Pampans Are Exonerated Shooting Incident Is Probed By Jury

The 31st Judicial District Grand Jury opened its considerations for the January term of court here yesterday and returned eight indictments, voted three no-bills and exonerated a Pampa family in a shooting incident which took place early Sunday morning.

In a written statement to District Judge Lewis Goodrich, the Grand Jury reported that it had inquired into the shooting incident. The statement follows:

"To the honorable Lewis M. Goodrich, judge of the 31st judicial district of Texas:

"Your Grand Jury for the County of Gray, State of Texas, for the January 1963 Term respectfully reports that we have inquired into the facts and circumstances with regard to the shooting incident which occurred on East Francis Avenue in Pampa, Texas, on January 6, 1963, in the early morning, and we respectfully report in connection therewith our finding that the M. T. Harmons were justified in the protection of their home and are to be commended for their action in that no more serious consequences resulted.

"We return herewith eight indictments and we report that we have voted three no bills.

"We desire to adjourn subject to call.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) Lynn Boyd Foreman"

Seven of the indictments returned by the jury are listed here and the eighth was withheld because the indicted party is not in custody.

Federal Grand Jury Is Probing Walker Charges

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—A federal grand jury convenes here today to take up charges against 11 persons, including former Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker, arrested in connection with racial rioting at the University of Mississippi.

The 11 face a variety of charges, including rebellion, insurrection and conspiracy to oppose the authority of the United States. The grand jury takes up the charges a day after Negro student James H. Meredith's announcement that he will not attend "Ole Miss" next semester "unless definite and positive changes are made."

Meredith's enrollment Sept. 30 sparked rioting in which two persons were killed and scores were wounded.

Conditions Not Specified

The 29-year-old Negro, under increasing pressure from slipping grades and shooting incidents directed at his family, did not specify the conditions under which he would remain in the university, but he said the changes would have to "make my situation more conducive to learning."

He emphasized he was not quitting the school outright. "Rather, my decision is not to attend the university next semester under the present circumstances," he said.

The riot cases were not the only ones scheduled before the grand jury, and any indictments handed down probably would not come up for trial until next May when the U.S. District Court for Northern Mississippi begins hearing trial cases.

Appeals to Parties

Meredith's statement brought an immediate appeal from Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, who asked that state and school officials meet the conditions. Kennedy said that if Meredith leaves the university "it would be a reflection" on the United States. He urged school and state officials to "make it possible for Mr. Meredith to continue his education without interruption."

The attorney general also urged Meredith to consider "hopes of many of his fellow citizens" before leaving school.

LOOKING FOR STATUE

HAVERTHILL, Mass. (UPI)—Police have asked for public aid, in their search for the thief who stole a $250 statue from the Pen-tucket Club a week ago.

The statue is called "Diogenes and Lighted Lantern in Search of an Honest Man."

The indictments:

Ben Hassler, Forgery and Passing.

Robert Arthur Sanders, Theft by false pretext.

Elmer Bynum, Forgery and Passing.

Calvin Lemon Jones and Eddie Lee Wells, acting together, Burglary.

Daty Rodrick McCain, Jr., Driving While Intoxicated, second offense.

Lawrence Eugene McWilliams, Driving While Intoxicated, second offense.

Orris L. Wedge, Obtaining things of value with intent to defraud.

Bond on each of the above was set at $1300.

Oral Arguments On 'Recall' Set In Amarillo Court

Oral arguments on the recall election appeal of three Pampa city commissioners were scheduled this afternoon in the Seventh Court of Civil Appeals at Amarillo.

The case was the outgrowth of a decision handed down by Judge Lewis M. Goodrich in 31st District Court here last April.

Judge Goodrich, following the district court hearing, ordered the recall election on Commissioners L. P. Fort, Lloyd Simpson and Leon Holmes after petitions had been circulated in the city's four wards and in the city at large urging recall of the mayor and all four ward commissioners.

Commissioner Neut Secret, also included in the court action, later resigned. Mayor E. C. Sidwell submitted to the recall election and was retained in office by a vote of the people.

The original action was brought by Herman Whalley, W. C. Fry, Claude Wilson, A. W. Lunford and A. C. Troop, who, through their attorney, Walter Norman of Borger, held that the petitions calling for the recall of the ward commissioners were legal. Clayton Heare of Amarillo, defense attorney for the Pampa City Commissioners, argued that the petitions were not valid because a city-wide petition was required for each ward commissioner rather than the individual ward petition.

The five plaintiffs in the court suit were members of a candidate slate of officers to seek election to replace the current city officials in event the recall was upheld by the voters.

The mandamus action has been pending in the courts since April 13 of last year when the district court decision was handed down.

No decision was expected after the oral arguments today. It was indicated that the court ruling might be forthcoming within the next week or two.

A new city election is scheduled for April 2, less than three months away.

Demos Think They've Found A Top Combination In 'Rules Fight'

A Considerable Price May Have Been Paid

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Democratic leaders in Congress put together today what looked like a winning combination for Wednesday's opening-day struggle with conservatives for control of the House legislative machinery.

Liberal members were relieved that the latest headcount pointed clearly to an administration victory in President Kennedy's first test of strength in the 88th Congress. Privately, however, they were concerned at evidence that a considerable price may have been paid to assure it.

They wondered whether the nails holding together the pro-administration vote package might not turn out later to have perched the vitals of some of the President's more controversial legislative proposals.

What could prove to be the winning margin of votes from Georgia, Texas and other southern states, seemed to hinge on hopes or promises that boded no good for Kennedy's medicare plan or for his expected proposal to curtail the oil industry's tax depletion allowance.

At separate pre-session caucuses today Democrats and Republicans were expected to line up for and against Speaker John W. McCormack in his struggle with rules committee chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., for working control of Smith's committee, which sits afloat the stream of legislation from other committees to the House floor.

McCormack would save, only that he was "optimistic," but his aides said they had counted the votes to win, with some of the latest pledges coming from Southern states where some of the President's more controversial proposals are not overwhelming popular.

Extra and in some cases previously unexpected pledges of backing for the administration position came from Democratic delegations of North Carolina, Florida, Georgia and Texas. Some Republicans also were committed to vote with the Democratic leadership.

It was becoming apparent that the South this time will provide substantially more of the votes that the leadership needs than it did two years ago.

Switch of Votes

For example, instead of the two votes provided by Georgia last time, it appeared that nine or 10 would swing to the leadership position. A North Carolina caucus turned up three or possibly four votes against only one in 1961.

Florida, which provided the leadership only one vote in the fight two years ago, was reported ready to come through this time with as many as five.

In the Senate, leaders made plans to defer the main debate on their anti-busster rule change.

POSTAGE STAMP RUSH — Pampans yesterday gave the local post office a rush, "the likes of which I've never seen," according to Postmaster O. K. Gaylor. "They've been just swarming in here since we opened the window early this morning," he said. With the advance of postal rates effective January 7, from three to four cents on postal cards, from four cents to five cents on first class mail, and from seven cents to eight cents on air mail, every one seems to be short a one cent stamp to go with their regular three, four and seven-cent air mail stamps and envelopes. Postmaster Gaylor said Monday's rush was more than twice the amount of stamp purchases during the best day in December during the holiday rush. After the day's receipts were added up last night, it showed a total of 37,500 one cent stamp sales and 54,000 five-cent sales. (News Photo)

Tshombe In Return To Elisabethville

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (UPI)—Katanga President Moise Tshombe returned to Elisabethville today a few hours before United Nations Undersecretary Ralph Bunche was to leave here for Leopoldville.

Tshombe arrived in nearby Kipushi at noon aboard a chartered private plane, then drove the 25 miles into his capital of Elisabethville in a Rhodesian army jeep.

He was met at the Kipushi airport by a handful of Rhodesian army officers and four newsmen. Kipushi is on the Katangese-Rhodesian border.

Tshombe's arrival put him and Bunche, U. N. Secretary General Thant's personal emissary in Elisabethville at the same time. There was no immediate indication they would meet.

Tshombe Remains Mute

Tshombe refused to comment on what conclusions he planned.

Diplomatic sources earlier discounted any chance that Tshombe would meet with Bunche who arrived here over the weekend to study the U. N. fighting in Katanga.

The diplomats said Bunche, in a meeting with consular representatives Monday, clearly indicated the United Nations had nothing to discuss with Tshombe.

It was believed that Tshombe had been in his south Katanga stronghold of Kolwezi—about the only major Katangese city which the U. N. has not captured.

Earlier, it had appeared that top officials of the Katanga regime were sending their families away in preparation either to fight or flee.

Wife in Belgium

Tshombe's wife and the wife of his defense minister Joseph Yav, arrived in Belgium Monday night. With Mrs. Tshombe were her 3-year-old daughter and the fiancée of her eldest son Joseph, who is studying in Antwerp.

A spokesman for Mrs. Tshombe said in Brussels that she made the trip only to be on hand for an operation on another daughter who is a student in Belgium. It was not explained why Mrs. Yav was along.

In the past Tshombe has slipped into the neighboring Rhodesias to keep out of U. N. hands.

Red Chinese Give 'Positive' Response About Mediation

TOKYO (UPI)—Communist Sino-Indian boundary question he found without delay in keeping with the spirit of the 10 principles of the Bandung Conference.

The Bandung Conference in 1955 called for policies of non-aggression and non-intervention in affairs of other states.

Today a Red Chinese newspaper said India has failed to demonstrate sincerity for peaceful negotiations on the border dispute. Editorials from the papers were quoted by the news agency.

The Peking People's Daily, the Communist party newspaper, said India was only "blustering incessantly" about settling the dispute.

It said India was permitting "imperialism" to promote plans to make "Asians fight Asians."

Renewal Of Tax Contract Asked

The Pampa Independent School Board voted today to request the city of Pampa to renew a contract relating to availability of tax information.

The Board of Trustees at its regular monthly meeting voted to ask renewal of the contract which involves the city supplying the school with various tax information. The cost of the service provided by the city is $3,600 a year.

In other business, the board voted to accept a proposal for a bond refunding issue on the stadium and gymnasium, with the approval of the school district lawyer. The bond refunding issue would save the school a considerable amount of money, according to board members.

Mrs. Donna Cornutt was approved as a replacement for Mrs. Janice Webb as registrar at Pampa High School. Also, the board approved the application of Ernest E. Silva, science teacher at Caver.

The board approved the bills and invoices for the past month totaling $20,299.98.

58th Legislature Is In Session Today

AUSTIN (UPI)—The 58th Legislature convened today under an economy-minded leadership to tackle critical state spending and battle over changes in the sales tax that could cost Texans $10 million more a year.

For the Senate, the first week of the new session will be a case of marking time since senators must await the inauguration of Lt. Gov. Preston Smith to get committee assignments.

But the House, after it goes through the formality of electing a speaker, should get right to the business at hand. There was some talk of an early test on House rules, but committee assignments for representatives should come quickly so they can get right to work.

Under Gov.-elect John Connally, a new era in Texas government and politics begins with the session at high noon. There will be a more conservative House and a more moderate Senate. And for the first time in modern history, there will be a two-party look, however slight.

There are seven Republicans in the 150-member House, five more than in the last legislature. Six are from Dallas, one from Midland.

When outgoing Secretary of State P. Frank Lake raps the gavel to bring the House to order, first order of business will be selection of a House speaker. Rep. Byron Tunnell of Tyler has an estimated 130 votes pledged, giving him the post, though there may be a protest candidate.

Economy Demanded

Sen. Culp Krueger of El Campo president pro tem of the Senate will bring the Senate to order at the same time the House meets. Senators will elect Sen. Martin Dies Jr. of Lufkin to succeed Krueger as president pro tem. Dies will be presiding officer until former Sen. Preston Smith of Lubbock is sworn in as lieutenant governor next Tuesday.

A minority group planned a last minute protest of Tunnell's election as speaker to replace James A. Turman of Gober. The group, mostly San Antonio and Houston liberals, planned to offer a protest candidate in an attempt to weld a coalition.

Dies Favored

Dies' selection as president pro tem followed normal procedures. He and Sen. Louis Crump of San Saba were in line for the post on the basis of seniority. They agreed Dies would serve during the session and Crump would serve after the session ends until another one begins.

For the first time in many years, Texas has new leadership in the House. Senate, governor's office and other high administrative offices.

Lawmakers were expected to wait for Connally's legislative recommendations before getting into full swing. Connally will be inaugurated next Tuesday.

Floor action will have to wait until committees are appointed, and bills are introduced, heard and approved for debate.

Tunnell promised to name House committees as soon as possible after he takes office. Smith will have to wait until after the inauguration.

The Texas Highway Patrol reported that the accident took place at the intersection of State Highway 114 and U. S. 287 in Rhoma. Dorman suffered minor facial cuts and was treated and released from a Rhoma hospital. Bateman was not injured. Details of the accident were unavailable at press time.

Cuban Invaders Urge Formation Of New Force

MIAMI (UPI)—Four recently released Cuban invaders, charging that America has "acted like a second-class power" in vain efforts to overthrow Premier Fidel Castro, today urged formation of a new, "large-scale" Cuban invasion force outside the United States.

The four, who described themselves as spokesmen for a minority faction among the invasion veterans, said President Kennedy's Dec. 29 call for unity among Cuban refugees was "a smoke screen to cover up the fact that the United States really has no plan to solve the Cuban problem."

They also assailed "false leaders" of the Cuban refugees—a shaft clearly aimed at Jose Miro Cardona and his Cuban Revolutionary Council.

The four are Enrique Llica Jr., Sergio Galeano, Manuel Camargo and Enrique Rodriguez.

They say they represent 100 of the 1113 invasion prisoners ransomed by the United States for $62 million. These 100 ex-prisoners boycotted Kennedy's Orange Bowl welcome to the freed Cubans.

The four spokesmen said they have resigned from Invasion Brigade 2506 "to prepare a new plan of action against the Castro regime." They said the brigade should be disbanded because it was organized "for a purpose that failed."

US, Russia In Settlement Of 'Cuban Crisis'

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—The United States and Russia, over Cuban opposition, Monday night reached a compromise settlement of the Cuban crisis which brought the world to the brink of nuclear war less than three months ago.

The settlement did not satisfy the U.S. demand for "adequate inspection" of the removal of Soviet offensive weapons from Cuba and guarantees against their return. Nor did it bring a pledge from President Kennedy—as demanded by Russia and Cuba—against invasions of Cuba.

Wheeler County's Sheriff Injured

Wheeler County Sheriff Bus Dorman was injured slightly and Texas Ranger Bill Bateman of Pampa escaped injury when the two men, riding together in one car, were involved in an auto accident in Rhoma, Texas, near Fort Worth, this morning.

The Texas Highway Patrol reported that the accident took place at the intersection of State Highway 114 and U. S. 287 in Rhoma. Dorman suffered minor facial cuts and was treated and released from a Rhoma hospital. Bateman was not injured. Details of the accident were unavailable at press time.

Here Are The Top Issues

AUSTIN (UPI)—Here are the top issues facing the 58th legislature as it convened today:

—Revising, or streamlining the 2 per cent limited state sales tax. This will include lifting exemptions on clothing items costing less than $10. Some lawmakers feel strongly about "clarifying" some sections of the sales tax law.

—Finances and economy. Speaker-designate Byron Tunnell and many other lawmakers have spoken out for some form of economy in government. Tunnell believes the 58th legislature may be known for "putting the brakes on government spending."

—Loan shark regulation. This issue, which has caused about as much wrangling in recent sessions as any other, is sure to come up again. More than 90 per cent of lawmakers surveyed some weeks ago by United Press International indicated they would support some form of loan shark law.

—Tuition May Rise

—Tuition increases and educational matters. The Board of Higher Education has recommended increasing tuition at state-supported colleges from $50 to $100 per semester to help finance rising costs of higher education. This probably will bring a lengthy fight before it is resolved.

—Redistricting. Texas gained a congressional seat as a result of the 1960 census and now has a congressman-at-large. This means congressional districts will have to be shuffled to form a 23rd district. (See ISSUES, Page 3)

PROPOSED NATIONAL FISHERIES CENTER AND AQUARIUM

PROPOSED D.C. AQUARIUM—Sketch, above is cross-section of a gallery in the proposed Interior Department's National Fisheries Center and Aquarium. Galleries would connect a series of circular pools around the perimeter of the V-shaped facility. The controversial $10 million project has been criticized on grounds that the money could better be used for Capital welfare or school affairs. Proponents maintain that cost, plus an estimated annual operating expense estimated at about $800,000, can be met from admission fees. The cross-section of the gallery shown locates research facilities on upper level at right, over tanks where fresh and salt water are purified. Public portion of gallery, at left, has fish tanks and educational displays.

Toastmasters Initiate New Members

The Pampa unit of Toastmasters International, a local club with membership from the Pampa area only, met Monday night at 8:30 at the Coronado Inn for the weekly "whirlwind" meeting.

One guest, Sam Burns, was present and two new members, Bob Fitzgerald and Harry Mitchell, were initiated. "Buzz" Roberts was instrumental in obtaining the two new recruits.

There were four speakers for the evening—two of whom were still in the student category: W. A. Morgan, speaking on the subject, "It's not a toy," and John Darnell, whose subject was "The Closing Year," were tied for first place honors and share holding the "Speakers' trophy" for the week. The trophy is a rotating award, covered by those competing in their speeches, and goes to the weekly winner, as chosen by fellow members.

Dr. Bob Sybert and Lloyd Kuntz were the other two speakers of the evening.

Table topics of the evening, where each member makes a two minute talk on a subject chosen by the Topic-Master, was on sports in general and the football bowls in particular. Some interesting comments were made concerning the number of bowls and their general interest to the public.

W. A. Roberts, president, stated that the enthusiasm in the club is tremendous and good humor is a continuing thing all during the meeting. Roberts stated that most people "aren't fully informed as to just what the Toastmaster's Club really is. We are a group of men who desire to improve our speaking ability, to learn to think standing on our feet before a large group or audience and deliver a short talk or speech effectively.

Our prepared speeches at each meeting are very effective in learning and teaching the fundamentals of speaking and lecturing and the "table topic" session gives invaluable experience in "off the cuff" speaking."

The members of Toastmasters invited interested Pampans and Gray countians to visit them at any of the regular Monday night meetings. Membership vacancies exist and information may be had by calling either Morgan at MO 5-5862 or Bob Ferguson at the Pampa Daily News, MO 4-2525.

Whatley Is Trustee For Wayland

Calvin Whatley, 1120 N. Starkweather, recently appointed a trustee of Wayland Baptist College at Plainview, was among 39 area trustees of the college who last week unanimously elected Dr. Roy McLung, pastor of First Baptist Church in Plainview, to the presidency of the college.

Dr. McLung announced Sunday at church services in Plainview his acceptance of the appointment to the post, succeeding Dr. A. Hope Owen, who asked to be relieved of the college presidency.

Whatley, who is a deacon, a member of the finance committee and teacher of a men's Bible class at First Baptist Church here, has been a member of the Wayland College board of trustees since November, when he was chosen at the Texas Baptist general convention.

Whatley was recommended to the board of trustees post to succeed Dr. E. Douglas Carver, pastor of First Baptist Church in Pampa, who has served on the board for a number of years. Whatley is office manager for the Cabot Corp. in Pampa.

MoD Film Shown To Kiwanians

A film depicting work being done by the National Foundation for the March of Dimes featured the program at the weekly meeting of the Top O' Texas Kiwanis Club in Coronado Inn last night.

The program, introduced by Paul Musgraves, was presented by Harold Miller and Don Loshner.

Bob Price, new president of the club who will be officially installed with other officers at the club's annual installation banquet Jan. 18, presided at his first 1963 meeting.

George Darby, assistant manager of the Pampa Foundry, was introduced as a new member by John McCausland.

The club also arranged to send a delegation to the installation night banquet of the Downtown Kiwanis Club Thursday night in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room.

Catalog Holder Theft Reported

Police today received a report from J. E. Maher, 501 N. Wells, that a catalog holder, valued at $75, was stolen from his car parked near St. Vincent's Church on Christmas Eve.

Maher said he had not reported the theft sooner because he thought there was a possibility he had left it some place on one of his calls.

Maher had reported the theft of two 8-foot booster cables from his car while he was attending Christmas Eve-midnight mass and said he believes now that the catalog was stolen at the same time.

Since the catalog holder would be of no value to anyone else, police said, they thought someone might have found it. The holder measures 9 by 16 by 16 inches.

Tunnell Says Legislature Will Have A Personality All Its Own

(Editor's Note: A man who will be in the thick of legislative maneuvering next session is the Speaker of the House, Rep. Byron Tunnell of Tyler, is considered a certainty for election as speaker when the 58th session opens Tuesday, Jan. 8. Here, in an exclusive report for UPI, is his outlook of the issues that will face the House.)

By BYRON TUNNELL
Written for
United Press International
The soon-to-meet Texas Legislature, if like most of its predecessors, will quickly evolve a personality and public identity all its own.

One legislature, for example, made its reputation by passing the Gilmer-Aikin School Program. Another became famous for blocking a sales tax.

My guess is that this legislature could become known for (1) putting the brakes on spending, and (2) meeting its responsibilities for higher education.

I think we'll see some brakes put on spending because the voters of Texas are demanding it. Both Gov. John Connally and Lt. Gov. Preston Smith were elected on platforms pledging economy in state government. I have the greatest respect for both men and will do everything possible to help them reach this worthy objective.

As a beginning, I intend to announce all House committees just as soon as possible after my election as Speaker, thereby enabling all committees to start immediately to work. This should reduce some of the costly delays that have resulted in past years and enable the legislature to get most or all of its work done during the regular session.

Progress in Education
I think we will see spectacular progress in the field of higher education because of the tremendous interest being shown in this area by citizens throughout Texas, especially by parents of children who soon will be seeking admission to colleges that are already full.

Although I am vitally interested in the adequate support of all state institutions of higher learning, the expansion of junior colleges to accommodate the enrollment increases for the freshman and sophomore years of college may well be the best answer and the most efficient way to finance the increased enrollments. The cost per student is much smaller in junior colleges.

These are my predictions, but I shall not be surprised if I am wrong. Any one of 181 legislators may introduce the big idea or controversial problem that will give this legislature its place in history.

There are several matters which could assume great importance, such as passing an equitable small loan law and modernizing the statutes as needed to correct the slant-hole drilling practices.

Other issues which are sure to receive legislative attention are women's rights, tourist promotion, state parks development, law enforcement, water development, and sales tax revision.

I anticipate a very close working relationship between the House, the Senate, and the governor. This should enable every representative and senator to keep the welfare of the state always uppermost in mind, with fewer distractions because of petty personal grievances and disagreements. All in all, this should be a good session if the high caliber of dedicated men who have been elected to serve in the House is an indication of what will be accomplished.

Republicans will occupy seven of the 150 seats in the House. I sincerely hope these men will vote and act as individuals rather than taking a party attitude. If they will act and vote in the best interests of the state, particularly in behalf of the people in their home districts, they will be accorded to same respect as other representatives and receive no punitive action because of their party affiliation.

On the other hand, if they should act as promoters and propagators for the Republican party, operating as a militant minority bloc rather than as responsible individuals, they will accomplish nothing for their districts nor for the state.

Tuition a Question
I do not know what the legislature will do with the commission on higher education proposal that tuition rates be increased for state colleges. If the tuition rate increase is authorized and the sales tax streamlined, these two steps could make a new tax bill unnecessary. The need for new taxes would be reduced, of course to the extent that the legislature, in cooperation with the governor, is successful in effecting economies in government.

Talk about economy in government always conjures up fears that some vital or essential service will be eliminated. But legislators individually and as a group have too much integrity and also too much concern for their own political future to let this occur.

The kind of wasteful spending we want to eliminate will be unnecessary administrative costs, unnecessary travel at state expense, unnecessary duplication of effort by two or more state agencies or by state and local agencies.

For example, appropriations for juvenile delinquency have increased to five times what they were just six or seven years ago. Could the legislature, by studying this problem and shifting the emphasis to prevention rather than incarceration, lessen the load on the taxpayers?

Is it possible that some responsibilities now assumed by the state might be reduced in favor of local control and local responsibility?

Republicans will occupy seven of the 150 seats in the House. I sincerely hope these men will vote and act as individuals rather than taking a party attitude. If they will act and vote in the best interests of the state, particularly in behalf of the people in their home districts, they will be accorded to same respect as other representatives and receive no punitive action because of their party affiliation.

Fancy Jewelry, Etc., Not Absolutely Necessary In The Making Of A 'Star'

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Character actress Irene Ryan is living proof that a gal doesn't need fancy jewelry, a stylish hairdo and the latest fashion clothes to become a big star in Hollywood.

Miss Ryan was a workaday actress who never quite reached stardom until she became "Granny," the salty matriarch on CBS-TV's "The Beverly Hillbillies."

The series, about country folk who struck it rich with oil on their land and moved to Beverly Hills where movie stars live, is among the top rated shows of the current television series.

"I've always worked and made a lot of money in this business," said "Granny" Ryan while lunching on a plate of cracked crab in the Brown Derby.

"But this show put me over the hill. I used to work with such as Rudy Vallee, Bob Hope, Danny Thomas and Tennessee Ernie Ford."

Discreet About Age
"I've been working since I was 13," said Irene who is discreet about her age, as any grandmother should be, real or make-believe. "But I've finally arrived because people want to know how old I am. Before, they didn't care if I was alive or not. And that was only six months ago. It's funny what a little success will do."

Miss Ryan is not a fuss-and-bother actress, one who worries about wardrobe. Her outfit on "hillbillies" may best be described as contemporary burlap.

"Everybody laughs when they come into my dressing room," said Irene, cracking a crab leg.

"They say, 'my gosh, Rene, here you are in a hit show and look at that wardrobe, a big nothing.' I wear a sort of burlap skirt and blouse and have a party dress that was bought at a used clothing store. My shoes are Army shoes. I had trouble keeping them because the sound department said they made too much noise. They gave me another pair but I didn't feel right in them. So I got my Army shoes back."

Lack Temperament
Miss Ryan and her video kink-folk played by Buddy Ebsen, Max Baer, Jr., and Donna Douglas get along like skunks in a hollow.

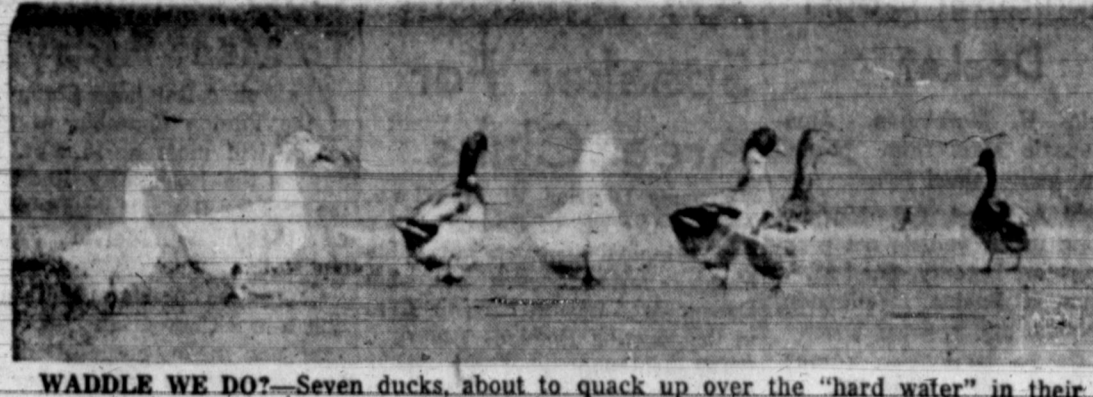

"We have no temperament," she said. "Everybody is interested in putting on a good show. Nobody is interested in who the star is, just so we can go to the bank every week."

Miss Ryan, dressed in a blue suit and wearing a pearl necklace, gold pin and bracelet, looked like she's not taking all the money to the bank and probably leaves some in exclusive movie-land shops.

The television mountain family was filming in the real Beverly Hills area a few days ago and took a lunch break in one of the community's fancy hotels. "Dressed in their country best, 'Granny' and her relatives looked like misplaced refugees.

"Everybody wanted to know if we were eating possum innards," she said. "But they weren't on the menu."

The Lighter Side What Prompts Those Questions?

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Just about my favorite feature in the periodical field is a question-and-answer column appearing in one of the weekly magazines.

Readers who "want to know the truth about prominent personalities" are invited to write in and ask about it and the magazine will undertake to straighten them out.

The answers invariably supply a nugget or two of information that I find gratifying. In a recent issue, for instance, I learned that there is no law against Zsa Zsa Gabor giving her age as 37 when she gets married.

"What mainly intrigues me, however, are not the answers but the questions. I find myself simply dying to know what caused them to come up in the first place."

The same issue that absolved Miss Gabor of felonious conduct in the listing of her age contained this question submitted by a man living in Washington:

"Is it true that Harry Truman is the only non-millionaire to have occupied the White House in the last 40 years?"

I couldn't help but wonder what sparked his curiosity on that point, and why he specified 40 years rather than, say, 50 years. My guess is that it stemmed from an argument with his wife.

Another question was "who is richer—Lucille Ball or Loretta Young?" For the record, Loretta is, but neither ever occupied the White House.

The question that really tied me in knots came from a person in Northridge, Calif., identified only by the initials "F.T."

"Three years ago Alan Jay Lerner, who wrote the lyrics for 'My Fair Lady,' wrote a situation comedy series for TV called 'Harry's Girls,'" he observed. "What happened to it?"

I'd give a pretty penny to know who "F.T." is. Why should he or she be concerned about a TV show that has been gathering dust for three years?

The only conclusion I can reach is that "F.T." is Lerner's manager, or his press agent, or maybe his wife or mother.

The magazine answered the question thusly: "MGM was unable to sell it for years. Recently, however, there's been talk that Colgate has bought the series for airing next year."

That could mean that "F.T." is an MGM vice president who is sending up a trial balloon. Or it could mean that he is a member of the advertising agency handling the Colgate account.

At any rate, as I'm sure you'll agree, Q.&A. of this type is stimulating reading. I can hardly wait for the next issue to come out.

"I burst into tears of joy when the bandages were taken off," said Mrs. Helen Cassidy, Garland, Tex. She was able to use her left hand for the first time in 12 years following surgery at the March of Dimes-financed Arthritis Clinical Study Center, Southwestern Medical School, Dallas. Later the same operation, in which metal hinges are substituted for finger joints, will be performed on her now useless right hand. This is just one dramatic example of how The National Foundation-March of Dimes nationwide programs aid victims of crippling birth defects, arthritis and polio through the best in scientific research and medical care.

Newspapers Cite Red Group In Mexico

By JAIME PLENN
MEXICO CITY (UPI)— Newspapers have charged that a national farm workers' confederation, organizing in Mexico City, is Communist. The newspapers also charged that occupation of land in northern Mexico by squatters was part of an international Russian maneuver.

The farm workers' confederation starts the second day of an organizational meeting today, Former President Lazaro Cardenas addressed the opening session of the convention. Other speakers praised the Havana and Moscow governments.

More than 600 delegates registered officials said.
Conditions Again Normal
Dispatches today said conditions in Chihuahua and Durango states, scenes of squatter action last week, had returned to normal.

"Ovaciones" said squatters in Chihuahua were evacuated by state authorities, with the aid of military forces.

"La Prensa" reported that federal forces, "without violence," had removed hundreds of peasants from occupied lands in Durango state.

The Guerrero state situation was brought up at the meeting in Mexico City by a delegation that charged "political persecution" continued, with more than 200 persons jailed in Iguala, Atzac and San Jeronimo.

"Federal forces" are active in southern parts of the state, they said.

Poor vs. Rich
Orators at the farmers' meeting charged that individual landowners have big estates with areas of millions of acres, while

Preston Smith Would Build Healthy Economic Climate

(Preston Smith of Lubbock will be the new presiding officer of the state Senate for the 38th Legislature. In an exclusive report for UPI, Smith gives his outlook on problems the state will face.)

By PRESTON SMITH
Written for UPI
The most absorbing question facing an incoming legislature is always a financial one. To paraphrase an old saying, money isn't everything in government, but it is far ahead of whatever is in second place.

The 58th Texas Legislature's fiscal problem is less pressing than that of its predecessor, which had to face up to a large and persistent deficit in the general revenue. This year — thanks largely to the sales tax — we have enough money in sight to maintain state spending at approximately the present level with perhaps $50 million left over.

"millions of peasants are without land."

Cardenas denied statements that the new organization or the "National Liberation Movement," in which he is active, would become political parties.

Whether this excess above current commitments will cover necessary or desirable increases for higher education, state parks, public welfare and other important responsibilities is a key question for the legislature to consider, after receiving the recommendations of both the outgoing and the incoming governors.

Complicated Problem
Piecemeal, each of these areas is a complicated problem in itself. Overall, we must decide what Texas must do and have in order to assure its future economic growth.

We are in a transition period, moving from an era in which we depended primarily upon the development of our natural resources into an era of urban growth and industrial expansion.

In my opinion, it is the fundamental obligation of the lieutenant governor (as it is certainly that of the chief executive) to

Besides known leftists, including some identified as Communists, persons on the speakers' platform at the peasant meeting included Celestino Gasca, retired army general, who was jailed in September, 1961, on a charge of preparing an armed revolt.

"Excelsior" characterized the new peasant organization as opening the way to a new political party, "under a radical leftist sign, with general Cardenas as the ideological guide."

Joint Responsibility
This is a joint responsibility of the government and the business community. I do not believe that the answer lies in any sort of governmental takeover of matters properly within the scope of private enterprise. I would list as public responsibilities these elements of a healthy economic climate:

A fair and equitable tax structure that encourages, instead of discourages, private effort.
— Adequate, although not proprietary, supervision of business, industry and the professions, to provide equal opportunity, maintain sound administrative practices, and conserve natural resources such as soil, water and minerals.
— Maintenance of a reasonable situation as between management and labor, which includes the retention of the state right-to-work law.
— Tourism Encouraged
— Aggressive action in those areas which are primarily state responsibilities (as distinct from those of the federal and local governments). These obviously include, as of 1963, the encouragement of tourism, continued improvement of our highway system and the continual upgrading of our educational system.
Such specifics as the passage of a fair and adequate small loan bill, scrutiny of regulatory practices in oil and gas production, and the growing problems of our rapidly growing municipalities will require many hours of earnest consideration.
As presiding officer of the senate, I will do all I can to assist in the orderly, fair, expeditious and yet deliberate disposition of these and other important matters which are sure to come before us.

SLIGHTLY BIASED

NEW YORK (UPI)—A "critic" reviewed the new musical "Oliver!" which opened Sunday night in New York during a newspaper blackout.

The review, read on a local radio station (WNEW), was filled with descriptive like "breath-taking, the greatest musical of all time, marvelous, staggering, transcendent, unique, incomparable, stunning dazzler."

The "critic" was David Merrick, the producer of the musical.

Between 30 and 50 per cent of America's farmers produce less than $1,000 worth of food each year.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
 United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Every so often, a new series come along that makes you sit up and take notice. ABC-TV's "The Dakotas," which had its premiere Monday night, is definitely not such a show.

It is, of course, a one-hour Western, and it is replacing "Cheyenne," which had to pack up after eight years because its star, Clint Walker, decided it was time to leave. This information came as a particular shock to those viewers who never knew he was there in the first place.

In the new (new?) series, according to ABC, "a U.S. marshal and his three deputies patrol the Dakota Territory, challenging all those who would violate its laws and threaten its peace."

The names of these four hardies are Larry Ward, Jack Elam, Chad (Chad?) Everett and Mike Greene. And except for Elam's homely kisser, the program is as unconvincing of novelty as a dog-eater on the warpath is of dignity.

It is my personal opinion that Mickey Rooney could polish off the whole quartet with a water pistol. It is nothing less than painful to recite the gruesome details of Monday night's story, but we are pledged to fair and constructive criticism. In brief, Elam, who portrays an ex-gunfighter, tries to avenge a friend's death, and kills an unarmed youth in a wild exchange of gun fire with a gang.

Actually (it becomes more painful), the youth is a bad one, all right, but his gun is missing, which puts Elam on the spot. After the usual stuff—angry townspeople, threatened hanging, trigger-happy young deputy—it turns out the sheriff is the culprit who hid the key weapon because he was jealous of his old gunfighting friend, Elam.

Keen-eyed viewers will note that "The Dakotas" introduces yet another Western series with a quartet of heroes. They will be hard-pressed, however, to note many signs of acting. Monday night there was more sneering and grimacing than at an office party.

Ward, by the way, is also a writer. And in a recent interview he said, "When you're too old to sit on a horse, you can go back to writing." Yeah.

In sum, the only way "The Dakotas" could go more downhill would be to have Mel Allen call it. The show was partly brought to us by Pepto Bismol for upset stomachs... Now, that's constructive.

The Channel Swim: Former President Dwight Eisenhower will discuss his views of the past two years in a one-hour conversation Jan. 23 on "CBS Reports"; the reporter is Walter Cronkite... Eisenhower already is scheduled for a half-hour special on NBC-TV Feb. 11, when he will appraise Abraham Lincoln as commander-in-chief and reminisce about his own role as head of the Allied forces in Europe in World War II.

NBC-TV's "Dick Powell Show" is having its title changed to the "Dick Powell Theatre"... Steve Allen's nightly syndicated program finally landed a Chicago outlet, starting next Monday; 28 stations now carry the show, among them 12 of the top 15 markets, including the first three.

Easy-going Perry Como is putting on the heat to meet "The Beverly Hillbillies" competition, which is clobbering him; in line with his expected emphasis on big-name stars, Peter Ustinov and Jane Powell visit his NBC-TV program Wednesday, Lauren Bacall turns up for her video variety show debut Jan. 23, and Charlton Heston guests Jan. 28.

In addition, the Como musicals, which usually sticks close to New York, may do a Mexico City broadcast; members of the production staff were to have flown there to look things over... Como and his troupe recently did a program from the Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba.

"Gay '90s" singer Beatrice Key appears on CBS-TV's Art Linkletter Show Wednesday... Sophie Tucker celebrates her 75th birthday on the same network's Ed Sullivan hour from Miami Beach Sunday.

New Swimwear Silhouettes For Resort Wear

NEW YORK (NEA) — Swimsuits for resort wear herald next summer's fashions on the beaches. And there are two major trends: the cover-up or one-piece suit, and the two-piece or modified bikini. But within these trends there are a great many differing swimsuit types.

Among them are the belted blouson, the swim dress with a graceful little skirt and the sleek swim sheath that offers everything a girl could want in the way of figure control. Many of the resort swimsuits are knits and of these, a goodly number are done in prints as well as in solid colors.

There are more high necklines than before, both in one- and two-piece suits. Some of these are shallow, square necklines, others are V shaped. Straps are wider and, quite often, are cut in one with the suit.

Paisley prints, important throughout fashion, appear in the new swimsuits, too. There are prints on stripes, stripes and interesting combinations of soft and vivid colors, from which to choose your suit.

Straight, simple tunics have been designed to wear as beach dresses. Then there are long pull-overs which display just a bit of swimsuit. These are designed to ward off breezes at the end of the beach day or at a beach picnic. And there are some new smock tops for the younger set and the handsome, classic tailored shirts for older women.

For winter vacations in warm climates and for next summer too, swimsuit nylon is the fabric used for this swimdress (center), a sea-going fashion that fashions show design variety in the one piece look. Belted blouson (left) offers true figure flattery. Lycra and nylon are combined in this sleek swim sheath (right) that has built-in figure control. This is a paisley print.

Senior Center Corner

Senior Citizens Center
By MRS. O. A. WAGNER

Happy New Year! Think it fitting to start out the new year by thanking the Altrusa girls, who sponsor the Center, the Gray Ladies who furnish transportation for those who do not drive, all the various clubs who act as hostesses also the various churches, Paul West of the Theaters, and Bob E. Parker of the Pampa Beauty College, for their many courtesies during the past year, the Seniors say THANK YOU one and all.

So many had company over the holidays, or visited relatives or friends and had an enjoyable time; including your reporter, who spent Christmas with her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martin, and daughter, Stella, and son, Henry, in Ventura, Calif. I get some gentle ribbing because of the absence of news from the old homestead; so will let you in on a little secret; without to travel to California without a ticket. The day before leaving, I thought it wise to clean out my purse and make room for all the extra needed for the trip, so when boarding the train was horrified to find I did not have the round trip tickets I had purchased the day before. All that was in the purse was the baggage check for my large suitcase. The porter says "Come on lady, you'll find it in there some place, you are holding up the train." So they wired back and forth, (I did remember the car and seat No.) and after writing a check for the fare, (to keep their records straight) the wire came that my neighbor had found the tickets, and they were on the way to California. Everyone on the train was very nice about it, but don't try it, you might not be so lucky.

Among those spending a quiet Christmas at home were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Torry and Mrs. and Mrs. R. H. Dilly. The Dillys are expecting their sister from Tulsa, Okla. Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Norris reports a most wonderful turkey dinner at home, a gift from Mrs. Kate Humphrey. Mrs. Norris was released from the hospital just the day before, and Mr. and Mrs. John Norris from Los Angeles walked in and cooked the dinner. Was a happy Christmas for all.

Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor reports an enjoyable holiday week; her daughter Maurine, who teaches school at Estelina was home; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dunn of Lubbock, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Caldwell, son Ronald and daughter Francis of Alleneed.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Porter and children, Ruth and Richard, were New Years dinner guests of Mrs. Porter's mother, Mrs. C. W. Miller and son Bill.

I returned home New Years evening, and looking over the mail that had arrived, was delighted to find a letter from the Senior Citizens from Fritz Frobels of Hamburg, Germany, wishing everyone a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. He is the father of Mrs. Duane Cash who lives south of town, and visited the Center during his visit in their home last fall. He won the hearts of all of us, and we were so happy to hear from him; he even remembered that Uncle Billy Frost will be 100 years young the 10th of this month, which reminds me; friends of Uncle Billy are having a reception for him from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Starlight Room, Coronado Inn, Jan. 10. All Seniors are invited and asked to come at three. No gifts please. All his friends are invited, no special invitations are being sent. If you are a friend, just consider yourself invited.

Mrs. Jessie VanHuss will leave Saturday for a visit with her children in Houston. We were glad to see Ira Frazer Thursday. He enjoys coming to the Center when he visits his son, Henry and family, at 1921 Evergreen. Mrs. P. H. Gates has returned from Magnolia, Ark., where she attended the bedside of her sister, Mrs. D. E. McVey, who was seriously ill, and is much improved.

GOOD DEED ILLEGAL
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—About 2,000 Boy Scouts distributed 45,000 civil defense pamphlets in local mailboxes Saturday and then learned they violated federal law because they were not authorized representatives of the post office.

Civil Defense Director Richard Shephardson said it was his idea,

Ruth Millett With Tongue Zipped In Cheek!!

I'm worried about the next American astronaut to go into space.

It's true our space planners have proved they are capable of putting a man into orbit and bringing him back safe and sound. Everything has worked fine so far. But now I read that the next man into space will likely have zippers across the arms and shoulders of his space suit.

The zippers are to relieve pressure and, according to the news story, "Test runs by Manned Spacecraft Center and the School of Aerospace Medicine at San Antonio have shown astronauts can close up the suits in time to save their lives if the Mercury spacecraft springs a leak."

Okay, so the zippers work fine in tests. But then zippers always do work—except in emergencies. It's when you're already running late and are frantically trying to get dressed on the double that the darned old zipper hangs on a thread or fold of fabric, or goes off the track, or the stitching holding it in place starts to rip.

So even though the zippers on the new space suits work perfectly in tests, can they be trusted not to turn feindish in an emergency?

And wouldn't it be ironical if the worst moments the next man into space has to face are the moments when space-suit zippers gets hung up and refuses to go either forward or backward?

Of course, the designers of the new space suit may have designed a foolproof zipper. If so, we'll all benefit.

You won't feel guilty about reading Ruth Millett's "How to Have a Happy Husband." Send 25 cents to Ruth Millett Reader Service, c/o The Pampa Daily News, P.O. Box 489, Dept. A, Radio City Station, New York 19, N.Y.

ASK THE DESIGNER by gail dugas

Dear Gail: What would be an appropriate wardrobe for a trip to New Orleans at Mardi Gras time? Would a blue wool jersey casual coat be all right? What about light-colored summer cottons? What color shoes? There will be sightseeing and one ball (informal dress).—E. F.

Dear E. F.: New Orleans is a city I know well and love dearly. At Mardi Gras time, the air sparkles. But it is on the cool side at night, and even in the daytime a lightweight wool suit or sweater and skirt feels just right. So I'd leave those summer cottons at home; you'd feel very much out of place in them.

Advice on what to take comes from David Crystal, who says: "Mardi Gras in New Orleans means color and excitement. Remember, this is a sophisticated city. The weather is likely to be cool and sparkly; you'll need heavy linen dresses, preferably lined. The new imported Irish linens come in magnificent colors. They are also known to be wrinkle resistant, which makes them great for travel and touring. Take some color cued sweaters and skirts. You might take one V-neck sweater dress for real chic.

Take one or two suits in a textured, porous wool. You will certainly need a light coat in a smart cut.

The word "ball" indicates a formal, full-length evening gown. Pick one that you can have shorted when you return home and thus use for cocktail and dinner parties. For shoes, pick the oval toe pump with the midheel for daytime and satin or silk crepe pumps or sandals for evening."

Dear Gail: This fall, I bought a pair of pumps. They are a combination of fabric and black leather. The fabric is in two shades of brown and some black with just a slight glow. Please tell me if this shoe could be worn any place and any time. Will appreciate your help very much.—Mrs. L. S.

Dear Mrs. L. S.: Designer Margaret Jerrold has this to say about your shoes: "The pumps you describe have a very limited use, really. They are to be worn for late daytime (after 5 p.m. into early evening), and are not for either regular daytime or formal evening wear. They must be color-cued to black or brown and you must be careful that your other accessories

Dear Abby... Is She Fiddling Around?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We became friendly with a couple around our age who recently moved across the street. My husband plays the piano and this lady plays the violin. For the past few months the lady has come over every Sunday and she and my husband—lock themselves up in his room—and practice for hours.

I used to serve them lunch on trays and thought nothing of it. Then her husband asked me if I had all my marbles. He said he had trouble with his wife when she fell for a cello player and it started the same way. He says he can't control his wife but I should keep an eye on my husband. I know my husband and am not worried. They are working up a program for Fellowship Night at the church. Should I insult them by making accusations, or should I forget it?

MUSICIAN'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Maybe the lady did fiddle around with the cello player, but if you know your husband and are not worried, don't make any accusations. I would ask them to keep the door open however.

DEAR ABBY: Does a mother have the right to brag about her child because he was adopted? My sister says she can do it because the boy is not her own! She is boring in company because she brags about her son so much. How can I shut her up without putting a gag in her mouth? The boy is only two and they are talking about adopting another. I can't stand a lifetime of this.

BORED SISTER
DEAR SISTER: You can't shut her up, so don't try. Adopted children should be treated exactly the same as natural children, and their parents should behave the same as natural parents. Your sister probably knows this, but can't resist the temptation to brag—so she has found an "excuse."

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and have been engaged nine times. I don't know what's wrong with me but I can't seem to keep a guy interested in me long enough for it to develop into anything. The last one I was engaged to was 19. He said we'd be married in June, then he joined the Navy and took off and I don't even have his address. I loved him more than all the others put together. I suppose you think I'm too young to know what love is all about, but you're wrong. I grew up fast. How can I get a guy for keeps?

DISAPPOINTED
DEAR DISAPPOINTED: If you have been "in love" enough to become engaged nine times at the age of 15 you do not know what love is all about. You might have matured early (physically) but you have a lot of growing up to do before you are equal to the responsibilities of having "a guy for keeps." Slow up, little lady.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ROZZIE

Harvesters Host Westerners In District Action

Pampa To Go After 13th Straight Win

Riding a 12-game winning streak including two district wins, Pampa's Harvesters will host the Lubbock Westerners tonight in an 8 o'clock game in Harvesters Field-house.

Pampa, at the end of the first week of conference play, has the best overall season mark and is tied with Amarillo and Plainview for the district lead.

In other Dist. 3-AAA games slated for tonight, Amarillo hosts Borger; Tascosa plays Plainview there; and Palo Duro travels to Monterey in Lubbock.

Desides the Pampa - Lubbock game, another feature game for tonight pits Tascosa and Plainview. The Bulldogs, undefeated in district action, try out surprising Tascosa.

Shockers
Pampa's Shockers meet the Lubbock "B" team in hopes of breaking a two-game district losing streak. The game starts at 8:15.

Pampa's guard combination
Wayne Kreis and Keith Swanson is the highest scoring in the district. Kreis, the number two scorer in conference play, is averaging 22 points in district action with Swanson averaging 15.0.

Randy Matson, 6-6½; Gary Sikes, 6-3½, and Gordon Balch, 6-1, will form the forward starting ball for the Pampanians in tonight's clash with the Westerners.

Pampa, 17-1 for the season, will have a definite height advantage in the fracas. Lubbock is 1-1 in district and 14-3 for the season.

Al Lopez High On White Sox

CHICAGO (UPI) — The 1963 Chicago White Sox have the potential to win the American League pennant, manager Al Lopez said today, but they'll have to beat the New York Yankees to do it.

"I think we're a certain first-division finisher," he said, "and we could win the pennant."

"Last year the Yankees won because they had the most talent, but I think any good club that was sound could have beat them. I thought our team and Detroit and Baltimore would be stronger and maybe beat them, and we all floundered around."

Lopez put the finger on shortstop Luis Aparicio, center-fielder Jim Landis and pitcher Juan Pizarro as the major reasons why the White Sox finished fifth last season. But this year, he said, it would be different because there will be competition on the squad for each of them.

Senate Probes NFL Players

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Football League was faced by trouble on two flanks today with one of its stars ready to battle for his right to run a tavern and the possibility of an investigation by the Senate rackets committee.

Along with the disclosure here that an investigator from the Senate rackets committee was bound for Chicago to conduct a preliminary inquiry into the pro football situation, the Detroit News reported Monday that defensive tackle Alex Karras of the Detroit Lions has been ordered to sell his share of a tavern.

General manager Edwin J. Anderson of the Lions was quoted by the News as saying:

"I don't like the idea of a player owning a part of a bar where he might run into undesirable people."

News Upsets Karras
In Los Angeles, where he is practicing for Sunday's Pro Bowl game, Karras was visibly upset by the report.

"It's only a rumor as far as I'm concerned," Karras said, "but he added if it were true, 'I certainly will take action. They're not going to do that to me.'"

Karras said he would not give up his $45,000 investment in the tavern without a fight.

"It's all I have," he said.

Anderson and Lions' president William Clay Ford discussed the Karras situation with NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle in Miami, Fla., last Saturday, according to the Detroit News.

"We decided to talk to Alex when he gets back from the coast," the News quoted Anderson.

Withholds Comment
A spokesman for Rozelle, when asked for comment, merely repeated what the NFL commissioner had said when owner-coach George Halas first made public reports last week that some of the league's players had been suspected of "undesirable associations."

"It has been and is our policy not to discuss publicly names of specific individuals mentioned in the rumors which we are investigating," said the spokesman.

Here in Washington, the Senate rackets committee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., would not reveal whether its investigator planned to question either Chicago Bear fullback Rick Casares or Halas.

Casares said last Saturday that he took two lie detector tests at the league's request and was cleared of any suspicion of wrongdoing.

Loyola Ramblers Begin To Challenge Cincinnati

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cincinnati was voted the No. 1 college basketball team by unanimous acclaim for the third straight week in the United Press International ratings, but runner-up Loyola of Chicago Ramblers are beginning to challenge the Bearcats' popularity.

Coach Ed Jucker's Bearcats scrambled to a 63-50 victory over Wichita last Saturday for their 11th straight win and 29th consecutive triumph over a two-season span.

Loyola ran its record to 13-0 with three successes last week and drew 290 points in the balloting of the 33-man UPI Board of Coaches. The Ramblers had collected 284 points in the previous weekly poll.

Illinois (9-1) and Arizona State (12-1) retained their No. 3 and 4 rankings. Ohio State moved up one rung to No. 5 and Duke took three giant strides to sixth place.

Georgia Tech, the only other school in the top-10 with a perfect record (9-0), surged from 13th place to the No. 7 spot. Mississippi State also advanced into the elite with a move from 11th to eighth place.

Wichita fell back a notch to ninth place and UCLA, which lost two squeakers to Washington during the weekend, dropped from 10th to 11th.

Liston-Patterson Fight Date To Be Announced Soon

NEW YORK (UPI)—Announcement of the site and date for the return Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title fight is expected within 24 hours, now that the World Boxing Association (WBA) has unexpectedly approved it.

Emile Bruneau of New Orleans, chairman of the WBA's World Championship Committee, announced Monday night that the WBA's ban against the return bout has been rescinded.

Ex-champion Patterson, who has the privilege of choosing the site and date under the turn-out contract, has been considering four cities: Baltimore, Miami Beach, Cleveland and Las Vegas, Nev.

In those four areas, at least one boxing commission—not identified by Patterson—had been reluctant to the sanction the fight because of the WBA ban. Now that impediment has been removed.

Promoter Al Bolan of Championship Sports, Inc. (CSI) has visited three of the cities and reported to Patterson on their possibilities as sites.

Bruneau stressed that the championship committee had reversed its Christmas Eve decision because the WBA Ratings Committee on Jan. 2 had boosted ex-champion Patterson from second among contenders to first.

Bruneau explained that Patterson's boost had followed automatically the dropping of top contender Eddie Machen of Portland, Ore., completely out of the rankings because of a mental illness.

Palmer Wins LA Tourney

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—It was the same old monotonous story today with Arnold Palmer again on top of the money heap—exactly where he was when they closed the till on golf's money register for 1962.

In his wallet was a $9,000 check, his pay for a first-place in the $50,000 Los Angeles Open which ended Monday in a typical, pampered Palmer finish.

He came from three strokes off the pace to win handily with a five-under-par 66 and a four-round 274 total. It was Arnie's 38th tournament win in seven years as a pro. But it was his first victory in the Los Angeles Open — having never finished better than 10th in his heretofore jinx event.

"I want to thank the splendid gallery, all my friends — and everyone," said Palmer, casting a meaningful glance skyward as he pocketed the loot.

The $9,000 in his first tournament of the year put him well ahead of all. Last year he banked a record official $81,448 in PGA winnings.

Calls Play Erratic
Playing what he termed "erratically," he put together a round of eight birdies, a bogey and a double bogey. After turning back the not-too-strong drives for the front spot by Art Wall, Don Fairfield and Huston La Clair, he made a virtual runaway of it in his decisive margin over the second-placers—imports Canadian Al Balding and South African Gary Player, who each finished with a 277.

"The big hole was the 17th," said a perspiring Palmer as he quaffed a soft drink at the finish. "That's when I really won it."

To be sure, he did by rolling in a birdie putt — which he modestly said was from 30 feet out. When the little ball dropped in the cup his army cheered. "Go, Arnie, go." A waitress in the Rancho Park golf course restaurant tossed a tray high in the air with a scream of excitement.

Palmer threw his arms over his head and yelled, "Wos." He then rushed to the cup, plucked up the ball and kissed it.

SEEKS TITLE BOUT
NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Newark boxing promoter William Gilzenberg said Monday he will offer lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz $40,000 to defend his title against Kenny Lane. The figure matches an offer made by Madison Square Garden for the championship bout.

Others — DePaul, 7; St. Louis and Niagara, 6 each; Bradley and Notre Dame, 5 each; Miami (Fla.) and St. Bonaventure, 4 each; Kansas and Texas, 3 each; Bowling Green, Pittsburgh, Oklahoma State and Texas A and M, 2 each; Kansas State, Virginia Tech, NYU, Vanderbilt, Seattle, Princeton and Pennsylvania, 1 each.

Steelers' Buddy Parker Asks Bobby Layne For His Retirement

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Raymond K. (Buddy) Parker, coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, suggested Monday that quarterback Bobby Layne retire and indicated he will return next year to pilot the Steelers.

In an interview on a Pittsburgh television station, Parker was asked why he used quarterback Ed Brown for most of the game with the Detroit Lions Sunday in the runner-up bowl in Miami, Fla.

Parker said he was looking forward to next year and considers Brown the quarterback who "must take us in."

Parker praised Layne as the greatest quarterback the game has ever known and said he had talked with the blond Texan and advised him to retire. Layne, however, said in a phone interview from Lubbock, Tex., that he had not talked about retiring with the coach. He said he would retire from football in Pittsburgh if Parker desired, but declined to say whether he planned to retire as an active player.

Layne was an All-America quarterback at the University of Texas.

Parker said he will talk soon with Steeler owner Art Rooney about his future plans and called the team that lost to the Lions, 17-10, in Miami "the best team I've had since I came to Pittsburgh" six years ago.

He said he was looking forward to next year and felt that the Steelers will be ready to battle anyone in 1963.

Oldtimers Vs. Tigers

Charles Cousins, chairman of the March of Dimes campaign in McLean, announced the annual March of Dimes benefit basketball game for Friday evening, January 11. Game time will be 7 p.m.

The regular Tiger and Tigrette ball teams will meet the Oldtimers in the McLean gymnasium. Everyone is urged to come out for an evening of entertainment and support the March of Dimes campaign.

NCAA Closes Ranks Behind U.S. Track-Field Federation

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) closed ranks today behind the U.S. Track and Field Federation in its battle with the Amateur Athletic Union while holding up an example that the warring groups could co-exist.

As the NCAA convention went into its second day there were reports that the White House was exercising pressure to bring the struggle to an end quickly through the good offices of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who had agreed to head an arbitration panel in the dispute.

And cooler heads in the NCAA ranks were urging the collegiate group not to adopt a proposed amendment to its bylaws under which an athlete would be barred from NCAA championship competition if he competed in a meet not sanctioned by the track federation.

A high-ranking NCAA official agreed the college organization would be guilty of using the same tactics as the AAU if it adopted the amendment and he said, "The convention isn't over and the amendment hasn't come up yet."

Closes Breach
The NCAA plugged an apparent breach in its stand behind the track federation when Villanova University athletic director Arthur L. Mahan reversed the position of his track coach, James F. (Jumbo Jim) Elliott, who had threatened to take his team into the Knights of Columbus indoor meet at Boston without federation sanction.

"Villanova's track team definitely will follow the policy of the Eastern College Athletic Conference and the NCAA and will not participate in track meets unless sanctioned by the U.S. Track and Field Federation," Mahan announced at the convention.

And athletic director Walter L. Haas of the University of Chicago gave a lengthy report on the success of his school's 10th annual holiday meet which was jointly sanctioned by the track federation and the central district AAU of which he is a vice president.

Haas admitted that following the meet his track coach, Ted Hayden, received a letter from John Bauer, district-AAU president, saying it could no longer sanction meets also running under the track federation's banner.

Haas said the University of Chicago sponsored five other open meets and he hated to see its good relationship with the AAU disrupted but was under obligation as an NCAA member to seek the sanction of the track federation.

SKILL TO SPARE by Dick Weber

12-The 5-7-10
I have made the 5-7-10 leave, but advise doing as the Sparemaker says — rolling right at the 5 and be content to make that one and possibly either of the others.

If you want to gamble and go after all three, the only way is to roll a big hook and nip the 5 on the right side. The 5 then takes out the 10 and the ball is deflected and gets rid of the 7. The chances against making all three are so great that a five-dollar bet would bring fantastic returns.

This leave results from a perfect pocket hit that didn't have much forward roll.

It is one of the breaks that can happen in bowling.

Careful Hand Needed

On occasion, good news comes out of Washington, D. C. That was the case when the government announced that its new drug-testing regulations would be more liberal than those which were initially drawn up. The reason for liberalization was a wave of protest from the medical community, as well as the pharmaceutical industry.

The first regulatory proposals, which were created to some extent in an atmosphere of almost hysterical urgency, would have added up to a strait-jacket on the two basic essentials of progress in the improvement of existing drugs and the production of valuable new ones. Reports of almost incredible detail would have been demanded. Worse, compliance with some of the regulations requiring submission of detailed plans for clinical drug trials would have been virtually impossible because drug trials cannot be charted in advance. No one can be sure, when a new or changed drug is in the testing stage, precisely what it will or will not do in all cases.

Whether the liberalized regulations will be suited to the dual job of properly protecting the public and keeping road blocks out of the paths of research remains to be seen. A number of authorities say that they will still impose an excessive amount of record-keeping on the part of the companies which, in itself, discourages research. This is an extremely delicate field, involving the health and welfare of generations yet unborn, as well as those now living. The hand of government must be injected only with the utmost care.

Land Ho!

The Nina II, a full-size replica of the smallest of Columbus' three ships, finally reached the New World.

Not only did the craft take three times as long to repeat the original voyage made 470 years ago, but strong winds blew it 16 miles off its destination — San Salvador island in the Bahamas, Columbus' landfall—and, it had to be towed into port.

But this somewhat ignominious ending does not detract from the feat. The nine-man crew of seven Spaniards, one American and one Frenchman, without radio or any other modern equipment, had a far rougher crossing than Columbus. For a time, they were feared lost in an Atlantic storm.

They had one great advantage that Columbus didn't have, however: they knew where they were going. Had Columbus had as much trouble as the Nina II, his rebellious sailors undoubtedly would have forced him to turn back and his name might be unknown to the history books, except as an obscure footnote.

Ellender's Statement Draws State Dept. Ire

By ED DELANEY

Because Sen. Allen J. Ellender, (Dem., La.) will not lie about conditions as he observed them on his recent visit to Africa, he is anathema to our State Department. Ellender visited many parts of Africa. As a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee he wished to ascertain what benefits, if any, are being derived from the billions of taxpayers' dollars that have been poured into that dark continent. The Louisiana senator is reported to have said that with the exception of South Africa, no part of that continent, that he visited, is ready for self-government. The average Africa, he indicated, is incapable of leadership without white assistance. That nettled the State Department and G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams, their chore boy for Africa, who made himself obnoxious there a year or more ago. So State Department representatives called on 80-year-old Rep. Barratt O'Hara, (Dem. Ill.) who is chairman of the House Subcommittee on Africa and induced him to make a statement which is baldly intended for political vote-getting purposes only.

O'Hara said Sen. Ellender has hurt us very much in Africa. "We feel that as Africa goes so goes the world," O'Hara is reported as saying. Then the world is certainly going to perdition—and fast. But O'Hara did not stop there, according to reports. He said Sen. Ellender seems to believe that Africa came into being when the Europeans went there. "Most informed Americans are getting away from that notion," observed O'Hara. Then I am one of the uninformed. Having spent some two years in Africa, my knowledge of conditions there is more than average. For that reason I disagree entirely with O'Hara of Illinois and those he regards as "informed."

A review of history shows that on all that vast continent from the Sahara on the north to the Cape of Good Hope at the southern end — in all the thousands of years that have past, nothing was developed until the Europeans came. That truth is annoying for State Department officials who try to refute some of the facts of present day Africa, which Sen. Ellender emphasizes.

The State Department and the administration are displeased by the domestic policies of South Africa, which are none of our affair, any more than our domestic policies are of concern to the South Africans. Sen. Ellender expressed his appreciation for what he saw in South Africa. It is different. It is modern, progressive, cultured, growing, financially stable, and foreign investors are establishing industries there. South Africa never wanted or got a dollar of the foreign aid we have been scattering about. It is one of the few countries that repaid in full its Lend-Lease obligations of World War II. Its national debt could be paid off with seven months of its national income. Five months of its gold production would pay off all its external debt. It is invaluable for us as an ally, in peace or war. South Africa is the world's largest producer of gold, chrome ore, platinum, gem diamonds, second in the world in asbestos, also industrial diamonds, with enormous production of nickel ore, copper, silver, tin, vanadium and uranium, will soon be a large producer of synthetic rubber — all invaluable in the event of any East-West conflict.

The non-white population, in excess of 10 million has been provided with more schools, high schools, colleges, hospitals and business opportunities than in all the other African states combined. The non-whites have nearly 100,000 privately owned automobiles, which exceeds that of all privately owned cars in all the other African states. Moreover they have outwitted the Communist Party and published the names of 129 whites and 308 non-whites who are members of or supporters of the Communist Party. Bobby Kennedy can learn something from them about how to handle the subversives.

No wonder the administration does not like what Sen. Ellender is telling about conditions as he saw them in South Africa. May be continue to speak the truth — as he sees it.

Pull Up A Chair

The largest free-flying flag in the New York area is the 90' by 60' American flag at the New Jersey end of the George Washington bridge. It's made of spun nylon and wool to resist the elements. This banner has such a tremendous sail area that it requires a crew of 20 men to raise and lower it. The largest flag in the United States is the one draped on holidays over the side of the J. L. Hudson Company department store in Detroit. It's over 200 feet long. Thousands of New Yorkers and visitors passing through Grand Central Station every day always spot another huge American flag hanging majestically near the west end of the terminal. Many a bet has been made that it is the largest Old Glory in existence but a phone call to the Public Library always tells the parties it ranks third in size. Everything comes in such large dimensions in Gotham we were mistaken for many years about the station banner.

The Twist is rapidly passing out in the midtown nightclubs where it first achieved popularity about two years ago and is being replaced by the Bossa Nova, the new Brazilian dance craze which became epidemic in the dancing pubs late last summer. The top spot to see the Bossa in the Village Gate in Greenwich Village. There are two sessions nightly and the cafe has been packed since the Brazilian Consul General visited the establishment to witness the new dance get under way. He gave the music and the performers his imprimatur.

Today's favorite gag: FIRST GOLFER — "The traps on this course are darned annoying." SECOND GOLFER (Trying to put) — "You said it! Would you mind shutting yours?" Famous and popular in the New York area are what are known as the "Ed Blandford Girls." They are the Negro equivalent of the celebrated Powers models.

Memory Lane: Come to think of it, the do-it-yourself movement, far from being new, was started years ago by those fellows who made miniature ships to go inside glass bottles. Instead of depending on ship builders or glass blowers, those old fellows just went ahead and did it themselves. And the do-it-yourself idea extended to the kids of half a century ago. With a jackknife, twigs and some rubber bands, they made their own slingshots—and mighty powerful ones, too. They also fashioned their own bows and arrows.

Country editor speaking: "One of woman's problems is how to be sweet without seeming to be simple." "It's a 'must' is an often heard expression nowadays, but it originated years ago in the newspaper trade. Whenever an editor or anyone in authority wishes a story or photo to appear in the paper, regardless, he writes "MUST" at the top of it, then scrawls his initials. That does it—or else there's you-know-what to pay. When patrons used to linger for hours on end in P. T. Barnum's New York museum, displaying the admission of new customers; the shrewd showman erected a sign reading "TO THE EGRESS" with a finger pointing to side door. "Egress," of course, is a fancy word for "exit," but many patrons, thinking it was some strange animal, would pass through the door and find themselves outside — for good.

Extension of Draft Law, Ready Reserve Authority To Be Requested by President for U.S. Readiness

WASHINGTON—Like death and taxes, the draft is going to be a permanent part of the lives of young Americans for years to come.

This inescapable fact will be highlighted in President Kennedy's annual State of the Union message to Congress this week.

He will ask the legislators to extend the present draft law, scheduled to expire June 30, another five years because there are no signs of an early ending of the Cold War.

The presidential message will also include a request to renew his authority to call the ready Reserves to active duty for another year. This authority, approved by Congress last year, expires on February 28.

In seeking these extensions, the President will tell Congress that the powers are needed to maintain the present high-level readiness of U.S. forces against potential Soviet threats to peace in Berlin and Cuba.

Length of military service under the draft will be kept at the present two years. Still to be decided by the President is whether to recommend draft exemptions for those who serve in the Peace Corps or the proposed National Service Corps the Administration hopes to set up this year.

This controversial "exemption" proposal has touched off a sharp policy dispute within the Kennedy administration. Defense Secretary McNamara and the Joint Chiefs of Staff are opposed to building up these so-called "peace" services at the expense of the military.

Supporting the proposal are a small group of White House advisers, including Theodore C. Sorensen, special counsel to the President. They favor the exemptions on the ground that these peace and service activities are just as important in the Cold War as military strength. At present, Peace Corps members receive no exemption.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question: "Why is it necessary to have a unit of money with value in itself?"

The principal reason is that the politicians, if the money has value in itself, cannot increase the quantity of money without increasing wealth. And since the wealth, all that it can do is dilute or increase the quantity of orders for money and fool the public.

Having money with value in itself is the only way that the citizens can control the government. If the government could not get the money or fool the public into believing in irredeemable paper money, it would not be able to enslave mankind or interfere so much with mankind's right to plan their own lives, so long as they respected the equal rights of others to do the same.

It is the history of nations that when paper money is not redeemable in units of money that has value in itself, the quantity is always indefinitely increased, as it has been throughout the world, until the volume of money becomes worth less and less. The value of a dollar now, compared with 1940, is only about 46 cents, while if you go back to comparing it with the value of money in 1933, it is doubtful whether it would be worth a quarter.

If one wants to better understand what money is, we suggest that he get from the library, "The Promises Men Live By" by Harry Sherman. He gives the best explanation of the necessity of money that we have ever run across. It is his contention that all governments eventually repudiate their obligations, usually by issuing paper money, or, if they are using metal, putting into the coin less valuable material.

The primary purpose of having money with value in itself is to keep the government from enslaving mankind. The government, as a matter of fact, should have nothing to do with money. It should be on a free market basis. Then we wouldn't have great booms and busts, and, as Ludwig von Mises says, all depressions are the aftermath of undue expansion of credit, which cannot be undue unless the government has a monopoly on money. If the general public has control of money, competition will be the regulator.

At present, the Army has approved only to continue testing and developing — not producing — the missile, despite some remarkable successes scored by the anti-ICBM weapon during the past six months.

As he did in the case of the Skybolt project, Jerome B. Wiesner, the President's special science adviser, recommended dropping the Nike-Zeus missile program. It was also Wiesner's influence that persuaded the President in 1961 to cancel the Army's plans to produce the Nike-Zeus.

CAPITOL HILL — Senate liberals seeking to change the "unlimited debate" rule now have 57 votes. That's 14 short of the 67 needed to force a vote in the Senate. Senator Richard Russell, D-Ga., has told Defense Secretary McNamara that he favors his plan to reorganize the National Guard.

One of the last letters Senator Robert Kerr, D-Okla., wrote before he died was penned on the back of some Christmas wrapping paper to one of his Southern colleagues in the Senate. The Senate Agriculture Committee is looking into a report that President Kennedy had authorized lawyer James B. Donovan to offer Castro up to 30 million pounds of U.S.-owned surplus dried milk if needed to clinch the Cuban prisoner exchange deal. The offer was never made because Castro didn't go through with a last-hour threat to increase his original terms for the exchange.

The American Way

THE PERFORATED DOLLAR By Raymond C. Baker

A New York business man, alarmed at bureaucratic success in wooing shareholders in American business to support socialistic schemes, suggests that the next invention of Big Government will be the perforated dollar bill, so divided that the tax collector can automatically walk off with 52 cents worth.

This perforation, he said, would be slightly left of center, with the private recipient retaining the 48-cent portion. Of course, no expenses would be deductible under this plan, which is in keeping with current Internal Revenue Service thinking.

It seems the people in government believe it owns the 52 percent even before it has been made," James Cope, board chairman of Selva & Lee, a New York public relations firm, recently told members of the Detroit chapter of the Financial Executives Institute.

Different Dollars He pointed out that this would require two kinds of dollars — one for taxpayers and another for non-taxpayers, including the vast, powerfully organized and politically active labor unions which align themselves so enthusiastically with the sponsors of "public sector spending," and which gather in millions without any tax liability whatsoever.

Business faces a strange phenomenon, he believes, an administration which vigorously professes the intention of getting the country moving forward and, at the same time, proposes tax reforms obviously intended as penalties on risk-taking.

"For more than a generation there has been a systematic, concentrated economic and political drive to get a wedge between shareholders — the owners of American business — and management," he continued. "The visible target of the bureaucrats has been a separate and suspect class identified as management, and the corporation has been portrayed as often as possible as a creature of management rather than as the property of its owners.

Campaign Successful Mr. Cope stressed that events of the last year or so show that the campaign has been inordinately successful; that 17 million of the best informed people in the country "are basically unready to protect their assets from confiscation, or to support those who might try to prevent it."

He warned that these doctrinaire enemies of business success are working tirelessly throughout government to transform America's capitalistic system into the very socialistic state the people think they have rejected over and over.

He was particularly concerned over the 40-29 Senate vote in the last session of Congress that blocked as a tax deductible business expense the cost of newspaper advertising or other communication to inform employees and stockholders about legislation which would endanger their wages and profits.

Shareholder Army "Over and over," he said, "Senators protested: 'Uncle Sam will pay 52 percent of the bill; small taxpayers will have to underwrite the lobbying campaigns.'"

He urged management to take a hard look at the shareholder army, 17 million strong — a group far larger than the labor movement could muster for any one of its highly potent causes — and enlist it in the battle against the happy regulators.

"The question today," Mr. Cope stated, "is whether you work with your investors and owners, big and little, or whether you let government use their votes against their own interests and in the direction of socialized control of all enterprise."

Strange State Department Policies Brought to Light

If you wish to better understand national and international affairs, you can learn a great deal from the periodic reports of the Congressional security committees.

These reports are summaries of sworn testimony taken before the committees in their investigations into various aspects of the "continuing war against communism."

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee has just issued an important document entitled "Visa Procedures of Department of State." Its release at this time throws a great deal of light on the situation in the Congo. It deals with State Department efforts to deport Michel Struelens, Katanga's representative in this country.

As the current news dispatches report, the United Nations is attempting, by force, to prevent the pro-American Katanga Province from seceding from the strife-torn Congo government. The United States is backing the UN, despite Katanga's strong anti-communist policy, and despite much opposition from within the U.S.

Attempt to Rationalize The State Department has attempted to rationalize all of the popular American support for Katanga as being the result of a "well-financed propaganda machine" operated by Struelens. The committee discovered, however, that the "big money" consisted of only $140,000 over a 15-month period — which is tiny compared to the millions spent on propaganda here by many other governments.

In fact, the hearings brought out several cases of false accusations and unjustified harassment by the State Department against Struelens.

Also brought out was the obvious fact that the State Department is harassing Struelens because he is not in sympathy with our government's plan to subjugate his Katanga to the pro-communist Congolese government. This, of course, raises a serious question: Since the government is not attempting to deport—or even harass—Communist representatives in this country, are we to assume that there is general sympathy between the State Department and these representatives?

"Executive Iron Curtain" Throughout the hearings, State Department officials and employees were constantly covering up for each other, refusing to divulge sources of information. This "executive iron curtain" has been a standard practice for the past ten years, and has made it much more difficult for Americans to know what's happening inside their government.

This report will undoubtedly be used as evidence of the need for a thorough Congressional investigation of the State Department, but with or without an investigation, the report deserves to receive wide circulation. It is a revealing look at the strange American foreign policy that rewards enemies and harasses friends. Copies of "Visa Procedures of Department of State" may be obtained free of charge from the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, Washington 25, D.C.

matter of fact

In the last few years a need has been felt to somehow distinguish between the types of books which are conceived only as a piece of saleable merchandise and those which are undertaken for some artistic purpose. The term "non-book" was coined recently to describe the first type of book.

This Is Mexico

Slow, Painful Progress

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press International
MEXICO CITY (UPI) — It is our pleasure today to have a chat with Senorita Isabel Valdez Ramirez, an attractive stenographer-translator for the Continental Emisco Co., distributors of oil field equipment.

Senorita Ramirez doubtless never thinks about it, but she is the end product of a series of revolutions in Mexico. Wars have been fought, presidents assassinated and the soil of Mexico soaked with blood to make it possible for her to have the job she holds, buy the things she buys and do the things she does.

The outstanding development in Mexico in the last 30 years has been the rise of a middle class. Senorita Ramirez is a member of it. So are millions of other salaried employees, small business men and union workers. Until the rise of the middle class Mexicans were, either enormously wealthy—and there were precious few of them—or lived in grinding poverty. Modern Mexico can give as its birth date the day it became possible for girls like Senorita Ramirez to go out and get a job.

UNIVERSAL POSE—The atmosphere's rarified—an exclusive Paris salon—but the way actress Sophia Loren holds dress to her to see how she'd look in it is a gesture used by all women when shopping for garments.

Income Improving
The per capita income of the Mexican middle class still is far below that of America, but it is getting better all the time and as it improves so do living conditions. Senorita Ramirez earns $240 a month. Here is her budget: Clothes, cosmetics and beauty parlors, $120; lunches, $28; transportation, $1.60; filter cigarettes, $1.92; ballet lessons, $7.20; Italian lessons, $8; income tax per month $1.28; rent, none because she lives with her parents; savings for vacation, Christmas etc., $72.

In the romantic atmosphere of Mexico it seemed gallant to ask Senorita Ramirez her age or why she spent half her income on clothes and beauty treatments. Suffice it to say that she is in her early twenties and matrimony is not excluded from her plans.

The Spaniards conquered Mexico in the 16th century and began to mingle and inter-marry with the dark-skinned Indians. As a result there are three racial types in the nation today—Spaniards, persons of mixed blood and Indians. It is impossible to arrive at precise figures but the ratio in the present population is about this: Spaniards, 15 per cent; mixed blood, 56 per cent; Indians, 29 per cent. No Mexican is handicapped because of his racial origin. One of the national heroes is Benito Juarez, a full blooded Indian who in 1855 led a reform movement that eventually was to change Mexico from a feudalistic state into a modern nation.

Slow, Painful Transformation
It was a slow, painful and bloody transformation. In the process large estates were seized and turned over to the peasants. American oil property was expropriated, unions were organized and—only since 1953—women were allowed to vote. The result was a more equitable distribution of the national income and more jobs available.

And more leisure time. The average Mexican embraced this joyously. There is no country in the world where so many different sports are played and watched. The Mexicans have bull fighting, jai alai, boxing, wrestling, tennis (very good, too), baseball, golf, horse racing, swimming, fishing, judo and two kinds of football—American and soccer. If all of these things should pall, a Mexican can invest 24 cents in a ticket on the proletarian national lottery and dream of winning $24,000.

The government operates several types of lotteries, and in two blocks you are likely to encounter six persons peddling tickets. The government's share goes to welfare projects. Proceeds of the national lottery have built a 32-acre medical center and provided $4 million a year for breakfasts for school children.

Many TV Sets
One estimate, possibly too high, is that there are 500,000 television sets in Mexico City alone. Antennas sprout from almost every shack in the poorer sections of the capital. In any event the Mexicans are great fans for television and the radio. There is great interest in American TV. Perry Mason wins all his cases as easily in Spanish as he does in English. Paladin's six-gun speaks the same language in Mexico as it does in the United States, but the words that come out of his mouth are Spanish. American TV is so popular that 500 Mexican actors have year-round work dubbing Spanish on the films.

Rich or poor, the average Mexican is a neat fellow. You almost never see a man who needs a hair cut. The shining of shoes is a major industry and there are an average of three bootblacks to the block in the large cities. It is mandatory to have your shoes shined once a day, but some Mexicans exercise the option of having it done once in the morning and once in the afternoon. When business is dull, the bootblacks shine each other's shoes. The going price is one peso—eight cents. Neatness extends to your automobile and no Mexican allows much dust to settle on his car. Boys with buckets and sponges go up and down the line of parked automobiles doing a brisk business at 24 cents a car.

Less Tense Than Yanks
It probably is a dangerous generalization, but the average Mexican seemed to this correspondent to be happy and much less tense than Americans. Sergio Moreno Zavala, 48, owns a small carpenter shop and employs three helpers. He pays $28 a month rent for a two-bedroom apartment. His three sons are out on their own now and his 14-year-old daughter is living at home until she is old enough to go to secretarial school. The Zavalas go to the movies once or twice a week, listen to Mexican "ranch music" (Western ballads) over the radio, have beef steak twice a week and the head of the family likes to buy a general admission seat to baseball and soccer games.

After he has paid his helpers and purchased lumber, Zavala has an average monthly profit of $120. He is not concerned because it is not larger and does not plan to expand his business. He is old enough to remember that it would have been impossible for his father to do what he is doing—be your own boss and run your own business.
