Muffled—Republican leaders muffed a swell chance to pull a fast one on the Wheeler amendment that would have embarrassed the Democratic Party plenty.

If two Republican Senators had switched their votes the gold revaluation bill would have gone back to the House with the amendment attached.

That would have put House Democrats in a tight spot, particularly those from the silver states. They would have had to vote the President's wishes as usual or oppose him because of home considerations. They are all up for reelection and either way the vote might have been used against them.

Gallery strategists chided Republican Senators privately for overlooking the opportunity.

They explained they were opposed to the silver amendment and didn't care to vote for it.

The answer to this was they could have voted for the Wheeler amendment and against the whole bill—thus preserving their records.

Wheeler—It seems pretty certain that Senator Wheeler will put his silver proposition across before the session ends.

He has gained strength steadily. Counting those paired in favor as well as actual yeas, Wheeler mustered 22 votes in the lame duck session during the Hoover administration, 35 yeas in last spring's special session and 47 the other day.

Three Democratic Senators—responding to White House pressure—saved the day. Those who asked Wheeler to be released from earlier promises on the morning of the Local Council K. Of C. Hears Lecture Here

'Menace Of Communism' Topic For R. McKenzie Thursday Night

Robert A. McKenzie, special agent of the Knights of Columbus, lectured to the local council Thursday evening on the Menace of Communism, stating that the only defense against this antireligious movement is organization, faith and cooperation with the president's program.

Mr. McKenzie said in part, after pointing out what has already happened in Russia, China, Spain and Mexico: "Here in our own United States, Red agitators are busily engaged in stirring up dissension and discontent among our citizens. Communism and Bolshevism are within our borders fighting for a foothold. Radical disturbers and sympathizers are busily engaged utilizing the misery and discontent of the depression to their own advantage in securing converts to Moscow. Their very activity constitutes a warning of impending catastrophe. Spirituality and idealism have no place in the communistic order. Theirs is a doctrine of lawlessness, revolt and terrorism. Its cardinal principle is that of destruction of all lawful and duly constituted authority."

In speaking of the NRA, Mr. McKenzie said: "With characteristic vigor and initiative, President Roosevelt attacked the dilemma, and today the entire nation is wholeheartedly cooperating in the National Recovery Plan. The NRA is a peace time undertaking such as has never before been recorded in the annals of history. Its scope, its application, its detail and its operation can only be compared with the mobilization of men and industries during the great war. The Knights of Columbus has always offered its wholehearted cooperation in times of national stress, and it is therefore, in keeping with the Columbian spirit and tradition, that each member do his utmost in supporting the president's program."

West Texas Oil Hearing On Feb. 10

Local Oil Men To Ask Increase In Allowable For Howard-Glassecock

Oil producers in Ector, Howard and Pecos counties will seek increased allowable as a hearing before the Railroad Commission of Texas at Fort Worth on Saturday, Feb. 10. While only the three counties are mentioned specifically in the notice for the hearing it is thought probable that the commission will consider testimony from any field in the Permian Basin.

The hearing will be held, the notice stated, preparatory to issuance of regulations to prevent or lessen physical waste resulting from crude oil production.

After a recent hearing in Fort Worth increases in allowable production were granted to two pools in Crane county, one in Pecos (Taylor-Link) the Scarborough pool in Winkler, the Ector-Harper area in Ector county to Ward county, to Loving county and to Irion county.

At the present time the top allowable for all fields in the West Texas Permian Basin is 123,964 barrels. The allowable from the Howard-Glassecock pool, which includes all production in the two counties except the East Howard or Dodge-Dennan pool, is 12,350 barrels daily. Recent completions on the west end of the Howard-Glassecock pool have rated high initials through use of heated acid.

The East Howard pool, which is linked with production in Mitchell and Scurry counties in the production schedules, is limited to 1,900 barrels daily. Most of the properties in Mitchell and Scurry counties are producing their capacity.

The total Pecos county allowable is 42,426 barrels daily, with 41,500 barrels divided to the Yates pool. Kid-Kansas Oil and Gas company and other operators in this district have recently completed some heavy producing wells forced by offset requirements to protect against the development on "vacant" land awarded several months ago to Fred Turner, Jr., et al, and then sold to Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas company after several wells were started.

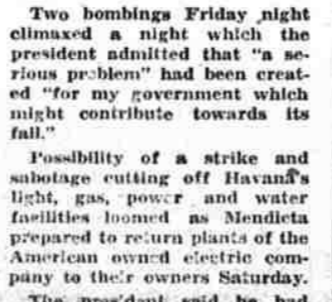

The Taylor-Link pool has allowable of 660 barrels and the Pecos Valley district is allowed 226 barrels.

The Penn pool in Ector county is producing 5,250 barrels daily, the North Cowden area 881 barrels, the South Cowden (Addis) area 406 barrels and the Ector-Harper district 150 barrels daily.

Bank Employes Identity Newton As One Of Band

AUSTIN (AP)—E. E. Edens, cashier of the First Coleman National bank and Ed Lemay, bookkeeper of the same institution, identified John "Snake" Newton here Saturday afternoon as the man who covered the rear of the bank during the robbery there Friday morning.

AUSTIN (AP)—Captain Hammond of the Texas Rangers, notified ranger headquarters here that a man and woman, believed to have participated in the Coleman bank robbery had been captured near sandy and cedar hills, west of here.

Captain Hammond telephoned Captain Aldrich that a quantity of money was taken from the couple. He did not say how much.

Aldrich ordered the couple brought here immediately. No attempt had been made to identify the couple.

Rangers, sheriffs, deputies and many others, pressed into special service were scouring a number of Central and Southwest Texas counties Saturday for the robbers who obtained $23,000 at First Coleman National Bank Friday.

Rangers had two "brushes" with desperadoes, one at Blanco City, Johnson county in hills west of Austin, and one other place unreported.

Officers believe Clyde Barrow and his pal, Raymond Hamilton, whom he recently freed from the Eastham prison farm near Huntsville were members of the gang being hunted.

The rangers, enroute to Austin with the pair, said they undoubtedly participated in the Coleman robbery. The man was believed to be John "Snake" Newton, a Fort Worth criminal.

A large quantity of money was taken from the couple. It was tied in bundles. The couple was found crouched back of a farmers' truck on the highway.

Popular Hits Total Six In New Musical

Bing Crosby Is Aided Capably In 'Going Hollywood' By Davies

Six new musical numbers, which will become national song hits, will be heard in Marion Davies' new picture, "Going Hollywood," which opens today at the Ritz Theatre with Bing Crosby supporting the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star.

It was the wish of Miss Davies that her newest film should be liberally spiced with contagious musical rhythm, so, in the conferences that preceded the actual shooting of the picture, Producer Walter Wanger assigned Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed to the task.

One of the numbers, "Our Big Love Scene," is a melodic theme that threads its way through the length of the picture.

Another which Miss Davies believes will become nationally popular is "We'll Make Hay While The Sun Shines."

"This song," said the composers, "carries the philosophy of Back-to-the-Farm, where the hustle and bustle of the city is forgotten and where the lovers sing, 'We'll make hay while the sun shines and we'll make love while it rains.'"

"Cottage of Glass" is the song continued as the lovers enter and pass through their love cottage of glass, and then, in Mauve Decade costumes they are next seen driving along a country lane and into a hay field where a chorus of scarecrows come to life and begin dancing.

"A third song, 'After Sundown,' is a melodic Mexican theme, introduced by Bing Crosby and sung by Bing Crosby, the gentleman with the handsome profile and golden voice, does not confine all his activities to crooning love ballads in "Going Hollywood." He is pretty adept at other tricks, especially with encouragement from pretty Marion Davies.

Hardy And Laurel Are At It Again

"If there is anything else you need," says Stan Laurel vacantly, "just call me."

And with Oliver Hardy they are off in typical slap-stick style, made humorous because of the indescribable facial expressions by Hardy and the thoughtless stare of Laurel.

"Busy Bodies," an extra Ritz feature is the first of a new comedy series by the two for the 1934 season.

Miss Davies. "Temptation," introduced by Crosby, is a melody built upon the monotony of a constant beat and is similar to an American version of the Bolero.

"Going Hollywood" is a rhythmic fox trot, sung by Crosby with a background of kaleidoscopic scenes in New York's Grand Central railway station and with the group ensembles arranged by Albertina Rasch.

"Another song, 'Cinderella's Fella,' is introduced by Miss Davies. This song is in the same category as 'The Wedding of the Painted Doll' and 'The Old Woman in the Shoe,' which also were written by us."

"Going Hollywood," directed by Raoul Walsh, has a cast including Fifi D'Orsay, Stuart Erwin, Ned Sparks, Patsy Kelly, Bobby Watson and the Three Radio Rogues.

"42nd Street" Is Back Again

Song And Dance Sensation Here For Second Run

"Three good tunes and a kick in the pants for your wow blackout. Can you make a hit show of it?"

These are the first sentences in Bradford Ropes' novel, "42nd Street," and they color the length of Warner Bros.' new gigantic picture of the same name which comes to the Queen Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

In the picture, the words are addressed to Warner Baxter, who plays the role of a veteran stage director with a hundred hits to his credit. What he does to the three good tunes and the kick in the pants form the basis for "42nd Street."

But not quite all of it. Warner Bros. have gathered together in this tale of the Rialto's backstage, a gripping dramatic story of the theatre of today, of the problems, heartaches and tears, the good times, lighthearted camaraderie and carefree days, when there's money in the pocket, forty weeks more of work ahead, and nothing to worry about, all of which make up stage existence.

Chorus girls—to the number of about one hundred and fifty—stars, directors, singers, song writers, hoofers, crooners, comics, heavies, juveniles and ingenues—they're all here. And Warner Baxter, Ebe Daniels, George Brent, Una Merkel, Ruby Keeler (Mrs. Al Jolson to you, and you'd better watch for her), Guy Eibner, Ned Sparks, Dick Powell, Ginger Rogers, Allen Jenkins, Henry B. Walthall, Edw. J. Nugent, Harry Akst—a dozen others.

Song hits by Al Dubin and Harry Warren, who, between them, have been responsible in the past for such popular knockouts as "You're My Everything," "Too Many Tears," "Carolina Moon" and "I Found a Million Dollar Baby in a Five and Ten Cent Store" and dozens of others.

Dances and stage ensembles created and staged by Busby Berkeley, who has staged them for the best of Broadway's producers, including Earl Carroll.

Poor Girl—Beggars

Following up on several cinemas staged with a transcontinental bus and a speeding express train for a background, "Orient Express," with Heather Angel, a poor girl, Ralph Morgan, the beggar man, and a rich man and a thief is to make its appearance here this week.

Seven People Engangled In Tense Drama

'Orient Express' Draws Characters From Far Corners

"Orient Express," Fox Film's latest production with a cast that features seven stars, will make its appearance at the Ritz Theatre Thursday. Based upon Graham Greene's best selling novel, the film is reported as being a tense, dramatic characterization of seven people who are swept together from the far corners of the earth to find the course of their lives changed through their journey aboard the Orient Express as it speeds from Ostend to Constantinople.

The story concerns itself with a dancer, hungry and looking for work; a wealthy young merchant, who falls in love with the dancer; a Cockney Englishman, under the thumb of his domineering wife; a thief, fleeing from justice; a beautiful girl, thirsting for love; and a woman reporter, seeking to uncover the plans of a powerful Communist leader. All are aboard the Orient Express, each heading for his own particular destination. As the train reaches the Jugo-Slavian border, and the Communist leader is about to be arrested, he gives an incriminating letter to the dancer. This leads to her arrest. The thief, the Communist leader and the dancer are removed from the train and are held as prisoners. While in prison, the thief plans an escape, sends the other two out into the night, and remains behind with the hope of securing a pardon. The film is said to end in a climax of whirlwind action and tender romance.

Heather Angel and Norman Foster play the romantic leads. The other members of the cast are Ralph Morgan, Herbert Mundin, Una O'Connor, Irene Ware, Dorothy Burgess, Lisa Gora, William Irving, Roy D'Arcy, Perry Ivins, Fredrik Vogeding and Marc Lobell.

Paul Marin, who directed the picture, collaborated with Carl Hovey and Oscar Levant on the screen play.

Indians proved to be particularly efficient conservative workers last year in eliminating the blister dust which attacks white pine in forest areas.

Deep sea fishing is increasing in popularity among winter tourists visiting Miami, Fla., and many hotels are arranging daily trips to the fishing banks.

America's boy friend finds a new sweetheart!

James Dunn whose many successes have made him one of Miss America's "boy friends" and Claire Trevor who is rapidly gaining an equally important position in the hearts of the fans, are teamed in the new Fox Film production "Jimmy and Sally," which comes to the Ritz Theatre on Tuesday to remain for an engagement of two days.

It's the romance of two real youngsters, living across an apartment house well who because they lack money and have extravagant ideas must postpone their marriage date, the more their quarrels increase.

He is the publicity man for a large corporation, whose attempts at putting across what he considers to be sure-fire stunts, continuously gets him into hot water. After a number of these stunts, he finds himself without a job. Meanwhile, his sweetheart tells him she doesn't like his non-marriage ideas and finally breaks with him. Then he heads west and while there he realizes what he has failed to appreciate, both in job and a sweetheart, and returns, only to find more difficulties awaiting him.

Preview sources report that James Dunn and Claire Trevor who portray the featured roles as the misunderstanding sweethearts have their most important roles to date. In support of Dunn, and Miss Trevor who was last seen opposite Spencer Tracy in "The Made Game" is Harvey Stephens, who will be remembered for his outstanding performance in "The Worst Woman in Paris?" Some of the other members of the cast are Lya Lya, Jed Prouty, Gloria Roy, Alma Lloyd and John Arledge.

Divorce Suit Of Century Is Hit Today At Queen

The breach of promise suit of the century—with Slim Summerville as the lawyer and Zasu Pitts as the girl who has been promised—will open here today according to J. Y. Robb, manager of the Queen theatre. Based on the Broadway stage hit, "Oh Promise Me" by Bertram Robinson and Howard Lindsay, it is by far the most uproarious of the popular Summerville-Pitts co-starring comedies, produced by Universal.

The plot revolves around Slim, cast as a never-dwell lawyer, and Zasu, filing clerk who gets all the facts of life from her banker-vegetarian-philandering employer. Verree Teasdale makes a devastating blonde villainess.

One of the outstanding discoveries made by the pair is that life and love are "just a lot of spic." To find this out they go through several amazing experiences, including a faked rain-storm, threats of perjury and the breach of promise trial. For a while it looks as if Slim will join his unlucky clients in the local jail.

Sharing these experiences with Slim and Zasu, in one way or another, are George Barber, Lucille Gleason, Miss Teasdale, Donald Meek, Purnell Pratt and Adriene Dore the latter said to be one of the most beautiful women in Hollywood. The picture was directed by Eddie Buzzell, the famous Broadway comedian and stage director, who has made many successful films in Hollywood.

Lillian Gish, above, has a right to do some deep thinking. She is the woman in the current film hit, "His Double Life."

President Is One Of Many Enjoying Play

Chief Executive Compliments 'His Double Life' Liberally

Big business tycoons may demand rights as "individualists," but President Franklin D. Roosevelt confesses to being just "one of the American mob."

The scene of the confession was a White House gathering to witness a pre-view showing of "His Double Life," starring Lillian Gish and Roland Young. The picture, a Paramount release, comes on Friday to the Ritz Theatre.

"I Enjoyed It" After the showing, at dinner, an English lady declared the picture "charming."

"I loved it," she declared. "All those English scenes. I wonder whether the American public will appreciate its subtle appeal."

"Tut, tut," replied the President. "I'm one of the American mob, and I enjoyed it thoroughly."

Twenty guests, including Producer Eddie Dowling and Miss Gish were at the pre-view. After the showing, the President revealed himself as an old Gish admirer. He remembered her "Broken Blossoms" and "Way Down East."

Likes Comedy Role He thought Miss Gish looked more charming than ever and expressed himself as glad to see her in a comedy role on her return to the films, instead of the tragic roles she formerly portrayed.

Besides signaling the return of Miss Gish to the screen, "His Double Life" marks the photoplay debut of Arthur Hopkins, its associate producer and director. The picture was adapted by the famous stage director and Clara Beranger from Arnold Bennett's novel, "Buried Alive," and his play, "The Great Adventure." It is an account of the amusing adventures of an artist when he is forced to assume the identity of another buried under the artist's name.

Mc Coy Is Real Western Star

No Make Up And Plenty Of Fresh Air Is What Tim Wants

Tim McCoy, star of the Columbia picture, "Man of Action," wears perhaps less makeup than any other man in pictures. He wears only a little dark powder and no lip stick or eye makeup. The dark powder is necessary because of the sensitiveness of the panchromatic film, now used in all motion pictures.

Tim's double, who has been with him for years, not only acts as stand-in and does, but also as Tim's secretary and sort of valet. Whatever Tim needs on one of his Western pictures, his double gets for him.

Probably the only reason that Tim is in pictures is the fact that he does only Westerns. He says that he could not stand being inside on a stage for a complete picture.

Tim doesn't even mind the early calls. On "Man of Action," which is scheduled to open Friday at the Queen Theatre there were just eight days, five of them had calls to be on location at 5 o'clock. They work late, too, and for that reason it is possible to finish Tim's pictures in short order. He would rather work very hard while he is working, and get back to his ranch in Wyoming sooner.

TRANSPORTATION BEFORE CONGRESS

Within the next few months the present Congress will consider changes and additions to the laws governing regulation of our transportation agencies. It's a matter which deserves the greatest interest not only of every legislator and public official, but every citizen who is interested in his country's future.
 The railroads will come before Congress with a very modest request. Briefly it is this: That equality of regulation be extended to all forms of transportation, and that all be considered part of a unified system in which each will serve the public to the best of its capabilities, rather than as separate entities accorded divergent legal treatment. That is certainly as logical a program as anyone could desire.

The railroads are still the most important gear in the transport machine—and they're getting the least grace. Minimum rates are established for them, and they're not allowed to make reductions even though highway carriers and waterways parallel their lines and provide transport at a much cheaper price. Before they can make any rate changes whatsoever they must give 30 days' notice—while their competitors can make changes overnight, and a dozen times a day, without notifying anyone.
 The railroads will ask that these two provisions of the law, along with similar restrictions which have made it impossible for them to meet increasing and partly subsidized competition, be changed. They will ask that the transport regulation be handled by the central agency, preferably the interstate commerce commission, which has been in existence for decades, knows transport problems intimately and has an expert organization built up. If the changes are made, as most observers believe they will be, it will be to the interest of all investors, all workers, all citizens.

"DEBT CERTIFICATES" GROW

A question which will shortly arise in this country is this: In spending public money for relief and recovery activities, where does the point of diminishing return occur?
 In other words, it is possible to reach a point where the best intentioned activities, simply because of their cost to businesses and individuals, defeat the ends they are designed to further.
 The public debt will be the greatest in history by June 30, next, and climb steadily to June 30, 1935, according to present program, when a halt is contemplated. The estimated total federal debt will then be about $31,000,000,000.
 States and municipalities are similarly burdened. Their position is worse because their credit is obviously much less solid than that of the federal government. They have spent, collectively, untold billions with slight idea of how the money will be repaid. They have frightened investors, property owners, prospective builders of homes and factories and stores. They will suffer for it accordingly—as will workers, taxpayers and the entire public.
 When Mr. Roosevelt said that, unless something extraordinary occurred, he meant to begin reducing indebtedness within a year, as all expenditures necessary to his policies would have been made, overwhelming public approval greeted him. That shows which way the wind blows. All branches of government, down to the smallest hamlet in the land, should take decisive steps to reduce public debt and eliminate the fear of taxation which is rapidly becoming confiscation.

AMERICAN HIGHWAYS A SHAMBLES.

A recent release of the National Safety Council points out that laws to control pedestrians on streets and highways may be necessary, unless walkers themselves take steps to stigmatize the pedestrian hazard.
 In an average year, about one-half of all automobile deaths are suffered by pedestrians. And, contrary to the general belief, the pedestrian is not an innocent bystander run down by a Machiavellian motorist. He is, in a great number of cases where death or serious injury results, solely to blame.
 Larger cities, for the most part, have laws against jay-walking—the practice of crossing streets against the signal bells or lights. Smaller towns may be called upon to pass similar legislation—pedestrian carelessness isn't limited to the metropolitan center. Again, thousands of accidents are caused by pedestrians walking on the wrong side of the road.

 There is great need for unremitting, concentrated educational work against automobile accidents, modernization of driving laws, and law enforcement. The American highway is a shambles—over 30,000 killed in 1933—where the reckless, the incompetent and the careless menace the lives and property of us all.

THERE'S JUST ONE WAY TO END RACKETEERING

Sometimes an ordinary news article in the daily paper can be more educational than whole columns of careful exposition and exhortation.
 A sample is a recent story which told how New York police, unshackled by Mayor LaGuardia, are trying to stamp out racketeers at the famous Fulton Fish market.
 This market happens to be the largest wholesale fish trading center in the country, doing an annual business of around $25,000,000. Dealers, called before a police inspector, who is looking into the racket, testified that as a group they have been paying a certain racketeering ring $50,000 a year for protection.
 Every tug that lands at the docks has to pay a fee; every truck that enters the market also has to pay. And the dealers were especially anxious to have the police try to drive the racketeers out. Everything worked smoothly, they said. Paying the $50,000-a-year fee was a nuisance, of course, but it works; they did get protection.
 Every so often some sneak thief would steal a basket of fish or something, but as soon as the "protective association" was notified, the stolen goods would be returned.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
 The Metaphysics of Gold

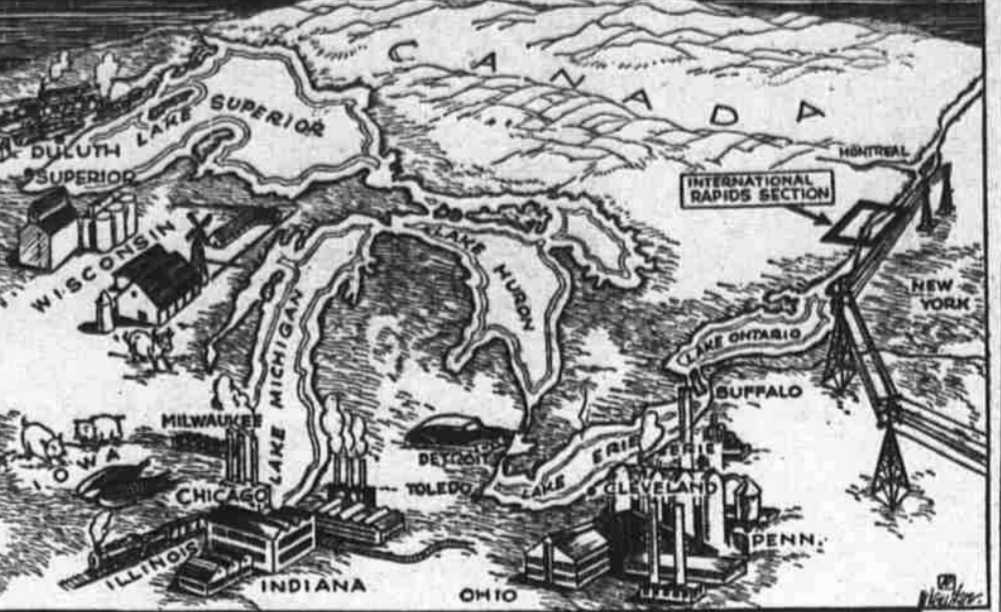

Any one who does not mind a bad headache can devote himself to figuring out whose gold it is that the government is taking. I do not pretend that I have figured it out. But I feel sure the truth is not so simple as it seems, for example, to that admirable and indispensable journal, "The Commercial and Financial Chronicle," when it declares that "camouflaging the proposal as we may," the Gold Bill "is simply larceny on a large scale." The Federal Reserve institutions, says the Chronicle, "hold gold which is worth 100 cents on the dollar" and all they are to get for it are gold certificates worth from 50 to 60 cents.
 Now if this is larceny, somebody's property is being taken away. To whom, then, does that gold belong which the Federal Reserve banks "hold"? Do they own it as they own their bank buildings, for example? Is it their property? Does it belong to their stockholders?
 Let us go back before March 4th of last year, when we were still on the gold standard, and let us see how the Reserve System owned that gold. It had a lot of gold. But it had also a lot of debts which by law it had to pay in gold. Its debts were far larger than the value of its gold. Its debts consisted of the currency it had issued, known as Federal Reserve Notes, and of the deposits of member banks, foreign banks, and of the government. It had promised to pay more gold than it had. This, of course, was perfectly legal. But nevertheless, it was an awkward fact. The system did not have assets in gold anywhere nearly equal to its liabilities in gold. No bank of issue does have.
 In February its creditors took it into their heads to ask for the gold they were entitled by law to have. But all the creditors could not possibly be paid. So it became a question of which creditors could run to the bank first and be paid off, leaving the other creditors at the back end of the line to whistle for their gold. What was more, anyone who could get hold of a dollar was entitled to stand in that line and try to get some of that gold. A Hottentot traveling for his health on the Riviera had just as good a right as anyone else. All he had to do was to pawn his earnings for French francs, buy American dollars with the francs, and instruct his agent to demand some of that gold. Anybody anywhere in the world could sell anything in any currency, convert it into dollars, and stand in the line with a perfectly valid claim on that gold.
 Well, then, whose gold was it? In law that gold could be shown as the property of the first collection of people who arrived at the bank and asked for it. Now suppose the government had stood by and said to the Federal Reserve banks: "Gentlemen, you are on the gold standard. You are obligated by law to pay gold on demand. Pay out." They would have paid out. If the panic rush for gold continued, and no one can say it would not have, the world would have paid out all the gold they had. Then we would not be arguing about taking their gold profit because they would have no gold on which there is a

Ocean Liners In Midwest, Lower Power Costs Seen As Twin Aims Of St. Lawrence Seaway

By CARL C. CRANMER
 WASHINGTON (AP)—Addition of 3,500 miles to the American seacoast and conversion of 30 inland cities into ocean ports... Utilization of the Great Lakes as a 94,000-square mile basin for hydro-electric power...

These are two of the main points sketched in an inter-departmental survey of the economic aspects of the St. Lawrence seaway supported in a message to the senate by President Roosevelt.
 The seaway, avenue of the earliest explorers and for more than a century envisaged as the open road for commerce to midcontinental America, has been a subject of active national investigation, at least since 1919, when congress authorized an international joint commission to study its possibilities. It is now before the senate in the form of a treaty with Canada.
 The interdepartmental report, drawn up by the war and commerce departments, the Federal Power commission and the New York Power authority, says, among other things:
 Twenty-eight of the 48 states will share in the extended coast line.
 The "seaway area" has a population of 45,000,000, including 35 cities of more than 100,000 population.
 The area's manufactured products in 1929 totaled $32,000,000,000.
 States wholly within the area contain 52 per cent of the crop raising capacity of 2,200,000 horse-lad, 10 per cent of the total value of live stock, 72 per cent of the swine, produce 76 per cent of the wheat.
 The area reported 38 per cent of greatest of all obstacles, Niagara Falls, and has completed all but 40 per cent of the retail trade in the locks for the Beauharnois canal. She also is to build the Lachine canal and locks, while the United States is to build a new lock at Sault Ste. Marie and dredge channels there and at Detroit to 27 feet, already being deepened to 25 feet. Both countries have cleared the Thousand Islands section.
 Estimated Cost $543,000,000
 Based on 1928 estimates, the entire project is expected to cost $543,000,000, but Canada already has

Marine Artery Planned For Vast Inland Empire

The St. Lawrence seaway project, long considered as a means of providing ocean transportation for the Great Lakes region, would affect a large territory from the eastern seaboard through the midwest. Its sponsors claim that reduction in freight costs made possible through bringing the sea to the doors of inland cities would make it a paying investment. Already the greater portion of the route is in use, the remaining 120-mile gap including the international rapids section. Total cost is estimated at $543,000,000, of which a large part already has been spent by the United States and Canada, jointly interested in the project.

man must pay another for goods, services, and debts. It may be, though this, I think, still an open question, that men will decide that monetary gold can best be used by never allowing any one to "own" it much as men have decided that scientific discoveries can best be used by never allowing any one to own them. How to use gold most wisely is a question not of morals but of broad judgment of the probable consequences and not by dialectics as to property.
 Maybe Mr. Keynes is right. Maybe the present tendency will be carried to its logical conclusion and gold will pass out of sight forever. "It no longer passes from hand to hand, and the touch of the metal has been taken away from men's greedy palms. The little household gods, who dwell in purses and stockings and tin boxes, have been swallowed by a single golden image in each country, which lives underground and is not seen. Gold is out of sight—gone back into the soil." I do not know. It is just as possible that gold will become cheap again and that no one, not even governments or central banks, will wish to hoard it.
 These are questions which we shall answer when we have lived longer and learned more. But as we live to learn, let us at least do what

-SPORT SLANTS-
 By ALAN GOULD

The foot race that we want to see this year, above and beyond all others, is the one that brings together the three American top-notchers of present miles—Bill Bonthron of Princeton, Glenn Cunningham of Kansas and Gene Zenzke of Pennsylvania.
 All three have never toed the marks together but they will do so in the New York Athletic Club games the middle of February. They may all be so jittery watching each other that they won't just any more mile records. It is even possible that some fast-stepping dark horse, such as Joe Mangano or Glen Dawson, will take advantage of this concentrated rivalry to move out in front, but the

NO GUARANTEE OF RECORD

On the other hand Lawson Robertson, Pennsylvania's track coach, doubts if there would be any guarantee of a new mile record even if Luigi Beccali of Italy, Jules Ladoumègue of France, Jack Lovelock of England and Cunningham, Bonthron and Zenzke all were started in the same race.
 "With such a galaxy of runners opposing each other, the tendency would be to slow down the race between each would be watching the other," he explains. "There would be considerable jostling for place at the start and a bit of shoving and pushing on the turns. A two or three man race would result in a better performance."
 The ideal time for record breaking performance is the summer, Robertson believes. Tracks are in better condition, the wind resistance is less than in the spring and the athlete should be in better physical condition.
 Indoor running is more conducive to fast racing because the temperature of the building is usually even, the tracks are firmer and have more spring to them

Mick Cochrane Makes Quick Hit With Tiger Fans

By EARL J. HILLIGAN

DETROIT—If Mickey Cochrane is half as successful on the baseball field next summer as he is now in his rigorous "burn and butter" campaign, baseball fans here are confident they will see the best, most hustling manager the Detroit Tigers have had since the days of dynamic Hughie Jennings.
 All of which is to say that Cochrane is a successful after-luncheon speaker, with a data book filled from now until the latter part of February, when he will take his ball club to Lakeland, Fla.
 Enthused About It
 Mickey appears to have "hit his stride." After dabbling in saxophone warbling, song writing and radio broadcasting Cochrane's batting average with Detroit fans is growing as he appears daily at club luncheons, church breakfasts and meetings of youngsters who have ambitions to some day become big-league ball players.
 Cochrane has warmed to the subject of his new management so completely that he is right at home before the table cloth and glassware stage. His gestures, as sharp and quick as his signals to waverling pitchers, add convincing sincerity to his remarks. And when he injects an occasional story his "timing" is as perfect as when he swings on one down the groove.
 Detroit's baseball-minded public likes him chiefly because of his enthusiasm for his new job and his determination to make the Tigers a hustling, fighting ball club.

Makes No Predictions

Asked what he thought of the prediction of his old manager, Connie Mack, that the Tigers may win the American league pennant, Mickey remarked that Mack never picked his own club to win the flag and he didn't intend to predict as much for Detroit, although "we'll be in the fight all the way."
 "You don't think Connie Mack was talking through his hat, do you?" someone asked.
 "Ah—say, what are you trying to do, anyway? Put me on the spot, too?" replied the new Tiger boss.

STEADY PACE BEST

"Nurmi's mechanical system of running in which he kept a steady pace from the start of a race to its finish proved that records could be broken without the fitful jerks and spurts that seemed to be a part of this country's athletes running a mile race," says Robertson.
 "Milers used to run a speedy first quarter, slow down a bit for the second 40, read a newspaper during the third quarter and then spurt with all they had left in the last quarter. There was little idea of pace, with the result that steadiness was entirely lacking.

PERSONAL
 -- to a Lady

THIS evening when your husband comes home, what would he think if you greeted him in the wedding dress you wore a good many years ago? One thing sure—he'd silently wonder how you could have seemed so lovely then in an outfit that looks so old-fashioned now.

We wonder if your husband realizes there has been as much change in furniture as in wedding dresses? (Remember what you told him the other day, "Most of the furniture in this house was bought right after we were married.")

There is no better time than now to greet him in that wedding dress—and then show him the furniture advertisements in the newspaper! Today you can read about and see pre-views of the furniture shows that will be held next month, so close at hand. And it will probably surprise you to learn he is as interested as you are. Men don't like to go through the stores to shop. But it's quite easy to get them to read over the advertisements in the quiet of your home.

Wouldn't today be a good time to get him to say "yes" about that new furniture you've been wanting?

New Chevrolet Now Displayed In Big Spring

The new Chevrolet with "knee action" wheels, 80-horsepower "Blue Streak" engine, streamlined body and an imposing list of improvements and refinements is on display today in Big Spring at the Carter Chevrolet Company show-rooms at 212 East Third Street.

In the design and development of the new models, particular attention has been given to driver and passenger comfort and every effort has been made to eliminate the sensations of both sound and feeling that prove annoying to the motorist.

The new Chevrolet is longer—it has a 112 inch wheelbase—roomier, more powerful, smoother and more quiet than its predecessor. The engine is placed several inches farther forward in the chassis and seating has been rearranged.

The additional length is disposed so as to provide more space for the front seat occupants and considerably more room for the rear seat passengers.

In appearance, the sleekness which has characterized Chevrolet cars in the past, is further accentuated by the actual length increase plus the treatment of the car design itself.

The increased power delivered by the new "Blue Streak" engine improves the flashing performances and the many engine refinements, combined with distinct chassis improvements insure extremely fast, safe, economical and quiet operation. Both front and rear seat passengers are insulated from road shocks by the introduction of independent front wheel suspension—known as "knee action" wheels—combined with improved rear spring suspension and a more balanced distribution of weight.

Instantaneous public response expressed in terms of orders for retail delivery greeted Chevrolet's announcement that hereafter their dealers would quote only actual delivered costs instead of the ambiguous "f.o.b." prices on new cars and trucks, reported Ben Carter of the Carter Chevrolet Co., local Chevrolet dealer, upon his return from Dallas Thursday where he attended a meeting of that zone's dealer organization conducted by Felix Doran, Jr., assistant general sales manager of Chevrolet Motor Company.

In the counties comprising the Dallas zone, more than 6,000 bona fide orders are now on the books. It was reported at the meeting by H. C. Howard, zone manager, February, March and April shipments to this zone are expected to exceed 12,000 units.

The "new deal" in automobile merchandising, Mr. Carter said, quoting Mr. Doran's address to the dealers, is designed to drive into the open every item entering into the cost of a car to the purchaser. "The immediate result of the new policy," Mr. Doran reported to his dealers, "was a flood of wires and expressions of appreciation from both dealers and public." Accompanying these expressions, too, were more than 100,000 bona fide orders for the immediate delivery of the new 1934 "new action" Chevrolet models.

Under The Dome At Austin

AUSTIN, (UP)—Two announced candidates for governor are participating in the called session of the legislature here. Beside the announced two, Speaker Coke Stevenson, on Junction, has had the governor's race under serious consideration. Developments of the session may determine his decision.

Lieut.-Gov. Edgar E. Witt and Senator Clint G. Small, Amarillo, are the announced candidates. Many other participants in the session have an eye on political races. A dozen Representatives have aspirations to go to the senate. Senator Walter Woodward, Coleman, has announced for attorney-general. Senator Walter Woodul, Houston, and Rep. Bob Johnson, Palestine, are candidates for Lieutenant-Governor. Rep. George W. Winingham has been considering a race for Commissioner of Agriculture.

The special session is being held by the State Board of Control as an opportunity to make needed repairs to the State Capitol. An attempt to get PWA funds for the purpose failed because the board had no appropriation available for necessary materials. If the appropriation is made at the special session the building, which dates to 1880, will get some renovation.

A constant reminder of the need of work on the Capitol literally hangs over the seat of Sen. George Furl there is an aperture from which a large part of the glass ceiling fell, luckily, between sessions. Recent rains in Austin necessitate the use of buckets to catch the water dripping through the roof of Representatives.

Headquarters of the State Park Board behind the Senate Chamber have been vacated because of the special session. The room is needed for Senate committee work. Drawing boards and desks temporarily have gone into other quarters.

Texas' record of always having a Terrell in a statewide Democratic primary, is to run for Governor on a bone dry platform. He is not related to Railroad Commissioner C. V. Terrell.

A capital newsboy became jubilant when told about the special session of the legislature. "Why are you so interested?" he was asked, "Do you expect to be appointed a page?" "No," he answered, "But I will sell $1.35 worth of papers every day during the session."

Another attempt will be made at the special session of the legislature to get Texas to ratify the proposed amendment of the federal constitution giving the national government regulation of child labor. It was before the last session but failed to get a ratifying vote.

The new cars, and our 21 plants throughout the United States are working night and day. Shipments are being rushed to our dealers. Within two weeks we expect to be in a position to make immediate delivery in quantities of the new line to retail purchasers."

State Representative Penrose State Representative A. P. C. Petrelle, San Angelo, and former ch, Fredericksburg, each say they will not oppose the other in a race for Senator to succeed Sen. Walter Woodward, Coleman. Both aspire to the place. How they will decide which shall run has not been determined. Both are feeling out sentiment in the district.

Miss Ila Ray, Nurse At Colorado Hospital, Dies In Sweetwater

COLORADO—Miss Ila Ray, pathologist at the Root hospital, died Thursday morning of last week in a Sweetwater hospital following pneumonia and complications. A heart attack is said to have been directly responsible for her passing.

Believed recovering from an attack of double pneumonia, Miss Ray was taken to Sweetwater Wednesday in a Jones, Russell company ambulance to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rice of Melrose, New Mexico, and a brother, Lawrence of Sweetwater, while recuperating. She died within a few hours after arriving there.

Funeral services were conducted at the Roscoe Baptist church Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock with the Rev. G. W. Parks, Baptist minister, officiating. Burial was in a Roscoe cemetery.

Miss Ray, a native of Roscoe, grew to womanhood and completed her public school education here. After graduation she taught school for a time and later studied nursing. She was associated with a Sweetwater hospital some time before coming to Colorado.

Another 'Miracle' In Surgery Noted In British Case

LONDON (UP)—Another "miracle" of surgery was reported Thursday, when H. H. Watson, 29-year-old and blind for 25 years, gradually began recovering his sight through corneas which were grafted on his eyes.

The operation was performed by the noted surgeon, J. W. Tudor Thomas, at the Royal Ophthalmic Hospital, last June. The diseased cornea of Watson's right eye was removed and replaced with a sound cornea from a man who was blind from other causes. A similar operation was performed on the left eye, a sound cornea being taken from a woman afflicted with blindness from a disease which had not affected the cornea.

JOLLY TACKY PARTY GIVEN BY FIRST BAPTIST HOMEMAKERS

Mrs. M. L. Burch Opens Home To Sunday School Class For Costume And Valentine Party

The Homemakers Class of the First Baptist Sunday School held a jolly tacky party Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. L. Burch. The guests of the class and the members came dressed in appropriate costumes.

Mrs. A. T. Lloyd and Mrs. Willard Smith, both guests, were asked to serve as judges of the costumes during the style show.

They decided that Mrs. O. B. Hull's costume should be awarded first prize. Mrs. Hull wore a dress of her grandmother's and used for accessories her mother's wedding gloves and her father's wedding scarf. She was given a little prize. Mrs. R. C. Hatch was second and Mrs. Penny third.

The guests wrote the names of the funniest or most popular parlor games in their estimation. "Spinning the Plates" was the favorite. The class "basket" netted the class $4.45.

At the refreshment hour red pear salad and heart-shaped sandwiches carried out the Valentine colors. Small Valentines on the plates were favors.

The class visitors were: Meses, Eth Thoma, Ida Genery, A. M. McLead, Willard Smith, A. T. Lloyd, and Mary Jo Wood.

Members present were: Meses, Elton Taylor, Bart Wilkinson, O. E. Hull, L. C. Taylor, Roy Pearce, A. W. Fries, T. A. Roberts, A. S. Woods, Ernest Hull, R. C. Hatch, C. W. Miller, H. P. Wood, C. E. Penny, Earl M. Baker, W. D. Cornellison, J. C. Smith, L. J. Stewart, Roy Green and Ben Hogue.

Little Miss Beverly Anne Stulting Gives Pretty Valentine Party On Fourth Birthday

Little Miss Beverly Anne Stulting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Stulting and granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Ellis, was hostess Friday afternoon to a large number of friends in celebration of her fourth birthday. The guests began arriving at 4 o'clock and were met at the door by the little hostess, lovely in a pink crepe silk frock with harmonizing ribbons and hose.

Each guest was presented with novelty balloons. They then engaged in contests and games. Fancy cakes were passed during the afternoon.

At refreshment time the children were ushered into the dining room where a beautiful table in red and white had been prepared for them. In the center of the table was the birthday cake, a pretty, large, white, tiered cake with four red carnations in the center of it, and four red birthday candles burning brightly on top.

Plate favors were small red satin-covered Valentine boxes filled with Valentine candy. On each box was a tiny red streamer leading to each child's place. The red boxes formed a circle around the white cake made a pretty picture. The napkins also carried out the Valentine motif. The plates, dishes and cups were ruffled in red crepe paper. Two red candles burned at

But He's Not Your CUSTOMER!

Most advertising reaches people. Whether it's always the right kind of people is another story. The Bibulous Bills and Logy Joes who fish through the junk piles may want the goods advertised in the "throw-away"—but their wants don't mean a thing to the cash register.

On the other hand take a newspaper. When a woman reads it she's news-hungry. In the mood to listen, to learn—and if sold then and there—to buy!

Finally, take the Daily Herald. Pretty near 3,500 copies a day, full of news, features and advertising, go home—to be read, discussed and decided on at leisure—and acted upon by men and women with money to spend for merchandise that might just as well be yours.

THE DAILY HERALD

BLOND GODDESS A New Serial By Herbert Jensen

CHAPTER 12

Frank glanced about him. The driver—the man he had struck with his gun—was gone. The other two men were not in view. The nondescript car looked oddly desolate with its gaping doors.

He rolled the rocks from the road and got in behind the wheel. He succeeded in turning the car on the narrow road and headed back up the coast. He drove an hour in silence, hunched with his thoughts.

As the headlights flashed upon them, Frank looked back. One of the girl's arms was around the flyer's shoulder; the other was braced against the inevitable lurching of the automobile.

Frank turned back to business of driving. A fine girl; one in a million. She was reacting magnificently to the situation. A quick throbbing of exultation surged in his breast as he thought of how she had clung that instant to him when he had taken her from the car.

That she had not thanked him but had made that small gesture, led him to one conclusion; the gesture had been one of affection. He loved Janice Kent—of that he was sure; that she returned his regard seemed incredible, but he was sure that she did.

wrong with his reasoning—if the emotion he felt could be called reason—since subconsciously he appreciated that all lovers believe that because of the very intensity of their emotion it must be returned in kind.

The wish is father to the thought. But Janice had pressed her cheek against his coat.

"I'll arrange for a cottage for Janice," he said, "and get a saw-bone for you, Spin. I'll phone Myberg inside."

The house doctor had come and gone. Spin was resting easily. There was a reek of either in the air. The doctor had diagnosed a dislocated shoulder, instructing Frank to hold his friend—so, while he pressed in the joint.

Janice insisted that she stay in the room and help. The doctor had demurred, Frank expostulated and Spin himself had told her in that faintly bitter way of his that a dress made lousy nurses and to get the hell out of there.

Janice had given him a verbal wallop in return. She'd said with a placid detachment, "I'll hold the chloroform. The man's just afraid I'll find out about his past when he talks going under. But he's not nearly so bad as he thinks he is. He'll probably sing psalms. I'll stay."

Vaguely Frank remembered that Janice had been splendid while they worked over the unconscious Spin. Deft, capable, yet unobtrusive, she had been invaluable. The metamorphosis from skilled actress to the subordinate but efficient part of doctor's assistant was amazing because it was absolute.

Frank and Janice walked from the hotel room where lay Spin, to the detached cottage that was to be the girl's for the night.

Light from the Casino flashed into the mild sky. Music from the hidden patio followed them as they walked; bursts of distant laughter were quick, ruffled conversation were syncopated by the sound of ivory balls rattling about the spinning wheels in the gaming rooms. The moon was a newly minted silver coin flung high above them.

The world, to Frank, was a very good place to be alive in. Janice was safe—it was enough; explanations could come another time. He was in love with her, he realized with sudden conviction. Spin Winnow's cynicisms about Janice Kent's ambitions, the vague memory of the non-marriage clause of her contract with Consolidated, her wealth, her beauty, her aura of unattainability had shrunk this night but she remained, walking by his arm, the weary, sweet girl with whom he was in love.

At the doorway of her cottage, she turned her face, a bit white in the moonlight, to Frank. Her voice held the huskiness of fatigue when she said: "Good night, Frank. You've been" such a dear—Oh, I don't mean that. How absurdly trivial words are! I mean—"

Frank caught her in his arms. She did not resist, but lay there an instant, looking at him. Her eyes were wide—the deep blue of them had darkened to black. They hinted, meltingly, of surrender.

Frank kissed her. Her lips against his were cool and detached—a curious aloofness that caused him, in a brief flash, to think of the figurines of the Virgin he'd seen in remote niches of lost churches found in her forgotten jungles.

Did he imagine it?—or did for a fleeting instant her lips tremble against his? Abruptly she was out of his arms and her hand on the door-knob. Frank half raised his arms.

"Please . . ." she said. "I'm very tired. Was it fright he saw in her eyes?—no—but it was an odd timidity. "I'm sorry." She seemed to say that to herself. "Frank, forget that, will you, please." Her breast rose and fell with quick, short breaths, but the alarm had gone from her eyes.

"I love you, Janice," said Frank. The words were husky in his throat.

Janice put up her arm in a gesture of half protest. Suddenly she laughed, a little trill that ran through half an octave. The sound of it seemed to throw a cloak of restraint between them. Frank's arms dropped to his side. The girl's slender figure took on a new poise. She said hurriedly: "We mustn't be silly. You must go now. You—Oh, how mournful you look!" Her little laugh broke on a half note. Swiftly she drifted against Frank. She shook his arms in a small gesture of good-humored protest. She stood on tip-toe. Lightly her lips brushed his—a fleeting feather of fragrance, then she was gone. But she was not gone from Frank's mind. He stood, staring at the door and rapidly running back through the strange trail of events that had brought them to this spot. There were so many chances that they might never have met. Suppose, for one, that he had not madly decided to follow her car that day in Hollywood. Or suppose that he had not telephoned her house this very evening—

In evidence the same day. This was when Senator Arthur Robinson (R) of Ind. offered his amendment to pay the soldier's bonus out of the "profits" accruing from revaluation of the seized gold.

There was a robust shout of "aye" and a like shout of "no." Garner ruled the amendment had lost although any proponent could have argued it was debatable.

Robinson sat quietly in his chair. The reason? There's a healthy suspicion that a number of his colleagues would have drawn and quartered him if he'd force them to record themselves now on the bonus question.

Some local sound moneyites had hopes that the gold bill was the prelude to establishment of a gold bullion standard. They now admit their hopes are deferred for an indefinite period.

Report received here indicate that Roosevelt's monetary move is viewed internationally as an attempt to force world revaluation of currencies. Gold shares are rising again on foreign exchanges in expectation of wholesale revaluation.

Local authorities say that if and when France leaves gold the first result will be a rush of capital from the gold bloc countries to London. This will send the pound kiting to the sky and add to Britain's discomfort.

heard Ward say: "Mr. Tom, get ready." Drawing the attention of Mr. Tom, Mr. King said he heard, Mr. Tom say, in a startled voice: "John, what's the matter?" "Get ready. You know what the matter?" Ward is reported by King to have replied.

MURDER CHARGE FILED A charge of murder was filed in justice court at Stanton at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon by Sheriff Mills Yater against C. John Ward, for the killing of George W. Tom, which occurred Saturday morning at the entrance of the post-office in Stanton, according to R. W. (Bob) Hamilton, district attorney, in a telephone message to The Herald at 3:30 Saturday night.

Ward, who has been living in Texas for the past four years, is reported to have gone to a Stanton cafe and barber shop, where he made inquiries of Mr. Tom and saying he had intended going to Midland, where he was going to visit his father-in-law, B. C. Cook, who resided near that place.

According to Dr. Moffett, local Stanton physician, Ward came to his office early in the morning for a brief visit. Dr. Moffett was his physician while residing near Stanton. Dr. Moffett describes Ward as a man of some 140 pounds weight, and having served in the army, during the world war, during which time he was gassed and suffered some ill effects.

Forrest King, manager of a feed store in Stanton, was an eye witness to the shooting. He said he was going to the postoffice about 8:45 to get his morning mail after No. 7 westbound Texas & Pacific train had put off the mail there. Coming up to the postoffice, which faces southeast on the Highway No. 1, he noticed Mr. Tom as he was coming out of the postoffice entrance, and also saw Ward coming toward Tom. He said he

Ward was rushed out of Stanton by officers for safekeeping. They feared violence following the shooting. At 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, no charges had been filed against Ward. Deputy Sheriff Zimmerman, who returned later in the day, said charges of murder probably would be filed some time late Saturday.

Mr. King, who knew both Mr. Tom and Ward quite well, said he had never heard of any previous trouble between the men, and was unable to assign any reason for the shooting. Ward, who had been an employe on Mr. Tom's ranch near here, had not been here since he left some three or four years ago, said Mr. King.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Catholic church, of which he was a member. Rev. Father Sirois, of Stanton, Rev. Father Harrison of Midland and Rev. Father Frances of Big Spring, will conduct the services at the church and at the Catholic cemetery in Stanton. A requiem mass will be held at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, with Rev. Father Sirois conducting the service.

PERSONAL -- to a Lady THIS evening when your husband comes home, what would he think if you greeted him in the wedding dress you wore a good many years ago? One thing sure—he'd silently wonder how you could have seemed so lovely then in an outfit that looks so old-fashioned now. We wonder if your husband realizes there has been as much change in furniture as in wedding dresses? (Remember what you told him the other day, "Most of the furniture in this house was bought right after we were married.") There is no better time than now to greet him in that wedding dress—and then show him the furniture advertisements in the newspaper! Today you can read about and see pre-views of the furniture shows that will be held next month, so close at hand. And it will probably surprise you to learn he is as interested as you are. Men don't like to go through the stores to shop. But it's quite easy to get them to read over the advertisements in the quiet of your home. Wouldn't today be a good time to get him to say "yes" about that new furniture you've been wanting?
