Revival Is Scheduled In Local Church

A new church with it's beginning only two and one half years ago, is starting it's first revival, at 7:30 p.m. tonight and continuing thru Sept. 2, in the new Sanctuary of the Hi-Land Pentecostal Holiness Church, 18th and Banks

"Everyone is invited to worship with us. We welcome those who do not have a church home to come and worship with us," the Rev. J. B. Caldwell, pastor, said.

The Evangelist, Rev. Ogeland Barger of Oklahoma, has just returned from the Holy Lands and will be showing films tonight. "If you believe in Old Time Religion in action, we know you will enjoy this new church," the pastor said. "If you are depressed, the singing and music will lift you up. If you need hope the gospel will in-

> Sen. Estes Kefauver, D - Tenn., one of the chief sponsors of the filibuster, is also author of the original bill on additional drug control legislation. He introduced it last year after extensive subcommittee hearings. So, in one sense, filibusterer Kefauver has given drug law reformer Kefauver a knockout drop. On the other hand, the filibuster and the scare created by the thalidomide investigation may mean resurrection of the original Kefauver drug control legislation. After Kefauver's subcommittee had reported out a bill which the drug industry and the medical profession considered too stringent, the full Judiciary Committee under Eastland held a meeting at which Kefauver was not present because he was not informed of it. There the Kefauver bill was gutted.

Just who influenced the Eastland committee - minus Kefauver-in cutting the teeth out of his bill has not been revealed.

Dr. Smith says Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Assn. never had time to develop a position on the bill reported out by Eastland and never took a stand for or against it, but the industry felt it could go along with his revised bill.

All this was before the thalidomide disclosures. Since then, Eastland has indicated his committee should take another look at the situation, intimating that tighter controls might be advisable. This time, Kefauver will have to be notified. If the chairman will recognize him as ranking Democrat on the committee, he can move to put back in the bill some of the provisions previously taken out. The present outlook is that widely different Senate and House bills will be passed. They will have to be compromised late in the session. This carried with it the risk of considerable quibbling over specific language, with an uncertain outcome or even no bill at all until next session.

RODEO: America's Most Exciting Sport

Rodeo—the unique sport with unmatched excitement. It embodies that primeval thrill of an athlete pitting his brain and skill against the cunning and strength of the animal. It has the spine-tingling element of true physical danger for the participant and the color of a fiesta. All of this is rolled into a thrilling, fast-moving package called "Rodeo" -America's top thrill sport and a piece of living history.

Rodeo, which means "round-up" in Spanish, had its beginning on the ranges of California, the Southwest and Mexico. The Mexican vaqueros were the first to throw off the cares of a long, hard day by competing with their compadres to see who could stay aboard an unbroken horse, or best rope and tie a calf. The American cowboy who followed the vaquero on the scene was just as eager to prove his skill.

The cowboys first competed among themselves, and then began challenging hands from the next ranch, Soon, the word that cowhands from neighboring ranches were going to sored rodeo is said to have occurred at Pecos, Texas, in 1883. That year the cowboys were invited into town to hold their contests on the main street. (Levi Strauss had already been making his blue cowboy pants for 33 years, at this time.) In 1888, the citizens of Prescott, Arizona. built a corral and charged admission to "a cowboy celebration." Rodeo, as we know it today, was on its

Today, over 3,000 professional cowboys compete annually in more than 400 RCA rodeos throughout the country. Rodeo attendance approximates 15 mil-

Top cowhands travel much of the rodeo circuit, appearing in small towns and large throughout the country. Not many people realize that the cowboy pays entry fees, which may run into several thousands of dollars annually. for each event in which he participates. These fees are added to the prizes established for each event by the local rodeo management.

Today, rodeo is a truly organized sport carried on twelve months of the year. However, the men in the big hats and Levi's who compete for cash prizes are the heirs of a tradition and history that is as American as Plymouth Rock and Bunker Hill.

BAREBACK BRONC riding is no job for the weak in spirit. The only thing between the rider and his horse are his Levi's and a piece of heavy leather rigging with a suitcase-like handle cinched to the horse. As in saddle hit the ground outside the chute. The rider must have his spurs above the brone's shoulder points until the first jump is completed, then he keeps them moving as rapidly as he can, feet kicking high in the air to fall back against the horse's shoulders. Duration of the ride, if all goes well, is eight seconds. As in saddle bronc riding, both the rider and the horse are scored on their performance. Bareback bronc riding did bronc riding, scoring starts when the horse's front feet

not gain professional status as a rodeo sport until the late nineteen forties. Prior to that time it was considered a "filler" or exhibition event with no competition for prizes. Now, a champion bareback rider can win more than $16,000 a year.

> BULL RIDING can provide the most harrowing moments in the arena. The hump-necked, ugly Brahma bull is the is suspended beneath. The cowboy takes a onehanded grip on the rope, nods his head for the chute to open, and is suddenly out in the arena aboard half-a-ton of irate beef. If he can keep a leg on either side of the animal, and doesn't touch bull or rope with his free hand before eight seconds are ended, he may be in the money. Bulls buck in a variety of styles. Some twist, turn and kick high in the same motion, others perform kangaroo-like high jumps. As in bronc riding, both the animal and the rider are scored. The cowboy doesn't have to spur the Brahma, but he may score higher if he does. When the ride is over, the unsung heroes-rodeo clowns in their oversize Levi's - move into position to distract the bull as the rider cowboy's adversary in this event. A manila rope is wrapped around the animal's belly and a bell mount is of utmost importance. The horse must stand quietly behind the barrier. Then, when the calf is released, he must reach his peak stride in a jump or two, stay at a given distance behind his quarry, mark the lariat's throw and stop abruptly as the rider dismounts. The horse alone keeps the rope taut so that it may be used as a lever to throw the calf. The rider throws the calf and ties the two hind feet and one fore foot together. Time is counted from the moment the barrier drops until the cowboy lifts his hands in the air to signal that the calf is tied. Usually, there is an additional wait of five seconds by the judges to be sure the calf doesn't break loose. If the barrier is broken - usually signalled by a red light at the chute gate—a 10-second penalty is added to the total time. So competitive compete with rope and horses attracted people from miles around. The first town-sponlion people each year.

SADDLE BRONC RIDING was perhaps the first rodeo event, and it is still one of the most exciting. The cowboy must stay aboard the bucking horse for eight or ten seconds, depending upon local rules. Time begins when the front feet of the horse hit the ground as it breaks from the chute. The cowboy, wearing dulled spurs, must have his heels touching high on the horse's shoulders until the first jump is completed. If he doesn't do this, he is automatically disqualified. During the remainder of the ride he is scored on how he keeps his feet moving, spurring the animal from shoulders to flanks. With one hand the rider holds the bucking rein, a braided length of rope fastened to the horse's halter. His other hand must not touch the horse or saddle, and he must keep both feet in the stirrups or be disqualified. Both the rider and the horse are scored on their performance.

STEER WRESTLING accounts for a good deal of skinned hide and sprained joints among the cowboys. Throwing himself from a fast-moving horse the contestant must collar a running steer, bring it to a stop and twist it over on its side so all hoofs are off the ground. Assisting the contestant is a "hazer," a cowboy who rides alongside to keep the steer running straight. Outwelghed by at least five hundred pounds, the steer wrestler can accomplish little by brute strength alone. He must learn to use his body as a pivoting lever applying pressure at the proper moment to twist the animal to the ground. Misjudgment of a few inches in his jump at the running steer may send the cowboy headlong over the animal's horns. Too much weight on the forepart of the steer can cause a rolling wreck known as a "hoolihan." Misjudgment of the correct instant to apply the twisting hold on the horns brings about a "dogfall," which means the steer did not fall cleanly. Before time is given, the steer must be on its side, all legs extended in the same direction.
