Stop Smoking? It Was Murder

Walkout Costing $25 Million

SHE TOOK THE HINT — When the word went out one year ago today that cigarettes were a contributing cause of lung cancer, millions of Americans quit smoking then — but not for long. Cigarette sales slumped for awhile, then steadily moved back up. But, some smokers who quit on that day held out and kicked the habit for good. Among them was Mrs. Lena Malone, 1225 Finley, shown here, who marked her first smokeless anniversary today. She says the urge to smoke remains after a year but that she isn't going to start again.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A year ago the U.S. surgeon general issued a voluminous report on cigarette smoking. Its main theme was that smoking endangers the health of millions of Americans. Numerous "stop-smoking" clinics were set up around the country. The following is a report on one, in the nation's largest city, and the results a year later.)

By MYRON FEINSILBER
NEW YORK (UPI)—"Hard? Brother, it was murder. I was so nervous my husband said to me, 'Look, honey, take one puff.'"
"But I knew—one puff and I'd be lost. I took his cigarette and threw it out the window.

Now I don't even let him smoke around the house. I've thrown out all the ash trays." For 27 years, Mrs. Betty Breslow, the suburban Forest Hills housewife who chucked her husband's cigarette out the window, smoked 20 to 30 cigarettes a day. A year ago today, the U.S. surgeon general's report on smoking and health was issued.

"I said it was a lot of baloney," recalls Mrs. Breslow. "I knew people who are in their 80's and who've been smoking two, three packs a day for years."

Curiously, said Mrs. Breslow, sent her last Oct. 13 to the first session of an experimental anti-smoking session conducted by the Health Department of New York City in Queens, a borough of high-rise apartments east of Manhattan.

cent had quit smoking. Those who hadn't were invited to attend clinics twice a week for four more weeks. Medication was administered and close attention offered. But only five more of 78 hard-core smokers managed to drop the habit.

Dr. Isabelle Blum, a city public health physician who helps run the program, is not satisfied with those results. Relatively little research has been done on how best to convince smokers to quit. She hopes to experiment until an effective mass approach is found.

New York City has 5.7 million adults. More than 3.5 million of them smoke. Dr. Blum wants them to quit. She wants a technique that can reach thousands at once — not hundreds.

The city's clinics haven't been in operation long enough to evaluate long-term results. "Smoking is 85 per cent habit and only 15 per cent nicotine addiction," says Dr. Blum, a short, intense blonde woman who never has smoked.

"Most of those who come to us come not because of the surgeon general's report, but because they are chronically ill. They cough, they are short of breath, they have had heart attacks or diseases of the circulatory system and they've been warned by their doctors that unless they stop there is little hope of protracting their lives. These people are gathering the fruits of 20 to 30 years of smoking."

During the first session, the would-be quitters are asked to cut down, are instructed in the task of changing lifelong habits, are told to ask themselves: "Do I really need this cigarette?" before they light up.

A week later, a film of an operation for lung cancer is shown. This is SS-Day: Stop Smoking Day. "We collect a waste basket full of cigarette packages," says Dr. Blum.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Atlantic and Gulf longshoremen went on strike today out of fear of automation, hamstringing the U.S. maritime industry and costing the nation's economy as estimated $25 million a day.

The walkout of 60,000 cargo handlers closed ports from Maine to Texas, leaving scores of ships either marooned at their piers or at sea with no way to discharge their cargo. Forty ships, including the luxury liner United States with 1,013 persons aboard, were due to dock in the port of New York alone today.

The dockers walked out at 1:01 a.m. CST, contrary to the advice of their highest union leaders. Few pickets appeared immediately but officials of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) said they would be out in force later in the day and the thousands of tons of cargo which normally would be handled will not be touched.

Returns to Washington
Assistant Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds Jr., who had mediated the automation-centered dispute between the ILA and shippers for seven months, conceded the inevitability of the disastrous strike late Sunday and returned to Washington to report on the situation to President Johnson and the Labor Department.

Reynolds was due back here at midday for a meeting with ILA President Thomas W. Gleason and the union's 23-man executive council.

Reynolds said after meeting with the shippers' 14-member negotiating team Sunday that they had voted unanimously to seek compulsory arbitration. "They had no other direction in which to go," he said.

Alexander P. Chopin, chief negotiator for the New York Shipping Association (NYSA), said, however, "presently we do not plan to contact the President." The NYSA said Saturday the President would be asked through Congress, to intervene.

As to the shippers' position on the stalemated bargaining Chopin said, "there is no possibility that we will give them more than has been offered."
Big Locals Balk
The strike became a virtual certainty last Friday when ILA locals at the port of New York voted unexpectedly to reject a four-year contract offered by NYSA, a 145-company employee group which is the largest in (See WALKOUT, Page 3)

Sandblom Asks Mercy of Court

CORPUS CHRISTI (UPI) — Bankrupt financier Paul Amo Sandblom today threw himself on the mercy of a federal court at the opening of his trial on charges of fraud in the collapse of his $30 million investment empire. He pleaded no defense to all 24 charges.

Federal Judge Reynaldo Garza accepted the plea over the objection of prosecutors. The judge told Sandblom he could receive a sentence as steep as 220 years imprisonment and be fined $44,000. He indicated there would be a pre-sentence investigation before judgment was passed.

The court then had a clerk read off each of the 24 counts of the indictment so Sandblom could plead "nolo contendere" (no contest) to each. A panel of 65 persons had been called for possible jury duty. The case broke Jan. 7, 1964 when Sandblom filed voluntary bankruptcy.

Fresh Evidence Due in Slaying Of Rights Trio

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—The Justice Department prepared to offer fresh evidence, including an alleged confession to a federal grand jury today in a renewed effort to gain indictments in the slaying last summer of three civil rights workers.

The 23-member "blue-ribbon" panel, composed mostly of businessmen and executives, was ordered by U.S. District Judge Harold Cox to report to the Federal Building here at 8:30 a.m. CST.

The same jury, including a Negro housewife, met in Biloxi last September to consider FBI evidence in the murders of Andrew Goodman, Michael Schwerner and James Chaney. The panel declined at that time to return indictments, reported to be by a narrow margin.

Since then, government sources say strong new evidence has been uncovered—including a confession by one of 21 white men arrested last month but later released. There have been reports of two confessions.

The Justice Department declined comment on how many witnesses would be called, but reliable sources said at least six may testify. The closed-door session was expected to last about three days.

The existence of a purported confession by Horace Barnett was disclosed last month at a preliminary hearing for 19 of the 21 men arrested Dec. 4 by FBI agents. Barnett, 26, was one of those charged with conspiring to intercept, assault and kill the civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss.

Taylor's pessimistic report, released Sunday by the U.S. Embassy, followed agreement during the weekend by Vietnamese military leaders to restore power to civilian leaders. The Vietnamese government is expected to issue a final communique Tuesday saying that no serious differences over policy remain with the United States.

Striking Students Halt Work in Viet

By MICHAEL T. MALLOY
SAIGON (UPI) — An anti-government general strike of transport workers today closed down South Viet Nam's second largest city.

Reports from the old imperial capital of Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, said the city was paralyzed by the second anti-government walkout in five days.

About 600 striking students and pedicab drivers rode about Hue in a demonstration today. The pedicab drivers provide the city with most of its transportation. A similar anti-government strike was staged in Hue last Thursday.

Another new strike was reported in Quang Tri, 30 miles north of Hue.

The new anti-government moves in the provinces came just as the South Vietnamese government in Saigon was returning to some semblance of political stability. But U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor warned there is "no immediate end in sight" to the anti-Communist war.

Taylor's pessimistic report, released Sunday by the U.S. Embassy, followed agreement during the weekend by Vietnamese military leaders to restore power to civilian leaders. The Vietnamese government is expected to issue a final communique Tuesday saying that no serious differences over policy remain with the United States.

Mr. Johnson," he told a press conference. "We do, of course, appreciate the role the United States is fulfilling in that part of the world."

He said the two areas of disagreement between the United States and Japan were Okinawa and Japan's increasing trade with Red China.

"The reason we conduct trade with Red China is because we are close neighbors," Sato said. "I don't know what the American answer is... our approach to the problem is different. We believe in a separation of politics and economics."

In regard to Okinawa, Sato said it was Japan's "ardent desire" that the island, which has been occupied by the U.S. since World War II, be returned to Japanese control.

ceived serious cuts around his right eye. The other man, an officer, was slightly wounded in the leg.

An American officer-adviser was killed Saturday in a guerrilla ambush only seven miles southwest of Saigon.

U.S. officials expressed the hope that Tuesday's communication would officially end the 23-day-old government crisis and permit the Vietnamese armed forces to turn their undivided attention to fighting the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Taylor's prediction on the length of the war was contained in an interview with two magazine correspondents.

"Not Give Up
"We ought to carry on and never give up because we are frustrated or discouraged," Taylor said.

"It is easy to be pessimistic. We are in the middle of a tough battle with no immediate end in sight. In such a case, you've got to believe you're not going to be licked."

"That is an important lesson which the American people must bear in mind."

The former U.S. military chief of staff touched on the government chaos that has plagued this country for the past year.

"The political situation complicates the problem," he said. "The essential thing is to get a government which is master in its own house, which can carry out decisions and move toward real stability."

Rogers Disagrees With Penalty for 'Defectors'

Rep. Walter Rogers of Pampa wants Congress to correct what he calls the "grievous wrong" inflicted on two members of the House of Representatives who were punished recently in a Democratic Caucus for not supporting Johnson and Humphrey in the last presidential election.

In his weekly newsletter, which will be published in the Pampa News Wednesday, the Pampa Democrat "vigorously disagrees" with the caucus action which stripped Rep. John Bell Williams of Mississippi and Rep. Albert W. Watson of South Carolina of their House seniority rights because they supported Republican candidate Barry Goldwater.

Rogers points out that he does not agree with what the two men did, "but I would forever defend their right to do it."

The Pampa congressman also states in his news letter that the Republican Party "had a number of defectors among the Members of the House."

"But," Rogers states, "there was no discussion as to punishment of these defectors or bolting the party; on the contrary there was some talk that they may be the leaders of the new 'image' of the Republican Party."

Rogers charges that the infliction of punishment upon Democrats William and Watson was in violation of the Constitution.

"The Constitution of the United States in Section 9 contains the following proviso:
"No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed."

Rogers states that it is undenied that there were no rules or requirements in the Democratic Party applicable to members of Congress that if they failed to support the Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees of the Party they should receive certain punishment.

Rogers points out that Watson is a new two-year member of Congress and Williams has been in the House for 18 years, but that the same punishment was inflicted on both men for the same offense.

"Williams was required to pay a penalty nine times greater than the penalty paid by Watson," Rogers states.

The congressman adds that, in his opinion and morally speaking the action against the two men was unjustified, because the same offense with which Williams and Watson were charged had been committed a number of times in recent years and had gone unpunished and without any effort to challenge the offenders, or to write a rule prohibiting such defections.

"It is my studied opinion," says Rogers, "that the grievous wrong should be corrected before this session of the Congress gets further under way."

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Five crewmen were killed and another was injured today in the head-on collision of two freight trains in the village of Sterling in Wayne County.

The diesel engines caught fire and exploded after the impact.

Ohio Train Crash Kills Five Crewmen

The diesel fuel caught fire and exploded. Firemen from the seven fire departments called in to battle the blaze said flames were shooting 200 feet into the air from the burning fuel. The fire was still burning more than three hours after the crash.

The diesel engines were a twisted pile of blackened metal about 30 feet high, but only about seven other cars were derailed.

At one time there were nearly 200 firemen, police and civil defense men in the area, clearing out debris and keeping traffic moving.

Authorities said it appears it will take 48 hours to clear the twisted mass of metal from the tracks.

They were at a loss for an explanation as to how one of the trains got on the track. Ordinarily, the tracks used cross each other diagonally.

The collision occurred at a junction where the B & O and Erie-Lackawanna tracks cross at the edge of the Wayne County village of about 500, located about 20 miles southwest of here.

The Erie-Lackawanna crew killed were engineer Don Marney and crewman Carl Porter, both of Marion, Ohio.

Mercury Rises, Roads Cleared

Pampans continued to "mush in the slush" today as clear skies and warm temperatures melted more of the eight-inch snow received Saturday.

Highways in the Texas Panhandle were cleared by crew members of the State Highway Department and travel was safe once again.

All buses coming into Pampa were running on schedule as the bright sun continued to melt the snow and ice.

Highway department crews began sanding highways coming into and leading out of Pampa about 2 a.m. Saturday and worked until about 10 p.m. Saturday night.

The crews were back out on the highways Sunday with snow plows and by early Sunday afternoon all roads were cleared.

Some streets in the city of Pampa still had ice left on them Monday morning but the warming trend was expected to melt what snow and ice was left.

Pampans could warm up today with the predicted high forecast around 55 degrees after an overnight low Sunday of 7 and a high Sunday of 37.

Most all of Texas was included in the forecast calling for the warming trend.

Temperatures dropped below freezing south to a line from Beaumont on the Gulf coast through College Station and San Antonio to Del Rio on the Mexican Border.

Dalhart had the state's overnight low of 19 degrees. Brownsville had the state's warmest overnight low with a 44 degree reading.

In the long-range forecast, the Weather Bureau predicted temperatures about normal in the Panhandle for the five days. Normal is the 20 - 57 degree range.

The forecast for Pampa and vicinity called for clear to partly cloudy and warmer today through tomorrow. Low tonight low 30s, high tomorrow near 60. Winds southwesterly 15 - 25 m.p.h.

Warnings of from 4 to 10 inches of snow were posted for Long Island and southern portions of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Heavy snow fell through the night at Boston.

Paris of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut braced for more than 6 inches of fresh snow. (See SNOW, Page 3)

TWO AREAS OF DISAGREEMENT

President, Sato Meet Tuesday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan leaves for Washington today for two days of talks with President Johnson on the international situation in Asia and at least two "areas of disagreement" between Japan and the United States.

The trip is the first outside of Japan for Sato since he took over from the ailing former prime minister, Hayato Ikeda, two months ago.

He was scheduled to depart from San Francisco International Airport via a special Air Force flight at 12 p.m. noon and arrive at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., at 4:45 p.m. CST.

Sato, 63, arrived in San Francisco from Honolulu early Sunday, held an afternoon press conference, and attended a banquet in his honor at the Mark Hopkins Hotel. Among those present were California Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Mayor John F. Shelley of San Francisco.

Sato's party included Etsusaburo Shima, minister of foreign affairs, and Takeo Miki, secretary general of Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic party.

The prime minister said a major portion of his talks with President Johnson Tuesday and Wednesday will be devoted to the international situation in Asia, particularly the Viet Nam problem. However, he declined to disclose what role his country might take in that conflict.

"I cannot now give my position in regards to Viet Nam, or else I'd have nothing to say to

Spring Formals Are Shorter and Saucy

By HELEN HENNESSY
Newspaper Enterprise Women's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Hemlines in daytime clothes have gone up just as far as they can go. And judging from the current spring showings in New York formal gowns are on the way up, too. Long gowns for evening brush the ankles, not the floor. Some have been given a new saucy touch — the bustle ruffle which swings at the back from waist to hem. A new hemline makes its appearance — the flamenco flare. It ends below the calf in the back and graduates to a shorter length in front. Often it is ruffled or flounced. The short, soft evening dress with a swirling skirt is a favorite as well. Necklines are pretty rather than daring. The halter neckline is in, soft yet sexy. It's spring's ladylike approach to the "barely there" look. Dinner suits show up in a wide range of colors, the newest being white with giant plaid blouses and linens. White and black are important, often combined in bold prints. And there's a whole range of luscious pastels — apricot, soft green, orchid, lemon yellow and pale coral. Cotton brocade and textured cotton are especially smart in the new dinner suits. Gowns are as soft and pretty as the spring in lace, chiffon and crepe. This spring refined, feminine charm is the keynote of every evening collection — a delightful change of pace in fashion.

THEATER COSTUME — From the Harvey Berin Spring 1965 collection by Karen Stark, frosted white Alaskine interprets the theater costume shown. The skirt follows lean line, is pocketed and topped by a chalk-beaded over-blouse. Over it, an open jacket sports a small standaway ring collar.

Dear Abby... Daughter-in-Law Wants to 'Retire' as Part of the Act

DEAR ABBY: My problem may seem small to you, but it's big to me. Whenever my husband and I go to his parents', my father-in-law lies down in the living room floor and insists that I jump on his stomach as hard as I can. I suppose he's trying to show off how strong he is. I've tried to get out of these demonstrations because it makes me feel so foolish, but my father-in-law insists, and rather than make a big scene I go along with it. How can I get out of these silly performances without hurting his feelings? He is a very dear man otherwise, and quite sensitive.

PART OF THE ACT
DEAR PART: Even though your father-in-law may be "dear" and "sensitive," you, as a woman, are entitled to be "sensitive" about jumping up and down on a man's stomach. If he must show off his abdominal strength, he shouldn't ask a woman to do a man's job.

DEAR FEELING: I am sure you miss your husband. (I'll bet they took him off the payroll.) Write the company that their Christmas card lists needs revising.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is married and has a lovely family. Her doctor told her she must either give up smoking or die young. She's had pneumonia four times and her lungs are seriously weakened. I arrived the second day after she had quit smoking. On the fourth day she invited two of her friends in for lunch and bridge. One is a chain smoker, so I offered to call this woman and explain the facts, and ask her please to refrain from smoking in my daughter's presence because she is tempted to smoke when others do. My daughter wouldn't let me call. She said that her guests came first and she wouldn't want them to feel tense or uncomfortable. I say that the hostess comes first and the guests are secondary. Which of us is right in the social sense? Also, isn't there a moral principle of self-preservation involved here?

ANXIOUS MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: Your daughter is right. She realizes that the strength to quit smoking must come from within, and attempting to isolate herself from temptation will not solve her problem. It's her battle, Mother. Let her fight it her way.

DEAR ABBY: Please stop advising people to call their hostesses the day after a party to "thank" them again. When my guests leave, they say "Thank you" and that is good enough for me.

The day after I entertain, I am so home-tired that all I want to do is crawl into a corner and stay there. But now, thanks to

Clothes Poll

Unless you happen to have a pearl-bearing oyster stashed away as a pet, chances are your milky necklace is not the real thing. But cheer up. Hardly anyone's is. So stop eating oyster stew with rigid concentration. And, anyway, the beauty of today's simulated pearls rivals the real thing.

Year after year, pearls reign as queen of the jewel box because they are fashionably right on everything from sweaters to formals.

Choosing the right size, shape and length can, however, be a confusing task.

A famous manufacturer of fine simulated pearls (Vendome Couturier Jewelry) suggests this guide to the language of pearls.

There are six lengths. The choker necklace hugs the neck. The standard falls just below the collarbone. Princess length ends where the bustline begins. Matinee pearls drop anywhere from one to two inches below the bustline. Opera length comes to the hips and can be looped, knotted or given full play. Last, the pearl rope, longer than opera length, is particularly good for a tall woman.

If your neck is less than swanlike, don't wear a choker. The princess or matinee lengths are best for you.

If you're lucky enough to have a long neck, wear a choker or standard length. But if you wear a long necklace, loop it once or twice, starting at the throat.

A long necklace should be tapered for a slimming look. Do this by knotting the necklace to give a tassel effect.

Pearls generally come in four different shapes: spherical, baroque (nuggety), button (slightly domed with a flat base) and seed (scarcely larger than a pinhead). But most fine quality man-made pearls are spherical. This contour conforms to the shape of genuine pearls.

This suggestion should be helpful, but let your mirror be your final guide — and be sure it's a full-length glass.

Chic Chat:

"I entertain at home a lot because good baby sitters are hard to come by. I'd like to buy a couple of long skirts for this purpose. Should they come to the floor?"

—Dorothy B.

Dear Dorothy B.: — No. Ankle length is better looking and a lot more practical. And even newer is the just-below-the-calf hemline. Both new lengths are smart looking. There's no need to sweep the floors with your skirt or to take a chance on tripping with a laden tray in your hands.

CAFE DIABLE: Warm a silver bowl and ladle. Pour 2 cups warm cognac into the bowl and add 4 lumps sugar, 4 cloves and the rind of 1/2 lemon and 1/2 orange. Dip up a ladleful of the cognac, put 2 more lumps of sugar in the ladle and set the cognac aflame. Lower the flaming cognac into the bowl and slowly pour in 2 cups strong black coffee, all the while dipping up the brew in ladle and pouring it back until the flame dies out. Serve in demitasse cups.

PARIS PUNCH: Two bottles French champagne, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups fresh lemon juice, 4 cups apple juice, 4 cups orange juice. All ingredients should be chilled for several hours before being blended. Just before serving, add champagne. This will make about 40 servings.

COGNAC LUNCH: Two bottles cognac (fifth size), 4 jiggers grenadine, 1 pint orange juice, 2 quarts chilled ginger ale. Combine these ingredients in a punch bowl with a chunk of ice. Just before serving, add ginger ale. Decorate with fruit, if desired. You can use canned fruit salad for this, but drain it well before adding to the punch bowl. Makes 30 cups.

French Recipes For Paris Punch

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

CAFE DIABLE: Warm a silver bowl and ladle. Pour 2 cups warm cognac into the bowl and add 4 lumps sugar, 4 cloves and the rind of 1/2 lemon and 1/2 orange. Dip up a ladleful of the cognac, put 2 more lumps of sugar in the ladle and set the cognac aflame. Lower the flaming cognac into the bowl and slowly pour in 2 cups strong black coffee, all the while dipping up the brew in ladle and pouring it back until the flame dies out. Serve in demitasse cups.

PARIS PUNCH: Two bottles French champagne, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups fresh lemon juice, 4 cups apple juice, 4 cups orange juice. All ingredients should be chilled for several hours before being blended. Just before serving, add champagne. This will make about 40 servings.

COGNAC LUNCH: Two bottles cognac (fifth size), 4 jiggers grenadine, 1 pint orange juice, 2 quarts chilled ginger ale. Combine these ingredients in a punch bowl with a chunk of ice. Just before serving, add ginger ale. Decorate with fruit, if desired. You can use canned fruit salad for this, but drain it well before adding to the punch bowl. Makes 30 cups.

"All pure shape, neat of shoulder with long skinny sleeves, narrow body lines, subtly cut and detailed to emphasize the lean look." is the way one coat manufacturer summarizes the spring trend.

The firm, Originals of New York, is pretty representative of what the whole industry is doing. Coats button in both double or single-breasted closings, come with neat, small collars or no collars at all, and if belted, usually have the belts slung low around the hips. A few coats are belted at the back only, but the belts are placed low. A few also have unpressed pleats falling from the low belting.

These slim numbers are the types of coats almost always seen on Mrs. John F. Kennedy, whose style influence continues to be strong. Her love of the sleeveless look, for instance, should be watched for not only in day dresses this spring but in costumes too.

To help keep the coat silhouette slim, designers have used smooth fabrics more often than bulky ones — among them gabardines, whipcords, thin flannels, silk and worsted combinations.

Dominance of the skinny coat was a major trend showing in the new ready-to-wear collections from members of the New York couture group, which last week staged its 44th semi-annual "National Press Week" for 250 reporters on newspapers, television and radio. Early this week, the American designers group will hold its formal shows for many of the same reporters. Another big trend for spring will be the costume. It will be in dresses and jackets, dresses and coats, coats and suits, in prints, plaids, combinations of silks and wools, and in everything from the most tailored of day clothes to the most fabulous sweep of formals.

Typical for day is Maurice Rentner's suit plus coat costume. A bright red and white checked suit is topped with a solid navy reversible coat. The other side repeats the red and white check.

35 Enroll for Letter Clinic

Chamber of Commerce officials urged today that anyone desiring to enroll in the Thursday Business Letter Writing Clinic contact the Chamber as soon as possible.

So far, 35 persons have signed up for the one night affair to be held in the Coronado Inn. Instructor for the course will be W. H. Butterfield, considered one of the leading authorities on letter writing.

Author of 16 books and many magazine articles on business correspondence, Butterfield has conducted letter writing programs for business and professional groups in more than 150 cities. In such communities as Dallas and Oklahoma City, his letter clinics have been offered as many as five times.

"How you say it is just as important as what you say in your business letters," says Butterfield. "Sometimes the reader is influenced even more by the tone of a letter than by its contents. A friendly, human tone wins his cooperation and good will. A blunt tone irritates him. A mechanical tone bores him."

Many letters contain too much "I" and not enough "you," Butterfield points out. "The average reader has little interest in what he can do for you. He wants to know what you can do for him."

A list of trite expressions to avoid in letter writing is included among the fifteen letter-improvement charts used during the clinic. Other materials cover negative words and how to avoid them, short cuts to concise writing, effective selling psychology, how to write clearly, how to give letters a friendly tone, correct form and layout, how to decline a request and still hold the reader's good will, and a "check list" for successful letters. The $6 registration fee for the Business Letter Clinic includes the set of fifteen letter-improvement charts.

Formerly chairman of the Department of Business Communication at the University of Oklahoma, Butterfield later served as educational director of the International Consumer Credit Association, St. Louis, and editor of its Better Letters Service. From 1948 to 1958 he was executive director of the University of Illinois Foundation. He has served also as vice president in charge of development at two universities.

"We feel that the letter clinic will be helpful to many business and professional people," say officials of the Chamber of Commerce. "This program is open to everyone who wants to write better letters. It is being offered as a service to the business men and women of this community."

Boy Born to Bob Kennedys

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy gave birth today to an eight-pound boy, her ninth child.

A spokesman for Roosevelt Hospital said Mrs. Kennedy, 36, the wife of New York's junior senator, and the boy were both "doing fine."

The infant was delivered at 3:11 a.m. CST by Dr. Ralph Gause, the hospital said. Mrs. Kennedy entered the hospital Sunday night and posed for photographers before she was taken to a private room in the obstetrical section. She was accompanied by Sen. Kennedy and a family nurse.

Communist China Blasts U.N., President Johnson

TOKYO (UPI) — In a statement believed to have been written by Mao Tze-tung, Communist China today attacked President Johnson as an imperialist who is "whetting his knife while telling his beads."

A separate Peking charge congratulated Indonesia for withdrawing from the United Nations. It said the United Nations was "a club for a few big powers to manipulate international affairs."

The twin attacks constituted one of the most bitter Peking broadsides against the United States and the United Nations in recent history.

Signed By Observer
The criticism of President Johnson was published in the Peking People's Daily, the official newspaper of the Communist regime, and signed by "Observer," a pseudonym generally reserved for Mao in his capacity as party chairman. "Johnson is no philanthropist," the article said. "Like its predecessors, the Johnson administration is the world's most rabid aggressor and the most ferocious enemy of the people of the world. Johnson is whetting his knife while telling his beads."

It was Peking's first detailed comment on Johnson's State of the Union message a week ago. The article called Johnson's speech "empty" and "ambiguous."

"Why did Johnson speak this way?" the article asked. "Not because Johnson is a wise moderate as he is alleged to be but because U.S. imperialism finds itself in a worse predicament than ever since the end of the war."

Says Impasse Exists
"Johnson evidently... thinks he can conceal the impasse in which U.S. imperialism finds itself in the present day world and change the image of U.S. imperialism from being a head hunter with both hands dripping with the blood of South Viet Nam and the Congo into one of a peace-lover and philanthropist."

Peking took the occasion to rattle its new nuclear-armed saber. "China has grown more powerful," it said. "The U.S. policy of being hostile to and isolating China has proved a complete failure."

"China's possession of nuclear weapons has further broken the U.S. nuclear monopoly and it has become more difficult for the U.S. to carry out its job of nuclear blackmail."

"Thus Johnson has landed himself in a much tighter corner than Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy had ever been."

Barnes Assured Job as Texas Speaker of House

AUSTIN (UPI) — The 59th Legislature convenes at noon Tuesday with Rep. Ben Barnes of De Leon assured enough votes for a landslide election as the youngest speaker ever to serve over a regular session of the Texas House.

Barnes Sunday released a list of 131 members of the House he said had signed pledges to vote for him as speaker. It takes only 75 votes to win the election by simple majority.

Barnes, 26, had been working for two years to win the speakership of the 60th Legislature in 1967. But the surprise resignation on Friday of Byron-Tunnell to accept appointments to the State Railroad Commission left that post suddenly up for grabs.

Converts His Pledges
As soon as Gov. John Connally announced Tunnell's appointment, the youthful Barnes jumped immediately to the task of converting his 1967 pledges to present votes. His success was evidenced by the long list of names he released as pledges today.

Four others jumped into the race after Tunnell withdrew, but by Saturday night two of them — Reps. George Richardson of Fort Worth and Henry Grover of Houston — had withdrawn.

Reps. Jack Woods of Waco and Paul Haring of Goliad were still in the race today.

Ready to Work
The energetic Barnes, who worked as one of Tunnell's chief lieutenants last session, said he would get right to work at organizing the House into committees if he is elected Tuesday.

He will be guiding the House through one of its most turbulent sessions in years. The greatest controversy is expected to be over congressional and legislative redistricting, which have been ordered by the federal courts.

Lawmakers will mark time, in effect, for two weeks until after Connally formally presents his program on Jan. 27. The governor's inauguration has been delayed a week so it will not conflict with the inauguration of President Johnson in Washington.

Food Reaches Stanleyville Despite Attacks From Rebels

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Eight barges with 900 tons of food have reached government troops and civilians in Stanleyville despite fierce attacks from rebels entrenched along the Congo River.

Reliable sources said the much-needed supplies arrived during the weekend. For months 3,000-mile-long river had been closed to government traffic by rebel shore emplacements of machine guns and automatic 20 millimeter cannon.

Stanleyville is the former rebel capital. Since its recapture by the government two months ago, all foodstuffs for its more than 100,000 civilians have been flown in.

Rebels attacked the convoy from shore positions at Elisabeth, about 125 miles northwest of Stanleyville. The barges continued unscathed when government planes strafed and fired rockets into the rebel positions.

Administrative advisers were rushed to Stanleyville to supervise marketing of the foodstuffs.

Few private shops have been reopened in the city; its many Greek, Indian and Portuguese traders left during the long siege last year.

Rebels still control a large portion of the northeast Congo. A government setback was reported Sunday at Mahagi, along the section bordering Uganda.

Congolese Army (ANC) troops were reported to have retreated from the town, the most advanced position reached by government forces seeking to cut off aid reaching the rebels through the frontier.

Pampa High Earns Superior Rating In Speech Meet

Nineteen speech students from Pampa High School participated in the Tall City Invitational Speech Tournament in Midland, Friday and Saturday. The local students entered competition in prose interpretation, poetry interpretation, extemporaneous speaking, persuasive speaking and debate.

Placing in the final round with superior ratings were Carole Akst Billy Hayes, Harold Thompson, Patsy Holloway, David Harmon, and Jim Shelhamer.

Special honors included a first place in persuasive speaking awarded Jim Shelhamer and second place in extemporaneous speaking awarded David Harmon.

The boys debate team composed of Jan Farley and Jimmy Helms advanced to final rounds with four wins and no losses, but were eliminated by Odessa High School in the quarter-final round.

Twenty-five schools attended the tournament.

Man Charged for Striking Officer

Donald L. Young, 25, of 320 Jean pleaded not guilty in county court today to a charge of aggravated assault upon a peace officer.

Young was charged with the offense after allegedly "slugged" Patrol Sgt. Charles Brunson twice during a scuffle in the 100 block of north Cuyler and then hit him twice more while being booked in at the police station.

Young was first arrested by Brunson in the Crystal Lounge, 100 S. Frost, for intoxication.

When they arrived at the police station, Brunson said Young jumped from the patrol car and ran off on foot. Brunson said when he caught Young in the 100 block of N. Cuyler and started to bring him back to the police station, he (Young) slugged him twice in the face and began kicking and biting.

Two other officers arrived and aided the bruised police officer in bringing Young to the station.

While being booked in jail on charges of aggravated assault and intoxication, Brunson said Young again slugged him twice in the face.

Young was charged with intoxication in City Court and aggravated assault in county court. He pleaded guilty to the intoxication charges and was fined $250.

He was placed under a $500 bond in county court or pleading not guilty to the assault charges.

Bliss Prospect For Burch's Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans are reported near an agreement to name Dean Burch to step aside as GOP national chairman, sooner or later, presumably in favor of Ray C. Bliss of Ohio.

The peaceful settlement is being worked out by party leaders anxious to "prevent a vote and prevent a bloodletting" at the GOP national committee meeting in Chicago Jan. 22-23.

Reliable sources said that leading Republicans were being asked to avoid any public comment on the Burch dispute because a "negotiated settlement" might be disclosed this week.

A top supporter of defeated GOP presidential nominee Barry M. Goldwater said Burch would be in a weak position even if he won a vote of confidence from the national committee. In any case, he could not expect an overwhelming majority and would head a badly split body.

Rep. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., called again Sunday for the national committee "to accomplish the resignation of Dean Burch" at the Chicago meeting.

One Republican said he understood there was a meeting last week of Goldwater, Burch, William E. Miller, the 1964 vice-presidential nominee, and Bliss, who is Ohio GOP chairman.

Bliss is the man most mentioned as Burch's successor if the incumbent chairman steps out or is pushed out.

In response to a question after a speech Friday at the National Press Club, Burch said he had talked to Bliss. He said they discussed the chairmanship and the "breakdown in communications" within the party, but he was not free to tell more about their conversation.

Burch said in the speech, however, that he wanted and intended to remain in the chairmanship.

Bliss said in the speech, however, that he wanted and intended to remain in the chairmanship.

Junior Stock Show Slated

CANADIAN (SpI) — Hemphill County's annual Junior Livestock Show, sponsored by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, is set for Saturday, Jan. 16. Chamber of Commerce Manager John Wilkinson said.

Nine fat calves and a total of sixty barrows are slated for exhibition this year.

The show is open to county 4-H clubbers and members of the Canadian Future Farmers of America chapter. Four-H clubbers will exhibit four steers and eighteen barrows; and FFA entries will include five fat steers and forty-two head of swine.

A total of $225 in cash prizes, plus trophies and ribbons, will be given to the winners. The cash awards and ribbons are provided by the Chamber of Commerce; trophies for Grand and Reserve champions in both the calf and swine shows are offered by the Hemphill County Farm Bureau; and showmanship trophies are presented in the calf show by the Canadian Production Credit Association and in the Swine show by Josh Hopkins and Amicable Life Insurance Company.

Judging the show this year will be J. C. Christerson of Clinton, Okla.

Calf show superintendent is Erbin Crowell, and superintendent of the Swine show is Norman Burton.

Clerks will be Don Powell and Dwayne Nix; and Warren Pickens, Pat Roberts and John Wilkinson are in charge of arrangements.

The swine will be shown and judged on the lot across the street from the City Hall. Steers will be shown and judged in the City Auditorium and trophies and awards will be presented there.

Change Taken in Grocery Robbery

Between $75 and $100 in change was reported missing following a burglary early Sunday morning of Miller Grocery and Market, 2000 Alcock.

The burglary was discovered by patrolman S. B. Patterson while on routine patrol at 2:30 a.m. Patterson found the front door of the building standing open.

According to the police report, the thieves apparently threw a soft drink bottle through the window, reached in and unlocked the door.

Police said other than the money nothing else in the store was bothered.

West All-Stars Swamp East With 34-14 Tally

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The West has a 10.5 game edge today in the Pro Bowl series and this gives guys like Gino Marchetti and Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts some satisfaction.

The Colts were beaten by the Cleveland Browns, 27-0, in the National Football League (NFL) championship game Dec. 27.

After the West All-Stars swamped the East 34-14 Sunday at Memorial Coliseum, Unitas and Marchetti felt a little better.

Unitas who did not play a big part in the victory, hitting on only 1 of 12 passes for 96 yards, said the money did not make him happy — it was the joy of winning.

Each member of the winning pro bowl squad got $1,000 — the losers $700.

Said Unitas:

"There was a little prestige involved. We weren't worried about the money."

Squad Had Pride

Marchetti, a ripe 38 years old and retiring from pro football, was a little more explicit, saying: "We had a lot of pride out there. Every football player out there had pride. ... We wanted to win very bad. We had to save our face some way."

Minnesota quarterback Frank Tarkenton who threw a one touchdown pass for the West and completed 8 of 13 for 172 yards, was voted outstanding player by sports writers.

Unitas and other players said the victory was due largely to the West's defense.

West lineman like Merlin Olsen and David Jones of the Los Angeles Rams, Roger Brown of the Detroit Lions, Willie Davis of Green Bay and Marchetti were superb.

The East netted only 82 yards passing and 104 rushing.

The West netted 266 yards passing and 145 rushing.

Grabs Four Passes

The West intercepted four passes — the big one was by Green Bay's veteran linebacker Ray Nitschke. He ran a Sonny Jurgensen pass back 42 yards for a TD in the third period.

Minnesota fullback Bill Brown accounted for two of the West's four touchdowns — on a two-yard run and a two-yard pass from Tarkenton in the second period.

The West took the lead with four minutes gone in the game when Detroit's Wayne Walker connected on a 15-yard field goal, and was never headed.

West led at the half — 17-7.

Walker kicked another field goal — for 28 yards — in the third quarter.

Baltimore's Lenny Moore scored on a two-yard run for the West in the fourth quarter at the top of a 70-yard, seven-play march.

Cleveland fullback Jim Brown was held pretty well in check by the stout West defense until the last period when he made his longest run of the day — 21 yards around end.

He scored the East's second touchdown in the final quarter on a 27-yard pass play — from Jurgensen.

The East got its first TD in the second quarter when speedy Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys intercepted a Tarkenton pass and rambled 47 yards to the end zone.

Negroes Call Off AFL All-Star Tilt

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Bourbon Street, where the saints go marching in, sent 20 Negro pro football players marching out Sunday — right out of town and they took the American Football League's All-Star game with them.

The 20 Negroes on the East and West squads, complaining that they had been discriminated against because of their color, about 40 per cent of the two teams.

Also withdrawn was the annual meeting of league owners and officials, scheduled to open in New Orleans Wednesday.

Ernie Warlick, a Buffalo Bills end who acted as spokesman for the Negroes, said he and his companions were refused entry to several French Quarter night spots and were refused service by white taxi drivers.

In a formal statement, the Negroes said:

"The American Football League is progressing in great strides and the Negro players feel they are playing a vital role in the league's progression. They have been treated fairly in all cities throughout the league."

"However, because of adverse conditions and discriminatory practices experienced by the Negro players while here in New Orleans, the players feel they cannot perform 100 per cent as expected in the All-Star game and be treated differently."

"Outside the hotels, recreational facilities and transportation were not available to the Negro players and service was refused," the statement said.

Warlick said some players on their arrival Sunday had to wait nearly an hour at New Orleans International Airport because taxi drivers refused to accept them as passengers.

"I was refused service outside the Fontainebleau by cab drivers," he said. "Later in the night, I went with several of my white teammates to Bourbon Street and was told at several places that I could not enter, although they would accept the white boys."

Sole Bruin Defeat By Illinois

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

If there's one thing the UCLA basketball team is sorry about this season, it's that they didn't invite Illinois to play them in Los Angeles last December — if they had, they might still be undefeated.

The top-ranked Bruins lost their season opener to Illinois at Champaign on Dec. 4 but since that time have been virtually unstoppable. On the other hand, the ninth-ranked Illini have been unbeatable on their home court but have found the going mighty rough on foreign hardwoods.

A quick glance at last Saturday's games shows how the season has been going for the two teams since they met last month. The Bruins rolled to their 11th straight victory by crushing Oregon State 83-53 while the Illini lost a tough 89-93 contest to second-ranked Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Full Slate

Saturday was actually a full day for most of the nation's top-rated teams. In games involving the top 10, third-ranked Indiana downed Northwestern 66-73, Wichita, also ranked No. 3, edged Cincinnati 65-61, sixth-ranked St. Joseph's (Pa.) trounced Boston College 93-71, seventh-ranked Santa Barbara 102-69, and eighth-ranked St. John's tripped Loyola of the South 74-54. Fifth-ranked Duke joined Illinois in the lost column, however, by bowing to North Carolina 65-62.

UCLA had no trouble at all with Oregon State as the Bruins out-rebounded and outshot their opponents by a wide margin. The defending NCAA champion jumped off a 9-3 lead in the early minutes of play, built up a 39-26 halftime advantage and coasted through the second half.

Cazzie Russell and Bill Buntin provided most of the fireworks for Michigan in the Wolverines' victory over Illinois. Both tossed in 30 points to carry the defending Big Ten champions to their first conference victory of the season.

Indiana tied a Big Ten conference free throw record in its victory over Northwestern. The Hoosiers hit on 20 of 21 from the free throw line to their own record set last year.

Withstands Rally

Wichita had to withstand a late Cincinnati rally to defeat the Bearcats. Leading by 32-21 at the half, the Shockers nursed the lead until late in the game when the Bearcats hit a hot streak from the floor and rallied to within striking distance. It was a case of too little too late, however, as Wichita resisted the charge and held on to win.

St. Joseph's and San Francisco both jumped off to quick leads against their opponents and went on to score overwhelming victories. The Hawks rolled to a 21-8 lead against Boston College early in the first half while the Dons moved out to a 32-14 advantage against Santa Barbara.

In their Saturday action, Minnesota beat Wisconsin 81-57, Vanderbilt defeated Mississippi State 94-70, undefeated Providence routed Canisius 86-60, Utah stopped Idaho 80-63, St. Louis edged Drake 66-63, Kansas topped Missouri 73-66, New Mexico dumped Arizona 64-42, De Paul walloped Western Ontario 118-44, Kentucky downed Louisiana State 79-66, Brigham Young tripped Utah State 89-62 and Bradley bested North Texas State 74-61.

Pampa Can Win 1st Half Tuesday

The Pampa Harvesters go to Tascosa tomorrow night with an even chance of sharing or winning outright the district 3-AA-AA title for the first half of the loop round-robin.

Pampa and Lubbock High are deadlocked with 6-1 records going into the first half of the series. One game behind are Amarillo and Monterey. The Sandies visit weak Borger, but the Plainsmen and the Westerners clash in a crosstown rivalry. Should Pampa win and Lubbock lose, the Harvesters will own the honors outright. Should both win, they will tie. Should both lose, Monterey would make it a three-way tie.

The first-half winner is to meet the second half winner for the loop title. Ties will change the complexion of the affair.

Coaches Want Free Sub Back

CHICAGO (UPI)—The nation's football coaches want a return to the free substitution rule which was outlawed in 1953.

The recommended change in the rules was one of three made Sunday by the American College Football Coaches Association on the eve of the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention.

Jack Curtice, coach at the University of California at Santa Barbara, said the recommendation will be submitted next weekend to the NCAA rules committee in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The coaches proposed these changes:

- A return to free substitution, permitting teams to substitute players whenever the ball is not in play.
- Modification of the rule prohibiting coaching from the side lines by allowing one coach to confer with one player within five yards of the coaching box during a charged time-out or change of period.
- Authorization to change the height of the kicking tee from one to two inches.

Possible action by college officials against the premature signing of football players by professional teams was put off until Tuesday.

Jim Corbett, chairman of the NCAA's pro relations committee, said he would first confer with commissioner Joe Foss of the American Football League.

When geese honk and wing their way south, severe weather is soon to follow. Probably most of us have heard this adage, or saying, all our lives. Take it from me, it isn't necessarily so.

The other afternoon Lee Surratt and I observed a flock of some 60 Canadian honkers flying over the western part of Stinnett in the direction of Lake Meredith. Lee mentioned that a storm was brewing. Migratory waterfowl do depart from northern to southern climes ahead of a storm during the fall migration quite frequently, and truly it is a well-recognized sign by oldtimers who didn't have weather forecasters to predict a storm, but geese winter sets in the habits of migratory birds change. Instead of continuing to fly southward many of the birds locate for the winter in the Panhandle.

Take, for example, the Canadian geese that winter on the Buffalo Lake refuge. Would you venture a guess as to how many usually spend the winter there? From best authorities there are upwards of 30,000 that utilize the waters of this lake as a refuge from hunters. Would you venture a guess as to how many would be there if Uncle Sam didn't provide a place for these birds? My guess would be less than 100.

Their day consists of hours of flying time to a feeding ground, feeding, and back to the lake. Buffalo Lake provides a haven for these hard-pressed geese. The daily habits of the flock are most interesting and revealing. A few hours after daylight, say about eight or nine in the morning, the flock begins to leave the lake by the hundreds. Some go east, some go west and some go over the other way, ha.

It is a ha, ha for the hunters, also. Around the lake before the sun rises, many of the cafes are filled with goose hunters decked out in complete goose hunters' regalia. A frequent question is, "Which way will they fly today?" This type of hunter, which is denoted as a "hunter", wishes to depart the warm mirth of the kitchen, take to the section line roads, and set up in a fence row or under a tumble weed, and shoot as the flock passes over. Full choke, number four buck with magnum loads and a world of hope that they will score. Some do. In fact, there are from two to four thousand geese bagged each year within a thirty-mile area of the refuge.

Pass hunters make up one category of gunners, while those who hunt in blinds make up another. The calculating hunters probably are more successful. These hunters, it would seem, are the real goose hunters, and maybe we could class the others as hopefuls. In a radius of ten, or maybe a few miles more, many goose hunters will dig fox holes or pits in wheat field, set up a few hundred decoys, sometimes as many as three hundred, and be ready for the flights. They will scan the horizon for an hour or more, and when a flight is located they will use their artificial goose callers to attempt to entice the flock. Sometimes they call them almost into the blinds with others — as hopefuls. The overall ratio of success percentage-wise is very low, but this doesn't dampen the enthusiasm of goose hunters because they keep trying. The average weight of a Canada goose is something like five pounds (for the sub-specie, the lesser Canada, which makes up 95 per cent or more of the number on Buffalo. Some go as high as 11 pounds. The greater Canada goose is somewhat larger than the others and have been known to exceed 18 pounds.

The goose season closes January 13 at sunset.

Thirteen sound sheep were killed by trophy-conscious hunters during the December 11, 12 and 13 season in the rugged Palo Duro Canyon southeast of Amarillo, Texas, the Parks and Wildlife Department reports.

Wildlife workers reported two of the 13 barbary sheep harvested were in the 270 pound class.

The three-day hunt was the second ever held in Texas.

In the late '50's, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department purchased 44 barbary sheep from a rancher in New Mexico and released them in the Palo Duro Canyon. Until last year these sheep were permitted to reproduce and become firmly established in their new surroundings.

Forty-two hunting permits were distributed in 1963 among Palo Duro Canyon landowners and nine sheep were harvested. This year 50 permits were distributed with six males and seven females bagged.

Current estimate of the total number of the rare sheep now present in the Palo Duro Canyon is between 400 and 600 head.

Knicks Click, Beat Baltimore In Overtime

By United Press International

Was it the hex over Baltimore or Harry Gallatin's tutorage that finally brought the New York Knickerbocker coach his first victory?

Gallatin watched his charges lose their first four games since taking over the team and then suddenly snap the string Sunday as they beat the Bullets for the fourth time in five meetings by edging Baltimore 122-120 in overtime.

A 20-foot jump shot by Emmette Bryant with 46 seconds remaining in the extra session gave the Knicks their first overtime victory in seven attempts.

The Cincinnati Royals hit on 50 per cent of their shots to maul the Detroit Pistons, 140-114, in the only other National Basketball Association action.

Baltimore held a 12-point lead at one time in the first half, but New York tied it at 57-47 by the intermission. And with 15 seconds to go in regulation time, John Egan connected to knot the score at 112-111.

After Bryant's go-ahead basket in the closing seconds of overtime, Bailey Howell fried a last desperation shot that was blocked by New York rookie Jim Barnes.

Don Ohl of Baltimore led all scorers with 36 points. Egan's 23 was high for the Knicks.

Jerry Lucas and Jack Twyman netted 24 points each as Cincinnati downed Detroit. Lucas also grabbed a game-high of 27 rebounds.

SWC Roundup

The Texas Aggies and Baylor Bears, playing second fiddle to front-running Texas Tech and Southern Methodist, try to stay alive in the Southwest Conference basketball derby this week.

Tech and SMU, both boasting 2-0 records after surviving a hazardous opening week of action, turn from ball bouncing to book cramming for two weeks during semester exams, but the league's other six teams will all be on the courts this week.

The defending champion Aggies, with their backs to the wall after losing to Baylor at home and SMU on the road last week, will host Texas Christian Tuesday and play Rice in Houston Saturday.

Baylor, its title express derailed by lowly Rice, also will be on the floor twice — against Texas at Austin Tuesday and at home with Arkansas Saturday.

The week's only other league game has Rice visiting Arkansas Tuesday. Tech hosts the Phillips Oilers Saturday.

Baylor, Rice, TCU and Arkansas will carry 1-1 records into the second week of play, while the Aggies and Texas are 0-2, much to their surprise and chagrin.

Upsets shock the first week of play with Baylor bouncing A&M 80-77 to chalk up their first win at A&M in 10 years, then becoming the victim of an even stronger shocker when Rice — which had lost nine in a row — beat the Bears 59-56 before Baylor's largest home crowd ever (6,000).

The Baylor loss came a few hours after TCU had surprised Texas, an early choice as a title contender, 77-64, in an afternoon game at Fort Worth to break a 21-game conference losing streak and a title game drought on the Frogs' own floor that dated back to Feb. 27, 1962.

The Aggies' 89-77 loss to SMU on the Ponies' home floor was not exactly an upset, but it was a crippling blow.

In other action last week, SMU beat Rice 64-62, Tech downed Texas 66-62 and Arkansas 93-78 and Arkansas tripped TCU 88-70.

Goose Hurt

Houston (UPI)—The crowd chucked when famous basketball clown Goose Tatum dropped to the court floor after a high leap during the Harlem Globetrotters' exhibition game in Houston over the weekend.

Tatum's expressive face writhed in pain and they cackled some more, thinking it was part of his comedy routine.

It was no joke to Tatum. He was rushed to a hospital where X-rays showed he had broken his leg.

Gasoline Taxes

Whenever we discuss taxes, we are bound to hear the claim that the tax on gasoline and on automobile users is one of the most equitable that has been devised. The reason offered is that the tax on gasoline is used to provide the highways that the automobiles and trucks use. Therefore, here, we have a tax that is correctly employed.

Actually, most motorists are aware of the fact that they pay many taxes besides the gasoline tax. The motorist pays a tax when he buys the car and he pays an additional tax called a sales tax. He pays a tax when he gets his license and he pays taxes on the car as long as he owns it. He pays for inspection, which is a tax, and he pays special taxes on toll roads, whenever he parks it at a meter, and whenever he purchases tires, battery, lubricants and the everpresent requirement, gasoline.

What most motorists may not know is that a great share of all that they pay in gasoline taxes does not go to provide highways or to maintain them. Actually, gasoline taxes are used to build sidewalks, to provide prison camps and a host of other items in the general budget including the maintenance of the government school system.

During the past seven years, the federal government has collected some $28.5 billion from gasoline taxes. Only $17.1 billion of that money has gone into highway construction and maintenance. The balance, about 40 cents on each gasoline tax dollar, has gone into the U. S. Treasury's general fund.

Something else to keep in mind about this "fair" and "equitable" tax is that it is the most highly taxed item relating to motoring. The tax is actually a 50 per cent tax. When you pay $3.00 at the pump for gasoline, $2.00 goes for the product and the other $1.00 goes to the government. Gasoline is taxed five times more thoroughly than even such luxury items as diamonds and furs.

Now, there is no doubt at all that the taxes on gasoline have inspired many automobile users to convert to more compact automobiles rather than standard American makes. One is reminded of the fact that in 18th century Britain a certain merchant, angry with the government's tax on horses, purchased and rode a cow for transportation. If gasoline taxes continue at their present rate, it is possible that the day of the horse is not past.

One of these days, scientists are going to perfect some other kind of vehicle, using perhaps atomic energy or some other kind of electronic energy. But, doubtless, the government will find a way to tax that, too. Taxes on all forms of transportation, from railroads to barges to airlines and truck lines, form an enormous inroad against our ability to move goods and persons rapidly and inexpensively from place to place.

Some Nice Mississippians

Scandalous things have happened in Mississippi. Scandalous things also have happened in Viet Nam, California, Rome and perhaps in your block. It will never do to confuse places and people, though, and in all these places there may be found many fine people who observe the Golden Rule, contribute to all the funds that combat diseases, and defend their countries with their lives when the occasion demands.

And so we cannot accept the recommendation of sincere civil rights workers that we fight discrimination in Mississippi by an indiscriminating boycott of all who happen to live there and earn their livings there.

Every outrageous act that has occurred in Mississippi has been the work of an individual or a group, who may or may not be identifiable, but who are identifiable. Those who did not participate and who had no guilty knowledge are no more deserving of punishment than the innocent who happen to live in New Jersey or New Mexico. It would be impossible to conduct a boycott of Mississippi without damage to innocent white people in the state. It would be impossible to do it without hurting the livelihoods of nearly half of the Mississippi citizens who are Negroes. And, incidentally, the effects of the boycott could not possibly be kept within the borders of Mississippi, because many of the boycotted firms are owned or financed by Americans who live elsewhere.

Only unreasoning anger could dictate such a measure, because Mississippi is only a flagrant example of what is happening in some other states to almost the same degree, and in every state to some degree.

As difficult as the job may be, justice, to be justice at all, must fall upon each individual in proportion to his offenses. The exercise of injustice in the pursuit of justice makes a mockery of the word justice.

U.S. Sees Italy Reds 'Contained'

By BRUCE BISSAT
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—Though the Italian Communists will be crowding over the decisive role they played in electing Italy's new president, Giuseppe Saragat, we should not weight their importance too heavily. U. S. specialists on Italy say that the country's Communist party, while still large, is "being contained and whittled down."

Party membership, figured at around one million Italians, is perhaps half what it once was. Since the Communist vote in Italy remains relatively constant at four million, only one in every four voters is today a party member.

The Reds' influence in government, labor agriculture and other spheres is not spreading. Playing a major part in such a decision as the Saragat election does, to be sure, lend fresh respectability to the party. Yet some officials here suggest the Italian Communists could withdraw away from respectability.

Under the guidance of the late Red leader, Palmiro Togliatti, the Italian party — from necessity — took on a strong nationalist tinge. This was its path to respectability.

Gaining participation in local government in many areas, controlling half the nation's organized labor and dominating some farmer co-operatives have not proved unmixed blessings for the Reds.

Their stress on their Italian-ness has tended to overshadow their strong ideological coloration. As they have played their "working role" in Italian affairs, they have lost the zest and the look of revolutionaries.

At the local level, operating in alliance with sympathizing Socialists, the Communists have had no real coercive powers to exert over the citizenry. Thus their shared control usually has come to appear little more than a somewhat different kind of political bossism.

There are no longer any such alliances at the level of Italy's provincial capitals. Pietro Nenni's Socialists, joined now in the national center-left governing coalition, have been pulling steadily away from Red ties.

Officials here say the "contained" Italian Communists no longer are attracting first rate leadership material, that the party in consequence is becoming a "dried up bureaucracy."

Various front and youth groups are said to be suffering noticeably as the Italian people closely scrutinize the boxed-in Reds.

Communism minus revolutionary intent is a contradiction. For the Reds, their present predicament — one not really eased by their part in the Saragat victory — raises the question: "Where do we go from here?"

Italy's centrist and moderate leftists clearly hope the answer is that the Communists there will shrink into insignificance before two decades have passed.

For while they are contained well by rival forces, they still represent a threat. They command a potent 25 per cent of the electorate and the national legislature. Some economic or other disaster might catapult them into full power.

The Reds' existence as a major force in Italy is one factor, so experts here say, in compelling the country to undertake the shaky experiment of a center-left coalition.

Nevertheless, considerable hope is held out in the United States that this weak alliance, bent on accomplishing badly needed social reforms, may grow stronger — and in the process assist the ardently desired decline of the Italian Communists.

Wild dingoes, or Australian wild dogs, can yelp and howl but they do not bark. They can, however, learn to imitate the bark of dogs when they are domesticated. The dingo was introduced by the aborigines from Malaya when they first settled the continent.

Ominous New Development in North Viet Nam: Overflights of Chinese-Piloted Mig-21s from Hanoi

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Red Chinese-piloted Mig-21 jet fighters are now flying patrols over the Gulf of Tonkin and North Viet Nam.

That is the latest foreboding development since the sudden appearance of sizable flights of these latest-model Russian-type combat planes in this war-racked area several weeks ago.

None of this speedy and powerfully armed Mig-21s have yet been sighted over Communist-impelled South Viet Nam or adjoining Laos.

As reported to Washington authorities by U. S. Air and Naval forces, the patrolling Mig's are based on Hainan Island, in the Gulf of Tonkin off the southern tip of Red China and opposite the coast of North Viet Nam's long coastline.

Usual route of the Red Chinese patrols is as follows: From airfields in southeastern Hainan, the Mig-21s fly west across Tonkin Gulf to Dong Hoi, on the southern coast of North Viet Nam and near the northern boundary of South Viet Nam.

From there the patrols head north to Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, where they refuel. Then heading south, they again traverse Tonkin Gulf to their home bases on Hainan.

From verifications by U. S. aerial reconnaissance, including pilotless planes, intelligence estimates that Red China now has between 70 and 100 Mig-21s in this region.

In addition to those operating from Hainan Island, these latest-model Communist jet fighters have been sighted on airfields in four other locations — one in North Viet Nam, at Hanoi; the three others in China, at Nanning, Chingnai and Mengtu, not far from North Viet Nam's border.

Largest number of these Mig's, estimated around 50, have been spotted on China's Hainan Island.

It also has been definitely established that these Mig's are piloted by Red Chinese. This has been fully authenticated by recordings of messages and other conversations by the pilots.

FATEFUL UNCERTAINTY — But still very much in the dark is what happens next — particularly whether these new jet fighters portend Red China's direct intervention in the protracted South Viet Nam conflict.

Some intelligence authorities are strongly convinced of that. In support of this view, they cite the following: Disposition of the Mig-21s and Red China's other air strength definitely indicates readiness to intervene. Regular North Viet Nam ground forces, up to regimental units, are positively known to be in South Viet Nam. In recent weeks, these North Viet Nam troops have been increasingly used to combat.

They carried the brunt of the fighting at Binh Gia, where the South Vietnamese and U.S. advisers suffered their biggest losses to date.

In the opinion of these intelligence experts, the next likely move will be Peking's use of its jet fighters to provide the North Viet Nam regulars with air support — which the Communists have totally lacked in this struggle so far.

This dire development would immediately confront the U. S. with decisions of supremest import.

President Johnson would have to decide how far he is prepared to go to make good the ringing pronouncement in his State of the Union message Monday night of last week.

"Twice in one generation we have had to fight against aggression in the Far East. To ignore aggression would only increase the danger of a larger war. What is at stake (in South Viet Nam) is the cause of freedom. In that cause we shall never be found wanting."

WHERE'D THEY GET THEM — The jolting discovery that Red China has acquired Mig-21s has caused deep perturbation in State Department and Central Intelligence Agency quarters.

Both have policy papers assessing (1) Russia baited all military aid to Peking in 1961 when the long-smoldering ideological feud broke into the open; (2) no Mig-21s have ever been supplied the Chinese; (3) the latter's airforce has deteriorated in the last few years.

Since the appearance of Chinese-piloted Mig-21s in the inflamed Viet Nam area, debate has raged among administration policy-makers over their origin.

State Department and CIA officials are inclined to the view that these latest-model jet fighters are being produced in China. Military experts sharply question this theory. In refutation they cite the following two significant factors:

(1) There is no "firm" information or evidence that Red China has plants capable of manufacturing Mig-21s. (2) Principal sources of the reports that these combat planes are being made in China are Hong Kong and New Delhi, where Communist agents are notoriously active.

The skeptical military officials also contend the reports of the Mig-21s being produced in China were "leaked" by Communist sources, and so timed as to coincide with the appearance of these planes in the South Viet Nam region.

Prior to the sighting of the Mig-21s, the jet fighter strength of Red China was calculated by the CIA as between 1,750 and 2,000 planes, including approximately 100 Mig-19s. The others were Mig-17s and Mig-15s, now as obsolete.

GETTING THE LOWDOWN — MAYBE! — Members of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee will get their first briefing on Red China's atomic test next week. Central Intelligence Director John McCone

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of governmental entities which will not injure anyone.)

Question: "I have several silver certificates valued at $1 U.S. currency. When I tried to exchange them for silver dollars at the bank I was informed that they didn't have any silver dollars. Does this mean that all the gold and all the silver has now left the U.S. treasury and we are actually broke?"

Answer: The United States Treasury still has a quantity of gold and silver. Theoretically all money now is backed 25 per cent by gold. However, there are foreign short-term claims, including paper "dollars" against the gold which could dip into the entire gold supply if the holders choose to exercise their claims.

The Treasury also has a quantity of silver some of which is being liquidated in retirement of silver certificates. Large commercial users of silver can obtain bar silver by turning in silver certificates. Individuals have been told they can obtain silver dust at U.S. Mints in exchange for silver certificates.

The nearest is at San Francisco. The meaning of the disappearance of silver dollars is that Gresham's law is in effect. Gresham's law is that bad money drives good money out of the market.

The federal government has fixed the price of silver, so that a silver dollar now has a slightly more than a dollar's worth of silver. Meantime, the government has continued inflationary policies, and its paper money buys less and less. Seeking some protection against inflation, individuals have kept silver dollars, the metal in them having value in itself, and have spent their paper dollars because of their lack of confidence in the virtually unbacked currency.

Between the Bookends

THE RIGHT NOT TO LISTEN — none of our prior cases has held that a person's right to freedom of expression carries with it a right to force a private property owner to furnish his property as a platform to criticize the property owner's use of that property. . . . Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black.

So-called "free speech" movements of late have raised the cry of "violation rights" whenever a group has been prevented from holding a "demonstration" on someone else's property. This is born of — and has added to — a lack of understanding of the nature of freedom.

In an attempt to dispel this confusion, a 23-page booklet "The Right Not To Listen" has been released by the Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government, Travelers Building, Richmond, Virginia (no charge for one to five copies; more than five, 15 cents each).

"Sit-Ins & Bomb - Bans" — In the introduction, James J. Kilpatrick states: "The past decade has witnessed a mounting assault on property rights. Demonstrations covering a wide range, from labor disputes to ban-the-bomb marches, from racial sit-ins to organized attempts to enforce hiring practices thought desirable by a particular group, have plagued property owners incessantly over the past few years. And ordinarily, demonstrators seek to justify their actions, however violative of the rights of others, by relying on their own freedom of speech."

The booklet points out that "common law" traditions in most countries, for many centuries, have acknowledged the right of the individual to be the supreme controller of his own property. He has the right to decide who shall enter his property and who shall be forbidden. Freedom of speech does not extend to the forcible trespassing upon the property of another in order to make a speech.

No Conflict — Perhaps the only weakness in this very informative booklet is the implication that there is a conflict between the rights of property and free speech. No such conflict exists. Freedom of speech is important because its purpose is to prevent politicians from outlawing criticism directed against themselves. Historic violations of free speech have come when states have restricted what an individual may say.

And the question of what is not an issue in the matter at hand. It is not what a "sit-in" demonstrator is saying that is at question. It is where he has forcibly situated himself. He could be saying or doing anything, but he must be on his own property or have the permission of the appropriate property owner.

Any man should have the right to shout "fire" in a crowded theatre — provided he has the permission of the theatre owner. Obviously, a theatre owner who cares about attracting future patrons will not grant such permission.

Wit and Whimsy — At a White House reception in the East Room, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth decided she wanted to smoke. As she placed a cigaret in the long holder she used, a young White House Aide said to her politely: "Madam, we prefer not to have people smoke in here."

Teddy Roosevelt's daughter studied the youth for a moment and replied: "You young man, I was smoking in this house before you were born." And she promptly lit up her cigaret.

Norman Rockwell's paintings no longer appear on the cover, Ben Hibbs' name no longer appears on the masthead, Benjamin Franklin's face is not to be seen anywhere.

There is no article by John Bartlow Martin, and no short story by Clarence Buddingford Kelland.

True enough, these are superficial items but they are what made the magazine what it was 30 years ago when the people on our block used to wait for the mailman to bring the latest issue.

Well, times haven't changed that much. At least not when a magazine for Nov. 18, 1916, is still pretty interesting.

And actually, would probably be a lot cheaper to put out an old magazine.

The savings on illustrations alone would be tremendous. And the articles are certainly just as good today. Why, it opens a whole new world of publishing.

Ward Cannel

The Difference Is In the Similarity

Due to unforeseen circumstances, the dentist took us a bit sooner than he had planned. So we are not able to review the major magazines as thoroughly as usual, having only had time to read the latest issue of "The Saturday Evening Post" and "Collier's Weekly" of Nov. 18, 1916.

Now, as a rule we have very little patience with reviews that do not come right to the point and say whether a thing is basically worthwhile. But after years of orthodoxy and subscriptions, we have concluded that you cannot sort the general magazines according to their basic worth.

We will illustrate this point by reciting a sampling of the contents of the two magazines and then defy you to say which came from the past issue of "Saturday Evening Post," and which from "Collier's Weekly" of a half-century ago.

A short story about an emancipated girl and her puzzled husband; a report on the Federal Trade Commission's latest doings; a letter to the editor by a reader worried by juvenile delinquency; a profile of a business tycoon; an analysis by Winston Churchill of the conditions in Europe leading to the battle of Verdun; a new design for running a more efficient office; three advertisements for cigarettes, and three for new automobiles.

Actually, they are all from the 1916 Collier's magazine. But we have not set them down here to disparage magazines.

We only want to point out that the same periodical press has been an integral part of the American way of life for so long that it can doubtless withstand the worst national catastrophes short of universal fluoridation of water.

Consequently, it does not matter what issue of which general magazine you compare with any other. The fundamental differences between them will almost all be superficial.

In fact, the greater the magazine, the more similar it is in the heyday of "Post," as we recall, you could not tell one issue from another. And the same was true of "Collier's."

But there never seemed to be any difficulty in telling the two apart.

For some reason, however, that has all changed. Today, the basic difference between the two, as we understand it, is that the most recent issue of "The Saturday Evening Post" is still on the newsstands whereas "Collier's" is not.

Moreover, we have been warned by informed sources at every street corner along Madison Avenue that even this slim difference is disappearing, and only a miracle can save the "Post" from the fate that swallowed "Collier's."

But as nobody can say why or how this situation came to be, we have been studying the two magazines very closely to find the reason.

The only conclusion we have been able to reach is that "The Saturday Evening Post" is not similar enough any more.

Norman Rockwell's paintings no longer appear on the cover, Ben Hibbs' name no longer appears on the masthead, Benjamin Franklin's face is not to be seen anywhere.

There is no article by John Bartlow Martin, and no short story by Clarence Buddingford Kelland.

True enough, these are superficial items but they are what made the magazine what it was 30 years ago when the people on our block used to wait for the mailman to bring the latest issue.

Well, times haven't changed that much. At least not when a magazine for Nov. 18, 1916, is still pretty interesting.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES

You Deduct Volunteer Expense

By RAY DE CRANE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
It probably was an internal revenue auditor who first said: "There would be no mortgages outstanding on churches today if churches actually received all the money people claimed they contributed on their tax returns."
Perhaps that is why so many church officials are being queried by tax auditors these days to confirm contributions being reported on tax returns.
As in all other statements and deductions claimed on tax forms the burden of proof is on the taxpayer and it is a wise man who has a statement from his church or canceled checks to support his contributions.

Furthermore, there is no "rule of thumb" or "average amount" to be listed as a contribution. List what you actually gave. That amount is your deduction.
Of course, for the overly generous there are maximum limitations. Contributions are generally limited to 20 per cent of total income. An additional 10 per cent may be taken if the money went to religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational organizations. This does not include tuition to a school or college but an outright gift.
In addition to your contributions to church you may deduct all contributions to nonprofit schools and hospitals, Salvation

Army, Red Cross, Community Chest, Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts, the various health funds and societies for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals.
There are other items that are also properly considered as deductible charitable contributions.
Say you go to a theater party where all the proceeds go to a recognized charity. If the cost of the ticket is $50 and the usual charge for the entertainment or play is $5, then the additional $45 is treated as a contribution.
Or you go to a church affair and bid $10 for a box lunch. If lunch is $1.50, you have an $8.50 charitable contribution.
Should you give articles of clothing or household goods to a church or charitable agency then the fair market value of the items so given is deductible.
Many housewives overlook another charitable deduction now available to them.
If you are a volunteer worker at a hospital, a den mother to a Brownie or Club Scout pack or the Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts you may have some deductible expenses which never occurred to you.

As a volunteer worker, your cost of transportation to and from the hospital or welfare institution is deductible. If you use your own car the cost of gas and oil plus parking may be itemized. Or you may simply use a Treasury-approved allowance of five cents a mile on the car.
Cost of meals and lodging while performing your donated service are also deductible. Should you be required to wear a distinctive uniform which is not readily adaptable to general use its original cost and laundering expenses may also be included.
Den mothers who take turns holding meetings for Scout groups may charge off the cost of snacks served at meetings as well as transportation expenses when taking such groups on field trips.
Delegates to a church convention who are not compensated for their services or reimbursed for their expenses may deduct the transportation charges plus the cost of meals and lodging while attending to convention business.
Under no circumstances may you charge off any value placed on your time or services while performing such volunteer work.
Should you donate painting, a work of art, a bond, securities or anything of value to a religious or charitable institution, the fair market value of the item — it may be more or less than your original cost — is fully deductible.

Surplus City In New Location

Tom Glitsch, owner of Surplus City, recently announced that he has moved to 120 W. Foster, across the street from the American Legion Hall.
Surplus City is now open at the new location and still selling at the lowest possible prices. He will continue his sale to raise money to satisfy his creditors.
The new location also has a full basement that Glitsch plans to redecorate and stock in the near future. Thus offering his customers even a larger selection of merchandise to choose from.
The store will continue to carry the same quality merchandise as always, at the same low prices, and in many instances they will lose money on some items just to keep fresh stock in the store.
Glitsch feels that the new location will put Surplus City in with the downtown merchants thus making it more accessible for shoppers to come in.
The store slogan, "The Working Man's Friend", still applies. This is the store that offers the working man and his family quality products at the lowest prices. So remember the new address of Surplus City, is now 120 W. Foster.

Budget Goes To Support Program

American Bakeries Company, the nation's second largest commercial baker, has turned over the major portion of its $7,250,000 advertising budget for 1965 to the baking industry's bread enrichment theme, American Bakeries' Chairman of the Board and President D. H. O'Connell announced today. During the next 12 months area homemakers will be reading about bread enrichment in American Bakeries' Cook Book newspaper ads and billboards and school groups will be hearing Cook Book speakers discuss the nutritional aspects of enriched bread.
"Since the baking industry has decided to publicize the sadly neglected enrichment program through the display of a special industry enrichment seal in 1965," Mr. O'Connell explained, "we at American Bakeries decided to go one step further by devoting most of our 1965 advertising budget to the enrichment cause."
Although the baking industry has been engaged in a white bread enrichment program since 1941 and through this program has virtually eliminated classic vitamin deficiency diseases such as beriberi and pellagra, a recent Good Housekeeping consumer panel survey showed that 50 percent of our nation's homemakers either don't know or don't believe that "enriched" bread contributes important nutrition to the diet. In the past year years since the inauguration of the program at the National Nutrition Conference, a whole new generation of housewives and youngsters have been buying and eating white bread without being aware that it is enriched with thiamine, niacin, riboflavin and iron for better nutrition.
Until the present time the baking industry has never attempted an all-out promotion to make the general public more aware of their white bread enrichment program. Although many bakers across the nation will be displaying the enrichment seal on promotion materials, American Bakeries Company is the first major commercial baker to announce a large-scale campaign devoted entirely to the enrichment cause.
Beginning Jan. 1 and continuing throughout the twelve months of 1965, 158 daily newspapers will carry American Bakeries' enrichment advertising and 315 cities will feature enrichment messages on 3,371 outdoor posters. Cities will be ones where American's Tastee, Meeta or Cook Book white bread is distributed. Advertising will feature a captivating youngster who has become healthy because he eats a well-balanced diet including enriched bread.

Beck Gets Pardon on State Parole Term

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — Gov. Albert D. Rosellini Sunday issued a pardon striking the 2½ year state parole term of former Teamsters Union President Dave Beck.

Test Shows Her Friends Are Smart

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Barbara Davis, a 17-year-old senior at Wooster High School, returned to school today with a little more respect for her classmates.
Barbara said Sunday that she gave a 21-question test to 51 persons, including four teachers and three college students designed to prove that most adults could not pass a basic high school civics examination. Only five of the 51 received a passing grade of 70 or more. The scores ranged from 33 to 88. A typical question was "name three constitutional requirements for being president." Some answers: "must be a millionaire," "must be male," "white only," "married."
