Algerian Political Crisis Is Said To Be 'Over' Today

JFK To Get Economic Report In Tax Cut Study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy may get a look today at one of the economic reports that will influence his decision on whether to ask Congress for a tax cut this year.

Government statisticians worked through the week end to prepare figures on the nation's employment situation in July. The report is expected to be ready for analysis by Kennedy and other high administration officials today or Tuesday. It will be made public Wednesday.

Between now and the middle of August Kennedy will review figures on other areas of the economy. He has said he will be in a position by then to decide whether the economy is lagging. If the answer is yes, he may ask Congress to reduce taxes.

Drownings In Boost Of Violent Death Toll

By United Press International
Texas drove carefully over the week end but a rash of non-traffic accidents boosted the week end violent death toll.

A United Press International count for the week end period from 8 p. m. Friday through midnight Sunday showed at least 21 violent deaths in the state. Only six persons died in automobile accidents. Drownings accounted for five deaths and fire killed four. The others died in miscellaneous accidents.

Figures Considered Important

The job figures being prepared for Kennedy carry an important reading on the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate. For June it showed that 5 1/2 per cent of America's work force was unemployed and looking for jobs. The administration has called anything over 4 per cent too high.

A former band director in Iraan, Tex., in Pecos County, Tregoe came to Pampa as band director in 1953. Since then the band has grown into one of national prominence and has been a consistent sweepstakes award winner.

Yeggs Muff Attempt To Crack Safe

Burglars failed in an attempt to crack a safe in the Montgomery Ward Store, 217 N. Cuyler, sometime over the week end, according to a report from city police officers today.

William H. McComas, manager of the store, reported to officers this morning that when he opened the store shortly after 8 a.m. he noticed that the company's floor safe had been damaged.

Investigators said the burglars used a hammer, punch, wrench and an electric drill, all taken from the store, in their unsuccessful attempt to crack the safe.

McClellan Says Official Asked Payoff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John L. McClellan said today that a former union official solicited a payoff in connection with the strike which has delayed U. S. nuclear submarine construction.

The Arkansas Democrat, chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee, made the statement in a short Senate speech. He requested that the subcommittee be allowed to meet and take testimony on the matter today.

However, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., blocked the necessary unanimous consent in a parliamentary skirmish resulting from the Senate filibuster against the administration's communications satellite bill.

Their 'Day Of Fun' Ended In Tragedy

EDITOR'S NOTE: Last Saturday night a nine-car Pennsylvania railroad "Baseball Special" plunged into the Susquehanna River killing 19 persons and injuring at least 120 others. Following is a detailed report of the tragedy as told by witnesses, victims and rescuers.

By LLOYD R. ROCHELLE AND MARTIN J. SIKORA
United Press International
STEELETON, Pa. (UPI) — The nine-car "Baseball Special" pulled out of the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Harrisburg at 5:02 p.m. Saturday. It was two minutes behind schedule.

Aboard were baseball fans — parents and children, including some Little Leaguers. The talk was of batting averages and pitchers of Clemente and Skinner, Gonzalez and Groat.

When 'Baseball Special' Hurtled The Tracks ...

It was a real happy carful. The kids were laughing and joking with each other and everybody was feeling fine.

"All of a sudden there was a bump and I was thrown from where I was standing in the aisle over to the right side."

"Right away the kids' laughter turned to tears and screams. I never saw anything like it."

Dear Abby...

Chew Wife Out Get It Over With!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife invited her whole family out to the house for the Fourth of July when she knew I had been having a lot of trouble with a bad back. I didn't even know anyone was coming until three carloads of them pulled into our driveway. I was in bed at the time and in such agony I could hardly stand up straight. So my wife comes in and asks me if I would mind barbecuing hotdogs for 42 people! I pulled myself out of bed and barbecued, but it almost killed me. I was so mad I didn't speak to her for a week. She still can't see where she did anything wrong. Can you explain it to her, woman to woman?

DEAR TOO: You can't be "too safe." Safety belts are for YOUR protection as well as his. Hang onto him — but not while he's driving.

DEAR ABBY: The chapter "For Husbands Only" in your book DEAR ABBY ON MARRIAGE should be printed on the front page of every newspaper in the country. I've never read anything so simple and true and beautiful in all my life. I cry every time I read it. I love you for writing it.

HELEN FROM CHANDLER'S DEAR HELEN: And thank you for your lovely letter. Send me your full name and address and I'll send you an autographed copy of my book.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SID: You have a "gelt" complex. Forge your money and perhaps every-one else will.

MISHUGA DEAR MISH: Your wife was a very inconsiderate to have invited guests, knowing your condition. But if you left a sick bed and in agony barbecued hotdogs for 42 people, you must have been delirious. Chew her out and get it over with.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend is a real nut on safety belts. Since he put them in his car I can't sit close to him any more. The minute we get into his car he straps himself in, and tells me to do the same. Abby, this means I am strapped in near the door — just miles from him, I don't like it. Any suggestions?

Autumn Fashions Are Beautiful And Buyable

By ALINE MOSBY PARIS (UPI) —Buyers from America's top stores today summed up the Paris fall fashion shows as beautiful and buyable, but not particularly new for the United States. "The muffled-up look that so many designers have tried — with stand-up collars and hoods — we already have in America," said one buyer from Boston, Charlotte Quinn of Jordan Marsh. The store buyers have descended upon Paris from all over Europe and the United States. Garment factory buyers and fabric, shoe and button makers also are making the rounds of the fashion houses. A sampling of U.S. buyers declared they were happy that some Paris designers kept the hemlines just under the knee because "American women, don't want longer skirts yet."

Most judged the Dior show the best they had seen to date, but they missed the first two days of showings. All thought Dior's show was "successful, and as good as any they've had."

Russell Carpenter of I. Magnin of Los Angeles and San Francisco praised the "fluid crepes" of Dior. "It was a rich, beautiful collection," he said. "We're buying suits, coats, oh, everything. And I thought Jacques Heim had the best collection he's done in years."

Philip Weinstein, coat and suit buyer from Macy's in New York, said Dior showed a collection that was "pretty and had some meaning for our customers." Macy's plans to buy some Dior suits and coats and some dresses from Nina Ricci.

Tony Carnegie, of Hattie Carnegie in New York, said "there is plenty to buy from every collection." He was impressed by Dior's suits and coats and "the magnificently embroidered" evening outfits.

Harry Larrimer, head buyer at Lord & Taylor in New York did not approve of Dior's long tunic suits for his market, but he liked the suits with shorter jackets.

Another "buyer" at the fashion shows, but a private one, has been Princess Lee Radziwil, sister of Jacqueline Kennedy. She told UPI she was not "buying" for her sister.

Our hot's off to the Girl Scout organization on their fiftieth anniversary; to the scouts and their leaders, because it teaches them homemaking, a clean and wholesome way of life. More than 10,000 Girl Scouts celebrated their 50th birthday with the lighting of an enormous birthday cake on the stage of the Arena at Button Bay, Vermont, on July 24. The birthday celebration took place on the shores of Lake Champlain, where girls from all 50 states and 15 other countries are gathered for the Roundup being held July 18 through the 31st.

Mrs. C. W. Thompson enjoyed a visit from her grandchildren, Gay and Patricia Jackson of Amarillo last week.

Visitors at the Center this week were little Miss Donna Kay Cornelison of Skellytown, who is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. C. W. Cornelison; and Mrs. David McVey of Magnolia, Ark. who is visiting her sister, Mrs. P. H. Gates.

A. C. Clark of 800 E. Gordon was out for the first time Thursday and enjoyed the games. We hope he becomes a "regular."

Mrs. Vada Richardson of Oklahoma City visited here with her sister, Mrs. Lona Webster recently. Mrs. Cora McBride and son, Nolen F. Walkup of Amarillo visited with Mrs. Webster on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Porter and son, Richard, of Shamrock were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Porter's mother, Mrs. C. R. Miller and son, Bill.

The Mature Parent Presume Innocence Until Proven Guilty

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. The year that she was 8 years old, nice ladies were buzzing excitedly over a book about what its author called "white slavery." It contained extremely sensational descriptions of the methods by which wicked men were said to be luring, abducting and drugging young girls into lives of prostitution. Inevitably, hints of its provocative contents seeped down to the nice ladies' children. Mothers darkly warned little girls again of the mysterious perils involved in "speaking to strangers." In parks, during recess, behind bushes on suburban lawns, the warnings with their delicious suggestion of female desirability were repeated to other little girls.

(I myself learned about the "white slavery" book from the daughter of my respectable music teacher.) So one day the 8-year-old child of this column told a classmate that she read it. She told the lie because she was a lonely little girl — and so grateful to have been invited to the classmate's home for Saturday lunch that she tried to insure her new friend's continuing admiration by a display of an enviable experience. But her social triumph was short-lived. Soon after she left, her hostess suffered an attack of bad conscience. Seeking out her mamma, she reported Virginia Peterson knew all about the ins-and-outs of prostitution.

Recalling her 8-year-old attempt to consolidate a friendship, Virginia Peterson said to me, "My classmate's mother telephoned my mother." I had asked her to see me because this distinguished writer and critic's best seller, "A Matter of Life and Death," is not just autobiography. It is the profoundly sensitive and moving story of the process of estrangement as it takes place between a parent and child. Mrs. Peterson said, "I was pouring my tea, the woman who has written so well of the suffering as a result of estrangement from her mother, said: 'This experience of my childhood does not appear in my book. I have only remembered it because you asked me if I was often punished for doing what I hadn't done. I was. Do you take cream?'"

I said "No," but she gave it to me anyway. Neither of us noticed because we were both engaged in the recollection she was sharing with me.

"That day, when I got home," she told me, "I walked into my room of ice. I was sent to my house and given no dinner. The frost continued for many days. I was not asked if I had really read the book. I was not asked why I had told my classmate a lie. I was asked nothing."

A gift to the hostess from a house guest is optional. A thank-you note is mandatory.
