Churches Start Blanket Drive

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Thousands of Algerians may freeze to death during the oncoming cold months unless 650,000 blankets are rushed to that stricken country immediately, officials of Church World Service stated today after an emergency meeting here.

Rugh D. Farley, Executive Director of the overseas relief agency of the American Protestant and Orthodox churches, called for an immediate drive for blankets after hearing a report on the desperate plight of the Algerians by Jan Van Hoogstraten, Director of CWS activities in Africa.

As the machinery was put into motion for the nationwide blanket drive, church officials declared that six hundred million pounds of U.S. surplus wheat will be rushed to Algeria to combat the growing starvation there. This, it was revealed, will be in addition to more than eleven million pounds of food and other relief supplies already sent as a result of efforts of CROP (Christian Rural Overseas Program), S.O.S. (Share Our Surplus) and other relief appeals of the churches.

Mr. Van Hoogstraten described conditions he had observed on a four-week field trip to Algeria from which he had just returned, in citing the critical need for blankets.

"More than a million Algerians in the Departments of Constantine and Batna alone, lack any protection from the severe cold they will face in the next few months," he told denominational representatives at the emergency meeting.

The Departments of Constantine and Batna are areas being aided by the Christian Committee for Service in Algeria (CCSA), a co-operative organization of voluntary Protestant agencies, including Church World Service and the World Council of Churches.

"These Algerians are bound to suffer in an even greater degree from the cold because it comes at a time when they lack sufficient food," Mr. Van Hoogstraten said.

"It may seem incredible to us, but more than half the population of Algeria — that is, over five million persons — are today suffering from hunger. More than a million Algerians in the Departments of Constantine and Batna alone are threatened with starvation."

Church World Service is currently conducting its annual Share Our Surplus Appeal, a fund-raising activity to finance the SOS program.

Churchgoers will contribute to the Share Our Surplus Appeal at special services held in churches and communities throughout the country and also through activities of CROP (Christian Rural Overseas Program) of CWS.

Contributors to the blanket drive are asked to also give 25 cents to cover pre-shipment processing costs. Plans are being made for interdenominational collection of blankets in communities throughout the country.

Blankets will also be received at the following Church World Service centers: 637 West 125th Street, New York 27, N.Y.; Napanee, Indiana; New Windsor, Maryland; 4185 Duncan Avenue, St. Louis 10, Mo.; 3855 Elm Street, Denver, Colo., and 919 Emerald Ave., Modesto, Calif.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

Patent, Trademark or Copyright?

Patent attorneys sometimes are surprised by the way laymen seem to use their words of art. For instance, the other day a young inventor happened into a lawyer's office with a box under his arm. Scarcely had he removed his coat when he exclaimed "I'd like to copyright my patent. . . er, I mean, trademark my copyright."

Quickly adjusting to the situation, the attorney realized that the first step, after finding out what was in the box, was to clarify in the inventor's own mind just what he was after.

The box contained a camera, which, under certain circumstances, might raise a patent, trademark and copyright problem. Of course, these three forms of protection of industrial property rights can supplement each other.

In substance, a patent is the right to exclude others from practicing the invention; that is a patent grant is. This property right differs from other property rights in that (a) it protects something never known before — the new invention and (b) it is a temporary right, lasting for only 17 years.

A patent can be obtained to protect the inventor's rights in a new article, composition of matter, apparatus or process, and may even be granted for new and original ornamental designs for articles of manufacture — called design patents — and for new varieties of plants under certain conditions — plant patents.

Thus, a single product, such as this inventor's camera, might have novel structural features which could be protected by one or more patents.

Now, a trademark is a word, name, symbol or device used by a manufacturer to identify his goods in commerce and distinguish them from those of other manufacturers. Rights to a trademark do not simply accrue to him who is the first to devise the mark, but only to him who is the first to use the mark in connection with the goods identified thereby.

Federal registration of the mark cannot be secured though, until after the mark is used in interstate commerce; thus, this camera might be sold under a trademark, such as "KERCHOO" or "KODAK", to aid in its identification, and such mark, if not previously used on such goods, could be registered as a trademark by the manufacturer.

A copyright is the right to prevent unauthorized copying of such things as writings, musical compositions, pictures and works of art. Registration of a copyright must be secured by first printing a copyright notice on each copy of the writing or other material, and then filing an application for the subject in the Library of Congress.

This inventor's camera, then, could not itself be the subject of copyright, but the advertising copy, instruction manual or other written material relating to the camera and its operation could be copyrighted to prevent any substantial portion from being copied by competitors.

In short, patents, trademarks and copyrights are complementary forms of protection, but they cannot be interchanged. They are words of art; they are specific types of protection. The young camera inventor now knows what kind of protection he really sought. Do you?

Backstairs At The White House

By MERRIMAN SMITH
 UPI White House Reporter
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: Know who collects President Kennedy's garbage and trash at Hyannis Port? George Washington, that's who.

 George Washington Rubbish Collection Service is a Hyannis Port institution. George, the founder (of the trash pickup, not the country), no longer runs the business which is in charge of his son-in-law, George Tobey.

It may be announced any minute, but the Democrats were so pleased with their banquetless fund-raising affair in New York last May that they plan another one in Washington Jan. 18. It will be a mammoth entertainment gala at the District of Columbia Armory with most of the seats priced at $100.

The show in Madison Square Garden last May saluted the President's 45th birthday and was more successful as a money raiser than the conventional $100-a-plate dinner.

If the Washington affair is another success, this could spread to other large cities where at conventional fund-raising dinners, much of the money goes into food, wine and service.

This week's knee-slapper around the White House and other outposts of the New Frontier:

- "Knock, knock."
- "Who's there?"
- "Nixon."
- "Nixon who?"
- "You've forgotten already?"

Mrs. Kennedy is taking extra special care of her new puppy, Clipper, a five-month-old German Shepherd male.

In the White House baggage from Cape Cod last Sunday night was a 50-pound sack of dog biscuits.

diplomats, particularly Russians and Cubans, that Stevenson had to follow a policy which he, himself, had opposed in its formative stages.

Another serious implication was that one or more participants in the theoretically locked-tight secret proceedings of the National Security Council had decided unilaterally to abandon the Chief Executive's orders about secrecy.

This obvious leaky condition of so-called NSC secrets caused furrowed brows and a few shudders in government circles.

White House officials were emphatic in saying that neither Bartlett nor Alsop talked with the President in preparing the article. Here again was a matter of semantics and timing. The President obviously granted the co-authors no interview or discussed the subject pointedly with them.

Bartlett, however, did spend a Virginia weekend with the President about a week after the missile crisis was disclosed to the public.

Deduce Kennedy Connection Valid or invalid, this was reason enough for many seasoned Washington figures to deduce that there had to be some connection between Kennedy and the article. But such reasoning missed an important point: Alsop and Bartlett are on friendly terms with a number of other high officials, including Stevenson, himself, and his chief spokesman at the United Nations, Clayton Fritchey.

Reporters of the Alsop - Bartlett caliber have a great many top government connections. They could, without great difficulty, arrange private audiences with other participants in NSC proceedings, ranging from the President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk to some of the specialists in foreign policy, defense and intelligence matters whose names seldom figure in published articles.

This made it plainly evident that at a time when much of the government was clamping down on information concerning Cuba, an official either participant in or privy to some of the government's highest secrets had decided to talk about at least one of them—and for publication.

Those familiar with such incidents—and they happen from time to time in any administration—felt with some certainty that upon learning of the article, the President inquired and discovered its source. What does he do about the man or men who talked and made it appear there was a serious policy split within his most trusted ranks? Very little for the moment, or risk creating a greater public uproar than has developed at this point.

Primary Problem His primary problem was measurement of possible damage to Stevenson's stature in the United Nations. If the article and its proliferating effects produce additional embarrassment for Stevenson at the United Nations; if it leads to any widespread impression among diplomats that Stevenson has less than unqualified support by the President, some action by either Kennedy or his ambassador would seem indicated.

What that action will be was a matter which even more knowledgeable administration officials did not want to speculate on at this time.

"If the person who entered my home Wednesday night during my absence, taking a box from the closet, containing valuable papers, watch and $2.15, will return the papers, box and watch, they may keep the cash."

When questioned about the matter, Mrs. Mullin said the strong-

Council In Evaluation Of Itself

The Student Council at Pampa High School conducted a self-evaluation of its organization in its weekly meeting this morning.

The group arrived at the general consensus that the students of Pampa High need to become more familiar with the organization and its activities. Each home room president will invite at least one student to attend the SC meeting with him, starting with the seniors.

It was announced that Donna Conner, Linda Cox and Paula Sealey are in a special runoff for sophomore class favorite.

Robert Pullen was appointed chairman of the Christmas tree committee and Richard Fatheree chairman of the White Christmas program, — a project to provide the needy with a brighter Christmas.

Pat Ludenman reported on the dance after the game last week. Also, another dance will be held this Friday night at the Youth Center following the game against Lamar, Colo.

The presidents of all school-sponsored clubs are slated to meet Friday afternoon at 3:45.

CHRISTMAS ON MARROW-BONE RIDGE

The men on Marrow-Bone Ridge cut firewood and sold it, when they could. The women did mending and laundering. Even Donny helped out by doing odd jobs in the nearby village.

It was on his way home from the Village of Comfort that Donny saw the old beat-up lantern on a rubbish heap. "Maybe I can fix it up," said Donny to himself.

"Who knows? I might find a globe for it some day," said Donny. It was when he started polishing it that things happened. There was a puff of smoke and there he stood!

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's a crack in the wall, but it's much to small—to call the plasterer. Perhaps, madame, your problem on the homefront is something else — say wondering how long to cook the green beans or puzzlement over handling the long green.

Did you know the quickest help comes when you dial Uncle Sam's extension service representative in your area?

The extension service representative either will have a solution for your problem—large or small—or will be able to refer you to someone who can help.

That includes problems dealing with cracks in the plaster, cockroaches, cookery, home decorating and finance.

You name the problem on the homefront, at any rate, and the extension service representative will really aid!

Service Is Free

The most remarkable part about this helpful service—it doesn't cost a cent. Uncle Sam, you see, appoints these extension service representatives — home economists — to serve homemakers across the nation.

The voice of authority on this free-for-all service, Helen D. Turner, is assistant director of the division of home economics program of the federal extension service.

Mrs. Turner, in town to attend a conference of the home furnishing specialists of the cooperative extension service at the National Design Center, operates out of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C.

Before she worked her way into the executive suite in Washington, Mrs. Turner was an Extension Service representative.

Money, Biggest Problem

"People called about all sorts of problems," she said, "and we were always ready to help them solve their dilemmas."

"The biggest problems stem usually from the management of home, money and things."

"When in doubt about how to reach your extension service representative," Mrs. Turner said, "call the local county agricultural agent and he'll be able to tune you in."

The experts also are ready to help solve problems revolving about the management of children — from cradle to adolescence.

"Some extension representatives have answering services, they're so busy," Mrs. Turner said.

Some Answers Recorded

"And when chronic troubles in an area lend themselves to a recorded message, some extension representatives have taped messages."

Mrs. Turner said the tape-type of help usually is doled out at rose spraying time in an area where a particular kind of pest.

Preserving time gives the extension agents in some areas reason to record messages also.

If, for example, the primary fruit crop is apples, the recorded message will attempt to answer as many as possible of the anticipated questions connected with the problems of making apple sauce or — cider.

Wine lovers will certainly be able to tell that you have the wrong wine, but any chemists in the group will admire your scientific knowledge. Changes In Sales Tax Exemptions Would Boost The State's Revenue

AUSTIN (UPI)—The legislature could satisfy much of the demand for new tax revenue by exemption changes giving the sales tax law a $10.5 million revenue boost, the Texas Commission on State and Local Tax Policy said in a divided report Tuesday.

The commission recommended 20 changes, including removal of the exemption on outer clothing under $10. The clothing exemption would bring $10 million more a year in revenue.

The commission also proposed putting auto sales under the sales tax and repealing the selective excise tax on auto sales. This would bring $2.5 million more revenue.

The commission chairman, Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas, said he expects to carry the Senate bill embodying the commission proposals. He said Rep. Charles Wilson of Trinity may carry the House version.

The commission was asked by the 57th Legislature to propose tax changes in various areas to the 58th Legislature. In addition to Parkhouse, Crump, and Wilson, commission members are Sen. J. P. Fuller of Port Arthur, Rep. Charles Sandahl of Austin, Hugo Loewenstern of Amarillo, Dr. J. J. Stockton of Austin, and John McKee of Dallas.

Thorny Problem:

There are big crises in the world such as those between India and China that get all the attention, and then there are the smaller ones generally ignored by the world but important to those concerned. One such is the contention between Malaya and the Philippines over North Borneo. It once belonged to the sultan of Sulu, whose heirs ceded it to the British North Borneo Company, which after World War II ceded it to the British government. The British now plan to have it incorporated into the Nascent Federation of Malaysia. But not too long ago, the Philippines lodged a claim for the territory based on the right of succession through the sultan of Sulu. The result has been some bad feeling between Malaya and the Philippines. As a consequence, Malaya's Prime Minister Tengku Abdul Rahman is expected to skip the forthcoming ministerial meeting of the association of Southeast Asia (ASA) the cultural and economic organization of the Philippines, Malaya and Thailand. Tentatively, this is scheduled to be held at the Philippine mountain resort city of Baguio in January. But the strained relations between Manila and Kuala Lumpur could torpedo this meeting and even damage the fabric of ASA itself.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—At present it looks to Bradbury K. Thurlow of Winslow, Cohn & Stetson like a rally in a bear market and he sees no reason to modify his earlier prediction that a major top will be made in the 665-80 Dow-Jones industrial area.

The stock market's refusal to sell off and consolidate during this advance suggests a kind of urgency to the buying and a kind of impulsive trading mentality behind the selling that could bring trouble before too long, Thurlow warns.

It now looks as if the rally will go all the way to its end with a reaction. When profit taking begins Thurlow believes it will mark the beginning of a major move toward lower prices.

The paper industry is proceeding quietly along its way, says the Value Line Investment Survey, with usually-mild swings in earnings but no dramatic development in sight to change things strongly for better or worse. But the paper industry's relative stability masks opposing forces in precarious balance. Growth in demand puts sales on a secular rise. The climbing costs keep pressing and mild excess capacity strongly inhibits relief through price increases. Result—an uneasy status quo.

Dear Abby
By Abigail

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I have lived together for 15 years and have been very close. We have mutual friends and have always gone to church, concerts, plays, etc., together. Now I find myself alone and no one to share my life with.

A month ago my sister married a man after courtship of only six weeks! A few years back I had two proposals of marriage and I turned them down because my sister did not want to be left alone. I am very hurt because of the way she has treated me. Am I wrong to think she should have refused this man because I turned down two proposals for her? My health is not good and I need her. Am I being unfair?

LONESOME
DEAR LONESOME: You are wrong. Your sister had every right to marry, and so did you. Don't be bitter. Perhaps now that you are alone you, too, will be plucked out of the garden of late bloomers.

DEAR ABBY: There is a woman in our neighborhood who just burns all of us up. She has a child who attends the same school as mine (and three other neighborhood children). But do you think she would consider being in our car pool? Not on your life. We have all asked her, but she says, "No, thank you. I do not want to be responsible for driving anyone else's child and I don't need anyone to drive mine." She goes right past my house every morning on her way to school and she picks up her child every evening. What makes this woman so selfish?

CAN'T GET OVER IT
DEAR CAN'T: Maybe she was in a car pool once.

DEAR ABBY: Last week my husband brought home a puppy. It is cute and all that how about when he grows? I don't know anything about training a dog and you should my house after one week! husband says HE will train it he is gone all day and it's chilly to leave him outside all time. Please tell me how to vince my husband that he sh get rid of this puppy.

There's a new idea going around. And it's catching on. The Dart idea! No longer do you have to be packed or stacked in a compact. Now there's plenty of room—for head, feet, and seat. Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former President Eisenhower's bright young men have taken another angry swipe at the Republican party leadership. These bright young like-men are the editors of ADVANCE magazine.

ADVANCE is an occasionally-published periodical dedicated to the idea that Republicans must get rid of their present congressional and campaign committee leadership if they are to survive as a major political party. Publisher Bruce K. Chapman is a recent—very recent—Harvard graduate. His associates, likewise. What they propose now is that the Republican leadership refuse to support segregationist congressional candidates in the South in order to concentrate on regaining the Negro vote in all other areas of the United States.

and South Carolina in the recent election and added a handful to the GOP Southern delegation in the House.

Oppose Goldwater
ADVANCE objects loudly to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., as chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee and to his opposite number in the House, Rep. William E. Miller, R-N.Y. Goldwater cannot continue as Senate campaign chairman because he will be a candidate in 1964 for re-election.

Efforts before this to oust Goldwater from the chairmanship have brought instant counter-action from big time Republican campaign contributors. Their word was that the conservative Goldwater would continue in that job or they would not contribute. Goldwater stayed on. Now, however, he must step down.

ADVANCE has summoned the party to supplant him with a notable liberal, preferably Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York. Javits does not want the job and probably will not get it.

Assured, however, is a Republican battle royal over selection of Goldwater's successor. General Ike is expected to be on the side of his bright young men, attempting to put a Modern Republican in the campaign chairmanship.

About the Republican reach for segregationist votes in the South, ADVANCE has had a lot to say, including this:

"Since the party organizations have not been squeamish about supporting segregationists, the Southern effort can greatly embarrass Republicans who are trying to win the Negro vote, whether in North or South. Though a traditional conservative appeal to the South is certainly acceptable, a segregationist appeal is totally unacceptable both morally and politically."

STEAL DAVIE'S BIKE

NEW YORK (UPI)—David Dubinsky, 70, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, will have to get around in his chauffeur-driven car for a while.

Dubinsky, who is fond of bicycling in Central Park, left his two-wheeler outside a Manhattan restaurant Sunday, and when he came out it was gone. The labor leader said he forgot to lock it.

Taker To Rams Name' Players Drafted By NFL In 1st Rounds

CHICAGO (UPI) — College football's 1962 contribution to the National Football League probably will be one of the poorest records, analysis of the annual draft choices indicated today.

Virtually all the "name" players, plus a few surprises, were drafted in the first two rounds. The 1962 crop was so poorly drafted that 9 of the first 20 drafted "futures," and 22 of the first 26 futures can't be signed another year.

Paul Brown of the Cleveland Browns said that after the first pick it was a matter of posing "between six or eight years of about equal ability at several positions."

George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears, agreed.

Big Names Go Fast
The big names went fast. Oregon State's quarterback Terry Baker, the Heisman Trophy winner, was the first choice, by the Los Angeles Rams. The Rams also picked guard Rufus Guthrie of Georgia Tech on another first round selection. St. Louis, with two first round choices, went for halfback Jerry Stovall of LSU and tackle Don Brumm of Purdue.

Other first round picks were Minnesota, tackle Jim Dunaway, Mississippi; Philadelphia, tackle Ed Budde, Michigan State; Baltimore, tackle Bob Vogel, Ohio State; Dallas, center Leroy Jordan, Alabama; Washington, end Pat Richter of Wisconsin; San Francisco, halfback Kermit Alexander, UCLA; Cleveland, end Tom Hutchinson, Kentucky; Chicago, center Dave Behrman, Michigan State; Detroit, tackle Daryl Sanders, Ohio State, and Green Bay

Amateur Feud Boils Over Track Meets

DETROIT (UPI) — United States hopes of track and field Olympic superiority seemed lost today in the smoke from the broadsides exchanged by the Amateur Athletic Union and the NCAA-sponsored U.S. Track and Field Federation.

The AAU made good its threat Monday and ruled ineligible for future American and international competition a group of athletes who participated in three track meets under USTFF auspices recently.

In effect, the AAU action sliced from the rosters all athletes caught in between the two factions. The federation represents 438,000 athletes from 600 colleges and universities and more than 20,000 high schools.

Rumbles reach Washington. Rumbles of the fight for control reached even Washington. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy interceded in a Nov. 12 New York meeting between the two groups and a compromise plan was worked out whereby both would have a say in putting on track meets.

But at the AAU meetings here over the weekend, the compromise was shot full of holes when the USTFF balked at the AAU proposal for a coalition committee, claiming it was not the compromise agreed on at the urging

Bearcats Get Nod As No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Cincinnati, which displayed an awesome attack in its opening game of the season, today was a near-unanimous selection as the nation's No. 1 college basketball team in the first weekly balloting of the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The Bearcats were selected as the top team by 23 of the 35 famous coaches who comprise the UPI board and were named second by the two dissenters. Thus Cincinnati received 248 points of a possible 350 as it begins its campaign to capture the national title won the last two years by Ohio State.

Major casualties in the first week's voting were Kentucky and St. Bonaventure, each of which suffered a stunning upset in season openers last Saturday. Kentucky had been rated third in the coaches' pre-season forecast and the Bonnies ranked eighth.

The Wildcats, who lost an 80-77 decision to Virginia Tech, dropped to 16th in the ratings while St. Bonaventure, a 73-66 loser to Southern Illinois, fell entirely from the list.

Duke, which received the other two first-place votes, remained second with Loyola of Chicago moving from fifth to third, West Virginia retaining fourth place and Oregon State moving up a notch to fifth.

The board of coaches will rate the nation's teams weekly throughout the season and points are compiled on a basis of 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 for votes from first place through 10th. A permanent trophy will be presented by UPI to the top team in the country at the end of the season.

On a point basis, Duke received 285, Loyola got 194, West Virginia 178 and Oregon State 141. Mississippi State was sixth in the balloting, followed by Illinois, Kentucky, New York University, Arizona State, Ohio State, Indiana, Dayton and Southern California.

SCORES TRIPLE
PIMLICO, Md. (UPI) — Apprentice jockey Ron Ferraro lifted his 1962 total of winners to 338 Monday when he scored a triple at Pimlico. Ferraro won aboard Godessa ($3.40), King Of Swaps ($8.40) and Towson ($4.60).

ADD EXTRA RACES
MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — The State Racing Commission Monday authorized Florida's four racing tracks — Tropical, Gulfstream, Hialeah and Sunshine — to add an extra race on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Holidays.

Southern Cal Voted National Champions

NEW YORK (UPI) — Southern California wiped away eight years of West Coast frustration and gloom today, when the United Press International Board of Coaches named the Trojans the 1962 major college football champions in a runaway race.

The Trojans, first West Coast team to win the national title since UCLA edged Ohio State by seven points in 1954, were ranked No. 1 by 31 of the 33 coaches who comprise the UPI rating board, while Wisconsin, the team Southern California will meet in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, received only two votes for the top spot. Mississippi and Texas each drew one first-

Old Ref Sez So

The Old Ref thinks the Amarillo bunch of sports writers did a fair job of picking the all-district team. He is especially pleased with their backfield choices—Kenny Hebert, Lee Johnson (Berger), Floyd Burks (Palo Duro), and Jerry Wilson (Berger).

It appears as if the All-America players and the professional ranks are parting company. An All-America rating in years past almost assured the highly touted college player of a bid from the pros. The pros drafted a larger number of All-America players in years past than they do nowadays.

The scouts are really beating the bushes and finding the real players of the game of football. (All the sports writers who select the All-Americans do a little scouting of their own—they "scout" the press releases from the various colleges telling them how great their own boys are as well as consult each other and then pool their prejudiced opinions. Once in a great while they even see the boys they select as All-America players in action.)

The American Football League drafted linemen as if they were going out of style. Few of the All-America players were drafted by the AFL, who in years past have invested large rolls of green backs in landing the big names of college football, especially backfield men.

In the season now underway, the rookie pros find few All-America selections among their numbers.

The fabled best college player in the nation, Terry Baker of Oregon State, was a 12th round draft choice of San Diego. Baker is the Heisman trophy winner.

The Old Ref sez the oddsmakers have their wires crossed on the bowl games. No matter how long the Old Ref stares into Lady Luck's finest Crystal Ball, he sees the same thing—Oklahoma beating Alabama, Southern Cal beating Wisconsin, Texas beating LSU, Missouri over Georgia Tech, and even Texas over LSU in the Cotton Bowl. The only game he agrees on with the oddsmakers is Mississippi over Arkansas. Someone is going to be surprised. (Probably the Old Ref as the oddsmakers don't miss many.)

The Old Ref thinks the Pampa Harvesters are about as fine a bunch of high school basketball players as he's watched in a long spell. They are plenty of good boys on the team so the Old Ref doesn't dare single out the players and heap too much praise on them. However, he sez that Wayne Kreis is as fine a shot as he's watched in a long time and that Keith Swanson hustles as much as any player he's watched on the hardwoods. They're all good.

The Old Ref sez a tough game coming up for the Harvesters. The Pampans will play Thomas Jefferson of Dallas in the Denton Tournament on Dec. 14. Thomas Jefferson is the team to beat for the state championship in Class AAAA, according to pre-season opinion.

Houston Leads Texas Independent Cagers

By United Press International
The University of Houston Cougars, possibly the best college basketball team in Texas, added another victory scalp to their belt whipping scrappy Nebraska, 61 Monday night.

In other top games involving Texas teams outside the Southwest Conference, Texas A&I beat Tuisity 66-57, Pan American edged Southwest Texas State, 60, McMurry romped past St. Mary's of San Antonio 97-77, Texas Western belted Wayland Baptist College, 81-41, and Stephen F. Austin came from behind to down Northwest Louisiana State College, 87 in overtime.

The Cougars, now 2-0 and making a strong bid for national honors, trailed the Cornhuskers 33-30 at halftime. But center Lyle Harger sparked a second-half rally that saw Houston go ahead to stay 40-38 on a driving layup by Tom Thompson.

Harger collected 20 points before leaving the game on his fourth foul halfway through the final period. Daryl Petsch made 23 points for the losers.

S. F. Austin tied the score in regulation time against Northwest Louisiana State in a fantastic comeback in which it trailed at one time by 17 points.

Keith Lowery and Jack Hicks then provided the winning spark in overtime to pull out the victory.

Texas Western, paced by 6-4 Jim Barnes, 25 point output, easily outclassed Wayland.

The Pampa Daily News

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the right of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Dependence Or Independence

Now that a month has passed, and the recent election excitement is beginning to subside, it might serve a worth while purpose to analyze again the nature of government. This is not, in any sense, to disparage or to cast discredit upon any of those persons who hold political office. Like their predecessors, the incumbents will do the best they can. We will assume their motivation is above reproach. We will accept, at least until or unless we have reason not to accept, that all present office holders will perform their jobs as best they know how.

But having made this assumption, what we wish to do is to examine the nature of the job itself. What is government? It is a collective, a mechanized instrumentality which has a virtual monopoly in the employment of force. It is, in fact, a group of men who sell retaliation to the inhabitants of their particular geographic territory, at monopolistic prices. It is a system whereby a monopoly of power can be employed collectively to obtain a monopoly of public policy or private behavior.

There is, philosophically speaking, no such thing as "good" government. This would be a contradiction in terms if considered in a philosophic or a moral framework. We have either bad government or we have worse government. This has to be true, regardless of the motives or the abilities of those who hold governmental power.

Why does this have to be true? Because even the passage of an obviously correct law as one which proscribes murder, will require a bureaucracy to function at all times to see to it, not that murders are not committed, but that if a murder is committed, some kind of retaliation can occur.

Assuming such a law were obeyed generally (and it is obeyed by the vast majority at all times), this would not cancel out the necessity for the bureaucracy. The bureaucracy would continue to exist, to draw salaries, to pontificate on the evil of murder and the virtue of non-murder, to write letters, to hire secretaries, to rent office space, to do all of the various and sundry things bureaucracies must do in order to justify their existence.

It follows, as a matter of course, that when men grow dependent upon the state, they are not at the same time independent of the state. Equally, if they manifest the character necessary to live their own lives and to make their own decisions they cannot and must not brook the management of the state in all their affairs.

In this respect, all that the recent hubbub has established is that there are millions in the nation who believe they can trust the state and, thus, what we will see in the future is precisely more of what we have seen in the past.

Corruption Of Words

It is to be regretted that so many of the expressive and useful words in common usage have been given political connotations. Today, with the growth of politics and massive dependence on the state, almost anything a person cares to say can be given a political slant.

Let's take a few of the words in ordinary usage and we can establish what we mean. Liberal: Here is a word denoting a person who supports liberty. At least that is the meaning the word had originally. With that meaning, to be a liberal was to be a person filled with that nobility of character upon which love of liberty depends.

But today, one particular political party likes to call itself the party of liberals. The meaning has been warped, however, for true liberalism is not a political derivation. In politics, the liberal is someone who is generous with the other fellow's money. He is opposed to the individual liberty a person should have to manage his own affairs.

Conservative: This word denotes a person who is cautious, slow to change, thrifty, one who tends to avoid risks. With politics added, the conservative is considered somewhat bellicose, opposed to progress, reactionary.

Freedom: The word relates to a condition in human experience in which men are out from under the domination and physical control of other men. Add politics and what do you get? The idea grows that freedom is the same as license. Let men be free to do what they

The Doctor Says:

Early Treatment & Must In Cirrhosis of Liver

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT Q—What is cirrhosis of the liver? Is it cancerous? How long can you live with it if you take treatments?

A—With cirrhosis of the liver there is a general damaging of liver cells. They are replaced by scar tissue, causing the liver to shrink. There are different types of cirrhosis with different causes. The most common types are those due to chronic infections and chronic heavy drinking. Cirrhosis is usually associated with deep jaundice and an accumulation of fluid in the abdomen. It is in no way related to cancer, although cancer of the liver may also cause jaundice and fluid.

Cirrhosis is serious. It indicates some underlying disease. How long a person can live with it depends on how successful his doctor is in finding and removing the cause. Early treatment is important.

Q—My parents are old and I would like to visit them. The distance is five hours by jet. A few years ago I had a nervous breakdown due to uncontrollable fears. I have recovered but I am not strong enough to make a 40-hour train trip. I have never traveled by air and I am afraid that five hours of panic would send me back to the hospital. Would you advise me to go? Would a tranquilizer help to overcome my fears?

A—Airplanes have become such a common mode of travel that it is strange to find anyone afraid to fly. Planes are used not only to transport well persons but also persons with almost every kind of illness imaginable. If such persons can fly, so can you.

It is true that some persons are killed in airplane accidents but these accidents are surprisingly few—when you consider the number of persons who fly every day and the number of miles flown. The accident rates seem worse because the accidents make headlines whenever they happen in any part of the world. Don't forget that some people are killed in their beds by hurricanes and tornadoes but I don't know of anyone so foolish as to refuse to sleep in a bed on that account.

Flying is such a wonderful experience that no one should deny himself at least one such trip. I have known persons in the past who were a little anxious about going aloft the first time who now would not think of traveling any other way.

I would certainly not advise relying on a tranquilizer to nullify your fears. Rather, I would advise that you study the casualness of your fellow passengers as you go aboard then get a window seat and watch the houses get smaller and the clouds come nearer.

If you drue yourself into a stupor, you will miss all this and won't know what a wonderful experience you might have had. Seasickness is another matter. You can get the same kind of motion sickness on a plane but even this is not as common as seasickness. Furthermore, your doctor can give you some pills that will prevent motion sickness if taken according to his direction.

Please send your questions and comments to Dr. Wayne G. Brandstad, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstad cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

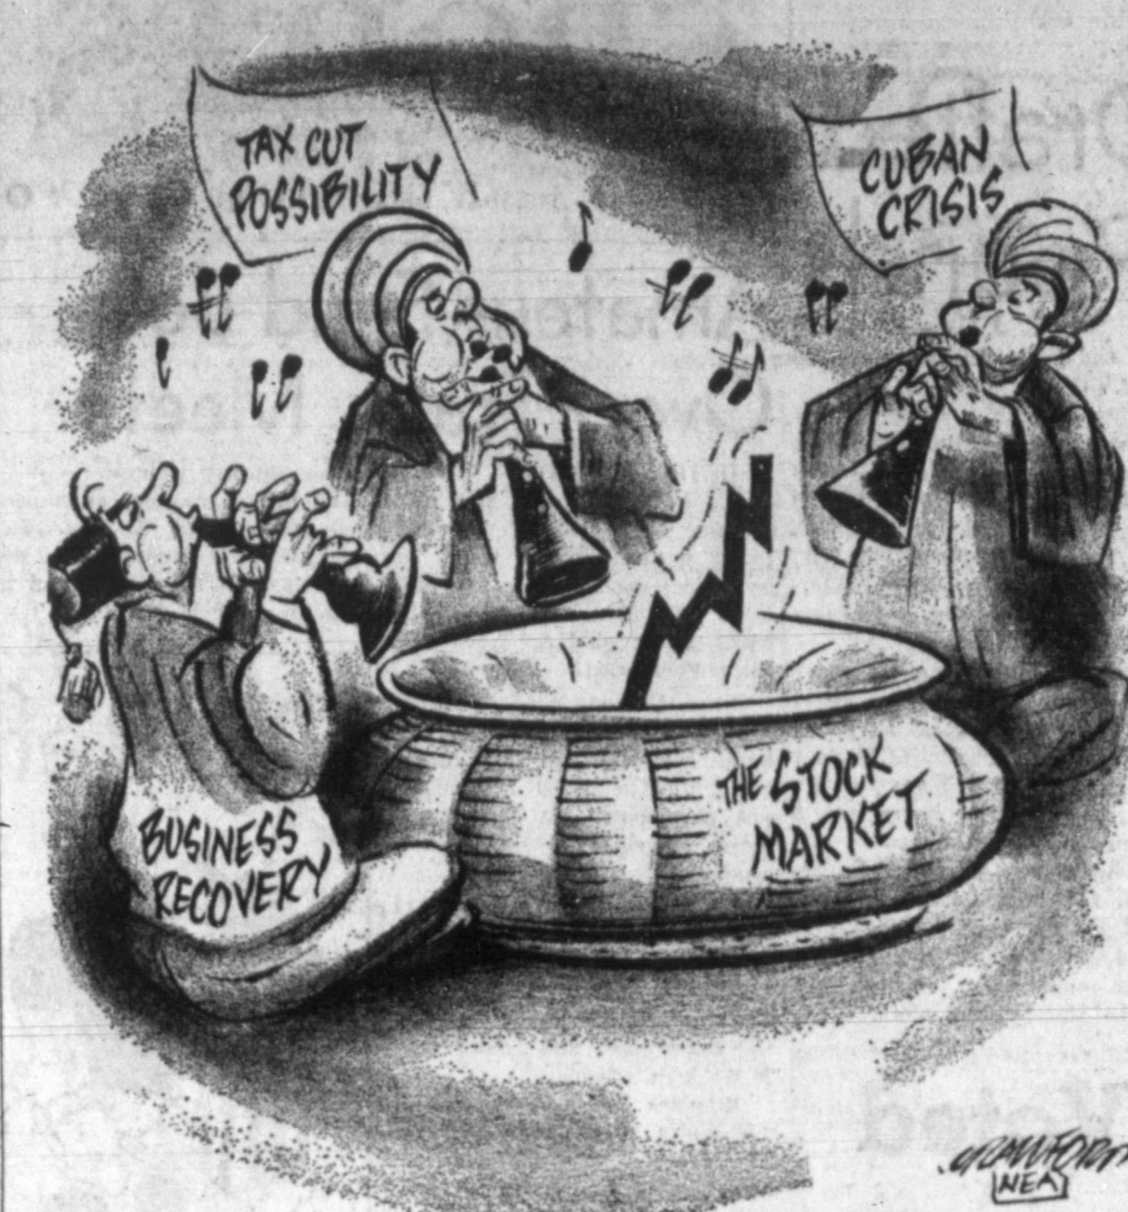

Democracy: This is a word which, in an ideal sense, is supposed to relate to individual choices in nations which practice the so-called democratic process. But when you add politics, as we do in this country, democracy has come to mean the wiping out of the rights of minorities. Let a majority be discovered, and the minority or various minorities are considered to have no rights at all.

Rights: This is a word which found its best definition in the Declaration of Independence. Here it was construed that all men had equal rights and that there was no such things as a special "divine" right accruing only to kings and nobility. Rights were viewed as something stemming from the nature of things as they are. All men have equal rights which precede the formation of any state.

But with the admission of politics to the term, rights have now been construed to consist, not of natural attributes which precede government, but rather rights are whatever the government says they are. We speak glibly of "state's rights" or of "voting rights" when, in point of fact, a state is an artificial entity having no rights at all; and voting is a privilege reserved to those persons who by age and registration requirements are legally enabled to exercise the franchise.

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markey

Almost any school boy can tell you that Brooklyn is part of New York. It has the largest population of any of the five boroughs that constitute New York City, which it joined in 1898. It is always referred to as the City of Churches and the last count listed 1460 churches, synagogues and other houses of worship. So the other day we took a day off and visited many parts of Brooklyn and found more than a score of new churches and civic projects under construction. It has a population of almost 2,700,000, which is greater than the combined population of Baltimore, Cleveland and New Orleans. The world famous Brooklyn Bridge and the first suspension type in the United States recently had a complete face-lifting. The trolley cars and electric trains disappeared some years ago and the structure is now used almost entirely by motor vehicles. There is still a pedestrian walk but few folks use it except for a Sunday stroll in good weather. The famous Brooklyn Dodgers of National League fame derived their name from the numerous trolley cars which the passengers had to dodge at each end of the bridge. The trolley and elevated trains disappeared with the extension of the subway system which connects Brooklyn with all parts of Manhattan. The Reformed Protestant Church of Flatbush, built in 1796, is the oldest one in the borough. The original church was built in 1654 under the direction of Peter Stuyvesant.

TODAY'S QUESTION: Wonder who originated the custom of designating world wars by Roman numerals? Of course, it wasn't until the second one broke out in 1939 that the first one was called World War I. But just who established the practice? . . . When the Korean rumpus busted loose in 1950 and Mr. Truman, called it only a "police action," some newspaper editor (in the midst, as we recall) dubbed it World War 2½. And that was a pretty fair evaluation of it, at that.

Country editor speaking: "No matter how dark things get, there is always one consolation. Life can never be as bad for us as it is for the heroines of the soap operas."

More than a quarter century ago radio's top-flight stars refused to have any part in delivering a commercial or even mentioning the sponsoring product. That's when the most popular announcers such as Graham McNamee and Jimmy Wallingford came into the big dough. . . And how many remember Paul Douglas, now a big name in the movies, when he was top announcer for a popular brand of cigarettes (Chesterfield)? He went from radio to the Broadway stage and then to the Hollywood films. . . Television changed the uppity attitude of the stars and also the format. Today you have Don Wilson integrated in the Jack Benny show, and others.

AFTER ELECTION Administration Discovers $7 Billion Plus Deficit

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph. D.

Exactly one week after the election, economists of the administration discovered the government is going in the red by more than seven billion dollars. Prior to the election both major parties managed to keep this information to themselves but make no mistake about it—leaders of both parties knew what was going on.

It is interesting to note that early news reports on this condition place most of the blame on the Congress for not passing legislation designed to further increase the deficit. This is the philosophy of the socialist conglomerate; if you go in the red it's because you did not spend yourself out of the red. It is as logical as the thinking of a badly retarded child. When the citizens who employ the bunglers resist the hog wash of the confidence game peddlers, the socialist conglomerate always resorts to name calling and the favorite phrase is the masses are asses. Of course they are right, if we were anything else we would have done something about our enslavement by our own government long before this.

You may have wondered during the campaigning why certain glaring weaknesses of the present administration did not become major issues — why a seven billion dollar deficit was not mentioned until a week after the election. It may have happened before but prior to the 1956 election, leaders of the two major parties held a confab. During the conference they decided which issues should be aired during the campaign and which should be ignored. The amount of foreign aid and the recipients, to a degree, were suitable issues. The entire immorality of stealing from Americans for the support of foreign governments was ignored. The methods of administering social security might be discussed but the bankruptcy of the social security system was not considered to be a good subject for argument since all concerned were equally guilty.

During the just finished campaigning, the John Birch Society seemed to be on the hot of spot.

baseball games some 50 years ago. You'd pay 25 or 50 cents admission and sit and watch the diagram of a baseball field set up perpendicularly on the stage — about 20 feet square. As the play-by-play came in via a telegraph wire off-stage, a fellow with a long pointer, a ping-pong ball on his tip, would show to what part of the field the ball had traveled and describe the play. Golly, but that was mighty exciting in those days! . . . Another enterprise which passed with the advent of radio and TV were the thrilling lectures by heroes of World War I in which they recounted their experiences to enthralled audiences in the big city auditoriums. . . One big timer in that line was Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey whose vivid two-hour spiel was titled "Over the Top." He'd fill such places as New York's Carnegie Hall — and come back for repeat engagements of the same lecture.

When FDR made a pronouncement which was picked up as being worth repeating, "There is nothing to fear except fear itself," he forgot the punch line: And government will provide the fear. For thirty years our government has been doing exactly that — providing the fear with which it can batter the minds of its employees into further subjugation. Today government frightens itself!

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Over Quarter Million Cubans Sick From Eating Diseased Soviet Beef—Hoof-Mouth Epidemic Feared

WASHINGTON — Fidel Castro is painfully finding out that it pays to look a gift horse squarely in the mouth before accepting it — especially when it comes from the Soviet Union.

Two shipsloads of disease-ridden meat, rushed to Cuba from East Germany and Russia at the height of the U.S. naval quarantine in November, left more than a quarter of a million Cubans suffering from severe food poisoning.

Several hundred, including a number of Castro's militia on invasion alert, reportedly died after eating the Soviet beef and horsemeat which was infected with the dread hoof-and-mouth disease.

This near-epidemic, first revealed by Cuban refugees, has been confirmed by U.S. intelligence officials assigned to watch this developing health threat.

They report that Cuban health authorities are alarmed over the growing possibility that the dread disease will spread throughout the island and infect the livestock.

Already, there is evidence this may be occurring in some isolated rural areas. In several cases where Cuban families were warned about the diseased meat, they fed it to their livestock instead of destroying it. If these animals aren't segregated and slaughtered immediately, they may infect all the livestock in Cuba and also the surrounding islands.

Mexico suffered such a tragedy in 1949 when a prize bull, infected with the disease, was shipped to Mexico as a presidential gift from Argentina and spread the disease throughout that country.

Agriculture Department records show that it took nearly 1,000 U.S.-Mexican officials more than eight years, and cost the U.S. over $150 million, to wipe out that epidemic and keep the disease from spreading to the U.S.

A RUSSIAN PROBLEM — According to a U.S. intelligence estimate, the seriousness of the hoof-and-mouth problem is indicated by the numerous meetings Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan held with Cuban health and agricultural officials during his recent 23-day stay on the island.

One intelligence tally shows that Mikoyan, with two Russian veterinarians, conferred with health officials at least a dozen times while having only eight known meetings with Castro about Cuba's new Communist role in the Caribbean.

Significantly, Mikoyan even visited one of the farm areas where Cuban peasants had reportedly fed the diseased meat to a large herd of livestock and swine.

Since Mikoyan's departure, Castro's Communist regime has issued a steady stream of directives curbing the handling, and feeding, and ordering the isolation of the diseased livestock, although no public mention of the dread hoof-and-mouth disease has been made.

If this disease spreads through Cuba — as it has in East Germany — U.S. officials believe that Castro will have to publicly discuss it in order to check the disease.

So far, Castro has suppressed all public mention of the widespread food poisoning, although the serious effects of the tainted meat upon thousands is generally known throughout Cuba.

The official silence was believed ordered by Castro to avoid embarrassing the Soviet over the incident, since the Cuban government had earlier announced that the meat was being sent to Russia — as a personal gift to the Soviet Communist party.

The two shipsloads were among the 63 Soviet bloc ships that passed through the "limited" U.S. naval blockade of Cuba. Another ship that went through the quarantine was the self-propelled floating crane Pablo Sanovial. This 125-ton crane is being assembled at the Hacendado docks in Havana harbor. It will be ready for use later this month.

WATCHING CUBA—The strange new private view of Cuba which State Department policy-makers are circulating goes like this: "Any effective response to Communism in Cuba requires more analysis of thinking people still on the island than of those in exile outside. It requires sophistication to realize that Cuban Communism may produce another leader, other than Fidel Castro, that we can 'live with' . . . Representative Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, is telling his members that he plans to set up a special subcommittee on captive nations in January to check on Cuba. He will give Cuban refugees a forum to keep members of Congress informed of what is going on inside that Soviet-ruled nation.

Soviet geologists are now working on a determination of uranium sources in more than 20 undeveloped countries, including Cuba where an estimated 50 to 60 specialists are at work. . . Rumania has agreed to construct a cement factory in Santiago de Cuba that would have a capacity 400,000 tons per year. . . Castro is sending agents into other Latin American countries at the rate about 200 a month. . . A brigade of 1,600 Chinese military technicians are still in Cuba training Latin Americans in guerrilla warfare. Arnulfo Parada Tovar, the former leader of the Guatemalan Students Association, is identified by Guatemalan government officials as the key contact between the Communist regime in Cuba and the revolting Guatemalan airforce officials.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — I hope you will find time to write to the National Broadcasting Co., New York, N.Y., and tell the gentlemen that life has been just one black day after another since they cancelled "It's a Man's World."

This will serve several purposes. First, it will increase the efficiency of mail-opening secretaries as the Christmas rush nears; you can be sure NBC will appreciate this. Second, it may help give deserved Scrooge complexes to the handful of executives who summarily axed the very good Monday night series on the basis of old and early ratings.

Third, though resurrection of the show on NBC-TV is not likely, a continuing protest as big as the one thus far could help land it in syndication or perhaps even on another network. And fourth, maybe nothing will come of it all—but "maybe" is always a good enough reason in itself to raise some Cain. It's good for the soul.

NBC Gets Surprise

The usual expectation at the networks is that there is always a furor when a respected program is cancelled, but that it is soon forgotten and business is as usual. This time, however, NBC had a surprise.

The protest has been such that the weekly show business newspaper, "Variety," published in New York, reported "nervousness" among "NBC brass." It added: "Various execs acted as if the heat was on from out-of-town critics (critics) to keep 'World' going and this made the web reluctant to concretize cancellation proceedings" — though it finally did.

As an indication of audience response, "Man's World" producer Peter Tewksbury wrote to this reviewer that a single column in this space brought to NBC in one day more than 200 letters, "plus 85 telegrams."

This was just a start, of course. I suggest you keep writing. Let those responsible know that you are there, and that you demand to be heard and reckoned with. For if you don't, these gentlemen, who make their decisions automatically on the basis of questionable figures worked out by someone else, will have even less consideration than they have now for the human and creative elements of their entertainment.

All You Can Do

Right now, that is all you can do, but it is important not to abdicate your role out of frustration. It is true the blind dependence on ratings and the system of sponsor control are cold-blooded—but the day will come when pay-TV and allied inventions are in effect, and it is good to remind the present czars that there is a vocal and informed audience ready to walk out on them the minute a solid alternative is available, unless it is given some respect. Money talks.

When you write in, by the way, you might ask NBC why it did so little to publicize "It's a Man's World"—a situation so infuriating to those involved that a girl in the cast, Jan Norris, volunteered money of her own for the purpose. I think I know the answer: I am convinced some of the powers with fancy titles really don't understand it and so wrote it off. Why don't you explain to the poor fellows it's all about real people, like those in the audience they've lost contact with?

Quotes From The News
By United Press International

WASHINGTON—Federal Communications Commission Chairman Newton M. Minow, calling for further improvements in television programming:

"There could be many more higher levels to be reached in television, particularly for young people . . ."

NEW YORK—Perfume manufacturer Edouard "Coudand" warning against perfume counterfeiters:

"If you are offered a bargain on top name perfumes by a taxi driver, elevator operator, door-to-door salesman or cut-rate store—don't buy. You'll be buying counterfeit or watered perfume at best."

UNITED NATIONS—Secretary General Thant, on the U.N. role in the Cuban crisis:

"There may be many who may wish for a more complete and comprehensive solution of the Cuban crisis, but in this imperfect world, we have, at least for the moment, to accept less than perfect solutions."

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Arthur V. Weibel, president of U. S. Steel's Tennessee Coal & Iron Division:

"We must sell to certain economic theorists, political leaders and the American people in general the idea that profit is not an evil thing but rather is the very lifeblood of industrial progress and economic prosperity."

Dear Abby

him to someone who does. And it's time you started to train your husband. . .

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are going to a very swanky formal affair at the best hotel in town. His firm is putting on the party. My problem is that the boss' wife does not have a fur stole and my husband is afraid that if I wear mine, it will not look right. Should I borrow a cloth evening coat for the occasion?

MRS. J. Certainly not! Wear your fur stole. (Maybe the boss' wife will borrow a fur stole for the occasion.)

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.
