On Cuban Bombers

Early Break In Deadlock Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials today appeared to expect an early break — one way or the other — in the Soviet-American deadlock over removal of jet bombers from Cuba.

On the whole, they appeared optimistic that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev was on the verge of agreeing to pull out the more than 30 IL28 aircraft which President Kennedy considers "offensive weapons."

However, if Khrushchev stalls much longer, they said, the President cannot delay the imposing of tougher pressure — presumably a tightening of the U.S. naval blockade around the island.

The bombers and other Cuban crisis issues were understood to have been discussed by special presidential representative John J. McCloy and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov during their five-hour lunch meeting Sunday at Russia's Glen Cove estate on Long Island, N.Y.

The impression that the administration expected Khrushchev to give in was reinforced by the fact U.S. officials were making no effort to build up an air of grim expectancy such as that which preceded Kennedy's Oct. 22 announcement of the blockade and other steps which forced the removal of 42 Soviet medium range missiles from Cuba.

Officials emphasized that pulling out the bombers would still leave two critical items in Khrushchev's pledge to be carried out—international verification that all "offensive weapons" were gone and reassurance given that they would not be reintroduced.

Parade Entries Sought

Appeals went out today to various organizations, merchants and civic clubs in Pampa to begin lining up their entries for the annual Santa Day Parade on Friday, Nov. 23.

Wesley Langham, parade marshal, and John Worthman, chairman of the Merchants Activities Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, made a joint plea to make this year's Santa Day observance, the most outstanding of all.

Parade officials stated that those planning on putting entries in the holiday pageant should remember to keep to the Christmas theme.

Also, they stated, there should be no live Santa Clauses on any of the floats since Santa himself will make his first official visit of the year to Pampa and will ride in the parade that day.

Special awards will go to church organization entries. There also will be awards for commercial floats with the Christmas theme.

The parade will form at 4 p.m. at the intersection of Crown and S. Cuyler streets and move northward through the business section of downtown Pampa.

The Pampa High School band and two Junior High School bands will have prominent places in the parade.

Immediately following the parade, Santa Claus will go to the Courthouse Square lawn and meet the children. Candy will be distributed by Santa's helpers while he visits with them.

The Business and Professional Women's Club, under direction of its president, Mrs. Flossie Anderson, is sending out members this week for contributions to the Christmas Fund which will be used to help defray costs of the Christmas holiday activities such as street decorations, Central Park Christmas scenes, candy for the children and other items in connection with the annual observance.

Next Sunday members of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce will install the street lighting and Yule decorations in the downtown areas. The lights will be turned on for the first time during the Santa Day parade.

Scientist Who Unlocked The Secrets Of Atomic Age Dies

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UPI)—Dr. Niels Bohr, who unlocked the secrets of the atomic age nearly 50 years ago, died Sunday night at the age of 77.

The pioneer nuclear physicist, whose work ranked with that of the late Albert Einstein, succumbed to a heart attack at his home, "the house of honor," at the Carlsberg breweries here.

His wife, Margarethe, and three of their four sons were at his bedside when he died. A fourth son, a professor of physics, was reported en route home from a lecture tour of China.

Within hours of the announcement of Bohr's death, tributes from all over the world began pouring in for the heavyset, quiet Jewish professor who unlocked the secret of atomic structure,

Rodeo Board Meets With Lynn Beutler

Members of the executive board of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association met at a luncheon in Coronado Inn this noon with Lynn Beutler of Beutler Bros., Elk City, Okla., rodeo producers.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss contracts and specialty acts for the annual Top O' Texas Rodeo to be held here next August.

Tentative dates for the rodeo were set for Aug. 22 thru 26. It will mark the second RCA professional rodeo since the association was organized in 1945.

Members of the board who met with Beutler today were Wiley Reynolds, association president; Bill Tidwell, first vice president; Buddy Price, second vice president; E. O. Wedgeworth, secretary, and Warren Hasse, treasurer.

Red Guards Shoot Girl

BERLIN (UPI) — Communist border guards shot and captured a young woman trying to flee to the American sector of Berlin today but a man with her escaped safely, West Berlin police reported.

The Eastern police fired about 30 shots at the pair from machine pistols as they crept through barbed wire on the border between the American sector's Neukoeln district and East Germany in the pre-dawn darkness.

The woman, said to be about 25, was hit in the arm. She became the 52nd known casualty among refugees since the Communist wall dividing Berlin went up Aug. 13, 1961. Of the total, at least 41 have been killed.

Red Chinese Blast 32 Miles Into India On 'Human Wave' Tactics

Strategic Plains Are Threatened By Push

By PATRICK J. KILLEN

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Chinese Communist troops have leap-frogged 32 miles through Indian defenses on the north-east frontier and are battling in the outskirts of Bomdila, gateway to India's strategic Assam plains, it was announced today.

An official spokesman said the Chinese Reds had cut the key road from Se La to Bomdila only a few miles north of Bomdila, the most important administrative center in the western area of the North East Frontier Agency.

The new deep thrust into Indian lines followed capture by the Red Chinese of key positions on three fronts in slashing human wave attacks by tens of thousands of troops.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru announced in parliament today the Reds had seized the key northeastern anchor town of Wanglung along with its airfield, near the Burmese border, and had taken Se La pass, a 20-mile high mountain pass 30 miles to the west near Bhutan. The Wanglung drive punched a hole at least 12 miles deep in Indian positions.

Nehru said the Reds, in their biggest drive since the border war started Oct. 28, had also advanced on the northwest in the Ladakh area, where they were shelling the Chusot airport runway, only landing strip in that region of Kashmir.

An official spokesman said the Chinese, in their advance on Bomdila, had cut off Indian troops who were pulling back from the Se La pass.

Bomdila lies just 25 airline miles from the Assam plains. The Red's massive leap forward was part of a "wide out-flanking movement" during which the force must have marched over the Himalayan jungle wilderness and one mountain range, the spokesman said. Their ability to attack following the march meant they had arrived in large numbers.

The Red strategy appeared to be to drive south at both ends of the northeast frontier and then move east and west along the fringe of the Assam valley to isolate all of the NEFA.

This would give them all of the area they have claimed in that sector and would mean a giant 52,000-square-mile chunk of disputed territory would be in Chinese hands.

Announcement of the defeats stunned and angered parliament. Members had known of the fall of Wanglung from a Defense Ministry announcement Sunday night, but the action at Se La was a shocking surprise.

Nehru preceded his disclosure with solemn words. "I have grievous news for this house," he declared.

Opposition members of parliament immediately started bombarding him with questions.

SCOUT BUILDING DEDICATED — Pampa's new Boy Scout Service Center, serving the Adobe Walls Council, was dedicated during a special Open House observance at the structure yesterday afternoon. The building was dedicated to M. K. Brown, Pampa philanthropist and important contributor to the building, whose picture hangs in the structure, as shown above. Brown is in the photo, second from right. Also shown are, left to right, Dr. George Snell of Pampa, chairman of the building committee for the Scouts; Bob Brummell of Borger, president of the Adobe Walls Council; Brown; and Harold Lewman, Boy Scout Region Nine Executive from Amarillo. Lewman made the dedicatory address, telling of Brown's assistance in local Scouting. Approximately 300 persons attended the Open House ceremonies. (Smith Studio Photo)

It May Hit 20 Degrees Tonight!

The weatherman said the mercury may slide down to near the 20-degree mark in the Pampa area tonight.

However, he said, it will probably be eight to 10 degrees warmer tomorrow than today when the high was scheduled to be around 40 this afternoon.

The additional three or four inches of snow that was predicted for the entire Panhandle last night and this morning failed to materialize.

Today's clear skies permitted the sun to get at the four-inch snowfall that hit the area Saturday and much of the snow was expected to be melted by nightfall.

Good Turnout Reported In Polio Vaccine Project

An unexpectedly large number of people, 18,428, turned out for the Part II Sabin oral polio vaccine inoculation, despite the bad weather yesterday.

Due to the weather, the Top O' Texas Medical Association and the Pampa Jaycees, co-sponsors of the project, have decided to hold a make-up date.

The make-up date is scheduled for next Sunday, Nov. 25, at Stephen F. Austin grade school from 1 to 5 p.m.

Yesterday's turnout, somewhat lighter than the turnout for Part I, may yet exceed the Part I turnout after the make-up date is held.

The number of people receiving the first inoculation was 18,031.

The breakdown for those receiving the Part II vaccine yesterday at the different schools — Baker, 2,974; Carver, 475; Travis, 2,337; Austin, 4,091; Horace Mann, 2,582; Lamar, 1,979; and Lefors, 908. McLean had approximately 1,100 take the vaccine.

Melvin Jayroe, co-ordinator of the project for the Jaycees, expressed today appreciation for the help given by various volunteers in making yesterday's inoculation project a success. Some of the

Khrushchev Says The Russians Have 'Never Had It So Good'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev said today that Russians have never had it so good but things could be better with more effort and some reorganization of the Soviet Communist party.

Khrushchev said the seven-year plan of 1959 to 1965 is being "overfulfilled." He painted a generally glowing picture of the economy.

The Soviet premier delivered the keynote speech at the opening session of the party's 33rd-member Central Committee called ostensibly to study the nation's management of industry and farming.

The session was secret but Khrushchev's remarks were distributed by the official news agency Tass.

Favors Heavy Industry — Khrushchev said the Soviet Union would keep emphasis in the years ahead on development of heavy industry over consumer goods. But "we must take additional measures to ensure that the production of consumer goods proceeds at faster rates," he said.

Khrushchev said the "time is ripe" for party reorganization to guide the national economy.

"Now the old organizational forms are becoming, to a degree, a drag on the party's guidance of production," he said.

"We must take radical measures to ensure more concrete and systematic guidance of all branches of production by party organs."

Defends Cuba Policy — Sunday night, Central Committee Secretary Boris Ponomarev sternly defended Khrushchev's Cuban policy against Communist Chinese charges of "retreat and begging before the imperialists."

In an article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, Ponomarev said such charges disrupted the unity of the anti-imperialist front, and those battling for peace and socialism.

Referring to Cuba, he said the main task was to strengthen it and "not to place it under the military blow of imperialism or draw it, the entire socialist camp and the whole world into a rocket nuclear war."

The Ponomarev article was seen by some Western observers as a possible indication that the Central Committee supports Khrushchev's Cuban missile withdrawal.

Siren's Blast Is Only False Alarm

Pampans got a thrill at high noon today when the air raid siren atop the Hughes building sounded a false alarm.

Police said they thought the siren was set off by a short-circuit caused by melting snow.

It blared continuously for about three or four minutes before it could be shut off.

US Is Running Short Of Change

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, which holds dear to its heart such price tags as $1.98, $4.95 and $2.99, is running short of change.

The shortage of coins seems to be most acute in the Northeast and Midwest, and threatens to harass merchants and customers alike during the Christmas season.

Treasury and federal reserve officials say pennies and nickels are in the shortest supply, and the possibility of a "grey market" in small change has arisen.

A retail chain store in Chicago, where the problem is worst, spent $10,000 to bring in coins from other cities and is considering offering customers scrip instead of hard currency in making change and cashing checks.

The Treasury would like to increase production at the Philadelphia and Denver mints, but doesn't have the money. Officials hope to get quick approval from the Budget Bureau and key members of Congress to spend funds not specifically earmarked for production costs.

The problem is reported to arise from the mint's failure to pass a substantial appropriation bill in a rush to adjourn-

Harvester Choir Sets Production, 'Where's Charlie'

The Pampa High School A Cappella Choir production, "Where's Charlie?" is scheduled for Nov. 23, 24, and Dec. 1.

This production promises to be just as colorful and exciting as the two previous productions of "Oklahoma" and "Carousel," observers said. In addition to the near professional job of singing and acting will be a complete orchestra composed of members of the Harvester band and the Amarillo Symphony Orchestra.

Neil Hess of Amarillo has been employed as choreographer.

"Where's Charlie?" based on Brandon Thomas' "Charlie's Aunt" was set to music by Frank Loesser. Features Bill Mungahan as Charlie. His leading lady, Amy, is played by Sue Price.

Supporting leads are played by James Shelton as Jack Chesney, Judy Pemberton as Kitty Verdum, Monty Prock as Mr. Spottigan, Joe Gilpatrick as Sir Francis Chesney, and Joan Simeon as Donna Lucia D'Abduetto.

Other characters are John Schmidt as Braunstein, Sam Brown as Wilkinson, Kay Wagner as Phoebe, Candy Nibbit as Patricia, Diane Aronson as Miriam, Gwen Carver as Judge Jaretta Baird as Abner, Linda Andis as Gwen, Robert Pullen as Reggie, Larry Brady as Mac, and Larry Nichols as Freddie.

Jack Parker, Minister of Music, First Baptist Church, is again helping paint the backgrounds. Accompanied for rehearsal and pianist for the performances is Joyce Prock.

72 Attend Kiwanis Meet Here

Seventy-two officers and committee chairmen from 14 Kiwanis clubs and five Key Club representatives attended a training and leadership conference held yesterday in Croco/As Inn.

The conference included Kiwanis officials from clubs in Amarillo, Borger, Perryton, Dumas, Vega, Canyon, and Boise City, Okla.

It was called by Division 422, Gov. elect Arthur Albrecht of Pampa to outline the division's work program for Kiwanis in 1963.

The afternoon's discussions centered around the Kiwanis International theme for the year — "Responsibility, the Key to Freedom."

US Is Running Short Of Change

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, which holds dear to its heart such price tags as $1.98, $4.95 and $2.99, is running short of change.

The shortage of coins seems to be most acute in the Northeast and Midwest, and threatens to harass merchants and customers alike during the Christmas season.

Treasury and federal reserve officials say pennies and nickels are in the shortest supply, and the possibility of a "grey market" in small change has arisen.

A retail chain store in Chicago, where the problem is worst, spent $10,000 to bring in coins from other cities and is considering offering customers scrip instead of hard currency in making change and cashing checks.

The Treasury would like to increase production at the Philadelphia and Denver mints, but doesn't have the money. Officials hope to get quick approval from the Budget Bureau and key members of Congress to spend funds not specifically earmarked for production costs.

The problem is reported to arise from the mint's failure to pass a substantial appropriation bill in a rush to adjournment last month. The bill that died contained $500,000 for the Bureau of the Mint.

Miss Eva B. Adams, director of the bureau, estimated the $500,000 would finance production of an extra 420 million coins. If the money had been made available, she indicated, a substantial proportion of the coins would be coming out of the mints now.

John R. Farrell, the Federal Reserve System's director of bank operations, said the 12 reserve banks were asked if their coin inventories were "alarmingly low," and reported as follows:

Boston and New York: all denominations in very short supply; Philadelphia: only half-dollars in adequate supply; Cleveland: all short; Richmond: adequate reserves; Atlanta: supplies adequate except for a "somewhat low" stock of nickels; Chicago: acutely low stocks of all denominations, the tightest pinch in the nation; St. Louis: nickels completely exhausted, pennies, dimes and quarters very low; Minneapolis: nickels very low, pennies and dimes lower than desired; Kansas City and Dallas: fairly adequate stocks; San Francisco: nickels low.

A movie was shown depicting Kiwanis objectives and history around the 1963 Freedom Responsibility theme.

The four-hour afternoon training school was opened with a buffet luncheon in the Pampa Club.

Ex-Judge Is Found Guilty

BELTON, Tex. (UPI)—Former Harris County Probate Judge Clem McClelland was found guilty Saturday of converting estate funds to his own use and sentenced to the maximum 10 years in the penitentiary.

McClelland gulped and wiped his eyes as the verdict was read, an hour and a half after the jury began deliberations.

Defense Attorney J. Edwin Smith of Houston told newsmen that McClelland would appeal the sentence.

McClelland still faces 10 other cases of conversion.

Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe commended the all-male jury.

"The verdict was appropriate and consistent with the evidence in the case. It was a courageous act on the part of the jury," Briscoe said.

Earlier, the district attorney had urged the jury to "send at least one corrupt official in this state to the penitentiary for the maximum term of years."

FLYING CRANES—The Army's ability to transfer cargo from a moving ship is demonstrated in the James River near Fort Eustis, Va., by two helicopters using new experimental "ship wings" mounted on the Army ship Hickory Knoll. The portable wings each have a 9,000-pound payload capacity and are being modified to allow direct landing of helicopters for transfer of troops or evacuation of wounded. Helicopters can pick up two tons of cargo every two minutes from the vessel by using both of the wings.

'Support Of Man' Is Space Flight Problem

Science
By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The astronaut of the far future will snack on sugar made in part from his own exhaled breath.

He will use food—and other stores as a shield against space radiations.

He will drink water reclaimed from his own wastes and from his spacecraft power plants.

These are some of the prospects seen by Dr. Charles H. Roadman, director of aerospace medicine for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), and Dr. Frank B. Voris, assistant director.

Writing in the bulletin of the American Institute of Biological Sciences, Roadman and Voris said "support of man in space for prolonged periods is indeed the largest problem to be solved in manned space flight."

Brief Flights
For the brief Mercury flights and for the impending Gemini and Apollo flights, lasting up to two weeks, this problem is relatively simple.

Enough oxygen, water, and food for these flights can be put aboard the spacecraft before they leave the ground.

But for "more advanced space travel," such as planetary round trips lasting about a year, "total food requirements cannot be stored and lifted from the earth in the vehicle."

So, said Roadman and Voris, "Means of developing foodstuffs in space must be provided."

As for oxygen, one of the "most promising" methods of supplying it would be the chemical dissociation of carbon dioxide exhaled by the astronaut "into usable oxygen and carbon."

Algae for Food
Algae, colonies of single-celled green plants, have often been proposed "as a source of food because an algae growth utilizes waste products of man, produces oxygen, and reproduces rapidly to supply high protein food."

But man cannot live by algae alone, even if he could learn to like the strange-tasting stuff. He would need supplementing foods.

"Techniques are under study," Roadman and Voris said, "to combine the carbon obtained from dissociation of carbon dioxide with hydrogen obtained from the hydrolysis of water to produce methane and further converting the methane to formaldehyde and formaldehyde to palatable and usable sugars."

In addition, "suitable plants and animals that will utilize human wastes are being sought as a source of food for astronauts in the space vehicle and on planet surfaces."

Radiation from solar flares are one of the hazards of interplanetary flight. Roadman and Voris said "extra shielding can be provided by properly positioning foodstuffs or equipment."

It would be impossible to store enough water for long flights. Processing of human wastes and recovery of water vapor from the astronaut's exhaled breath could supply considerable water for drinking, washing and cooking.

Another source would be water recovered from hydrogen and oxygen fuels used by auxiliary power units aboard the craft.

"With these systems," the doctors said, "there will be little need for large quantities of stored water."

LONDON (UPI)—"He has been long of a silent lodger," the judge commented in granting Mrs. Ashleen Sherlock a separation from her husband, Alfred.

Alfred admitted he had spoken only twice to his wife in the last 98 days.

Sheriff's Office Holding Pair On Charges Of Theft

The Gray County Sheriff's department today was holding two men wanted by police in a dozen Texas cities on an array of charges.

The men are Robert A. Sanders, 38, no home address, and Sam B. Haynes, 47, Amarillo.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said the men were brought to Pampa late Saturday night after their arrest in Amarillo.

Sanders and Haynes were charged here today with theft by false pretext and were scheduled for arraignment in Justice J. W. Graham's court shortly before noon.

Sheriff Jordan said the pair was being held here in connection with the passing of two checks last Monday at the Lewis Hardware Store, 311 S. Cuyler, and the Joe Hawkins Appliance Store, 854 W. Foster.

The two checks, each for an amount in excess of $200 and drawn on a Longview bank, were used for a small down payment on merchandise from the hardware store and a television set from the appliance store, ordered delivered to an address which did not exist.

Sheriff Jordan said warrants also have been drawn for the two men in cities and towns stretching all the way across Texas.

Breakin Reported

Burglars broke into the Auction Cafe, Price Rd., last night and looted the cigarette machine of about $20 in change and several packages of cigarettes.

Entrance was gained by forcing a rear door. The break-in was discovered at 7 a.m. today by Mrs. Dot Davis when she opened the cafe for the day.

Deputy Sheriff D. L. Day, who investigated the case, said nothing else in the place was disturbed.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

OWNERSHIP OF WOUNDED GAME

Suppose you are hunting and shoot a deer or a duck, which falls mortally wounded. Before you can get to it, another hunter beats you there and claims the fallen game as his own. What are your rights?

Jim had been hunting all day without success, and had headed for home when he finally saw a deer. He took careful aim and hit the deer with his first shot. Although mortally wounded, the deer managed to run a short distance, with Jim in hot pursuit.

Roy was also deer hunting. He heard Jim's shot and saw a deer running toward him. However, before it reached the spot where he was standing, the deer fell to the ground.

Although it was obvious that the deer was about to die, Roy walked to within three feet of it, delivered the finishing shot, and quickly put his tag on it. When Jim ran up and claimed the deer, Roy said that such deer were wild animals, and belonged to one until killed. Since he was the one that killed the deer, Roy claimed that it belonged to him.

Which hunter has legal title to the deer?

In this case the deer belongs to Jim. Jim was the first to wound it, and did so before Roy appeared on the scene. He had mortally wounded the deer, and had it in such a situation that its escape was improbable, if not impossible. The prevailing rule is that the instant a wild animal is brought under the control of a person so that actual possession is practically inevitable, a vested property interest in it accrues which cannot be divested by another's intervening and killing it, or reaching it first.

Jim had delivered the shot which so crippled the animal as to cause him to cease trying to escape, thus permitting Roy to walk up to the animal and deliver the finishing shot. Jim had effectively brought the deer under his control before Roy took a hand in the matter. The deer legally belonged to Jim, and he can enforce his claim in court.

Water is the single most important nutrient. This is so because of its importance in maintaining the proper water balance which influences our work output and survival time. Humans and animals can live longer and expend more energy with out food than water. Men can live only a few days without water, but may survive five or more weeks without food.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

A crisis of leadership involved two world figures this week. Both seemed to be surviving.

In Bonn, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer held together his coalition government against a sudden storm which blew up over government arrest of a news magazine publisher accused of treasonous action in publication of defense secrets.

Settlement of the Bonn dispute cleared the way for Adenauer's scheduled visit to Washington next week and a new canvass of the Allied position in Berlin.

In Moscow, Premier Nikita Khrushchev had all the appearances of a man with his mind at ease and to be overcoming whatever criticism there may have been over his decision to withdraw Soviet "offensive" weapons from Cuba.

In the Communist camp there were indications that Khrushchev, far from being a man in retreat, still was pressing his anti-Stalinist campaign to remove from power men who opposed his policy of coexistence.

The purge among the top-ranking leadership of Communist Bulgaria hit those who had been dragging their feet on instituting the Khrushchev policy and had indicated sympathy for Red China.

So far ignored were Chinese charges that his Cuban action constituted appeasement of the United States and an encouragement to U. S. imperialism.

There also were indications that Khrushchev would continue for the time being the "reasonable" policy proclaimed in his answer to President Kennedy's announcement of the Cuban quarantine.

As Moscow prepared to celebrate the 49th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, First Deputy Premier Alexei Korygin declared that in the Cuban dispute both sides had made a "concession to reason and peace."

Fruitful negotiations over Laos and Dutch New Guinea, he said, "show the intention of all sides to find practical solutions to problems."

Be all that as it may, the coming days could be important ones.

There is a general Allied belief that Khrushchev eventually will sign his separate peace with Communist East Germany. Adenauer will seek to ensure that the Allies not only stand firm in Berlin but also that they in no way give even limited recognition to a separate East Germany.

As wars go, the current struggle for Yemen, legendary land of the queen of Sheba, isn't much.

But its potential for much greater trouble throughout the Middle East is enough to cause apprehension in Washington and London.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser sees his best chance for expanding his United Arab Republic since Syria's defection in September 1961 and his own break with the Yemen monarchy a year ago.

This new opportunity came on Sept. 19 when Yemenite rebels under Brig. Gen. Abdullah Sallal shelled the new imam off his throne in the medieval capital of Sanaa and proclaimed a republic which would be closely aligned with Nasser's U.A.R.

The imam, at first thought dead in the debris of the palace, turned up in neighboring Saudi Arabia, and thus the stage was set for the current conflict involving the U.A.R. and the rebel Yemen regime on the one hand and Saudi Arabia and Jordan on the other.

There was no special mourning for the fall of the Yemen monarchy.

But neither the Jordanian nor the Saudi Arabian royal governments fancied a revolutionary government on the flank. The United States and Britain were concerned not only over the stability of the Middle East but for the rich oil fields as well.

Britain worried also about a possible threat to Aden colony, its port at the tip of the Arabian peninsula, and the adjoining Southern Arabian Federation of sheikhdoms and sultanates which Britain is pledged to protect.

On the Saudi Arabian side, the struggle is developing into a clear contest between Nasser and King Saud.

Nasser has poured men and supplies into Yemen which in turn has threatened to carry the war into Saudi Arabia.

Working for Nasser is a deep split within the Saudi Arabian royal family, five of whom have renounced their titles and citizenship and pledged to work with Nasser.

King Saud has reorganized his government and has named his half-brother, Crown Prince Faisal to head it. Faisal has launched a series of internal reforms to channel more of the nation's oil wealth into social and economic developments.

The royal family and the government believe the Saudis will rally to their side. Nasser's actions indicate he is fomenting and expects a revolution.

Even in these days of massive government expenditures, $900 million must be regarded as a fairly sizeable sum.

It is the figure involved in mostly unpublicized negotiations currently going on between representatives of the West and East German governments. The mere notice that such negotiations exist may come as a surprise to those who believe that an impenetrable vacuum exists between these two reminders that World War II left a divided world.

But more than that is a suggestion that hard economics may help toward solution of a problem that continues to defy diplomats.

The problem is the continuing one of a free West Berlin. The Western Allies have agreed there can be no compromise on three fundamentals: continued Western presence in West Berlin (meaning the Allied garrisons), freedom of Western access to the city and conditions to insure the future freedom and peace of West Berlin.

The first two are based on rights of conquest and agreements concluded between the Western belligerents and the Soviet Union six months before the war in Europe ended.

The third is perhaps the most difficult because it is the least clearly defined.

Original Allied agreements in London and Potsdam looked toward an eventually reunited Germany and a single peace treaty, and therefore did not foresee the need nearly 20 years later of guaranteed access to Berlin.

But that such a situation exists is a fact and is aggravated by continuing Soviet threats to sign a separate peace treaty, and thus place control of Berlin access in the hands of the Communist East Germans.

This is where current negotiations between the two German zones come in.

55TH YEAR
THE PANAMA DAILY NEWS
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1962

The impoverished East German zone is desperately in need of money and has asked the West Germans for nearly $600 million in long term credits.

The East German regime, according to the Institute of Economics the Soviet Union $675 million payable in hard cash.

Events have shown that the Soviets will advance credits, loans or other aid to further their ideological ambitions but they also want to be repaid.

Soon, supported by its allies, is reported making a condition of any new credits assurance that there will be no change in Berlin access routes. This means that there shall be no attempt by the Communist East to set up a visa system which in effect would mean recognition of an independent East Germany.

Probably the commonest structural material, brick is also the most remarkable. It goes back to some of the earliest civilizations, and bears on its surface written records of early ages. Excavations at Ur of the Chaldees, the city of Abraham, have yielded brick tablets inscribed with information about the life of people living 8,000 years ago.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The market seldom conforms with unanimity of opinion and it rarely does the obvious. In this connection, considering all the talk of a business recession in 1963, Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co., asks "for what business?"

With the steel, railroad, aluminum, copper, rubber and paper industries among many others, having already been in a private recession for one or more years, it is difficult to project another bear market being super-imposed in 1963 on the stocks of those companies that have already had a severe decline.

A penetration up through the 620 area in the Dow-Jones industrial averages would indicate a further advance of some 20 points before the next minor resistance area is met, says Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. In any event, the near term outlook remains favorable, with the bullish contingent continuing to hold the reins.

S IS FOR STEWARDESS—Students at American Airlines' college for stewardess trainees near Fort Worth, Tex., form an S as a reminder of the school's fifth anniversary this month. More than 3,000 young women have received their wings since the school opened in 1957. A recent survey of former stewardesses shows that only one out of every 47 stewardess marriages ends in divorce, compared with a national United States average of one marriage in four.

Navy Rocket Effort In Fifth Frustration

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—A Navy attempt to score the first full success with its highly advanced Polaris "A-3" missile was spoiled Saturday when the rocket went out of control and had to be destroyed.

It was the fifth frustration in as many attempts for the stubby little rocket, which gets off the pad all-right but which has yet to fly more than a few miles.

The Polaris "A-3" still has a long test flight program ahead of it. The rocket won't be combat-ready until mid-1964, and there will be many test flights between now and then to iron out the troubles.

The "A-3" is envisioned as a submarine-launched missile that can hurl nuclear warheads from beneath the ocean's surface into the heart of any continent. No city or military installation will be beyond its 2,880-mile range.

But that is on paper. There is more to the problem than just loading more fuel into a rocket and firing it further, as the first five shots of the "A-3" have demonstrated.

All five go into the Defense Department's books as "partial" successes—meaning simply that they got off the launching pads. All were planned for flights of nearly 2,000 miles, but all fell way short of that.

Actress Jane Russell To Do Her First Movie In Four Years Soon

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jane Russell, an actress who has been under contract to airplane manufacturer and sometime movie producer Howard Hughes for most of her adult life, is going to make another film, her first in four years.

Only this time it won't be for Hughes. Her latest pact with the mysterious businessman allows Jane to work for other producers. Her first Russell sat around waiting until Hughes decided to make a film she might be old enough to play Queen Victoria.

Jane began her movie career with Hughes when she starred in the controversial Western movie, "The Outlaw," in 1943. The picture brought protests from people who thought there was too much of Miss Russell's shapely figure on the screen and not enough cowboys.

Seems Tame Today
Nowadays "The Outlaw" is tame compared to some movies, but in 1943 things were different.

Jane's contract negotiations with the elusive Hughes are like those between foreign governments over the three-mile fishing limit. They go on for years, the end never in sight.

Through a series of legal confabs Jane has three more pictures to make for Hughes all in the space of 14 years.

And the way Hughes has felt about picture making in recent years it may take all 14 before the three films are done.

However, time is of no essence to Miss Russell. She's content to appear in nightclubs with her act occasionally, work on television every year or so, and now a picture after four years away from movie screens.

Can Pick Parts

"Hunger doesn't set in for 14 more years," said the attractive Jane—something many actors are not able to say. "I don't have to do things I don't want because I get paid."

With such a secure attitude, backed by Hughes' financial acumen, Jane has managed to evade regular work.

Miss Russell, wife of ex-Los Angeles Ram football coach Bob Waterfield, says she will make a movie in Spain next year.

"There are a couple of things I'd like to do in pictures if they work out right," she said. "I've been offered pictures but some of the scripts have been bad. And some of the producers didn't have the money. They want your name so they can get money from a bank."

It's a cinch they won't get it from Miss Russell who has seen her share of business and contract negotiations with Hughes, a financial wizard.

By GAYNOR MADDOX

 California, which produces about 1/4 of the world's supply of almonds, is a good place to find almond-using recipes. This Almond Dream Whip is from friends near San Jose.

ALMOND DREAM WHIP

 1 1/4 cups toasted slivered blanched almonds
 1 cup fresh dates, sliced
 1 cup day-old chocolate cake crumbs

OR
 1 cup chocolate wafer crumbs
 1/2 teaspoon rum or nonalcoholic rum flavoring
 1 cup whipping cream
 Whipped cream
 Combine 1 cup almonds, dates and crumbs. Add rum or non-alcoholic rum-flavoring to cream and whip until stiff. Fold in almond mixture. Garnish with additional whipped cream and remaining almonds.

 1 can (1-pound cling peach slices)
 1 to 2 cups mincemeat
 1/4 cup chopped nuts
 1 to 2 tablespoons sherry, rum or brandy (optional)

Pioneer Club Has Fall Luncheon

The White Deer Pioneer Club met at the Coronado Inn, Nov. 15 for a fall luncheon and business meeting, presided over by Mrs. R. A. Thompson, president. A social hour followed. Hostesses were Idel Crumacker, Ann Dickens, Mattie Crutchfield and Gertha McConnell.

The next meeting will be Feb. 17 in fellowship hall of the First Methodist Church, White Deer. Attending were three guests, Mmes. Geany Quinn, Carl Boston, Viola Coffee and 14 members.

Workshop tip: When making furniture from plywood, lubricate the joints with soap. This will make the separate pieces fit together more easily.

Lentils 'N' Leftovers After Holiday

By GAYNOR MADDOX
 Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LENTILS
 (Makes 4 to 6 servings)
 8 ounces (1/2 package) lentils
 1 can (8-ounces) chopped broiled mushrooms
 1 cup water
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon chili powder
 1/4 cup butter
 1/2 cup of ped onion
 Wash lentils in cold water and drain well. In saucepan place mushrooms, including broth, and water and bring to a boil. Add salt, chili powder and lentils and simmer, stirring occasionally, until lentils are just tender but not soft, about 20 minutes. Melt butter in small saucepan, add the onion and cook over low heat for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour over the lentils and toss lightly to mix thoroughly.

Here's another welcome "change of pace" dish.
SAUSAGE WITH SCRAMBLED EGGS AND CHEESE
 (Yield: 6 to 8 servings)
 8-ounce package brown 'n' serve sausage
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 3 tablespoons finely-chopped onion
 2-3 cup milk
 8 eggs
 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 3-4 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
 Place brown 'n' serve sausage in skillet. Fully cooked sausage will brown in just 3 minutes. Do not overcook. Remove from pan to hot platter or brown sausage slowly while eggs and cheese are being scrambled in another skillet. To prepare eggs, melt butter in a skillet. Add onion and cook until soft and clear.
 Combine milk, eggs, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Beat slightly to blend ingredients. Pour into skillet. When eggs begin to set, add cheese and blend well. Continue to stir until eggs are cooked. Serve immediately with warm sausage.

Put pieces of a raw potato in a container with a cake. This will keep it moist.

GRILLED peanut butter sandwiches and 'burgers, chilled soda and potato chips are popular foods with teen-agers.

Teens Go For Peanut Combos

By GAYNOR MADDOX
 Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
 More and more these days, the kitchen is becoming a popular hangout for teenagers of both sexes. All that's necessary for a good kitchen party are ingredients for hearty combination sandwiches and burgers, some disposable paper cups and plates to eliminate clean-up chores, and a family-size aluminum electric buffet griddle for the amateur chefs.

As teen-agers love to experiment with sandwich mixtures of their own selection, here's a new one in two different versions.

PEANUT BUTTER COMBOS
 (Makes 8 sandwiches)
 1 cup peanut butter (plain or crunchy)
 1/2 cup cottage cheese
 1/2 cup chili sauce
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 16 slices bread
 Soft butter
 Mix peanut butter with cottage cheese, chili sauce and salt. Spread about 1/2 cup of mixture on 8 slices of bread. Top with another slice of bread and spread outside of sandwich with soft butter. Grill on medium heat until lightly browned.
 Alternate filling: One cup of peanut butter and 1 cup of all-purpose barbecue sauce, blended together, may be substituted as a delicious alternate for above mixture.

Sprouts, Salmon Go Into Casserole

By GAYNOR MADDOX
 Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
 Hungarian friends who live in California served us this sprout and salmon casserole. They combined California Brussels sprouts, salmon, rice and sour cream.

HUNGARIAN SPROUT AND SALMON CASSEROLE
 (Makes 6 servings)
 2 packages (10-ounces each) frozen Brussels sprouts, OR 1 pound (1 quart) fresh Brussels sprouts
 1 can (1 pound) salmon, drained and flaked
 1 cup cooked rice
 1 cup sour cream
 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 1 cup grated cheddar cheese
 1/4 cup chopped chives
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 Cook frozen Brussels sprouts according to package directions; drain if necessary. If fresh Brussels sprouts are used, cook, covered, in 1-inch boiling salted water 10 minutes, or until almost tender; drain. Arrange half of sprouts in the bottom of a greased 1 1/2-quart casserole.
 Mix together: salmon, rice, sour cream, lemon juice, cheese, chives and pepper. Spread salmon mixture sprouts in casserole; top with remaining sprouts. Cover and bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.)

CALIFORNIA Brussels sprouts, salmon, rice and sour cream add up to quite a dish when combined in this casserole.

40 minutes. Serve hot. NOTE: Two cartons (10-ounces each) fresh Brussels sprouts may be used.

If the inside of your steam iron appears to have rusted and is discoloring the clothes you press, disconnect iron, fill chamber with hot water mixed with a couple of tablespoons of sal soda. Let it stand, swish it around from time to time. Repeat process until emptied water looks clear.

The newest cap for females is a machine that conditions the hair and scalp while covering the crowning glory. The manufacturer says it rejuvenates bleached, dyed and tinted hair; revitalizes dried out, brittle hair; and reinvigorates overpermanented locks. All of this is done, the manufacturer reports, via scientifically controlled heat aimed at the cranium enclosed in the cap. (The Kax Thermocap).

PTA Study Course At Austin School

Mrs. Earl Schmieding, study course chairman for Austin School, introduced each speaker as the last study course sponsored by City Council PTA was held in Austin School recently.

Tex DeWeese from the Pampa News addressed the group. "All of you will agree, I am sure, that the newspaper plays an important role in the community life of a city.

"This is no less true in Pampa than in any other city or community of the United States where there are nearly 2,000 daily papers with a circulation of 65-million and some 8,000 weekly papers with a circulation of around 20-million.

The editor went on to say: "The American newspaper of today is one of the chief cogs in the preservation of our American Heritage. We still have Freedom of the Press which was established in the very first Amendment to the Constitution along with freedom of religion, freedom of speech and the right of the people to peaceably assemble and to petition our government for a redress of grievances.

"These original Ten Amendments are known as our Bill of Rights. Freedom of the press was included in the very first amendment. Freedom of the press was one of the very first things the Bill of Rights gave to us.

"Many, who have not stopped to analyze, have had the belief that Freedom of the Press means only the newspaper is free to have that right, but the newspaper which properly serves its readers and its community also serves as a medium for the people of that community to use the newspaper to speak their minds, whether what they advocate agrees with the newspaper or not.

"The Pampa News has an editorial policy and an editorial belief. The Bill of Rights guarantees us the right to express that opinion. It also guarantees the people of Pampa the right to use our newspaper to express their opinions.

"And we welcome that. Periodically we ask the people to write letters to us or expound questions on matters of public concern.

whether they be on just local or state issues, or on national and international matters. Sorry to say that few do this but not nearly enough.

"However, we welcome any opinions. "The columns of the newspaper are open to you. Your American Heritages, brought down from the Bill of Rights, guarantees that to you. It is a precious right and should be defended always.

"A newspaper editor who is joining with the people of his community to preserve freedom of the press should always be striving to gain understanding of ideas and beliefs which will enable him to understand the people of his community for his own spiritual and mental enlightenment and improvement.

"A newspaper editor who really is trying to make his newspaper serve the community will not be offended when mistakes are pointed out. Instead, he will be under great obligation to the persons no matter who it may be—for helping him to correct an error.

"A good newspaper editor tries to use the American Heritage Freedom of the Press—to perform a service to his readers.

"We have learned long ago that a newspaper which tries only to please everyone and takes no editorial stand on principles is one of the most expensive and harmful items the people of a community can support.

"We believe a newspaper should help preserve our American Heritage. It is one of the greatest means of communication for understanding between people in a local community, or in the state or nation.

DeWeese said it is important that we leave nothing undone to halt the encroachment of anything or any movement that would take any of our freedoms away from us.

The editor also stressed, "The Heritage of freedom handed down to us by our forefathers is a priceless thing. Only by individual thinking and individual action can we preserve it.

"We talk much about our American Heritage. But it is up to us—as individuals—every single one of us—to protect the freedoms this heritage has given us. "Freedom of the press is a vital freedom—but it is only one of our freedoms.

"Everyone of us has a stake in these freedoms. We must assume the responsibilities of them. If we don't, the light of freedom, kindled by our forefathers, will go out in America, and if it goes out in America, hope of freedom will go out all over the world.

"We do not have the right to lose this freedom that was given to us to use—to enjoy and pass on to our children. Our children deserve the same opportunity.

DeWeese closed with this quotation from Editor Norman Isaacs of The Louisville, Ky. Courier:

Journal: "Democracy will rise or fall on the quality, integrity and responsibility of its journalism."

He termed the teacher, the minister and the newspaperman as a triumvirate with a joint mission of helping to lead people toward the greatest wealth on earth—the fruits of honest investigation.

"And if the people—you people—will use your Freedom of the Press—and speak your minds as individuals and act as individuals," DeWeese said, "then together, we can preserve those rights and freedoms that go to make up our great American Heritage."

Mrs. Libby Shotwell, Red Cross Director, was the next speaker for the morning. Her topic was Civil Defense, and the way Red Cross works with it.

She said, "What is Civil Defense? Civil defense is a way of protecting you and your family in case of attack on the United States. It is a way of helping you to keep going, and to keep production going, in spite of nuclear, biological, or chemical warfare.

"One of the chief aims of civil defense is to train you to survive whatever danger arises and to help you return to work no matter what may come.

"Modern civil defense is nothing like civil defense in wars of the past. Where civilian danger previously lay in fire bombs and high explosives, it now consists of powerful nuclear super weapons, but no defense can be 100 per cent effective.

"There is a sure way to save many thousands of lives if we are attacked. Civil Defense is the way—the only way.

"Public education, training and organization. We need civil defense training immediately for millions of Americans, and intensive education in self-protection for everyone. The most staggering civil defense problem is the size of the training and organization jobs to be done.

"Number 1, thousands of trained first aiders would be needed. How to give first aid. 2. How to give artificial respiration. 3. How to take care of family in case of disaster. 4. How to give Home Nursing care.

"Red Cross and Civil Defense work hand in hand. If you are capable of doing these things you would be allowed to go into the disaster area.

"This is civil defense. "A possible enemy has the weapons now to attack us. There is a defense against any attack, including nuclear warfare, and civil defense is it. Civil defense can save your life. Millions of Americans must be trained in civil defense, and every American must learn the facts of survival.

Without civil defense your community would be helpless. With civil defense, homes, lives, and our economy can be saved. Civil defense is up to you. Your state and local civil defense directors must have your support. Wherever you live—city or country—you have a job to do in civil defense. Read the official civil defense booklets right away. You can better your chances of survival if you know what to do. Get into civil defense now," she

Dear Abby.... Dual Personalities Will Never Mix!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After 19 years of marriage, I finally hit my husband with the first thing I could get my hands on. It was a tea kettle and it caught him on the elbow. He's been using me as a human punching bag (and in front of the children) for years and I finally couldn't take it any more. If I had it coming, I wouldn't complain, but he hits me for things like rolling the car window up when he wants it down. If I do something he doesn't like, instead of telling me, he just gives me a crack across the jaw. Was I wrong in throwing the kettle at him? He says a wife is not supposed to hit her husband back.

BEATEN AND BRUISED
DEAR ABBY: A man who would repeatedly give his wife a crack across the jaw is sick. And a woman who would stick around for a repeat performance is sicker than the guy who hits her. Find a psychiatrist with two couches.

DEAR ABBY: I am a bank teller and I have a special depositor who comes to my window regularly with his deposit. My last name is TUCKER, and he has asked me several times if I knew where the expression, "all tucked out" originated. I have tried to find out and have exhausted my sources. Can you help me?

A TUCKERED-OUT TUCKER concluded.

Warren Hesse, from KPND radio station, was the next speaker for the day. He stated that there have been many slogans in connection with radio, such as "Radio can go wherever you go." It also can go where TV cannot go. He said, "Radio is in 96 per cent of homes and serves very useful purposes not only for entertainment. We are constantly striving for more and different programming, such as editorials, community meetings, sports, special events, hospital reports, in other words, programs of public service types. Keep us posted on all weather reports. The remote mobile units have aided in this very much. In larger cities radios keep people posted on traffic or any accidents that may occur.

Mrs. Charles Norton gave a talk on the importance of our American Heritage and gave everyone a questionnaire on, "Do You Know America?" Mrs. Norton continued, "American Heritage courses are conducted in the public schools of Borger and Dumas. In Borger, each day via the PA system the children conduct a devotional. A scripture is given, hymn sung and flag salute. The high schools also work thru student council for special day observances, etc.

"In Dumas, on Jan 23, 1963, the schools will start a complete program on American Heritage. It will be fused into the regular classroom work—such as extra supplementary readers will have stories dealing with Washington, the flag, etc.

"This program is based upon 12 basic principles, the 'Golden Twelve.' The individual's belief in God as he sees it and understands it. The right of individual enterprise. Freedom of competition. The government is for the protection of the people, not a provider."

DEAR TUCKERED OUT: Now, I am also "tucked out" (trying to run down the origin. Does anyone out there know?)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to the home of neighbors for dinner. In the midst of the dinner my husband remarked how delicious the "chicken" was. Our host piped up and said it wasn't chicken—it was rabbit. My husband turned green and left the table. Later he came back and offered a rather feeble apology, saying he had a pet rabbit when he was a boy, and had never eaten rabbit before. Our friends were cool to us all evening. When we got home my husband told me never to take him anywhere unless we knew the people well enough to ask what they were serving. I told him rabbit never killed anybody and if he hadn't been told it was rabbit he'd have thought it was chicken. Who was right?

SMALL BATTLE
DEAR SMALL: Many people regard rabbit meat as a real treat—others can't even digest the thought of it. Don't subject your husband to another such experience (if you can help it). It's apparent that his prejudices are stronger than his stomach.

DEAR ABBY: That letter signed "BORN TO LOSE" from the "other woman" made my blood boil. You would think she was doing a noble thing to give up what wasn't hers in the first place. About 99 out of 100 girls who go with married men are "born to lose" because the men have no intention of breaking up their families for these tramps. I don't sit around and cry when I see the danger signals. I just go over to the "other woman's" house and pull her hair out.

ARE YOU MAKING THE ANTI-ACID MISTAKE?

Important News for Every INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN, INTESTINAL GAS SUFFERER!

Now, for the first time you can apply the brakes to stomach distress before the trouble begins. Up to now, anti-acids have been used mostly to relieve stomach upset after suffering the pangs of distress. Now, thanks to a new, natural formulation called MIAZYME you may eliminate the discomforts of indigestion, heartburn and intestinal gas caused by poor digestion of foods.

If you properly digest the food you eat, chances are you will not suffer stomach distress. This is because of the action of enzymes, manufactured in the digestive process. When these enzymes fall below par—as age increases, enzymatic action may become inadequate, or, as medical science knows, today's fast, hectic living pace can create distress caused by stomach tensions—you are apt to suffer indigestion, gas, bloating, heartburn, cramps and other uncomfortable forms of stomach upset.

Why risk making the anti-acid mistake? Just two MIAZYME capsules a day is all it takes to help eliminate the discomforts of indigestion, heartburn, gas and open the door to new vistas in food enjoyment.

MIAZYME contains no narcotics! No habit forming drugs! No harmful side effects, taken as directed. So safe, no prescription is needed! Get MIAZYME today at your favorite drug store and break the anti-acid routine. Try it for 6 days on a NO RISK GUARANTEE. You must be completely satisfied or your money refunded. Regular size, $1.50. Economy size, $3.00.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There is a classic tale about a sports writer who was assigned to cover a school concert.

The lead on his story, as I remember it, went something like this: "The school band played Beethoven last night. Beethoven lost."

The composer's life and music have withstood many interpretations, and so are likely also to survive Walt Disney's version on NBC-TV Sunday night of his middle years in Vienna.

With Karl Boehm, son of the former leader of the Vienna State Opera, portraying Beethoven, the program was the first of a two-part dramatization, with music, entitled "The Magnificent Rebel."

The second part will be offered this coming Sunday.

To begin with, there is no question that the undertaking of such a project is more commendable than, say, a two-parter about Pat Boone. Airing at an early hour, 7:30 p.m. EST, it enabled youngsters to look in. And, though it is distressing to admit, it probably stirred wider interest in Beethoven than a thousand lectures with more exact facts.

Second, the show was shot on location in Vienna and benefited from the atmosphere. Third, despite some awkwardly faked piano sequences by Boehm (who is reported to have played a few passages), the music alone was worth tuning in for.

Lastly, there was at least an outward adherence to some basic facts: Beethoven's arrival in Vienna from a humble background; his fervent devotion to the revolutionary spirit sweeping Europe in the late 18th century; his Olympian confidence and refusal to be a lackey for royalty; and his unhappy love affair with a woman of nobility.

The queasy part, however, is the Disney quality of reducing even the most supreme human achievement to the level of a fairy tale, with the tone of a standardized inspirational success story. One gets the impression that if he were to adapt "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" there might be a few uncomfortable moments of history presented, but everything would work out all right in the end.

At the outset, Disney said the show was "not a biography of the man," which is a strange sort of confession when a portion of

What's In A Name, Anyway?

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — My father lives in a small town where for more than half a century he ran a hardware store.

The merchants in that town have a quaint old-fashioned way of doing business. They sell what the names of their stores imply that they sell. My father, for instance, sold hardware.

When my father comes to visit us, as he is doing now, he has some trouble adjusting to the merchandising practices found in the suburbs of a large city.

The other afternoon my wife heard my father say he was going over to our neighborhood drug store to pick up a bottle of aspirin tablets.

"Why don't you go to the tailor shop?" my wife said. "That's closer."

real life is the announced subject; obviously the host was defending himself.

For simplification purposes, for instance, two of Beethoven's apparently have been combined into one. In the teleplay, Giulietta Guicciardi is the object of his adoration. In one passage, after embarrassing the clumsy hero at a ball, she starts to take piano lessons from him. According to biographers, it was Theresa von Brunswick, to whom he was later betrothed, who was this well-known piano student. In addition, Giulietta is said to have taken up with Beethoven when he was 31— or some years older than he was portrayed in this first episode.

In short, plenty of liberties were taken. The hero could have been almost any of the classical composers. Hollywood has immortalized on film. Bohem was more the standard angry young man than the majestic thunderbolt who harnessed music and changed it. The show was a treat for the undemanding. Well, Vienna isn't what it used to be, either.

My father gave her a funny look. When she was out of earshot he asked me if she had been feeling all right.

Senses Perplexity

Sensing the reason for his perplexity, I explained that the tailor shop had a drug counter where he would be able to buy aspirin.

"Okay," he said. "While I'm out, I might as well drop off my suit to be cleaned and pressed.

"Don't do that," I told him. "Our drycleaning is picked up by the milkman."

"The milkman?"

"Yes. The milkman also has a laundry and drycleaning route."

"I see," my father said. "Where do you buy your milk?"

"Oddly enough we get most of it from the milkman," I replied. "When we run short we can pick up an extra quart down at the gasoline station on the corner."

My father said that if we would let him know what day the milk would be delivered he would send out a bundle of soiled shirts to be laundered.

Milkman Specializes

"The milkman doesn't take our laundry," I said. "Must the drycleaning. We take our laundry to the bakery."

"Did you say the bakery?"

"Yes, the bakery out here serves as a pick-up station for a downtown laundry, which has a cheaper rate."

"I suppose it would be foolish of me to ask where you buy your bread?" my father said.

"We usually get that at the meat market," I said.

My wife came back into the room and asked my father if he would buy some stamps while he was out getting the aspirin.

"There is a post office station in the gift shop," she said. My father said he had changed his mind about going after aspirin. He said he believed he would wait and let the garbage collector write him a prescription.

Benson B. Sliam Jr. of Harris Upham & Co. warns that price-earnings ratios are once again climbing into dangerous territory, and fundamentalists should be cautious.

Government officials are worried that East Germany plans to prevent the sending of parcels to the Soviet zone unless they go through an organization called Genex.

Genex is situated in East Berlin but has two middlemen in Switzerland, Max Wolfensberger in Zurich and Herbert Von Moos in Lucerne.

West Germans can, if they want, send parcels to relatives and friends in East Germany and other Soviet bloc countries through these Genex outlets in Switzerland.

Paid By Westerners
The only trick is that the Genex parcels are ready-packed with Iron Curtain produce—and have to be paid for in hard Western currency.

Like the flood of refugees to West Germany before the wall, the flood of food parcels to East Germany this year hardly provides East Germany with good propaganda, the Bonn officials point out.

East Germany may make its move this year but might wait until after Christmas, the officials said.

Communists Pushing 'Bundles For Berlin'

By JOHN A. CALLCOTT
United Press International
BONN (UPI) — Government officials here fear the Communists may try to cheat both East and West Germans by taking over a "Bundles To Berlin" plan now handled by charitable Westerners.

West Germans now send millions of gift packages crammed with food and clothing to friends and relatives in East Germany.

The officials said information received here indicates the East German regime wants to cash in on this by blocking the packages from the West—and forcing West Germans to buy all future packages from the Communists.

The packages would be filled with goods made in Iron Curtain nations. This would enable the Communists to get rid of the goods in exchange for valuable West German currency.

Before the Berlin wall was built, West Germans sent 36 million food parcels a year to East Germany. In 1961, when the wall went up, this total rose to 46 million.

This year, the officials said, the total will be well over 50 million.

Resemble CARE Packages
Millions of East Germans would never see what they consider "luxury goods" if it weren't for these parcels. These goods include good coffee, cocoa, and milk chocolate, decent tobacco, cigarettes, and fats, citrus fruits, raisins, cheese, dried milk and dehydrated eggs.

The packages resemble "CARE" packages which West Germans themselves received by the million after the war.

West Germans also send new and used clothing to the Soviet zone. First they have to get clothing officially disinfected—at Communist demand, Special West German centers do this free of cost.

Government officials are worried that East Germany plans to prevent the sending of parcels to the Soviet zone unless they go through an organization called Genex.

Genex is situated in East Berlin but has two middlemen in Switzerland, Max Wolfensberger in Zurich and Herbert Von Moos in Lucerne.

West Germans can, if they want, send parcels to relatives and friends in East Germany and other Soviet bloc countries through these Genex outlets in Switzerland.

Paid By Westerners
The only trick is that the Genex parcels are ready-packed with Iron Curtain produce—and have to be paid for in hard Western currency.

Like the flood of refugees to West Germany before the wall, the flood of food parcels to East Germany this year hardly provides East Germany with good propaganda, the Bonn officials point out.

East Germany may make its move this year but might wait until after Christmas, the officials said.

Businessman Wolfensberger said he handled only about 18 Genex parcels a month to East Germany but sometimes as many as 100 to other satellite nations.

He said both he and Von Moos have no goods themselves but simply accept orders and relay them to Genex. Besides food, he said, people can buy Iron Curtain clothing, bicycles, cars, furniture and other goods.

This system, he said, was initially introduced by the Nazis who used to distribute parcels to recipients in Germany providing they were paid for in hard currencies.

Von Moos said he receives about 1,000 orders a month from West Germans for Genex parcels. Most of the West Germans he said, send money to Switzerland to pay for them.

Genex parcels range in cost from about $2.50 to $18, he said.

The accordion is played by more than 1.3 million Americans.

Politics And Business

There are many business analysts, and some of them are really experts, who believe that all they need for their forecasts is adequate statistics. This is fundamentally the basis upon which the so-called "leading business indicators" have been developed, and these are widely followed. At least an equally large number of analysts, however, insist that there is more to forecasting than appraising statistics, no matter how complete such data may be. This group insists that the political and psychological atmosphere is equally important. So, it might be well to look at the recent election from the viewpoint of its possible effect upon the business trend.

There are some preliminary points which need to be made: First, some of the quite extreme liberals are Republicans, and some of the most conservative individuals are Democrats. Second, a distinction must be made between the House and Senate membership, and between both of these and what happened in the election of state governors. This is because the Senate for some time has been more liberal than the House, and governors have little influence upon what is passed by the Congress.

Third, it still is far too early to be certain on how some of the new members of the Congress, both in the House and in the Senate, will vote on measures of vast importance to the business trend.

Finally, although there is a mixing of ideology as between the two parties, it is generally true that the Republicans as a group are more inclined to be conservative than the Democrats. Now as to the election itself: The Democrats did remarkably well. Conversely, the Republicans did remarkably poorly. The Democrats picked up four additional Senate seats, and the Republicans got only four additional members of the House. Previous to the election even the serious partisans on both sides did not expect this outcome, and history has not yielded such a result since 1934. It is believed, too, that many of the new members in both branches of Congress are more liberal than those replaced. And it is known that several real conservatives in the House voluntarily withdrew before the election. No real liberal fireballs were eliminated, and a few were elected. The net outcome, therefore, is a Congress definitely more liberal than the last one.

What this all means in the way of specific legislation remains to be seen. But in view of the fact that in many instances in the 87th Congress the vote was extremely close, it appears safe to assume that some of the bills which were defeated will be passed by the incoming Congress.

This could be true of the proposal of medical care for the elderly under Social Security, if the Administration decides once again to make a hard fight for such action.

It could be true of the creation of a department of urban affairs. That would mean further undermining of the functions of our states.

It could be true of the suggestion for a permanent extension of unemployment compensation, and a definite step toward federalization of this system.

It could enable the Administration to get through the type of farm bill it tried for in the last Congress.

It could lead to still larger appropriations and more spending. On taxes as such, the issue probably will be the already large deficit and the lack of necessity for the type of reform the Administration wants.

None of these potentials will aid the rate of growth of the nation. None of them will help the public at large.

Bargain—For Khrushchev

Thoughtful Americans will have to agree with Comrade Khrushchev that his decision to take back the missiles he had sent to Cuba is not so far, at least a defeat for him or the Communist advance.

Talking with newsmen at a Kremlin reception celebrating the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, the Butcher of Budapest (who had put on his halo for the occasion) talked of a victory, instead, for reason and for mankind and proposed a toast "to the American people and the American Government."

Even if those 40 missiles he said had been shipped to Cuba have now been dismantled, as he said, and are on their way back as he thought they "probably" were — instead of roosting in those caves that happen to be so handy to the demolished (?) launching pads, there may be some frustration involved, but no defeat.

Even if we are persistent, and successful, in persuading him to bring back his bombers and his MIGs, to abandon his "fishing" base — even to let us keep Guantanamo — the defeat remains, not his, but ours.

Such withdrawals are even more than the reported price of President Kennedy's promise not to invade the island we once freed from Spain but now leave in Communist bondage as the Western Hemisphere satellite from which the Red spies and saboteurs and terrorists are flooding our South American neighbors.

Cuba, guaranteed-against invasion, is a victory for Khrushchev that will cost him little, if any, in lost time.

Pull Up A Chair

Now that baseball news has taken a side seat on the sports pages of the daily newspapers until next spring, we will not be hearing of the term, bullpen. All fans know that is an area in the baseball parks and stadiums, usually back of the center field bleachers. There the reserve pitchers are warmed up and made ready when the regular pitcher gets in trouble, such as loading the bases with passes or hits or is driven from his position by runs batted in. Then the manager signals to the bullpen and a new pitcher comes to the mound as a replacement. The term "bullpen" derive its name from the baseball parks of fifty years ago, when there were no stadiums in major or minor leagues and when all of them had a huge Bull Durham smoking sign in center field. It was back of these signs where the pitchers warmed up during the game, hidden from the view of the spectators.

Facts and Figures: 1. In TV network programs, scenes showing characters telephoning now cost thousands of dollars extra each year. For a call to see authentic, a character twirls the dial seven times per call—a maneuver which consumes extra seconds. And all those seconds, compiled from all network shows in the course of a year, represent a small fortune in TV time charges. 2. As far back as we can remember there have been what are known as "end-seat hogs"—persons who insist on occupying the end or outside seat in buses, railroad trains, airplanes, movie theaters and even church pews. It matters not how many others have to squeeze, push or climb past. The end-seat hog stays put. 3. Those who think a world series is tops in attracting huge crowds of paying spectators should have another think. The Minnesota State Fair, one of the nation's greatest, drew more than 1,000,000 in 10 days. The Texas State Fair was equally stormed. And annually the magnificent Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto has ground 1,500,000 persons click through its turnstiles in a 14-day span. A seven-game world series at two of the largest ball parks would fall far short of those figures, even with a sellout for each game.

Thoughts while shaving. 1. You often hear the expression, "from Maine to California," but did you ever hear anyone say, "from Florida to Washington State"? The latter two states are just about as far away from each other as the first named pair. 2. The number of man-hours lost annually in business offices for the coffee break must be prodigious, but the number of man-minutes lost in watching the clock to ascertain when it's coffee break time isn't anything inconsequential, either. 3. And as employer-worker relations improve, wonder how soon it will be before tea time around 3 p.m. is established as the afternoon version of the coffee break? Or is it already here? 4. Wonder why so many great law firms have such lengthy names. In almost any metropolitan city there are several law outfits with five or six names in their titles. And sometimes those whose names are in the firm's title have long since gone to their reward.

A thought for the day: The

Pawn Good For A Few More Moves

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

Union leaders have pushed for government intervention with the hue and cry that the workers create the wealth but do not get a fair share of it.

The facts are that out of every dollar available for workers or owners of American corporations, the workers average 88.7 cents and the owners average 10.3 cents.

Machines furnish about 95 percent of the energy used in American industry yet the owners of these machines, the people who have saved money to buy them, get only about one-ninth of the dollars that are available, after expenses are paid, with which to reward labor and owners.

On the other hand workers supply about 5 percent of the energy used in industrial production in our country and are rewarded with about eight-ninths of the wealth flowing from these industries that is divisible between owners and labor.

Socialism has spread, not only in our own country, but around the world on the basis of the great hoax promulgated in literature, published in all leading languages, proclaiming the gigantic error that of the dollars available for owners and workers, owners get four-fifths and labor one-fifth. If this were true every fair-minded person would be a Socialist. It is because multitudes believe this error that socialism is winning.

When advised that just the opposite is true — that owners receive one-ninth and labor eight-ninths, fair-minded people can no longer be Socialists.

Internal Revenue reports show that during the past 45 years, 45 percent of American companies "on the average have shown losses." Only the better managed and fortunately situated companies have shown profits.

The compensation of the workers of American corporations in 1961 was $185,757,000,000 while the owners of the industries they work for received in net profits $21,182,000,000. If these profits were wiped out and the sum just named were given to the workers, the average worker would receive only one-ninth more. But, if that were done, the worker would soon have no tools to work with and no buildings in which to work. Furthermore, there would be no means of transportation to distribute goods and no retail mechanism for getting them into the hands of the people.

In other words, industry would grind to a halt if the very narrow margin of profit were wiped out. It has already been reduced to a dangerously low point and, if labor union pressure and government taxation forces it lower, less and less capital will then be available for financing our industries. That would soon force us into government-managed and financed economy with the inefficiency, scarcity and low standards of living that form of economic organization always entails.

Profit is the very lifeblood of a prosperous, self-governing society. Tyranny and slavery will be the lot of those who reject the profit system or force profits down so low as to discourage saving and risk-taking in enterprise. The margin of safety is already very slender.

TRUTH FORUM Congress Should Start Probe of Bureaucrats

By ED DELANEY

When the 88th Congress convenes in January the appropriate committee should initiate a probe of the State Department the Defense Dept., the CIA and other bureaus in Washington that have been harboring persons who give aid to our enemies, particularly in Cuba. Sufficient evidence already has been disclosed to prove that Castro could not have attained power in Cuba without direct assistance given him by certain persons in the State Department.

With few exceptions the pre-election speeches of candidates for Congress put little emphasis on the Cuban issue. Two reasons may have impeded such strange silence. One because of the day-by-day developments as regard to the blockade and the uncertainty of the course that might be taken by Khrushchev: second—and the most important — because the blame for the Cuban situation cannot be charged entirely against the Kennedy administration. It was during the Eisenhower administration that Castro was helped to gain domination of Cuba. In fact the previous Republican job-holders backing to the advice of such as Roy Rubottom and William Arthur Wieland actually created the problem with which we are now confronted in Cuba.

Therefore the Republican candidate who would fix the blame on Kennedy, would invite a review of the record. That record shows inexcusable lack of judgment on the part of the Eisenhower policy makers. But, as usual, the ones to blame for the disaster, appear to be among the untouchables.

When a ship is lost at sea, perhaps taking toll of many lives, the maritime courts make a thorough investigation and fix the blame, if possible. Should they establish that the captain of the vessel was at fault, then his days as master of a ship are ended. Apparently those who steer our ship of state have no such fear. The ones on the "fourth floor" of the State Department building who formulate the policies, go on like time and tide, regardless of the figure heads who meet and greet visiting dignitaries and have the official titles of secretary of state or one of the assistant secretaries. It is persons as well as policies that must be changed in the labyrinths of the State Department and the Pentagon.

William Wieland and Roy Rubottom in the foreign service are both cited in sworn testimony before more congressional committees as being very largely responsible for bringing Castro into power. Instead of separating them from the federal payroll, they were given promotions.

Another who is making himself obnoxious is Arthur Sylvester, an assistant secretary of defense in charge of public relations. His relations with the press reached an all time low when he admitted "management" of the news, so far as it concerns the Pentagon. This is the same opinionated and officious individual who telephoned from Washington to Germany and told Gen. Edwin A. Walker that he "spoke for the President." He demanded certain statements from the general—or else. He got the answer he deserved. He is now arrogating to himself the role of czar at the Pentagon and has decreed that all officials there must clear through him, any interview or statement that may get into print.—Of course his previous experience on the staff of a left-wing newspaper in New Jersey qualifies him for the post of censor—under some other title. But though newspaper editors are demanding he be dropped from his post of "almighty" at the Pentagon it is doubtful they will make even an impression on those who seem to be under the hypnotic of their "untouchable" subordinates.

We recall what happened when Whitaker Chambers stripped the mask from Alger Hiss. Immediately such as Dean Acheson, Felix Frankfurter, Herbert Lehman, Eleanor Roosevelt and others rushed to give him a good character. Will there be a stampede of party-liners to shield those in the State Department the CIA and other alphabetical agencies of the government if Congress should muster up sufficient backbone to force an investigation? Let us wait until January to answer that question.

Allen-Scott Report

New Unannounced Missile Threat in Cuba Increases Need for On-Site Inspection Insistence

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — An ominous new missile threat is behind President Kennedy's decision to continue pressing for "on-the-site" inspection of Soviet missile bases in Cuba.

The latest U-2 Intelligence-photo flights over Cuba uncovered four newly-installed medium-range ballistic missiles.

These winged missiles, capable of carrying a 4,000-pound nuclear warhead, have a range of from 300 to 750 miles. Many of their features are similar to the SS-N-3, except its longer (5,000-mile) range.

The SS-N-3, as this missile is identified, has a speed estimated at around 500 miles per hour. It appears to be about two and one-half times longer than the SS-N-1 that now rings the Cuban coastline. There are 18 of these shorter-range missiles.

In the hands of the erratic Castro, the Joint Chiefs of Staff consider these new SS-N-3 missiles as dangerous as the IL-28s, the twin-engine jet bombers President Kennedy is demanding that Premier Khrushchev withdraw from Cuba.

The aerial photos show the Soviet bombers, similar to the Air Force's B-47s, now on three airfields. A total of 36 IL-28s have been photographed. Fourteen have been uncrated and are believed ready to be flown; four have been seen in the air.

This alarming intelligence is causing President Kennedy to seriously consider a J.C.S. recommendation to tighten up the "limited" naval-air blockade of Cuba.

Under the J.C.S. proposal, all military supplies to the island, including jet fuel and oil, would be banned. Ships carrying these supplies would be intercepted and a net turned back. At present, the Navy has been ordered to stop only ships carrying "offensive" weapons and their component parts.

CAUTIOUS APPROACH—No final decision on the J.C.S. recommendation is expected until after the President receives a report from his three Cuban crisis negotiators. This group, headed by John J. McCloy, is making a final diplomatic effort at the U.N. to obtain a Soviet-Cuban inspection agreement and pullback of the bombers.

The White House has put a lid on the new missile threat. The Defense Department is under strict orders to withhold publication of the new discovery until the President makes a decision on whether to demand the withdrawal of these new missiles.

The Joint Chiefs want these missiles either removed or destroyed. In addition, the military advisers are arguing that a complete technical inspection by competent technicians is needed to assure the U.S. that there are no more Soviet IRBMs on the island.

To support their position, the J.C.S. point out that prolonged and intensive aerial reconnaissance of the Isle of Pines still has not produced a single photo of missiles there, although reliable Cuban refugees have brought out eye-witness accounts of missiles on that strategic island.

Note: Fidel Castro took no chances when he published his pictures of that downed U-2 reconnaissance plane. He had "U.S. Air Force" painted in white letters on the wrecked fuselage. The U-2 carries no identification.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 30: Since India is a member of the U.N., why must the United States provide military equipment to India as aid in defense against Communist China? If the United Nations were a peace-keeping organization, as is claimed by its promoters, there would not be more world tensions than at any time in history. But regardless of membership in the United Nations, there seems from this corner no justification for the United States providing military equipment to any other nation anywhere.

Actress Barbara Rush Wants To Be More Than 'Journalistic Ornament'

Hollywood
By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Pretty actress Barbara Rush is on guard lest some enterprising movie or television producer turn her into a glittering ornament devoid of brains.

Miss Rush, possessor of an intellect along with her beauty is a rarity in the Hollywood entertainment establishment which accents more cheesecake and less two syllable words from actresses.

Let an actress exhibit concern for things intellectual and front office movie and television executives accuse her of trying to break the classic mold of Hollywood's image.

Miss Rush, a reporter on "Saints and Sinners," a television series about newspapermen, insists on writing a story occasionally instead of sitting around the show's city room making the place look attractive.

"I'm a pretty good actress and I won't do that," said the headstrong Miss Rush, rebuffing attempts to turn her into a journalistic ornament.

Miss Rush insists there's more she can do than hang around watching reporters work on the show. She just can't stand idly by.

"I could be Brenda Starr, girl reporter," said Miss Rush who once worked parttime on a newspaper while attending a university.

Barbara confers often with the show's producers asking for roles with substance. They finally relented and gave her a make believe assignment which puts the charming actress in Berlin.

Should she solve the East-West problem, there's no telling where they might send Barbara next—maybe Cuba.

Miss Rush appears in six "Saints and Sinners" segments this season replacing Anne Blyth who left the show before it started filming.

Was Emotionless
"The way the part was written it was emotionless," said Barbara. "That's the trouble with some of these things. The girls just don't look like human beings."

By the time Barbara got finished arguing her case, the character had a little emotion.

Miss Rush's notions about serious roles for actresses instead of frivolous parts are part of her real life thinking about women. Barbara is determined to get them out of the kitchen if, indeed, she can find any in there.

"I wouldn't be surprised to see articulate actresses moving into television commentator kind of work," said Barbara during breakfast at a Hollywood restaurant.

"When we were watching the election roles somebody said it would have been nice to have a woman on some of those shows with all those men."

Wall Street In Review

Smilen & Safian's weekly analysis of market trends says traders should not be moved by the emotional buying which now seems to be sweeping Wall Street. "People, who only a few weeks ago were telling us that we were dead wrong for saying the bottom had been reached, are now slightly impatient when we say that many stocks have now approached their near-term objectives."

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. warns that since late October the senior average has been up over 75 points from top to bottom and it is seldom that a rise is a straight line affair. He says this does not necessarily presage a sharp correction but could well mean that the market may back track a little in order to consolidate its position for a renewal of the recovery movement.

To Be Considered In 'Judging' The Election

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional returns from the 1960 election must be considered in judging the recent election.

For example: The judges have ignored the fact that the Democrats lost 21 seats in the House of Representatives in 1960 although they elected a president.

Most of all of these were in marginal congressional districts. A marginal district is one in which the winner got 55 per cent or less of the vote.

Marginal districts tend to swing in a presidential election year. A presidential nominee who wins by a big margin usually generates political momentum sufficient to elect his party's House candidates in marginal districts. Such candidates are the most eager to ride their presidential candidate's coat tails.

The 1960 presidential election was a squeaker. President Kennedy barely made it. He wore a vest: no coat. The Republican candidate in 1960 lost the White House but the Republican party gained 21 seats in the House. These seats were precariously held by their Democratic incumbents, else they would not have been surrendered to the Republicans.

Political Tradition
It was these areas of tenderly balanced congressional districts that developed a tradition of American politics. The tradition is that in an off-year election, the in-office party must expect to lose rather heavily in the House. The average such off-year losses suffered by the in-office party is 40 to 50 seats.

When an in-office party loses that many or more in an off year, the out-of-office party reasonably may anticipate an improving chance to elect its presidential nominee two years later. If the out-party wins House control from the ins, so much the better are the out's presidential election prospects.

The Republicans needed last week to gain 44 House seats to become the House majority. They didn't make it. The Republicans gained two seats; the Democrats lost four. This mathematical monstrosity is accurate because the House just adjourned had 437 members to accommodate new states, Hawaii and Alaska. It now reverts to the previous number, 435.

Better for GOP
Some or all of the 21 seats the Democrats lost in 1960 would have tended last week to swing to the Republicans if the Democrats had not already lost them. If the lot had remained Democratic in 1960 and gone Republican last week the 1962 won-lost tally would have been:

Democrats lost 25 seats.

Republicans won 23 seats.

In the clouded light of that calculation, Republican presidential prospects in 1964 look somewhat better, but not much. It is a fairer estimate of the immediate political climate, however, than are the comparisons of President Kennedy's first off-year election with FDR's spectacular first in 1934. Republicans can be of some cheer, however: JFK will not match FDR's four-term preference. That would be against the law.

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's inability to win as big as his supporters had hoped over weak opposition damaged but did not destroy his chance to be his party's 1964 presidential nominee. After all, he was re-elected.

Rocky still has a 1964 chance only because any governor of New York State is a presidential possibility unless he has two heads.

Republican George Romney, who said he would not be a candidate, was projected into the presidential picture by being elected governor of Michigan. Republican William W. Scranton was elected governor of Pennsylvania. He's another 1964 possibility. The two big states long had strayed from their Republican moorings and now may be coming back. That appears to be the best Republican election news.

Future in South
Next best was a modest increase in Southern Republicans elected to the House of Representatives. This stimulated a party spokesman to declaim that the future of the Republican party lies in the South. There was scattering but important evidence that the South moved a little toward a two-party system.

If so, this is a clear gain for those with the greatest stake in Tuesday's polling—the people of the United States.

Balancing one thing against another and skipping most of the fine print, the Democratic party won. The results of the polling were egg-scrambled—Democrats taking office in Vermont and New Hampshire, a Republican elected governor of Oklahoma.

But give or take a very few own in the House of Representatives in this off-year election. An seats, the Democrats held their average minority party House gain in an off-year election would be roughly 40 to 50 seats. The Republicans needed 44 gains to become the House majority. They didn't come close.

Big Senate Margin
The administration's better off in the Senate where the Democratic gain may be as many as four seats. If so the new Senate would have 68 Democrats, 32 Republicans.

Star billing must go to President Kennedy. He made an unusual, almost unprecedented, off year campaign effort. He also almost took the political campaign off Page One with developments in the Cuban missile crisis. If his party won Tuesday, so did Kennedy win.

In terms of Republican presidential politics, Romney, Rockefeller and Scranton will figure in all speculation. Only Scranton, of the three, has a solid party background. Win or lose, Richard M. Nixon took himself out of the 1964 nomination. Romney also said he would not be available but not so loudly. Scranton has good reason to hope.

Rockefeller is a loner—he consistently has argued that JFK can be licked in 1964. And Rocky is willing to try. Willing? Anxious!

In the mid-1900s, passenger pigeons were frequently seen in Wyoming and the Rocky Mountains. They now are extinct.
