Senator Readies Attack On Senate 'Secrecy' Policy

AUSTIN (UPI)— Texas lawmakers were set today to renew the furor in the state senate over the rejection of W. St. John Garwood to the University of Texas Board of Regents.

Sen. A. R. Schwartz of Galveston promised to use his "personal privilege" to attack senate policy that permits consideration of gubernatorial appointments in complete secrecy.

Schwartz has told the senate that he no longer intends to keep such matters a secret. He is also sponsoring a constitutional amendment to let the people decide whether secret senate sessions should be forbidden.

Sen. Charles Herring of Austin, chairman of the nominations committee which considered Garwood's appointment, was expected to return to work today after a two-week absence for an emergency appendectomy. He was absent when senators rejected Garwood.

Wait-See Attitude

Herring has indicated he will let the matter stand, and wait to see if Gov. John Connally wants to re-submit Garwood's appointment.

Connally said late last week he was bitterly disappointed over the senate action.

The governor said over the weekend he planned to huddle with the former State Supreme Court Justice before announcing any future plans regarding the appointment.

While the "Garwood incident" continued to simmer near the boiling point in the senate, lawmakers knuckled down to a heavy week's work which includes action on such issues as reapportionment, Padre Island and small loan regulation.

Rep. Menton Murray of Harlingen said he was considering a move to bring the senate-passed Padre Island National Seashore bill out of the House State Affairs Committee for floor debate.

Padre Island

The House last week completed its own Padre Island bill, but it differs in some points with the Senate bill. Murray feels a final proposal might come quicker by moving the Senate bill through the House.

"The loan shark bill gets its first airing in the House this week when the Banks and Banking Committee considers three different versions Tuesday night."

A bill by Rep. Malcolm McGregor, El Paso, and others would regulate loans "at more than 10 per cent." Rep. Don Garrison, Houston, has a bill to regulate loans up to $3,000, and Rep. Jack Woods, Waco, has a third proposal dealing with "small-small loans" up to $100.

The first of a series of proposals dealing with congressional districts will be heard Tuesday night by the House Constitutional Amendments Committee. This proposal, by Rep. Howard Green, Fort Worth, would set up compulsory redistricting.

School Set For Title Procedure

County Tax Assessor - Collector Jack Back will be host Wednesday night at an informational school for county assessors and collectors, automobile dealers and finance company representatives, to be held in the Gray County Courtroom.

The program is to be presented at 7:30 p.m. is designed to better inform county employes and auto dealers on the proper steps and procedures in titling and registering motor vehicles.

Back said that the instructors for the school will be J. B. Johnston and an aide from the Lubbock office of the State Highway Department's Motor Vehicle Division.

TO FREE PRISONERS

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — An estimated 8,000 to 10,000 prisoners will be released under an amnesty approved by the Senate Saturday, but political prisoners will not be affected.
The first 36 prisoners were freed Sunday. All were narcotics offenders.

JIM SHELHAMER

Pampa Key Club Youth Nominated For District Post

Jim Shelhamer, Sophomore Director of Pampa Key Club, has been nominated for the office of Trustee, Key Club International. The unanimous action of the eight Key Clubs in Division 6 climaxed the Annual Spring Rally at Palo Duro High School Sunday afternoon.

Pampa Key Club President Raymond "Rance" Vance made the nomination before the Division House of Delegates. Charles Skipworth, President of the Dumas Key Club gave his Club's second to the nomination, and David Dunn, President of Wheeler Key Club moved the nomination be by acclamation. The enthusiastic endorsement of Pampa's nominee indicated all out support of Shelhamer at the Texas-Oklahoma District Convention April 19-21, in San Antonio.

Shelhamer is the first West Texas boy to be proposed for International Board membership. In the tradition of Key Club, efforts to elect him will be conducted by delegates from Pampa, and the 7 other Key Clubs in this immediate area. The candidate of nominee does not "campaign" for office. At the San Antonio Convention, Shelhamer will compete with any other nominees from Texas and Oklahoma seeking the endorsement of the District. The District votes support of only one nominee for International Office.

Don Sears, Lieutenant Governor of Division 6 Key Clubs, presided at the Spring Rally Sunday afternoon. Key Club members and sponsors were present from each of the 8 Clubs. A total of some 85 men and boys attended.

Training sessions were held for the newly elected 1963-1964 local Club Officers and members. Headed by Joe Fischer Jr., President Elect, Pampa Key Club had a total of 22 Key Club members and 3 Adults in attendance.

In other business, Robert Priddy, current Junior Director of the Palo Duro Key Club was elected Lieutenant Governor of Division 6 succeeding Don Sears on June 1. Dumas Key Club was the successful bidder for the Fall Training Conference in late September.

The program for the Spring Rally was in two parts. Lt. Governor Don Sears spoke briefly on the subject "Key Club Challenges Today" and Kiwanis Division Chairman for Key Clubs, Melvin T. Munn of Pampa, spoke on "Key Club Challenges Tomorrow."

Attending the rally were delegations from Key Clubs in Amarillo, Palo Duro, and Tascosa High Schools, Amarillo; Borger High School; Dumas High School; Pampa High School; Vega High School and Wheeler High School. Plans are already under way for a strong delegation from each of these Clubs to be in San Antonio to aid in securing the endorsement of Shelhamer by the District.

The International Board of Trustees consists of president, two vice presidents, secretary and twelve members. (See PAMPAN, Page 3)

U.S. Soldiers To Shoot First In Guerilla War

SAIGON, Viet Nam (UPI)—The United States has decided to permit its soldiers to shoot first in the Vietnamese guerrilla war without waiting to be fired on by the Communists it was reported today.

The move is aimed at checking the mounting U.S. casualty rate in the undeclared jungle war, according to informed sources.

Another American died Sunday. A young machine gunner was killed when two U.S. Army H21 helicopters were downed by Communist Viet Cong ground fire.

The machine gunner, a private first class, was not identified. His death brought to 52 the number of Americans killed in combat since the United States began its military buildup in South Viet Nam in 1961.

May Open Fire

Informed military sources said the new "rules of engagement" will permit the U.S. Army's new HU1 gas turbine helicopters to open fire on "positively identified" guerrillas without waiting to be fired on first as heretofore.

The sources said the effectiveness of the heavily armed craft, known by their crews as "Hueys," in protecting the more vulnerable H21 troop carrying helicopters is expected to increase under the new rules.

The Hueys now will be able to precede the H21's into a troop landing zone and keep the guerrillas busy while the troop-carrying helicopters unload assault forces and then get away.

U.S. military observers in Saigon feel that if the Hueys had been able to follow this procedure during the battle of Ap Bac last month, the Viet Cong would not have been able to shoot down so many helicopters. Two Americans were killed and several others were wounded in the process.

U.S. officials denied press reports that the United States might withdraw its Air Force combat units from South Viet Nam.

Not Under Consideration

The reports claimed the withdrawal was under consideration because of charges that heavy government air strikes against villages suspected of harboring Viet Cong were turning the population against the government.

U.S. diplomatic and high-ranking military officials, including military assistance command chief Gen. Paul D. Harkins, said to the best of their knowledge no such decision was under consideration.

Gen. Emmett (Rose) O'Donnell, U.S. Air Force Pacific commander, indirectly denied persistent reports that many innocent civilians are being killed in air strikes against the Viet Cong. O'Donnell said Vietnamese air force tactical fighters and bombers "have been able to locate positively and destroy targets, and I mean small fleeting targets, under difficult conditions."

Chamber Of Commerce Has Over $28,000 Toward Goal

A live goat kept the action going at the Chamber of Commerce February Membership luncheon in Coronado Inn this noon.

The goat figured prominently in the presentation of awards in the chamber's Membership Roundup which ended Friday.

Loyal Davies, finance director of the chamber and general drive chairman, announced today that so far $28,225.25 had been raised toward the $40,000 goal.

Davies also stated that the total membership of the chamber now is 850, the largest in the organization's history. Two hundred and twenty-four new members were added to the rolls in the current drive.

The chamber's total membership last year was 750.

JFK Defends Tax Program Against Wide Criticism

Says $10 Billion Can Avoid Recession

By ALVIN SPIVAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy emphasized today that he would accept a tax cut of $10 billion or larger from Congress this year without tax reform, in order to avoid a recession.

The chief executive delivered a prepared address to a symposium on economic growth sponsored by the American Bankers Association, and then participated in a question and answer session during which he emphasized his desire for tax reduction affecting calendar 1963.

Only a week ago, Democratic congressional leaders said the administration planned to continue its efforts for the overall reduction-and-reform package. This involved a gross tax reduction of $13.5 billion with about $3.5 billion being returned to the government through reform measures to tighten loopholes and correct inequities.

Kennedy told the bankers today that "quite obviously" he did not want his reform recommendations to delay the tax reduction so much that it might not be sufficiently effective this year.

"If we cannot get reform, obviously we are going to have to rewrite the package," the President said. "If Congress were to come up with a $10 billion cut, we would then have to adjust all the rates."

The President said that from his viewpoint a cut of less than $10 billion this year might be preferable. But at the same time he said he would prefer to "err on the side of a large enough tax reduction" and thus would accept a $10 billion reduction without the reform provisions.

In the formal speech, the President said here was "nothing deeply wrong with our economy," but that the nation "must relax the brake of excessive taxation which has been holding back demand and momentum."

He called for an end to "squabbles over who will benefit most" from the proposed reduction.

He challenged critics of his program to come forward with a solution of their own and not concentrate entirely on "partisan . . . exasperated . . . rash talk" about swollen federal payrolls, a higher deficit and "a crushing debt burden."

He said he was "not predicting a recession for 1963." But he said that if no tax cut is enacted this year, he would be willing to make this prediction.

"The country will, in the not too distant future, be struck by its fifth post-war recession; with a heavy loss of jobs and profits, a record-breaking budget deficit, and an increased burden of national debt."

Mentions No Names
The President mentioned no names in asserting that "tax reform" would be the first such service for Texas.

Common Market Postpones Talks

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The Common Market foreign ministers today postponed a potentially explosive discussion of two of France's key economic problems.

The ministers, in their first meeting since France vetoed Britain's bid for membership, were to have opened a two-day session with talks on an association treaty for 18 African nations and on President Charles de Gaulle's request for a temporary standstill in economic relations with Algeria until legal technicalities are worked out.

Shortly before the meeting opened, however, President Eugene Schaus of Luxembourg announced that only internal budgetary and administrative matters would be discussed. The other matters may be raised Tuesday, he said.

It had been reported after De Gaulle's rejection of Britain last month that some of the other five market nations—West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Netherlands and Luxembourg—might block association for the former French colonies in retaliation.

The former French colonies have retained close economic ties with Paris and a treaty for the African nations is important to the De Gaulle government.

Extended Mail Service Due In 19 Texas Cities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster-General J. Edward Day said today the accelerated business collection and delivery of mail will be extended to 19 Texas cities before the end of the year.

Day said the names of the cities which will get the service will be announced locally.

The service, which was launched at Lansing, Mich., last Aug. 14, has since spread to 59 other cities and provides for delivery by 3 p.m. of any letters mailed in the downtown business district before 11 a.m.

It will be the first such service for Texas.

Castro Rations Clothes, Predicts Good Times Ahead

HAVANA (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro, speaking a few hours after the announcement of new rationing measures, today predicted better times ahead for the Cuban people.

"What we have now are the fruits of the past," Castro said in an address to a medical congress attended largely by delegates from Russia, the Soviet satellites and Communist China. "One day we shall reap the fruits of the present."

Castro's two-hour speech in the Charlie Chaplin Theater—his second in two days—was one of the mildest in some time and included only a few attacks on American "imperialists" and pro-American president of Venezuela, Romulo Betancourt.

The Cuban government announced Sunday that rationing of clothing and clothing materials would begin Tuesday. Food, shoes and gasoline already are rationed in Cuba.

The government's Consolidated Products Enterprise (CPE) announced today that rationing of rationing is necessary to insure "that the workers and people can purchase clothing in a just and equitable manner, avoiding speculation and hoarding."

Castro said in a speech, that ended early today that capitalism is on its way out.

"In 50 or 100 or 300 years—we cannot say how many—nobody will be capable of arguing about capitalism as it is defended today," Castro said. "The same thing happened with feudalism. Today nobody argues about feudalism or defends it."

"What right to the imperialists have to try to destroy the work of a people whose only crime is to want to progress and advance?" he asked.

"They talk of alliance for progress but they have not been able to eliminate illiteracy or polio in any Latin American country. They have been unable to do anything."

CAR PARK — It isn't easy to park your car in a space where you have less room than the length of the car, but Edgar Palmer of Daly City, Calif., managed to do it. He was parking at a gas station when his gas pedal stuck and the car zoomed out over the barrier and neatly lodged itself as shown above.

GOP Knows Kennedy Is Ready For Drastic Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today Republican critics of President Kennedy's Cuban policy know that "under certain conditions he is prepared to take certain drastic actions."

The Montana senator did not elaborate. He made the statement in an interview when asked about reports that Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., had told Kennedy that Republicans would continue to attack the administration on the Cuban issue.

Mansfield's comments followed these developments:

—Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., called for a total quarantine of Cuba except for food. He said this would "get rid of the Russians" on the island.

—Gonzalo J. Facio, chairman of the Council of the Organization of American States, said he believed the OAS would support a complete arms blockade of Cuba.

—Rep. Stanley R. Tupper, R-Maine, one of eight U.S. lawmakers who returned from a week-end visit to Guantanamo, Cuba, naval base, said he believed there were no long-range Soviet missiles stored in Cuban caves because no roads had been built to the caves.

Mansfield said the President was "not fearful" of GOP criticism but that "if fault is to be found it would be the American thing to do to offer alternatives of a constructive nature." "I am sure that the Republicans are fully aware of the fact that President Kennedy is doing everything in his power to lessen the danger from Cuba caused by the stationing of Russian troops and technicians there," Mansfield said.

"I am sure that they are fully aware of the fact that under certain conditions he is prepared to take certain drastic actions," Mansfield said the Republicans also knew that Kennedy had to consider difficult situations in Berlin, Western Europe, the Middle East, South Asia, Southeast Asia, Formosa, and Korea as well as in Cuba and Latin America.

He said that regardless of what "some of them may say on the surface, deep down they are fully aware that the President's first concern — and this would apply to any president — is the welfare and security of this country."

He said that Kennedy had to consider difficult situations in Berlin, Western Europe, the Middle East, South Asia, Southeast Asia, Formosa, and Korea as well as in Cuba and Latin America.

License Plate Sales Slower

Only about 1,600 1963 auto license plates have been sold so far in Gray County, Tax Collector Jack Back said Monday.

This is one-tenth of the 16,000 motor vehicles registered in the county.

The figure indicates that license plates are not being purchased as fast as in previous years.

April 1 is the deadline. Back said, and Texas law requires that 1963 license plates be attached to cars by that date in order to avoid penalty.

As a convenience to motorists, the tax collector stated, the county tax office will remain open through the lunch hour from now until the April 1 deadline.

The daily hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. without interruption, Back said.

ROUNDS UP URCHINS

ORAN, Algeria (UPI) — Some 200 Oran street urchins who earn their living by shining shoes were rounded up Thursday, put out of business—and into school.

The move followed last Sunday's herding of shoe shine boys in Algiers into an auditorium on order of Premier Ahmed Ben Bella. The youngsters learned they would be sent to government-paid vocational schools.

Manners Make Friends

Parents — remain home when teenagers are home a party.

Dear Abby....

Don't Fool With Grown-Up Ideas

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You hear a lot about teen-aged girls gone wrong. Here's the other side of the story: I am a male, age 20, and I have a four-year-old son to support. I've never been married. I went with a nice 16-year-old girl and we thought we were in love. We got serious and before we knew it we had gone further than we had intended to. I would have married her but I was scared. And I didn't want to be tied down at the age of 16. Annie (not her real name) died nine months later in the delivery room. She left me and her parents with a ten-pound bundle. Her last wish was for me to take care of the baby. Annie was a wonderful girl. I have been running from the idea that I killed her ever since. I joined the Army to forget, but I can't think I ever did a girl since. I don't think I ever will. Annie's parents are raising the boy and I still haven't the courage to face them and ask them to forgive me. Abby, please keep preaching to teen-agers that playing with grown-up ideas is asking for trouble.

SINGLE FATHER
DEAR FATHER: For every girl who gets "in trouble" there is a boy. But seldom does one have the courage to step forward and take the blame. If your letter makes one boy or girl think twice — it's worth the space in this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY: Tell the woman who can't watch television during the day because her husband takes a tube out of the set before he goes to work in the mornings to take another tube out after he leaves. So when he comes home at night and replaces the tube he took out so HE can watch television, it still won't work.

SANDY
DEAR SANDY: And what has she gained? Then neither of them will be able to watch it. You remind me of the man who drilled a hole in the bottom of the boat so the other guy would sink.

DEAR ABBY: Be fair and print this for "BACHELOR GIRL, AGE 32." First of all, the assumption that widows and divorcees are "common re-treads and warmed over has-beens," and that all 32-year-old bachelor girls are respectable, is the biggest bunch of baloney I've heard yet. My wife was a divorcee when we met. Because of her first experience in marriage she was far more understanding, tolerant and mature than any "single" girl I'd ever gone with. We have been happily married for 12 years and have three beautiful children. I wouldn't trade my wife's discarded fingernail clippings for all the "respectable," never-married, 32-year-old bachelor girls in the world.

Colorful Dutch Section Topic For Allegro Meet

The Charming Land of the Pennsylvania Dutch" was the program topic discussed by Mrs. Charles Walsh at the Tuesday afternoon meeting of Twentieth Century Allegro Club held in the home of Mrs. John Cundith with Mrs. John Horn as co-hostess.

The speaker began the discussion by saying "Off in southeastern Pennsylvania in a near square of land perhaps forty by thirty-five miles, there lives a strange and colorful tribe of Americans, who with no links to Holland, are known collectively as the Pennsylvania Dutch. They speak a special low-key German dialect."

The first company arrived in 1683 when they came from the Rhineland at William Penn's invitation to settle in his new colony of Pennsylvania. The home they left was Europe's battleground and for almost a century, religious persecution, war and starvation had been the lot of these devout immigrants. Between 40,000 and 65,000 immigrants from Germany arrived in Philadelphia between the years 1727 and 1775.

"This mass migration," Mrs. Walsh stated, "must have brought a wide cross-section of people. Some say that the jails were cleared in Germany; others stress the poverty of peasants, while still others conceded that many were holders of college degrees or were skilled craftsmen. Probably all this is partly true, but the interesting fact remains that out of the mixed group emerged a simple people with a desire to live according to their particular interpretation of the Bible. Like the present-day Amish, the early settlers of the region were mostly farmers."

"Most of the early objects of the Pennsylvania Dutch were purely utilitarian in purpose and appearance but as living conditions became easier for these people, they began to recreate the decorative furniture and patterns that were characteristic of their early homeland. At the peak of their creative period, which was the first half of the 19th century, Pennsylvania Dutch decorated their houses with colorful furnishings which became an integral part of their daily lives and surroundings."

"In 1750 and 1850, the spirit of craftsmanship flowered in Bucks and York counties. These craftsmen were not the outgrowth of a school or an academy, nor did they for the most part spend years in formal apprenticeship. The inspiration came from the home itself and from the work of parents and grandparents. Since the district was small, the quantity of painted chests and furniture of all kinds, also pottery, glass, woven coverlets, cross-stitched samplers and metal work was definitely limited, making original pieces quite rare today."

Mrs. Walsh displayed in many examples of Pennsylvania Dutch pottery, pewter, woolen coverlets, tinware and wooden molds. In concluding, each member was given a cookie made on a wooden cookie board from an Old Dutch cookie-recipe by Mrs. Walsh.

It was announced the March 5 meeting will be with Mrs. LeRoy Ogden, 2133 Mary Ellen.

Members attending were Mmes. Curt Beck, John Cundith, Will Graham, John Gentry, Robert A. Johnson, John Horn, Brantley Hudson, Jack Miller, Jack Reeve, Charles Walsh, LeRoy Ogden and Wyatt Lemons.

Take It From Kathy

by Kathy Peterson
 Dear Kathy: I read your column regularly and would like your opinion on a certain matter. My mother says I care too much for clothes and material things. What, in your opinion, should an average 13-year-old girl's wardrobe consist of? I mean for church, school, etc.—Linda.

"Etc." covers a lot of territory. Since I can't possibly guess your activities or the family budget, an answer will have to be general. However, these thoughts might help bring about a meeting of minds:

One big key to the problem of "nothing to wear" can be gradual, and-advance-planned additions to keep a wardrobe abreast of size changes, fashion and your developing tastes. This prevents a major crisis, as when nothing fits or everything wears out at once. It permits your taste changes to influence purchases regularly. The selections will vary gradually as you grow older and activities change. How much should be added and how often depends on the family budget.

Pampa Youth Critical Industrial Arts Teacher Attends State Convention

Jimmy W. McPherson, 18-year-old serviceman home on leave from Ft. Sill, Okla., was reported in critical condition in Highland General Hospital late this forenoon with a gunshot wound suffered early last night in the home of his mother, Mrs. Maggie McCain, 512 Naida.

Police said McPherson received a self-inflicted bullet wound from a .22-caliber rifle. He was shot in the lower abdomen.

According to a report filed by Police Lt. Bill Robinson and Patrolman Charles W. Matson, who investigated the case, they were summoned to the home at 6:35 p.m. Sunday by Mrs. McCain.

When they arrived, the officers found McPherson lying on the front porch. They said they did not discover he had been shot until after calling an ambulance.

The officers said Mrs. McCain told them when she and another son returned from church they found McPherson sitting on a bed with a rifle resting in his lap.

The woman told officers McPherson was angry and threatened to use the rifle. She ran out of the house and summoned police from a neighbor's phone, she said.

When Mrs. McCain returned she said the youth was not in the bedroom. She said she picked the rifle from the floor and put it under a mattress.

When the police arrived they found the youth lying on the front porch.

After further investigation, officers said they learned from a

Mystery Geyser Still Going Strong

ATTICA, Kan. (UPI) — A mysterious salt water geyser that sprang up in the middle of a county road started its third week today of spitting gas and water from the earth.

From 350 to 400 barrels of saline water gush hourly from the 53-foot-deep crater. It tests about 55 per cent salt saturation and has contaminated nearby Bluff Creek.

The hole started spewing gas Feb. 7, then fresh muddy water became salty and other smaller started following. Soon, the liquid holes within a mile south opened. The hole grew rapidly.

Water squirted up to 100 feet the first days. As the hole grew larger, the spout grew shorter. Now the gas forces the fountain some three to 15 feet high, vary-would only cause the some 20 or 30 other smaller holes to spout additional water.

Parr said one of the minor hole's natural gas had caught fire but fire at the main geyser had been averted. The danger that somebody would ignite the gas flow remained a hazard.

Most farmers had fenced their livestock away from Bluff Creek. Parr said an attempt was made to pipe the salt water into a "disposal well," but that was abandoned from time to time.

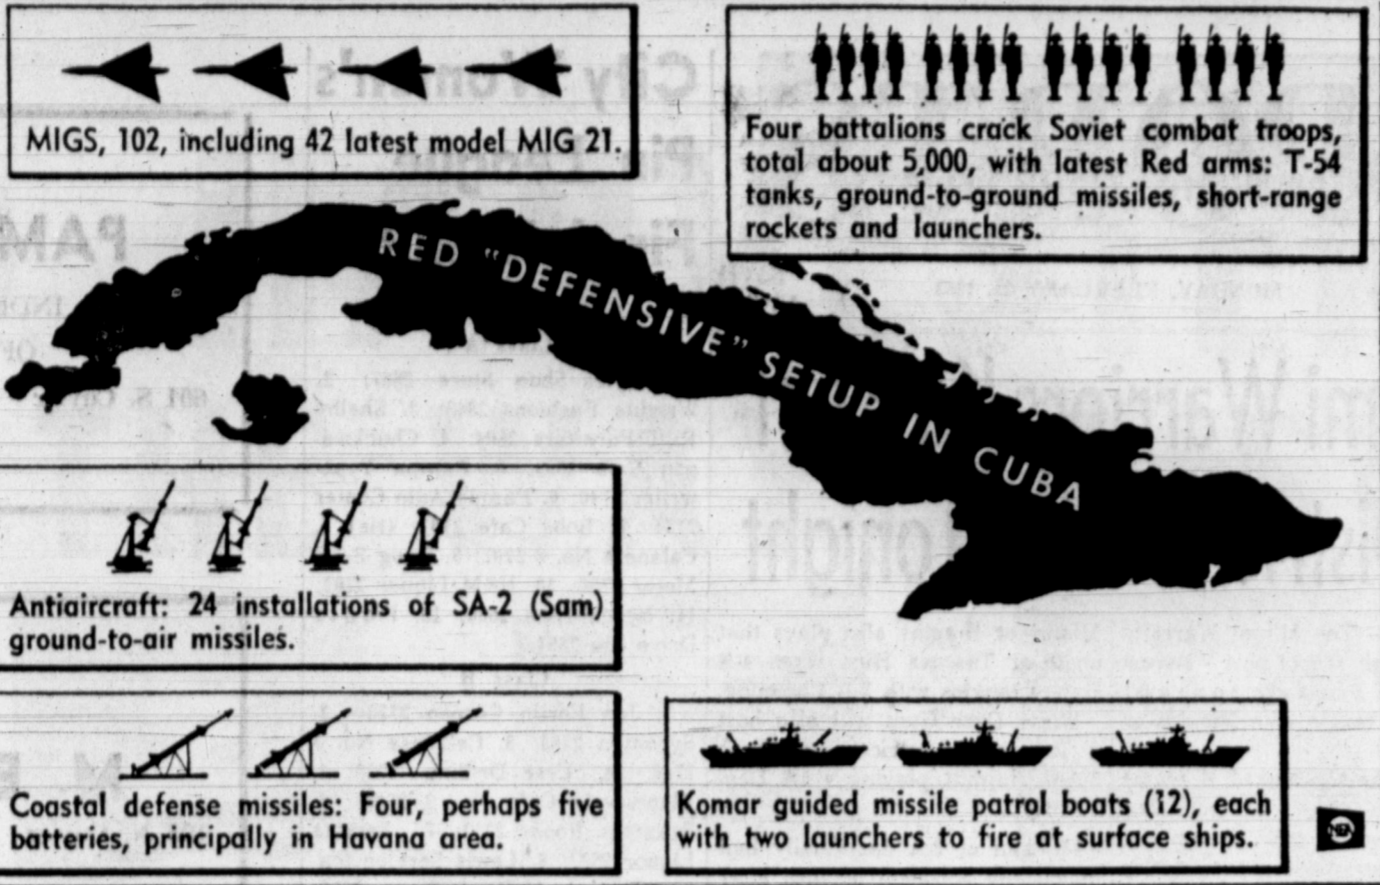

"It just keeps going," said Don Parr, editor of the Attica Independent, a weekly newspaper. "It has become a serious problem."

Parr said the spout has attracted thousands.

This is a gas-rich section of Kansas and numerous wells are in the area. Investigations have failed to disclose the exact cause of the salty gusher.

A meeting was called today in Wichita to determine a course of action to stop the flow. Parr said "there doesn't seem to be a simple solution to the problem" he said all inexpensive means have been tried. Now "there is going to have to be some finances."

Ralph O'Connor, district geologist for the state Board of Health, said a sand bag levee may be formed around the hole to create an artificial head of pressure.

Association Warns Against Tax Program

DALLAS — In a special advisory to members of its statewide Oil Information Committee, Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association Saturday took sharp issue with the Administration's tax program affecting petroleum operations and warns against the "juggling phrases" which Treasury Department advocates are using.

"You should assure yourself that leaders in your community, particularly in business organizations, are aware of the dangers in this tax proposal as it affects oil and gas operations in Texas," A. O. Saenger, state OIC chairman, told fellow oil men.

"No state in the union would be as hard hit as Texas if Congress adopts the recommendations which cut the effectiveness of percentage depletion by 20 to 25 per cent. Because of the lulling phrases like 'correction of unintended defects' and 'accounting changes' many persons are not aware of the real impact these measures would have on the Texas economy," the committee chairman said.

"Although analysis of the impact is still going on, it appears that, based on the Treasury Department's own figures, between $90 million and $100 million would be drained out of the Texas oil and gas producing industry, which is a basic part of business activity in this state," Saenger said.

Saenger's message to OIC members included a commentary on the proposed tax law changes which he said represented a preliminary consensus of top oil industry tax experts.

The commentary pointed out the three changes in present tax laws affecting oil and gas would be: to reduce allowable depletion; to reduce foreign tax credits; and to increase taxes on the sale of oil and gas properties by altering rules affecting capital gains.

The commentary said it is "misleading" for Treasury spokesmen to refer to the tax proposals as a correction of "unintended defects" when they are upsetting long-established law practices which have been repeatedly reviewed by the Congress and ruled on by the Courts and the Treasury department itself for 37 years.

A summary of other points: It seems inappropriate for Congress to make substantial reductions in depletion deductions without first making the study of present percentage rates, which the President also requested.

Although no changes were recommended in depletion rates or deductibility of intangible drilling and development costs, the procedure advocated for computing taxes on mineral income would reduce depletion in the years following the drilling of oil and gas wells.

Presented to the House Ways and Means Committee as an "accounting change" such terminology implies that the change is of relatively little consequence, but the facts (acknowledged by Secretary Dillon) are that the depletion deduction allowable would be reduced by as much as 20 to 25 per cent.

References by the Secretary of Treasury to these changes as affecting "big companies" suggests that smaller companies and individuals would not be affected. Facts will show that this proposed change would significantly reduce the depletion deductions of small and large producers alike.

Taxes would be increased on those who explore and drill for oil and gas in this country while taxes on other industries would be lowered.

These increased taxes would result in less business activity for suppliers of pipe, materials, supplies and labor.

Another probable effect is an increase in the price of gasoline and petroleum products to the consumer. This seems difficult to justify in view of the fact that over $6 billion annually is being collected now through excise taxes on petroleum products.

Examples cited by the Secretary to support his request to eliminate a rule which permits producers to combine properties within an "operating unit" for tax computing purposes were cited as "extreme cases not representative of taxpayers generally."

Proposals which would not allow development costs in foreign operations to be deducted against income from U.S. sources would weaken the competitive position of U.S. producers of minerals versus that of Russia, the British, French and other foreign companies who are in competition with U.S. companies for foreign oil reserves and markets for petroleum and other minerals. It would discriminate against mineral producers as compared to other industries who currently take foreign development expenses against domestic income.

It was claimed that changes affecting capital gains involved in sale of oil and gas properties would bring in $50 million annually, but this could not be expected to continue at such a rate for the proposal would discourage the sale of mineral properties which are discovered and developed after the effective date.

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Something called the Puritan ethic got into the news the other day during House Ways and Means Committee testimony on President Kennedy's plan to borrow a lot of money to help pay for his tax reform-reduction program.

The witness was Walter W. Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. There already had been a clamor of public protest against the series of Treasury deficits built into the tax program. Heller suggested to the committee that the public needed to be educated away from what he called the Puritan ethic so it could understand and appreciate the President's tax plans.

It is late in the game for the so-called Puritan ethic to show up in the hot center of U. S. political controversy.

Pretty Good Ethic

Not too late, perhaps, because the Puritan ethic is a pretty good ethic, as ethics go. By definition, an ethic relates to moral action, motive and character, to moral conduct. With ethics, of course, you can take 'em or leave 'em alone.

There seems to be in the United States a considerable body of citizens who will take the Puritan ethic position on the President's tax plans. And they will not merely leave his tax-reform-reduction bill alone. They will be against it.

This could be by reason of a public revolution against the im-

Freemasonry was introduced into the American Colonies before 1730.

I called the bureau to see if the tuners had contacted it. The man said they had not. Furthermore, he indicated there was nothing the bureau could do to succor and comfort them, or relieve their anxieties.

Although the bureau presently recognizes the "A" above "middle C" favored by the tuners, this is not done for either aesthetic or humane reasons.

It is merely abiding by an international agreement fixing 44 vibrations as the standard pitch. "If an orchestra or anyone else wants to tune at a higher pitch, that is an artistic matter over which we have no control," the spokesman said.

I then called the National Symphony Orchestra to ascertain its feelings on the issue. A spokesman there told me that the piano tuners actually were Johnny-completely participants in the vibration battle.

It seems that the basic struggle, which has been raging for years, is between stringed instrument players, who want to tune at 442 vibrations for greater brilliance of tone, and the woodwinds, who find it easier to play at a lower pitch.

Dr. Howard Mitchell, the conductor, said he regards the 442 "A" as a satisfactory compromise and will retain that pitch. I trust this will help make the world safe for piano tuners.

The Lighter Side

The Perils Of Piano-Tuning

By Dick West
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The casualty rate among piano tuners is not as high as it is in some other professions, like maybe scuba diving or airplane wing-walking.

Nevertheless, piano tuners do have their occupational hazards. There is always a chance that a string will snap and flagellate them in E-flat, or that the lid of a baby grand will drop on their heads.

The perils of piano-tuning recently were cited by members of the Piano Technicians Guild as one reason for passing a resolution urging that the standard for tuning "A" above "middle C" be kept 440 vibrations a second.

Guild members noted with alarm that some symphony orchestras were tuning on an "A" with 442 vibrations. They deplored the trend to a higher pitch, asserting that it could make their work more dangerous.

Extra tension on the strings might cause a vintage piano, whose structure had been weakened by years of absorbing sour notes, to fly apart, they pointed out.

"You're taking your life in your hands when you raise the pitch on some of those old alligators," one tuner was quoted as complaining.

The guild indicated it would carry its case to the National Bureau of Standards, and it was the prospect of governmental inter-

ARE YOU MAKING THE ANTI-ACID MISTAKE?
Important News for Every
INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN, INTESTINAL GAS SUFFERER!

Now, for the first time you can apply the brakes to stomach distress before the trouble begins. Up to now, anti-acids have been used mostly to relieve stomach upset after suffering the pangs of distress. Now, thanks to a new, natural formulation called MIAZYME you may eliminate the discomforts of indigestion, heartburn and intestinal gas caused by poor digestion of foods.

If you properly digest the food you eat, chances are you will not suffer stomach distress. This is because of the action of enzymes, manufactured in the digestive process. When these enzymes fall below par—as age increases, enzymatic action may become inadequate, or, as medical science knows, today's fast, hectic living pace can create distress caused by stomach tensions—you are apt to suffer indigestion, gas, bloating, heartburn, cramps and other uncomfortable forms of stomach upset. Why risk making the anti-acid mistake? Just two MIAZYME capsules a day is all it takes to help eliminate the discomforts of indigestion, heartburn, gas and open the door to new vistas in food enjoyment.

MIAZYME contains no narcotic! No habit forming drugs! No harmful side effects, taken as directed. So safe, no prescription is needed! Get MIAZYME today at your favorite drug store and break the anti-acid routine. Try it for 6 days on a NO RISK GUARANTEE. You must be completely satisfied or your money refunded. Regular size, $1.50. Economy size, $3.00.

BATTLIN' BUCKS — The White Deer Bucks, winners of last year's Class A state championship, will go for the AA crown this year. WD Bucks Bound For A Title Berth

WHITE DEER — The White Deer Bucks are somewhat in the classification of a boxer who has just won the light-heavyweight championship, only to be told that he has immediately been signed to fight Sonny Liston for the heavy crown.

After leaving the Class A roost where they had perched as champions, the Bucks are trying to do it all over again, but this time in Class AA, where three teams have consistently been among the best in the past five years, and none of them will be impressed by either the Bucks' Class A championship, or their 23-7 record. Among the foes who will be waiting to chew on a piece of venison if the Bucks can get past a good Canyon team Tuesday night at Amarillo College Gym, will be Dimmitt; the only team who holds a decision over the Bucks this year without losing a rematch, with the exception of Triple-A champ Dumas; and runner-up in state finals three straight years; Jacksboro, last year's runner-up; Linden-Kildare, '62 champs; and, if they fight all these battles successfully, Buna, the mighty monster of the Coastal Bend, who has won the championship three of the last four years, will be waiting.

Long Road

Coach Roy Simmons admits that the road has been anything but easy in the uphill climb. "There are far more good Class AA teams than A teams in this area, which is why I've taken the boys up to play the toughest teams we could schedule. We lost to Dumas three times, but everytime you play a great team like that, you learn a little more."

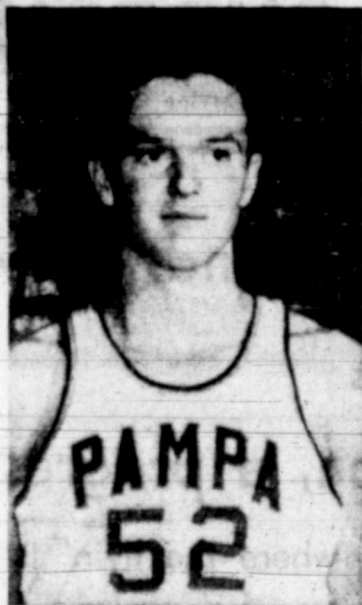

Coach Simmons admitted that the Bucks would like another crack at Dimmitt, which could be accomplished if the Bucks down Canyon and Dimmitt takes Denver City in their first round of regional play, the Bucks opening up Tuesday night against Canyon at Amarillo College Gym.

Two of the other Deer losses were averted in a second collision, Phillips of Triple-A and Class B powerhouse Miami, while district foe Shamrock was beaten twice, but the Bucks have clashed with Dimmitt only once, with the Bobcats gaining the decision. Although the Bucks are returning three starters, two of whom made the State All-Tournament team, and four lettermen, they sorely miss the services of the two graduates of last year's team which ran up a 32-3 record, Carl McAdams and Gerald Bichsel. Both were All-State Tournament, while the 6'2", 195-pound McAdams, was also All-State as he led the team in scoring and rebounding, with 6-4 Bichsel second in both departments.

Russell Tops

Although the Deer do not have anyone as strong under the boards as this duo, six-foot Carroll Russell, also All-State Tourney choice last year, was the third man in the Deer offense, and has improved steadily this year, averaging 18.5 points per game in district play and dragging down close to 10 rebounds a contest. The big board help has come from 6-3½ senior letterman Charles Coleman, who has fit the post as if it were designed for him, averaging better than 10 rebounds a game and 12 points. Russell Campbell, the 5-7 night mite, second team All-State Tourney last year, has been deadly from the outside, breaking up tight defense with his long set shots, which have payed off consistently for double figures in the season and a 10.9 average in district. Campbell and Jim Thurmond, 5-9, have been the team's ballhandlers and playmakers, with Thurmond also good for about seven points a game, having hit as high as 19 points against Dumas.

Two men are alternating the fifth position, 6-1 Mike Gann and 6-0 Dan Simmons, both junior lettermen. Gann started the season but was out for several weeks, with Simmons fitting in so well that the Buck coach can't quite decide whether to keep one in permanently or alternate the two some.

Tourney Winners

Tournament honors this season included first place in both the Shamrock and Clud Tourneys, and consolation winner in the Tulia Tournament. Russell and Campbell both made All-Tourney in the Shamrock meet and Russell and Thurmond were named on the Tulia honor team.

The Bucks are not a racehorse team like Amarillo, nor are they a slow down and walk squad like Miami, but rather a "betwixt and between" type of offense. "We don't like to shoot wildly," explained Russell, "we try to work pattern and weave plays to get the ball to a man who is free for a shot, or in to Russell. If we have men in good rebounding position. We play a fairly fast game except that we try to get a good target to pass to or shoot at, rather than make mistakes and lose the ball. "Defensively, we generally run a zone, with the type of zone depending on the other team's type of offense and their individual players. We do switch off both offensive and defensive patterns though, to keep the opponents a little off guard."

Stay With It

Reserves who see plenty of action for White Deer include a pair of 6-2 sophomores, Allen Aubrey and Mike Reynolds, and 5-10 junior Wes Schultz. "We've had to squeak through a couple of them, especially that double-overtime game at Dalhart that clinched the crown for us, when Simmons came through after most of our big men had fouled out."

Miami Warriors Kick Off Bi-District Games Tonight

MIAMI — The Miami Warriors kick off high school post-season play in the Panhandle tonight when they tangle with Higgins at Canadian.

One of the top-ranked B teams in the state, Miami has compiled a 27-3 record as 2-B champions, carrying four players over 6-2 in their lineup, an asset that many 3 and 4-A schools lack.

Walt Montgomery's Coyotes, all so highly-rated, ran up a 23-9 record as they won District 1-B. The Coyotes are led by 6-4 Walt Trosper, who has averaged 25.3 points per game, six-foot Willis Smith with 14.1 and 5-10 J. D. Barton, with a 14.2 percentage.

Another big game on the line tonight will be at San Angelo, where the Bobcats host El Paso Austin, with the winner meeting the victor of Tuesday night's Pampa-Haltom City game.

Tuesday night will also see White Deer, 1-AA kings, play 2-AA winner Canyon at Amarillo College Gym. The competition for Miami or Higgins also plays that night at Tascosa High when 4-B Happy tangles with 3-B Channing. White Deer Gym will also host a Tuesday bi-district game, with 3-AA Dimmitt playing 4-AA Denver City.

McLean of 2-A has finally had its district opponent decided after the lengthy 1-A playoff, and will meet Stratford at 7:30 Tuesday night at Houston Junior High Gym in Borger.

Their opponent will also be determined Tuesday when 3-A Farwell plays 4-A Petersburg in Alton.

The Class AAA, AA, and A regionals will all begin this weekend in Texas Tech Coliseum in Lubbock. Dumas will play Graham Friday and Seminole will meet Lamesa Friday night, with the regional championship game at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Class AA and A games start Saturday morning and finish Saturday night.

UT Seeks To Become Undefeated Champ

By ED FITE

UPI Sports Writer
The Texas Longhorns, their 10th undisputed Southwest Conference basketball crown tucked away, set out this week with a new goal in sight — to become one of the rare undefeated league titlists.

Only nine times in the history of the conference has such a feat been accomplished, and two of those were by Texas teams in 1915-16 when it took only five and six victories to turn the trick.

The most recent case was the 1956 Southern Methodist team. Before that the 1947 and 1924 Texas teams, the 1945 Rice team, and 1941 and 1928 Arkansas clubs and the 1920 Texas A&M champs were able to do it. Texas' 1924 team won 20 league games.

So, Tuesday night's Longhorn game at Houston with Rice and a Friday-night date with Arkansas in Austin take on fresh significance for a team which ordinarily might be expected to let down after winning the title with an 11-0 record — four games ahead with three to play.

Ends at Baylor

Texas closes its season March 5 in Waco against Baylor and then plunges into NCAA against Texas Western March 9 in a sectional tournament at Lubbock. After that, if the Longhorns can avenge a 45-40 loss to Texas Western in the finals of the Sun Carnival tournament, will come mighty national champion Cincinnati in the NCAA Midwest regionals at Lawrence, Kan., March 15.

With the edge off the race for the title, which Texas had been picked to win, most interest will center on the individual scoring battle between Texas A&M's Bennie Lenox and Rice's Kendall Rhine.

Lenox, scoring 73 points against Texas and TCU last week, has finally pulled ahead of the 6-10 Rice ace by the narrowest of margins.

His 490 points in 21 games gives him a .3 of a point lead over Rhine's 461 points in 20 games — 23.3 points per game to 23 — for the season. And, he's outscored Rhine 277-278 in 11 league games for a 25.2-point average to 25.1 for Rhine. They meet head-on in the final game of the season.

FIRST TRIP — Tommy Howard, recently promoted from the Shockers, may see action in tomorrow night's bi-district game at Fort Worth.

Celtics Can Clinch It By Beating 'Frisco

By United Press International

The Boston Celtics, fresh from a convincing thrashing of National Basketball Association rival Los Angeles Lakers, can ease back in their Eastern Division throne Tuesday night if they beat the Warriors of San Francisco.

No games were scheduled today.

The Celtics' magic number is one as a result of handing the Western Division leaders, the Lakers, a 119-109 defeat Sunday night. It was the first win for Boston at Los Angeles, but it was in a game that saw the Celtics stretch their lead to as much as 30 points — 94-64 — in the third period.

19,000 Points For Schayes

Meanwhile, in other NBA meetings Sunday night 15-year veteran Dolph Schayes reached the 19,000-point mark and scored 10 more points to aid Syracuse in defeating the New York Knickerbockers 143-126; St. Louis downed San Francisco 127-106, and Detroit took Cincinnati 119-110.

Schayes hit the 19,000th point of his career after he was fouled in the first minute of play. The game was halted as the Syracuse crowd gave him a standing ovation. The Nats' scoring was led by John Kerr and Hal Greer, both with 20 points. John Green and Dave Budd both tallied 18 for the Knicks.

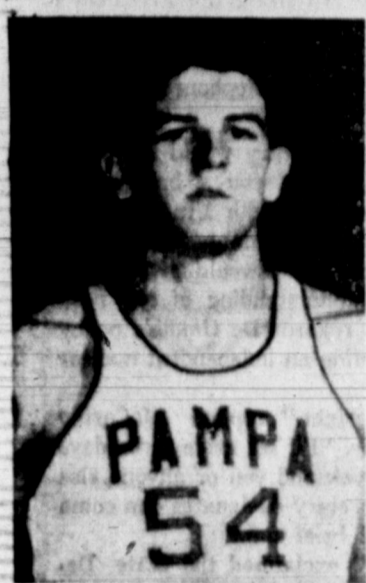

The St. Louis Hawks held Wilt Chamberlain to 13 points and romped over San Francisco 127-106 in a game at St. Louis. Bob Pettit topped Hawk scoring with 30 points and Tom Meschery had 24 for the Warriors.

Kennedy Shifts His Tactics On Taxes

President Kennedy has changed his mind as to why we must have tax reduction and reform. In his economic report he said, "The outlook for continued moderate expansion in 1963 is now favorable."

A little later in his tax proposal the President reiterated his optimism on the business outlook in these words: "My recommendation for early revision of our tax structure is not motivated by any threat of imminent recession—nor should it be rejected by any fear of inflation or of weakening the dollar as a world currency."

But a few days ago in a press conference the President was interpreted as saying that a tax reduction is the alternative to a recession. This was the reading of his comments in numerous newspaper headlines, and it is a fair judgment of what he said even though the Chief Executive never put his projection in quite such clear cut terms.

Specifically in this press conference the President said "What I am most concerned about is the prospect of another recession." Further he added: "In my judgment, the best argument and the one which was most effective as far as I was concerned was that the reduction in taxes was an effort to release sufficient purchasing power and was an effort to stimulate investment so that any downturn in business would be lessened in its impact and could be possibly postponed."

This is an amazing shift of arguments. Even if a tax bill is passed along the lines suggested by the President it would add well below one per cent to the personal income in the nation during 1963. This is not enough to make even a measurable difference in the business trend, even if it were all spent. And, as every business analyst knows, a shortage of purchasing power is not the cause of our problems today. Of course all of us would like to have twice our present income, and if we got that we should like it double again, and so forth. But unless such an increase comes about through producing goods and services which may be sold in the market place, the result will be inflation — not solid, lasting growth.

It perhaps also should be repeated that no government ever has, or ever will spend a nation into sound prosperity. There are some things which government must do, but we have gone far beyond this list. And aside from these more or less necessary functions, the growth of government is at the expense of the private economy. We have had much of this needless government growth in the past 20 or 30 years, and the trend is still upward.

The reason President Kennedy shifted his argument for the tax bill and reform is readily apparent. His proposal has run into a storm of protest that could not help but be a surprise to him and his advisers.

Labor is critical because there are not larger reductions for the low income tax brackets, although percentage wise they get more relief than any other group. Corporate managers are critical because such reductions as are given their organizations are extremely small and long delayed.

Investment specialists do not like the new capital gains rules. Realtors, charities, educational institutions, and so forth know they will be hurt by the five per cent floor under itemized deductions.

And so it goes from one end of our economy to the other. Whether the implied threat of a recession will change any of these views is highly questionable — because the proposed tax program is not designed to be of aid in forestalling a downturn.

Good Old Puritan Ethic

The other day the chairman of J. F. Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers said there wouldn't be so much opposition to the boss's proposal to put us in hock still more if it weren't for the "Puritan ethic" still lodged in the American conscience.

That's the most cheering statement we've ever heard slip from the lips of Walter Heller — the man whose advice the Germans refused to take after World War II, and considering the success they've had with the free enterprise system, there's good reason to believe they're glad they didn't. It had appeared to us that the last remnant of guilt over wrongdoing had just about disappeared from the American scene.

But Heller says it isn't so, although it's such a shame — he says. Admittedly, we've never had any faith in the accuracy of Heller's economic analyses, and particularly in his theories on what to do to improve the economic climate.

In this one instance, however, we want so much to believe he is right that we've thrown aside all caution and assumed that he is correct in this facet of his analysis.

What he is saying, in effect, is that there are still too many people around whose conscience bothers them so much when they consider going into debt to buy things they can't afford and can't do without, that they just can't bring themselves to do it.

So we say, Long live that good old Puritan ethic. If the Puritans had had the ethics of Walter Heller, they wouldn't have been around long enough to lay the foundation for the kind of prosperity their descendants enjoyed. They would have starved to death.

THE PERILS OF EXPEDIENCY

While the Congress has gone on to other matters, it is to be hoped that the initial struggle in the House of Representatives over the Rules Committee will teach a lasting lesson to those Southern Congressmen who surrender convictions in exchange for an administration promise.

It was apparent to political observers even before the voting in the House that a lot of horse-trading was in prospect. But the really crass action, which dismayed and angered conservatives, was the bolt by Georgia's entire 10-man delegation to the administration side. The delegation voted to pack the House Rules Committee, in accord with the wishes of the White House.

In so doing, the Georgia delegation found itself in some very peculiar company. Among the organizations that wanted the Rules Committee packed were Americans for Democratic Action, NAACP, and the Industrial Union Department of the AFL-CIO, Walter Reuther, president.

As political analysts around the nation have reported, the Georgia delegation evidently thought it had a solid deal in the works. By voting with the Kennedy administration, one of its members, U.S. Rep. Phil Landrum, would receive a place on the very important House Ways and Means Committee.

But dealing is not always the smart thing to do, let alone the right thing, as the delegation discovered. Many Conservative Southerners, finding that their cause had been sacrificed on the altar of political expediency, voted against Rep. Landrum when the time came to choose the Ways and Means Committee member — and Congressman Landrum lost out.

No doubt many, if not all, of Georgia's delegation now are sorry that they ever departed from the straight and narrow path. Certainly, the scars of bitterness should be allowed to heal as rapidly as possible. But it is proper to dwell on the lessons of this experience.

Part of the defeat suffered by the Georgia delegation unquestionably was the result of the administration's failure to deliver in the pinch. The word clearly was passed that the administration had the votes to put a cooperative Southerner across, but it did not deliver the votes even after the Georgians did their part.

This incident should make Southerners, who consider cooperation with the New Frontier, realize that they will be played for suckers. The Kennedy administration will use people who will promote its goals, but the rewards may not be received by those who expect them. The administration is hardly the soul of political integrity.

In addition, the conservative coalition is very strong. And those who profess to be conservatives, but back down in a pinch, can't expect the real conservatives to do nothing when the cause of good government suffers from those who follow the path of expediency.

Political honesty is the best policy, as everyone should know. If one is a liberal, then announce oneself as such and declare allegiance to the New Frontier. If one is a conservative, then don't traffic with the other side in politics. One may disagree with a sincere liberal, but one will respect his rights to his opinion and the courage of his convictions. But who respects the nominal conservative who tries to be an undercover liberal? Who respects the officeholder who places a special, short-term advantage ahead of the long-range benefits of a principled public policy?

The conservative who thinks he can let down the cause of good government "just once," does himself and his cause grave harm. Then the opposition comes to believe that those who voice proud sentiments do not, in truth, believe what they say. They move swiftly to strike at the weak spots in the conservative line.

With the lesson of the House Rules Committee in mind, Southern conservatives should move ahead — realizing it was but a preliminary skirmish — and gird themselves for the big struggles ahead over the proposal to increase spending and reduce taxes at the same time, over foreign aid, Medicare, the recap version of the Urban Affairs bill and all the other projects that Mr. Kennedy is bringing forth. Perhaps the very unhappy experience concerning the Rules fight will help spread understanding of the essential importance of conservative unity.

Tax Must Be Cut, And More Bureaucrats Added

By ED DELANEY

Rep. Leslie Arends of Illinois, has called attention to a speech made before members of the Democratic National Committee, in Washington, by Ted Sorensen, the party stalwart that if they expect to continue riding the gravy train and re-elect Mr. Kennedy in 1964, they should put pressure on Congress to cut taxes this year. Fool the public — get the votes. It was a brazen but characteristic admission that politics and not the economic welfare of the country, must be considered by Congress.

If taxes are cut, points out Arends, there should be corresponding slashes in federal expenditures. But of course that is not even considered by the intrepid Frontiersmen. As cited in this column some 18 months ago, approximately 360,000 more employees are added to the federal payroll every working day in the year. That adds up to about 180,000 potential voters for the Kennedy brothers administration in 1964, besides their dependents and relatives who also have votes.

When presenting his recent budget message, the President stated a good performance, but not quite good enough. Like a magician who bamboozles you with the manipulations of one hand, the other hand picked your pocket. A study of the 1963-64 budget reveals that there will be about 37,000 additional recipients of the Kennedy largess, next year, at the expense of the taxpayers. Brother Bobby's office will get 765 more clerks, flunkies, chauffeurs, lawyers and undoubtedly marshals to replace those who are still needed for the illegal occupation of Mississippi. That invasion and occupation has already cost in excess of $5 million and the end is not in sight.

Then the Peace Corps project under the direction of brother-in-law R. Sargent Shriver Jr., is vitally needed to bolster the national economy, so its budget is raised from a trifling $58.5 million for last year, to $108 million for the fiscal year starting July. The volunteer Frontiersmen who make up the personnel of that political agency will be increased from 9,000 at present, to 13,000. And instead of spending that $108 million, or the major part of it in this country, the Peace Corps will scatter most of their dollars in Africa and Latin America. Statistics show there is an appreciable annual increase of young voters in this country of African or Latin American ancestry. By spending a great part of that $108 million in Africa and Latin America, with generous press releases to inform those voters, it should reflect favorably for the sponsors of the project in November 1964.

Moreover the Peace Corps helps to reduce the number of unemployed in this country, Sen. Frank Lausche, (D. Ohio) questioned Bill D. Moyers, 28, a former radio and press reporter at relatively small pay, who began working for Lyndon Johnson at the starting salary of $10,000. But in three months that was raised to $15,000, then he was made deputy director to the President's brother-in-law, at the "starting" salary of $20,000. Just shows how opportunities come to those who know the right people. Lausche said he would vote against confirming

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question: "Can there be any serious or permanent monopoly without the help of government?"

We can think of no serious or permanent monopoly that could exist were it not for laws made by men that protected one group at the expense of another group.

If there were no tariffs or immigration restrictions, it is doubtful whether there would be any monopoly of business, because the capital all over the world would be looking for a place that it could be invested to the best advantage.

Therefore, any local concern that tried to extort would sooner or later find capable capital competing with them and, thus, the monopoly would be ended.

There would be no serious labor monopoly if it were not for the many laws that interfere with a free and natural division of labor. Such laws as the Clayton Amendment to the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, the Norris-LaGuardia Law, the minimum wage laws, the laws establishing wages for government officials, the law that makes it a crime for the employer to say, "I will not hire a union man," but not a crime for him to say, "I will not hire a non-union man."

These laws are all loaded to give organized labor a monopoly on certain kinds of work. This greatly reduces production, keeps the wrong man in the job, and injures everybody in the long run.

It is these kinds of laws that are causing so much business to go to Europe and Japan. For instance, our steel labor monopoly is making it almost impossible for steel companies in this country to compete with the steel companies in other countries where labor doesn't have such a hold on who dares to work at what.

If the government kept out of the money-lending business, we wouldn't have any trouble with that; we wouldn't have a dollar getting worth less and less all the time; we wouldn't have taxes running up; we wouldn't have the government growing and growing and taking away from an individual his right to choose.

Our government is, as the late Sir Ernest Benn and Albert Jay Nock said, our enemy. It is our enemy because of the means it uses to create monopolies, when its sole purpose should be to protect men in their right to sell their services to the world's highest bidders. It isn't the purpose of government to protect a man from his own folly, but to protect him from fraud by another, or initiated force by another person or group.

opinion is our great concern for this day, too many people have quit thinking in terms of what is good for the nation. They are torn between two problems. One, "How to figure some way to keep from being ruined by our overstuffed tax system." Two, "How can I get more from the government in benefits." As conflicting as these two things sound, it is nevertheless, the attitude of a great many people. It is an attitude that will have to be changed if we are to continue as a free nation. What is your idea citizen???

Editor: Men who are running for any Political office, must try to create a favorable image of themselves, if they expect to be elected. This image is created by bringing before the public all of their qualifications for that office, as well as presenting the image of a fine trustworthiness, conscientious citizen who wishes to serve his fellow man. There is nothing wrong with this if it is true, in fact it is essential that they present these things to the public.

The real trouble comes when a man is elected to office and begins to take himself too seriously and begins to believe all the praise men gave him in trying to get him elected. There seems to be a universal weakness among men. Once they are given a little authority they begin to exercise it for selfish purposes and not for the good of other people. Real harm comes when the elected official begins to use the powers of his office and perhaps some of the taxpayers money to further that image.

Free mail for Congressmen is often used for this very purpose. A whole group of photographers following the President's wife around the world has "in my opinion been used for this very purpose." When a politician is able to portray himself as a giver of all good things, then he is using the same technique that tyrants down through the ages have used to enslave people. By creating this image a man is able to gain hero worship among the masses. This hero worship covers his real intentions until he has enough power, that what the people think no longer matters. The old lion of the past, Daniel Webster, said, "Nothing will ruin this country if the people themselves will undertake its safety; and nothing can save it if they leave that safety in any hands but their own." Johnson Rejects Postponed Four Freedoms Award Without Explanation — Is it Peeve at Liberals?

WASHINGTON — A mystery-shrouded change of mind by Vice President Lyndon Johnson is causing bewildered consternation among officials of the Four Freedom Foundation.

Without the slightest hint or explanation, Johnson has decided he doesn't want the award the liberal organization bestows annually for "distinguished service in the cause of freedom."

Particular reason for the foundation officials' pained perturbation is that last year the Texan agreed to accept their award.

At that time the formal elaborate presentation, with a widely publicized speech by Johnson, was postponed because of the protracted session of Congress, the hot election battle climaxed by the Cuban missile crisis, and inability to mesh a date into Johnson's busy schedule.

It was therefore decided to delay the ceremony until this winter or spring. Recently three dates were proposed to Johnson when the desired hotel banquet auditorium would be available.

His reply was to indicate he didn't want the award; that he desired the whole affair to be shelved and forgotten.

What happens next remains to be seen!

THE POSSIBLE REASON — Some foundation officials favor appealing to Johnson to reconsider. Others, hot under the collar, are vigorously for withdrawing the award and offering it to either President Kennedy or his brother, the Attorney General.

Whether they would accept is not known. They would have to be sounded out on that.

Ironically, exactly that was proposed last year before the award was tagged for Johnson. But friends of his urged it be given him first and then presented to one of the Kennedys in 1964 — a presidential election year. Now that neat strategy has apparently backfired because of Johnson's mysterious change of mind.

The Four Freedoms Foundation, organized in 1951 to "perpetuate the ideals of the Four Freedoms" of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, distributes literature to schools, sponsors essay contests and presents an award to a nationally known leader. Judge Ferdinand Pecora, one-time New Deal Wall-Street investigator, heads the foundation.

Recipients include former President Truman, the late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the late General George Marshall, World War II chief of staff, Dr. Ralph Bunche, former Governor Averell Harriman, former Philippine Ambassador Carlos Romulo, former UN Ambassador and 1960 Republican Vice Presidential Candidate Henry Cabot Lodge, and AFL-CIO President George Meany, the latest recipient.

Johnson is deeply grieved by the bitter cuffing he got from liberals in and out of Congress in the recent protracted but futile fight to curb filibusters. The militants charged him with ruling against them at crucial showdowns.

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., and some other liberals warmly defended Johnson. But that hasn't assuaged his unhappiness.

THE WHOLE STORY — State Department officials are still quivering from the jolt they got from Senator Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn.

Soon after he issued a statement sharply criticizing the President's handling of the clash with General de Gaulle, one of Secretary Dean Rusk's aides telephoned McCarthy.

"The Secretary would like very much to give you a briefing on U.S. relations with France," explained the assistant. "The Secretary feels that would give you a better understanding of our position as regards de Gaulle's policy of creating an independent nuclear force."

"All right," replied McCarthy amiably. "I'll set aside three days next week and you or anyone else the Secretary designates can come up and brief me."

"Oh," exclaimed the State Department official, "all that time won't be necessary. All I will need is about one hour."

"In that case don't bother," reported McCarthy. "To really understand de Gaulle will be necessary to cover at least the last several hundred years of French history. That should take about three days if it is done right. If all you are prepared to present is an hour briefing, then forget it. You can't tell the whole de Gaulle story in one hour or one day."

McCarthy has heard nothing more about briefing him on the administration's bogged relations with "Le Grand Charlie."

McCarthy is working on a Senate speech that will blast the administration — supported Sugar Act passed by Congress last year. He will charge it is costing U.S. consumers more than $200 million in higher sugar prices.

POLITICALS — R. Burdell Bixby, close to former Governor Thomas Dewey, is a strong dark horse possibility as the next New York Republican State Chairman. From Hudson, N.Y., Bixby was formerly state GOP treasurer and head of the New York Thruway Authority. Other strong aspirants for the state chairmanship are also in the field, and the selection won't be made until after the legislature adjourns in the spring. Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., was decidedly not pleased by the omission of any reference to him in President Kennedy's message to Congress urging the establishment of a National Youth Corps. Humphrey has been vigorously battling for this for several years, long before the President said a word about it. Humphrey's Senate colleagues are making no bones of their ire at this glaring slight to him. During Governor "Pat" Brown's stay in Washington last week, the Californian ducked every effort to draw him out about running for President or Vice President. He flatly refused to discuss either possibility. But his partisans are not so shy, and make no bones about favoring him for one of these places. Some are going so far as saying Brown may "wind up on the 1964 ticket." Asked what they mean by that, they smile knowingly and reply, "Wait and see. A lot can happen in politics."

Carol Provides An Entertaining Hour

By RICK DU BROW
 United Press International
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — In various sequences on her CBS-TV special Sunday night, Miss Carol Burnett portrayed a girl who is tired of being boyish, a man-crazy young lady, and a charwoman who imagines herself as a stripteaser.

In a sense, and despite occasional flaws, the hour was a summing up of the definitive character that Miss Burnett probably will be giving us in various forms in the movies, on stage and television for the remainder of the century, and then some: the Chaplinesque, slapstick sad-sack.

It is a traditional and honorable classic comedy pose, and unless one is, say, a researcher of television viewing habits, and enjoys analyzing the generally obvious, it seems safe to say that it stems from precisely the causes that your common sense tells you.

There were some awkward transitions Sunday night, and some over-long numbers, but overall it was a highly entertaining hour — and from the very beginning, Miss Burnett showed the qualities that have endeared her deservedly to viewers. She came out in an evening gown, noted that she was wearing "high heels and socks," then added with finality: "And I smell divine."

Now Miss Burnett is no Mata Hari, but she is an often-attractive young lady, and it is this willingness to emphasize her bad points that probably endears her more than anything else — that and the facts that she has blossomed year after year before the nation's viewers, and that she is so wholly and winningly American.

Sunday night, she did a comedy song, "I don't Want To Be Nelson (Eddy) Any More," emphasizing her desire to be girlish; and though it started slowly, it ended just fine, with Royal Mounted Police all over the place, and Miss Burnett in curls, like Jeanette MacDonald.

Miss Burnett and her only guest, Robert Preston, then did an intertwining medley of sing-along songs that also built, and was showmanlike. And Preston's solo — tailored to his fast "Music Man" patter, and telling how he has died in every possible way in his movie roles — was a corker. In one deathbed lyric, he coughed: "Darling, open the door so I can hear them play our concerto."

As the man-crazy woman, Miss Burnett wound up in a bachelor's apartment; only the bachelor, Preston, was a stereo bug who wanted her to hear his records of a train wreck and a firing squad ("And the great thing," he explains, "is you can't believe it isn't happening right in this room!").

But Miss Burnett's best moments came near the end as the charwoman who imagines herself a stripper. She wore raggedy old clothes, and she removed hardly any of them; but her restrained pantomime etched a touching and funny little portrait of an insignificant human being longing for the spotlight. It bore the stamp of someone who knew what that feeling was like.

It's The Law In Texas

NO WILL? WHO INHERITS PROPERTY?

What will happen if you should die without executing a legal and proper will? Who will inherit your property? Your husband, wife, mother, father, children, your wife's relatives? The best way you can say who will have it is to provide a will which will protect your rightful beneficiaries and dispose of your property in accordance with your wishes.

When a deceased has no will, or dies "intestate" as the law calls it, the property of that person is distributed according to a detailed formula fixed by law. In some cases this may be the way you yourself would divide it—but in many cases it is not.

The provisions of the law concerning the distribution of the property of a person who dies without a will are rather complicated, and all of the possibilities cannot be covered by a general statement.

There are different rules for real estate and for personal property, for community property and for separate property, for homestead property, and for all of the many possible combinations of surviving relatives. Each situation must be carefully studied to determine the correct distribution of the property.

For example, here is a general idea of how the community property which you and your spouse have accumulated will be divided if you do not make a will prior to your death.

If your husband or wife survives and there are no children, the surviving spouse receives all of the property.

If, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of deceased children, they would divide one-half of the property, while the surviving spouse would receive the other one-half.

Of course, grandchildren do not share in the estate unless their parent who would inherit is deceased. And when descendants of previously deceased children do inherit, they receive only the portion that the child would have received, regardless of the number of such descendants.

An odd note, perhaps, is that the surviving spouse already owns one-half of the community estate prior to your death, and the law adds nothing to this share where there are children surviving.

When there are only children and their descendants surviving, they divide the entire community estate between them.

(This newfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Millionaires Work Harder

LONDON (UPI) — Jean Paul Getty, one of the richest men in the world, believes millionaires are the hardest-working people in the world.

"They work longer hours than any other working man," the 70-year-old oil king said Sunday night on a television interview on the British Broadcasting Corp.

But that doesn't mean Getty is ready to retire.

"I've never had the feeling I'm flushed," he said. "I'm struggling on."

The Minnesota-born tycoon spoke from his 16th century home in Surrey amid the masterpieces of his private art gallery.

"Of all the classes I know, millionaires are the hardest workers."

Getty said it "was a good thing" he could not take his money with him when he dies because "it might be a burden."

Getty's 70-company empire nets him $11,200 an hour, or $1.9 million a week. He inherited his business from his father.

HEY, CULLIGAN MAN... for the lady of the house. Clean, soft, lustrous hair with soft water. Hard water soap curls clings to hair, gives it a dull, lifeless cast and a stiff or gummy coating. The abundance of rich bubbly suds that comes naturally with soft water will put an end to stringy sticky hair.

When water falls to earth as rain, it is in its purest form. As it filters down through the earth it absorbs the hardness giving minerals, calcium and magnesium. Just how hard it becomes depends on the amount of calcium and magnesium it dissolves.

Pampa's water varies in hardness from 15 to 21 grains per gallon, dependent on seasons and
