Colon Suggests Blacklist If Ads Divulge Secrets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William P. Anderson, D-N.M., has requested that the Pentagon blacklist any contractor whose advertising divulges vital nuclear information.

Anderson made the proposal last week at a meeting of the House Atomic Energy Committee.

The censored record of the hearing was made public Tuesday.

Anderson produced an advertisement which he said "contained technical information which could not be released."

The names of the company and the publication involved were taken out of the hearing record.

"I think one of the effective ways of dealing with it would be to have the department of defense to cancel any contract they may have and put them on the blacklist for at least five years," Anderson said. "That is the only way you can ever bring them to comply."

Chairman Chet Holifield, D-Calif., said the advertisement was a serious matter. "I think it is giving aid and comfort to the enemy," he said.

Anderson and Vice Adm. Hyman Rickover, head of the Navy's nuclear propulsion program, also expressed alarm over permitting foreign visitors to see some components of the nuclear plants board atomic-powered submarines.

"The chief of naval operations permits foreigners to tour our naval nuclear propulsion plants on the basis that a casual visit does not give away any technical information," Rickover said. "Our navy officials may consider these visits casual, but you can bet that the foreign visitors don't view them casually."

"All the evidence is that foreign visitors view these visits just as do—an unparalleled opportunity for them to get valuable technical information that they can get no other way," Rickover said.

Physician Saves Baby

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A Palo Alto physician saved the life of a 12-week-old baby with pen chest heart massage performed in the makeshift surroundings of a household kitchen Tuesday.

The infant, Orian Merler, had stopped breathing for nearly five minutes when Dr. Jack Remington arrived at the Palo Alto home of Mr. and Mrs. Esio Merler.

The physician quickly opened the baby's chest with a knife and massaged his tiny heart until an ambulance and resuscitator crew arrived.

The baby was in critical condition today, according to Palo Alto Standard Hospital.

Causes Explosion

CORNITH, Miss. (UPI) — A firecracker triggered an explosion at a gas station here Tuesday night injuring six youngsters.

Authorities said the firecracker apparently ignited gas, either in a car or in tanks at the station.

The car was heavily damaged and two of the youths were listed in serious condition.

East German Families Escape On Christmas

BERLIN (UPI)—Two East German families, including four children, dodged Communist gunfire in an armor-plated bus today and crashed through barriers to freedom in West Berlin.

Eight machine pistol bullets fired by Communist guards hit the bus, but the only injury was a glass splinter cut received by the driver.

The escape was so carefully planned that the families brought along their belongings, including a living room clock, five sofa cushions and a doll carriage.

The bus, owned by one of the men in the party, smashed through three barriers on the main highway to Berlin and made it safely to the U. S. Army checkpoint on the edge of the Western sector of the city.

Delayed by Freeze

At a West Berlin refugee camp later, the escapees said they had planned to flee on Christmas Eve but had to defer the venture because the bus radiator froze. They said they stayed up all night to thaw the radiator.

As part of the plan, the refugees placed on the rear of the 30-seat bus a sign reading "repair shop car" to make police think it was going on a repair trip.

They said the Communists' vigilance apparently was relaxed over the holiday because the only

Thieves Busy Here Christmas

Burglars and petty thieves who ignored the spirit of the Christmas holiday broke into three Pampa service stations and three automobiles Christmas Eve and Christmas night.

Their total loot was estimated between $150 and $200 in cash and stolen articles.

Heaviest hit was the service station of Ogden & Son, 301 W. Foster. Paul Gercken, an employee, discovered the break-in when he opened up at 7:15 a.m. today.

Police Captain Denny Roan, who investigated the case, said the burglars gained entrance by breaking out a south rear window and crawling through it. Once inside they used a crow bar to break a panel from a door leading to the main store and office.

Captain Roan said the burglars ripped the front off a cash register and took $25, looted another cash register of $25, pried open a coke machine and got $3.25, took an undetermined amount of change from a cigarette machine, stole a $19.95 transistor radio, two ladies' watches worth $23.95, and a clock-radio valued at $20.95.

Another burglary was discovered at 10:30 a.m. Christmas Day at the Roberts & Rhoten service station, 623 W. Foster, where the loot consisted of $4 worth of candy and an undetermined amount of change from a peanut vending

The Allen-Scott Report

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
WASHINGTON — Premier Khrushchev is boldly continuing to strengthen Russian military forces in Cuba right under the cameras of our low-flying reconnaissance planes.

Five Soviet generals, including a top military expert in the handling and launching of strategic nuclear rockets, have quietly set up permanent headquarters on the island.

The names, ranks and military commands of these "elite" Red generals — information gathered for President Kennedy's inner ring of Cuban advisers but suppressed from the public — are:

General C. O. Slazenko, commander-in-chief of all Soviet military forces in Cuba.

Colonel General N. I. Gusev, chief of staff of air force units.

Major General Fedor Mikheylovich Bendonesko, chief of staff of army mechanized groups and supporting units.

Lieutenant General Pavel B. Dankevich, chief of staff of strategic rocket forces.

Lieutenant General Sergey F. Ushakov, chief of staff of ground-str (SA-2) anti-aircraft missiles.

These "elite" officers, under the command of General Slazenko, are in charge of an estimated 25,000 to 33,000 Russian combat troops, military technicians and

Assassination Plot Misses In Tunisia

TUNIS (UPI)—Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba said today an officer in his personal bodyguard led a plot to assassinate him in bed a few days ago.

"I owe my life to a veritable miracle," he said.

The 59-year-old pro-Western strongman, who has ruled for the past five years, said that while he was "preoccupied with the interests of the people, treason was all around me."

In officially confirming for the first time that a plot against the state involved a plan to murder him, Bourguiba identified the bodyguard involved as Kebab Mehrez.

Knew Password

With knowledge of the password, Mehrez was prepared to lead the assassins to his bedside, the president charged.

Bourguiba addressed the third congress of the Tunisian women's union while vacationing in Le Kef. He did not explain how the plot was uncovered or what has happened to the plotters.

Informed sources said 30 to 100 persons are under arrest and police are attempting to track down another 30 civilians and military men.

"They wanted to wipe me out before I left Le Kef," Bourguiba said.

"Why are there people who are dissatisfied?" he asked.

Careful Planning

"Our regime is not a police regime. There were meetings and contacts of which we knew nothing. Former goatherders were getting ready to become ministers."

Christmas Is Quiet In Top O' Texas

With the exception of a few burglaries and thefts, Pampa had a merry and uneventful Christmas.

Police Chief Jim Conner said those who felt they must celebrate with "liquid cheer" apparently kept the celebration indoors and on the quiet side.

There were no Christmas Day arrests for intoxication. Prisoners who had been held on minor offenses were released to be with their families on the holiday.

Sheriff's deputies reported an unusually quiet Christmas Eve and Day, as did members of the Highway Patrol.

None of the three law enforcement agencies reported any traffic mishaps of a serious nature.

"Quiet is the word for the holidays so far," Deputy Sheriff Ed Schneider said, "and it can even be spelled with capital letters."

Deputy Sheriff Shirley Nichols went one step further by stating that it was "as quiet as a mouse" (See MOUSE, Page 2)

Discussion Of Charter Changes On City's Agenda

Discussion of proposed changes in Pampa's City Charter will probably top the agenda at tonight's meeting of the City Commission in City Hall.

Also on the agenda, according to City Manager Harold Schmitzer, is a resolution to accept paving recently completed on Crawford and E. Kingsmill streets.

Tonight's meeting at 7 o'clock will be the regular weekly session which was postponed from yesterday because of the Christmas holiday.

Russian Vessel Loading Reds In Havana's Harbor

HAVANA (UPI) — While the American freighter African Pilot was being prepared Sunday to take on 1,000 Florida-bound family members of the newly-liberated Cuban invasion prisoners, hundreds of young Russian men, women and children were being taken in long truck and bus convoys to a nearby dock where they boarded a Russian passenger liner.

She is the Admiral Najimov, the former German steamship Berin.

The Russian vehicles blocked traffic along Havana's harborside highway.

Cuban officials had not announced that great numbers of Russians were to leave the island, but trucks loaded with rolled blankets, cardboard suitcases and boxes and duffel bags pulled up alongside the white-hulled liner with the hammer and sickle painted on its twin funnels.

The Russians rode silently through the streets, virtually ignored by Cubans out for an afternoon stroll. Women rode on wooden seats in back of the Russian-built heavy-duty trucks. Several held tiny children in their arms.

It was not known how many passengers were being taken aboard the 15,000-ton liner, built 37 years ago in Germany. She has been berthed in Havana for the last two weeks.

Russians preparing to leave stood around the wide streets patiently awaiting their turn to board ship.

White Christmas A Very Cold One, Too

Pampans were warming up a wee bit today as the sun came through to break the Christmas Day icy grip of winter. Pampa, in common with most of the northern half of Texas, had a white Christmas and a cold one.

The mercury hit ten degrees above zero here this morning for the coldest mark of the current winter.

The forecast, issued just before noon, calls for fair skies and a little warmer temperatures this afternoon and tonight with considerable cloudiness tomorrow. Thursday, it will turn a little cooler still Thursday afternoon. The high for today was expected to be in the mid 30s and with the low for tonight near 15. High for tomorrow is expected to be in the mid 30s.

Fifteen to 25 miles per hour winds turned yesterday's cold into the real bone-chilling variety as snow flurries flitted intermittently during the day.

Although there was hardly enough snow for children to try out Christmas sleds, Pampa did have a white Christmas morning, with slick streets where the snow patches had been packed down and iced over by a Christmas Eve mist.

According to unofficial sources, Pampa got about .01 inch moisture out of the snow that fell.

The few filling stations that were open Christmas Day reported a fairly good run on anti-freeze solutions.

Autos left out in the cold over the past two nights wheezed and puffed as motorists tried to start the engines this morning and some refused to respond at all. It was that cold.

Police reported that there were only five traffic accidents reported inside the city during the past five days and only one of them resulted in a minor injury.

"Motorists seemed to be using particular care in their driving," Police Chief Jim Conner said, "especially Monday afternoon and Christmas Eve when traffic was the heaviest it has been in Pampa for a long time."

The mercury plunged to zero in the Texas Panhandle today, but holiday motorists for the most part got a break when threats of widespread snow, sleet and freezing rain failed to materialize.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said the coldest outbreak of the season would be followed by still another surge of frigid Arctic air by the week end, following a brief warming trend.

At daybreak today, occasional light snow was reported at Lubbock, freezing drizzle fell at Junction and Alpine and Abilene reported traces of snow on the ground, but first reports said virtually all highways were clear of ice.

South Texas Dampened

Rain was falling along the upper Texas coast, where temperatures were still in the 40s and much of South Texas reported drizzle conditions.

Secret Red Offer Bared In Congo

WASHINGTON (SpI) — A secret Russian offer of weapons is the reason the U.S. is rushing a military mission to the strife-torn Congo.

Premier Cyrille Adoula of the central Congolese government is the source of word on the covert Soviet proposal to immediately supply his government with the arms it deems necessary to smash the opposition of Katanga President Moise Tshombe.

According to Adoula's account to the U.S. embassy in Leopoldville, the Soviet ambassador sought him out and offered unlimited military backing. Adoula told U.S. officials he did not want to accept Red aid, but is in dire need of weapons to strengthen his ineffectual forces.

He warned that unless he gets prompt help from the West, he will have no alternative but to accept the Soviet's offer.

One reason given by Adoula for this is that he is threatened with critical defections from his army. He claimed an entire battalion defected to Katanga several weeks ago after its planes bombed an Adoula stronghold.

So far the U.S. has provided Adoula only with some ambulances, tents and radio equipment. Virtually no arms have gone to the central Congo government.

Following this disquieting report from Leopoldville, President Kennedy decided to rush a military mission to the Congo for a first-hand survey to determine what action this country should take in the explosive situation.

Indian Refugees Get Last Dollar Of U.S. Sergeant

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—A 55-year-old infantry sergeant spent Christmas at the wheel of his car, driving back to Ft. Riley, Kan., with his "little bit of business" arranged.

For Sgt. Steve Bero, the business was giving his last dollar to provide good cheer for Indian refugees who fled Communist Chinese invaders.

Bero walked into a Columbus bank on Christmas Eve, and asked that his $1,000 savings be sent to India.

"It isn't much, but it's all I've got. If I could give them my heart, I would," he said.

Check To Envoys

Bero, who came to Columbus on $58 he borrowed from a loan company, arranged for the bank to send a $1,000 cashier's check to John Kenneth Galbraith, U.S. ambassador to India.

He had a bank secretary type a letter stating simply: "...The money is to be passed on to Indian relief agencies to help those who lack even the barest necessities of life."

Bero, who is now serving with the 28th Infantry, at Ft. Riley, said the $1,000 was the residue of a sum he had saved when he was stationed at Ft. Benning here in 1958. He had previously made donations from his savings to the American Red Cross and to evangelist Billy Graham.

Ranchers Enjoyed A Successful Year

(UPI Year Ender)
By WILLIAM CLAYTON
United Press International
AUSTIN (UPI) — For the rich agricultural belt of Texas in the Rio Grande Valley, 1962 was one setback after another, but in many other areas, farmers acclaimed the year as "excellent."
Such was the patchwork pattern that often characterizes a year's look at agriculture in a big state, commissioner John White said today.
"For most Texas farmers, 1962 has been moderately successful, for a fortunate few it has been outstanding, but for some others it has been tragic," White said.
Texas ranchers and rice farmers enjoyed outstanding success.
More Livestock Fed
The state's most significant agricultural achievement in 1962 was a "tremendous increase in numbers of livestock on feed in Texas," White said.
Texas is known historically as a leader in range production of stocker cattle, but other states have grabbed off much of the feedlot operation. Not so this year, White said.
He said this year Texas showed a 47 per cent increase in feedlot operations.
White said the trend toward increased feeder production is partially caused by the readily available feed supplies and the state's "rapidly expanding metropolitan markets."
Rice Farmers Recover
Texas rice farmers made one of the year's most dramatic comebacks from adversity, which is a factor farmers must fight endlessly.
When Hurricane Carla had an unwelcome date with Texas farmers in 1961, she hit the coast just as the rice fields were ripe for harvest. The big wind tore up the rice hopes for that year. But farmers came back strongly, and built a 1962 crop that is estimated at 15.8 million hundredweight.
That is an all-time high rice crop for the state.
In many of the grain operations, farmers had moderate to good success.
The state's wheat crop at 43.7 million bushels is a far cry from the 84.8 million harvested last year, but the loss is mostly to reduced acreage. In many areas, yield has also dropped, but not alarmingly considering that the 1961 yield was "spectacular," White said.
Grain Sorghums Decline
In grain sorghums, where Texas leads the nation, a 41-bushel yield per acre on the average gave Texas farmers 207,132,000 bushels. This, too, was below the 1961 harvest, but the picture is far from disappointing, White said. The crop was still above average.
The year 1962 was "a year of tragedy" for Texas citrus farmers. Throughout the Rio Grande Malley groves, trees whose limbs had been stripped by Carla suffered more from a killing freeze swept the citrus belt of Texas in January.
"Less than 3 per cent of the normal crop is expected during the winter harvest," White said. "And little more than that can be looked for during the three-year minimum recovery period from effects of the freeze."
The Valley farmers turned to winter vegetables to maintain some income after the citrus loss. A freeze in Florida created a boom market in December.

X-Ray System Is Studying Effects On Electronics From Radiation

ALBUQUERQUE (UPI)—A 600,000-volt pulse X-ray system at Kirtland Air Force Base is being used to study the effects of transient radiation on electronics.
Disrupting, sometimes damaging effects, are produced when a relatively small amount of transient radiation—such as that from nuclear propulsion system—passes through an electronic circuit.
At Kirtland's new Nuclear Effects Research Laboratory, X-ray experiments are under way to determine just what effect transient radiation has on circuits and other basic electronic components.
Men such as Airman 2-C Paul Kowieski, of Thorp, Wis. care for the powerful X-ray system. One of his assignments is to check the main spark gap on the $28,000 device to make certain the system will not release its X-rays until an experiment is ready.
He can vary the amount of radiation during an experiment either by using absorption shielding or by varying the distance between electronics circuits under test and the tube.
The amounts of radiation used in experiments are often so small that they would have no effect on a human. Yet the same radiation level can upset delicate electronic circuits.
By exposing part of an electronics system to the X-rays and then feeding data into analog and digital computers, the Air Force learns the effects of radiation pulses on complete electronic systems.
One known effect, caused when radiation is delivered at a rapid rate, is induced currents which cause extraneous voltages in circuit—sometimes producing permanent damage.
Another effect could be a change of the physical make-up of material in an electronic component because of high induced currents in circuits.
The X-ray system, provided by Field Emission Corp. of McMinnville, Ore., generates high energy X-rays in the gamma radiation energy range. It produces about 100 million roentgens per second at the face of the generating tube.
Of the approximately 200 species of ducks, geese and swans in the world, 56 are found in the United States.

New Decorations Give Lefors Civic Center Beauty

LEFORS (Sp) — Lefors Lions Club and Lefors Art and Civic Club combined their efforts to make the civic center a place of beauty during the Christmas and holiday season.
Complete new decorations were purchased for the interior of the civic center in the theme of pink, silver and white.
The traditional Christmas tree occupies one corner of the large receiving room of the civic center. The decorations all have a pink hue mixed with silver, and highlighted with pink electric bulbs.
The piano is covered in a white snow effect with a candle standing in heavily flocked greenery, and a bowl of pink and silver fruit in the low fruit bowl, completing the setting.
A snowball snowman guards the goodies as they come from the kitchen. He is flanked by two pink glittered bells, and hung with them on pink ornaments rope.
Tinsel ropes are hung at the windows, which are topped with pink aluminum headings, with pink glittered bells hung at the rope center.
The door is bedecked with a pink wreath featuring silver ornaments and placed on a white background.
The center pole is wrapped in white and entwined with a medium size pink rope, made of glistening plastic.
Mrs. Earl Atkinson and Mrs. Dunny Goode were in charge of the decorations and selected the theme to be used. Other members of the Art and Civic Club and Lions club members assisted with the actual decorating.

Former Member Of Olympic Ski Team Operates School

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Penny Pitou, a Yankee doodle dame who starred on the U.S. Olympic ski team when she was just 17, could rest on her laurels now that she's 24—and the champ days are over.
She could spend the days dusting her trophies and reading the stories about her skill on the slopes, but she doesn't.
"Once in love with skiing," she said in an interview, "you stay in love with skiing even after the competition phase ends for you. And that means you keep skiing."
On the ski slopes at Gunstock, New Hampshire, Miss Pitou operates a ski school with her husband, Egon Zimmermann, a one-time Austrian ski champ.
Ski Home
When they finish the day's teaching, they ski home together to spend the evening with their son—Christian, four months old.
Miss Pitou, in New York to boost skiing, said the family's next medals in Olympic competition will have to be earned by Christian—if he proves to have what it takes to become a champ.
"As much as a physical 'set' for Olympic competition," she said, "you need a mental 'set'." At the starting gate you realize that the competition at hand is the be all and end all—and you know that you can die trying for the honors.
"But you go on because it is fantastic. It takes self-sacrifice beyond belief."
Cries After Losing
Miss Pitou, who missed first place in the 1960 winter Olympics slalom for women by just one-tenth of a second, (a skier from Switzerland won), recalled that winning or losing makes you want to cry.

"But you wait 'til you get home to cry," she said. "Not many people see you then."
The most chilling moment in Olympics competition: When you march into a stadium and see your country's flag and watch it being raised and realize that you put it there.
"That makes you want to cry, too," she said. "To know that you are representing your country, that you are good enough to."
Miss Pitou's students range in age from five to 70 years. Her pupils have included amputees who go down the slopes on one regular ski. Tiny skis on their ski poles help guide the amputees.
Novices Should Rent
The Olympic champ suggested that beginners rent the equipment and take a few lessons before investing in ski equipment. At the minimum, the beginner needs skis, boots, poles, release bindings, a water-proof parka, stretch pants, and water-proof mittens.
Miss Pitou said it costs less than $150 to outfit yourself with moderately priced equipment.
She offered these tips for selecting the proper size skis and poles:
—Stand the ski on end and raise your right arm. The tip of the ski should come to within two inches of your wrist.
—The ski pole, standing straight alongside you, ought to be tall enough to reach within an inch or two of your armpit.

Replica Of Columbus Ship In San Salvador

By MARTIN MCREYNOLDS (UPI)—The Nina II, replica of the smallest ship used in Christopher Columbus's discovery of the new world 460 years ago, today completed a similar voyage 97 days after sailing from Palos, Spain. Columbus did it better. His ships—the Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria—reached San Salvador in 70 days, 27 days faster than the Nina II. Columbus sailed from Palos on Aug. 3, 1492, while the Nina II sailed from the same port last Sept. 19. The Nina II crossed the Atlantic safely, despite fears it had foundered, become lost in a hurricane or sunk, and the crew planned to reenact later today Columbus's landing on this Bahamian island.

Replica of Columbus' vessel, a tiny, round-bottomed square-rigger which is a replica of Columbus's smallest ship, anchored off San Salvador about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday. The crew came ashore about midnight and was greeted by an impromptu Bahamian celebration, including a brass band and dancing on the beach. Navigator Robert Marz, the only American of the nine men aboard, said the ship did not overshoot San Salvador as originally indicated. He said the 50 foot sailing ship came along the southern tip of the island on Christmas Eve. But...

'Great Leap' Floundering

They were trying to make China a strong, industrialized giant. Party chairman Mao Tse-tung presided over the meeting as he had done over every similar meeting since the 1930's. Around him, revolutionaries sat in stony silence as they listened in amazement to a direct attack on the party leadership's policy and on Mao's infallible wisdom. The people's communes, organized the previous year throughout China on Mao's personal initiative, were a gigantic blunder, it was said.

Rations in the countryside had been so whittled down that people were subsisting on algae, cotton leaves and leaves of mustard plant, and prolongation of this misery foreshadowed serious public disorders, it was said.

Food Shortage Increases It was further stated that in the period from 1933 to 1933 adults in China ate an average of one catty of rice a day, and children three-quarters of a catty. (A catty is little more than 1.1 pounds) In 1956, these rations had been reduced to three quarters of a catty and two-thirds of a catty, and by 1958 it was down to one-half a catty and one-quarter a catty in some places.

In effect, Mao's vaunted communes had drastically lowered the standard of living of the peasants. Other aspects of his "great leap forward" also were criticized. And the aspect that particularly hurt was that the commune system, with its territorial division of administration meant that the Chinese Communist party was being used as a common labor force. The distinction between the army and the ill-trained militia was fading away.

The man who was making this criticism was Marshal Peng Teh-huai, former commander of Chinese forces in the Korean War, and a ranking politbureau member. Moreover, in hope of obtaining sympathetic consideration from the Soviet Union, Peng had transmitted a secret letter to Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in the course of a lengthy tour through Russia and eastern Europe during that summer. The letter stated in full Marshal Peng's grievances against Mao.

Grievances Nurtured These grievances had long been nurtured in the heart of a sizeable section of the army, which had emerged from Mao's guerrilla bases of the 1930's. The grievances arose because of Mao's contempt for modern weaponry. The men are what count, he kept repeating, not the weapons. On the contrary, said Peng, to deal with situations like the "liberation" of Taiwan and the American imperialists it was necessary to have far more than guerrilla formations. It was necessary to have modern weapons from Russia, manned by professional soldiers with a high degree of training, and to have them backed up by scientists rather than by political propagandists.

Despite Peng's logical views, the other generals present, fearing for their heads, refused to side with him. They rose in turn to pledge their loyalty to Mao and the Central Committee. Mao's viewpoint won the day, and a press attack was launched on the rightists. Peng was dismissed in disgrace in September, with Soviet leaders were suspect.

Accused Chinese At the Bucharest conference of June, 1960, Khrushchev accused the Chinese of persecuting politbureau members who had contacts with Russia and mentioned Peng specifically. But the challenge to

Soviet

(Continued From Page 1) inter-administration meeting on Cuba. "He only appears with the big rockets or where they are about to show up." Until very recently, these intelligence experts were reporting General Dankevic as being in command of all Soviet forces in Cuba because of the heavy flow of coded messages directly to him from the Kremlin's radio center outside of Moscow. Further intelligence and diplomatic checking by U.S. officials, however, produced the hard information that General Slazenko definitely is the top Russian officer on the island.

As in the case of the long-range Soviet missiles and bombers, the first report on General Slazenko came from a Cuban refugee. He pinpointed the general by stealing some valuable papers from his headquarters.

OTHER GENERALS — Major General Bendonesko is in command of an "elite" guard division composed of 18,000 to 15,000 troops. The division includes four crack Soviet tank battalions and four Frog missile battalions which have nuclear-tipped rockets with ranges from 25 to 300 miles. Colonel General N. I. Gusev is reported to have more than 2,000 Russian pilots and airmen under his command. These airmen fly and maintain an airforce of 90 Soviet MIG-21s and 50 MIG-19s in addition to training Cuban pilots.

NO AGREEMENT — The diplomatic efforts of President Kennedy to get Premier Khrushchev to remove the Soviet troops from Cuba are completely stalemated. U. Alexis Johnson, Deputy Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs, circulated a memorandum to members of the Organization of American States indicating that in Khrushchev's last message to the President he flatly refused to withdraw his forces. Senator Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., has reported to President Kennedy that the continued presence of Soviet combat troops in Cuba is becoming an increasing source of concern to Central American leaders. He said that heads of governments report this as the No. 1 security problem in the Hemisphere. Despite frantic efforts of the Castro government to stamp out the dread foot-and-mouth disease, it continues to spread in Cuba. Losses to farmers are now believed to be in the thousands of dollars.

Burglars

(Continued From Page 1) reported that someone stole her purse from her escort's car. The purse contained $3 in cash, a check for approximately $70, and two pairs of glasses. In the other theft in the same vicinity, thieves stole several articles from the automobile of Mrs. Floyd Hunter, 629 N. Sumner, while she was in church. They included a floor mat and an assorted list of Christmas gifts including a dress, bottle of cologne and a bottle of bubble bath liquid. R. J. Bradley, 1718 Christie, reported that someone stole a tachometer from his truck Monday afternoon. Bradley said the thief also took a 5-gallon can of gasoline.

A 22-caliber rifle was stolen from the pickup truck of Otis Calcoate, 1937 N. Wells, according to a report filed with police. Calcoate said the burglars broke a wing glass on the truck and reached through to open the door.

Mao's doctrinaire leadership was temporarily over. However, the crisis into which this leadership has plunged China is not over. China has had "hard years," the communes have been modified, and the industrial plans with Russia and mentioned Peng specifically. But the challenge to

An Aid For 'Fumblers'

A talent to treasure is the art of wrapping the ordinary gift in an exciting way. For some, richly colored papers, ribbons, gay decorations, and hard-to-package shapes challenge the imagination and promise a delightfully creative exercise.

I have tried to join this august artistic company, without success. After years of fumbling with "foolproof" bows, I'm still sticking squashed white tissue paper into place with plenty of seals.

The limitations are clear to anyone who has read the gift book title right through the paper, or has had this year's mittens slide out of an inadequately sealed end.

However, I am not without friends — friends who have the aptitude, enthusiasm and time for dreaming up gala surprise packages. One young teenager saved my sanity last Christmas by taking charge of gift wrapping.

For her and for all who would like a few new tricks to try, here are some suggestions from a professional on how to disguise a simple gift. I think I could even handle a couple myself:

Gaily decorated paper plates inverted and sealed with invisible tape make pretty package for simple gift. Plates painted red are trimmed with yellow cardboard, green tissue stars.

For example, the cat's meow package which could conceal one or more small tissue-wrapped gifts. The package is made by inverting one partitioned paper plate over another and sealing the edges with invisible tape. Cat's eyes, mouth and ears are cut from colored paper; the whiskers are pipe cleaners and a large Christmas ball is the nose.

An empty oatmeal box glamorized with a pink paper cover, secured with tape, then striped, birdcage fashion, with narrow black ribbon, becomes a decorative holder for a number of items (including hair curlers or rollers). The bird with its real tail feather is cut from blue paper and taped to the box.

Inexpensive glass goblets, spray-painted, are sturdy containers for perishables, including potted plants. For a giddy Taddy, spray a goblet pink; cut eyelashes and a fringe of hair from black fringe. Attach to glass with invisible tape. Paint on a mouth. Cut rim from a paper plate and tape to the edge of the glass. Insert a small potted plant, cover leaves with tissue to form the crown of the hat, and add a bow to the brim. This, with a variation or two (a straw party hat, perhaps), could carry homemade salted nuts, seasoned cereal or candies.

Take It From Kathy

Dear Kathy: I'm concerned about some friends. They have been associating with boys who have some pretty bad habits.

I feel I have to say, but it would hurt me terribly if, in time, they became involved with these boys. Please give me some tactful suggestions.—Worried.

but get the idea across that you think there are nicer boys available and have no intention of spending time with the boys in question. If the girls want to know the reason, be prepared to give an explanation.

Dear Worried: Any direct action is blocked. You don't have the right to tell friends what to do, and people usually resent unsolicited advice. I don't see why you can't have a talk with them about where you stand, though.

If these girls like you, knowing what you feel will at least make them stop and think. Don't act superior or as if you are scolding.

Dear Abby...
This Is
A Noble Friend?
By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What is wrong with a woman who pretends not to know that her husband is having an affair with a neighbor when everybody else knows it? I told her last summer and she just laughed and said she didn't believe it. But I notice she is losing weight and looks terrible, poor thing. The lady who is carrying on with her husband is always at their house acting like she is a good friend to the wife when she just wants to be around the husband. How can I get the poor wife to realize this woman is stealing her husband right from under her nose?

DEAR ABBY: When my parents saw my report card they told me I couldn't go to any of the school dances until after next report card time. My steady went to the school dance without me last Friday night and I heard he had a good time. When I asked him about it, he said he didn't see anything wrong with going, and besides he only danced twice. I heard he danced all evening with different girls and he danced all the slow ones with his old girl friend. Do you think he should have gone to the dance without me, and danced the slow ones with his old girl? Answer soon. I am ready to break up with him if you think he is wrong.

GOOD NEIGHBOR
DEAR NEIGHBOR: Anyone who would presume to tell a friend that her husband was having an affair with another woman doesn't know the meaning of friendship. Your imagination could be working overtime. Give it a rest. And rest your mouth, too.

DEAR ABBY: I have been having the same dream over and over and I wonder if it means anything. I dream that I am a big bird, soaring through the air. I can view the cities and mountains and water below clearly, but I always have the feeling of not being able to cover enough territory. Does it have any meaning?

DEAR ABBY: I have been having the same dream over and over and I wonder if it means anything. I dream that I am a big bird, soaring through the air. I can view the cities and mountains and water below clearly, but I always have the feeling of not being able to cover enough territory. Does it have any meaning?

DEAR ABBY: My mother lost her wedding band last May. My Dad is no longer living. I am wondering if it would be proper for a son to buy his mother a wedding ring and give it to her as a birthday gift.

DEAR DREAMER: I'm 'A Freud' I'll have to make a wild guess. You sound like a salesman who has to cover the twelve Western States in ten days.

DEAR SON: I think it is a beautiful thought. Try to get one like the one your mother lost.

"Faith — Through Moral and Spiritual Growth" was the theme of the Dec. 13 meeting of Horace Mann P-TA held at 2:15 p.m. in the school auditorium. The program was presented in two parts, each depicting "Faith" in keeping with the Christmas season. The devotional, in song, was given by the Horace Mann choir under the direction of Mrs. John Branham. "Silver Bells," "Christmas Day in the Morning," "What Child Is This," "The Birthday of a King," with Paula Daugherty, as soloist, "The Drummer Boy" and "Silent Night," were selections presented by the choir.

Mrs. O'Neal Presents Mann PTA Program

Mrs. O'Neal closed with the poem, "Touch of the Master's Hand." During the business meeting, presided over by Mrs. James Reeves, unit president, a red rose was presented to Sam Begert, principal, for being one of three persons, who attended all sessions of the recent study course, sponsored by the City Council PTA.

Following room count, it was announced that Mrs. Sam Groom's room had won first; Mrs. Elmer Stimpson and Mrs. M. K. Griffith, second.

The door prize baked by Mrs. T. J. Rogers was won by Mrs. Griffith.

Nine board members attended the executive meeting held at 1:15 p.m. preceding the regular meeting.

It was announced that the P-TA will not meet in January.

aside last year, is being used by the P-TA to buy a new piano stand, bench and cover for the school.

Mrs. O'Neal gave a report of the state P-TA Convention, which she and Mrs. Reeves were delegates. She presented a brief summary of the entire convention and reviewed highlights of the talks given by the convention speakers.

DEAR ABBY: I hear that postage is going up again. For the love of Mike, why? People say that the Post Office Department is in the red. How is that possible with all the business they get? They have absolutely no competition either. Maybe I am just dumb, but I would like to know what they do with all their money.

DEAR R.F.D. No. 2: I am sending your letter to the Postmaster General. Please watch your mail box for his reply. It should be a dandy.

DEAR BETWIXT: The girl might be concealing disfigured legs, which is her privilege. Ask your son. If there is no good reason why she always wears pants, tell your son you'd like to see his wife in a dress occasionally—and you'll soon find out who REALLY wears the pants in that family.

DEAR ABBY: I was asked to be a bridesmaid at a wedding that was to take place in November. I bought a dress and shoes to match. They can't be worn for any other occasion. The wedding was called off (by the bride) and she did not offer to reimburse me or any of the other girls for our outfits. Should we ask her? Or isn't she responsible for the expense we had?

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and in the 10th grade. We are having a girl-ask-boy prom at our school and the boy I want to take is very popular, extremely polite, and makes good grades in school. There is nothing wrong with him, but some of the girls at school say I shouldn't ask him to the prom, because he is half-Indian. He is the only Indian (half or otherwise) in our school. Do you think I should ask him anyway?

DEAR WONDERING: I see nothing wrong with asking him to the prom. Why don't you talk it over with your parents? Too bad he isn't ALL Indian — then he'd be the only 100 per cent American in your school.

Stevenson Controversy Is Left To The Historians

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has left the Adlai Stevenson controversy to the historians — and to Ambassador Stevenson's political enemies.

The Stevenson incident seems not to be closed. The President and his White House spokesmen have denied much that has been written about Stevenson and the recent Cuban crisis. The President and his spokesmen also have confirmed much.

But neither confirmed nor denied is the indictment of Stevenson in a Saturday Evening Post article as an appeaser of communism, a Munichian.

"Adlai wanted a Munich," was the charge attributed by the magazine to an anonymous informant, who admittedly was no friend of Stevenson's. The ambassador was alleged to have proposed in the National Security Council NSC that the United States make a deal with the Communists by trading some U. S. foreign missile bases for the Communist bases in Cuba.

Reluctance Understandable
The President's reluctance to confirm, deny or to reveal what passed in NSC meetings is reasonable and understandable. It is also, an invitation for Stevenson's congressional enemies to maul him in debate when Congress returns next month. To expect this opportunity to harry Stevenson to be missed by the Stevenson opposition is to expect too much, even in the Christmas season.

Kennedy has persuaded all but the unrighteous that he was not a party to the magazine attack on Stevenson. This, despite the fact that the article's co-authors are intimate friends of the Kennedys. When the article appeared a fortnight ago, the instant word in the political jungle was that Kennedy had planted it—that the piece was the overture to Stevenson's departure from administration service. Or, if not departure, then a move toward kicking him upstairs instead of out, as Chester Bowles was promoted downward from a post of policy importance to a job with a mouthful of titles and no importance. Bowles has not been heard since.

The 88th Congress will convene on Jan. 9. It is possible that the Cuban crisis will not have been buttoned up by then, there remaining now the matter of onsite inspection, removal of Soviet troops, the extent to which the United States is committed against invasion and the continued aerial surveillance of Cuba by this country.

Lot of Matter

The foregoing covers a lot of subject matter, all of it controversial and all inviting the attention of the Senate and the House. President Kennedy last week and earlier had opportunities to deny that Stevenson argued for appeasement in the NSC, avoiding each time a denial that any such took place.

Now the President wants to leave the verdict to history in the year 1967, 25 years hence. It is about then that the government will be publishing for all to read the diplomatic history of the United States in the year 1962.

By the custom of political warfare guerrilla standards prevail. By these standards, it is right and good to hit a man when he is down and to tromp him, if possible. So long as there is no official and persuasive denial that Stevenson was an appeaser, he is down. It sometimes is not far from down to down and out.

A golden spike, driven at Ogden, Utah in 1869, marked the completion of the first trans-continental railway.

TETHERED TWINS—Like two silver cigars fused together at one end, weird inflatable structure above—the Vee-Balloon—has been developed by Goodyear for supporting scientific instruments above ground. The 27-foot-diameter balloons, made of a new type polyester fabric, fan out from their tips until they are 80 feet apart at the separated end. Inflated with helium, the structure is tethered to the ground and can hold equipment aloft for long periods in almost any weather.

This is the weekend of Christmas parties, of a long holiday and finally an observance of a holy day in which man has his opportunity for selflessness and a moment to regret his inhumanity to man.

There is much of the latter in this world, as the daily news columns will attest.

Christmas is a joyous day into which Christians are born by virtue of their religion. But it also represents a philosophy which may be shared by others.

For too many in this world it will be a day with little reason for joy.

Not much for those living on the east side of the wall in Berlin.

No Joy in Hungary

And not much for the Hungarians who revolted against their atheistic Communist overlords only to fail when victory seemed within their grasp.

These particular thoughts were evoked by a session this week with some of the men who are responsible for Radio Free Europe, a publicly supported institution, whose 28 transmitters in West Germany and Portugal are broadcasting up to 18 hours a day events of the free world to Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

That these broadcasts break through the Iron Curtain was attested to recently with the return to Warsaw of Cardinal Wyszyński from the Ecumenical Council in Rome.

While the official Polish press and radio remained silent, RFE broadcast the cardinal's arrival time in Warsaw, and as result an enthusiastic throng was there to greet him at the railway station.

Christmas in East

Despite the Kremlin's anti-church campaign, Communist failure is evidenced this year by open observance of Christmas throughout Eastern Europe.

RFE will help it along. Pope John XXIII's Christmas mass and message will be broadcast.

There will be carols and a new play by children of Hungarian refugees in Germany will let Hungarians know that their language is not lost to new generations now living outside the country.

A Romanian jazz band that escaped through East Berlin in September also will be on the air. On Jan. 1, the RFE will start its annual drive in which it seeks to raise $11 million to continue its operation.

As a world problem, the Congo is neither so old as Berlin nor at the moment does it present a comparable threat to world peace.

But on at least two counts, The Congo surpasses Berlin and in its resistance to peaceful solution rivals it on a third.

Berlin may be classified as primarily a four-power quarrel, only indirectly involving the United Nations as a whole. Berlin constitutes no financial burden on the U.N.

In the Congo, the United Nations faces both financial and moral bankruptcy and the threat increases the longer success eludes U. N. efforts to restore Congo peace and unity. In both, the United States is heavily involved.

As it has for many months, the key to the present Congo crisis rests with a husky, genial man who for more than two years successfully has resisted pressure designed to force him to restore his separatist state to the tutelage of the Congolese central government.

Independent Tshombe

He is President Moïse Tshombe of Katanga province who announced secession from the republic of the Congo in the opening days of Congolese independence and has been able to maintain himself and his private army since largely with revenues from the Haute Miniere copper mining company.

As for the United Nations, first under the leadership of the late Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld and now under U Thant, it has become ever more deeply committed to the premise that Tshombe must be forced to surrender.

Tshombe obviously is not without friends and supporters. When Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak and President Kennedy announced a determination to do something about Tshombe, Belgian settlers in his capital of Elisabethville responded ed with a barrage of rotten vegetables against the Belgian consulate and U. N. vehicles.

Big Tax Source

The Haute Miniere whose tax returns of some $40 to $50 million a year have been going solely to Tshombe's support, pleads that it is in the middle and must pay its taxes to the man who obviously is in charge.

But for the United Nations and for the central government premier, Cyrille Adoula, the situation daily becomes more desperate.

Impatience over the continuing Katanga stalemate within the central government parliament threatens to topple Adoula's government. Mounting anti-U. S. sentiment carries with it the threat that a new government would be strongly leftwing.

Strongly supported by the United States, Thant now seeks to block both export and sale of Katangese products to force Tshombe to his knees. But the way is not easy.

The only romantic setting some girls are interested in is one with a large diamond.

Why Are Babies No Larger Now When Adults And Students Are

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Newborn babies are no larger than they were a hundred years ago yet school children and even adults are taller and heavier. To explain this phenomenon, one of the world's most respected authorities on human physiology offered a two-part theory.

Nutrition has improved, said Dr. R. A. McCance. "But this is not the whole story." During the past century there have been remarkable declines in infectious diseases.

You can't prove anything in people themselves, McCance conceded. But if you keep pigs, dogs, rats and many other animals on "a high nutritional plane" from birth onward and if at the same time you prevent bacteria and viruses from infecting them, you get a stepped-up growth rate. You can easily believe the principle applies to people, he said.

Many Mysteries

There are still many mysteries for science to explain in human nutrition. For instance, he continued, the nutrition of a human being before it is born "consists of amino acids, glucose, a limited amount of protein but apparently no fat."

Once the human being is born it goes onto a milk diet and "all milks contain fat, some nearly 50 per cent, and this probably reaches the blood stream partly as triglycerides but how it is metabolized is by no means clear." (Triglycerides are incriminated in artery-hardening.)

But regardless of the "nutritional plane," the large newborn "tends to become the large child and often an obese one."

It's true that under-nutrition slows the growth rate of children, he said, but it is done in a very particular way. The body parts which have "the greater structural stability," that is, the bones, get priority on the limited intake of nutrients.

"Growth in height is interfered with less than growth in weight," he said.

man it shortens the length of time he is likely to live to enjoy it. On the other hand, under-nutrition can be advantageous.

He cited scientific experiments, including his own, which showed that "if rats were subjected to prolonged and severe under-nutrition from the time of weaning, many of them fell by the wayside from the hazards involved, but the remainder lived up to three times as long as the normal rat."

McCance has been a world figure in science for many years. He is professor of experimental medicine at the University of Cambridge. He expressed his newest views in a recent lecture.

Obesity Harmful

There is no question that a high nutritional plane is beneficial but "if it leads to obesity in an adult

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Republicans are uncomfortably hooked on a dilemma. House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck is hanging by the seat of his pants on one horn. Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen dangles from the other.

Halleck and Dirksen are script writers, producers and stars of the Republican TV spectacular, "The Ev and Charley Show." Their shows' Neilson is slipping. It is suffering from the competition of a real spectacular, "The Kennedys."

"The Kennedys" is a Democratic "spec" gifted with sex appeal, political sex appeal. These Republican and Democratic shows do not occur the same time slot but the comparison is obvious. The Republican dilemma is what to do about it.

spectacular takes place in a Department theater with 200 so newsmen and women in supporting cast.

Supporting cast is the or description, too, because conferences are heavily loaded their environment in favor of President. There are too many persons present to permit to place a no-holds-barred news ference in the head knocking dition of the meetings of the p with Presidents Hoover, Revelt and Truman.

So many are present that it must be discipline. So many there that the follow-up que directed at the jocular is asked, more often than not, many bright and shining f are upturned toward the P dent that he usually can sil one questioner by a finger ture inviting another to sound

The fact is that "the Kennedys" and "The Ev and Charley Show" are in a head knocking contest for public favor. The advantages in this contest lie so overwhelmingly with the Democratic production as to cause some of Halleck's and Dirksen's loving Republican friends to clamor for those stars to get off camera.

Need New Format

These loving friends would not abandon the Republican spectacular. But they would get new writers, new producers and new stars. In their anxiety for these changes, some Republicans contend that Halleck and Dirksen are presenting to the public a TV image of their party which is doing the party no good. Worse, it is argued that the Dirksen-Halleck image is harmful.

Favored by Odds

Of course, if the new im happens to be loaded for a lar shot, the President has improved his position. But odds favor him. In short, White House news confere shows off President Kenn attractive personality, quick r and sly humor at their best.

Then comes Mrs. Kennedy her lovely face and figure st ing into the living rooms of viewers with tales of the W House decor. Very effective unmatched, of course, by GOP.

The Democrats' TV blockb came along then when the P dent sat in your living room mine answering questions. T performance was "le-rromic v bait sweeter, even than FD soothing fireside chats.

The Democrats are content with "The Kennedys." They should be. President Kennedy stars at frequent intervals in what is known as the White House news conference. This

Lions Challenge Packers For NEA All-Pro Places

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — The defending champion Green Bay Packers again lead the eighth annual All-Players All-Pro team, announced today by Newspaper Enterprise Association.

The competition is getting stiff. The Detroit Lions, who stunned both pro football and the Packers with a 26-14 whipping on Thanksgiving Day, had five men from their tremendous defensive unit voted to this team, chosen by the players of the National League.

The Packers placed four on offense, two on defense for a total of six and still showed their overall class with seven on the second platoons.

The New York Giants, Eastern Division champions, featured four first team selections, split equally on offense and defense.

The players will be honored with individual trophy presentations, donated by Complete Sports Publications, at the official Pro Bowl luncheon in Los Angeles Jan. 10.

More than anything else, the men in this rugged contact sport value the esteem of the men they play with and against.

The most phenomenal draw in the history of this balloting is Joe Schmidt, the inspirational middle linebacker of the Detroit Lions. He attracted more votes for his position than any other player and preserved his record of having made every All-Players All-Pro team since the new concept of honoring achievement was introduced in 1955.

Jim Taylor of Green Bay, winner of the Jim Thorpe Memorial Trophy as the outstanding player in the league, was the pace-setter for the offense.

Twelve are repeaters from last year's team. They are: quarterback Y. A. Tittle, New York; end Del Shofner, New York; guard Jim Ray Smith, Cleveland; center Jim Ringo, Green Bay; tackle Jim Parker, Baltimore; tight end Mike Ditka, Chicago; safety Jimmy Patton, New York; defensive halfback Dick Lane, Brown of Cleveland and Bill Detroit; linebacker Dan Currie, George of Chicago were shut out, hampered by injuries.

Detroit's Yale Lary, spy as ever at 31 and in his ninth season, came back from a three-year absence on the all-pro rolls to regain the first team.

The phenomenon of 1962, though, was the Lions' defensive bloc.

Rivals Meet In Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Two old rivals meet in a bowl game for the first time in history New Year's Day when Mississippi squares off against Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl.

Coach Johnny Vaught's rebels from Oxford, Miss., enter the game with a 10-0 record—the first undefeated and untied season in the school's history.

The Razorbacks from Fayetteville, Ark., carry a 9-1 mark into the fracas—their fourth post-season game in five years under coach Frank Broyles.

A crowd of 80,000 is expected for the 26th game between the two schools. Mississippi holds a 13-12 lifetime edge over Arkansas, including victories the last four times they have met. All previous encounters were regular season affairs.

Syracuse Nationals Rally Past Knicks

By United Press International
The New York Knicks put on the big Christmas party, but it was the Syracuse Nationals who took home the biggest prize.

A crowd of 17,189 turned out at Madison Square Garden Tuesday to tie the score after three periods and then romped home, 123-111. The win was important to Syracuse because it saved second place in the Eastern Division.

In the only other league game Tuesday night, the Cincinnati Royals beat Detroit, 131-120, at Cincinnati and would have taken over second place if the Knicks had been able to hold onto any part of that lead over the Nats.

BOB PETTIT
... In losing cause

Lee Shaffer led the Nats with 31 points and Hal Greer added 27 while Adolph Schayes, back in the lineup, contributed 18. Richie Guerin had 30 for the Knicks, including 18 of 19 free throws.

The Warriors, trailing 91-90, beat the Hawks on field goals by Wilt Chamberlain and Tom Meschery in the last minute and a half. Chamberlain led the Warriors with 32 points while Bob Pettit topped St. Louis with 23.

The Royals whipped the Pistons on the strength of a 42-point third quarter sparked by Oscar Robertson and Arlen Bockhorn. Robertson topped all scorers with 35 points while Bailey Howell paced Detroit with 31.

55TH YEAR WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1962

Loyola No. 2 Cincinnati Bearcats Hold No. One Rating

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cincinnati, unbeaten in eight games this season, was the unanimous choice as the nation's top college basketball team today by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

Coach Ed Jucker's Bearcats, the two-time defending NCAA champions who have won 26 straight games, were the No. 1 pick of all 35 coaches who make up the UPI board. It marked the first time this year a team was a unanimous choice.

Loyola of Chicago advanced from third to second place while Kentucky rejoined the top 10, moving into eighth place. Ohio State took over third place; Stanford moved to fourth and Illinois to fifth.

Arizona State vaulted to sixth and Bowling Green to seventh. While there were advances for the second through seventh place teams, Mississippi State fell from fifth to ninth and Duke dropped from second to 10th.

Completing the second 10 grouping were: UCLA, West Virginia, Seattle, Virginia Tech, Southern California, Wichita, Colorado.

Points are awarded on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first to 10th places. Cincinnati had a perfect 350 score. Loyola received 285 points. Ohio State 258 and Stanford 142. Illinois was close behind Stanford with 140 points.

Belkins Leads Tennis Tournery

MIAMI (UPI) — Defending champion Mike Belkin of Miami Beach led a general advance of seeded players today past the second round of the Orange Bowl Junior Tennis Championships.

Although most of the favorites had little difficulty in their second round matches, 17-year-old Nick Kalo of Athens, Greece, staged the biggest upset of the tournament so far by defeating seventh-seeded Akira Nakayama, also 17, of Fujisawa, Japan, 6-2, 6-4.

Holiday Tournaments Head College Basketball Play

By JOHN GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Writer
It's holiday tournament time in college basketball and Stanford and Illinois, a pair of perfect-record quintets, lead the way into a week of gay but high-pressure competition.

Among the other major tournaments starting Wednesday were the Big Eight in Kansas City, the All-College in Oklahoma City, the Far West Classic in Portland, Ore., the West Coast AC in San Francisco, the Quaker City in Philadelphia, and the Gulf-South in Shreveport, La.

Several other big tournaments start Thursday and some Friday, with almost all of the court carnivals coming to a climax on Saturday.

Before the week is over, six of the teams ranked among the top 16 in the nation by the UPI board of coaches will be tournament-tested. In addition to Stanford (ranked No. 4) and Illinois (No. 5), second-ranked Loyola of Chicago will appear in the All-College Tournament (but not until Thursday), sixth-ranked Arizona State in the Queen City Tournament at Buffalo, N.Y., starting Thursday, seventh-ranked Bowling Green in the Quaker City, and ninth-ranked Mississippi State in the Sugar Bowl starting Friday.

Top-ranked Cincinnati, however, skips the tourney fuss and is slated only for a regularly scheduled game Saturday against Ohio University.

Here's how some of the big tournaments starting Wednesday stack up:

Los Angeles Classic — An afternoon doubleheader, Southern California-California State and Washington-St. Louis, and a night twin bill, UCLA-Utah State and Stanford - Northwestern. Stanford's foe, Northwestern, has the only losing record in the field (2-5), while Stanford has a star in center Tom Dose, who has averaged 21.1 points per game. Favorites in the other games are Southern Cal (No. 15 nationally with 6-0 record), and UCLA (No. 11 nationally), with Washington-St. Louis a toss-up.

Holiday Festival — Also a 7-night program. Afternoon: West Virginia-Boston College, St. Bonaventure-Holy Cross, Night: Illinois-Penn., NYU-Duquesne, West Virginia, loser to Kentucky in finals of Kentucky Invitational Saturday, has All-America candidate Rod Thorn and shares favorite's role with Illinois. Games favorites are West Virginia, Bonnies, Illini, with NYU-Duquesne even.

Quaker City — Also day-night. Afternoon: Providence - Delaware, Villanova - Manhattan. Night: La Salle-Brigham Young, St. Joseph's-Bowling Green. The BG Falcons (4-0), led by Nate Thurmond, are the solid title favorite with Providence (4-1), with 6-11 John Thompson and Vin Ernst, a threat.

Far West — First half of first round includes Colorado-Kansas, Iowa State-Nebraska. Colorado is the defending conference champ, but Oklahoma State, which plays Thursday, has the best record (7-1).

All-College — First half of first round includes Creighton-Wyoming, Oklahoma City-Baylor, Loyola (7-0) plays Thursday, has been held under 100 points only once this season and is a solid favorite. Creighton is second-seeded.

West Coast AC — First half of first round includes Santa Clara University of Pacific, San Jose State-Pepperdine.

Gulf-South — First half of first round includes Louisiana Tech-West Texas State, George Washington-Centenary.

Pampa's Cagers Favored In Ft. Worth Tournament

Pampa's Harvesters, set on winning the second tournament in two weeks, invade the Ft. Worth Tournament today playing Lake Worth of Ft. Worth in a 4:30 game.

Pampa, the only team of the 16 entered not in the Ft. Worth area, is the pre-tourney favorite along with Arlington Heights, Pampa edged Arlington Heights, 51-45, last Saturday night to win the Top O' Texas Tournament in the Harvesters' last outing.

First Round
First round pairings in the tourney are: Ft. Worth Poly vs. Brewer; Diamond Hills vs. Arlington, Tex.; Eastern Hills vs. Our Lady of Victory Ft. Worth Technical vs. Bell; Pampa vs. Lake Worth; Amon Carter vs. Richland; Haltom vs. Castleberry; and Arlington Heights vs. Cleburne. All the schools save Arlington, Pampa, and Cleburne are Ft. Worth schools.

The Harvesters, providing they down Lake Worth in today's 4:30 game, will play the winner of the Carter-Richland game at 7:30 tomorrow night. If the Harvesters should lose, they will meet the loser of the same game in a 1:30 game tomorrow.

Pampa defeated Richland, 79-52, in the Denton Tournament.

DICK WEBER
"Roll a strike ball"

Leading scorer for the Pampans is Wayne Kreis with a 19.9 points per game average. Other Harvesters averaging in double figures are Gary Sikes, 14.8, and Randy Matson, 11.8. Keith Swanson, 9.4, and Gordon Balch, 6.8, are the other two starters for Pampa.

Victories for the Pampans this season have been at the expense of Phillips, 98-79; Vernon, 85-34; Lamar, 87-35; and Perryton, 79-28; Richland, 79-32; Grand Prairie, 75-56; Elk City, 81-36; Perryton, 82-37; Lawton, 65-46; and Arlington Heights, 31-65.

Roll a strike ball
The reason is simple. Most bowlers have a bit of a hook and the best way to clean up a 5 leave is to roll a strike ball. You probably got the lone pin leave because you didn't have enough lift on the ball. The ball didn't have enough stuff, or forward roll, to carry the 5.

When Is It Noise?

A wag once defined a small boy as a "noise with dirt on it." She was assuming that everyone knew the meaning of the word, "noise." However, in modern day activities with the advent of supersonic jet engines, the meaning of the word "noise" may become of the utmost importance and if noise is associated with annoyance, the question will probably be "when does a sound become a noise?"

One aircraft manufacturer has gathered together data on the problem and I include herein certain excerpts from these findings.

"It would be difficult to understand or attempt to alleviate any problem associated with noise without some comprehension of the complex character and characteristics of sound. This requires a clear definition of the acoustical expressions commonly used by experts who assess aircraft noise and its effect on people.

"It should be noted first that some words — such as 'intensity,' 'sound level,' 'amplitude' and 'loudness' — often used synonymously by laymen have technically important distinctions in the vocabulary of sound.

"What is sound? It is a physical phenomenon created by vibrations from some source — a slamming door, a bell, flowing water, a violin, turning propellers or spinning turbine engines. These vibrations may be transmitted through any medium, but usually we are interested in sound transmitted through air. At normal temperatures they travel through air at a velocity of about 1100 feet or 335 meters per second—the 'speed of sound.'"

This may sound somewhat silly to many people but it could have an effect on the pocketbook of the taxpayers throughout this Country. One of the major problems presently faced by many municipal authorities stems from the noise generated by aircraft taking off and landing at the local airport. There are many lawsuits presently pending having to do

WOMEN In The CHURCH

Three of the four Chinese families — the first admitted by the United States in a move to help the refugee crisis that arose in Hong Kong recently — were Christian families sponsored by Lutheran agencies. The current American migration program, announced by President Kennedy several months ago, provides for admission of many of the 5,000 Hong Kong refugees who were barred for entry five or more years ago but were still unable to visit because of the quota system. The Chinese quota is 205 a year.

Three modern-educated African women are the main attraction at a series of "pilot workshops" on methods and the United Nations being held throughout the United States this winter under the sponsorship of two national Methodist agencies. Together the women comprise the third "World Understanding Team" of the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Board of Missions. The Women's Division and the Division of Peace and World Order of the Board of Christian Social Concerns are the sponsoring agencies for the workshops.

When Lutheran World Relief introduced its "Dorcas Project" in April of 1958, women's groups across the country responded to a plan to sew clothing for refugee children in the Holy Land from pre-cut cloth purchased from W.R. Today, according to the Rev. Ove R. Nielsen, assistant W.R. executive secretary, there are again many refugees in Palestine needing clothing: "It is our hope, Mr. Nielsen says, "that women's groups who have sewed Dorcas garments in the past will do so again not only this year but after year in view of the continued need for the clothing, jackets of cloth, which has been cut according to patterns received from the Holy Land and which contain material for twelve dresses for girls and twelve shirts and shorts pants for boys, can be purchased from the LWR office at New Windsor, Md., for $23 each Dorcas." Mr. Nielsen recalls, "was an outstanding Christian woman in Joppa. We are told Acts 9:39 that she was full of good works and alms-deeds and made coats and garments for the poor. It is remarkable how frequently in mission activity, leadership in church work has been in the hands of a saintly woman."

The Lighter Side Being Firm About Baby's Haircut

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — In most states, taking your son to the barbershop for his first haircut is not grounds for divorce.

This explains why my wife and I are still living together, although in a rather estranged manner.

She took our year old son to the barbershop the other day and I still haven't forgiven her. Time may heal the breach but right now it's touch and go.

I am aware, of course, that I am flaunting tradition. When a feud develops over when a male child should be sheared for the first time, it is standing operating procedure for the father to insist and the mother to resist.

One familiar tableau has the father spiriting his shaggy heir out for a flattop while the mother is looking the other way.

In our house, however, it didn't happen like that at all. When my wife observed one evening that the tresses of little Ignatz were shrouding his clavicle, I balked at her suggestion.

"There's no hurry about it," I said. "Wait a few years and he will be able to go to the barbershop himself."

"But people mistake him for a girl," she protested.

"That's all right," I said. "Just introduce him around as Robert Frost."

But on the 131st time that some stranger asked my wife what "her" name was, something just snapped. She whisked him down to the shopping center and submitted him to Cecil, our neighborhood barber.

The odd thing was that Cecil wasn't surprised. He said it had been his observation that most fathers around my age switch sides in the haircut controversy.

"You'll note," Cecil said, "that Baby John still has long hair."

When my wife told me what Cecil said, it made me feel some better. Until then, I had thought of myself as being the only father in the world who was anti-haircut.

From what Cecil said, I gather that it is a common attitude among vintage fathers. But apparently you have to get yourself elected President before you can make your views prevail.

I do not, of course, know for certain that this is the case with the Kennedys. I'm just putting two and two together.

Nevertheless, as I gaze upon my own son's nearly naked noggin, I find it reassuring to assume that we have a man in the White House who is firm about haircuts.

Voters Okay Bond Issue

CANADIAN (Sp) — Canadian voters approved a $225,000 bond issue for expansion of the city's power and light plant by a twenty-five to one margin in a special city election last week.

Only 132 votes were cast in the election. . . one of the lightest turn-outs in a municipal election in years. Opposition to the issue was almost non-existent.

The vote was 127 favoring the bond issue and only 5 opposed.

The bond issue will be supported by revenues of the power plant and will not affect the city's tax rate. Plans are to retire the bond issue over a fourteen year period and indications are, City Manager James Morgan said, this week, that a very favorable rate of interest will be available.

The City Council received bids on the bonds last Thursday evening, December 20. Bond buyers have shown considerable interest in the issue.

But probably not all of the bonds authorized by the voters will be sold. The City has $50,000 in surplus funds which it plans to apply to the purchase of the new generator for the power plant. Anticipated total cost is about $225,000, the amount of the bond issue authorized. This will be reduced by $50,000 and probably no more than $175,000 worth of bonds will actually be issued, City Manager Morgan said.

Governor Sees Chance For Texans To Set Holiday 'Life-Saving Record'

Governor Price Daniel said today that Texas has "an excellent chance of setting a new, all-time life-saving record" during the Christmas-New Year's holiday if all Texans "will drive as if their lives depend on it. Unfortunately, this season, which is the happiest for most people, turns out to be the deadliest as far as traffic fatalities are concerned" the Governor said. "I urge everyone to join in helping to save lives for Christmas and the New Year."

The Governor announced another Statewide traffic safety campaign for the holiday period, exact dates for which will be announced by the Texas Department of Public Safety, along with its official estimate of the number of traffic deaths expected.

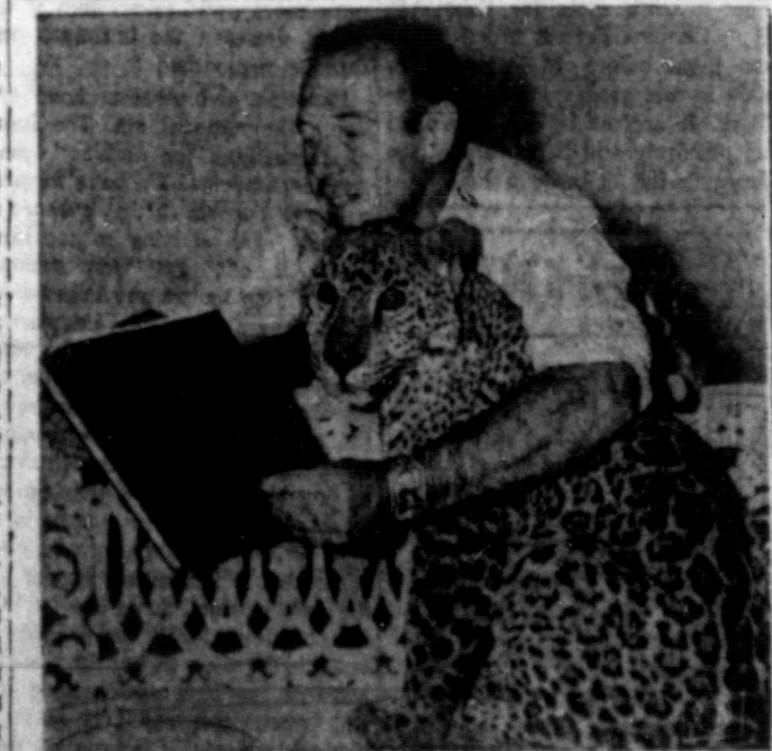

"During the past five Christmas-New Year holidays," Governor Daniel said, "traffic deaths dropped to an average of 87, as compared with an average of 105 for each of the preceding five years. This shows what can be accomplished when the drivers of Texas, the law enforcement agencies, traffic safety supporters, and local and State officials combine their efforts in behalf of preventing deaths and injuries on our streets and highways."

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Two Ironies

Over a period of years the United States has been moving closer and closer toward a totalitarian concept—a concept that holds that all major planning should be imposed from the top echelon of the government.

Ironically, the Soviets, who certainly know all there is to know concerning the results of total government direction of the lives and enterprises of a great nation, seem to be moving, even though slowly, in the opposite direction.

Chairman Khrushchev, for instance, recently said that certain capitalistic principles must be introduced into the Soviet economy in order to spur production.

Now, a Professor Lieberman, who teaches at Kharkov University, has publicly presented a strong case against all-inclusive planning from the top. The fact that his findings and opinions have been widely publicized within the Soviet Union proves that they meet with the approval of the ranking authorities in the Kremlin.

According to an account by J.

A. Livingston, the well known business and financial analyst, "The professor argues that plant managers and directors do not have enough freedom. They are hampered by orders, directives, and rulings from on high.

"He thinks the executives ought to have discretion, be able to choose their suppliers and select their customers. They ought to be allowed to maximize their profits, and the plant executives who make the biggest profit ought to get the highest rewards."

Mr. Livingston makes this observation: "What a dirty capitalist idea to be brutal about in the Soviet Union: Incentive pay—based not necessarily on the quantity of production, not on meeting pre-determined goals, but on producing the type of goods other factory managers or consumers really want."

So, the Soviets once again are taking a leaf from the capitalist book. It may be—and here is another irony—that we will need to take a leaf from theirs in its new edition.

Cherchez La Femme!

The distaff half of the sexes constitutes an ever growing economic force. Women do most, or nearly most, of the nation's buying and investing, and their influence, exerted in one fashion or another, to this country's industries and businesses is far reaching.

That applies to just about every phase and factor of our national life. It even applies to gasoline service stations—a survey just published by the Ethyl Corporation shows.

Nearly one out of every three women in one-car households buys all or most of the gasoline for the car she drives, and nearly half of the women buy their gasoline once a week or oftener. As an incidental bit of intelligence, 62 per cent of them buy regular gasoline as against 38 per cent buying premium.

Women drivers are strongly loyal to their local service stations and to the brand and grade of gasoline that they use. The big element here seems to be the quality of service which they are given. The survey asked what factors would be most influential in causing a switch of stations. Lowering the quality of the service was the outstanding reason. In the survey's words: "Apparently it is far more difficult to convince a woman that one particular brand of gasoline is better than all others than it is to win her loyalty through careful attention to her car while in the station."

The Ethyl Corporation states that the survey was undertaken as a service to the oil industry in order to provide marketers with the latest information on the growing potential of women in the gasoline market. This would seem to be a case where the ancient French maxim of "cherchez la femme" applies. The service station operator who secures women customers, and is able to satisfy them with his quality of service, is destined for success.

Bullets To Poker Chips

The history of the Korean War is studded with the names of hills—T Bone Hill, Heartbreak Ridge, The Hook, Pork Chop Hill.

Won, lost and won again, these endless hills embodied the weary, grinding horror of that war. Now a new hill has been named in Korea—Walker Hill, after Gen. Walton H. Walker who led the U.N. campaign.

Indicative of the changes that have taken place after nine and a half years of peace, Walker Hill is a resort center designed to bring much-needed tourist money to Korea.

Located in scenic country 10 miles east of Seoul, the just-opened resort complex has the most complete and modern sport, entertainment and recreation facilities. One of the main attractions to the international set, however, is expected to be the elaborate facilities for gambling, recently legalized by the Korean government.

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markey

Three members of the "apple gang" in Russia who made millions of rubles selling poor grade fruit at top prices have been sentenced to death. There is a Russian law which makes fraud against the consumer a crime against the state and is a capital offense. Henry Bailey Stevens in the American Fruit Grower has an excellent suggestion:

"Why not live up our diplomatic exchanges with a good supply of American Fancies? Then instead of seeing pictures of Mr. K and his Russian pals at the Embassy parties with cocktail glasses, we could hand out some American apples and have shots of the Bolos munching our good fruit." Like everything in the land of the Soviets there is a scarcity of fruit in the Russian cities.

At least one eastside restaurant is doing something about the vicious tipping racket that exists in New York and other large cities in the United States. An attendant checks your hat and coat but there is a small collection box on the counter with a sign saying "If you wish to tip the money goes to the American Red Cross and other charities." Some large operators who have the concessions in hotels, restaurants and night clubs take in more money annually than the President of the United States receives in salary. A new tipping phase started in the smart bars during World War II, that of leaving the change for the barman. He keeps the tips but the hat check girl merely gets a salary and the rich parasite concessionaire grabs the quarters, dimes and bills for his fat bank account. The states and cities hungry for revenue should look into this racket.

At family reunions in Duncan, British Columbia, Gerry Wellburn entertains his grandchildren and friends with a ride on his narrow gauge railroad in the back of his home. The diesel ended the steam age in the logging industry on Vancouver Island and the tracks and small locomotive were about to be sold for junk to Japan, when Wellburn salvaged it, together with 14 miles of track and other gear. Now the loco with its polished brass and clanging bell pulls a bright yellow work car thru the grounds, over a bridge, past a water tower, while the children ride with endless fascination.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the world renowned missionary doctor, who has lived in Africa so many years had this to say about the Congo situation: "The policy of the United Nations in the former Belgian Congo causes me great anxiety because it proceeds from a total ignorance of the country's problems. It is a grave error to try and unite by force people so profoundly divided among themselves. If Katanga is unwilling to be reunited with Congo, the United Nations should respect its wishes and not try to impose its own will at any cost."

ROUNDUP. Electric hair dryers and automatic toothbrushes are a popular Christmas gift items this season. Big fish like to gather under the rigs of the oil companies, which dot the tidelands and the Continental shelf off the coast of Louisiana. These rigs are now favorite spots for fishermen. Genuine French bread baked the night before in Paris is on sale in fine grocery stores in New York. It arrives by jet, is picked up promptly and is on sale in the morning for 79 cents a loaf.

Covering and stealing have become the national sin. The hope of "something for nothing" permeates America. We have formed a great number of pressure groups, each striving to see how much it can get from others. There is no longer any interest in what a man's services are worth, but rather how much can he and his associates force the public to pay for them. Because they have the power to do so, some groups have forced their fellow citizens to pay them four and five times what other men and women are paid for comparable services. Where such differentials appear in the free market, there can be little objection, for if one's fellows voluntarily offer to pay him such rewards, no one can question it. But when this result is accomplished by force, it is properly described as coveting and stealing.

Many of our citizens exaggerate insurance claims, and practice deception in relief and welfare payments. All such evils force the cost of essential services higher and higher. Society is breaking down because we do not tell the plain, simple, unvarnished truth and because we do not accept responsibility for ourselves, but try to put as much as possible of the burden of our maintenance upon our fellows. At this season of the year we should endeavor to realign ourselves with the worship of God

Mr. Livingstone, I Presume

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

We know that the nations which have lost their religious convictions and their moral principles have perished. We know that when nations of people have grown rich and lazy, luxury-loving and comfort seeking, that they have gone down before harder peoples who had little but the hope of achieving. The early, hardy Greeks withstood the hosts of Persia but their ease-loving descendants were crushed by Alexander. The hard-working, frugal Romans conquered the world, but their soft, ease-loving descendants were crushed by a handful of barbarians. Our country became strong and wealthy as a result of the strenuous, long hours of intelligent work performed by generations of our sturdy ancestors. On the other hand, the goal of many, if not most, Americans today is less work, more money, longer vacation, early retirement, less responsibility and more ease and luxury. People who are devoted to such ideals cannot withstand people who are willing to work long and hard.

The first step in stemming communism and winning the Cold War is to begin again to worship God. To fill our churches, to listen to our ministers, to read the Bible and to take heed of what we find there. "Thou shalt not covet, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Honor thy father and thy mother, Thou shalt have no other Gods before Me,"—these are the foundation stones upon which freedom, prosperity and independence rest. We must once more build upon them if we would preserve the heritage our fathers bequeathed to us.

Coveting and stealing have become the national sin. The hope of "something for nothing" permeates America. We have formed a great number of pressure groups, each striving to see how much it can get from others. There is no longer any interest in what a man's services are worth, but rather how much can he and his associates force the public to pay for them. Because they have the power to do so, some groups have forced their fellow citizens to pay them four and five times what other men and women are paid for comparable services. Where such differentials appear in the free market, there can be little objection, for if one's fellows voluntarily offer to pay him such rewards, no one can question it. But when this result is accomplished by force, it is properly described as coveting and stealing.

Many of our citizens exaggerate insurance claims, and practice deception in relief and welfare payments. All such evils force the cost of essential services higher and higher. Society is breaking down because we do not tell the plain, simple, unvarnished truth and because we do not accept responsibility for ourselves, but try to put as much as possible of the burden of our maintenance upon our fellows. At this season of the year we should endeavor to realign ourselves with the worship of God

HOW REDS WILL BURY US REVEALED IN NEW BOOK

For those who wish to understand the current world confusion created by Russia's drive for total domination, no better textbook can be found than Soviet Foreign Policy by Anthony T. Bouscaren. (Published by Fordham University Press, 411 E. Fordham Road, New York 38, N.Y., 43).

The perceptive Dr. Bouscaren, a political science professor at Le Moyne College, discovers that throughout the different leaderships of Marx, Lenin, Stalin, and Khrushchev, the International Communist Movement remains "a pattern of persistence."

Bouscaren aptly sums up his third book on communism by quoting the movement to Mao Tse-tung's 17-word doctrine: "The enemy advances, we retreat; enemy halts, we harass; enemy tires, we attack; enemy retreats, we pursue."

The author points out that Soviet foreign policy is better understood when we realize the following:

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question: "What is Education?"

Since it is pretty generally agreed that civilization is a race between education and catastrophe, as the late H. G. Wells said, it is important that we come to know what education really is. With this idea in mind, we will try to present our definition of education: Education is a continuous process wherein one attempts to know oneself, and strives, by means of self-control to seek knowledge by way of interchanging ideas in order to approach using one's talents 100 per cent and to eschew self-flattery.

It is a process wherein one's objective is a striving to gain understanding, by inductive and deductive reasoning of ethical absolutes and the laws of the Universe, being always anxious to have what one assumes them to be, challenged by any person who will ask rational questions. Education can only be self-acquired.

It is the joy one gains from unfolding one's life. It brings to truth Browning's writing: "Come grow old with me, the best of life is yet to come, the last of life for which the first was made."

This has nothing to do with how one man should educate another. If our contention is right, that education can only be self-education, then one man cannot educate another. All he can possibly do is to try to stimulate the other to think in harmony with eternal principles. We'd appreciate other people's attempting to define what they mean when they use the word "education." We need all the light we can get on this important subject.

and the acceptance of the truth which was embodied in a manger nearly 2000 years ago.

"In God We Trust"—But Supreme Court Delays Making It Official for Them

WASHINGTON—Members of the Supreme Court are having as much trouble deciding a "prayer" problem of their own as agreeing to an opinion on the highly controversial Baltimore Bible reading case.

For more than three months, the Justices have been privately debating an official request by J. George Stewart, architect of the Capitol, to inscribe "In God We Trust" on the Supreme Court building.

This religious motto, imprinted on all U.S. coins, is being placed on all federal buildings in Washington under the jurisdiction of the architect. Congress unanimously voted this action during the last session after the court handed down its first prayer decision.

Since the Supreme Court building falls in this category, Architect Stewart wrote a formal letter to Chief Justice Earl Warren last September requesting permission to carry out the congressional mandate.

He proposed placing a small plaque, with the words "In God We Trust," just inside the entrance of the Supreme Court building. If this wasn't agreeable to the justices, Stewart suggested that the court offer an alternative proposal.

So far, Chief Justice Warren hasn't indicated the court's response to either suggestion. Instead, he has only acknowledged receipt of Stewart's letter, stating that his request would be placed before the other justices. That was the last official word from the court.

Private inquiries by Stewart's staff have brought back intriguing accounts from Court aides of a wide-open debate and split among the justices over what position the court should take.

THE SHOWDOWN—Architect Stewart, whose workers have finished inscribing the motto on all other buildings, is delaying a Court showdown until next month.

If there is no further word from Chief Justice Warren by the time Congress convenes, he will ask the congressional leaders for new instructions on how to go about carrying out his legislative mandate.

"Although I believe I have a clear mandate from Congress to go to the Supreme Court building and inscribe 'In God We Trust' on it, I don't think this would be the diplomatic thing to do," Stewart recently confided to a member of Congress. "This is a matter for the congressional leaders to decide. I will ask for new instructions in January."

Representative John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., chairman, already is planning to take up the issue with the justices when his House Appropriations Subcommittee holds its hearings on the Supreme Court's budget for fiscal 1964.

In hearings earlier this year, Representative Rooney used the court's money bill to block a plan by Chief Justice Warren to move the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights from the National Archives to the Supreme Court building for public exhibition. The Committee stopped the transfer by rejecting funds for permanent cases to house the documents.

CHECKING THE CHECKER—A number of Internal Revenue agents are having trouble with their own expense accounts. In a report to the House Ways and Means Committee, Comptroller General Joseph Campbell contends that the Internal Revenue Service is allowing its agents to blow taxpayers' dough on first-class air tickets when they can travel less expensively at no inconvenience.

The agency checking the which is preparing for a crackdown on businessmen's expense accounts next year, reports: "Our investigators found first-class accommodations used on 270 flights, or 95 per cent of the 284 flights between New York and Washington during the period July 1961 to February 1962."

"By using tourist instead of first-class tickets for their shuttles between Washington and Baltimore, the Internal Revenue Service could have saved the taxpayer $6 on each one-way trip."

"During the last six months (1961), the Internal Revenue Service, out of 753 flights to Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Denver, Los Angeles, New York and San Francisco, used first-class accommodations on 708 flights. This was used on only 45 flights."

Commissioner Mortimer J. Minahan has informed both the Comptroller General and the House committee that changes will be made before the agents begin checking the expense accounts of businessmen.

WAVE OF THE FUTURE—Hong Kong is now accepting a token number of refugees from Communist China. Representative Torbert MacDonald, D-Mass., reported to President Kennedy that British officials there are allowing only 11 refugees per month into Hong Kong. The others being turned back.

The and Panama have quietly begun to negotiate a new treaty to control and ownership of the Panama Canal.

Says: The Doctor

All Children Need To Feel Accepted

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT It is said that the gods visit the sins of the father upon the children. It would be even more true to say that the mental attitude of the mother is perpetuated in offspring. When these are the healthy attitudes this is fine; when they are not a vicious cycle is set up that is hard to break.

In view of the great amount of time and effort put forth to raise the baby and the growing child, healthy physical environment, is especially appropriate that should take time out of the mother's life to look at the child's emotional world.

First of all, the mother must have an appreciation of her own worth as a human being if she is to impart a sense of dignity and security to her child. It is important that she give a feeling of being wanted.

Many a mother who at stage or another harbors a feeling of hostility or resentment against her child develops a feeling of guilt about her hostility and tries to compensate by being overly indulgent in the long run this does a great deal of harm.

Instead, the mother must recognize her hostility for what it is, it is deep-seated and overwhelming she should seek the help of a professional person in her own past. In the search she may or may not get the help of a well-qualified psychiatrist.

If, however, the hostility is a result of fatigue or a trivial act of events that will straighten itself out in a few hours, she may learn to laugh it off, dismiss it, feeling of guilt, and, above all, take it out on the baby.

One attitude that is important to give your child is a feeling of pride, acceptance of his or her sex. Heaven knows you can't change it but you can untold harm by word or deed you ever give your child the idea that you were disappointed that she was not a boy or vice versa.

Some families have been cursed of filling their back yards full of daughters in an effort to produce a son.

No matter how many daughters you have or how badly you want a son, when another daughter arrives it is unworthy of you not to be happy. You should be glad that she is born into such a fine family and glad that it is within your power to see that she grows up to be a proud and useful member of her community.

Finally, when a child is ready to stand on his own two feet, let one of the commonest and worst traits of mothers is possessiveness. This has been responsible for the violent reaction against "Momism." You can produce a child, you can guide it in its early years, but you can never possess it and any attempt to do so will have tragic consequences.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Like a black whale it skimmed swiftly through the water, partly submerged. Suddenly it rose fully in the depths, and with this rising shot, NBC-TV Wednesday night had launched a journal remember: An underwater voyage on a Polaris submarine.

Six NBC staffers spent 16 days aboard the missile-carrying vessel, the U.S.S. George Washington. And what is most noteworthy about their achievement is that, rather than being dominated and served by the gargantuan effect of the machine, they, instead, dominated the result by keeping perspective and producing a sense of human, realistic art.

As fixed in the memory as the actual firing of a missile on the antic range are recollections of the entire undersea unit of life. The crew attending a arch service, playing cards, using clothes in an automatic washer, talking around a table but the awareness of the constant vigil and relating it to the duties they left behind.

There was a singing cook who had stepped right out of Hollywood Westerns (something with Cliff Willis), and an amnesiac who listened for sounds around the sub, and found amusement in his adeptness at giving when he was hearing a sale or, say, a male or female spouse, which he could tell apart. But most of all there was a captain, Cmdr. Edward R. Beal, who summed up his position unblinkingly:

"If he ever has to fire his dearest weapon, his mission has failed."

Producer Lou Hazam, who has created exemplary documentaries out of such subjects as Van Gogh and Shakespeare, was not one of the six NBC representatives aboard the sub; and perhaps it is at this distance which made the respective more pronounced. Each credit is due him, for while the story of a painter or poet is intrinsically human, to bring this me quality out of an inanimate tank of steel is another thing.

Equal credit is due the only news correspondent among them, Martin Agronsky, who paved a way for the high plane of the story by asking the right questions. Agronsky, one of the very best broadcasting newsmen around, was on camera a good deal of the time, and his unaffected and ingenious manner brought a natural tone for the film, though some scenes were re-shot for security purposes.

From shore leave in Scotland the actual firing, it was not a show, but an experience, only the re-inders of the purpose of the mission itself were added, and recalled the words of a writer, Evelyn Waugh: "As happier men watch birds, I watch them."

The Nights After Christmas

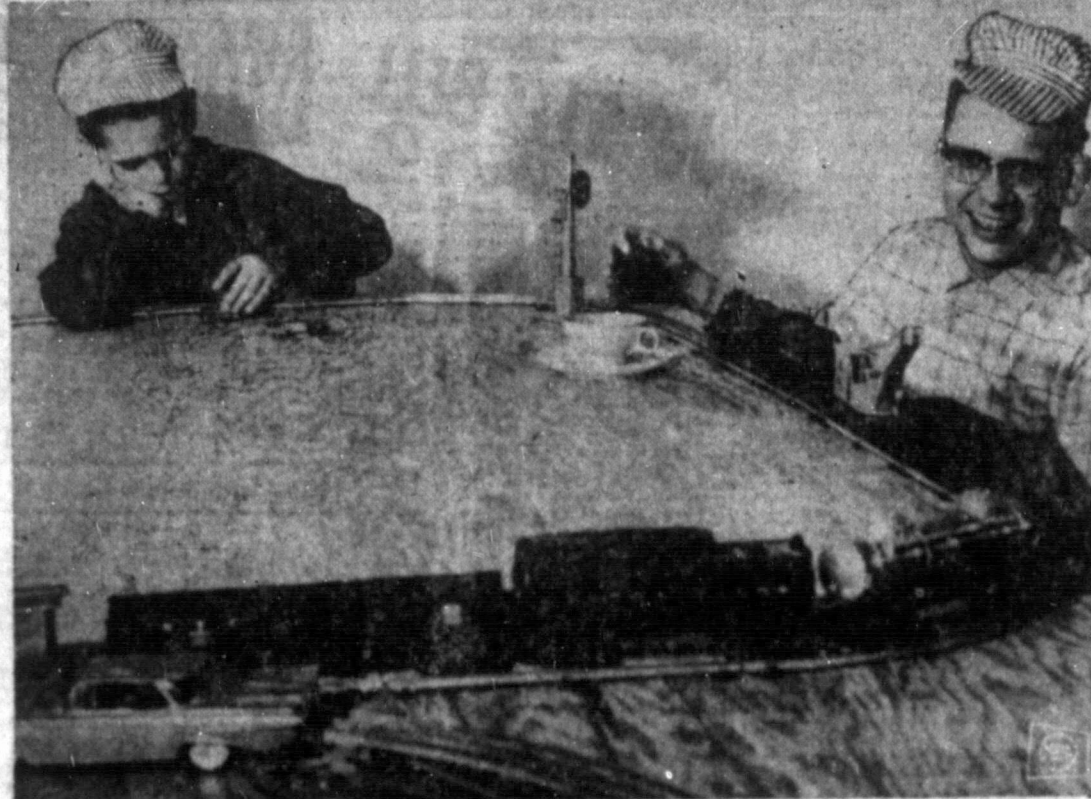

Dad knows just what dad... (oops)... junior wanted.

"Just hold on for a MINUTE, son. Here's how..."

Railroad drama in four acts pictured here will be played in many homes during the nights — and weekends — after Christmas. The plot is basic: you can substitute model racing cars, airplane kits or what-have-you for the locomotive and cars. It's junior's first lesson in the fact of life that men are but outside boys. Protagonists for this enactment are Roger Stewart, of Weyerhaeuser Company's Tacoma, Wash., office, and his son Dean, 9

"Well, a fellow can always play with the autos until he's done with the train."

MEN PAST 40

The past year men from 1,000 communities have been successfully treated here at Excelsior Springs. They have found soothing relief and improved health.

The Excelsior Medical Clinic, devoted to the treatment of diseases peculiar to older men, has a New FREE BOOK that tells how these troubles may be corrected by proven NON-SURGICAL TREATMENTS. This book may prove of utmost importance in your life. No obligation.

REDUCIBLE HERNIA
It is also amenable to a mild Non-Surgical treatment available here.

URGES CHANGES

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Trades Union Council has urged its members to implement changes in industrial and agricultural management called for by Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, according to the official news agency Tass.

Tass said Tuesday the unions will divide themselves into industrial and agricultural bureaus at all levels to facilitate the changes.

PASSES MILLION MARK

MOSCOW (UPI)—Russia's seven-month space probe to the planet Mars passed the 12 million mile mark Tuesday, according to the official news agency Tass. The "Mars 1" was launched on Nov. 1st.

Composer's Story Hard To Believe

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Santa Claus I never had any doubts about. It's guys like Irwin Bazelon that I have trouble believing in.

Yes, Virginia, there is an Irwin Bazelon. There must be, because I have just been talking with him. But what happened to him could only happen in the movies. Let me set the scene for you.

There is this struggling young composer, see, who has written this symphony. Like all struggling young composers, he keeps getting the brush-off. Only this struggling young composer's hobby is handicapping horse races. So one day he goes out to the track and parlays a few bucks into more than a grand. (This is the place where I used to go out for popcorn.)

Then he takes the dough and has some of his music recorded. Then he borrows his uncle's car — I forgot to mention that his uncle is a federal judge — and goes around to see an important conductor.

He plays the recording for the conductor, who is so impressed he accepts the composer's symphony for his own orchestra. Not only that, he invites the composer to be a guest conductor at its Veterans moviegoers will recognize that plot as coming right off the back lot at Warner Brothers. And that is why I have trouble believing in Irwin Bazelon.

His symphony, "Testimonial to a Big City," will be given its premier performance by the National Symphony Orchestra this week with Bazelon himself on the podium.

Furthermore, the events leading up to this climactic moment were more or less as outlined in the scenario above.

If it taxes your credulity, you and I are not alone. Bazelon said he has trouble believing it, too. He is not exactly nervous about getting his big chance, but he plans to conduct without a baton. He is afraid it might slip out of his hand and impale a piccolo player.

If all goes according to script, Bazelon's symphony will be nationally acclaimed and he will go on to musical glory. If not, the horses will still be running at Saratoga.

Quotes In The News

By United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Louis Branchissi, discussing his encounter on the street with a man who stopped to pet his dog and began pulling the animal's ears: "I told him not to pull so hard because the dog might bite him. Instead the man jumped at me and bit me on the side of the face. I slugged him and he ran."

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., expressing doubts that the Soviet Union will continue to provide lavish support to Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba:

"I believe Mr. Castro's days are numbered. I believe the Soviets intend to leave him out on a limb. They were willing to pay the price when they could have rocket bases in Cuba, but I don't think Mr. (Soviet Premier Nikita) Khrushchev is willing to pay $1 million a day to learn the chacha."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, discussing his relationship with President Kennedy in the aftermath of a published report that he advised a political rather than a military solution to the Cuban crisis: "President Kennedy has had and will continue to have my advice with candor and with confidence in his determination to reach decisions by free discussion among his advisors. Advice is of little use if it is chilled by fear of disclosure and misrepresentation."

GENEVA — U. S. Ambassador Athur Dean, speaking at the deadlocked, 17-nation disarmament conference recessed until Jan. 15: "We are the custodians of our children's future. We have our power to secure or lose our future."

MOSCOW — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, expressing termination to strengthen relations with Yugoslavia, a move Red China opposes: "We know that the improvement in relations between slavia and the Soviet Union to the liking of some pe-
