Diefenbaker Will Reply To U.S. Statement Today

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister John Diefenbaker today replied to the U.S. government's repudiation of his nuclear weapons policy.

Diefenbaker Wednesday night promised a statement today on the Kennedy-Macmillan Nassau agreement which triggered speculation the issue could topple the minority government or prompt the prime minister to call an election on the issue.

Social Credit leader Robert N. Thompson, said the U.S. statement on the agreement could bring about "the fall of the government or the calling of an election."

Liberal Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson and New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas noted the U.S. statement differed from the prime minister's account of current U.S.-Canadian nuclear negotiations and about Canada's future role in the Western alliance.

The U.S. State Department release denied Diefenbaker's statement on the agreement could nuclear role in NATO had been put in doubt by the Kennedy-Macmillan Nassau agreement in December to attempt to set up a multi-lateral nuclear force in NATO.

'Consumer-Flavored' Farm Message Sent Lawmakers

Atom Test Ban Talks 'Black Box' Unwrapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials have now removed most of the wraps from the celebrated "black box" which has played a prominent role in nuclear test ban talks with Russia.

What emerges is not a black box at all—although it started out that way—but a vault with a floor space of perhaps 200 square feet. The mysterious name has been abandoned, and the device now has the entirely prosaic title of "unmanned seismic station."

President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev recently exchanged letters about placing a number of these stations in the United States, Britain and Russia to check against secret underground nuclear tests.

The number, location and details of the stations is one subject of dispute. At any rate it came up at a conference of international scientists in London last September. As then discussed, it was a box in which the West would place seismic instruments which measure earth tremors. The box was to be sealed and the Russians were to fly it to agreed locations in the Soviet Union and return it later to be opened and the data read.

The trouble was that U.S. government scientists feared it would be theoretically possible—even though vastly complicated—for the Russians to fly the box to the wong area of Russia and joggle it subtly so as to reproduce the normal earthquake data for another area in which they would be secretly testing.

Engineering the tape recorders is one of two parts of the vault which the United States has not yet worked out in detail. The other is the power supply; which preferably would be from propane gas generators or radio isotope power units.

In recent talks Russia apparently has not spelled out in detail what it has in mind for an unmanned seismic station.

Voluntary Curbs On Production Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy sent Congress today a consumer-flavored farm message proposing federal subsidies to spur cotton sales and to encourage voluntary production curbs on feed and milk.

Kennedy said his program, including direct government payments to the cotton trade, cotton growers, and producers of milk and feed grains, would lead toward a stable farm economy and lower consumer prices.

An administration official estimated that the proposals could trim $300 million to $500 million off the taxpayers' outlay for farm supports and 10 cents a pound off the retail price of butter.

In a 4,200-word message, the President also called directly on wheat growers to accept a tight new control program for their 1964 crop in a referendum scheduled for this spring.

He said the alternative would be unlimited production and "depression conditions for the 1964 crop." He warned that it would not be "feasible" to get a substitute wheat support plan through Congress if the referendum failed.

Income Improves

Kennedy said that the past two years have produced "substantial improvement in farm income, a substantial decrease in government holdings of (surplus) agricultural products, and a substantial reduction in costs to the taxpayer for carrying farm surpluses without increasing the consumer's burden."

He said the rise in farm income had generated added business for rural industries and farm communities, adding at least 200,000 jobs to the national economy. Nevertheless, he added, farmers still can produce more than markets will take and further progress is needed.

The proposals for new cotton, feed grain, and dairy legislation—the feed grain plan to take effect next year—were laid out in general terms with Congress invited to fill in many of the key details.

The request for voluntary control plans for milk and feed grains was a conciliatory retreat from past administration proposals for mandatory controls. Congress rejected the mandatory plans after a bitter partisan fight last year.

In addition to the three major commodity bills, the President proposed a number of other measures including expansion of a land-use conversion program and authorization for a federal loan insurance program to expand rural housing credit.

Separate Programs

For cotton, Kennedy proposed two separate federal payment programs, one to the cotton trade on a two-year trial basis and the second directly to growers. (See CONSUMER, Page 3)

Loan Shark Regulations Tackled Again In Austin

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Senate Banking Committee today tackled an old issue that probably has been about as much wrangled and controversy as any issue in recent years—the regulation of loan sharks.

Three separate loan shark bills—by Sens. Criss Cole of Houston, Don Kennard of Fort Worth and Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi—went before the committee to open the fight in the third successive legislature to pass similar measures.

The loan shark marked the second "veteran issue" to be taken up by Senate committees in less than a day. The Senate State Affairs Committee held a lengthy hearing late Wednesday on a bill to create a Padre Island National Seashore and referred it to a subcommittee for a week's study.

Similar testimony was heard Wednesday night by the House Committee on State Affairs, which sent its Padre Island bills by Reps. Menton Murray of Harlingen and Ronald Bridges of Corpus Christi to subcommittee.

A mild surprise to come up in both House and Senate hearings on the Padre Island bills was Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler's strong stand in favor of the seashore proposals.

Sadler had campaigned strongly against the Padre Island National Seashore during the past two years primarily because he said he feared adequate protection of mineral rights, which belong to the public school system, would not be written in the bill.

But both the House and Senate versions specify that mineral rights must be retained by the state on all state-owned lands. And both bills are similar to the federal bill passed by the 87th Congress authorizing the government to establish the seashore park.

Cole's loan shark bill will mark the third time the veteran lawmaker has championed such a bill before the legislature.

This is Cole's first year in the state Senate, but during the past two sessions he fought for loan shark regulation in the House. And, in his own words, "I certainly feel it is time we resolve this issue."

The bill by Kennard deals with the definition and regulation of lending money at interest rates over 10 per cent, and Reagan's bill deals with classifying and regulating loans and lenders.

Cole's bill covers loans up to $3,000 and specifies the following maximums on interest rates: 10 per cent yearly on the amount of the cash advance not to exceed $1,500, five-sixths of 1 per cent monthly on the unpaid balance between $1,500 and $3,000, three-fourths of 1 per cent monthly for each $400 of the cash balance.

The bill would make any charge over 10 per cent usury, unless it is a type of credit covered by another law allowing higher interest, such as the Texas Consumer Finance Act.

In other action on Capitol Hill, the Senate Constitutional Amendments Committee last night unanimously approved a measure providing equal legal rights for women and sent it to the Senate floor for action. Backers of the proposal are expected to try to get final approval next week.

Gov. John Connally yesterday signed into law the first bill passed by the 58th Legislature—granting him $197,000 in emergency funds to expand his office, to help with the slanted well cases and to begin an immediate study on higher education needs.

Deadline Today For 1962 Poll Tax Payments

Today was the final day on which eligible citizens could pay their 1962 poll tax.

There was a last-minute spurt in poll tax payments at the county assessor-collector's office in the Gray County Court House and at the city's two banks, Furr Food Store, and Southwestern Public Service Co. office.

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce also reported an increase in business at their poll tax trailer in the 100-block of N. Cuyler.

Jake Webb, Jaycee poll tax committee chairman, said the trailer will remain open tonight for late comers.

"We will issue poll tax receipts tonight as long as there is a demand for our service," Webb said.

Orville E. Hodge Leaves Prison

MENARD, Ill. (UPI) — Orville E. Hodge, who looted Illinois of $1.5 million and dreamed of governing it, was paroled today after 6½ years in prison.

The onetime state auditor who lived like a millionaire on embezzled funds said, "A man can only appreciate the value and luxury of freedom after he knows what it means to be deprived of it."

Hodge, now ailing and aging, became a free man when he passed through the electric eye at the double gates of the Menard state penitentiary.

A delegation from his hometown of Granite City, Ill., where Hodge was once voted "man of the year," waited to greet him. The group included the mayor, Leonard David, Hodge's son, William, and two lawyers.

Job Under Sister

Hodge headed by car for a job as clerk in the Granite City hardware store run by his sister.

In a statement released at the prison gates, Hodge said, "Finally I go to a new life in my hometown. I ask no favors or expect none. I want to earn a good place as a citizen in my community."

Hodge, 58, who liked to wear $35 monogrammed shirts when he was the Republican "golden boy" of Illinois politics, was wearing a new prison-made suit.

He can look forward to a salary (See HODGE, Page 3)

Guinea Pigs Are Killed In Blaze

Eight guinea pigs were burned to death in a garage fire early this morning with the building receiving light damage.

The fire is believed to have resulted from an electric light bulb igniting the bedding of the guinea pig cage, according to the Pampa Fire Dept., which answered the alarm at 7:15 this morning.

The garage is located on the rear of the lot at 1414 Williston owned by S. E. Waters.

Sixteen Killed In Series Of Plane Crashes Yesterday

By United Press International

Sixteen persons died Wednesday in a series of plane crashes from New Mexico's wild snow-swept Sangre de Cristo Mountains to the Atlantic Ocean.

An investigation continued into Tuesday's Continental Airlines crash at Kansas City which killed eight persons.

Fourteen Navy crewmen died when their anti-submarine patrol plane plunged through light rain into the Atlantic 300 miles off Maryland.

Wreckage and bodies from the Electra turbo-prop were sighted by a search plane.

A search of northern New Mexico's rugged mountains turned up the bodies of two crewmen killed when a Strategic Air Command B52 bomber crashed and burned. Four crewmen parachuted to safety and were rescued from the snowy wilderness.

The dead in the B52 crash were Maj. George J. Szabo, 44, Colum-

Proposed Facilities For 'Home' Announced

The third organizational meeting of the 60-member nursing care home campaign executive committee will be held at the campaign headquarters at 4 p.m. tomorrow. Each of the present members is expected to bring two prospective members to the meeting, according to Teed.

The facility is to contain 50 beds, large activity and dining room, nurse's station at intersection of all corridors, Occupational therapy room, prayer room, 8-12 private bedrooms, individually controlled air conditioning, two-way intercom with nurses' stations, adjoining toilet to each room, individual dressing tables, night lights, comfortable furniture, and a lounge at the end of each wing.

"Nursing homes above all should approximate the homelike atmosphere as closely as possible," Teed said. "A somber, institutional character must be avoided."

According to Dr. M. C. Overton, the nursing home is a type of facility which is emerging to serve patients with chronic disabilities or long-term illness when hospitalization and intensive medical care are not indicated.

"When this skilled nursing care cannot be properly given in the patient's home, the nursing home serves as an intermediary facility between the hospital and the patients' homes," Dr. Overton said.

Seeks Help For Sagging Economy

LONDON (UPI) — Britain rebounded from a French blockade of its path to Europe today and sought help from the United States and other free world nations to bolster its sagging economy.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, bitterly denouncing the "folly" of French President Charles de Gaulle, called Wednesday night for a speed-up of trade and tariff consultations with Washington, the Commonwealth and Britain's six partners in the European Free Trade Area (EFTA).

Macmillan accused France of deliberately torpedoing the Brussels negotiations on British membership in the six-nation European Common Market. Without directly naming De Gaulle, he sharp surge of critical comment in France was given new impetus by Jean Monnet, often described as the "father" of the common market. He called the situation very serious "because the mutual confidence indispensable to all common agreement has been smashed."

De Gaulle, who feels Britain is not ready for Common Market membership, was said to be unmoved. Authoritative sources in Paris said the 72-year-old French leader plans to let tempers subside before pushing ahead with his "grand design" for a Europe independent of the United States.

Aides quoted De Gaulle as saying Wednesday "in a few months, when the present uproar has died down, they will see I was right again."

Washington isn't bothered by the breakdown of the Brussels talks caused no unusual excitement in Washington. U.S. officials felt the development might slow down but not divert the present U.S. drive to promote free trade in the West. The view still was prevalent that Britain eventually will be accepted in the Common Market.

The collapse of the Brussels talks led to the immediate cancellation of British negotiations to enter the European coal and steel community and the European Atomic Community (Euratom). Officials said the three communities form a single grouping and there could be no membership in only one of them.

The French veto also brought about a boycott of the other five

JRS Officer In Address Here

Tax law changes enacted by the 1962 Congress were discussed by Richard V. White, local Internal Revenue Service officer, at a breakfast meeting of the National Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce in Coronado Inn this morning.

Changes discussed included faster depreciation allowance for new machinery; pension plan for self-employed persons, and business expense account deductions.

White was introduced by Roy Sparkman, chairman of the National Affairs group.

Varmint Gets Away After Capture Here

An American marsupial of the Didelphidae family completely outwitted a city policeman and the two sons of a city commissioner last night.

Mike and Gene Fort, sons of City Commissioner L. P. Fort, called police at 9:45 p.m. yesterday and said they had "a varmint cornered in the back yard" at the latter's home, 233 S. Sumner.

Patrolman Don Aycock answered the call and found the Fort Brothers tangling with an angry possum.

Aycock wrote in his report of the incident that "after much deliberation, Gene Fort finally got the possum by the tail."

This, apparently, was much against the possum's wishes but Patrolman Aycock said they got the animal to the patrol car and, with Fort holding it by the tail, drove to Dog Warden Buster Collins' truck and tossed the possum into a cage.

Figuring that the animal was bedded down for the night, the Fort brothers went home and Patrolman Aycock resumed his duties after noting that "there were no injuries except, possibly, to the possum's tail."

Then came the dawn.

A supplemental report by Dog Warden Collins this morning said: "The possum escaped from the cage during the night. He's gone."

Common Market Members—West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Netherlands and Luxembourg — of a French-called meeting of financial ministers scheduled for Baden-Baden, Germany, Friday.

The French had announced they would seek barriers to Anglo-American investment in Europe. Macmillan told the British people not to be discouraged.

"We must rely on our own determination and vigor," he said.

Britain Will Rebound

"Is this gloomy or grim?" he asked. "Not at all. It is the kind of situation in which we have always done brilliantly in the past—and so we will do again."

He said France seems to think that one nation can dominate Europe and that Europe can live alone without friends and allies.

Roger Cecil Scott, 47, will join the Pampa police department tomorrow as a patrolman in the city's Negro section, it was announced today by City Manager Harold Schmitzer.

Scott comes from Amarillo where he was employed as a city patrolman for ten years.

The city manager said Scott was recommended for appointment by Police Chief Jim Conner.

The new addition to the police force will replace George Washington Callahan who retired on disability pension Dec. 31.

Scott will have an office in a new park building being erected in the South Pampa area and will be given an allowance for a car which will be equipped with police radio.

Mr. Phillips, a former Pampa resident lived at 901 Barnard and was superintendent of the Wilcox Oil Co. lease, east of the city.

Among the survivors are his wife, of the home in Stroud; one daughter, Mrs. Joe Cox, and one granddaughter, Sue, both of Philadelphia, Pa.; and a niece, Mrs. Floyd Crow of Pampa.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Crow are planning to attend the funeral services in Stroud.

payments would cut domestic market prices to levels competitive with prices paid by foreign mills, while scientists seek to help farmers cut production costs through moves like elimination of the boll weevil. When costs come down, Kennedy said, price supports to growers could be reduced.

The President urged approval of new cotton legislation before the end of February so it could apply to planting of the 1963 crop.

He recommended that farmers be allowed to grow cotton above their basic 1963 acreage allotments for export at the world price. He said that in 1963, the extra planting at export prices—about 8.5 cents below present domestic supports—might be permitted at up to 20 per cent above the already announced 1963 acreage allotments.

For feed grains, Kennedy proposed continuation of the voluntary acreage-reduction programs which Congress approved for 1961, 1962, and again for this year.

He pointed out that if no new legislation is enacted this year, the current farm law will allow unlimited feed grain production and price supports will come down from this year's $1.25 per bushel on corn to a "disastrous low" of about 80 cents.

of $75 a week in his sister's hardware store.

Live With Sister

Hodge will live in a room at his sister's modest bungalow, a block north of the lavish two-story house which the state seized and sold to recover some of the money he stole while serving as state auditor. Hodge's wife lives in Florida. His son, who dropped out of the University of Missouri when Hodge went to prison Aug. 20, 1956, operates a Granite City insurance business.

While serving as Illinois' state auditor, Hodge was known around the state as one of the last of the big spenders. He entertained with lavish parties that were the talk of the state capital, bought yachts, planes, and big cars, passed out expensive gifts to friends and speculated heavily in Florida real estate.

He posed as a millionaire with independent means inherited and multiplied by canny investment. But he financed his career as a playboy tycoon with phony state warrants cashed through a banker friend in Chicago.

Matter of Fact

Housewives need not worry about leaving canned soups on their shelves indefinitely. Heat-processed soup will remain in good condition for years if stored in a cool, dry place. Caches of canned foods left by explorers in the Antarctic were found to be fresh and edible 46 years later. In heat-processing, the cans, after being filled with soup and sealed, are heated by steam in a closed-pressure vessel called a retort.

Tree Deadline Is Cited By SCD

The Gray County Soil Conservation District has announced that the deadline for getting Ponderosa Pine trees in cooperation with the SCD is nearing for county farmers and ranchers.

The trees are available for farmstead and feedlot windbreaks. Bruce Nursery, between LeFors and Alanreed, will pot the trees and they will be sold at a low price.

"Now is your opportunity to set out your tree windbreak. Windbreaks will beautify farmsteads as well as provide protection against winter's cold winds and snow," local SCD officials said.

Bruce Nursery plans to get all of the trees distributed by the last of February. If you plan to set out trees this year, drop by Bruce Nursery and pick up the trees you need. Recommended planting dates are February through April, SCD officials added.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Whatever Nikita Khrushchev may think about East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht privately, publicly the goateed Ulbricht scarcely could have asked for more.

"Ulbricht is the carpenter and I am the joiner," said Khrushchev. "His friends are my friends."

So, for the moment at least, Khrushchev, arriving for the sixth congress of the East German Communist party, set to rest speculation about the future of the man who has been rumored ready for the Kremlin ax more often than any other satellite leader but who has outlived them all.

As the Kremlin's overster for East Germany, Ulbricht has been somewhat less than successful either in restoring the East German economy or in winning friends for the Soviet Union. His regime depends upon the presence of Soviet armed forces.

Architect of Wall
The Berlin wall, of which Ulbricht reportedly was a chief architect and which was designed to halt the mass outflow of refugees threatening the East-German economy, also proved less than a success.

In the last year more than 12,000 East Germans risked Communist bullets to escape across it, and the economy nosedived to even greater depths.

The potato harvest fell 43 percent lower than in 1961, sugar beets 32 per cent, maize 37 per cent and wheat 24 per cent.

There were 46,000 fewer head of cattle and 1.3 million fewer pigs.

Yet for now Ulbricht is the best that Khrushchev has, and, besides, Khrushchev had other fish to fry.

Favor Returned and, as he keynoted the opening of the party congress in East Berlin, Ulbricht obediently picked up his cue.

China, he said, violated the doctrine of co-existence when it attacked India without consulting or even informing its Communist allies.

China and Albania are oriented toward war, which "has become unrealistic in the settlement of any dispute. . . disputes must be settled through negotiation."

As for Germany:
Berlin tensions can only be settled through the West Berlin city government, not by Bonn; direct negotiations must take place for creation of normal relations between East and West Germany.

There probably is not a more hated man in the whole of Germany than Ulbricht. He scarcely would seem to be the man to carry on successful negotiations. But West Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, an adamant foe of any settlement short of German reunification, now is a lame-duck chancellor. Khrushchev may hope Adenauer's successor will be easier to deal with.

Female Trumpet Tooters Should Toot In Private

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — Females who toot trumpets ought to blow their horns in private. With mute, please.

Better yet — let them put their musical instruments in moth balls. Sure, it's cultural to make sweet music. But trumpet playing's something that's strictly for males concludes a new study.

The recommendation for a grand pause among female-trumpet blowers is the result of research on women in cultural affairs.

The research, conducted by sociology students at Fairleigh Dickinson University in Madison, N. J., attempted to determine types of artistic activities appropriate for men and for women to engage in.

A group of sociology students interviewed three groups of people: Fairleigh Dickinson university students; students from three high schools, and 100 husbands and wives residing in a nearby New Jersey town.

"The only activity in which a majority desired a one-sex monopoly was trumpet playing," the researchers reported in "University Woman," a quarterly.

The only other activity in which even a minority wished to maintain men's domination was that of professional artist-painter.

Let's get the impression that the females scored badly, hear this:

There were seven cultural areas which at least a small minority thought appropriate only for women. The areas: museum work, attending ballet performances, playing the piano, literary club discussions, playing the violin, painting as a hobby and enjoyment of poetry.

That might be good news for some males!

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's budget plans for the next fiscal year and his deficit record since taking office invite attention to the 1960 platform pledges made when he was seeking the presidency.

"Fiscal responsibility" was the subhead under which the 1960 Democratic presidential platform outlined the party's ideas on tax revenue, spending and balanced budgets. There were six specific platform pledges:

To end gross waste in government agencies that needlessly increase government spending.

To collect billions of dollars in taxes owed to the government but uncollected by the Eisenhower administration.

To close tax loopholes favoring certain privileged groups.

To obtain additional federal tax revenue by expanding the U. S. economy or, as candidate Kennedy often said, but getting the country moving again.

To raise taxes if national responsibilities require it regardless of any political disadvantage thereby suffered.

To balance the budget.

Much of the foregoing was the purest baloney—as platform promises, Republican or Democratic, usually are. The Republicans challenged the 1960 Democratic platform on charges that it did, in fact, promise a vast spurge of new government spending that would make budget balancing impossible without higher taxes.

If the Kennedy administration has reduced wasteful government spending, the evidence to prove it is lacking. The comptroller general of the United States continues under President Kennedy as under his predecessors to publish several times a week analyses of government spending. These prove that government spenders are wasteful like a sieve is wasteful of water.

Big Spending
Government spent $76.5 billion in fiscal year 1960, the last Eisenhower year. Kennedy is winding up for a spending budget of about $89 billion in fiscal 1964. He has scored a Treasury deficit in each year of his presidency so far and is committed to another in fiscal 1965.

Instead of raising taxes to offset bigger spending, the Kennedy administration proposes now to reduce taxes. The argument in behalf of that, and it has some merit, is that tax reduction would be a shot in the arm for the U. S. economy. There is mighty little, if any, administration effort toward reduced spending, however, and at that point in his tax program the President is encountering formidable opposition.

The President comforts himself with the knowledge that the dollar-rotting currency inflation has slowed in recent years.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most stocks have not been "getting anywhere" for the past two weeks, notes L. O. Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co. but the list has not developed any real weakness after its last sharp rise.

A traditional approach would require more strength and activity in speculative issues before there is an important correction. Hooper believes that, from a long-term investment point of view, the quality stocks are the interesting issues to buy and hold.

The automotive industry seems to be furnishing its own answer to the question: Can it ever have two big sales years in a row, says Frederick J. Millett of Goodbody & Co. It is generally conceded that 1963 will be almost as good as 1962 — possibly even better. While leading auto stocks have staged sharp recoveries from the 1962 lows, the group is still priced at levels which justify maintenance of long-term positions, and, in certain instances, warrant current purchase.

The President comforts himself with the knowledge that the dollar-rotting currency inflation has slowed in recent years.

He Proposes Sale Of Federal Holdings

The United States could liquidate its $300 billion public debt by selling, if enough well-heeled buyers were found, the real and personal property of our government — lock, stock and barrel. No one, I'm sure, would advocate that we do this. No one would want to sell the White House or the Capitol or our nuclear submarines or our great national parks or even very many of the equestrian statues that dot Washington.

But I'm convinced that this government owns far more real estate, land and buildings, than we really need. A good round of auction sales, following a thorough audit and study, would help the nation's financial position. If the proceeds of these sales were properly applied, the national debt could be reduced.

I have introduced a resolution (House Resolution 68) in this new 88th Session of the Congress asking that a nine-member House committee be appointed to investigate the government's real property holdings and to prepare a complete inventory. The purpose would be to formulate recommendations as to which property we'd keep and which we'd sell. The committee also would establish property management policies after determining what policies are now in effect. Sales would follow.

We have built up in this nation a stockpile of land and buildings every bit as extravagant as that exposed in last year's Senate investigation into the stockpiling of strategic materials. We've accumulated heaps of unwanted chrome, tungsten, lead, nickel, feathers and other substances, all in the name of preparedness. President Kennedy is expected to ask soon for authority to sell surplus stockpile items. I believe we should carry this approach a step farther by investigating and arranging to dispose of part of our real estate stockpile.

This is the eight-year history of our mounting accumulation of real and personal property: 1955, $207.9 billion; 1956, $235.4 billion; 1957, $249.1 billion; 1958, $262 billion; 1959, $264.5 billion; 1960, $275.9 billion; 1961, $282.9 billion; 1962, $293.3 billion.

The House Committee on Government Operations has released its annual inventory report of government holdings, real and personal. It is an excellent report, but it does not constitute the item-by-item listing I'd like to see. Some agencies have provided better information than others; a committee staff member told me, "This year we have information from the Defense Department that never was available before." According to the committee, the Treasury Department was fully cooperative. I think, however, that because the job is so immense a special committee should be assigned to it. That my resolution seeks to accomplish.

For the first time in recent history, this year's report shows the total value of government holdings to exceed the national debt total. Had we sold everything as of last July 1 for the listed value, the United States could have liquidated its real and personal holdings for a total of $299.4 billion. On that date the debt was $298.2 billion. We'd have been in the clear by $1.2 billion but we'd miss those B-25s and the Capitol.

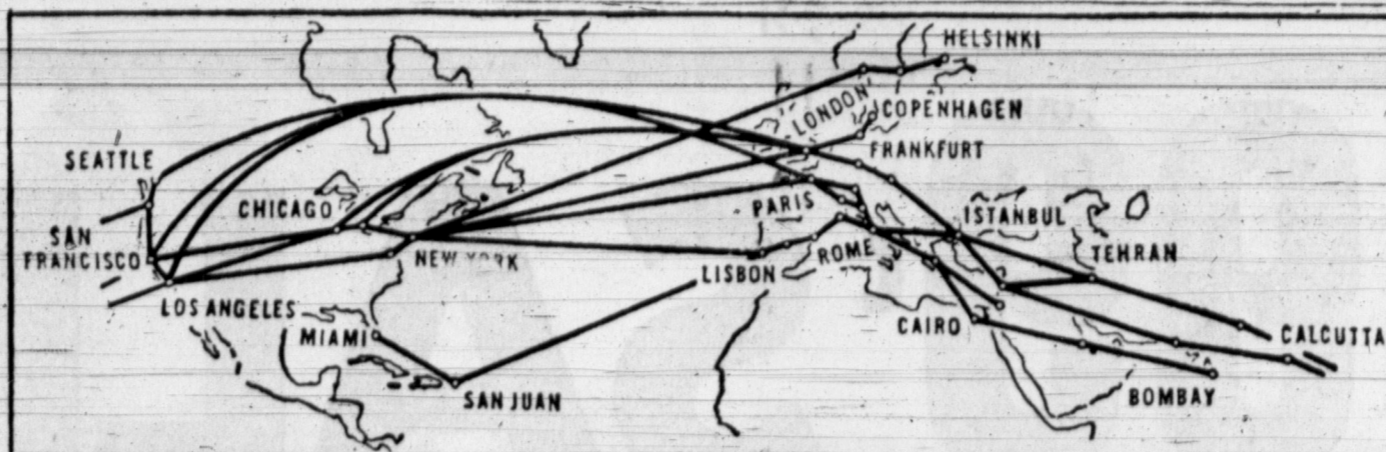

The dollar values listed in the report are deceptively low. Much of the property was entered at acquisition cost. The 18 acres of land surrounding the White House are officially valued at only $1,000. The government's total real estate holdings of 772 million acres — an area four and a half times the size of Texas — are valued at only $86 billion. Although Amarillo Air Force Base is not specifically mentioned in the report, its land and buildings are valued by the Air Force at $74,851,048, a figure that might represent not more than half of the actual replacement cost.

The government buys and buys, and rarely sells. We have vast areas of land and military bases and warehouses and factories and waterfront property that private business could put to work. We don't know how much our government owns or how much it's worth. We should find out. We should begin to take steps to sell some of it.

KANSAS City, Mo. (UPI) — City Judge Alex Peebles sentenced John L. Johnson, 22, Tuesday to three months of weekends with his family.
Mrs. Johnson said at a peace disturbance hearing that her husband was a good worker who brought his paycheck home, but disappeared weekends.
The judge ordered Johnson to leave home weekends only in the company of his wife and three children and told Mrs. Johnson to report his progress to the court.

AIRLINES' MERGER IS POSSIBILITY—Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airways are considering a merger. If approved by shareholders, the Civil Aeronautics Board and President Kennedy, the merger would end duplication of, but not necessarily reduce, present services. Newsmap shows how routes of the two lines, if merged, would serve the United States, Europe and points in northern Africa and southern Asia.

Dressing To Dine Gives Valentine Party Status

Ribbons-and-roses table setting for a St. Valentine's party is colorful, simple to manage. Cherub holds the centerpiece of pink roses interspersed with green fern, trailing out tied to lengths of pink ribbon. Pink roses in napkin rings echo rose print on vinyl place mat.

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
St. Valentine's Day may be just the occasion for a budding hostess to practice some of her newly learned social skills.
The romantic atmosphere evokes a mood the young understand. The colors and sentimental symbols—Cupid and his arrows, pink roses and red hearts, lace and ribboned frills—offer a storehouse of charming and easily executed ideas for table settings that will draw compliments. And compliments, sweet music to any hostess, are especially cherished for first efforts.

This is the time to dress up. Ski sweaters and stretch pants, pizzas and sloppy Joes just don't jibe with Cupid. If there is a high school dance, a before-the-dance sit-down dinner for three or four couples might be just right. Young teens may not be self-confident enough for mixed boy-girl parties which they must help "hostess."

Better for building poise is to encourage them to entertain a few of their close friends. But you may have to insist on the "dressing-up" angle to give this party status.
How many skills can the young hostess practice? Most girls will have positive ideas about the guest list. I'd expect our socially shy 13-year-old to plan an acceptable menu, to plan and execute a simple table setting, to contribute some assistance in the kitchen (if not the main dish, then dessert made ahead of time). She needs practice in serving and clearing a table properly.

Keeping the conversational ball bouncing is not the problem in our family, but being mindful that guests deserve to get a word in edgewise does need stressing.

My well-intentioned efforts to introduce a note of social polish into the barn-and-blue jeans life of our daughter are often greeted with the plaintive groan so familiar to social studies teachers handing out weekend homework. My suggestion that she plan a Valentine birthday luncheon for a relative was greeted as expected, but the idea is beginning to sink in.

As a starting point for an idea for a table setting, we might consider the pretty, romantic new place mats. For example, one new textured vinyl mat has ribbons and roses printed on it in soft reds. This could lead to rose-spiked napkin rings, to rose printed place cards and to a centerpiece of roses (real, plastic or homemade ribbon rosettes), tied on pink ribbon lengths.

If you're in a bridge game with players better than you are, say once you wished you played better, and drop the subject.

Dear Abby.... 'Second-Timer' Can, Too, Wear White!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am being married for the second time. The wedding will take place in the minister's study with only a few guests present. I would like to wear a white silk cocktail suit. I have been told by several of my friends that I should not wear white because white stands for maidenhood. Of course I wouldn't wear a veil. I'd like your opinion.

PROPER LEE CONCERNED
DEAR PROPER LEE: The traditional white bridal gown originated in the early Saxon days, when the poorer brides wore plain white robes to indicate they had no wealth and were not responsible for their husbands' debts. The white bridal costume has more economic significance than moral. So wear the white silk suit, and better luck this time.

DEAR ABBY: Do all wives make themselves out to be house-keeping martyrs, or is my wife the exception? There are just the two of us, and our home is equipped with an electric washer, dryer, ironer, cooking range, blender, can-opener, grinder, coffee-maker, floor polisher and every other work-saving device you can name. But my wife complains she is "overworked." We even have a maid to run these gadgets while my wife plays cards five afternoons a week. So what should I do?

EARL
DEAR EARL: Buy her an automatic card shuffler.

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago I was caught with cigarettes in my purse. I lied to my mother and told her they belonged to a friend of mine. She found out I lied and I was grounded for a month. I promised I would never smoke again. I was in the drug store with another girl and we were smoking. A friend of my mother's saw us and told my mother immediately. Now I am grounded for I don't know how long. The worst part of it is that now my mother has lost all trust in me. I don't really know why I smoked after I promised I wouldn't. I suppose I just wanted to feel big and bad. How can I get my mother to believe that I have learned my lesson and I will neither smoke nor lie again?

TRULY SORRY
DEAR SORRY: It will probably take a long time for your mother to regain confidence in you. There are no short-cuts. The only way you can build trust and confidence is by being completely honest in all things from now on.

Padded Shoulders Make New Debut

By ALINE MOSBY

United Press International
PARIS (UPI) — Jacques Heim brought widened padded shoulders back to women's fashions today. Other Paris designers have added gently to the width of shoulders in the spring collections but Heim, a designer patronized extensively by foreign buyers, especially from the United States, went all the way.

Reporters attending his press showing poked the shoulder of one model as she hurried by in a pink coat, and felt padding not seen in Paris for years since those "Joan Crawford" shoulders went out of style.

Heim used wide, bell-shaped sleeves, elbow length, on nearly all of his clothes. He called these sleeves "cornucopia," and dubbed his spring silhouette "Queen of Hearts."

Actually the silhouette featuring pencil-slim skirts also is "the mushroom look."

Most of his collection featured the bell sleeve. He used it on everything from a navy blue mohair seven-eights coat to a white linen suit. The daytime linen dresses had bell sleeves and even Heim's floor-length evening gowns sported them in billowing chiffons.

HD Council Plans Valentine Party

Plans for a Valentine party to be held Feb. 12 at 1:30 p.m. were discussed by the Gray County Home Demonstration Council in a meeting held Monday afternoon in the Courthouse Annex.

A committee to work on the Annual Fat Stock Show were also named at the meeting. Committee members are Mmes. Lester Reynolds, chairman, A. P. Coombs, Carl Smith, D. W. Swain, Roy Tinsley, Francis Cox, Bob Brandon and Nolan Cole.

In the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Swain, the secretary's report was given by Mrs. Cox and the treasurer's report by Mrs. Tinsley.

Members attending, not previously mentioned, were Mmes. Carl Smith, Boyd Brown, Varde-man Smith, R. W. Beck, Walter Noel, Lester Reynolds and Miss Lou Ella Patterson, Gray County Home Demonstration agent.

One white Heim coat had so much back fullness that the mannequin looked as if she were slinking into a stiff wind. A black cocktail dress had ruffles around the bare back. One long, strapless evening gown of blue chiffon had a peplum of four ruffles at the back and a band of rhinestones under the bustline, empire style.

In building a fashion wardrobe, dressing like your best friend. Search for unusual fabrics and colors, handsome and interesting pieces of jewelry lovely, shining leather.

Japanese Influence And French Peasant Suits Dominate Spring Fashion Picture

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press International
PARIS (UPI) — Some American buyers viewing the Paris spring fashion collections said today they have seen nothing new so far.

"We have not viewed many collections, but so far we have not seen any models that we will buy," said the president of one New York store who asked not to be identified.
He said several New York stores sent fewer buyers than usual because the New York newspaper strike has cut into department store business.

Two of the freshest ideas noted so far in the collection previews were the Japanese tea room outfit and French peasant suits shown Tuesday by J. F. Crahay. Crahay's peasant suits were regarded as highly commercial, if not high fashion, by reporters who watched them paraded by models in bright linens, shantung and even wools.

The designers are using so many plaid and solid wools that the spring shows have a wintry look that is right in keeping with Paris' freezing weather.

The peasant suit is gathered at the top and has full sleeves gathered at the wrist, like a French peasant's or artist's smock.

Crahay's next idea for spring of 1963 was to make women look

Take It From Kathy

by Kathy Peterson

Dear Kathy: I've been going pretty steadily (not steady) with a certain boy for four or five months. Our school has dances every other week and we attend many of them. My objection is that he waits until the last minute to ask me and takes it for granted that I'll be available. This sometimes leaves me a little uncertain about how to plan but I enjoy going with him very much. I want to know what I can do to hint that he should give me more notice.—Puzzled.

Dear Puzzled: A few well-chosen words on the subject at the right time will accomplish a great deal more than hinting. There isn't a single reason for hurt feelings if you tell him about your problem.

There must be many times you could plan something else but don't, because you think he might call. The next time you attend a dance with him, bring up the subject when things are most relaxed and pleasant.

Let him know you're having fun, then tell him you are glad he called when he did because you were just about to make plans to do something else. Mention specifically one of the things you had considered. It should be easy to lead the conversation from there to the point you would really like to discuss—that you wish he could let you know about invitations sooner so you could plan to be free.

There isn't a crystal ball and mental telepathy won't work so take the bull by the horns and tell him about it.

Learn How To Figure Income Tax Deductions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many people pay the federal government more income tax than they actually owe because they're unwilling—or unable—to figure their deductions.

If you've been one of them in the past, this is the year to learn about deductions.

As pointed out in a previous dispatch, you are not taxed on your total income, but on what the government calls your "taxable income." And in computing your taxable income, you are allowed to deduct from your total income money which you spent during the previous year for certain purposes, such as interest payments, church contributions, real estate taxes, etc.

There are two ways in which you can claim deductions:

1. You can itemize all of the deductions to which you are entitled, listing each of them on your tax return.

2. You can claim the so-called "standard deduction," which is exactly 10 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

Taxpayers with incomes of less than $3,000 use the tax table to take the standard deduction.

Up To You

It's entirely up to you which way you do it. The Internal Revenue Service assumes you'll be smart enough to figure your tax both ways and take the cheapest way.

Claiming the standard deduction may appeal to you because it's simpler and easier to do, and can be done on the short-form 1040A if you're otherwise entitled to use it (the ground rules on this were explained in the first dispatch in this series).

If your adjusted gross income, for example, was $5,210, you may claim a standard deduction of $521, without offering any explanation or itemization. For most taxpayers "adjusted gross income" is simply total wages and other income on line 9 of Form 1040.

There is a limitation on the standard deduction, however. You can't claim a deduction larger than $1,000 this way. For example, even if your total income was $12,000, you'd have to settle for a $1,000 deduction if you wanted to claim the standard, non-itemized deduction. Married couples filing separately cannot take over $500 each.

Remember: You can claim the standard deduction whether or not your deductible expenses during the year actually totaled as much as 10 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

Taxpayers Can Save

But many taxpayers—especially those who are liberal givers, who have mortgages on their homes, or who have had a lot of sickness in the family in the past year—can save a good deal by itemizing their deductions.

This is true in any case when the itemized deductions will add up to more than 10 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

To itemize your deductions, you must use the long form, 1040. There's space for listing deductions on page 2 of the form, or you can write them out on a separate sheet, attach it to the form, and put the totals of the various deductions on the form itself.

In filing a joint return, you may deduct the eligible expenses of both husband and wife. You may not deduct expenses which other dependents paid out of their own funds.

Which expenses are deductible? The major categories which affect most taxpayers are summarized below. You'll find additional details in the little booklet, "How To Prepare Your Income Tax Return," which accompanies Form 1040. Feel free to telephone or call at your local Internal Revenue Service office for advice on doubtful points.

Interest payments: Any interest paid on a debt for which you are liable is deductible. To compute the interest portion of installment purchase carrying charges, follow this formula: Take the amounts you owed on the time purchase at the beginning of each month last year; add these amounts, divide by 12, and take 6 per cent of that figure. This is your deduction provided it does not exceed the total carrying charge for the year.

Medical expenses: If you were under 65 at the end of 1962 you may deduct medical and dental expenses which exceed three per cent of your adjusted gross income. If either you or your wife was 65 or over before the end of the year, you may claim all medical expenses incurred by you both. But in either case drugs and medicine may be included only if they exceed one per cent of your adjusted gross income.

You may also deduct all medical expenses of your dependent parents who were 65 or over by the end of the year. In a joint return this applies to your wife's parents if they were your dependents and 65 or older. For a dependent parent under 65 the three per cent rule applies.

Deductible medical outlays include payments to physicians, surgeons, dentists, optometrists, qualified psychologists and Christian science practitioners.

Also deductible are expenses for hospital bills, nursing, laboratory services, eyeglasses, hearing aids, artificial limbs, ambulance charges and the out-of-pocket cost of transportation to and from a doctor's office or hospital.

Payments for drugs and medicines may be included in medical expenses to the extent they exceed one per cent of your income. This includes drugs for persons of all ages.

You may also deduct payments for hospital and medical care plans. But your medical expense deductions must be reduced by reimbursements you got from health insurance or similar sources during the year.

The maximum deduction you can claim for medical expenses is $5,000 for each member of the household who qualifies as an exemption (including yourself) but not over $10,000 on a separate return and $20,000 on a joint return or head of household return. Not many people are likely to bump

Taxes: Most state and local taxes directly levied on you may be deducted. These include state income, real estate, personal property and state and local sales taxes. If you haven't kept track of your outlays for state and local sales taxes, you can obtain from any Internal Revenue Service office a table showing the "reasonable figure" which you may estimate you spent, considering your income and place of residence. You may not deduct federal excise, Social Security or income taxes; hunting or dog license fees; water assessments; or auto inspection fees.

Child Care: Costs are deductible only if incurred while a woman was working or looking for a job or by men who are divorced, widowers or legally separated. The dependent child must have been under 12. He or she need not be the taxpayer's son or daughter. Also eligible is the cost of care for any other dependent physically or mentally unable to care for himself.

In all circumstances a child care deduction may not exceed $600. You may not deduct payments to baby-sitters you hired so you could go out socially.

Contributions: Deductible if they go to religious, charitable, educational, scientific or literary organizations. However, the organizations must not be operated for personal profit, nor carry on propaganda nor engage in lobbying in Congress or other law-making bodies. Political contributions, whether to parties or individual candidates, may not be deducted.

In general, a deduction for donations may not exceed 20 per cent of income. But it may go as high as 30 per cent if the extra 10 per cent covers donations to churches and certain other tax-exempt organizations.

Employe Expenses: If you incurred business expenses, such as travel or auto use, for your employer for which you were not reimbursed, or only partly reimbursed. The net cost to you is deductible. To take this deduction you must do two things: (1) Itemize all expenses you had, including those for which your employer paid; (2) Include his advances or reimbursements to you in your income.

People such as outside salesmen who have substantial amounts of unreimbursed employee expenses would be well advised to deduct these expenses directly from their gross income on line 1, page 1, of Form 1040, rather than as itemized deductions on page 2 of the form. You still have to account for the expenses, of course. But if they are deducted directly from your income on page 1, you may then find it more profitable to take the standard 10 per cent deduction rather than itemized deductions. This is a perfectly legal procedure and the rules are laid out on page 4 of the little booklet which accompanies your Form 1040.

Education Expenses: You may deduct education expenses incurred primarily to maintain or improve skills required in your present job, business or profession, or to meet requirements to keep your present position. The expense is not deductible if its primary purpose was to qualify the taxpayer for a better job, higher salary or new type of work or to fulfill his general educational aspirations.

Miscellaneous Deductions: You may claim deductions for money or property stolen from you; for damage to your property caused by flood, storms, explosion, freezing or lightning; for damage suffered by your automobile in an accident, or your home in a fire. However, you may deduct only losses not covered by insurance. If part of the loss was covered by insurance, you can claim the uninsured part. Gambling losses are deductible only as an offset to gambling winnings reported on your tax return.

You can also deduct such costs as union or professional society dues; fees paid to employment agencies; and safe deposit box rent.

Everything About Reds Spells Optimism To Boss

By FRED HUTCHINSON
Cincinnati Reds' Manager As told to HARRY GRAYSON

TOMMY HARPER "Most sought player"

... We have three of the most effective starters in baseball in Bob Purkey, Joey Jay and Jim O'Toole, who among them won 60 games. Jim Maloney is the likeliest fourth starter. The fifth spot could be a battle between John Tsitouris, Joe Nuxhall, Jim Owens, Ken Hunt, Sammy Ellis and Marv Fodor, a 21-year-old right-hander.

... The Reds' catching is extremely competent. John Edwards is continually improving. The Ohio State alum has power, speed, tremendous desire and should be a fear-some hitter. Pitchers like to pitch to him.

... doing that, Gene will have to beat out Eddie Kasko and Harper at third base.

... Shortstop Chico Ruiz had a remarkable season at San Diego, leading the Pacific Coast League in stolen bases with 40. We also have Don Zimmer.

... I doubt that there is a club in the business as well equipped in the outfield as we are with the incomparable Frank Robinson, the lightning-fast Vada Pinson and Jerry Lynch and Wally Post driving in 119 runs and manufacturing 29 home runs between them.

... We lost more first year kids than any club except the Baltimore Orioles in the draft. President and General Manager Bill De Witt didn't want to put anyone on our roster who we didn't believe could make the club just to protect him.

... The Redlegs have youngsters to press established players all the way along the line. Tommy Harper was probably the most sought player in the major leagues in trades this winter. Harper, 22, was the Pacific Coast League's All-Star third baseman with San Diego.

SKILL TO SPARE by Dick Weber

31-The 3-9 Tandem wood can be the toughest kind of spare. There is always a tendency to chop that is take out one pin and leave the other stand. Some try odd angles to overcome this but there is really only one consistently successful way to make a tandem such as the 3-9. Hit the front pin, in this case the 3, squarely. If you hit it right, the 3 will carry through and take the 9.

HIT the front pin squarely. The ball crossed across to the Brooklyn side.

Imagine a low-loading wagon roomy enough to handle most anything you can left—and still trim enough to slip into cramped parking spots. We imagined it, built it and called it Chevy II. Made it as dependable as a wagon can get. And made it so it'll keep piling up savings over the years. Those show up in the way this one goes and goes on a gallon. They grow with brakes that adjust themselves. An exhaust system that lasts longer. And a Delcotron generator that keeps battery reserve power up. Want to hear more? How To Understand Modern Economics

We are indebted to the Chicago Tribune for this elementary lesson in New Frontier economics. Here is the piece from the Tribune called:

Alice And The Deficit: "Hatter," said Alice, "can you explain Walter W. Heller?" "Certainly," said the Mad Hatter. "Who is he?" "He is the government economist," said Alice.

Rustling, Modern Style

Millions of automobiles change hands in the United States each year. Not a small proportion of these exchanges come as startling shocks to their former owners through theft.

DEFINITIONS

Difference Between Freedom and Liberty Discussed

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph. D.

In this age of continuing exhibitions of semantic legerdemain, it seems logical to define a few things from time to time, for instance, the difference between liberty and freedom.

The inmate of a prison is at liberty to walk in the prison yard at certain times, he may even engage in a sport but he is not, in any sense, a free man.

Men and women who demonstrate a strong opposition to collectivism and totalitarianism, generally, may logically call themselves libertarians.

A libertarian might find himself in agreement with a certain conversation piece typical of socialists, for instance, a socialist would say he wants to abolish poverty and the libertarian would be inclined to go along with this

Edson In Capitol

PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The most complete overhaul of United States tax rates in 20 years, just proposed to Congress by President Kennedy, is an apparent effort to give some relief to every bracket of taxpayers.

Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon is scheduled to present draft legislation to the House Ways and Means Committee Feb. 6.

That should be about May 15. Allow three months for Senate action and couple of weeks for Senate-House conferences to iron out differences and it is close to Sept. 1.

The President's message calls for part of the tax reduction to be made retroactively effective as of Jan. 1, 1963.

Another step in the reduction program would be made effective Jan. 1, 1964.

Included at this time would be 21 structural tax reforms of an extremely technical nature, if they are approved by Congress.

There is bound to be considerable tax confusion in this period, with rates changing every year.

Details of the new program are so complex that any attempt to review or even list all the changes in this limited space would be futile.

In summary, tax savings would be 40 per cent for people with adjusted gross income below $3,000, falling by a graduated scale to 10 per cent for incomes over $50,000.

Whether the program will do all the things the President says it will is open to question.

The President again puts tax reduction as the most important business before the new Congress.

Tax cuts will naturally increase consumer spending by individuals as soon as their withholding taxes are reduced.

Whether tax reduction alone will step up economic growth and the output of goods and services by several times the amount of the tax cut — $13.6 billion over three years — will have to be demonstrated.

Tax cuts alone can hardly cure unemployment nor guarantee full employment. Tax reduction does not necessarily mean that there will be price stability.

From many places will be heard demands that government spending must be cut, too, for fiscal responsibility.

Good luck and good health to you, in freedom.

THE UN IN THE CONGO FACT VS. FANCY

The Biblical statement that "the love of money is the root of all evil" is no less true of nations than of men.

An understanding of the background of the current illegal UN action in the Congo can be gained from "Rebels, Mercenaries and Dividends—The Katanga Story" (recently published by Praeger, Inc., 64 University Place New York 3, N.Y. $4.95).

The author, Smith Hempstone, points out that the UN has ignored the fact that the tribe is the basic political unit in the Congo.

Hempstone traces the economic background of the Congo—its existence as the personal property of King Leopold, its later progress under the Belgians and its present-day economic divisions.

Men who will complain to high Heaven about a condition, but will do nothing to try to help that condition are becoming as numerous as termites around a woodpile.

For all the jokes told about politicians, if there is a man anywhere who is completely honest, and qualified to serve in politics who will neither shirk nor dodge duty, then that man is worth his weight in gold.

Now perhaps we should be a little bit cautious about criticizing my Uncle Little, because his fault seems to be one a great many people have.

It would be interesting to take a count among our loudest grippers about the way our government is run and see how many of them have paid a poll tax and can vote.

A common fault usually found among loud complainers is, "they put their tongue in action before they get their mind in gear."

Middle age is when your tripping is less light and more fantastic.

The American Way

WHAT DO THEY MEAN?

By Harry Browne Editor, American Progress Magazine

In recent months, the political pundits have taken up a new cry—"The Constitution is outmoded."

They tell us that our Constitution was alright in its day, but was designed for "an eighteenth-century agrarian economy."

Of course, since these wise pundits speak in their native tongue of "governmentese," it is often difficult to understand exactly what they're getting at.

1. The "Constitution is outmoded" argument. What they mean is: "Despite America's past greatness, you citizens aren't smart enough to manage your own affairs in this advanced age."

2. The "Constitution hobbles us" argument. What they mean is: "Your freedom is totally unimportant. What is important is that we have absolute freedom to experiment with your lives and earnings."

3. The "no authority" approach. This means: "We want the president to be an absolute dictator with authority to do anything he wants, just like other dictators."

Perhaps it's time for us to return such ideas to the old world from whence they came.

1. We believe that the government's economic practices of the 30's, 40's, 50's, and 60's are old-fashioned. They are the same socialistic, welfare-state programs that have brought poverty and enslavement to every other nation in history.

2. We believe that the resultant restrictions on human liberty are "unsuitable for today's problems."

3. We want the "strong man" presidency concept returned to the enslaved countries from which it came.

America desperately needs to move forward. It can't do it while "hobbled" by big government, high taxes, low incentive, and bureaucratic dictatorship.

De Gaulle's Grand Alliance with West Germany To Include Secret Help on French Space Program

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — General Charles de Gaulle's grand alliance linking France and West Germany is just the beginning.

Another as-yet-unannounced part of his grandiose plan calls for huge space and missile programs to supplement the independent nuclear deterrent force he is creating.

This mighty "third force," due to materialize in the late '60s, will be built around a nucleus of 13 different types of ballistic missiles the French are now developing.

Under the new accord, these French projects will be expedited with secret financial and scientific help from the West German's.

These and other unpublished details of De Gaulle's grand space design are being studied by top officials of the Kennedy Administration following completion of a private Defense Department survey of France's missile space projects.

Titled "French National Space Program," the survey reveals De Gaulle as pushing to give France (and later Europe) a nuclear missile striking force and military satellite reconnaissance and communication capabilities that both the U.S. and Russia will have to consider in their future strategy plans.

This space analysis lists the most advanced and powerful French missile as the Diamant-3, scheduled to be tested later this year and operational by 1965.

This dual-purpose ballistic missile is designed to carry a 2,900-lb. nuclear warhead to a target 3,600 miles away, or launch a 600-lb satellite in a 300-mile-high circular orbit.

VARIETY OF MISSILES — Under De Gaulle's program, two other missiles — Emeraude and Pegase — will be tested before spring at France's rocket range in Algeria.

The three-stage Emeraude is being developed to place military satellites, including one similar to our spy-in-the-sky Samos, in orbits from 150 to 500 miles above the earth.

If De Gaulle approves plans of his scientists for a manned-space program, either the Emeraude or Diamant-3 will be used to boost the capsule into space.

The Pegase is one of France's most powerful research rockets. It has an altitude of 800 miles and a proposed range of 1,000 miles, and will be tested in a few weeks.

Other French missiles, with ranges of 75 to 1,000 miles, under development and in line of their importance include: Saphir, Berenice, Anthesis, Daniel, Agathe, Veronique, Eridan, Dragon, Centaure and Belier.

The French now have from 60 to 80 of these missiles on hand to use in their testing program.

LOOKING FORWARD — According to the Defense Department's survey, French officials would welcome U.S. technological help in developing their inertial missile guidance systems. However, they

Here's Why Legislators Spend So Little Time In Formal Session

By VERNON SMYLIE
AUSTIN — If you should decide to come down and watch the Texas Legislature in session, you'd better pick your time with the greatest of care. Otherwise, you might not see a session at all. It usually is around 10 o'clock in the morning when the Legislature moves into session. Sometimes it's 11. It's not unheard of for one or both chambers to come to order at high noon. A break for lunch is customary. Then, in the afternoon, quitting time can come almost any time. Near the start of a legislative session, that can be pretty early—2 or 3 o'clock. One other thing: Don't plan a Friday visit or you may miss all the way around. The Legislature has a way of knocking off on Thursdays for a long weekend. This may make it sound as though legislators have pretty soft hours. Well, don't jump to any such conclusion. It merely means that members of the Senate and the Texas House of Representatives do more work out of formal session than in session.

Actually formal sessions probably are the easiest part of a legislator's work. They certainly are the most glamorous part. The other parts frequently are tiring, demanding, time-consuming, and, all too often, thankless. They are the real back-breakers. In every legislator's life is an endless chain of committee meetings. Each member of the Senate and the House usually serves on from five to ten standing committees. If a senator or representative is particularly influential, he probably will be chairman or vice chairman of one or two committees. Such assignments signify leadership. They are desirable. But they also add to a legislator's work load. Except under extraordinary circumstances, committees don't meet while a formal legislative session is in progress. That means committees must meet before sessions, during breaks in sessions, and after sessions. It isn't unusual for a committee with a heavy workload to work all evening. Meetings often last until after midnight. All members of the Senate have private offices and so do 91 of the 150 House members. They usually arrive early in the morning to attend to the daily work routine. That includes reading and answering mail, visiting with constituents, conferring with other legislators, and preparing for the events of the day. If a representative doesn't have a private office he must work at this desk on the House floor. Somewhere legislators manage to squeeze in the errand running, job interviewing, and other tasks imposed by constituents. Over the course of a regular legislative session, these chores can be numbered into the hundreds. Never, though, can they be successfully neglected. A legislator must attend strategy meetings concerning certain legislation. He must plan and frequently draft bills and resolutions. He must confer with the presiding officer in his chamber to try for

The Lighter Side On Congressional Junkets
By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—As public servants, members of Congress oftentimes must perform duties that are burdensome and possibly even dangerous. Among the onerous tasks that can befall the lawmakers are assignments from congressional committees to make post-adjournment trips to strange and distant lands. Most congressmen would, of course prefer to spend the entire adjournment period in their home districts, familiarizing themselves with the problems of their constituents. But when there are matters overseas that need their attention, they seldom shirk. Their credo in this regard might be stated as follows: "Ask not only what we can do for our country, but what country we can do it in."
Families Too
Some of them even have been known to expose their wives and children to the rigors of foreign travel, which reflects a dedication over and beyond the call of duty. Along with numerous other citizens who have the interests of our lawmakers at heart, I have long felt that something should be done to relieve them of this obligation. I was pleased, therefore, to note that the House Rules Committee, which is known for the quality of its mercy, has moved to eliminate some of the hardships. The committee has proposed new rules which would in effect, restrict journeys by House members to those who might conceivably have some valid reason for going abroad. Brakes On Spending
In addition, the changes would lift from their shoulders the onus of helping to dispose of foreign currencies that the U.S. government has accumulated under its aid programs. These currencies, known variously as "counterpart funds," or "play money," would no longer be spent with unguarded vigor. They would be listed on a congressman's expense account, just like the real stuff. I think the committee's action is to be commended. From time to time, reports have drifted back of members of Congress overexerting themselves in their zeal to reduce the counterpart surplus. The new House rules would not unfortunately, provide a y protection for members of the Senate, who have perhaps been even more selfless and courageous about accepting duties across the seas. As taxpayers, let us hope they will decide to spare themselves, too.
