Local 'Prowler' Calls Talked

Concern over the prowler situation in Pampa was expressed at last night's City Commission meeting in City Hall.

Commissioner Loyd Simpson brought the matter up when he said citizens had asked him what the police department was doing to cope with the situation.

Commissioner L. P. Fort wanted to know what had happened to the recent proposal to employ the use of dogs in the police department.

"Use of the K-9 corps might be an answer to the prowler problem," Fort said.

Mayor Sidwell said he thought it was a matter for the city manager and the police chief to work out.

"The canine police corps operation is working successfully in many other cities," Commissioner Fort added. "It seems to me there ought to be some way for us to accept a gift of the dogs and the offer of free training for the patrolmen who work with them."

It was decided to ask the city manager what further steps could be taken in connection with the addition of one or two police dogs to the Pampa police department.

While on the subject of dogs, Commissioner Fort switched from the "good" dogs to the "bad" dogs. He said city police were doing everything they could but the problem of roving bands of stray dogs was about to get out of hand in Pampa.

"The city dog warden just can't catch them," Fort said. "There are getting to be so many complaints you can't count them. Dogs are running wild everywhere in the city."

The commissioner said he was in favor of buying tranquilizer guns to subdue the dogs to the point where the dog warden can catch and impound them.

The matter was referred to the city manager for action.

CoC Asked To Vacate City Hall

The Chamber of Commerce was requested by the City Commission last night to vacate its office space in City Hall within the next 120 days.

The action came on a motion by Commissioner Will Graham, seconded by Commissioner Lloyd Simpson, and was approved unanimously.

It followed the recent step by the City Commission in dissolving the Board of City Development, and separating the chamber from partial operation with city tax money.

Mayor E. C. Sidwell said last night the Commission should give thought to setting up an adequate health department in City Hall when the chamber offices are vacated.

The mayor also stated that he felt certain an extension of time could be made if the Chamber has not located quarters in the 120-day time limit.

It developed last night that under the resolution adopted by the commission a week ago to give all BCD property to the Chamber of Commerce that the city still was owner of an automobile used by the chamber.

Mayor Sidwell said he thought the car should not have title to the car being driven by the Chamber of Commerce.

Commissioners decided to have the city manager and city attorney confer with the Chamber of Commerce president to clear up the matter of the title to the automobile so that the city would not be responsible in the event of a legal action that could grow out of any accident in which the car might be involved.

Commission, Gas Company Meeting Is Sought By City

Pampa city officials decided at last night's Commission meeting to ask for a conference with Pioneer Gas Co. officials on the utility's petition to the Texas Railroad Commission for a 28½ cent per cubic foot gas rate for Pampa and some 57 other Texas communities.

City Atty. Bob Gordon, City Manager Harold Schmitzer and City Commissioner Leon Holmes appeared at a preliminary hearing on the application in Austin on Oct. 1. An extension of time was granted until early in November.

At the Austin hearing, City Atty. Gordon protested the charge to Pampa on the grounds that Pampa should not be included in the gate rate charge because Pampa is located in the field where the gas originates and is in a much different position than cities to which the gas is piped for long distances.

Mayor E. C. Sidwell suggested last night that the conference be set up with officials of Pioneer Gas in an effort to arbitrate the matter and possibly save the city by heavy expense of hiring experts to testify and pay attorney fees at what could be a lengthy hearing before the Railroad Commission.

"We feel that we should try the best we can to get a deal done. It comes from a hardware store we have E. Lewis Hildebrand."

Absentee Votes May Be Cast Starting Today

Absentee balloting started today in the County Clerk's office of Gray County Court-house for the Nov. 6 general election.

Absentee ballots may be cast until 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 2. Voters who plan to be out of the county Nov. 6 may secure the ballots before they leave at the clerk's office.

Voters must produce a valid poll tax receipt or exemption. Absentee balloting also has started in the city bond election scheduled for Oct. 30. Only city property owners with valid poll tax receipts or exemptions will be eligible to vote in the city election.

The city absentee balloting will be continued at the City Secretary's office in City Hall daily until 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 26.

German Minister, JFK In Talk On Crisis In Berlin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder said after a White House conference today that a meeting between Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev could be helpful if the Soviet leader is in the right mood.

Schroeder made the comment as he left a 90-minute conference with Kennedy which apparently was exclusively devoted to the Berlin crisis.

He said, "I would not like to give an opinion as to whether a special meeting of the two leaders on Berlin at this time would be useful — whether it would be helpful depends on the mood in which Khrushchev comes here." "Certainly talking is better than fighting," the foreign minister added.

No announcement has been made that Khrushchev will, in fact, come to the United States this fall. But there has been speculation he would attend sessions of the United Nations General Assembly in New York. Kennedy has expressed a willingness to meet him if this happens.

Schroeder met the President today as the high point of a five-day visit here about the Berlin situation, in preparation for the Nov. 7 visit of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Kennedy and Schroeder exchanged assessments of the future Berlin situation, which American leaders have been predicting may explode into a first-class crisis by Christmas.

Schroeder said he was not a prophet. He added, "I would not wish to encourage a worsening of the Berlin situation by assuming there will be one."

As for his talks with Kennedy, he said, "I am grateful to say that we are in full agreement." The session gave Kennedy an opportunity to get the views of the German government in advance of his scheduled meeting Thursday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko which is expected to center on the Berlin crisis.

Storm Swings North But Is Still Threatening Coast

Weather Forecasters Cite Zig-Zag Pattern

MIAMI (UPI)—Tropical storm Ella, skirting the Florida coast, turned to a more northerly direction today but still kept the south Atlantic seaboard within range of its 70 mile an hour winds.

The Weather Bureau said the storm showed signs of zig-zagging and warned coastal residents from Cape Canaveral, Fla., northward to Cape Hatteras, N.C., to keep in touch with advisories.

The direction change brought an all-clear report for the Florida coast south of Cape Canaveral. At 11 a.m. EST the storm's center about 300 miles east of Melbourne, Fla., near latitude 28.0 north, longitude 75.5 west. It was moving on a north-northwest track at about 6 m.p.h.

The storm forced scientists at Cape Canaveral to call off an attempt to launch a spacecraft to the moon. The launching had been scheduled for this morning but was postponed until next month.

Forecaster Raymond Craft said it still was too soon to say whether it would hit the mainland.

"If it doesn't, it's going to come pretty close," he added. It appeared Tuesday that the storm's most likely target might be south Florida, but its late movements lessened this possibility.

"If the expected trend to a more northwesterly direction of motion develops, the possible threat to the area from Palm Beach to Daytona Beach will be lessened," the Weather Bureau said.

Weathermen earlier warned this area, with Cape Canaveral nearby at its center, to be ready to take "quick precautions" should Ella continue bearing down on it.

Reach Gale Force
The storm flung gale winds 350 miles to the north and 85 miles to the south. Ten-foot waves rolled northward from Ella's center, and Nassau, Great Abaco Island and Eleuthera Island in the Bahamas reported wind gusts of 35 to 40 miles an hour Tuesday.

A cruise ship, the Calypso Liner, turned back on a run from Miami to Bimini in the Bahamas because of rough seas. Fort Lauderdale reported 35-mile-an-hour wind gusts on the Mainland.

Small craft in the Bahamas and from Savannah to Miami were warned to stay in port until the storm threat passed.

Pampa Woman Is Injured In Auto Accident

Mrs. Coy Palmer 2117 N. Russell, wife of the owner of Radio Station KBMF-FM was in Highland General Hospital today with injuries suffered in a one-car auto accident about 7 p.m. yesterday seven miles northwest of McLean.

Mrs. Palmer was driving the Palmers' small foreign car and was accompanied by Mrs. Billy G. Monroe, 1196 Prairie Dr. They were enroute to Shamrock to attend an Eastern Star meeting.

The accident happened on a farm to market road between Lefors and Albreed. Mrs. Palmer apparently came upon a curve unexpectedly. The car ran off the road onto the shoulder, skidded into a bridge railing, overturned twice and landed upright on its wheels.

Mrs. Palmer was thrown from the auto and fell on the pavement. She suffered two fractured vertebrae and severe lacerations of the head, face, arms and legs.

Mrs. Monroe remained in the car as it flipped over and miraculously escaped with only minor injuries and shock.

Mrs. Monroe hailed a passing motorist who drove to McLean and summoned an ambulance which brought both of the women to Highland Hospital. Mrs. Monroe was released after a checkup at the hospital.

GOP Candidate Tells Why He Seeks Office

Republican Jack Seale of Amarillo, candidate for the 18th Congressional District office now held by Pampa's Walter Rogers, spoke before yesterday's noon meeting of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Seale, who attended a Freedom Seminar in Oklahoma City, became interested in trends in national government and actions on the national scene.

He was later approached by friends to run for Congress on the Republican ticket, leaving him facing two prospective problems. For one, he did not want to leave Amarillo, and, two, he faced the prospect of losing, as well as winning, an undesirable result for any candidate.

He nevertheless decided to seek the office and is now campaigning over the district.

Seale, mayor of Amarillo, said he has seen first hand through his mayor post that the federal government wants to replace local city government by offering so-called "aid" to do the jobs cities now do through local bond elections.

Seale said that if he is elected to office he would welcome the opportunity to learn why the federal government is interested in offering such aid.

Seale also hit the current federal government practice of "trying to spend toward prosperity, which is not in keeping with our own local business and government."

He said that the present administration policy that the President should be given more and more single authority, and that a strong central government is what this country needs, is further reason that he decided to offer himself as a candidate rather than to be merely an on-looker or bystander. He challenged the Jaycees to take an active interest in local and national government.

He nevertheless decided to seek the office and is now campaigning over the district.

Republicans Open Headquarters With Verbal Attacks On Demos

Speeches by Warren Fatheree, candidate for state representative, 87th Legislative District, and Jack Seale, candidate for Congress, 18th Congressional District, were featured at the official opening of Gray County Republican Headquarters, 117 W. Kingsmill, yesterday.

Republican women dressed in campaign colors served coffee and doughnuts to those who visited the new headquarters throughout the morning and early afternoon.

Clayton Husted, county chairman, welcomed the visitors and introduced the speakers, whose talks were broadcast over radio.

Fatheree criticized his opponent, Orainger McElhany, for "ignoring the interests" of the 87th District. "The incumbent, in the past, after hearing certain requests of the cities of Pampa and McLean, told these cities that his friends from San Antonio and Houston wanted him to vote according to the wishes of South Texas," Fatheree said.

"Despite the wishes of his own district, he went ahead and voted with San Antonio and Houston."

Fatheree continued, "In 1959, the incumbent voted for and helped enact the law which made it possible for Lyndon Johnson to seek two offices at the same time. In 1961, this cost the taxpayers over $1,000,000 to hold a special election for Lyndon Johnson's successor to the Senate seat he resigned. This has made Texas the laughing-stock of the nation among the other states."

Fatheree emphasized that he believes in the conservative principles of all government. "I believe that the government should be run just like each and every one of you run your own businesses and homes," he said.

Seale directed his remarks at the voting record of his opponent Walter Rogers. He emphasized that Rogers had "voted contrary to the wishes of the predominantly conservative Panhandle," with special reference to his vote to increase the national debt ceiling and his vote for the administration's farm bill. He also criticized Rogers for his approval of "unnecessary expenditures such as the $1,000,000 fish tank to be built in Washington, D.C."

There were many out-of-town visitors present, including Glynn Morris, district committeeman, Amarillo, and Mrs. G. N. Mc-

Houston Deluged With Two Inches Of Rain; Moisture Is Soaking Panhandle

By United Press International
Thunderstorms dumped nearly two inches of rain on downtown Houston Tuesday night. Rains of more than an inch hit wide areas in Southern and Eastern Texas.

An unofficial .39 inch of moisture had fallen in Pampa by noon today, according to the rain gauge above The News building.

The Houston Weather Bureau said 1.5 inches of rain hit downtown Houston in a one-hour period Tuesday night. The official rainfall at the airport, several miles away, was only .06 of an inch.

Lightning knocked at least one radio (KILT) and one television (KHOU-TV) station off the air. Winds gusted as high as 36 miles per hour.

Winds up to 50 miles an hour gusted through Henderson, where temperatures dropped 22 degrees in an hour. Henderson got .65 of an inch of rain in a half-hour. Texarkana Soaked

Texarkana, in extreme Northeast Texas, reported 1.75 inches of rain during the 24-hour period ended at 6 a.m.

Other rainfall totals for that period included 1.30 at Galveston, 1.10 at Waco, 1.01 at San Antonio, 1.13 at Corsicana, .83 at Beaumont, .62 at Richmond, .39 at Midland, .26 at Lubbock, .31 at Amarillo, .07 at Washington, .05 at San Angelo and Dalhart and .02 at Corpus Christi.

Overnight low temperatures ranged between 45 degrees at Dalhart and 79 at Corpus Christi. Amarillo and Lubbock both had overnight lows of 46.

Light rain was falling across the Panhandle-upper Plains area at daybreak. Both Amarillo and Lubbock reported rain.

Weak Cool Front
The thunderstorms and rain were set off by a weak cool front creeping southward across the state.

By dawn today, the front covered all of the state except the extreme south.

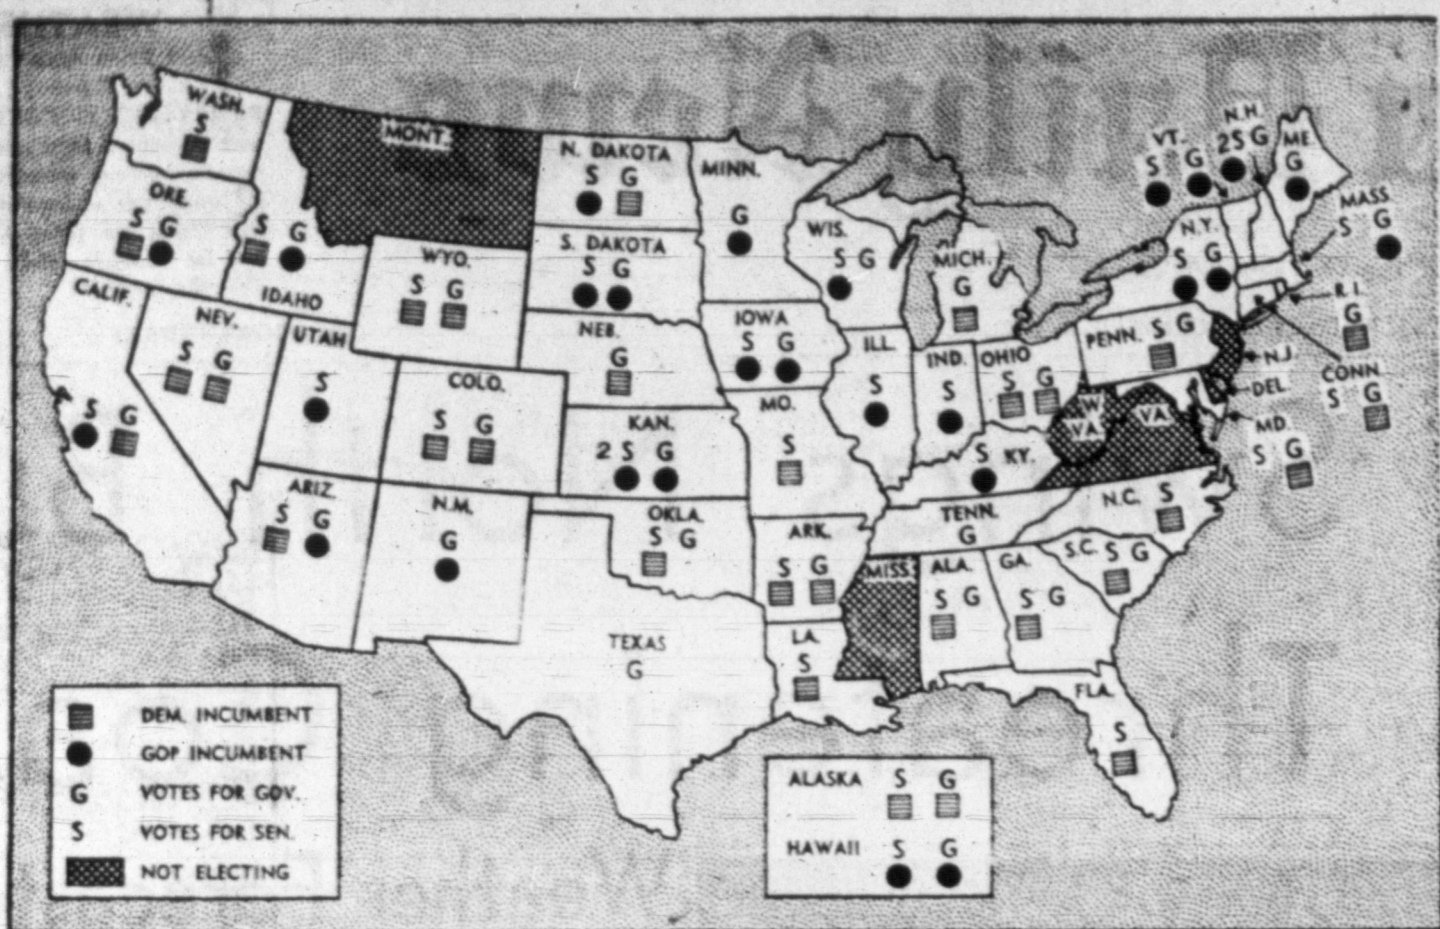

Forecasters said the front will continue to drift southward during the day, while scattered rains will drift toward the east.

The cool air did not arrive at Cotulla, Tex., in time Tuesday to keep the mercury from rising to 97 degrees—the highest in the nation. Beaumont had a reading of 90—the highest ever recorded so late in the season there. The low maximum was Dalhart's 60.

CONFERENCE ENDS

Walter Rogers Reports Connally Amendment

In recent weeks, I have been asked many questions about the "Connally Amendment" and its exact provisions. Because this subject is so vital to the preservation of our national sovereignty, I am reprinting herewith a newsletter I originally wrote on March 12, 1961.

Just over a year ago, and on February 21, 1961, I wrote you concerning the "Connally Amendment." In that newsletter I paid tribute to the greatness of Tom Connally, the former United States Senator from the State of Texas. No tribute was more justly deserved. Tom Connally deserves a splendid tribute from all Americans for the outstanding contributions he made in public service. Surely there are those who do not like Tom Connally, as is the case with all human beings, but even those must admit that the mark he left by the Connally Amendment is an all-American mark and a mark of distinction. His agile mind and quick tongue made him a much-feared foe in debate on the Senate floor. He is reputed to have told one vociferous opponent the following: "If the gentleman would approach these problems with an open mind instead of an open mouth, he would be much more effective." When asked last year for his opinion on the move to repeal the Connally Amendment, he branded the move as a propaganda device designed to "win an international popularity contest." This rather effectively summed up the situation, in my opinion.

For the benefit of those who have heard of the "Connally Amendment" but who have not had the opportunity of studying it, may I say that it consists of six words, which are "as determined by the United States." These words are attached to a portion of the United States Declaration of Acceptance of the World Court jurisdiction, and I quote:

"This declaration shall not apply to..."

"(b) Disputes with regard to matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of the United States of America as determined by the United States."

That portion in blacker type is the Connally reservation, or amendment, whichever you prefer to call it. You can readily see the effect of this amendment. The particular paragraph above quoted, without the Connally Amendment, would have left jurisdictional determination to the World Court. The World Court consists of fifteen judges elected by the General Assembly and the Security Council of the United Nations for nine-year terms. Its headquarters are at The Hague. On January 27, 1960, the fifteen members or judges of the World Court came from the following countries: one from the United States, one from Great Britain, and one from Australia. The others were citizens of the United Arab Republic, Nationalist China, Greece, Poland, France, Mexico, Panama, Argentina, Uruguay, Norway, Pakistan, and Soviet Russia. It is interesting to note that only three of the judges are from countries whose basis of law is the Common Law. Four are Latin Americans, two are from Moslem countries, two from Communist countries, one Chinese, and one each from Greece, Norway and France. Votes could be written as to the built-in dangers of such a situation, but since that amount of space is not available in this newsletter, I think it is sufficient to observe that Americans acquainted with the issue would immediately recognize the inherent dangers of distortion, modification, misinterpretation, and outright abuse of the Bill of Rights and the Constitution which are the protecting armor of the American citizen. Without the Connally Amendment this armor would have been broken in many places. Its preservation is vital if the sovereignty of the United States is to be maintained.

You might be interested in knowing that since the above was written, judges from Uruguay, Norway, and Pakistan have been replaced by judges from Peru, Italy and Japan. Thus, the geographic and cultural distribution remains relatively unchanged.

Although attempts have been made to repeal the Connally Amendment, these moves have been defeated. I believe the Connally Amendment will, and must, remain an integral part of our law. I shall certainly do everything in my power to preserve this aspect of our national sovereignty, as well as all other aspects.

Member of Congress
18th District of Texas

Since the beginning, nations have spied upon one another so that now as a business the spy's profession must be at least second among the world's oldest.

It operates within certain rules. The first is not to get caught. The second is that the nation employing him never must admit his existence, and, if faced with the evidence, immediately must disavow him.

But either the rules are changing or the business is becoming cluttered with amateurs.

A couple of weeks ago, U. S. federal agents converged on a suburban New York diner and picked up two Russian diplomats attached to the Soviet mission to the United Nations. The Russians, who obviously had violated the first rule of successful spying, were found with the goods and promptly ejected from the United States.

Russia retaliated with the ejection of two members of the U.S. embassy in Moscow on similar charges.

Florida May Send Liberal Ex-Senator Claude Pepper Back To Washington

Campaign Trails—The South By FRANK EIDGE

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI)—Not many "old school" southern politicians—they of the caricature face, stentorian voices and booming, polished phrases—are still around, but barring a GOP upset Florida will send one to Washington this fall.

He is former U. S. Senator Claude Pepper, who has all the traditional Dixie look and mannerisms but is a political paradox. Southern vote-getters almost always are staunch conservatives—Pepper is a forthright liberal and a New Dealer from way back.

He hedged not at all in the May Democratic primaries, where he defeated three opponents without a runoff, in declaring he will back the Kennedy administration's program down the line.

Born in Alabama and reared in Florida, the 61-year-old Pepper is as southern as grits and red-eye gravy. His voice and gentlemanly manners give him the air of a movie version of an Old South plantation owner.

Faces Unknown

In the general election, Pepper faces Republican Robert A. Peterson of Miami Beach, a comparative political unknown. The race is in Florida's new Third Congressional District—the northern half of Dade (Miami) County—which was chosen from three possible districts by Pepper because it contains a heavy registration of laborers and liberal-voting Miami Beach residents.

The winner will be one of four additional congressmen from Florida.

A return to Washington as a public servant should bring a flood of nostalgia to the sentimental Pepper. He's been yearning to make the step for 12 years.

For the 12 years before that, Pepper served in the Senate as the chief spokesman for the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration. Pepper's beloved FDR used him to launch the administration's trial balloons.

Losses To Smathers

In 1950, a young protégé, George A. Smathers, turned Pepper out of the Senate in one of the most bitter political battles in Florida's history.

The memories lingered until 1958 when Pepper tried but failed to come close to unseating Florida's other senator, veteran conservative Spessard L. Holland.

The Pepper-Smathers enmity might create an awkward situation for President Kennedy. Smathers is a close friend of Kennedy.

But Smathers has opposed some of the President's prime objectives in Congress, such as the medical care program. Pepper may emerge as Kennedy's strongest backer in the Florida congressional delegation.

Kentucky: A tip-top battle is shaping up between incumbent Sen. Thruston B. Morton, a 55-year-old Republican who is almost a prototype of the Eisenhower-Nixon Republican, and Wilson W. Wyatt, 57, who attaches himself firmly to the liberal, New Frontier wing of the Democratic party. Kentucky elects seven congressmen and chances are good that all or all but one of them will be Democrats.

Alabama: George C. Wallace, an avowed last-ditch segregationist, has an independent opponent, Frank Walls, for the governorship but will win overwhelmingly. The Democratic congressional delegation, with Rep. Frank Boykin eliminated in a primary runoff, is running at large rather than by districts because of court-ordered reapportionment difficulties. Three Republicans and a national states rights candidate also are in the lists, but the eight incumbent Democratic congressmen are favored.

Georgia: Rep. James C. Davis of the metropolitan Atlanta 5th District was unseated in a hot primary contest by Democrat Charles Welner, making his political debut. Welner is favored over a Republican opponent, James O'Callaghan, in November. The only other congressional contest in the state is in the 7th District where Rep. John W. Davis faces Republican Ralph Ivey and is favored.

Florida: The Sunshine State will cast a larger shadow in Congress after this year's election, with four additional congressmen in token of its expanding population. Like Pepper, all of the Democratic candidates for the new seats have active Republican opponents, and the GOP is contesting all but two of the old Democratic seats. Likewise the one Republican incumbent, Rep. William C. Cramer, has Democratic opposition.

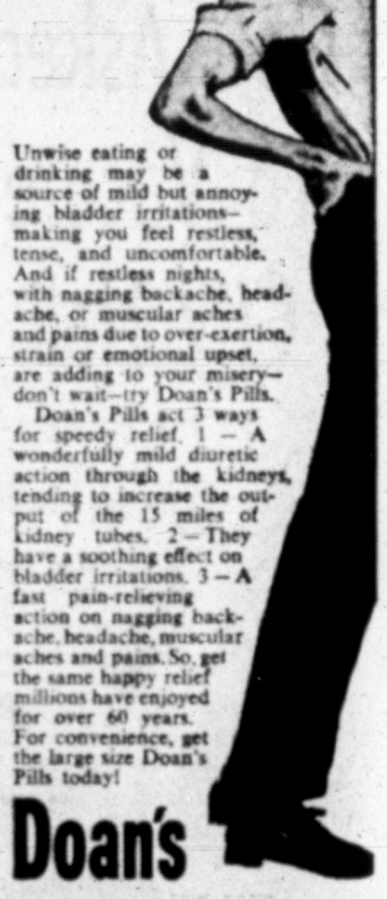

Mississippi: Only one contested race in the five congressional districts. Rep. Arthur Winstead is challenged by independent Sterling Davis.

North Carolina: Six Republicans are challenging incumbent Democratic congressmen, and the Democrats have put Rep. Paul Kitchin, whose seat went with reapportionment, into the 8th District fight against the state's lone incumbent Republican congressman, Rep. Charles R. Jones.

South Carolina: The first big Republican push on a statewide level comes with a challenge to Sen. Olin D. Johnston by Republican William D. Workan Jr., and a challenge to Democratic 2nd District congressional nominee Albert W. Watson from Republican Floyd D. Spence. The latter two seek the seat of the late John J.

Riley, Democrat. Tennessee: Frank Clement, one-time boy wonder governor of Tennessee, is seeking to return to the state House. A clear primary victory over two tough opponents puts him in sight of the goal, if he defeats Republican Hubert Patti and an independent candidate in November, as he doubtless will. Democrats are challenging for the two traditionally Republican congressional seats in east Tennessee and Republicans seek to unseat the Democrats in the state's other congressional districts. Virginia: Four incumbent Democratic congressmen are unopposed. Republicans are challenging for four other Democratic seats and Democrats are trying to unhorse the two Virginia GOP congressmen, J. T. Broyhill and Richard H. Poff.

German

Schroeder has made it clear in discussions here with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other high officials that his government does not necessarily share the Kennedy administration's view that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is preparing to whip up a new Berlin crisis as soon as the U.S. elections are over.

Reports On Meeting While still predicting new Soviet military economic or diplomatic pressure on Berlin in late November or December, U.S. officials acknowledged they found no such threat in Ambassador Foy D. Kohler's report from Moscow on his three-hour meeting Tuesday with Khrushchev.

Khrushchev was said to have ranged across a wide variety of East-West problems, but without devoting undue emphasis to Berlin or any other single issue and without repeating his demands for "liquidation" of the Allied position on the city.

The Soviet leader was understood to have spoken at some length of his efforts to develop Russian economy. All in all, officials said, it was not a tough confrontation at all.

Other View Western experts in Moscow, however, said they believed Khrushchev may have used his first meeting with Kohler to drop fresh hints on his plans for Berlin.

IT'S THE LAW

UNFAIR LAWS

Our Constitution says Congress shall pass no bill of attainder nor any ex post facto law. The fear that our Parliament might repeat what the early English parliament did, lead our founding fathers to limit the power of Congress.

1. In a bill of attainder a legislative body punishes someone without a court trial, most often someone the lawmakers don't like.

2. After the Civil War, some northern states tried to keep Confederate supporters from suing in their courts. The U. S. Supreme Court said nix: such laws punished without a fair trial.

In later years Congress has tried now and then to penalize persons who have not cooperated with Congressional Investigating Committees, in one case by cutting their salaries and requiring Senate re-confirmation before they got paid. The U. S. Supreme Court held: The law is unconstitutional. Congress could not thus punish a person without a court trial.

Usually a bill of attainder strikes at a few persons by burdening them without fair warning of hearing.

Our legislature may penalize anyone who breaks its laws. If you don't pay your auto registration on time, you have to pay a penalty automatically. Such a penalty does not violate the bill of attainder clause.

Ex post facto laws would make crimes out of acts which when they were done were lawful. In one case a new law took away a court defense which had been allowed. In another case a state law cut the jurors allowed in a criminal trial from 12 to 8. The U. S. Supreme Court said that no such law could apply to past crimes. A person accused might be put to a disadvantage.

The ex post facto clause applies only to legislative acts, not to new court interpretations. One law changed the punishment for murder from hanging to electrocution. The courts held the law valid. It did not change the punishment.

The procedure for the trial, or the rules of evidence may be revised if they do not add punishment or take away a protection. (This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

California Trip Stopped Short For Indiana Man

An Auburn, Ind., man's planned trip to California was cut short yesterday afternoon when the owner of the car he planned to make the trip in ran out of a store and stopped the car while it was being backed away from the curb.

Gerald L. Roth, 47, the man from the Hoosier state, told police he was taking the car to drive it to California.

The auto belonged to J. C. Schooner, 920 Buckler St., and he had parked it in front of Branham's Upholstery Shop, 820 W. Brown.

Schooner rushed out of the store when he saw the car being backed away. He jumped in and turned off the ignition. Police said Roth got out and walked away.

Patrolman Denny Roan found him a short while later lying under a tree in Hobart St. park. He was jailed on a charge of theft over $50.

Roth was arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. W. Graham this morning and placed under $1,000 bond awaiting action of the grand jury.

Dear Abby.... Wear The Ring, Man! Times Have Changed

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: In regard to men wearing wedding rings, may I comment on the double-ring ceremony, which I know you will not print, because it disagrees with your "marriage is a 50-50 proposition" philosophy?

The whole business of men wearing wedding rings is silly and has no historical justification what-ever.

The wedding ring is the symbol of bondage of females in marriage. It is the last relic of the collar and shackles, with which captive and purchased brides were (and still are in some parts of the world (bound by their male masters.

Let me quote from an old German wedding prayer book (1888): "The wedding ring is for the bride only, and is a symbol of her bondage, subjection to, and obedience to her master; a sign that she is now no longer free, and independent, but that she is bound and chained under the mastery of her husband."

Yours truly,
T. C. E.

DEAR T. C. E.: Thank you for reminding us how much progress civilization has made since 1888.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been showing up late from work half drunk every night. Do you know why?

ELLEN

DEAR ELLEN: He probably ran out of money.

DEAR ABBY: I can't forget "HARRY" who preferred his mule to his wife because the mule brought in $635 a year. Harry asked, "What does the wife bring in?"

Sometimes, even as his own mother did, she brings into the world a son. So far, neither man nor mule has been able to do that.

If a man paid by the hour (union wages, plus tips) for all the services rendered by the average wife, he would consider himself lucky to have a combination cook, baker, laundress, cleaning-woman, seamstress, governess, chauffeur, nurse, plumber, painter, gardener, referee, tutor, book-keeper and financial wizard — and one who performs duties for which some lesser women are paid in diamonds and mink. National Association of Claimants' Counsel reports that the cost of replacing a 25-year-old mother of two is $6000 per year. Harry had better get a little more work out of that mule.

KENTUCKIAN

DEAR ABBY: Like "stealing" a base in baseball, cheating at Mah Jongg is perfectly legitimate. If you are CAUGHT taking an extra tile, it must be returned. If you can get away with it — it's all in the game.

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the right of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Free (?) Federal Aid

Percentage depletion for oil producers (not other elements of the industry) has been in effect for many years. Congress after Congress has reaffirmed it. The figure is 27 1/2 per cent, which amounts to a credit against federal income taxes. And the primary reasons for its existence are obvious: searching for oil is an extremely risky and costly business, with only about one wildcat well in nine drilled producing anything at all, and, second, even the best of wells eventually wear out and must be replaced if our oil reserves are to be maintained. Over the years many an effort has been made to reduce or even totally eliminate percentage depletion. All have been defeated in the Senate. In 1958, for instance, an amendment to reduce it to 15 per cent went down 63 to 26. In 1959, a comparable proposal lost by 54 to 21. In 1960 an effort to change the provision was beaten 56 to 30.

This year's Congress witnessed a repetition of the old story. Two attempts to reduce the rate were defeated by large margins—57 to 30, and 50 to 23.

A spokesman for the Independent Petroleum Association of America says: "... we are encouraged by the latest votes, which provide some evidence that the opponents of depletion may no longer be gaining ground. However, in view of the widespread and continuing attacks on depletion, and since the over-all tax structure may be subject to revision in the forthcoming session of Congress, the petroleum-producing industry must... present... our positive case for percentage depletion."

This is far from being just an oil producers' problem. It is a public problem. For percentage depletion helps provide the profit incentive that makes men take long risks in seeking new oil resources on which every family in the Western world is dependent.

Where To Start

To know is excellent. To know that one does not know is the beginning of learning.

The Profit Incentive

Says the United Press International story: "In another development, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare disclosed that during the turmoil at Oxford (Miss.) some federal assistance funds were temporarily withheld from the university. The payments have been restored..."

have gone to Ole Miss and federal troops have followed the federal dollars. The Supreme Court has said that this arrangement is eminently just.

This is true in all federal programs. Accepting a government's money is accepting the government's control. Perhaps the Mississippi affair will bring some good after all if it points out that the individual who accepts government money is selling his own freedom, and that the state which accepts federal funds has traded away its so-called "states sovereignty" and should accept the bargain in good grace. Ole Miss is a political Faustian. It has sold its soul but rebels at making delivery.

Who Protects Against Government Fraud?

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph.D.

Near and around our ghost town advantage point, land development operations are prevalent. It was a classified advertisement regarding a land development which first focused our attention on this area. Government has found another boy to whip—it is concerning itself with what one spokesman called unscrupulous, greedy multi-million-dollar dealers in real estate. Government wants to protect the poor, ignorant masses from diabolical, misleading advertising.

The most unscrupulous merchant of all times was with government, because the unscrupulous merchant cannot apply the compulsive force of government, he may not steal from you at the point of a gun, lawfully.

Unscrupulous land speculators and developers make little headway unless they encounter prospective buyers who are also less than honest. When the get something for nothing buyer meets a sharp dealing seller the buyer comes off second best.

We bought our property blind. We looked at photographs, a brochure and we read the advertising carefully. We knew we were buying raw land, 2 1/2 acres worth. We knew the land was 25 miles from the lake it used as part of the title of the project. We knew the land had been surveyed, streets had been graded in roughly and that we could buy 1,000 gallons of water, delivered to our storage tank for $5. When we took our first look at our property we were mighty pleased.

On the other hand — a few buyers of property in this same project thought they were buying land on the shores of a lake. They believed water pipes were in, electrical lines were in and streets paved. They believed they were buying acreage worth $5,000 for $465. They complained to chambers of commerce and to various agencies of government. They bellowed, "There ought to be a law!"

Make no mistake about it, this writer is prejudiced in favor of private enterprise and this prejudice goes right down the line. From a personal point of view we would rather do business with

This does not make a case for dishonesty in the market place. In the long run dishonesty in business earns its just reward. During our 60 years we have encountered dishonesty in business. We have observed unethical practices on the part of business and professional people but we have not known of even one political figure out of a thousand who has even kept campaign promises

Pull Up A Chair

Directed by a disciplined and determined brain, human fingers can be trained to perform astonishing feats. Today's Health mag points out. The flying fingers of a master pianist can strike 120 notes per second. A skilled surgeon can tie strands of silk thread into tight knots inside the human heart with two fingers. And one circus performer so strengthened the index finger of his right hand by years of patient effort that he could balance upside down on the top of flange poles and high building ledges with the tip of the finger.

Such is the Americanization of many European retail stores that those in West Germany and Switzerland are offering trading stamps. Beauty parade as described in the Leadville (Colo.) Herald-Democrat: "They ranged the whole gamut at feminine beauty from the homely to the formidable, from the rolling pint to the battle-axe."

Americans may learn something from a booklet prepared by the American Hotel Assn. for use in the U.S. by visitors from abroad. For instance in the matter of tips: 15 to 25 cents to the doorman if he helps with your luggage to your room; 15 to 20 per cent of the check for meals sent to your room; and after a stay of several days, at least $1 to the chambermaid.

Today's favorite gag: An intoxicated man staggered out of a tavern and started walking up the street with one foot in the gutter and the other on the sidewalk. After several blocks, he was accosted by a policeman with, "Hey, you're drunk!" "Thank heaven," said the man, "I thought I was lame..." One of the problems of sprouting suburbs is whether there shall be zoning laws which make it legal for doctors, dentists and lawyers to have their offices in their own homes. The most serious objection seems to be against the lawyers.

Thoughts while shaving: 1. Status terms in the field of the stage, films and TV have been worn so fuzzy in recent years that it's about time they were straightened out. And there is no more authoritative tribunal than Variety to do it. So henceforth, so far as Variety is concerned, a star is an actor who is billed above the title of the picture or play. Example: John Doe in "The Lump." A featured player is one whose name is immediately following the title, and not three frames later. Example: "The Lump," with John Doe... 2. And nowadays how many thousands of young athletes have been called All-American players? Whose All-American team—the one selected annually by the wire services, the team picked by a certain magazine, or what?... 3. In the early 1900s there was only one All-America team, that selected by Walter Camp, Yale's grand old man of football, for Collier's magazine at the end of each season. All the experts "let Walter do it" when it came to that chore, even though virtually all members of the Camp All-America played for Yale (his own alma mater), Harvard or Princeton. It was quite a sensation when, one year, Camp picked a U. of Pennsylvania player for his select group... 4. Then came World War I, and from then on everyone was choosing his All-America football teams. That's why there are so many young athletes who've been tabbed "All-America" on rather feeble premises.

Country editor speaking: "In Toronto a chicken has laid an egg within an egg. Movie producers have come close to doing the same thing in this country..."

and none who have actually accomplished anything for the cause of freedom or to reduce the size and cost and power of government. While unethical business practices generally end in business failures, unethical political practices seem always to result in perpetuation in office. Why does anyone expect government to protect them against their own blindness, stupidity or urge to benefit by a little larceny? Those involved with government, the elected and appointed employees of the taxpayers regularly become involved with false and misleading advertising, during election campaigns and while they hold office. If business, per se, was guilty of 1,000th as much false advertising, government would be all over business like a hot pea on a red hot shovel. I'll take my stand with private enterprise, all the way.

Good luck and good health to you, in freedom.

Color Blindness Is No Barrier to Normal Life

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT

If you have a boy who is color blind, let him know early in life that this is not an insurmountable handicap.

Girls rarely have this condition but they may pass it on to their sons. For most boys with this defect things look very much as they do to a boy with normal color vision except that some shades of red and green tend to look alike.

If the boy has total color blindness, a rare condition, everything looks black, white or gray. In that case he is no worse off than viewers of movies and television before color.

It is estimated that over three million boys and men in the United States are color blind. Because the importance of this handicap has been overemphasized, many boys with defective color vision get an unwarranted feeling of inferiority.

Fortunately it is no longer necessary to have normal vision to get into the Army and the color blind can learn to obey traffic lights by noting the relative position of the red and green lights, the same the world over.

It has been established that color blind persons do not have more traffic accidents than the rest of us. About the only occupations such a person could not expect to follow would be that of sign painter (painters of portraits and landscapes no longer stick to conventional coloring) or interior decorator.

One of the earliest memories of a boy I once knew was that at the age of four the girls he played with teased him because he called their red dresses green. Later he tearfully told his mother the dresses were the same color as the grass. This same boy had difficulty with some of his courses in college chemistry but they were partly due to lack of understanding by instructors. He loved the subject and found that if he took special pains with the experiments that involved changes in color he could do as well as the rest of the boys.

He got an enormous sense of satisfaction out of the fact that even the girls who could distinguish colors so well could not always agree.

In World War II the Army found that the color blind were able to detect enemy camouflage that completely fooled persons with normal color vision. Although there is no cure for color blindness much can be done to improve the lot of the 3 to 4 per cent of boys and men who have this affliction. Since they have trouble to differentiate red and green, why not make important decisions depend on distinguishing some other combination such as yellow and blue that even the color blind can tell apart? If the proper approach is used, the color blind boy will go through life hardly aware that he is different from other boys.

FIXING THE PRICE OF STEEL

By Harry Browne

Editor's Note: Harry Browne is the Editor of American Progress Magazine; and Managing Editor of American Way Features, Inc.

Is the price of steel too high or too low? Would a price increase have been exorbitant? Do you know? It's doubtful that any of us can answer those questions—and that includes the President of U. S. Steel and the President of the United States.

For the price of steel in America can not be set by anyone's judgment or decision. It is the result of many factors—the pressure of competition, the quality of the product, the service that accompanies it, the arbitrary whims of the buying public, the cost of manufacture, and the current tax rates—among other elements.

When the managers of U. S. Steel decide that they are going to raise prices, they could be doing it for any of several reasons—their profits have become too low to attract working capital, they anticipate a raise in costs, or they just may feel that the opportunity is available to make a real killing with high prices. It matters not what lies behind their decision. No man can sit in judgment, because no man knows all of the factors involved. The judgment will come from the market.

If the price increase was too much, the market will respond with fewer sales and, ultimately, the company will be forced to either rescind the increase or suffer drastically. On the other hand, if the price increase was not enough, the company may reap an abundance of sales from their competitive price.

At any rate, only the market can render the judgment. And this is the blessing of the free enterprise system. For, in effect, you and I are the market—we, the consumers, make the decisions with our purchases as to what shall or shall not be done. In America, the consumer is king. Production and pricing are geared to our wants—not those of a government bureaucrat. This concept of production to meet consumer demand has made America the wealthiest and most productive country in the world. It would be impossible for any government — no matter how large — to make such important pricing decisions accurately. Yet we have seen the President of the United States attempt to impose his own judgment on the steel industry. We see our government operating power companies, insurance companies, and lending companies — administering their own prices, with no competitive influences involved.

Such activity will end the consumer's reign as king; and turn him into a docile serf, as is the Russian citizen. For who can say "no" to the government?

We are allowing this to happen when we don't make our feelings known to our Congressmen. Have you written to yours lately? Have you told him that you are opposed to government price-fixing and to government-operated businesses? Have you told him that you are in favor of the proposed Liberty Amendment which would put a stop to all that?

Until you make your wishes known you can expect this socialistic program to continue.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question: "How does any society make progress materially and spiritually?"

To answer that briefly, we'd say by competition in creative ideas. Or it might be said, respecting human initiative to produce and understand, not to destroy, except to restrain initiated force. Or it might be stated, a belief in voluntarism as opposed to involuntarism, a belief that one should get what he gets by benefiting those from whom he gets. In other words, living by the sweat of one's brow. And it is usually easier to produce and exchange than to beg and have something given than beg for it.

This lesson we do not seem to have learned, because we seem to think that there is a double standard of rightness, that the state has a right to do things that no individual has a right to do, that the state can take from one to give to others and it is not stealing.

Material progress comes first by spiritual progress, by understanding the difference between right and wrong, justice and injustice, and respecting the equal rights of all other people.

The United States undoubtedly made more progress than any other country because it more nearly recognized, as set forth in the Declaration of Independence, that all men receive their equal rights to life and liberty from the Creator and not from the state or from any other individual or group. It might be briefly stated that spiritual and material progress comes from competition in serving, in letting all people help establish values in a free exchange of ideas and material things, a natural division of labor. The start, of course, is as Jesus said, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." That's where progress comes from.

George Woods, Prominent in Dixon-Yates Case, Under Congressional Fire As World Bank Nominee

WASHINGTON — George D. Woods, Republican financier and a central figure in the Dixon-Yates conflict of interest case in the early fifties, is being considered as successor to Eugene R. Black, president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

The controversial Woods, 61, is chairman of the First Boston Corporation, one of the largest investment underwriters in the world.

His nomination as Black's replacement is now on President Kennedy's desk. If approved, the selection will be informally sent to the World Bank directors who make the official decision.

In the past, the directors have followed U.S. recommendations in selecting their head, as this country is the largest "subscriber" to the World Bank's $20.5 billion fund. The directors plan to do the same in naming Black's successor.

Black, who is retiring early in 1963, has served as the Bank's president since 1949, when he succeeded New York banker John J. McCloy. His present term expires in May.

Woods' approval by President Kennedy would be a sure thing except for his controversial role in the Dixon-Yates case, which touched off a full-scale Senate investigation in 1954-55, and resulted in cancellation of the multi-million dollar power contract.

Woods' appointment was lauded as "top-drawer" by dozens of businessmen and cabinet members consulted by the President. One called him "a man of vision and competence."

He rose from office boy to boss by his own efforts. He was the architect of some of the greatest deals in American financial history — such as raising an incredible $1.5 billion to finance the Henry J. Kaiser enterprises.

Even Senator Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., who headed the Dixon-Yates investigation, reports that the ebullient Woods appears to be the President's top choice among a dozen possible candidates for Black's job.

Others on the list include Federal Reserve Chairman William McChesney Martin, Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon, Undersecretary of State George Ball, and former Defense Secretary Thomas Gates.

THE BIG HURDLE — But there is one big hurdle. Many of the liberal Democrats in Congress — notably Senator Kefauver — are of no mind to permit the selection of Woods without a fight. Already, they have taken their case directly to the President.

"Woods' selection would be a slap in the face of every Democratic senator who took part in exposing the Dixon-Yates scandal," Kefauver warned the President.

He pointed out how, "Woods, as chairman of First Boston, had engineered the unsuccessful Dixon-Yates power deal... admitting he had volunteered to help the Eisenhower Administration move the Tennessee Valley Authority's public power facilities into the private field."

A similar private attack by Senator Kefauver last year succeeded in dissuading the President from nominating Woods to head the U.S. Agency for International Development. The President had been all set to send Wood's name to the Senate when Kefauver and company descended on the White House.

But there is no definite assurance that this frontal attack will succeed again. In his talk with Kefauver, the President did not reveal his intentions, other than to thank the Tennessee legislator for his views.

CHANGING SITUATION — Unlike the AID nomination, Woods does not need Senate confirmation for the World Bank post. Supporters claim that this mighty obstacle figured largely in the President's decision not to go through with his nomination of Woods for the foreign aid position.

In the present situation, Senator Kefauver lacks the powerful threat of a confirmation fight. Instead, he and his supporters have only the nuisance value of their private and public blasts. The latter weapon, still to be used, could be highly explosive if directed at the President.

Woods, whose company is the nation's largest utility financier, has been especially active in attracting private capital investments to India in recent years. He also has had a great deal of experience in private financing of foreign aid for the United Arab Republic.

It was Woods first vice president, Adolphe M. Wendzell, who set off the Dixon-Yates conflict-of-interest investigation by holding the dual role of consultant to the Bureau of the Budget while still serving as a First Boston executive.

Testimony revealed that the Kefauver Committee before that Woods had proposed Wendzell's employment to then-Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge.

The World Bank post is one of the prize political plums in Washington, with a salary of $40,000 after taxes, plus worldwide travel with all expenses paid. As president, Black has visited all of the 81 member nations to supervise the granting of loans which have now grown to $4.5 billion.

IN THE CABLES — Arturo Jauregui, Secretary General of the Regional Inter-American Labor Organization, has telegraphed Algerian Prime Minister Ahmed Ben Bella that his proposed visit to Cuba would have an adverse effect on the Free Union movement of this continent. In his telegram, Jauregui asks Ben Bella "to refrain from approving, with a visit, the most contemptible group of tyrants among the Americas..." In order to keep Senator Strom Thurmond D.S.C. under wraps at this week's Inter-Parliamentary Union in Brazil, the State Department has asked him to speak on "disarmament." Senator Thurmond, who is advocating a naval blockade of Cuba, plans to out-foot State officials by suggesting that the starting point be Cuba — with the Soviet withdrawing its MIG's and missiles.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—There is only one Caesar, and Sid is his name. He returned to television Tuesday night with a monthly half-hour show, and though his satire too often lacked the sting of Caesar's salad days, the leftovers were still better than almost anything else on the home tube.

Caesar came and nearly conquered via the ABC-TV network and the courtesy of the Dutch Masters cigar firm, which he says has given him total freedom to go his own wild way, as it did with the late Ernie Kovacs. By coincidence, Kovacs' widow, Edie Adams, presents the first of her nine monthly specials for ABC-TV next Tuesday night.

Perhaps Caesar should have taken fuller advantage of his blank check Tuesday night. Just about the only time he needed something specific with success—athletes and shaving commercials—it paid off, and, of all things, turned out to be an advertisement itself that had no mercy even on his sponsor. Lathered up, Caesar is asked:

"Are you a baseball player?" "Whatdaya think I'm shaving for?" he replied.

Before the brief but brilliant commercial was over, he was shaving with a Dutch Masters cigar.

The only other moments of way-out brilliance occurred at the start when Caesar and Andy Duncan in black-tie getup and mumbling incoherently as Englishmen, proceeded to tear up a pool table during a billiard game—illogically, insanely, as if it were a matter of natural course, in a scene that had absolutely no explanation. They were supreme, keeping score with an overhead rack with perfectly straight faces, and I would pay hard cash to see it again.

The best full skit was the finale, in which Caesar plays a man who has extra tickets to the governor's dinner and tries to decide which of his friends are really loyal pals and deserve to go with him and his wife. The test of friendship gets way out of proportion, and finally his wife asks him if he's going to take her; he says he doesn't know.

Sid has eight more cracks. It's good he's back; with the loss of Kovacs, Bob Newhart and Steve Allen, he is the only major satirist on network television; and it is good that there is a fellow around who knows that the best target in satire is us—the audience.

Increase in Crude Demand Forecast

AUSTIN (UPI)—November demand for Texas crude oil has been forecast by the U. S. Bureau of Mines at 2.5 million barrels daily, an increase of 83,000 barrels a day from October.

Texas Railroad Commission chairman William J. Murray Jr., said Monday purchasers' nominations for November totaled 2,524,186 barrels daily, up 33,852 barrels daily.

The commission will meet Thursday to hear producers' requests for the November production pattern. Production was on an eight-day pattern in October, the ninth consecutive month for eight-day production.

Wheat Crop Prospects Brighten

AUSTIN (UPI)—Prospects brightened for a good winter wheat crop in Texas due to good general rains in September, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has reported.

Subsoil moisture as of Oct. 1 was good and surface moisture was ample to excessive over most of the Texas wheat pasture area. Prospects indicate a good grazing season, USDA said.

Very little seeded wheat had sufficient growth for livestock grazing in the Texas Panhandle up to Oct. 1, but this area should have some good grazing fields by the end of the month, USDA said.

Texas Northern High Plains wheat acreage was 75 per cent planted by the first of the month and was 73 per cent complete in the southern high plains.

Late September rains in the Central and Southern Plains areas was ample to excessive for winter wheat planting. Prospects over much of this area are much improved. Wheat growth on Oct. 1 was rated as fair.

FALL FUN—Colorful autumn leaves are for playing with and Honor Mary O'Sullivan, 1, is doing just that near her home in Howells, New York.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Judge Is Ordered To Proceed With Haley Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court has ordered Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson of Dallas to proceed with four-year-old government charges against a farmer who planted excess wheat for his own livestock.

Davidson decided in the farmer's favor in 1958 but was reversed by the Supreme Court. More recently he found that the supreme court lacked jurisdiction and again found for the farmer.

The court said Davidson didn't understand its previous opinion. The farmer J. Everts Haley Jr. of Amarillo, was ordered by the Agriculture Department to pay $506.11 for planting 43 acres of wheat in excess of his quota under the agricultural adjustment act.

In further proceedings the 57-year-old jurist must now determine whether proper acreage allotment procedures were followed by the department. Haley argues they were not.

Auto Industry's Sale Of 1963's Hitting Records

DETROIT (UPI)—The auto industry is reporting record sales of its 1963 model cars.

Setting the pace is Chevrolet heading for an all-time record year of two million car sales.

The giant General Motors division said a total of 68,000 Chevrolet passenger cars were delivered by dealers from Oct. 1-10, 45 per cent above the previous record high for the period set in 1961.

Chevrolet general sales manager Larry Averil said the 1963 models are selling much better than the 1962s with a daily selling rate of 7,350, an increase of 1,900 cars over a year ago.

Chrysler Corp. said it had sales of 31,438 for the first 10 days of October, highest for any similar period since 1950, surpassing even the record years of 1955 and 1957.

American Motors Corp. said its Oct. 1-10 sales totaled a record 12,043 Ramblers, compared with 10,669 sold in the like period of last year the previous high for the period.

The Chrysler-Plymouth Division reported 10-day deliveries of 19,109 cars, including 13,773 Plymouths. The Plymouth figure represented a 33 per cent increase over a year ago as the division surpassed sales totals for 1955, the industry's best year.

The Dodge Division also sounded enthusiastic over 1963 sales. General manager Byron J. Nichols said Oct. 1-10 sales came to 12,329 cars, compared with 7,279 last year.

BEEES STAY PUT

NEWLYN, England (UPI)—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Andrews have used fire, vacuum cleaners and fly swatters in vain efforts to displace hundreds of bees in their brick-up fireplace.

Today they said they have hired a workman to tear down a wall of their home to get at the bees.

NO-ROACH WITH SQUIRT BOTTLE—Now you get a free plastic squirt bottle with each pint (16-oz.) bottle of Johnston's No-Roach, for use in getting into those "hard to get at places" with the famous bug-killer, Johnston's No-Roach.

A Free Squirt Bottle With Pint No-Roach!

A free plastic squirt bottle is now attached to each pint (16 oz.) of Johnston's No-Roach. This can be used to squirt the bug-killing, creamy liquid into "hard to get at places" where cockroaches and spiders live and breed.

A few of these places are: behind the refrigerator, under boxes, around the sink, spaces in the basement, garage, or in restaurants, hospitals, factories, hotels, etc.

The liquid dries to a colorless, odorless coating that stays effective for months. In addition to this squirt application, you can, of course, brush the liquid around cabinets, sills, and places where you have seen roaches or ants. The combination of the two methods will guarantee a bug-free home.

No-Roach-pints with free plastic squirt bottle are on sale for $1.69 at your favorite supermarket or drug store.

Cockroaches live and breed in dark and damp places, such as under sinks, in cracks, behind dishwashers, in closets. And it might be a bit difficult to brush or sponge No-Roach in these areas. Answer: Pour some into a plastic squeeze bottle, and squirt this colorless, odorless coating into these "hard to get at" places. Result: Effortless pest control.

Oil Well Royalty Owners File Suit Against Salt Water Disposal Firm

LONGVIEW (UPI)—A group of oil well royalty owners filed suit in district court today, claiming excess salt water pumped back underground in the giant East Texas oil field flushed the oil from beneath their wells.

The suit was filed against the East Texas Salt Water Disposal Co., of Longview and asked for $340,000 actual damages and an injunction to keep the company from pumping more salt water into the ground.

The plaintiffs claimed East Texas Salt Water committed a subsurface trespass by pumping salt water back into the ground in such volume that it forced oil from beneath their lease.

Claims Wells Damaged
The suit claims the salt water caused 20 of 22 wells on the M. H. Bivins - Shell a lease in Gregg County to dry up beginning in 1951.

A natural salt water formation in the East Texas field is pushing the oil in the field to the east, and in time drying up wells on the western edge. The suit claims pumping the water back underground speeded up the process by several years.

Longview attorney H. B. Smead Jr., representing the plaintiffs, said that under normal circumstances, all of the wells on the lease would have produced for another four or five years. Plaintiffs in the suit are John and Jessie Nix of McLennan County, James M. Bivins and Tom Durham Bivins of Gregg County, Ramsey and Louise Durham Yelvington of Hays County, Ruth Latta Durham of Harris County individually and Ruth Latta Durham as guardian for Mary Durham, minor, of Harris County, and Norma Skelton Durham of Smith County.

Smead said he was seeking the injunction to keep the two producing wells pumping oil as long as possible.

The damages sought, he said, are only actual damages. Smead said the suit might well be a landmark in the East Texas oil industry.
