Christmas Sales Hit New Peak At Zale Jewelry

Zale Jewelry Company sales Christmas selling season and the company experienced its first $2 million sales day, it was reported by President Ben A. Lipshy,

"Although our December figures are not yet audited and will not be announced until later in January in connection with our nine-month report." Lipshy said, "we are very pleased with the excellent business recorded by all of our stores."

The results proved, Mr. Lipshy added, that the national economy is sound and Zale's management continues to believe that good business conditions will, prevail

West Virginia always manages to come up with a glamor boy like Hot Rod Hundley and Jerry West. The current edition is Rod Thorn, a 6-41/2, 180-pound, 21-yearold passer and ball handler who is something in the way of a ringer in physical appearance for Danny Kaye. A unique two-handed jump shot, among numerous other things, distinguishes young Thorn.

Fred Schaus, the former West Virginia coach now supervising the Los Angeles Lakers, says Thorn could play in his backcourt right now.

Thorn is also sought by major eague baseball clubs as a lefthand hitting first baseman. He prefers baseball, calling it more of a fun game than pressure basketball.

Like other athletes who play more than one game well. Rod Thorn, a superior student in prelaw, has quite a decision to make

And West Virginia can be depended on to bob up with another just like him.

Indeed, the Mountaineers could have one now in Bill Maphis, a 6-4, 175-pound, 20-year-old sophomore, conveniently redshirted last season to help him along toward that
