Shelter Program Scuttled

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee today dropped a blockbuster on President Kennedy's fallout shelter program. It not only denied the $568 million he asked for mass shelter construction, but also recommended withdrawal of limited funds previously allowed for this purpose.

At the same time it wrote into an $11.5 billion appropriation for assorted government functions a flat ban on federal shelter construction in public buildings or elsewhere "unless the specific projects have been authorized" by appropriate committees of Congress.

The action apparently dealt the coup de grace to a shelter program which Kennedy, in the aftermath of last year's Berlin crisis, said was urgent but which Congress has not liked from the start. "The committee believes that before the nation embarks on an extensive fallout shelter construction program involving billions of dollars, more study and research should be applied to the vast and complex problems involved," the committee advised the House.

The committee allowed $10 million for "further research" in the shelter field. It also approved $65 million of the $126 million requested by the Office of Civil Defense for its non-shelter functions, including warning, stockpile, communications, training and other work.

The shelter turndown highlighted the committee's actions in recommending funds to run 26 government agencies including the growing National Aeronautics and Space Administration in the 12 months that began July 1.

A whopping $3.8 billion was recommended for NASA. This was a cut of only $143,161,000 from the sum requested.

The committee approved $155 million for 33 new public building projects and 12 alterations in 45 cities, a cut of 7 per cent from the money requested, reflecting in part the ban on inclusion of shelters.

The Veterans Administration, a regular big budget item, got every cent of the $5.2 billion it asked. Other agencies mostly got cuts.

Communists Are Arrested In Mexico Town

MEXICALI, Mexico (UPI) — Two Communists were arrested here Thursday after discovery of Lefist propaganda in their possession.

The two were identified as Fernando Diaz Pelayo, a Mexico City University student, and Demetrio Almaguer.

Authorities were reported taking special precautions to avoid disturbances during Aug. 3 municipal elections.

Torrents Flood Homes In North Central Texas Area

Motorists Stranded, Families Evacuated

By United Press International

Cloudbursts flooded homes, hospitals and commercial buildings, cut streets and highways, drowned cattle and blocked thousands of automobiles over a 100-by-150 mile strip of North Central Texas today.

The deluge was heaviest across the northern part of Kaufman, Dallas and Tarrant counties.

Police and Fire Chief Herman Tolbert reported the evacuation of 50-75 families from Mineral Wells.

The official 24-hour rainfall in Kaufman, east of Dallas was 12.75 inches at 6 a. m. A family had to flee a home in northeast Dallas. Police helped residents out of a trailer park in northwest Dallas. Police boats stood by on Barbee Street, east of White Rock Lake in Dallas, to take out residents if the water rises higher.

A flood swept Ralph Stone's laundry truck from the road in Lake Highlands area of Dallas. He leaped out as his truck floated down Dixon's Branch and climbed into a tree, from which firemen rescued him.

A torrent swept a nurse 2 1/2 blocks down a street in Wichita Falls, which did not get as much rain as points to the south.

The basements of the Nazareth and Norwood hospitals were flooded in Mineral Wells, west of Fort Worth. The basements of the Baker and Crazy Horse Hotels in Mineral Wells also were flooded.

Tolbert said soldiers in helicopters from Camp Wolters were watching the dam at Pinto Lake, in the Mineral Wells area.

"I pray to the Lord the dam will hold," Tolbert said. But in case the dam crumbles, he said, he has 51 volunteers taking out residents who would be endangered by flood.

Rain was general over North-east Texas, the northern portion of North Central Texas and into the country east of the Pecos. It was heaviest in the area that caught the cloudbursts.

The regional Weather Bureau at Amon Carter Field between Dallas and Fort Worth said the rain — almost unprecedented in July — was caused by moist air from the Gulf of Mexico overriding cool air aloft.

Heavy Rain Abating
Meteorologists said the heavy rain has started to abate. Showers will continue but become more scattered and probably move northward.

Dallas police reported streets barricaded in 43 places and high water at 21 other points. The rain stalled thousands of cars in Dallas. Bachman Lake flooded a road across from the Northwest District police substation in Dallas and water covered two or three cars.

A cattle truck overturned on Highway 67 where it crosses Mesquite Creek east of Dallas and five of the cattle in the truck drowned.

The city of Mesquite, east of Dallas, was almost cut off by the water. For a time today, Highway 67 provided the only access to Mesquite and it was cut from time to time by intermittent deluges. A sheriff's car reported visibility in the Mesquite area at 100 feet during one rainstorm.

Several families had to get out of their homes in the City Lake area of Mesquite. Six homes were flooded in one block of north Mesquite.

Did Billie Sol Bury Loot?

By WILLIAM E. DONNELLY
United Press International

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — The macabre prospect that Billie Sol Estes might have hidden money in a pauper's grave was injected into Thursday's state court of inquiry into the farm financier's affairs.

Testimony resumes today. Harold Eugene Orr of Amarillo, an indicted associate of Estes, testified he believed Estes has hidden "loot" from his business operations in "somebody's poor grave" at Pecos, Tex. Officials and spectators were stunned.

Orr was being questioned by Potter County Dist. Atty. Frank Baughman when he testified he believed Estes has money stashed away in a mortuary which he built.

"Are you serious?" a surprised Baughman asked.

"I think that is where the loot is stored, in somebody's poor grave," Orr replied.

Orr also said he knows where the mortuary is.

"As far as I know there was only one funeral conducted there and that was a charity case," Orr said.

Orr is one of three associates of Estes who pleaded guilty at El Paso recently to federal charges of fraud and conspiracy. Estes said he was innocent of the same charges.

Laos Premier Visits US In Search For Aid

By STEWART HENSLEY
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prince Souvanna Phouma, neutralist premier of the new coalition government of Laos, meets today with President Kennedy to discuss Communist and pro-Western armed forces and other issues of vital concern to his country.

Souvanna Phouma, who arrived in Washington late Thursday, made it clear that he was interested in seeing what kind of help he could get to bolster the position of his new regime, which includes pro-Communists, pro-Westerners and neutralists.

He told Secretary of State Dean Rusk in an airport statement that he had come here "to discuss the possibility of aid for my country, aid which will help build its future."

Souvanna Phouma was meeting with Rusk just prior to his White House session. Following a business talk with Kennedy, he was scheduled to be guest of honor at a lunch given by the President. He planned to spend the afternoon talking with Treasury Department and foreign aid officials.

The Laotian premier came here from Geneva where representatives of 14 nations last Monday signed an international agreement guaranteeing the independence and neutrality of Laos. The accord ended 14 months of negotiations punctuated by sporadic resurreptions of the civil war which has plagued the country for seven years.

The United States, Britain, Russia, Red China and France were the major powers among those signing the agreement to keep Laos out of the cold war.

Rusk, who attended the Geneva meeting, told Souvanna Phouma at the welcoming ceremony that "we are looking forward to implementation of the Geneva accord." It calls for integrating Communist and pro-Western armed forces and getting Red North Viet Nam troops out of the country.

He told the Laotian premier that his task had "just begun" and wished him the greatest success in the "arduous duties of consolidating your country and establishing it on a basis of independence and neutrality."

CoC Directors To Meet On Monday

Castro Rations Clothing, Says US Is Planning New Attack On Cuba

SANTIAGO, Cuba (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro Thursday coupled new charges that the United States is planning to attack Cuba with an announcement that his shortage-plagued regime is going to have to ration clothing and shoes as well as food.

In a 3 1/2-hour speech on the ninth anniversary of his abortive attack on Santiago's Moncada barracks, Castro charged that "Mr. (President) Kennedy is set on launching an attack against our country."

He addressed a restless crowd of about 100,000 persons jammed into a stadium here in scorching tropical heat. The noise of the crowd angered the bearded premier, and at one point he warned that he would not continue his speech unless the crowd quieted down.

A number of women fainted in 95-degree heat.

Castro said the United States had refused to give his government any assurances "with respect to plans that concern our country."

"Direct Yankee invasion is the only danger that faces our country," he said. "They know that another mercenary invasion (by Cuban refugees) will be wiped out by our powerful weapons."

Castro denounced Cubans who protest against food shortages as "worms" and "fifth columnists" who must be punished.

He gave no details of the government's plan to ration clothing and shoes except to say that "those who work" will have priority in obtaining the scarce items. Food has been rationed in Cuba for some time.

JFK Sets Up Conference To Ease Test Ban Terms

By ALVIN SPIVAK
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy today set up a crucial conference with top diplomatic, military and atomic advisers to discuss the possibility of easing U.S. terms for an East-West nuclear test ban treaty.

Officials said they expected a decision would be announced within the next few days. Indications were that the United States might decide to offer Russia a pact containing fewer safeguards in an effort to win Soviet agreement to ending the nuclear arms race.

The question to be decided was whether new scientific advances in long-range detection made it possible to decrease the number of control posts and international inspections per year on Soviet territory necessary to police such an agreement.

Invited to the White House session were Vice President Lyndon Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, Chairman Glenn Seaborg of the Atomic Energy Commission, Director John McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency, and other high officials concerned.

This top-level advisory group arrived at a set of recommendations for the President at a meeting held Thursday at the State Department. They attempted to reconcile wide differences of opinion among various agencies as to whether the scientific data warranted risking less inspection and control.

Russia has indicated it will be more interested in a test ban treaty after its next round of atmospheric tests.

The United States has been demanding that 19 control posts be set up in Russia, and that an international inspection team be allowed to inspect up to 20 suspicious situations a year.

These could either be underground nuclear tests or ordinary earthquakes.

Russia has agreed to the establishment of a certain number of control posts, but insists they must be manned by Russians. It is opposed to any number of "on-site" inspections by an international group.

Soviet Union Is Taking Out Ads In US Newspapers

By STEWART HENSLEY
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russia has begun purchasing huge advertisements in American newspapers to print the text of Premier Nikita Khrushchev's 13,000-word speech before the Communist-organized World Peace Congress in Moscow earlier this month. And high U.S. officials have some interesting ideas about what's behind this campaign.

They believe the Soviet government is trying:

—To justify in the eyes of the American public a new round of atmospheric nuclear tests, which Khrushchev has announced will begin soon.

—To counter the effect of recent speeches by U. S. Defense Secretary Robert McNamara which are regarded here and abroad as having severely damaged the Russian image of military invincibility.

Three U.S. newspapers so far have carried two-page ads containing Khrushchev's July 10 speech in which he boasted of a new anti-missile missile, blamed the United States for the nuclear test spiral, and depicted Russia as the foremost advocate of world peace.

Washington Counter-Offered
The San Francisco News Call Bulletin carried the advertisement Thursday. The New York Herald Tribune and the Kansas City Star published it last Sunday. In each of the three newspapers the advertisement appeared on pages 6 and 21.

Soviet efforts to purchase space in Washington ran into a counteroffer which the Russian Embassy has failed to accept.

The Washington Post, when offered the advertisement, wrote the Soviet Embassy that it would publish the Khrushchev text in its news columns if one of the official Russian newspapers, Pravda or Izvestia, would do the same with the text of President Kennedy's disarmament speech before the United Nations General Assembly last September.

Post President Philip Graham, in his July 18 letter to the embassy, said he thought it would be a good idea if both the Soviet and American publics understood (See NEWSPAPERS, Page 3)

Infant Deformities Reported From Drug

By RALPH VILLERS
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City health officials said today they had received reports of deformities in at least three babies born to New York women who had obtained the drug thalidomide overseas and taken it during their pregnancies.

In Washington, the federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said that "up to now" it had no reports of American babies born deformed because their mothers took the defect-causing drug.

However, Dr. Harold Jacobziner, an assistant New York City health commissioner, said the FDA apparently meant that it knew of no cases in which the drug was obtained in the United States.

Jacobziner pointed out that the cases he had been informed of involved thalidomide both produced and purchased there by the American women.

Europe under about a dozen trade names, thalidomide never went beyond the clinical testing stage in this country. It has since been withdrawn from the market.

Linked To Births
Thalidomide has been linked to thousands of births in Europe in which the children had deformed arms or legs, or no limbs at all.

The drug and its effects have gained widespread attention in recent days as a result of the case of Mr. Robert L. Finkbine, a Phoenix, Ariz., television personality, who has asked that she be permitted to undergo a legal abortion to terminate her three-month pregnancy. She took the drug, obtained in Europe, during the dangerous early period of pregnancy.

Jacobziner said the cases reported to him involved twins born to a Great Neck, N.Y., woman, and a New York City woman, whose child was born in a U.S. military hospital in Spain.

The Long Island woman had obtained the thalidomide during a West German vacation. One of her twins was born with a deformed leg, the other was suspected of having internal malformations.

Fourth Case Puzzling
The mother who gave birth in Spain had taken a Portuguese-made brand of the drug. Both of her child's arms were deformed.

Jacobziner said a fourth case, involving a baby born without

Mother Awaits Abortion Decision

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — An anguished mother of four hoped to hear today whether the state opposes the performance of an abortion to prevent the birth of a possibly deformed fifth child.

Mrs. Sherri Finkbine, a local television personality on a children's show, and other interested parties sought legal sanction because she took during early pregnancy a tranquilizer that causes malformations in unborn babies.

Time was of the greatest importance to Mrs. Finkbine. She said Thursday she hoped a decision in favor of abortion could be made before she feels her

Ben Bella Moves Supporters Into Algerian Capital

ALGIERS (UPI) — The vanguard of Ahmed Ben Bella's supporters sought to enter Algiers today — a move that could touch off civil war or bring a dramatic end to the political power struggle of newly independent Algeria.

Mohammed Khider, one of the seven men named to Ben Bella's political bureau designed to run Algeria until an elected authority takes over, said Thursday he would arrive in the city about midday from Oran.

If there is no violent reaction from supporters of Provisional Government Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda, Ben Bella himself is expected to follow within 48 hours.

In effect this would extend Ben Bella's already considerable influence to almost all of Algeria but the Kabylie Mountain area stronghold of the Berber tribesmen.

Two of the most fervent revolutionaries and enemies of Ben Bella proclaimed their readiness to fight.

GPRA Vice Premiers Belkacem Krim and Mohammed Boudaif traveled from their headquarters at Tizi Ouzou — 55 miles east of Algiers — to Bougie Thursday to whip up support for their cause among the Berber tribesmen of Kabylia's willaya (military zone) three.

Ruth Millett Better To Marry Late Than Too Early!

A young woman who had a successful career of her own before she settled down to marriage recently had some wise words for girls who think that if they aren't engaged by the time they are 20 they are likely to be old maids. The advice was: "It's terrific being single — as long as you're smart, interesting, fascinating. But if you want a husband you'll get him — and a far better one at that — if you make it a secondary aim. First become a whole, complete person. Stop looking for a husband and start looking for your own personality."

Girls today need that kind of advice because too many of them are so anxious to get married that they are grabbing husbands while they are still in their teens.

If they weren't so sure that marriage is a now-or-never proposition how much better off they would be. They could go on and get an education and leave the young men free to go on and get theirs. They could take time to grow up, to get a job and find out what it is like to be independent. They could enjoy the adventure of being young and free. They could develop their own talents and interests.

And then as young women — not as immature girls — they could choose a husband, one who had also had time to grow up, to decide what he wanted out of life, to have a head start in his career.

All it takes for a girl not to panic and grab the first young man she can lead to the altar is some courage, some self-confidence and enough gumption to be willing to strike out on her own. And she will probably get a better husband at 25 than she would have been willing to take at 18.

X-15 Being Modified For Additional Duty

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI)—Scientists began modifications today on America's X15 rocket ship in preparation for a new era of pioneering experiments by the revolutionary half plane, half spacecraft.

The X15 will fly a two-year program of unique tests that will include photographing of the stars from the realm of space and an attempt to develop improved guidance methods for earth orbiting space vehicles.

The No. 1 version of the three X15's was returned to its hangar to undergo revision following Thursday's flight by test pilot Neil Armstrong, who flew intricate "roller coaster" maneuvers to simulate re-entry from space. Armstrong, likely to become America's first pilot of the Dyna Soar (X20) orbital space glider, rocketed almost 4,000 miles an hour — one of the fastest speeds yet hit by the X15 — and to an altitude of 100,000 feet.

So far as is known, the changes in the No. 1 ship will be the first "flight line" work yet taken for the new "second phase" X15 program — scheduled to take to the sky in the fall.

Scientists said the X15, which already has skyrocketed to a world airplane altitude record of almost 60 miles, could soar "much higher" — possibly to 100 miles above the earth — in the impending experiments.

There also was a possibility it might exceed its present world speed record for winged aircraft of 4,156 miles an hour.

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), said the X15 already had successfully achieved all of its basic goals in the 63 flights it has made since it first took to the air in 1959.

A primary project in the new program will be the experiment in ultraviolet stellar photography, to be called "Star Tracker." The study will be devised and conducted by the University of Wisconsin under a contract from NASA's office of astronomy and solar physics.

Police Probe Thefts And Vandalism

Police today were investigating several reports of theft and vandalism during the past 24 hours.

Burglars broke into a cash box at the United Rent - All, 119 N. Ward, last night and looted it of an undetermined amount of small change.

Store manager Mrs. Virgil Howell told police the burglars gained entrance by cutting the hasp off a rear door. Several desks were ransacked and the cash register was left open.

Mrs. Howell said the cash box contained between 500 and 1,000 pennies and about $4.50 in nickels and dimes.

Police received a report from Harold Thompson, manager of the Cameron Iron Works, Co., 541 Huff Rd., early today that sometime last night, vandals threw several large bolts through seven windows of the company.

Thompson said the windows glass in the front door was also broken out. The desks and walls in the front office were slightly damaged from the shattered glass and bolts.

Officers were also called to the Shamrock Products Co., 605 W. Wilks, near the Cameron Co. company, when employees there reported that sometime last night someone had thrown rocks through five windows on the east side of the building. Nothing was reported missing from either building.

M. C. Stapleton, 211 N. Gillespie, reported to police yesterday afternoon that during the past two weeks, someone entered his garage and stole 2 and one half boxes of .30 - .06 soft nose rifle bullets, one and one half boxes of 12 gauge shotgun shells, and a brown hunting bag which was hanging in a cabinet.

Police today were also investigating a report of a hit and run automobile accident. W. R. Parrish, Star Rt., Pampa, told officers that sometime between 7:30 p.m. and 11:59 p.m. yesterday, another vehicle struck his car while it was parked in the 700 block of W. Foster.

Parrish said his car received extensive front end damage.

Burglars broke into a cash box at the United Rent - All, 119 N. Ward, last night and looted it of an undetermined amount of small change.

Store manager Mrs. Virgil Howell told police the burglars gained entrance by cutting the hasp off a rear door. Several desks were ransacked and the cash register was left open.

Mrs. Howell said the cash box contained between 500 and 1,000 pennies and about $4.50 in nickels and dimes.

Police received a report from Harold Thompson, manager of the Cameron Iron Works, Co., 541 Huff Rd., early today that sometime last night, vandals threw several large bolts through seven windows of the company.

Thompson said the windows glass in the front door was also broken out. The desks and walls in the front office were slightly damaged from the shattered glass and bolts.

Officers were also called to the Shamrock Products Co., 605 W. Wilks, near the Cameron Co. company, when employees there reported that sometime last night someone had thrown rocks through five windows

Religion In America

By LOUIS CASSELS United Press International

In the small town America of an earlier generation, summer was a pretty lively season for churches.

Relatively few families could afford a vacation trip, and those who did go to the beach or the mountains rarely stayed longer than a week.

Knowing that most people would be at home, and that children wouldn't be tied down with school activities, churches planned a big program. Summer was the time for vacation Bible schools, church picnics, Sunday school socials and revival meetings conducted by big-name visiting preachers.

Today, in the typical suburban church, you'll find no such bustle of summer activity. In fact, you'll be lucky if you find anything going on. During July and August, it is standard practice in many churches to suspend Sunday school classes, dismiss the choir, drastically reduce the schedule of worship services, and turn the pulpit over to a succession of substitute preachers who are sometimes chosen for their availability rather than their eloquence.

Some Expect Slump

Some pastors feel that the "summer slump" is unavoidable. They point out that long out-of-town vacations have become the rule rather than the exception for American families. And the automobile makes it easy to get away for a weekend even if a family

Hobart Street Church Slates Activities

Sunday School with closely graded departments and classes for all groups will begin at 9:45 a.m. Sunday at Hobart Street Baptist Church under the lesson title, "Hope Beyond Tragedy," taken from Jeremiah, chapters 29, 30, 32, and 33.

A well-equipped nursery with competent nursery workers care for all children, ages birth through three years of age.

Training union begins at 6 p.m. Rev. John Dyer, the pastor, has chosen for the sermon Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, "Blessings In The Study of Prophecy," the beginning of a series of messages from God's Word of prophetic study.

The Church will observe the Lord's Supper in the evening service. Visitation opportunities will be conducted by the church at 1:30 and 7 on Monday and 9:30 a.m. on Thursday.

Vacation Bible School Preparation Day is Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. All children 3-16 years of age are urged to attend.

Prayer meeting is Wednesday night at 7:30, continuing a study in the book of Joshua.

is theoretically spending the summer at home.

Moreover, they say, the hard-working "regulars" who carry the load of church activity really need a breathing spell during the summer, a chance to let down a little and renew their energy and enthusiasm for the hectic pace which will resume in September.

While acknowledging the force of these arguments, other ministers believe that a church is betraying its Lord when it lies down and plays dead for nearly one fourth of the year. With ingenuity and determination, they say, a church can remain alive year-round.

In the current issue of the Methodist magazine "Together," ministers who have successfully overcome the summer slump tell how they did it.

Should Avoid Absences

The Rev. Bernard T. Lomas, pastor of the Epworth-Euclid Methodist Church of Cleveland, Ohio, says the minister should avoid protracted absences during the summer.

"Although he needs time off for physical and spiritual refreshment, he should not be gone for long periods. Two-week vacations properly scheduled will be of greater benefit to him and his family, without dealing church activity a death blow."

The Rev. Harvey F. Smith, pastor of Saint Andrew's Methodist Church, Jamaica Plain, Mass., said his church conducts its principal Sunday service at 9:30 instead of 11 a.m. during the summer, and encourages the congregation to come in informal dress so that families can start for the nearby seashore, lakes or parks when the service ends.

Urges Good Preaching

The Rev. Mr. Smith also feels that summer should be a time for especially good preaching by the pastor rather than indifferent sermons from substitutes. He pulls the members of his congregation on their most "pressing concerns" and prepares a special series of sermons addressed to those concerns.

"In Colorado, a number of pastors have found it helpful to recruit summer staffs to relieve the Sunday school teachers, choir members, ushers and other church workers who serve most of the year."

"This serves a threefold purpose," said a spokesman for the Rocky Mountain Methodist Conference. "New people, and more people, are involved in the program of the church. Programs are given the impetus of fresh ideas. And regular workers can take a rest, returning refreshed and enthusiastic in the fall."

Although the details of successful summer programs vary from one church to another, they all seem to be animated by the same philosophy. It was expressed succinctly by the Rev. Mr. Lomas: "We realize that people may take a vacation from the church, but we do not think the church should ever take a vacation from the people."

Women In Church

A "Christian Recognition Day for Young Drivers," to be observed a Sunday of each June, has been started in Foundry Methodist Church, Washington, D. C. The program was inaugurated by the church's Young Adult Fellowship, headed by Miss Nancy Scrimshire. She hopes it will be adopted by other churches. Numerous federal, district and private traffic safety officials attended the first service, at which the Rev. Dr. Theodore H. Palmquist, pastor, spoke on "The Christian Driver." Several young persons signed a pledge, prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Public Health Service. It read in part: "Every moment while I drive I will be mindful of the forces under my control and considerate of my obligations to my passengers and to the drivers and pedestrians with whom I share the road."

A gift of $90 has been sent by Presbyterian women's groups in north Formosa to the World Council of Churches for use in relief work for the victims of the landslides in Peru. The letter forwarding the contribution reported that when news of the Peru landslides was received, the women decided immediately to take up an offering because "people in Formosa have suffered from earthquakes and typhoons, so they know about disasters from experience." Those making contributions included groups of tribal women whose standard of living is very low. Some of these gifts were as little as five or ten cents in American currency, but, the letter said, "they are very meaningful in terms of Christian concern and mutual helpfulness."

Until recently no municipal agency in Teheran was equipped to care for the foundlings frequently left in the gutters to die by mothers unable to feed or clothe them. Now the city has a new nursery, built with government and local funds and with counsel from Miss Deen Low, an English child-health expert sent to Iran by the United Nations Children's Fund. In eighteen months Miss Low and her staff have rescued 132 infants abandoned in this fashion—all in advanced stages of malnutrition. Thirty-two of the babies died but the remainder have made excellent recoveries, and 50 of these already have been adopted. All the inmates at the founding nursery are receiving dried milk provided by UNICEF, plus an adequate diet of fruit, vegetables, beef, liver and cereals.

Christian Science Services Outlined

Progress depends on spiritually meaningful activity. This is a theme of the Lesson - Sermon entitled "Truth" at Christian Science church services Sunday.

Scriptural passages will include these verses from Proverbs (4): "Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids look straight before thee. Ponder the path of thy feet, and let all thy ways be established."

A citation to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (p. 323): "In order to apprehend more, we must put into practice what we already know. We must recollect that Truth is demonstrable when understood, and that good is not understood until demonstrated."

The Golden Text is from 1 Timothy (2): "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

First Christian Activities Set

"God Believes In You" is the sermon to be presented at the 10:50 a.m. service at First Christian Church Sunday by the minister, Rev. Glyn B. Asist.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

REV. RODNEY WILLIAMS, ASSOCIATE MINISTER
FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

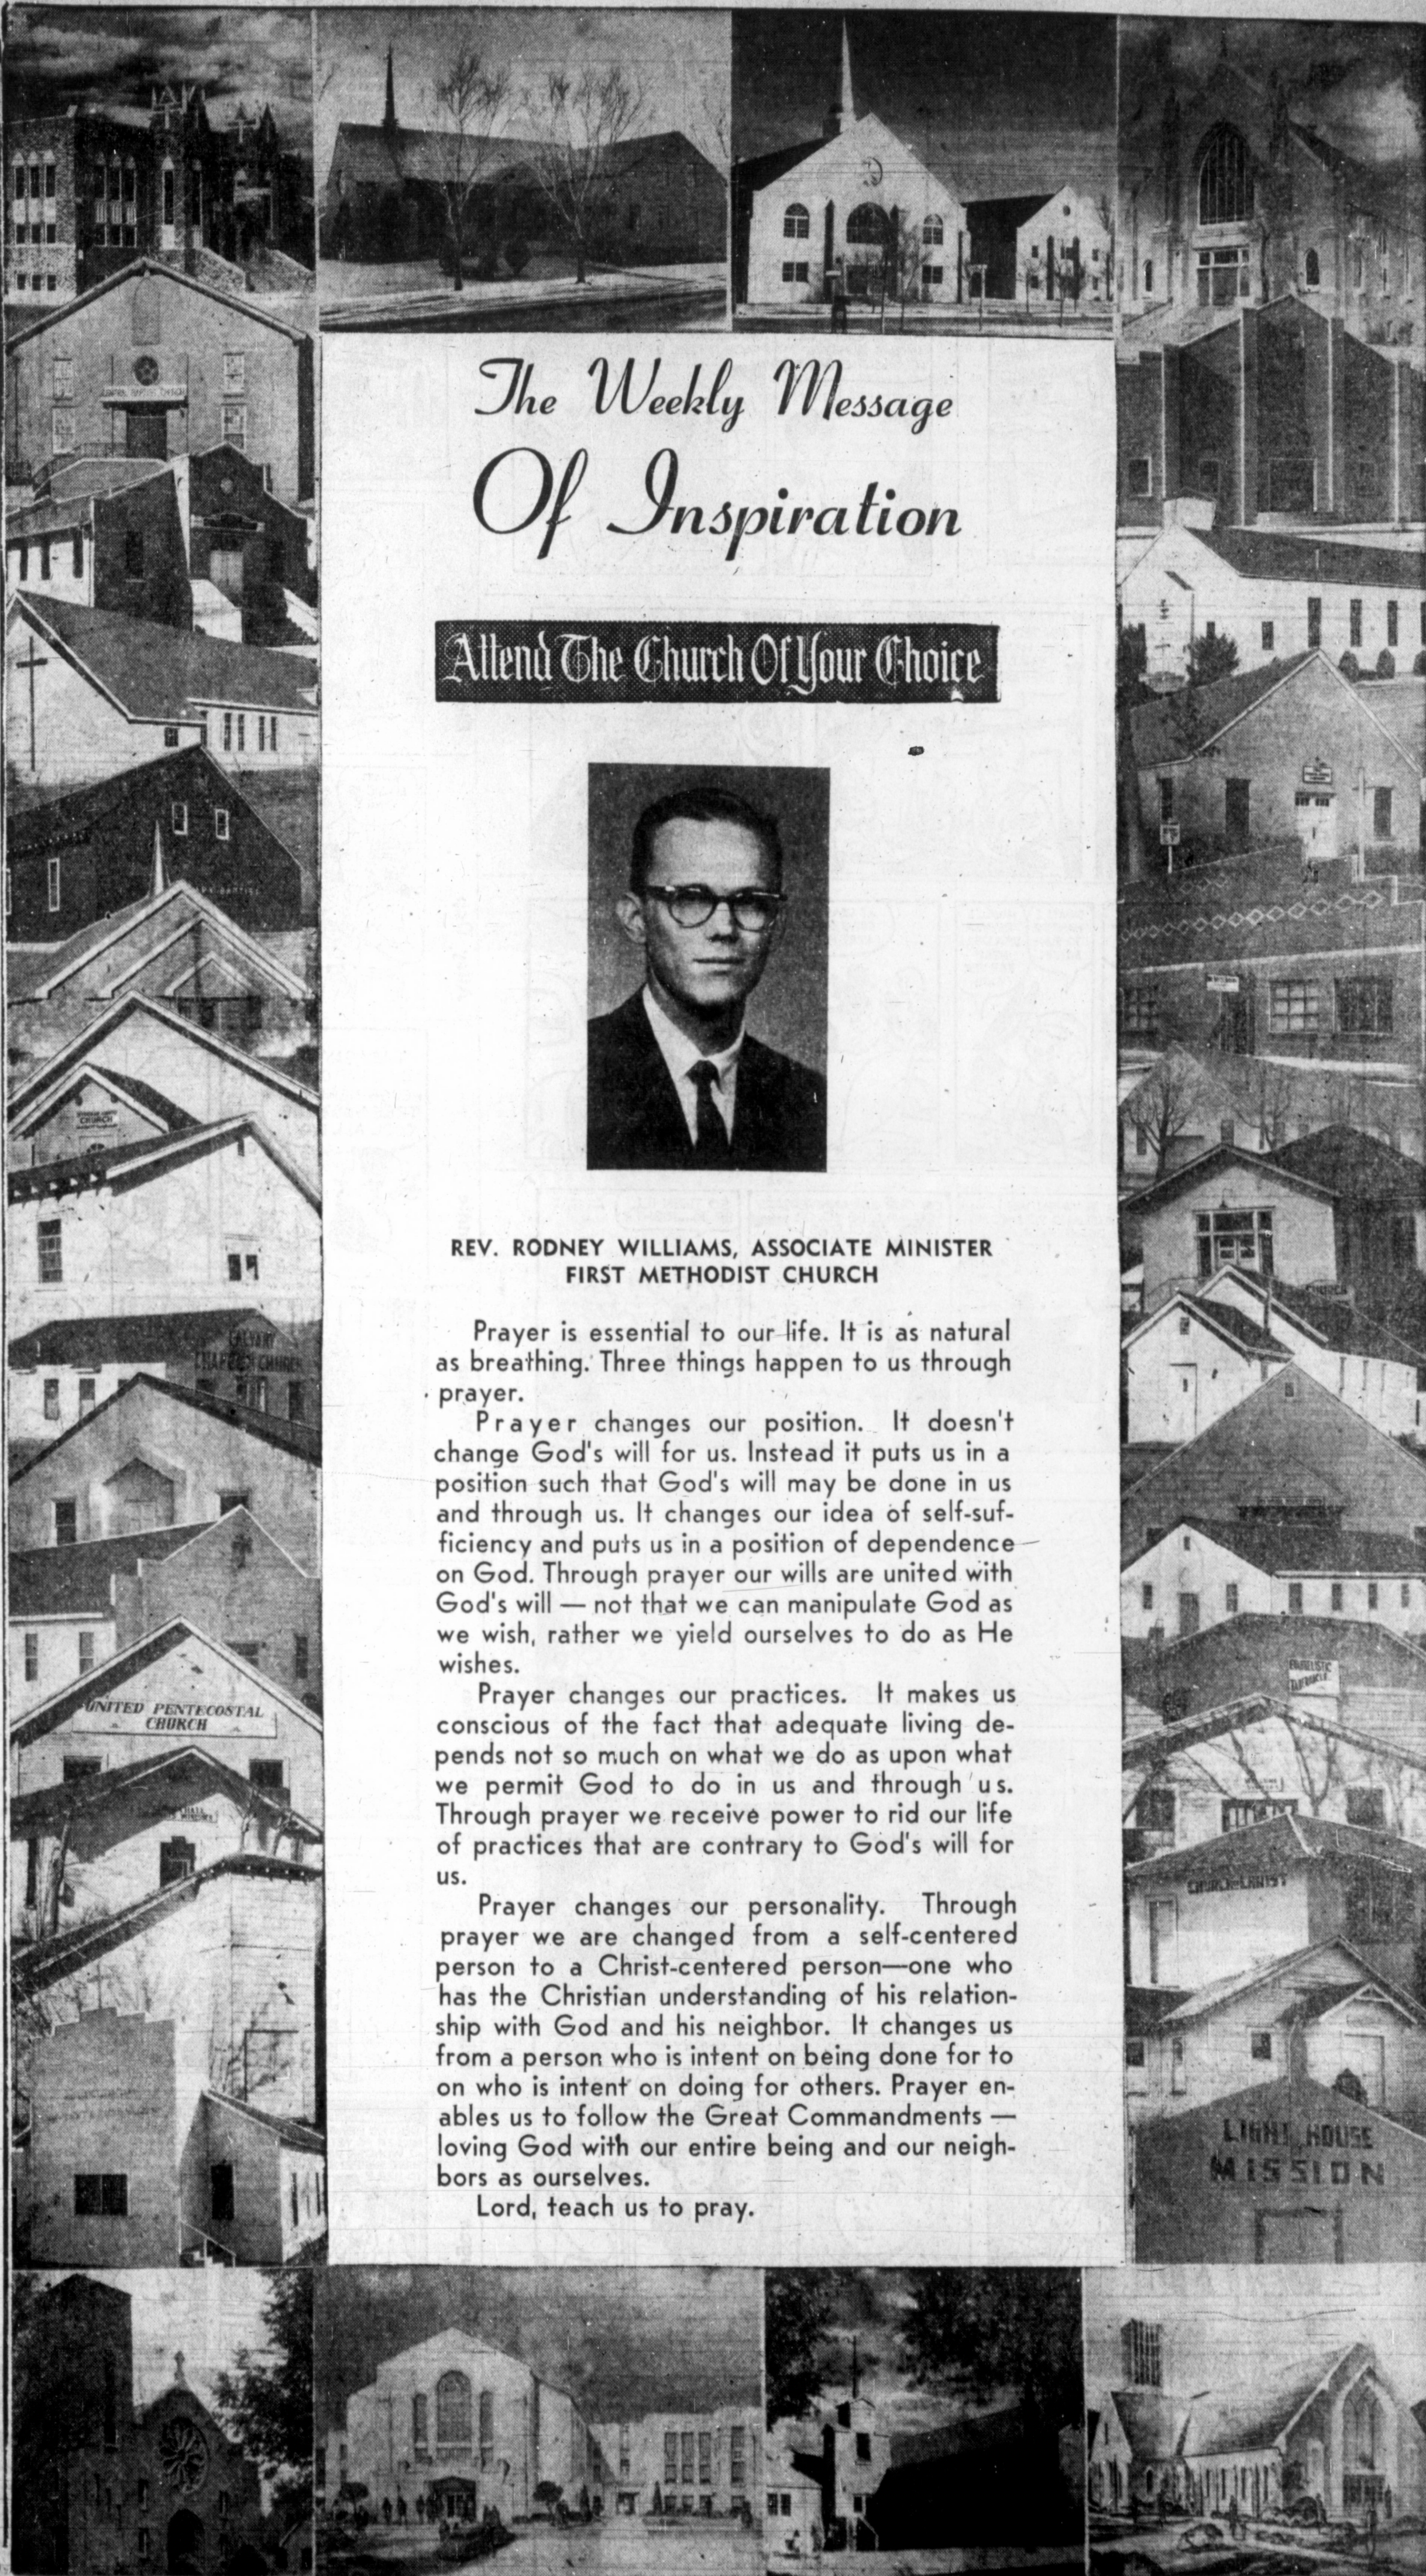

Prayer is essential to our life. It is as natural as breathing. Three things happen to us through prayer.

Prayer changes our position. It doesn't change God's will for us. Instead it puts us in a position such that God's will may be done in us and through us. It changes our idea of self-sufficiency and puts us in a position of dependence on God. Through prayer our wills are united with God's will — not that we can manipulate God as we wish, rather we yield ourselves to do as He wishes.

Prayer changes our practices. It makes us conscious of the fact that adequate living depends not so much on what we do as upon what we permit God to do in us and through us. Through prayer we receive power to rid our life of practices that are contrary to God's will for us.

Prayer changes our personality. Through prayer we are changed from a self-centered person to a Christ-centered person—one who has the Christian understanding of his relationship with God and his neighbor. It changes us from a person who is intent on being done for to one who is intent on doing for others. Prayer enables us to follow the Great Commandments — loving God with our entire being and our neighbors as ourselves.

Lord, teach us to pray.

Hereford, Carson, County Post Tourney Wins

Reds Win Ninth Contest In Row In Senior Loop

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

It's about time that the Cincinnati Reds should be taken seriously as a threat to win their second straight National League pennant.

They're still eight games behind the front-running Los Angeles Dodgers but they're the hottest team in the league with nine straight wins. And a team that flourished in the early months of the season is beginning to "jell" for manager Fred Hutchinson.

The Reds rolled to their ninth straight victory Thursday night when they beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-3, with the aid of two-run homers by Jerry Lynch and Gordie Coleman. The triumph gave the Reds a sweep of their four-game series with the Pirates.

Braves Whipped Mets

The Milwaukee Braves whipped the New York Mets, 6-1, in the only other National League game while the New York Yankees slaughtered the Boston Red Sox, 13-3, and the Chicago White Sox beat the Washington Senators, 7-1, in the only American League games.

Bob Skinner homered for the Pirates in the first inning but the Reds came back with Lynch's solo shot to take a lead they never lost. Johnny Klippstein went 7-1-3 in innings and got fine relief pitching from Bill Henry in the eighth and ninth to win his second game of the season while Vern Law suffered his sixth loss.

Warren Spahn, 41-year-old dean of the NL pitchers, registered his 10th win of this season and the 319th of his career against the hapless Mets, who lost their 11th straight game.

It was a breeze for Spahn, who also hit an NL record pitchers' high he connected for his 31st homer. Hank Aaron also homered for the Braves.

Yankees Fattened Lead

Clete Boyer's two-run homer capped a wild third-inning rally during which the Yankees scored eight runs with two out and fattened their AL lead to three games over the idle Los Angeles Angels.

Boyer had three hits and Tom Tresh, Hector Lopez, Elston Howard, and Dale Long had two each to lead the Yankees' 12-hit attack. Jim Bouton, aided by Bob Turley's late-inning relief, won his fourth game against two losses for the Yankees.

Ray Herbert became the White Sox' first 10-game winner of the year with his six-hit victory over the Senators. Al Smith homered for the White Sox and Bob Johnson connected for the Senators, whose Bennie Daniels lost his 11th decision of the season.

Women Seek Softball Tournament

Pampa businessmen have been asked to contribute to the women's softball team in town in order to help finance a proposed softball tournament in August.

Gene Rodgers, coach of the local female nine, said the team would have to help finance the cost of four new softballs, trophies, the cost of electricity and a rental fee of Optimist park if they were to host the tournament.

Rodgers said he hoped that local businesses would pitch in to help supply the necessary funds in order to hold the first women's softball tournament in Pampa.

The Pampa team won the Skellytown tournament earlier this season and has won every game since that time except one. The Pampa women have at least three more tournaments on tap before the end of the season, not counting the possible tournament here.

Any businesses interested in helping promote a women's softball tournament here, are urged to contact Rodgers anytime after 4:30 p.m. at MO 5-4093.

Knudson Leads Play In Canadian Tourney

LAVAL-SUR-LE-LAC, Que. (UPI) — Canada's top young golfer, respected George Knudson, who would rather win the Canadian Open than the U.S. or British championships, was off to a good start today in pursuit of his dream.

The 25-year-old Winnipeg native, who now plays out of Toronto's Oakdale course, Thursday carded a five-under par 35-32-67 to take the first round lead in the 53rd Canadian Open.

His first round score over the soggy, 6,355-yard Laval-Sur-Le-Lac course was two shots better than his nearest rival — Don Fairfield of Pardo Bay, Fla., Bobby Brue of Milwaukee former Open champ George Bayer, and Ron Thomas of Durham, N.C.

Knudson, who won his first PGA tournament last December at Coral Gables, Fla., and then won two more on the Caribbean circuit, made a strong bid to win last year's Canadian Open in his hometown of Winnipeg. He made a big run at ultimate winner Jacky Cupit but blew sky high on the final round.

Knudson's fine round Thursday, carded for the most part during such adverse weather conditions as intermittent rain and thunder showers, overshadowed anything the American and other foreign

More About Johnny

For years, standardized intelligence tests have been given in the nation's schools. "I.Q." has long been a familiar term in the language.

Children now take an average of five psychological or intelligence tests during the course of a school year. The purpose, of course, is to gain a profile of a child's native abilities and his mental health as a basis of his educational performance in school.

Now, an investigation is being undertaken to see just what effect these tests themselves have on children, and also parents and teachers. There is strong evidence that the very act of testing works subtle changes upon the tested.

A $333,000 grant from the Carnegie Corporation to the Russell Sage Foundation will explore such questions as:

How does a child's attitude toward these tests influence his attitude toward study? Will an indication of low ability spur him on to make up for it by hard work, or will it do just the opposite? Does teacher tend to give a grade that is related more to a pupil's test score than to his actual classroom work? What effect on parents does a knowledge of their child's achievement limits have, and what effect does it have on their relationship toward him? An I.Q. conscious public, as well as educators and sociologists, will be extremely interested in the findings of this inquiry.

Capitalism - Socialism

True capitalism is based upon the private ownership of land and the private management of the means of production and distribution. Socialism is based upon the destruction of private ownership and introduces the state as the manager of all assets.

'Something For Nothing' Disease Is Contagious

When government sets up a system of "benefits" for certain classes of people, it is predictable that many will attempt to qualify according to the definitions provided.

If, for instance, government is to pay men who are out of work, it becomes obvious that being out of work is not so bad. In order to qualify for these "benefits" one must be out of work. Then why work, when benefits can be had for not working?

When the government provides payments for not raising crops, then it follows that it is profitable not to raise crops. So, why raise crops? When the government provides payments for having illegitimate babies, it follows that having illegitimate babies is profitable. So, why not have babies?

A case which reveals just how far governmental programs of "benefits" may be carried came to light in Riverhead, New York, not long ago. A Marine veteran, Peter R. Sherry, 35, managed to get his hands on about $40,000 of taxpayer's money in an eight-year program designed to take advantage of certain "benefits."

Sherry served in the Marines for three years, 1944-47, under his original name of Peter A. Bachulis. In 1951 he legally changed his name to Peter R. Sherry. Actually, he had adopted the second name informally, it is possible that the story would never have come to light.

In 1953, authorities are now saying, Sherry obtained a death certificate at the town clerk's office. He filed in his original name of Bachulis, forged a doctor's signature and then had it filed officially. Cause of death was listed as heart failure.

Mrs. Sherry then began collecting federal "benefits" as a veteran's widow. First, she got $10,000 in veteran life insurance and $63 per month in veteran's family benefits.

Then she applied and obtained Social Security benefits totaling $190.32 a month, and Social Security benefits for the eldest daughter, aged 12. This latter came to $38.10 per month.

The total family income, without working and not counting the insurance payment, came to $291.62 a month.

Meanwhile, to make things more pleasant, Sherry went to work in 1956 for the Long Island Railroad as a station clerk. He lost his job, applied for and obtained relief. The relief investigators, in checking up after a passage of time, finally discovered the fraud and legal action was instituted.

Sherry, and quite possibly, Mrs. Sherry, will doubtless be convicted of defrauding the government. Having been convicted they may spend some time in prison, again at taxpayers' expense, and in the end will be released.

Meanwhile, their children will be cared for at taxpayers' expense. Now the fact is that this particular case has been uncovered. But one is left to wonder how many more of this kind have not been.

If, for instance, Sherry could have managed without legally changing his name, the connection might never have been discovered. Or, additionally, had he gone out to get another job rather than trying for still more goodies at public expense, he might never have been found out.

And if this one man was able to pull off this kind of hoax for eight long years, how many variations of this scheme are in force today in various parts of the country? No one can possibly know.

But, as we said at the outset, when the government provides certain "benefits" it is perfectly natural to expect that some people will seek to qualify to receive the work-free blessings. If death is one of the qualifications, then all that has to be done is to Organized baseball has not yet given it an official blessing, but one company is already marketing an unbreakable baseball bat made of a magnesium alloy coated with a tough plastic. The bat looks, feels and is said to perform the same as its ashken counterpart, and nearly 7,000,000 were sold last year. The price differential is rather steep, however—$14 for the metallic bat as compared with $3 to $5 for the wooden weapon.

An authoritative treatise of the subject states no child should ever be adopted as the last desperate attempt to patch up a crumbling marriage, or to hold an unwilling mate. Headline in the Raleigh (N.C.) Times: "Train Hits Child, Escapes With Life." All members of the House of Representatives and the 100 U. S. Senators have been or will be invited to attend a series of "coffee breaks" at the White House. These are held late in the afternoon, with the congressmen arriving in groups of about 30. Then, eight at a time, they are called into the Blue Room to be photographed with the President. For those who'd like something stronger than coffee, trays of mixed drinks are passed.

Today's favorite gag: A fellow had just managed to pay off the mortgage on his house when he mortgaged it again to buy a new car. Then he sought a loan broker to borrow money on the car so he could build a garage. "But if I do make the loan," said the broker, "how are you going to buy gas for the car?" "It seems to me," said the fellow with dignity, "that a man who owns his own home, car and garage should be able to get credit for gas."

So many summer picnics result in food poisoning that the U.S. Public Health Service warns against carrying food in the trunk of an automobile or leaving it out in the sun for any length of time. That helps bacteria to multiply fast. An unusual custom among the artists of Paris is to have a Mass said annually for those who will die during the coming year.

Thoughts while shaving: 1. Casper Milquetoast remains in the public mind as the prototype of the meek little man who accepts a pushing around and never asserts his rights. The satirical cartoonist, H. T. Webster, created that forlorn little character 40-odd years ago. And although the gifted Webster has been dead a decade or more, the name and fame of Casper Milquetoast endures.

2. This is purely psychological, of course, but does "half gallon" sound like more in quantity than "two quarts"? We ask because so many stores offer "half gallon" quantities rather than "two quarts." And, for some reason — still psychological, perhaps — many stores advertise the quantity as "half a quart" rather than a "pint." 3. Never a master mind at baseball, we've never been able to understand what's wrong with a batter taking a swing at the first ball pitched. But many big league strategists regard that as the sign of an unpolished batsman. Well, we've seen more than one top-ranking pitcher clouted out of the box by batters swinging at the first pitch.

4. In Tin Pan Alley's early days, so many song titles were based on the most trivial rhymes. For instance, because "Frances" rhymes with "dances" there was written the song "When Frances Dances With Me." Because "Swiss" rhymes with "miss," there was "I Miss My Swiss." And because "Kitty" rhymes with "city," we have "Kitty of Kansas City."

Country editor speaking: "Science fictioners keep writing about mutations, which are easy to believe in if one takes a look at the mixed up appearance of the neighborhood dog population."

A WOMAN'S TOUCH WATERBURY, Conn. (UPI)—A local gas station operator apparently thinks his business needs a woman's touch.

He notified the state employment service he needs four or five women to pump gas, supply oil and clean windshields.

The something-for-nothing philosophy of socialism has captured the minds and the ambitions of millions of American people and there will be no end to this kind of thing, until the practice of government goodies is brought to an end.

'Neutralist' Laos Prince Asks U.S. Equipment For Pro Red Military; President Delays Answer

WASHINGTON — Premier Souvanna Phouma isn't waiting for the ink to dry on the treaty "neutralizing" Laos before putting President Kennedy in an embarrassing position.

Already, the neutralist prince is seeking U.S. military equipment for special units of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces, also his neutralist troops, and forces of the former Royal Lao Army.

The military material requested for the Communist forces includes hundreds of thousands of dollars of military communications equipment, 20 weapons carriers and 50 jeeps.

Premier Souvanna wants this equipment to modernize the "troika-like" forces scheduled to be assigned to the four commissions being set up by his government to administer different sections of Laos.

His unexpected demand to equip the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces has rocked President Kennedy and triggered a sharp policy dispute among administration officials.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are urging the President to limit any U.S. military supplies to troops of the neutralist forces and the former Royal Army. Should it become necessary to grant such aid to the Pathet Lao for political reasons, the JCS want U.S. technicians assigned to these units to determine the use of the equipment.

The President's military advisers are worried about the military and political consequences in South Vietnam and elsewhere in providing military aid to pro-Communist forces.

Secretary of State Rusk is leading the fight to grant Premier Souvanna's arms plea without change.

He and W. Averell Harriman, Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, argue that the military equipment should be made available as requested since it is to be used to establish a "neutralist" government. They point out that Souvanna's list includes "supporting" military equipment and not guns and ammunition.

According to these two officials, the danger of not fulfilling his entire request is even greater than any use the pro-Communists might make of the U.S. arms. They warn that turnaround would encourage Souvanna to invite help from the Chinese Communists.

LOOKING HIM OVER — One major decision already has been made by President Kennedy. He has decided to delay action until his visit with Souvanna, which started today in Washington. The exact date for Souvanna's visit was arranged by Secretary Rusk in conversations which took place in Geneva. President Kennedy reportedly decided not to make a final decision on this politically touchy question until he can learn more from Souvanna about the steps he plans to take to stop the flow of Communist guerrillas from

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It has been said that the turtle makes progress only when it sticks its neck out.

Thursday night, NBC-TV stuck its neck out with the debut of a new summertime musical series, "The Lively Ones," hosted by Vic Damone. And the result was not only progress, but a genuine television event: The most imaginative, artful and swinging musical program to be seen on the home tube in too many months.

The half-hour weekly offering, which is replacing "Hazel" for two months, showed more ingenuity in its brief airing than is exhibited by such items as "Ozzie and Harriet" and Dick Clark's "American Bandstand" in an entire year—no, five years.

Under the enthusiastic production and direction of Barry Shear, aided by a fine camera, we saw Dave Brubeck's Quartet pounding out a number on a flying carpet above the Los Angeles freeway—and getting a ticket from a motorcycle cop; Peggy Lee and Damita Jo in sock nightclub acts; and Woody Herman's face in triplicate on the screen as he harmonized with himself in a lovely clarinet rendition of "Mood Indigo."

Interesting Settings Promised
It has been promised that future settings will range from a Nike emplacement at Malibu on the California coast, to the Los Angeles Dodgers baseball stadium in Chavez Ravine, where Gene Krupa, Shelly Manne and Louis Bellson will be seen walloping the drums—in conjunction, hopefully. The Yale Whiffenpoof chorus is also expected to be on hand, and how's that for a swinging group?

Supposedly, the idea for "The Lively Ones" originated when the Ford Motor Co. said it wanted a program that would appeal to World War II babies who have now grown up and drive cars; in other words, those young people who have outdistanced the barbarism of rock 'n' roll, and are interested in more sophisticated sounds.

In this sense, the show is admirable because it is thoroughly uncompromising: It absolutely refused to kowtow to the whims of the powerful teen-age market, on which too much entertainment has been already wasted, to the detriment and cheapening of show business.

An Adult Show
It is an adult show, for adults of all ages. And if there is any justice, it should be up for an Emmy next spring.

"The Lively Ones" could be the break that Damone has been waiting for. Show people long have considered his voice perhaps the best around in popular music. Yet, having handled his personal life and his career with discretion, he has failed to make the one big splash.

On Thursday night's program, he sang the opening song, "Little Girl," surrounded by some very nice big girls on the campus of the University of California at Los Angeles. He also got top musical backing from Jerry Fielding, whose orchestra—aided by the cameraman again—made the "Ritual Fire Dance" exciting

Post Office Department Fighting Mailed-Pornography Purveyors

Editor's Note: Some church leaders and members of Congress have expressed fear that the Post Office Department's drive against mail order obscenity may be crippled by a recent Supreme Court decision. In the following interview, Postmaster General J. Edward Day says the drive is still in high gear and won't be affected by the court ruling.

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General J. Edward Day said today the Post Office Department has all the legal authority it needs to continue a hard-hitting campaign against purveyors of pornography.

He discounted fears voiced by some church leaders and members of Congress that the drive against mail order obscenity may be crippled by a recent Supreme Court decision.

On June 25, the court ruled, 6 to 1, that the Post Office was wrong in barring from the mails three magazines which featured nude male photographs. The government contended that the magazines had a low appeal for homosexuals.

The decision was greeted by protests similar to those evoked by the prayer-in-schools ruling which the high court issued the same day.

Receives Many Letters

The Most Rev. Robert E. Lucey, Roman Catholic archbishop of San Antonio, Tex., said it would "hamstring" Post Office enforcement efforts and "throw our children to the wolves of obscenity," Rep. George Wallhouser, R-N.J., predicted in Congress that a "flood of obscene matter" would soon be pouring through the mails.

Day disclosed in an interview that he has been hearing from many other Americans — members of Congress, religious leaders and private citizens in all parts of the country — who are under the impression that the court decision knocked the legal props from under his anti-smut campaign.

"Actually, it hasn't affected us at all," he said. "If anything, this ruling is a mandate for us to continue the approach we've been using for the past 18 months."

Set Aside Order
In its June 25 ruling, the Supreme Court set aside Summerfield's order banning the three magazines. But the justices were sharply divided as to their reasons for doing so, and no single viewpoint commanded majority support.

Day pointed out that the opinion voiced by the largest number of justices — that the Post Office should rely on criminal prosecutions rather than administrative action — coincided precisely with the course he was already following. Thus, he said, he cannot see how the ruling will handicap his drive in any way.

"We're concentrating on hard core pornography — the real sick stuff which any respectable person would recognize as an outrageous corrupting influence," he said. "There is enough of it going

Relieves On U.S. Code

He explained that the Post Office has two ways of dealing with obscene material. One is to bar it from the mails by administrative order. The other is to bring criminal charges against the people who send pornography through the mails.

Arthur E. Summerfield, postmaster general during the Eisenhower Administration, replied heavily on the administrative approach. It was Summerfield, for example, who issued a 1960 order barring the three allegedly homosexual magazines from the mails.

Day, a lawyer in private life, decided when he took office in January, 1961, to discontinue the administrative method and rely exclusively on criminal prosecutions under Title 18 of the U. S. Code. This statute provides fines up to $5,000 and up to five years in prison for persons convicted of mailing obscene materials.

It is in this way, Day pointed out, that the opinion voiced by the largest number of justices — that the Post Office should rely on criminal prosecutions rather than administrative action — coincided precisely with the course he was already following. Thus, he said, he cannot see how the ruling will handicap his drive in any way.

"We're concentrating on hard core pornography — the real sick stuff which any respectable person would recognize as an outrageous corrupting influence," he said. "There is enough of it going through the mails to keep us busy without diverting any of our personnel to the marginal cases which involve us in lengthy court proceedings."
