlight, which can be used for writing in the dark. I do some of my best writing in the dark.

You have to find the pen before you can turn it on, and for this you can slip on a prize-winning pair of shoes that have a light bulb in the toe. Then all you need is a light to help you find the shoes.

It's easy to see why a clock-radio-barometer won a prize. It gives you not only music and the time, but the weather as well.

Equally deserving of a prize was a vibrator chain that can be used either for weight reducing or for learning how to do the "twist."

But by far my favorite winner in the versatile design contest was a "three-in-one bomb shelter unit." It can be used either as a stretcher, a bed or a burial unit.

URGES CUBA INVASION

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Homer E. Capehart, R-Ind., called Sunday for a U.S. military invasion of Cuba to oust Fidel Castro's Communist regime.

Capehart, in a radio interview, said it did not make sense to send troops 10,000 miles away to Thailand and not send them to Cuba only 90 miles from the United States.

Our words, chincry, crucus, hysop, myrrh and saffron originated in Mesopotamia.

ESCAPES INJURY

"Electronics" Answers Serious Problems

For years some people have been handicapped by not being able to understand voices in noisy places — difficult understanding in group conversations — hearing but not understanding the words. Fidelity Electronics has developed a new AUTOMATIC VOLUME CONTROL SYSTEM that virtually eliminates these serious problems. For those people in the Pampa area who would like more information on this or other hearing problems, contact Mr. Carl Bush at the Coronado Inn between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 5, 1962, or write to: Amarillo Hearing Aid Center, 2402 Lyman Drive, Amarillo, Texas.

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If conservative-minded citizens were as alert as they should be, you would have been reading before this about Senate Joint Resolution 12 and what it could accomplish toward cutting down on the size of the pressure-group left wing of American politics. The joint resolution is now pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

S. J. Res. 12 is a proposal to amend the U. S. Constitution. More specifically it is a proposal for changing the method of choosing the members of the electoral college whom the voters elect by ballot. The members of the electoral college thereupon cast their own ballots and it is their ballots that determine who shall be elected president and vice president of the United States.

It is in the system of electing the electors that this machinery for choosing a president and vice president collides head-on with the principles of equity and fair play. This is the general ticket system in which states of electors — each state representing a political party and its presidential and vice presidential nominees — runs at large in each state.

The proposed amendment—S. J. Res. 12—would change this. Each state elects as many electors as it numbers in its congressional representation, the number of senators and representatives combined. S. J. Res. 12 would provide that each state choose its electors as it chooses its congressional delegation. Two would be chosen at-large, by state-wide vote, as U. S. senators are chosen. The others would be chosen, each individually in a congressional district, as U. S. representatives are chosen.

These two political powerhouses are notably affiliated with the Democratic party in the big industrial states. Therefore S. J. Res. 12 would be a severe blow to the Democratic party in the proportion that it diminished the political influence of pressure groups which in the past generation have enabled the Democrats to elect their presidential tickets.

The pressure groups whose backs would be fractured if this amendment prevailed are the big-city, big-state pressure groups: labor and the racial blocs. Most specifically, AFL-CIO and NAACP each would lose much influence in presidential elections.

Three Thefts Reported By Local Police

Three automobiles, parked at the home of J. C. Roberts, 2301 Christine, were looted by thieves sometime Saturday night, according to a report filed with police by Roberts Sunday afternoon.

The loot included two cans of motor oil additive, two shirts and a pair of slacks, a 38-caliber revolver and a bowling ball.

The stolen items were taken from cars owned by Roberts, Steve Hill of Canyon, and Cecil E. Neef of Dallas. Total value was placed at $117.15.

M. C. Bennett, Echo Service Station, 1534 N. Hobart, reported that someone broke into an outside soft drink vending machine and stole a small amount of change.

Another theft report was made by Mrs. Imogene Summers, 1010 S. Reid, who stated someone entered a store room at her home and stole two baseball gloves, a football, 3 helmets, and a toy gun and belt.

All of the items were recovered when police rounded up two boys, age 9 and 11 years. They admitted stealing the articles and were released in custody of their parents.

unaware of the fate in store for them.

There were at least 30 married couples aboard the plane. Most were in their 50s or older but immediate survivors included at least 31 children.

One family of six was wiped out — Frederick W. Bull Jr., his wife, their two daughters, Bull's mother and his uncle.

As great as the disaster was, it might have been worse. A few degrees difference in the direction of its death plunge would have carried the plane into the cottages of Villeneuve le Roi residents.

The crash happened shortly after 12:30 p.m. The worst previous disaster involving a single plane was the crash of a U. S. Globemaster near Tokyo on June 18, 1953, in which 129 were killed.

Of the 122 passengers, all were Americans except Paul Doisan, Air France's representative in Atlanta.

The U.S. Embassy held off any arrangements for shipping the bodies back home until the arrival of Mayor Allen and other representatives from Atlanta.

Floodwaters Swamp Kansas Wheat Belt

By United Press International
Floodwaters churned through the Kansas wheat belt today in the wake of weekend thunderstorms which sent funnel clouds maneuvering over Texas and Missouri.

At least 25,000 acres of Kansas farmland was inundated by the Little Arkansas, Solomon, Marmaton, Black Vermillion and Cottonwood rivers and along Chapman and Chisholm creeks. More flooding, was expected as river crests moved downstream.

The U. S. Weather Bureau reported that several tornadoes touched down in Missouri Sunday. One twister dipped down three times near Clarence but did no damage. The weather bureau reported that funnel clouds were seen near Columbia.

A tornado was seen in southeast Texas near Anahuac, but no damage was reported. Hail the size of apricots fell along the Texas Gulf Coast and there was rain throughout much of east Texas. Austin measured 1.56 inches of rain in six hours Sunday night.

The rain was blamed for a two-car collision near Paris, in which five persons were killed and three were hurt.

Nashville, Tenn., had nearly two inches of rain in six hours. Omaha, Neb., had 1.55 inches. Cedar Rapids and Waterloo, Iowa, each got an inch of rain and Memphis, Tenn., and Raleigh, N. C. had nearly an inch.

Warmer weather was due today

Two Rescued After Crash

SILVER CITY, N.M. (UPI)—Two men whose plane crashed Saturday in the Black Range mountains of southwestern New Mexico were reported in fair condition today at a hospital here.

Two U.S. Forest Service helicopters rescued them early Sunday after two parachutists and a doctor administered first aid throughout the night.

The pilot, Wendel O. Schroll, 4, of Redding, Calif., suffered a broken wrist, fractured ribs, a dislocated elbow and lacerations. He underwent surgery Sunday.

Robert M. Ingraham, a 19-year-old free-lance reporter and photographer from Silver City, suffered several cuts and lacerations.

The men were spotting and taking pictures of forest fires burning in the Gila National Forest when their single-engine T-34 crashed about five miles west of Hillsboro Peak in Noondun Canyon. The crash was discovered shortly afterward and two smoke-jumpers parachuted in to administer first aid. Dr. C. C. Cobb, the mayor of Silver City, rode into the remote area on horseback with eight more smokejumpers.

He administered first aid while the smokejumpers cleared a path for the helicopters to land.

Revolt Aborts In Venezuela

PUERTO CABELLO, Venezuela (UPI)—Government troops today pushed a mop-up of diehard rebels involved in an abortive revolt which President Romulo Betancourt blamed on leftists. Casualties were estimated at more than 400.

The main fighting between loyal troops and the Communist-backed navy insurgents appeared ended, but snipers continued to fire at government forces from private dwellings and rooftops. Some rebel units were reported fleeing to the mountains in the south.

There was no official announcement on casualties, but a government chaplain, Father Natalio D. Rivera, estimated the loyalists alone had at least 120 dead and between 300 and 400 wounded.

Rebel casualties were not known.

Observers speculated the revolt, which followed a similar uprising at the Carupano naval base, would produce a shake-up in the navy high command. It was the third rebellion against the Betancourt regime in a year.

Following fierce block-to-block fighting early Sunday, government troops, heavy tanks and mobile artillery patrolled the city streets. A curfew was enforced on civilian residents of the city.

Betancourt said in a speech Sunday night that "dictatorial and leftist forces" were behind the revolt and were responsible for the bloodshed at Carupano and Puerto Cabello.

The president said the rebellious forces were trying to unseat him. He appealed to the Venezuelan people to come to the defense of the constitutional government. He said the army was giving the rebels "the lesson they deserve."

The brief revolt broke out Saturday at the big naval base here, about 70 miles west of Caracas.

Texas Death Toll Soars

The first week end of the school summer holiday and rain slick highways produced one of Texas' bloodiest week end violent death tolls of the year.

A United Press International survey for the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday showed 46 violent deaths, including 32 highway fatalities. Sixteen more persons were killed between midnight and 6 p.m. Friday.

Multiple-death auto collisions took many lives. Two auto smash ups Sunday each killed five persons.

Five died north of Paris, when three cars smashed together in a rainstorm.

Early Sunday a car collided with a log truck just south of Crockett. Four persons were dead at the scene and a fifth died a short time later.

Little League Injuries Few

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — At the typical little league game, pop tops buttons when the pride of the family slams one into the apple orchard.

Junior's so nappy about the first home run that tears track down his dusty cheeks.

And what does mom do? She shares in the excitement. But many a mom of a little league player also twists a handkerchief or develops some other worrywart habit. She's concerned about the offspring's safety.

Accidents do occur. But there's balm of sorts for the worried moms in a report on injuries among 771,810 little league baseball players.

The analysis, by Dr. Creighton Hale of Little League Baseball Inc., Williamsport, Pa., puts the injury incidence at two per cent. During the five years covered in the survey, injuries tallied 15,444, said a report to the American College of Sports Medicine.

Now is that good — or bad? Dr. Bruce W. Everist, chairman of the Accident Prevention Committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics, answers the question this way:

"This data should be reassuring to statistically minded parents of little leaguers."

Dr. Hale reported that the great majority of injuries were of a minor nature and that the two per cent incidence was "exceptionally low in view of the great number of exposures."

From pitched balls alone, there were 148 million exposures — or chances for accidents.

"As might be expected," Dr. Hale reported, most of the injuries were caused by the ball which is of hard construction, weighing 5 1/4 ounces, pitched at speeds up to 70 miles an hour and batted at speeds of approximately 85 miles an hour.

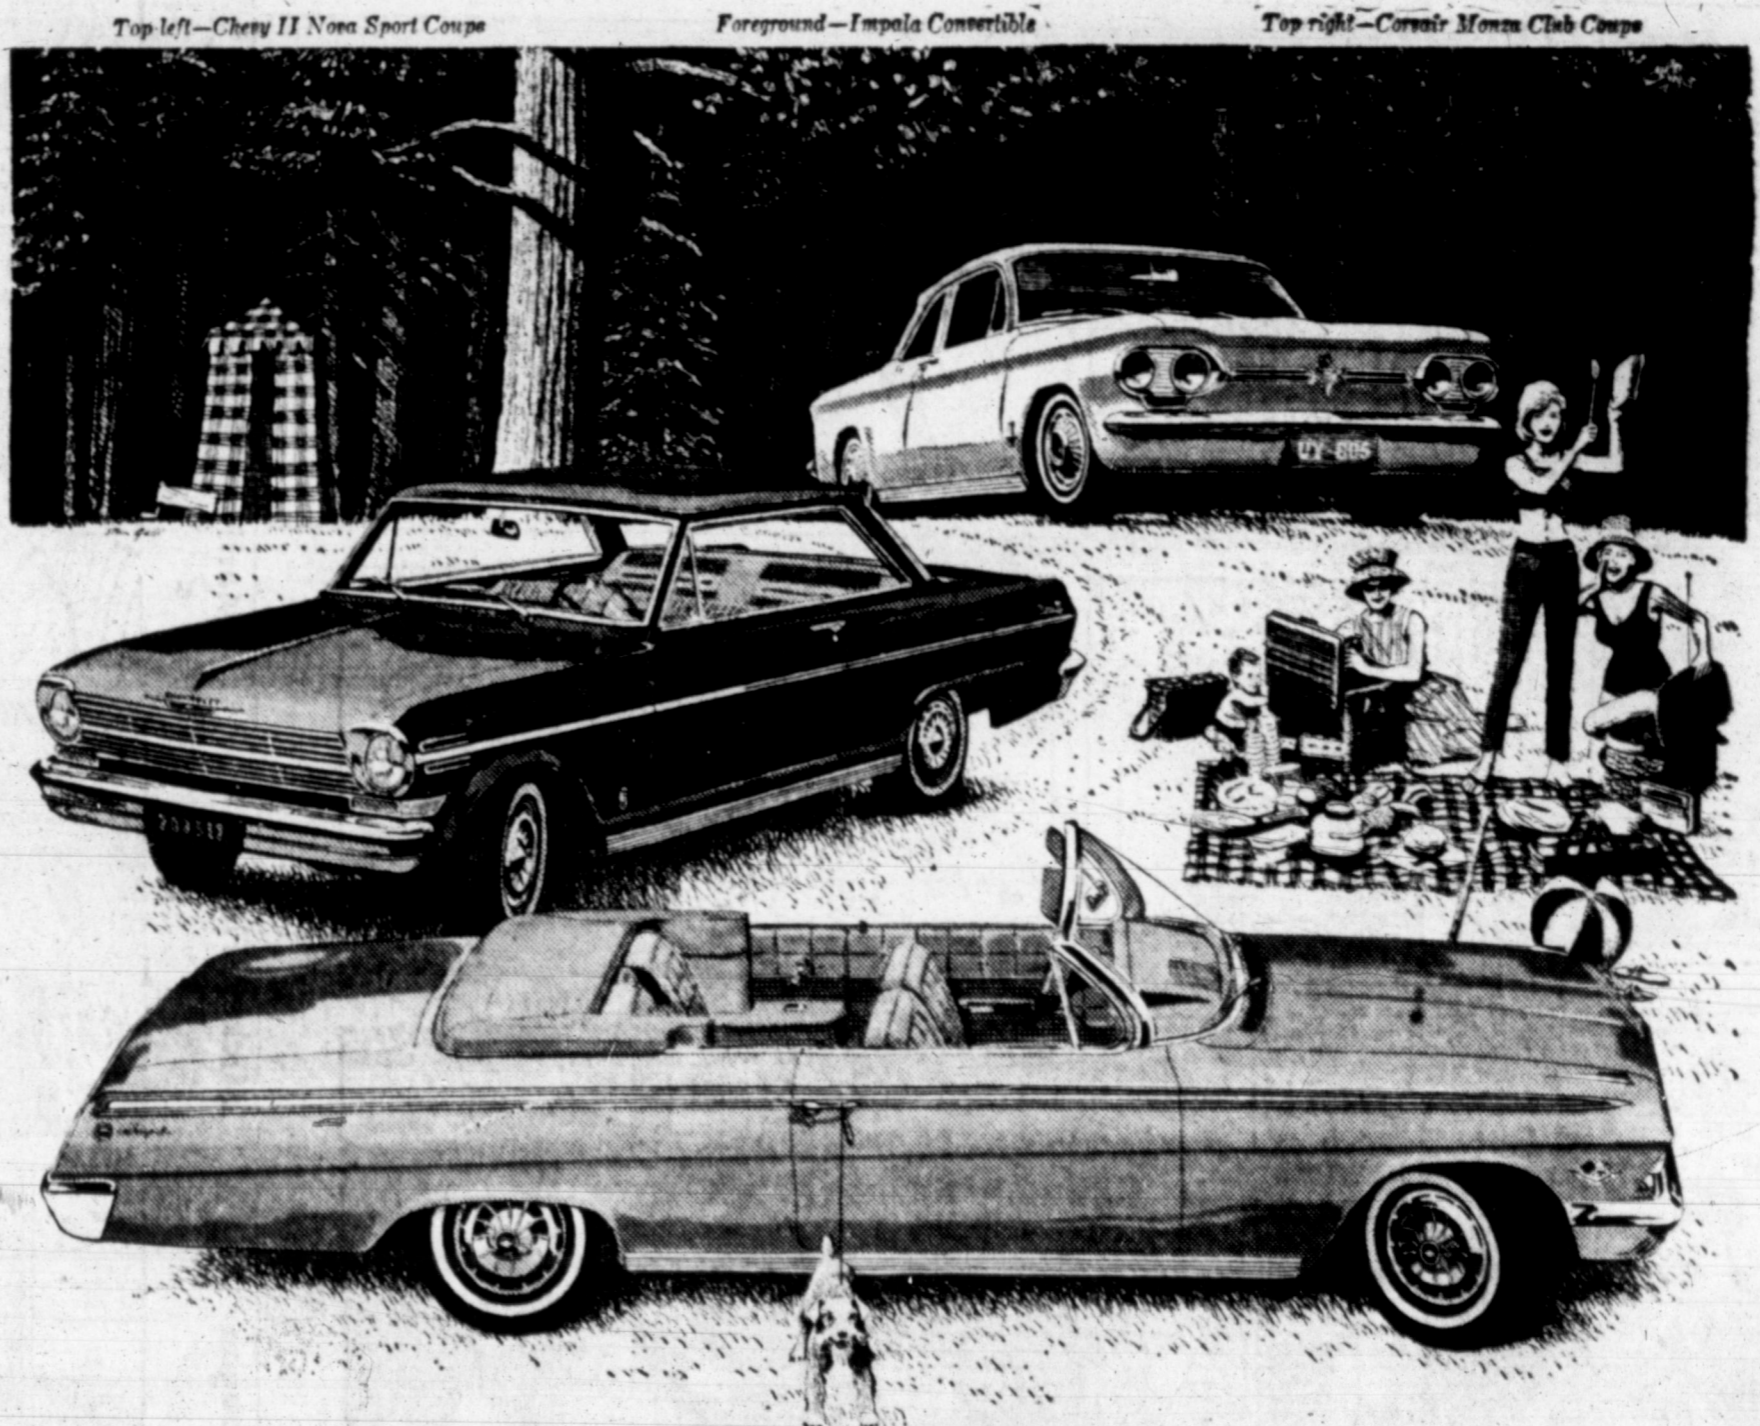

The pitched ball caused 21 per cent of the injuries: The batted ball, 19 per cent; catching, 14 per cent; thrown ball, 11 per cent; sliding, 10 per cent; collision, eight per cent; bats, four per cent; falling, four per cent; other, nine per cent.

Cowboys had participated in rodeos long before 1887, but spectators first paid to watch them perform their skills in October of that year.

Dear Abby... Lady Lonesome... But Loaded!!!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have had so much "advice" that I am dizzy. My husband died three years ago and left me a nice business. All my friends are afraid some man is going to marry me for my money. Every time a man shows an interest in me, someone tells me to watch out because he is after my money. I am getting tired of hearing it. You would think I had nothing else to offer. I am lonesome, but I don't have to buy a husband yet. How can I tell for sure if a man is interested in me or my money?

DEAR ABBY: A lady we know was recently discharged from a T.B. sanitarium and, frankly, we are not quite sure how close to get to her. She visited my home yesterday and after she left I sterilized everything she touched. Now I am worried about my children catching T.B. because she hugged them. Is there any danger?

DEAR WORRIED: A "T.B." patient is discharged only when he is "negative." You are safer by far in the company of ex-"T.B.ers" than with those who have never been tested for it. An ex-T.B. patient KNOWS he is negative of infectious germs. Unless one has periodic tests he can never be positive that he is negative.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GIN WIDOW": Better to have a husband who plays it than drinks it.

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 30 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

NOT BAD DEAR NOT BAD: Tell him you're broke.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think I am dumb but I am in love with a girl who lives in another city and I want to write her a letter asking her to marry me. I am no good at writing letters. Abby, I call her every Sunday instead of writing. Please write a letter I can copy and send to her. And make it so good she can't turn me down.

DEAR DICK: When it comes to this kind of a letter, you will have to do it yourself. No matter how poor you think you are at writing letters, she'll think it's one of the most beautiful letters she's ever received. (If she loves you, that is. If she doesn't, MY flowery prose won't help.)

MATURE PARENT

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

My 12-year-old girl is fairly polite to me when we are alone but when we are in public or have people in the house, she starts getting fresh to me. In front of a bus conductor she'll ask me why I never have the fare ready. When we go shopping she'll say to the sales clerk, "My mother never can make up her mind." This weekend when we had some neighbors in for the evening, she told them that she could make the coffee stronger if they wanted her to because I always make it too weak. Why does she do this? I've tried to talk to her about it.

ANSWER: I can't tell you why she does it. But why would you start making sniping comments about your husband in front of other people?

Maybe if you could think about the feelings that would compel you to try to reduce his importance in the eyes of other people, you might discover your daughter's reason for trying to reduce yours.

Usually, when we find ourselves making snide remarks about our husband in front of other people, it is because we are angry at him. We may be angry at him because we suspect him of infidelity and so feel ourselves to be a grave disappointment to him. We may be angry at him because he didn't give us what we expected for an anniversary present. We may be angry at him for any number of reasons. Whatever the reason, we feel that he's given us cause to distrust our importance to him and so seek to reduce his importance.

Have you ever wanted to humiliate your husband in the presence of other people?

It isn't a happy wish, is it? I can't tell you what to do about your daughter's wish to humiliate you before other people. But I can tell you that you yourself will know what to do as soon as you stop thinking of her as a strange, alien, incomprehensible creature whose hurts and angers are different from yours. Let your own experience of the hurt you have felt, when someone you love has seemed to lose his appreciation of you, come back to you as it was. Then you will know what to do about these sniping remarks of your daughter.

There's no sense in my telling you to say to her, "I don't know what I've been doing that has made you feel that you're not important to me. But it's clear I've done something. And I would be grateful if you'd tell me what it is." For such a statement, unless it involves the knowledge that hurt children express themselves much as we express hurt, is parrot talk and rates no answer. Such knowledge is the reward only of the sincerity of a wish for reconciliation with a child. That sincerity is your business, not mine.

Remember the bitter herbs of the Paschal Feast described in the Bible? It consisted of lettuce, dandelion, camomile, and mint, combined with oil and vinegar... a salad with probably the first version of today's popular French dressing!

Spruce Up Furniture For Summertime Use

By KAY SHERWOOD, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

With gardens, patios and pools being slicked up for summer use, it's time to review what we do and don't remember about the care of outdoor furniture.

The folly of believing that outdoor furniture doesn't need any care will be quickly brought to one's attention the first time a guest in a white dress sits down on a dusty, waffle-webbed chair, snags a stocking on splintery wood or lifts an eyebrow at appearances. Faded canvas has a certain charm but a chipped or rust-spotted metal frame doesn't.

For authoritative advice on outdoor housekeeping I went to an outstanding expert, Hendrik van Keppel, the California designer-manufacturer who is concerned the year around with modern furniture's place in the sun.

There are both virtues and drawbacks inherent in each type of furniture used outside, he says, and all types require some sort of regular maintenance. Deterioration must be taken into account; unless properly cared for, aluminum will corrode, steel and iron will rust or stone will crack.

To prevent oxidation and rust, Van Keppel advises that metal furniture be kept clean and waxed or painted, just as you would protect the finish of your automobile. Wax the metal parts with a reliable auto wax.

Cotton cord, canvas or other fabric is cleaned by scrubbing with detergent and, if necessary, bleaching with a mild bleach solution.

Rattan used outside should be kept clean and waxed with furniture wax. Van Keppel warns. It will mildew if allowed to remain damp or dry out and crack if constantly exposed to the sun. Rattan furniture should be replaced in relatively sheltered areas. A coat of furniture wax is also recommended for wooden outdoor pieces.

Plastic coverings need simply to be sponged off routinely with soap and water. If you happen to have sling or camp chairs with leather seats, keep them clean with saddle soap. Lubricate them.

Polly's Quiz

By Polly Cramer

Burlap is a good buy these days and a good bet for smart decorative effects. Burlap long ago ceased to be just something used for bags. This durable, rough-textured fabric is available in a rainbow assortment of colors as well as some stripes. And its homespunlike quality is amiable to both traditional and contemporary surroundings.

Applied to the walls like wallpaper, it camouflages plaster cracks and "loses" nail holes when pictures are moved from place to place. For a different look, use straight hanging, floor-length curtains made of burlap in the same color as that which covers the walls. Deep-knotted cotton fringe or fringed ends of the fabric will add a decorative finish. Also, consider its possibilities for tailored lamp shades. (Burlap looks very well with wood, copper, brass or pewter bases.) It can also be used to cover panel screens.

Dear Polly: Please help me decide what kind of slip covers to get for my couch and two chairs. Living room is painted turquoise with white woodwork. Curtains are white with a turquoise, blue, black and gold design. Would it be best to have slip covers custom made?—Mrs. A. C.

Dear Mrs. A. C.: Indeed, it would be wise to have your new slip covers made to fit those particular pieces. The sofa could be a plain gold and the two chairs covered with narrow blue, black and white stripes.

Dear Polly: We have an older house with white woodwork throughout. Our living room has a red wire cut brick fireplace. The question is: would oak wood paneling on the wall go with white woodwork and the brick fireplace?—Mrs. S. M.

Dear Mrs. S. M.: Natural oak paneling with white woodwork would look just like what it would be—an afterthought. White painted wood paneling would be much prettier with both the woodwork and the red fireplace.

Dear Polly: I live in a fairly large colonial house. My dining

Dock Goss Might Just Be Another Sam Snead

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's a new Sam Snead about to come swinging out of the Tennessee mountains and first reports are that he'll make George Bayer look like a fellow who needs vitamins.

Dock Goss is the man's name and when they spring him on the tour within the next couple of months you'll be reading screams about him. For in an era of pallid par-busters who hide in motel anonymity Goss is loaded with the Snead color.

Down at Whittle Springs Golf Club, legend has it, when anybody asked Dock where the clubhouse was he would pick up his tractor and a point the right direction.

Anyhow, if what they say is half true, this fellow is going to create a real sensation. In Tennessee they claim he can drive a ball from one mountaintop to another. They can't turn him loose on the tour yet because he has to get used to playing the flat courses.

There has to be something in it because Goss already has been signed up by Spalding, and the golf companies just don't do this unless a guy has a chance for a national reputation. Dock, they say, is a cinch.

His hands are so big they completely hide the grips of his clubs. He wears a 12-E shoe and stands six feet, five inches tall, but weighs "only" 225 pounds. Dock, being an orphan, never went to school, giving rise to the story that he signed his contract with an "X" and according to one intimate "so poor he don't have two nickels to rub together."

All of which will alter with lightning rapidity if half the stories of his par-busting prowess are true.

The 25-year-old "phenom" has, according to reports, mashed the ball 435 yards. He also once made a two on a 590-yard, par-five hole at Madisonville, Tenn., Country Club — holing out his second shot with a wedge.

There's another story concerning the 590-yard, par-five 18th hole at Whittle Springs, where Dock long has been a greenskeeper and assistant pro. There is a creek on this hole about 280 yards from the tee, which naturally causes some anguish to long hitters. Dock "always" carries 40 yards over the creek with his tee shot.

His trouble then, he complains, is that he usually goes over the green by 40 or 50 yards if he uses a four wood for his second shot.

Dock won the Knoxville Open last year, plus the Oak Ridge Open and the Dunbar Cave Tournament.

His best score was a 59, a mere 11 shots under par, at the Rockwood, Tenn., Country Club. On some of his less effective days he has shot 10-under-par rounds at Harriman and Madisonville.

Admitting that he doesn't have "no book learnin' to speak about," Dock also confesses to being "hungry." This may be explained by the fact that he is married and has two children.

But if the tales about the Wonder of Whittle Springs are anywhere near what they say, Dock is on his way. There's already talk of matching him with the ball-busting Bayer for the driving championship of the world.

— Stand back and give the man room to swing.

Cicada Will Try For Third Leg

By United Press International
Cicada, so brilliant a filly that she's been known to hold her own with the boys, will bypass the Belmont Stakes and concentrate on the third leg of the filly triple crown—the $10,000 Added Coaching Club American Oaks.

A victory in the June 23 Oaks would give Cicada a clean sweep. She scored in the Acorn Stakes May 19 and added the Mother Goose Saturday at Belmont Park.

Cicada, 3-year-old daughter of Bryan G., led all the way in winning the $85,175 Mother Goose to give her a career record of 17 triumphs in 24 starts and earnings of $559,176—a record for fillies. She has never finished out of the money.

Cicada, also nominated for racing's triple crown, made it four in a row this year after being nosed out by Ridan in the Florida Derby.

Willie Shoemaker was aboard the bay filly, defeating Firm Policy by a length in the 1 1/4 mile event. Cicada was clocked in 1:50 flat and paid $3.70.

At Delaware Park, Affectionately, a 2-year-old daughter of Swaps, extended her unbeaten streak to five by winning the $23,900 Polly Drummond Stakes. Affectionately, ridden by Ismael Valenzuela paid $3.40.

Jets Pat, 4-year-old son of Jet Pilot, won the $18,825 Oceanport Handicap at Monmouth Park by overcoming Beau Admiral with a powerful closing rush. Jets Pat returned $16.00.

Winonly added the $27,950 Hollywood Express Stakes as his third sprint stakes victory at the Hollywood Park meeting. Winonly paid $5.20 and was ridden to a length victory by Willie Harms.

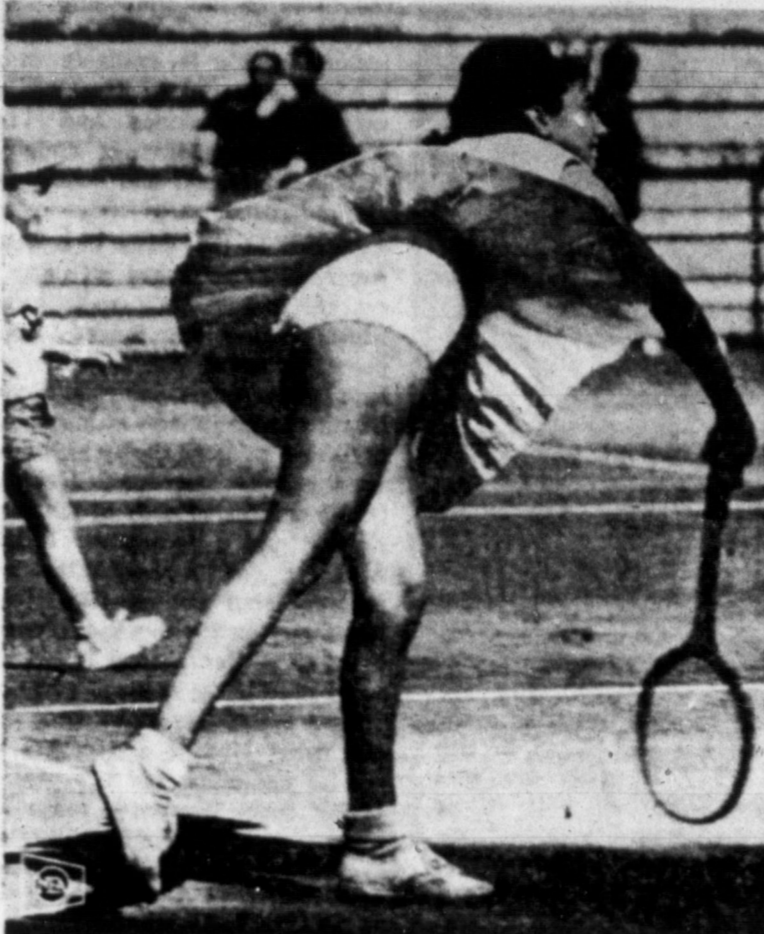

At Washington Park, Editorialist scored a neck victory over Intervener in the $37,205 Clang Handicap. Herb Hinojosa rode Editorialist to a $9.20 payoff.

FRISKY FELLER — This youngster by King Bruce II is out of Rough Morning, a half sister to Ridan. In the first three dams of this colt there are 14 stake winners. He belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lyons, was foaled at their Illinois stud.

Hebert Winner Of Memphis Tourney

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Lionel Hebert, with the round face of a cherub and accuracy of a slide rule, rammed home a 30-foot birdie putt Sunday on the first extra hole of a three-way sudden death playoff against Gary Player and Gene Littler to win the $40,000 Memphis Open golf tournament.

The three shotmakers completed regulation 72-hole medal play with 13-under-par 167 totals. The 34-year-old Hebert won $6,400 for his pressure-packed triumph over the rain-soaked Colonial Country Club layout.

Defending National Open champion Littler shot a four-under-par 66 in the final round while South African Player carded a 68. The stocky 28-year-old former Masters' champ, who has never won a playoff, was involved in a similar situation here in 1959, when Don Witt downed Player and Al Balding for the title.

Hebert, whose older brother, Jay, led the field going into the finals, snatched the lead with a birdie barrage featuring a spectacular 50-yard approach shot which took just one bounce before nestling into the cup on the 5th hole. He toured the final round in 67.

"I hit my best drive of the day on the 73rd hole," said the stocky member of the Lafayette, La.,

Hebert clan. "I was mad at myself for the way I played the last six holes and made up my mind not to leave my birdie putt short on the playoff hole."

Light-haired Littler ran in an eight-foot putt on the 72nd hole to gain the playoff berth. Player, in black shirt and trousers, scrambled for his par five on the 500-yard finishing hole.

Strong young Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia, recorded a 67 Sunday to tie Jay Hebert at 268, one stroke behind the leaders. The blond Aussie carded the low score of the tournament Friday with a sizzling 63.

Don January, who stroked a 67 Sunday, and Tommy Jacobs with a 71, were deadlocked at 267 for fourth place.

Pre-tournament favorite Arnold Palmer, who had four consecutive tournament wins going into the Memphis shootout, shot a 70 in his final for 278. The Pennsylvania money king, plagued by a cold the first two rounds when he fired a pair of 71s, won $563 to add to his previous winnings of $59,308. His best round was a 66 Saturday.

Dr. George Coors of Memphis copped amateur honors by shooting a 70 for a 72-hole aggregate of 283. The local physician rushed from the operating room Friday to card a three-under-par 67 on his way to the title.

Colts Are Going On Up While Mets Going Down

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

The Houston Colts and the New York Mets, major league baseball's two newest teams, were at opposite ends of the rainbow today.

Where unadulterated joy pervaded the Colts' camp following their first doubleheader victory, nothing but gloom surrounded the bedraggled Mets, who nursed the season's longest losing streak which now has reached 15 games.

The Colts, who went for youth in their building program, flexed muscles more becoming of the high-riding San Francisco Giants or New York Yankees in bopping the Pittsburgh Pirates, 10-6 and 10-3. Sunday to move to within four games of the first division in the National League.

The Mets, on the other hand, finding out the hard way that you can't win with yesterday's stars, dropped a 6-1 decision to the NL-leading Giants, leaving them buried in the cellar with the worst record in the major leagues.

The Colts, led by Carl Warwick, Ramon Mejias, Bob Lillis and Norm Larker, sprayed a total of 31 hits over Forbes Field during the doubleheader, cooling off the Pirates who had won 10 of their last 11 games.

After juggling 16 players in the first game victory which went to knuckballer Bob Tiefenauer, the Colts sewed up the second game in a hurry, scoring seven runs in the first inning to make it a breeze for Ken Johnson.

Warwick, young outfielder recently picked up from the St. Louis Cardinals, had six hits. Mejias and Lillis had four each in the nightcap and Larker had four for the two games. One of Mejias' hits was his 13th homer.

The Giants, taking advantage of the Los Angeles Dodgers' two straight losses to the Philadelphia Phillies, widened their NL lead to 2 1/2 games to all but make the Dodgers' recent 13-game winning streak just so much exercise.

However, the Mets, who find ways to beat themselves, made it a tough battle Sunday before finally yielding. Bob Miller matched San Francisco ace Juan Marichal strikeout for strikeout for six innings before another enthusiastic crowd at New York's Polo Grounds, and then the roof fell in. Five hits and a hit batsman in the seventh gave the Giants five runs.

Marichal, in winning his eighth game against three defeats, held the Mets to six hits, and their only run was unearned. Willie Mays, hearing boos in the Polo Grounds for the first time in his career, hit his 19th home run in the sixth inning to tie the score at 1-1.

In other NL games, the Phillies exploded for five runs in the fourth inning to beat the Dodgers, 7-5; the Chicago Cubs parlayed home runs by Billy Williams and George Altman plus some fine relief work by Don Elston into a 6-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds, and the Milwaukee Braves scored five runs in the first inning and made them stand up for a 6-4 victory over the slumping Cardinals.

The Yankees moved into a first-place tie with the Cleveland Indians in the American League race by beating the Los Angeles Angels, 6-3, while the Indians dropped an 8-8 decision to the Detroit Tigers, who moved to within one game of the top. In other AL games, the Chicago White Sox shutout the Baltimore Orioles, 2-0, and the Minnesota Twins won from the Washington Senators, 7-3. Boston at Kansas City was postponed because of rain.

The Phillies overcame a four-run deficit with rallies in the third and fourth innings to send Johnny Podres down to his fourth loss in seven decisions. Johnny Callison did most of the damage with four hits and three r.b.i.s.

Elston came to the relief of rookie Cal Koonce in the ninth after Williams' 11th home run and Altman's 12th had accounted for four of the six Chicago runs. The victory snapped Cincinnati's winning streak at four games.

Del Grandall's bases-loaded double triggered a five-run Braves spurge in the first inning and the Cards, who went down to their eighth straight loss, never recovered. Bob Hendley was the winner, although he needed help from Hank Fischer. Bob Gibson took the loss, his fourth against six victories.

Elston Howard hit a pair of two-run homers and Johnny Blanchard contributed three hits and batted in two runs to pace the Yankees to their victory. Marshall Bridges choked off a three-run rally by the Angels in the eighth inning to preserve Roland Sheldon's third victory.

Thomas Might Go To Cards

NEW YORK (UPI)—Home-run hitting Frank Thomas heading for the St. Louis Cardinals? That was the buzz around the New York Mets' clubhouse Sunday after they suffered their 15th straight setback in a 6-1 defeat at the hands of the San Francisco Giants.

"We're gonna make some changes within the next few days," said Casey Stengel. "That's for sure. And we're liable to make some other changes after that, before the June 15 trading deadline."

As always, Casey declined to identify which of his players will move on.

"I'll tell you this, though, there isn't anyone on this club who wouldn't deal if we could help ourselves doing so," Stengel said. "They could even have our best player if the deal is right."

By "best player," Casey obviously was referring to Thomas, who leads the Mets with 13 homers and is among the National League's leading hitters with a .326 batting average.

According to reports, the Mets would give up Thomas if they could get pitcher Ernie Broglio and outfielder Charlie James in return.

Giants owner Horace Stoneham conferred with Mets president George Weiss before Sunday's game and the Mets tried to get outfielder Willie McCovey for pitcher Roger Craig, but the Giants turned that one down.

Tulsa Splits Doubleheader To Remain On Top In Texas Loop

By United Press International
Tulsa split a doubleheader while its main challenger was idled by rain Sunday night to remain on top of the Texas League standings.

The Oilers lost to Austin, 4-4, in the first game, but roared back to take the nightcap, 4-3. Albuquerque and Amarillo also split a twinbill—Albuquerque copped the first game, 2-1, and Amarillo captured the second game by the same margin.

El Paso, just one game behind Tulsa in second place, and San Antonio could not play their scheduled doubleheader because of rain at San Antonio.

Austin is now two games behind Tulsa; San Antonio is 2 1/2 games out; Albuquerque is 3 1/2 games away; and last-place Amarillo is 11 1/2 games off the pace.

Leading Pros In Qualifying Tests

By United Press International
Cary Middlecoff, Jay and Lionel Hebert, Jackie Burke and many of golf's other leading pros join the competition today in the 36-hole qualifying tests for the U.S. Open championship.

The final qualifying rounds will be played at 13 cities today and Tuesday for 13 starting positions in the National Open tournament to be played at Oakmont, Pa., June 14-16.

A total of 452 golfers survived in various local qualifying rounds earlier this month. They were joined by 45 pros who were exempt from the local qualifying but must make the grade in these final sectional rounds.

A total of 19, including defending champion Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jerry Barber, were exempt from any qualifying.

The starting field at Oakmont will number 150.

A total of 27 places were due to be decided today at Memphis, Tenn. The field there was large because that was the site for the Memphis Open tournament during the past weekend. Lionel Hebert won that tourney.

The largest sectional qualifying field will compete on Tuesday at Upper Montclair, N. J., site of the next stop on the pro tour. A total of 104 golfers will shoot for 32 Open berths.

Among the New Jersey field will be Sam Snead, Jack Fleck, Tony Manero, Bob Rosburg, Jim Ferrier, Don Fairfield, Al Geiberger, Stan Leonard and Phil Rodgers.

Louisville extended the losing streak of cellar-dwelling Oklahoma City to nine games. Fred Olivo's five hit shutout gave the Colonels the final game, 3-0, after Phil Niekro took the 5-4 opener.

Jim Umbricht and Jerry Nelson suffered the losses.

Mays Shrugs Off Boos In Series With New York Mets

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Let 'em boo me! I don't play here anymore."

That was how Willie Mays tried to shrug off the unexpected boos at the Polo Grounds Sunday, but even though he made light of them, it was obvious they hurt.

Willie received the catcalls from many in the crowd of 34,102 as he stepped to the plate in the sixth inning. The Mets were leading the Giants, 1-0, at the time, and Mays had struck out on his two previous times up, making five consecutive strikeouts for him dating back to Saturday's second game of a doubleheader.

"Believe me, those boos didn't bother me a bit," said Willie, trying just a bit too hard to be convincing. "If they had booed me at home, in San Francisco, that would be something different. That would really hurt me. But the ones here didn't. This ain't my home any more."

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Eighteen years ago this Wednesday, Adolf Hitler relaxed at his mountain retreat with his mistress; German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was home for his wife's birthday, and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower prayed.

It was D-Day, June 6, 1944, and the Germans had been lulled into thinking bad weather would deter an Allied invasion. Sunday night, with rare films that swept from the highest headquarters to the most lowly invasion boats, NBC-TV's "Show of the Week" told the story of that largest military landing in history.

Narrated sparingly and poetically by actor Richard Basehart, and accompanied by a musical score by Elmer Bernstein that caught the clashing horror of war and the exhilaration of triumph, the program's newsreel shots were abetted by captured film never before aired.

And out of this film emerged, once again, the fascination of the tragic military genius, Rommel—who eventually realized Hitler's madness, who became involved in the unsuccessful general's plot to kill the Nazi dictator with a planted bomb, and who won tributes from Sir Winston Churchill and other foes.

Captured footage showed Rommel inspecting the "Atlantic Wall" of German defense, which appalled him with its inadequacy. He bolstered it with devilish devices: pointed logs, barbed wire and millions of mines which later took their toll when invasion forces slogged ashore.

There was also a superb shot of Eisenhower munching on a sandwich as the then president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, spoke to him in a car.

But perhaps the most brilliant and suspensefully edited film was of the fighting men themselves: American and British soldiers on an invasion boat softly singing "Home on the Range"; paratroopers being visited personally by Ike before they took off; English music hall entertainers performing for many men who soon would die; and the bloody beach scenes caused by wrong landings and lack of protective fire.

One wishes that producer David Wolper had made this fine achievement into two hour-long shows. The wealth of material being compressed into 54 minutes of air time made the program, of necessity, virtually a series of climaxes. Expansion would have allowed for more use of individual experiences as counterpoint to the massive whole—a technique employed masterfully by Cornelius Ryan in his book, "The Longest Day," the story of D-Day now being made into a movie by Darryl Zanuck.

Along these lines, it might have been illuminating to hear from Rommel's chief of staff, Gen. Hans Speidel, now a NATO officer; and dramatic to hear first-hand recollections by G. I. survivors.

One also wonders whether, with all the captured footage and personal stories now available, there might not be a unique documentary in telling the story of D-Day entirely from the German side. According to "The Longest Day," Rommel told an aide he could finish the war in two weeks if he commanded the Allied forces.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch-Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers had astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation 24. At all drug counters.
