Reds Shoot Down Three US 'Copters No Survivors Found in N.Y. Air Crash

Reason for Airliner Crash Still Not Known

NEW YORK (UPI) — An air-sea salvage armada searched the Eastern Airlines plane today for the remains of the bodies of 84 passengers and crew who died in a blazing explosion as the DC73 crashed into the Atlantic.

The third worst single commercial airliner disaster in the history of U.S. aviation occurred at 5:27 p.m. CST Monday three miles off the Long Island shore a few minutes after the $1 million propeller driven plane took off from Kennedy International Airport. The flight originated in Boston and was scheduled to terminate in Atlanta.

Before Coast Guard and Navy planes and vessels and private craft were forced by haze and choppy seas to give up their grim search during the night, four torsos and two parts of torsos were recovered. The crew of a fishing boat got hold of a pilot's seat with a crewman still strapped into it only to watch it slip back into the water.

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) launched investigations of the crash but came up with no immediate explanation. But an FAA spokesman said there was no indication of sabotage of the plane, most of whose passengers were from Virginia, North and South Carolina and Georgia.

Skin divers volunteered from as far away as New Jersey to aid in the salvage operation in the shark-infested waters. Boat propellers became snarled in the flotsam and divers were used to keep them clear.

The main wreckage of the plane rested on the ocean floor at a depth of 65 feet. But investigators said the explosion appeared to have been so violent that little of it would be intact. Most of the human remains found were blasted to unrecognizable bits.

Dawn brought three Coast Guard helicopters and three sea planes back to the scene where visibility was reported good. Thirteen Coast Guard vessels, navy equipment and many volunteer boats began a systematic search of an area covering 200 square miles, just 30 miles from Times Square.

Renewal of the search brought a fresh batch of spectators to the scene. The moonlit beach dunes were black with hundreds of spectators Monday night, watching as planes dropped yellow flares to illuminate the salvage area. Many who carried binoculars said they could see bits of wreckage. Some of the flotsam of human flesh had been scorched to airline seat covers by the searing heat.

By morning wreckage had washed ashore near Lido Beach. The Coast Guard cutter MacKinac which arrived at the scene (See CRASH, Page 3)

Witnesses See 'Ball of Fire' Fall Into Sea
NEW YORK (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board took the testimony of a number of witnesses today in its investigation of Monday night's crash of an Eastern Airlines DC73 passenger plane off Long Island.

The first word of the crash, which took 84 lives, was received by the Coast Guard at Short Beach, N.Y. in a telephone call from Mrs. Thelma Guman of Lido, Beach at 5:30 p.m. CST Monday. She said she had just seen "a ball of fire fall into the sea" about two miles offshore.

Mrs. Guman said she and her husband, Alfred, did not receive a return call from the Coast Guard station. They realized what they had seen when they heard a report of the plane crash on the radio about an hour later.

About the same time as Mrs. Guman's call, Seaman Dale Bishop, 19, of Easton, Pa., reported from the Coast Guard's observation tower at Short Beach that he saw "this red ball of fire about 10 feet above the water" after hearing a sound like a small firecracker.

William Tandy, a Coast Guardsman on duty at the Atlantic Beach station near the airport, made a similar report. These reports touched off emergency calls to five Coast Guard stations in the New York area and a Coast Guard helicopter piloted by Lt. Bobby Wilkes took off from Floyd 6:34 p.m. EST to investigate. Four other planes were soon over the crash scene, dropping flares and sighting debris.

INVADE THE KREMLIN — If you happen to be a Muscovite and about eight years old, you'd have no trouble sneaking into the Kremlin — in fact, the doors will be open to you. For about a week or two in midwinter, a special amusement park and playground within the Kremlin's walls are opened annually to Moscow's youngsters. Parents are barred from the premises and must wait outside until their children are tired of playing games. In this photo, the little Russians make human rings on the snow-covered ground. Apparently, Russia's rulers occasionally like to hear happy children.

Weatherman Says Snow Still in Pampa Forecast

The weatherman called for more snow for Pampa and the Panhandle for Wednesday despite a clearing that left Pampa skies almost cloudless at noon today.

Wednesday's forecast calls for occasional light snow with highs in the mid-30s and winds northwesterly at 10-20 miles per hour.

Snow swirled in the city early this morning but lasted only about 15 minutes and skies cleared and Old Sol peeked through.

Monday's high read 33 degrees with an overnight low of 23. Pampa received .26 of an inch of precipitation.

Pampa residents were pelted by rain and sleet Monday night and early Tuesday morning.

High winds, lightning and torrential rains struck damaging blows at the Dallas-Fort Worth area today while snow and sleet continued to cloak the high plains area in a mantle of beneficial winter white.

Overnight rains of up to 4 inches flooded Dallas and Fort Worth streets, washed out a highway at Benbrook, and threatened to send Big Fossil Creek rolling out of its banks in the fashionable Richland Hills suburb of Fort Worth.

King Moves Rights Battle

By United Press International
Dr. Martin Luther King's civil rights campaign in Alabama moved today into Montgomery, the old cradle of the Confederacy, where a march on the courthouse was the order of the day.

Negro leaders said the march was more to arouse voter interest among Negroes than a protest against voter registration procedures as it has been for the last three weeks at Selma and Marion, Ala.

King planned to lead the march from the little red brick church house where nearly 10 years ago he launched his first civil rights drive in the Montgomery bus boycott of 1955.

"I am delighted to be home," King told a rally of about 700 Monday night. "I'm not a stranger here or an 'outside agitator.'"

There was a new round of arrests Monday at Selma, Ala., bringing the number in the three week old voter registration campaign to about 3,400.

Those arrested were fined for violating a court order prohibiting demonstrations around the courthouse while court was in session.

.22 RIFLE SOUGHT

At least 20 separate burglaries in Gray, Wheeler and Hemphill counties have now been cleared by the Sunday arrest of two Pampa men.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said the pair admitted the burglary of the David Caldwell home, 2208 Aspen, Dec. 29, where almost $600 in rare coins were taken.

One Crewman Killed, Eight Others Hurt

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist ground fire shot down three U. S. Army helicopters in an action 30 miles east of Saigon today. One American crewman was killed and eight others were wounded.

The helicopters were among 51 flying government troops into action against a guerrilla force. Heavy fighting was reported on the ground. Vietnamese paratroops lost nine men killed and 33 wounded. Eighteen enemy bodies were found.

The fighting broke out soon after the United States brought in a battery of deadly Hawk anti-aircraft missiles at Danang, 350 miles north of Saigon, and declared them ready for use against possible air attacks by Communist pilots.

The rockets were placed around the Danang base on orders of President Johnson. Military officials anticipated possible Communist reprisals following two days of U.S. and Vietnamese air strikes against North Vietnamese bases.

The Hawk has a range of 20 miles and can hit targets as high as 50,000 feet.

In Saigon the first of more than 1,300 American women and children ordered to leave South Viet Nam because of the military crisis left for the United States. There were few tears.

While they were leaving Danang, powerful U.S. Air Force Super Sabers and Thunderchiefs jets roared off the airport there which is considered a target for Communist sabotage. American military policemen with carbines at the ready provided tight security for the dependents.

By late today the first 78 dependents had left Viet Nam. One plane load of 22 left Saigon for San Francisco and another plane load of 56 left Danang for Hong Kong.

The battle in which the American helicopters were hit was in the Bing Gia region where more than a thousand Viet Cong rebels battled government troops for a week earlier this year and dealt them their worst defeat of the war.

Maj. Robert W. Heubner, 34, said the first helicopter crashed and burned early in the attack, killing a crewman and injuring two. Other helicopters rescued the wounded men. Six more Americans were wounded when two other helicopters were hit. They also were rescued under the protection of rocket and machinegun-equipped "gunships."

The Vietnamese fighter pilots who carried out Monday's air strike against North Viet Nam were given a heroes' welcome in Saigon.

They received South Viet Nam's highest combat medal at one end of town while U.S. military officials held a memorial service at the other for the eight American soldiers killed Sunday in the Communist attack at the Pleiku helicopter base.

The U.S. retaliatory action produced these other developments around the world:

Peking: Communist China said the United States would suffer "a heavy blow" by continuing "aggression" against North Viet Nam. The Peking statement said the Chinese army is waiting for the United States "in battle array."

Bill Is Introduced to Ban Secret Meetings

AUSTIN (UPI)—Sen. Criss Cole planned to introduce a bill today to take the wraps off of all governmental bodies—except the Texas Legislature.

The Houston senator said his bill would prohibit secret meetings by "any board, commission, department or agency within the executive department of the state," as well as city councils, school boards and county commissions.

A similar bill was filed in the House by Reps. Chet Brooks of Houston and John Allen of Longview.

Officials Urged to Study State Laws Covering Cities

Approximately one-third of the 600-plus bills and measures already introduced in both houses at the current state legislative session in Austin affect municipal government and operations, Commissioner L. P. Fort stated at today's meeting of the Pampa City Commission.

The commissioner tossed the information in just before the close of today's 30-minute session at which he served as mayor or pro tem and presiding officer.

Mayor H. R. Thompson and Commissioner Leon Holmes both were out of the city. Thompson is in Chicago and Holmes in Phoenix, Ariz. Commissioner Fort said he thought all city officials should familiarize themselves with proposed state legislation affecting cities.

Big Push Is on for Education In U. S. and All Around World

By GLENN URBAN
Freedom Newspapers
Staff Writer

The big push seems to be on for education.

It begins right in your own school district and goes on up the governmental line to the top, and the private schools in the country are pushing equally hard.

The push goes on in other countries as well, the advanced ones and those struggling to shake off the lethargy and superstitions of the ages.

America has always had an emphasis on education. The Pilgrims and their brethren the Puritans wasted little time setting up educational operations, and to considerable extent, education has been in high gear in this country ever since.

In 1787, the Continental Congress declared in the Northwest Ordinance:

"Schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged."

According to the ministers, sociologists, psychologists, judges and others who deal with our society as a whole and individually, this is right.

Generally speaking, education is something like motherhood in the public mind — everyone thinks kindly of it, but while mother may keep the family budget, the education budget is too large for anyone to tend alone, yet it touches us all.

You pay taxes, school district, county, state, national, and special, to support education.

Further you may contribute to the support of private schools directly. You also contribute to private schools indirectly.

By granting tax-exemption to private schools the government indirectly subsidizes them, probably on the theory that the encouragement of private education is worth the cost.

In some democratic societies, like Holland and England, the state even pays directly, wholly or partly, for the maintenance of private — mostly religious — schools. Doing so on the theory that the parents have the right to decide the type of education their children are to receive, within certain limits.

President Lyndon B. Johnson made a special point to mention education in his State of the Union message, and subsequently, on Jan. 12, sent a special message on education to Congress, in which he quoted that sentence from the Northwest Ordinance.

The president laid out an expansive program for the federal government's part of the nation's educational program.

What part the federal government will play in financing education at various levels is still a question — since it is now up to Congress.

Last summer and fall, during the election campaign, proponents of federal aid to education at the elementary and secondary levels were offered little encouragement by the Democratic and Republican party planks, while at the same time the opponents of such ideas seemed unsatisfied with what they heard and read.

Both platforms were noteworthy for their omissions and generalizations.

In its 1960 platform, the Republican party pledged federal aid to primary and secondary schools construction, but so vague in 1964 that the National Education Association issued a statement saying it was confused on the Democratic stand.

The Republicans made no mention of school construction and instead called for "a transfer to the state of excise and other federal tax sources to reinforce the fiscal strength of state and local governments so they can better meet rising school costs and other pressing and urgent suburban problems."

The Democratic plank said, "The demands on the already inadequate sources of state and local revenues place a serious limitation on education. New methods of financial aid must be explored including the channeling of federally collected revenues to all levels of education, and to the extent permitted by the Constitution to all schools."

You may enquire greatly about the Great Society, be dead set against it, don't care, or never have heard of it before, but as it stands now, the President's plans about education are a key part of it, and it will touch you in one way or another.

FEBRUARY HEART MONTH (WASHINGTON (UPI)) — President Johnson has called upon Americans to support efforts toward "lengthening the lives of millions" of their fellow citizens by combating heart disease.

The Chief Executive made the statement proclaiming February as "American Heart Month."

Congress Asked to Put Restrictions On Some Charitable Foundations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Treasury Department report suggested today that some tax-exempt charitable foundations may be more interested in making money than in giving it away.

The report urged Congress to clamp restrictions on the business activities of these organizations which frequently reach into all levels of the economy.

It cited one charitable foundation which controlled 15 clothing manufacturers, seven real estate businesses, six retail stores and a hotel.

Another acquired the operating assets of 18 different businesses, including dairies, foundries, a lumber mill, and a window manufacturing establishment.

The report did not name the foundations. It covered about 1,300 of the 15,000 private foundations existing in 1962.

The Treasury Department investigation was requested by Congress after mounting criticism of the investment activities of some tax-free foundations. The market value of the assets of all private foundations was $16.3 billion at the end of 1962.

The study found that most private foundations "act responsibly and contribute significantly to the improvement of our society."

But, it said, "serious abuses do exist among a minority of private foundations, and they require correction and restraint."

US Indians' Stake Told In Anti-Poverty War

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI)—President Johnson's anti-poverty program is bound to affect both Negroes and Indians but the white man is apt to forget the "all-important cultural differences" between the two, a social anthropologist believes.

"The Negro and the American Indian have the same problem, they are poor," said Prof. Henry Dobyns of Cornell University. "But their causes may be different."

"What the white man thinks will help the Negro and poor white trash' out of poverty might work. But the same thing will not necessarily be true for the Indian. He might not want running water in his home; he may want more sheep on his land."

There are almost 600,000 American Indians in the United States, Dobyns said and, where Anglo Saxon values have taken over, large proportions of the Indians are in favor of dissolving the reserves. But not all the Indians in the 300-odd organized tribes want to get off the reservation.

"For example, the New York State Iroquois, as a tribe, maintain that the U.S. and New York State governments must continue to assume permanent and inviolable responsibility for maintaining reserves," he said. "Perhaps one third to one half of the New York State Iroquois live outside the reservation, but most as a tribe support the reservation concept."

There are no legal prohibitions against an Indian leaving the reservation, Dobyns said. "This is a common misconception that an Indian reservation is a form of concentration camp," he said.

The Indian's problem today is that of belonging to a "subordinate social group," much as the early Irish, German or Jewish immigrants did, he said. The Indian must adapt his heritage into the middle class white ways and "one problem might arise in terms of President Johnson's anti-poverty program," the professor said, in an interview.

In most urban areas, Dobyns said, there is a favorable stereotype of the Indian and away from the reserve areas there is almost a certain prestige in being part Indian.

"The area immediately around a reservation is the area of greatest segregation but it can and is being overcome as Indians gain know-how to bring leverage," he said. "Almost every Indian tribe today is represented by an attorney."

Dobyns, who comes from Arizona and has worked closely with the American Indian, says any similarity between the problem of the Negro and that of the Indian is basically superficial.

"Negro slaves tended to lose their African culture and adopt that of their masters," he said. "Indians have never been in such a supportive status, and have kept their heritage. Indians are not about to acquire middle class values. Negroes aspire to them, or to some substitute."

"In the social hierarchy, there is no truism. Whites rank Negroes lowest but Indians highest in the list of non-whites."

Dobyns says that what Indians want most of all, on the reservation and off, is economic stability, better quality education in English and a chance to state their own attitude on continuance of federal trusteeship of reservation lands.

Dobyns believes the Indians need self-help so they can pass on what they have learned to future generations through their own educational system.

"Too often the government wants to create a show place of an Indian reservation and builds a magnificent creation," he said. "But this is not what the Indian may want."

'My Fair Lady' Takes Most Honors In Golden Globe Awards Monday

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "My Fair Lady" and its two Broadway stars—Rex Harrison and Julie Andrews—joined Peter O'Toole and other international winners of Golden Globe awards from the Hollywood Foreign Press Association.

Miss Andrews, who got her award for "Mary Poppins," made a tongue-in-cheek speech of appreciation to Jack L. Warner "as the man responsible for making it all possible." Warner chose Audrey Hepburn rather than Miss Andrews for the role of Eliza Doolittle in the movie version of "My Fair Lady."

"My Fair Lady," the movie adaptation of the George Bernard Shaw classic "Pygmalion," won three awards — best motion picture musical of 1964, best director (George Cukor) and best performance by an actor in a musical (Harrison).

Miss Andrews got her Globe as best actress in a musical. Anne Bancroft's Globe was for the best dramatic performance ("The Pumpkin Eater.")

O'Toole's award was for best actor in a dramatic film. The picture, "Becket," also was presented a Globe as the year's best motion picture drama. O'Toole's co-star in the film was Richard Burton.

Edmond O'Brien was chosen the year's best supporting actor for "Seven Days in May" and Agnes Moorehead won the feminine equivalent for "Hush... Hush, Sweet Charlotte."

Foreign News Commentary

Although no one really believed the Indonesian claim that it would have an atomic bomb ready for testing next October, even the thought of such a weapon in the hands of Indonesian President Sukarno was shattering.

What an irresponsible leader could do with an atomic bomb long has been obvious, and has been a keyfactor in the search for international agreement to prevent their spread.

In the United Nations, the Indonesian announcement contributed to a nervous recognition that so far in the current session of the general-assembly not a single step has been taken toward a disarmament agreement of any sort.

The U.N. disarmament commission consisting of all the 114 U.N. members has not even met since 1960.

U.S. officials quickly ridiculed the Indonesian claim as "puffery" which the dictionary says is to seek publicity through boastful or impudent talk.

Second Claim Made

As a matter of fact it was not the first time this same claim had been made for Indonesia and it came from the same source.

Last November an Indonesian built rocket plopped into the Java Sea after a flight of 21 miles. Indonesian generals boasted that in no time at all they would have intercontinental ballistic missiles.

It was then that Brig. Gen. Hartono, chief of the Indonesian Army's supply department, added the boast that "we plan to explode an atom bomb next year."

If it was meant to impress the Malaysians, Sukarno's current chief target, it failed of its purpose. The Malaysians promptly labelled it Sukarno's "bamboo bomb."

It was this same Hartono who this week reiterated the claim.

U.S. Gives Reactor Indonesia does, in fact, have two atomic reactors.

Under the atoms for peace program they received a small 250 kilowatt reactor from the United States in June, 1960. They also have been given a small research reactor by the Russians.

The State Department has described the U.S. reactor as being "designed for research only" and "incapable of generating power commercially or supplying material for atomic weapons."

Since Sukarno appears patently unable to manufacture his own bomb, his next source would be Red China. Despite outward signs of increasingly close relations between the two, it seems equally unlikely the Chinese would share their recently acquired atomic know-how with their chief rival for influence in Southeast Asia.

They said Japan's cotton industry is turning out an ever increasing variety of styles and colors in high quality box loom gingham fabrics, that "in turn, enable U.S. apparel manufacturers to market new sales-stimulating concepts in clothing."

The Association on Japanese Imports points out that many U.S. textile manufacturers have been alive to the real trends in fibers for a long time and no longer look upon themselves as part of the cotton or woolen industry but as diversified makers of fabrics.

CREW FEARED DEAD
ROME (UPI)—Sixteen crewmen of the Honduran freighter Milonga, which sank in a storm off the west coast of Sardinia, were missing and feared dead.

Another three crewmen were rescued Thursday after 26 hours in the cold, rough sea.

ON THE JOB—Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., the man who beat football coach Bud Wilkinson, is the second youngest member of the Senate. Massachusetts' Edward Kennedy is his junior.

Dear Abby.... Second Thoughts About Being '15 and Picked on'

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would print my letter for the benefit of all teenagers—especially the girl who signed her letter, "Picked on." She complained that her mother was always "yelling" at her.

Constant reminders about grooming, posture, keeping the complexion and hair clean, getting enough rest, doing homework, eating properly, and not wasting too much time watching TV or talking on the phone, are all for her own good. I am 15, and my mother used to remind me of all those things, and I also felt "picked on." But I am not "picked on" any more because my mother died in July. I grew up overnight. (Please sign me)

"WISH I WERE PICKED ON NOW"

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that busybody, who wrote to say that her neighbor was a "thief" because the towels on her clothesline had the names of different hotels on them, that I have news for her.

John's Bargain Stores scattered throughout Philadelphia sell these towels at a discount as "seconds." Last summer I bought a dozen of them, and because of troublemakers like her I have to hang them in my cellar.

FLORA ON WEBSTER STREET

DEAR FLORA: Go ahead and hang 'em outside, and if any of your nosy neighbors gives you a bad time, ask John to speak for you!

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps you'll tell me as you've told countless other wives whose blessings include a faithful husband who is an excellent provider, that I have a lot of nerve complaining about a comparative trifle, but here it is: Our family is together for only one meal a day. I maintain that this should be a time for daily devotion and quiet family conversation. My husband, who has not heard the news all day, brings a portable radio to the table and lets it blast forth. Sports are his hobby, so after the news we all must listen to some sort of sporting event. Shall I resort to cafeteria style? My husband could have the table to himself while the children eat on trays in front of the TV set. And I could nurse my grudge comfortably with the evening paper. Shall we continue as is? Or is there a logical solution?

ANTI - RADIO

DEAR ANTI: If you can schedule your dinner before or after the news and sports, try it. If your husband still cannot forego the radio for an hour's companionship with his family, split up and enjoy dinner as best you can. P.S. Nursing a grudge is no aid to digestion.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "MIXED-UP COUPLE IN MONTE-REY"

Yes, I do answer questions like "that." But not in the column. Other married couples have been "mixed up" about the same thing. Send me your name and address and I will answer you personally.

Problems? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif.

For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How to write letters? Send one dollar to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For all Occasions."

Towels come right off the rack dry and warm with new permanently oil-filled and electrically-heated towel rails from England. The chromium plated rack has four bars and measures 20" across and 34" high.

NOTICE TO CLUB REPORTERS

Due to time and space limitations clubs desiring to have their news items include the club program must have these articles double spaced and typewritten before they reach the desk of the women's editor. Length of the stories should not exceed two pages of regulation size typewriter paper, double spaced for proper editing.

Club's wishing their news stories to include only the time and place of meeting, hostesses, speaker's name and topic, brief business resume and names of members attending may use the brief forms available at the News office.

Twentieth Century Club Members Meet In Mrs. Branscum's Home in Amarillo

Twentieth Century Club motored to Amarillo Tuesday morning for a meeting in the home of Mrs. G. F. Branscum. After a short business session conducted by the president, Mrs. Bill Roots, Mrs. Jack Stroup, yearbook chairman, presented Mrs. Raymond Harrah, leader for the program.

Mrs. Harrah read the quotation from Will Rogers, "It's a great country, but you can't live in it for nothing." The leader implied that Will Rogers was not talking solely about money nor even taxes when he introduced this typical quip as she introduced the forum. Mrs. R. W. Stowers, J. W. Gordon and Lorene Locke, by saying, "These ladies will discuss our American rights we take for granted, how we got them and how we can keep them."

Senior Center Corner

By MRS. O. A. WAGNER

Several out due to illness this week. Mrs. E. B. Smith is a patient in Worley Hospital; Mrs. Lola Myrtle Smith and Birdie McKinney were not up to going out in the cold wind.

Houseguests this week of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Meadows are Mr. and Mrs. Luther Meadows of Romaland, Calif., Meadows' son. They are also visiting other relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Barnard Jr. and daughter of Lubbock visited his father, S. A. Barnard over the week end.

Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor came down although she is still lame with a sprained ankle. She was carrying a cane and called it her spare tire.

Mrs. Lydia Stockman visited a sister in Canyon recently.

A thank you note was read from Lewis Henderson for the flowers and cards received during his recent illness.

The Altrusa club was hostess, serving cake, ice cream and coffee to 64 Seniors. The serving table was graced with a beautiful centerpiece of yellow roses and snapdragons arranged by Mrs. Roy Kay and a birthday cake given by Mrs. Emily Coston. Those on duty were Mrs. Marie Fitzgerald, chairman, Jay Flannigan, Mabel Hukill, Louise Sewell and Lillian Snow.

The floral centerpiece was taken to Mrs. E. B. Smith at the hospital.

Gray ladies serving with transportation were Mrs. George Benham, Naoma Gill, Chris Byerly, Jess Hatcher and Oma Drew.

Of all earthly music that which reaches farthest into heaven is the beating of a truly loving heart.

His '65 Ford rides quieter.... than his Rolls-Royce

Tests proved it.* Does this mean Ford now rivals one of the world's most wanted luxury cars? Hardly! But these tests do mean plenty—to you—if you're shopping for a popular-priced car. They prove Ford has outstanding strength, design, quality. Compare Ford, in every way, with everything in its class . . .

Feel Ford's solid quality

- 100% new body—strongest ever on a Ford.
- New frame "tunes out" vibration.
- New suspension puts a big ultrasoft coil spring at each wheel.

Inspect Ford's luxurious new LTD models

- Decorator interiors, thick nylon carpeting.
- Walnutlike vinyl inserts on doors and instrument panel.
- Rear-seat center arm rests, five ash trays (4-door hardtops), padded instrument panel, and more.

Relax in Ford's spacious interiors

- Swept-back instrument panel, lower transmission hump.

Trunk holds four 2-suiters standing upright, and more.

Test Ford's new power

- Big, new 289-cu. in. V-8 standard in XL's and LTD's.
- New Big Six—biggest Six in any car. Test-drive a '65 Ford!

*Leading acoustical consultants conducted tests in which 1965 Fords (Galaxie 500 Sedan, XL and LTD Hardtops) with 289-cu. in. V-8 engines and automatic transmissions rode quieter than a new Rolls-Royce. These tests were certified by the U.S. Auto Club.

Trial Watching
 What has become of the ancient and honorable pastime of trial-watching? In old England, where it was known as "attendance at court," people of all classes indulged. But today, except at a few well-publicized spectacles, there is often no audience at all.

True, we watch plenty of make-believe trials. On TV, in movies, at the theater, the trial scene is the cornerstone of countless dramatic thrillers.

But the real courtroom adds something vital. That grim young man on the witness stand is no actor earning his weekly wage. He is really afraid he may be found guilty of burglary and sent to jail for three years. That aging widow, seeking damages for the death of her husband, really needs the money to give her children a respectable upbringing.

Perhaps you feel that trial-watching is a form of idle curiosity. Surely it shows curiosity. But is such curiosity idle? The law itself doesn't think so. The silent spectator, there only to watch, is not just tolerated but welcomed. In the eyes of the law, he serves two useful purposes:

1) He helps justice. His show of interest tends to put all of the participants on their mettle. The dictatorial judge, the apathetic juror, the dishonest witness — all may fear that they might, somehow, run afoul of that anonymous observer in the back of the courtroom.

2) He helps himself. He learns at first hand how democracy meets the acid test: the way it treats an individual. The things he finds wrong can make him a more constructive citizen. The things he finds right can breathe fresh meaning into the slogans of freedom.

Access to the courtroom may be limited in a few special circumstances. For example, if the testimony is sordid, children may be barred to protect their morals. Troublemakers may be kept out to preserve decorum. Crowding may be forbidden as a matter of public safety.

As a rule, however, the courtroom doors are wide open. No one will take your name or ask your business. You can walk in or out at any time.

Atlantic, Gulf Coast Dock Strike End Near as Longshoremen Agree

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — tracts have been signed. Hopes for an early settlement of the 29-day Atlantic and Gulf Coast dock strike rose appreciably today as a result of a contract agreement reached by longshoremen and shippers in this pivotal port.

The settlement here left only Miami and Galveston, Tex., as major holdout ports and International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) President Thomas W. Gleason planned to meet later today with the union's executive council to consider President Johnson's plan to end the strikes at ports where con-

FOUR KILLED
 NEW DELHI (UPI) — The former chief minister of Punjab state and three other persons were shot and killed this morning by unknown gunmen who stopped their car 20 miles north of here and fired at point-blank range.

Police reporting the incident said they did not know the motive for the murder of the former minister, Pratap Singh Kairon, 64, and his three companions.

The Santa Fe Railway was chartered by the Kansas territorial legislature in 1859.

DIPLOMAT KILLED

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The body of a Thai diplomat killed in the Vientiane street fighting was returned here from the Laotian capital.

The diplomat, who was serving as second secretary of the Thai embassy in Vientiane, was hit by a stray bullet at the height of the intra-army shooting.

President, Businessmen May Soon Part Company

By TOM NOLAN
WASHINGTON (NEA) — The holiday which Lyndon Johnson has enjoyed with the business community may suffer its first rainy weather with the release of the long-awaited report by the President's Committee on Consumer Interests.

Some businessmen have been skeptical of the Administration's efforts in behalf of the American consumer—especially since the appointment of Mrs. Esther Peterson as Johnson's special assistant for consumer affairs and the creation of the consumer committee.

Peterson, who still continues to hold her post as assistant secretary of labor, was her testimony in favor of the Hart packaging labeling bill and the Douglas credit bill, two measures opposed by some segments of the business community.

The President himself did not exactly dispel businessmen's fears when he said the new committee would "focus on consumer needs which can appropriately be met through federal action."

Many observers feel that this atmosphere will cloud over following the release of the committee's report.

Yet, warns the U.S. Chamber of Commerce: "If the program results in restrictive proposals that needlessly complicate business methods, or sap competitive vigor, or curtail business efforts to maximize consumer choice or consumer satisfaction, the business response will surely be antagonistic."

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bradbury K. Thurlow of Winslow, Cohn & Stetson Inc. says that unless the market gains enough vigor for a new surge forward it can be expected to either do nothing or decline.

Thurlow says that while there are presently no signs of a major top he has the uneasy feeling that unless forward progress resumed fairly quickly there may be trouble coming in the not too distant future.

Leslie M. Pollack of Reynolds & Co. says it still appears as if speculative money is eager to follow up chart breakthroughs backed up by strong fundamentals.

Bache & Co. says the market might need a rest at about this point and it would look for buying situations in some of the depressed blue chips.

Bergman, Cummings & Co. says it sees no reason to alter its projection of a continuing, intermediate market uptrend despite the possibility of a short term correction.

Pickets Protest U. S. Action in Viet Nam
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Hundreds of demonstrators pre-arranged with placards outside the federal building here Monday night to protest U.S. action in Viet Nam.

The demonstration began Monday afternoon with about 30 youthful picketers who identified themselves as members of the "May 2nd Committee."

Foreign Commentary

In attempting to assert its influence in Southeast Asia, the Soviet Union is carrying water on both shoulders.

On the one hand it accuses the United States of "barbarous" bombing of Laos and of threatening to extend the war to all of Indochina.

On the other there is no evidence that the Soviets seek a direct clash with the United States, and, rather, are looking ahead to a betterment of relations through a meeting of their leadership with President Johnson.

It also has been suggested that in southeast Asia, even a United States presence is preferable to the Soviets against a takeover by Red China.

Delivers Warning
One of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's chief missions on his visit to North Viet Nam is believed to have been to deliver a warning to President Ho Chi Minh against action which might suddenly escalate the war in South Viet Nam out of hand.

Advocates Restraint
Russia has no wish to become involved in a war not of its own choosing and in an area where it always has advocated restraint in contrast to the belligerent policies of Red China.

Ho Chi Minh has a traditional fear of Chinese intervention based on centuries of history and so has sought to keep ties open to Moscow.

A neutral Viet Nam, as also sought by President De Gaulle of France, would have definite Soviet advantages.

It would re-establish for the Soviets a voice in Southeast Asia which they lost with the renewal of the civil war in Laos.

Violation would pose the immediate threat of U.S. intervention and serve to keep the eyes of Red China looking south instead of to territories it disputes with the Soviets in the North and West.

As for Ho Chi Minh, he has obtained neither from the Russians nor the Chinese firm promises of help in case the war should move to North Viet Nam.

Red China knows that extension of the war would lay its cities and industries hopelessly open to U.S. air attack. So far as North Viet Nam is concerned, so does Ho Chi Minh.

The endorsement of the Soviet position is shared by the United Press International, CHICAGO: Commonwealth Edison Co. has announced it will build an atomic power plant to cost $76 million dollars, one of the largest in the country.

The plant will supply the city of Chicago and General Electric Co. will be the prime contractor.

NEW YORK: Kennecott Copper Co. announced it will spend $20 million to develop a molybdenite deposit 90 miles northeast of Prince Rupert, B.C. Kennecott produced 13.3 million pounds of molybdenum in 1963, but the new venture will be its first primary molybdenum mine.

WASHINGTON: General Aniline & Film Corp. has registered with the Securities & Exchange Commission the 1,166,438 shares of the new stock held by the federal government. It now is expected that bids will be asked of underwriters for sale of this stock to the public by mid-March.

COLD CLOSES CHURCH
PAPWORTH ST. AGNES, England (UPI)—The 13th century village church here has closed until Easter because it is too cold inside and hardly anyone has been attending services. The vicar, the Rev. W. D. Galdworthy, said he was advised not to light the boiler, which has not been used in 17 years, because it might blow up.

A Gimmick Budget

If President Johnson believes this country can obtain what he calls a Great Society by fooling the people, he is sadly mistaken. A public that is duped by the Executive Branch is a public that is dangerously misinformed and unready for harsh facts when they present themselves.

It would be nice to be able to report, regarding Mr. Johnson's new $99.7 billion budget, that it was truly an effort to be frugal. At the least, one should be able to say of a President's budget that it is honest. But the evidence is that the proposed budget is neither frugal, as depicted by administration spokesmen, nor is it completely honest.

First of all, the $99.7 billion price tag is a gimmick. It is like the $19.95 dress, which is five cents below $20.00 so that the little woman won't unset her husband when he pays the bills. It is a tired sales device that doesn't fool anyone.

This piece of gimmickry, designed to give the administration the image of frugality, is only the beginning of the deception. What is even more disturbing is the bookkeeping method employed by Mr. Johnson and his budget aides.

If Mr. Johnson had employed customary budget methods, he would not have been able to present a budget below $100 billion. No doubt he and his assistants regard themselves very clever and sophisticated as a result of their manipulation of budget items.

Let's consider, in this connection, funds involving the Rural Electrification Administration, Farmers Home Administration, and the power operations of the Bonneville, Southwestern and Southwestern Power Administration. Heretofore, these agencies have reported their receipts with government tax collections and their spending as part of the total of federal outlays. But Lyndon Johnson decided this year to handle them as revolving funds. This means that their spending totals are reduced substantially, as a revolving fund's expenditures will be reported only after they have been reduced by the amount of the agency's receipts.

Publicly, State Department and other administration officials are assailing the House's action on the ground it seriously encroaches on the President's constitutional authority to manage the nation's foreign affairs.

At the same time, privately, Vice President Humphrey is busily telling senators that the Israeli government strongly disapproves of the proposed food cut-off.

Humphrey, who masterminded the administration's backstage drive to induce the Senate to reverse the House's anti-Nasser stand, first revealed Israel's unexpected position at a closed-door meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Humphrey hurriedly arranged this session to enable Secretary Rusk to explain why the administration is against the House provision. (Subsequently the Senate Appropriations Committee added a modifying clause to the House bill, giving the President discretionary power to continue the food transaction with Nasser if "in the national interest.")

To add force to Rusk's urgent pleas, Humphrey introduced him and remarked he also wanted to clear up a misconception that apparently is quite widespread and which had influenced the House vote.

"The Israeli government is not in favor of barring the sale of U.S. surplus food to Nasser," Humphrey told the senators. "Israeli officials have informed our government of their grave concern that Nasser might retaliate by closing down our embassy in Cairo and barring Americans from Egypt."

Later, when some of Humphrey's startled listeners sought clarification of his assertion from Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman, he suggested they get in touch with Israel's Ambassador Avraham Harman.

"You will find he fully supports what the vice president stated," declared Fulbright. "That definitely is the position of the Israeli government."

STILL UP IN THE AIR — Despite this backstage trump card, the outcome in the whole Senate was still highly conjectural until last Wednesday when the Senate supported the administration, 44 to 38.

Graphically illustrative was the attitude of Senator Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

An ardent partisan of President Johnson approached Symington and Senator Daniel Brewster and Joseph Tydings, numerable examples that can be cited of the difference between a totalitarian system and a free system. In the former, there is no competition in any real meaning of the word. The customer is always in the position of having to like it or lump it. On every hand, he is faced with an entrenched and immovable bureaucracy, backed by an all-powerful state.

In a free system, to the contrary — and American retailing is now attempting to do something to correct this, in order to spur the sales of goods. However, no one expects that much success will come from the effort. Newsweek quotes a disgruntled shopper as saying, "As long as we have party members and not real sales clerks behind the counters, we'll never get good service."

Here is one more of the in-

Examination of the evidence and the documents in existence fail to substantiate the claim that our relationship to our government is one of contract.

If they had no automatic or rightful authority over their contemporaries and did not even seek to obtain the authority in writing from their contemporaries how can it be assumed that such a contract, not binding upon the men then living, is a contract in force upon those now living?

Contracts, of course, can be either in writing or verbal. However, when a free man enters into a contractual relationship, the terms of it are entirely specific. Conditions are clearly defined and understood. And in cases where important contracts are involved, such as the marriage contract, a business contract, a conditional sales contract, or a specific performance contract the matter is nearly always reduced to writing of some sort.

Often such writing contains ambiguities which lead to confusion and dispute after the fact, but at least the effort is made to make the contract as flawless and as binding upon

Contract With Government

Are you a piece of property? Or are you a person? The question is not rhetorical. There are many today who, while they may not fully understand why they believe as they do, actually think of themselves and others as being properties, something owned and controlled by the state.

Examined openly and frankly, the concept is repugnant. Who wants to think of himself as a property owned and controlled by others?

But any man who is not able to control his own energies, is to some degree a property of that agency or entity which attempts to control and own his energy output.

We call the person who is owned and controlled by another, a slave.

We call a person who is not owned and controlled by another, a free man.

Which are you? Which condition seems desirable to you?

If we begin with the assumption that you are a free man, whence comes the power of the state to control your actions, seize your property, regulate your affairs, and otherwise impose its controls over you?

The answer to this question is usually that the government "represents" all of us; and we have acted to appoint the men in government over us, granting to them a confided power to impose upon our own individual wills, in search of what can be termed the "general good" or even the "general welfare."

This supposes the relationship between the citizen and his government is one of contract, in which the citizen has agreed to be governed and the men in government have agreed to undertake the task.

"Service With a Snarl"

"The U. S. housewife who comes home from a hard day's shopping complaining of the rudeness of sales clerks might find a different tune if she had ever visited Russia."

This states a brief article aptly entitled "Service With a Snarl". It seems that in Russia — where the state owns and runs practically everything — discourtesy and indifference have long been the order of the day in the stores. The government is now attempting to do something to correct this, in order to spur the sales of goods. However, no one expects that much success will come from the effort. Newsweek quotes a disgruntled shopper as saying, "As long as we have party members and not real sales clerks behind the counters, we'll never get good service."

Administration Offers Senate Commission Israeli Attitude As Argument For Retaining Aid to Nasser

WASHINGTON — The Johnson administration is making the utmost of a surprising ally in its furious efforts to scuttle the House - vetoed ban on further shipments of surplus food to the United Arab Republic.

It is being categorically asserted that Israel fully supports the administration's position in opposing this anti-Nasser crack-down.

This astonishing claim is being conveyed as follows: Publicly, State Department and other administration officials are assailing the House's action on the ground it seriously encroaches on the President's constitutional authority to manage the nation's foreign affairs.

At the same time, privately, Vice President Humphrey is busily telling senators that the Israeli government strongly disapproves of the proposed food cut-off.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure any.)

Question: "I read where the Treasury Department, concerned with the diminishing silver supply, has just about decided to reduce the silver content of our coins, or perhaps not use any silver at all. Besides the fact that this is dishonest, and shows that governmental monetary system is collapsing, how will this reduced silver content of coins affect the everyday life of each and every consumer, and the everyday business world?"

Answer: The reduction of real value in the coins will cause the complete disappearance of the present silver coins.

Gresham's law, that had money circulating with good money will drive the good money from the market, will go into effect. Individuals, looking out for their own best interests, will keep the silver coins and will spend the coins which have less value in metal which has value in itself. This natural law has already demonstrated itself in the disappearance of silver dollars, and the partial disappearance of dimes, quarters and halves.

We would expect such a move by government to be followed by wild inflation, such as has been demonstrated in many nations after their governments attempted to set aside natural economic laws.

FOREIGN FLASHES — President Johnson has quietly approved West Germany's shipment of U.S. M-48 medium tanks to Israel. The tanks, being replaced with later models, were originally sold by the U.S. to West Germany, and it is turning them over to Israel as part of an $80 million recently negotiated arms deal. The President gave his assent to offset the sale of Russian tanks to Egypt and Iraq. . . War-mongering President Sukarno is having his autobiography written — by Mrs. Cindy Adams, wife of comedian Joey Adams. Mrs. Adams met the Indonesia bully-boy during a recent tour arranged by the State Department. . . Brazil's former President Juscelino Kubitschek is planning a brief visit to his homeland next month enroute to the U.S. for a lecture series. Whether the Brazilian government will permit Kubitschek to stop over remains to be seen. . . Turkey made a gain of more than 11 percent in its exports last year. They increased to more than $410 million. Trade between Turkey and Russia also reached a record high of $26 million.

Another intelligence report warns that the Egyptian ruler is pressing the war in Yemen to establish a base for attacking Kuwait, oil-rich kingdom on the Persian Gulf. According to this analysis, if Britain becomes involved in a conflict between Indonesia and Malaysia, the likelihood is strong that Nasser

Route to Lower Prices -- End Regulation, Up Profit

By SAM CAMPBELL
Business Editor

On Jan. 25, 1915, Alexander Graham Bell picked up a telephone in New York and put in a station-to-station call to his assistant Tom Watson in San Francisco.

That was the first transcontinental telephone conversation. Nine separate telephone offices handled the order. The tab came to $20, which in those days was the equivalent of nearly two weeks of labor for the working man.

Today, 50 years later, the same call can be dialed direct at a total cost of $2.25, or for $1 after 9 p.m.

Question: How did this price reduction and progress come about?

Answer: Through research done at Bell Laboratories and similar installations throughout the country.

Question: Why was the research done?

Answer: The telephone people wanted to make a profit.

Question: Does that mean that profit worked to lower prices that the customer has to pay?

Answer: Yes.

Question: Will more profit reduce prices even further?

Answer: When people can make a profit, they will save money to invest. The investment pays for research and new tools which bring about a decrease in cost to the consumer.

Question: If more profit lowers prices that the consumer pays, then why do we have agencies like the PUC, the PFC, and the ICC that claim to hold down profits?

Answer: Some businessmen wish to make money, but they don't want to have to compete for it. So they get the government to grant them a monopoly. The PUC, the PFC and the ICC are monopoly-creating agencies.

Question: Why do consumers accept a practice that causes them to pay more money for the things they buy?

Answer: The monopolists together with powerful socialist influences keep up a constant propaganda barrage, telling the people that profit-regulation is in the public interest. The consumers tend to believe the propaganda because they hear it so often.

Question: But if certain industries like the utilities were not regulated, wouldn't some of them get a stranglehold on the market and tend to drive competitors out?

Answer: That's exactly what they have done. They have used regulation as a means of strangling the marketplace and they have succeeded in driving competitors out — at the point of a law.

Question: Then how can the consumer be protected?

Answer: The consumer can be protected by insisting on open, unfettered, cut-throat competition. No significant monopoly can develop in a free market unless one firm is offering a far superior service or product to the consumer. Free trade between nations offers the consumer even greater protection against the possibility of monopoly.

Question: What is the largest monopoly conceivable?

Answer: The largest monopoly that the mind of man can envision is that the total means of production come under the ownership or control of a single authority. This is the condition under the socialist state.
