LONDON (UPI) — Winston Churchill assured himself a place in history both as a man of action and a man of words. Rarely since Shakespeare had such fire been struck from the English language as in Churchill's many speeches. He mobilized the language as well as the people during the war. It was with words that he injected iron into the spirit of the British people when he came prime minister in Britain's darkest hour—1940.

In that supreme emergency we shall not hesitate to take every step, even the most drastic, to call forth from our people the last ounce and the last inch of effort of which they are capable."

Summary Given Of President's Fiscal Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Highlights of President Johnson's new fiscal 1966 budget: Taxes—He wants to cut federal excise taxes by $1.7 billion. Congress will get detailed recommendations later. Despite new tax relief, federal revenues expected to rise $3.2 billion to $94.4 billion as a result of economic growth. Social Security taxes would be raised to finance hospital care for elderly and increased pensions. Spending—$99.7 billion, up $2.2 billion over this year. Major increases for education, health, housing, aid to needy and war on poverty. This would be partly offset by careful pruning of defense, veterans and farm outlays and other economies. Deficit—$5.3 billion in the red compared to $6.3 billion during current fiscal year. This, Johnson said, marks "continued progress toward a balanced budget."

U.S. Economy — Booming, thanks to $11 billion cut in income taxes voted last year. Slightly reduced growth rate will boost total national output of goods and services to record, $660 billion in coming year. Even so, "our economy is still producing at a level well below its potential," 4 million people are unemployed and 35 million continue to live in poverty.

War on Waste — Government agencies saved $3.5 billion last year through greater efficiency, elimination of unnecessary expenses. "Next year will be still better." The American people "are as opposed to waste as I am" and "we can and will eliminate it."

Defense—Will cost $51.6 billion down $600 million from this year but still more than half the total spending. Decrease in spending attributed to "vigorous cost reduction program" including closing down of 95 unneeded bases. U.S. armed forces will continue to be second to none in power and adequate to cope with any challenge.

Space—Outlay of $5.1 billion will maintain momentum of man-on-the-moon program and other space projects, including a start on "Voyager" craft designed to find out if there's life on Mars. Space spending up $200 million from current year—smallest increase in seven years.

War on Poverty—Will move into high gear, with office of economic opportunity spending $1.3 billion in fiscal 1966 compared to $347 million this year. Funds will provide for 300 community action projects, enrollment of 600,000 persons in job corps, neighborhood youth corps, other anti-poverty programs.

Health—Spending by national institutes of health on medical research would rise by $114 million to about $1 billion. Will seek federal subsidies for medical and dental education, regional medical centers, stepped-up attack on air and water pollution. Education — Federal investment would rise from $1.5 billion to $2.7 billion a year — an increase of 75 per cent, due mainly to Johnson's new program. (See SUMMARY, Page 3)

Congress Sent Record $99.7 Billion '66 Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson today sent Congress a record $99.7 billion budget heavily emphasizing welfare programs essential to his "Great Society" and providing for small new military spending cutbacks. Although Johnson barely managed to stay under the $100 billion mark, his requests for burgeoning domestic programs in the fields of health, education and housing indicated that fiscal 1966 will be the last year federal spending can be held under that level.

In fact, by another method of calculating, the federal government will pay out a whopping $127.4 billion during the 12 months starting July 1 in either case it was the biggest budget in history — war or peace — and called for more red-ink spending. Foundation For Society Johnson called it neither extravagant nor miserly. He said it was the foundation for a "Great Society" which must be "bold... compassionate... efficient." "It is aimed," he said, "at improving the quality of our way of life. And it is aimed at insuring that all Americans share in this way of life."

Topping Johnson's proposals was a $1.7 billion slash in excise taxes to help guard against any drastic slowdown in the four-year-old economic spurt. He said this — coupled with the second installment of last year's big income tax cut — should point the nation toward further new highs in employment, income and profits. But he warned that there cannot be complacency while nearly four million people are unemployed, plants and machines stand idle and "an estimated 35 million people continue to live in poverty." "We cannot substitute last year's achievements for next year's goals," the President said. "Nor can we meet next year's challenge with last year's budget."

Areas Of Increase He requested major budget increases for education, health, housing, aid to the needy and the war on poverty. He also renewed his plea for hospital care for the elderly — now sure to pass Congress in some form — and proposed a 7 per cent hike in Social Security benefits. Offsetting this, Johnson proposed a "careful pruning" of outlays for defense, veterans and farmers. The rate of increase in spending for space exploration also would be slowed down for the first time since 1959 although Johnson set reaching the moon this decade as a national goal.

The Chief Executive approached the budget in two ways — the familiar administrative budget under which spending would be $99.7 billion and the "cash budget" first emphasized by John F. Kennedy which includes such trust funds collections and outlays as Social Security and highways.

Queen to Attend Last Rites

LONDON (UPI) — The nation's Sir Winston Churchill saved in its most desperate hour began trying to pay back its debt to him today. The protocol and precedents of centuries are being swept aside to make sure that Britain pay its last full measure of devotion to the 90-year-old man who died Sunday.

Queen Elizabeth commanded a state funeral and Parliament ratified her decree this afternoon. And then, in an unprecedented move, it was announced the queen and members of the royal family would attend the funeral in St. Paul's Cathedral on Saturday.

Royalty rarely attends funerals except those of other royals. Flags on all Pampa schools and city, state and county public buildings were flying at half-staff today for Winston Churchill.

Officials said the flags will be at half-mast through Saturday in reverence for the British statesman.

ty. And Churchill, despite the fact that he was a knight of the realm, was a confidant. Doubtless he could have had any degree in the British peerage he desired, but accepted the knighthood because that enabled him to remain in the House of Commons. The queen's presence will be an honor that not even was accorded to the Duke of Wellington, conqueror of Napoleon. Queen Victoria ordered a state funeral but did not attend it.

The world joined the queen in paying tribute. Every hour throughout Sunday a postal truck halted in front of No. 28 Hyde Park Gate and left a bag. By 5 p.m. more than 400 cables and telegrams had been delivered, and then the delivery ceased to make sure that members of the Churchill family would not be disturbed throughout the evening. This morning the postal authorities again started moving the enormous backlog of condolences which grew by the hour.

One message Sunday was from Queen Elizabeth to Lady Churchill: "The news of Sir Winston Churchill's death causes inexpressible grief to me and my husband. We send our warmest sympathy to you and your family. The whole world is the poorer by the loss of his many-sided genius, while the survival of this country and the sister nations of the Commonwealth in the face of the greatest danger that has ever threatened them will be a perpetual memorial to his leadership, his vision and his indomitable courage." "People did not wait for official action to express their sorrow. The little town of Westerham, where the Churchills have a country home, announced it would erect a statue and set up an educational trust fund. BATTLE ENDS — The famous 'V' for victory sign will be given no more by Sir Winston Churchill. The great leader died early Sunday morning after a nine-day battle with death. The Londoner will be given a State Funeral Saturday.

Colorado Authorities Arrest Bank Swindler

Authorities in Denver, Colo. notified officials of Citizens Bank and Trust Co., today that Corrine F. Buckner, 54, accused of swindling the bank out of more than $4,500 last May was captured Friday.

It's unlikely that she will be brought to Pampa for prosecution since she is wanted by authorities in more than 20 other states for the same offense. The Federal Bureau of Investigation said the woman swindled some banks out of $10,000 to $15,000 at one time.

Sheriff Rule Jordan said the woman deposited $150 in the Citizens Bank on or about May 1. She later returned and placed a certified check in the amount

Saigon Mobs Demand Recall Of U.S. Ambassador Taylor

SAIGON (UPI)—Anti-government mobs paraded through four provincial cities today demanding the recall of U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor. At the same time they proclaimed their gratitude to the United States. There was no immediate report of violence. The paraders, encouraged by Buddhist foes of the government, carried banners bearing such slogans as "Kick Taylor Out!" and "Down With Taylor!" Other banners, however, said the South Vietnamese people are grateful for U.S. aid against the Communists. The demonstrations were reported in Hue, where rioters wrecked the U.S. Information Service library Saturday; in Da Nang, Quang Tri and Hoi An. Eyewitness reports from Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, said 150 Buddhist monks paraded with the demonstrators in a mass of humanity lined up eight abreast that took 55 minutes to pass a given point.

CLEAN UP — Santa Fe railroad workers crews began clean up operations today at the site of a train derailment that happened Friday afternoon a mile and one-quarter east of the Santa Fe depot. Damage to the 23 cars of the 115 car train that derailed, torn up track and pot ash being carried on the train was estimated at $150,000.

RAILWAY CREWS AT WORK

Clean Up Starts at Site of Derailment

Santa Fe railroad work crews began clean up operations today at the site of a train derailment that scattered wreckage for more than a quarter of a mile. The derailment, that scattered 23 cars of a 115 car freight train, occurred Friday afternoon a mile and one-quarter east of the Santa Fe depot.

Damage to the cars themselves was estimated at $100,000 and a Santa Fe official said Monday morning that "a rough guess" would put total damages at $150,000 or more. A long section of track was torn up and pot ash, being carried in the freight cars was scattered over the area. A make-shift grain elevator arm was clearing the area of the pot ash this morning. Caterpillars, which trucks and a wrecker crane was being used to clear away the freight cars. The Santa Fe officials said that what cars couldn't be saved would be sold to salvage. A hot box, or journal on the heels of the cars broke, causing the derailment, officials said. A shoo-fly was built around the wreckage to allow other trains to pass. Train traffic was tied up a short time Friday afternoon while the shoo-fly was being built. The work crews started laying new track today but officials said it would be the latter part of the week before the work would be completed. M. B. Carey, Pampa Santa Fe official, said that all of the cars derailed were at the rear of the train. Carey said that the biggest problem facing the work crews would be the laying of the new switch track. There was a crew of three on the train, two in the engine and one man in the train's caboose. None was injured.

New Jewelry Challenges Old Taboos

FASHION NEWS — Big jewelry makes fashion news for spring, and both short and tall girls can wear it. Looking left to right, the long earring can now be worn even by petite girls as long as they choose a modified design. Tall girls can really go all out with the shoulder-brushing earrings and can add a glamorous pin to the back of a party gown. When it comes to necklaces, the

NEW YORK (NEA) — Designers broke the style barrier when they challenged such traditional taboos as "redheads can't wear pink; blue and green or black and brown must not be worn together." And the results of the breakthrough were dramatic and flattering to women.

Now all the old rules for choosing jewelry have been given the old heave-ho, too, according to jewelry designer Sarah Coventry.

If you're a short girl who has always yearned to wear long earrings, go ahead. Its no longer considered a fashionable faux pas. If your neck is wide and you have always envied the gals who were more the neckline type, you can be one of them now. Today's good design makes it possible for everyone to wear the kind of jewelry she likes if she selects each piece within the limits of good taste.

Your jewelry should be chosen not only for decorative reasons but also as a tool to play down your less-than-perfect features and spotlight your best qualities.

A quick look through the fashion news will show you that the small girl can be braver than ever this spring. This three strand "golden wardrobe" carries its own complement in earrings. The necklace divides into one or two strands and the danglers on the earrings are removable. The tall girl can be glamorous in assorted chains and tasseled earrings.

you are petite, avoid heavy clusters. A matinee-length necklace will add height. The woman of average size has the most latitude. She can "steal" designs from both the short and tall styles and adapt them to suit her own needs.

You don't need special accessories for each costume, advises Sarah Coventry. Necklaces are available with removable rows which may be added or removed to suit the ensemble and occasion. Earrings are designed so that they can be added to, paired, lengthened or shortened.

The removal of the old-fashioned taboos makes the wearer's role a creative one. Experiment with various combinations. You will find those most suitable for you.

Audrey Hepburn, the nation's Fair Lady, once remarked that the line of a dress or coat is incomplete without a hat. "It looks as if a shade is missing from a lamp," she commented.

Designer Sally Victor takes the thought a few steps further. "When a woman begins to think of a hat as a piece of jewelry — something that completes her total look — she will never be without one," she said. "And by the time she gets into the fur hat class, she'll think of a hat as a halo."

And well she should. For a hat is the most flattering, feminine bit of frillery a woman can wear.

"Women had to be re-educated on the subject," Mrs. Victor said. "Hats were World War II casualties. So many women were working in defense plants, even on weekends, they had to wear slacks. And hats just were not intended to be worn with slacks. So they were worn less and less."

"Then the bouffant hairdo came along. By that time there were girls in their teens who had never worn a hat in their lives and certainly weren't about to crush their five-dollar birds' nests with a chapeau, however pretty."

"But in the last year or so, hats have come back as the high point of a chic woman's costume. They are the icing on the cake and even the young girls are finding them irresistible today."

"Kids are quick to get the fashion message. They know that the refined, pretty (not prissy) look is the only one that is acceptable now and to achieve it a hat is a must."

The hats Sally Victor designs are the epitome of this soft mood. Last year she brought back the Panama hat. With the aid of our State Department she was able to order the special straw from Ecuador to make these hats. Her Panamas were so successful that other designers followed the trend. And now not

Dear Abby... Christmas Gift Is Powerfully Suspicious

DEAR ABBY: A good friend of mine came to me with a problem, and not knowing how to advise her, I am writing to you. Her gentleman friend gave her a fur jacket for Christmas. It smelled awful and one of the hooks was missing. The lining looked frayed around the collar, and worse yet, it was several sizes too large for her. She asked him where he got it so she could exchange it for one her size, but he wouldn't tell her. He keeps asking her when she is going to wear it. She thinks the world of this fellow and hates to hurt his feelings, but she says she just couldn't wear that jacket anywhere. What should she do?

A FRIEND tells him that she appreciates his thoughtfulness, but she isn't able to wear the jacket because it is much too large for her. And if she really "thinks the world of him," she might confide that if he paid for a jacket, he got skunked.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mediocre piano player who fancies himself as an accomplished musician and, while a guest in someone's home, would strike a few chords and exclaim (in a voice fortissimo), "Oh, for heaven's sake, when was this piano tuned last?"

A FRIEND says he had a good ear and had manners. P.S. Someone should tell the host (in a voice plaintive) to get the piano tuned.

DEAR ABBY: I am an ex-service woman. After World War II I took my discharge in the Philippines and accepted a only are the hats fashion favorites, but due to her inspiration employment has been made possible for over 40,000 people in this small South American country.

"Do you know why they are called Panamas?" Sally asked me. "The straw comes from Ecuador, not Panama," she explained. "But during the California gold rush the Isthmus of Panama was heavily traveled as the bridge that linked the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. The travelers found the natives of Panama selling these hats. They bought them in droves for lightweight protection against the burning sun and because they were bought in Panama, they got its name."

Well, Mrs. Victor's Panamas for spring are a far cry from the native hats of the gold rush era. The straw has been dyed tropical colors — vivid pinks, brilliant blues, greens and orange. On some there are embroidered figures in sunny colors, and they are all as fresh as a summer day.

"Hats had to come back because they are part and parcel of femininity," said the designer, looking chic and feminine herself at New York's "21 Club," wearing a small mink hat.

"When a husband complains about the money his wife has spent on a hat, nine times out of 10 it's because he doesn't like the hat she chose. I've discovered that a man doesn't mind paying for any item of clothing that makes his wife look pretty."

I asked her if she would have many big hats in her spring collection. "Oh, yes," said our sage designer. "Men love them."

DEAR POLLY — Use an office clipboard when scaling small fish. The clip holds the tail firmly as you scale, clean and fillet.

DEAR POLLY — To provide extra storage space, I make pyramid-like bins from either one-, two- or three-pound coffee or shortening cans. I pyramid them (on their sides with all open ends facing the same way) with four cans on the bottom, then three, then two and finally one on top. I hold them together with heavy brown paper tape. Two strips, one at the back and one at the front, are sufficient. I then sew a pretty strip of material around the entire pyramid or use adhesive-backed paper.

The three-pound cans are excellent to put on a bedroom closet shelf to hold men's sweaters, or ladies' bouffant slips, roll them loosely and place one in each bin. I use two-pound tins for children's or lady's sweaters, bedroom slippers, clutch purses, pajamas just to mention a few things.

In the kitchen, two-pound cans are just right for appliance cords, bags of beans or rice, small tools, a flashlight and so on. In the cellar, I use for the pyramid plastic bleach bottles with the tops trimmed off as they do not rust. In these I put cleaning rags, brushes, candles and matches (in a plastic bag), extra fuses and light bulbs.

Pampan Captured After Car Theft

State Police in New Mexico were credited with the capture late Sunday night of a 23-year-old Pampa man accused of stealing a car from the parking lot of the Central Baptist Church.
Police said charges were expected to be filed late today. Chief Jim Conner said there is the possibility the FBI may file charges under the Dyer act, taking a stolen car across state lines.
The vehicle, a 1964 model Pontiac, was taken from the church parking lot between 7 and 9 p.m. Sunday. It was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ratliff, 1915 Evergreen.
New Mexico State Police arrested the driver between 11 and 12 p.m. near San Jon on Highway 66.
Police said the car was not damaged and was left unlocked with the keys in the ignition at the time of the theft.

Crampton Cops Loot in Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — A lesson from Jack Nicklaus, plus the "American plan" of big cash pay-offs for golf victories, put Bruce Crampton of Australia on the road to financial security today.

Crampton captured the $64,500 Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur golf tournament Sunday with a 72-hole score of 284 — three strokes under par.

For the effort, he picked up a check for $7,500 in the pro division and he had the low score of the day, a 66, which was good for another $1,000. And in the pro-amateur sector, where he finished in a tie for 14th place, he added $800, which should help take care of some of the income taxes on the larger checks.

Today he headed for San Francisco and the Lucky International, where he could win another $8,000 or so if his game remains as sound as it was here. In 1964 he collected only $19,366 for the whole campaign.

Crampton, 28, came from three shots off the pace Sunday to win going away by three, with defending champion Tony Lama finishing in second place with a 287, good for $4,000. Bill Casper and Nicklaus tied for third with 288 and collected $3,100 each.

"I hadn't been playing well for 18 months," Crampton explained. "Then Nicklaus helped me on the practice tee for 45 minutes Wednesday. He straightened out my problems and I think it is wonderful that a man of his stature would take the time and trouble to help me."

Lama wasn't so sure. "It served Nicklaus right," he said. "I served Nicklaus right." He helped Bruce Devlin of Australia with his game, too, and Bruce immediately became a winner. Nicklaus' teaching is costing us both money.

Crampton, known as the "Iron man" of golf because two years ago he played in 38 straight tournaments, and completed in 35 out of 34 last year, has spent more time in the United States than he has in Australia for the past seven years.

"But I love Australia and I have no thoughts of becoming an American citizen," he said. "I just like the money over here."

He played a remarkable round Sunday. Rocky Thompson, a first-year man from Texas, had been the third round leader with a 212 score. Crampton started the day with a 215 total. In between were Harold Kneese and Bob-Kris.

But by the time six holes had been played, Crampton was running away from the field. He knocked in four birdie putts and made the turn in 32 against a par of 36. He ran into some trouble on the back nine with bogies on the 13th and 14th holes.

Then, in championship style, he came ripping back by getting a three-foot birdie putt down on the 18th, and canning a sea-goer from 45 feet on the 19th.

That wrapped up the whole bundle of cash because by then he was four shots ahead of the field. He bogied the 17th, a tough par-three. But he played the treacherous 18th for a solid par and there was no chance for Lama, Nicklaus, Casper or anyone else to catch up.

terested in fighting cancer for nothing than Cassius Clay for a million bucks, turned his back on a proposed title bout Sunday and said he'll also turn in his football suit in two more years.

"There comes a point where you have to quit and I've made up my mind to do it after two more seasons," declared the spectacular 28-year-old fullback for the National Football League champion Cleveland Browns.

Gets Hickok Belt
 Always a tough man to bring down, Brown kept both feet solidly on the ground even after he was presented with the $10,000 Hickok diamond-studded belt, which annually is awarded to the "professional athlete of the year."

The Clay-Brown bout for the world heavyweight championship was broached by Syracuse promoter Norm Rothchild. He did it half seriously and half-kiddingly, and there were surprisingly few snickers even though Brown never has fought professionally.

"Clay talks about drawing three million dollars for this next fight," said Rothchild. "I guarantee a title fight between Jimmy here and Clay would draw more. It would be a natural even though Brown has never fought pro. And I think he'd have a better-than-even chance."

Merely Laughed
 Brown listening nearby, merely laughed. "Wouldn't interest me at all," he replied, when questioned about it.

The idea of Brown being in the ring isn't a new one with Rothchild. He offered the broad-shouldered Cleveland fullback $25,000, cash on the barrel-head, to turn professional boxer during his senior year at Syracuse University and upped the bid to $150,000 a few years later.

For his part, though, Brown is far more interested in his present with the Cancer Society as crusade chairman for the state of Ohio.

"The work gives me tremendous satisfaction," he said. "I plan to continue in it."

Brown, who has made one movie already, also has a three-picture deal with Paramount Studios but he doesn't feel that will be his future work.

GUN BOW CUT
AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (UPI) — Gun Bow was cut from a 3-1 to a 2-1 favorite Sunday for the Santa Anita handicap to be run Feb. 27. Candy Spots and Hill Rise remained co-second choices at 6-1, according to the Agua Caliente Futuro Book.

UCLA vs. Iowa Cage Headliner

By GARY KALE
 UPI Sports Writer
 UCLA goes into its final pre-conference tests this week before settling down to the task of putting across another slam in college basketball.

The Bruins won the NCAA title last season and were named national champions on the strength of a perfect campaign. The winning streak was broken by Illinois in the very first game this season, but the Uclans regenerated the power and swept through their next 13 opponents to regain their No. 1 national ranking.

UCLA takes on Iowa this Friday and faces the Ramblers of Loyola (Ill.) Saturday night. Then it's back to conference opposition exclusively as Coach John Wooden's crew closes out the season with 10 AAUW games.

The No. 2 Michigan Wolverines, co-titlists with Ohio State in the Big Ten last season, ended their mid-term hiatus Saturday night with a 103-84 victory over Purdue and face Michigan State Tuesday before clashing with Purdue again on Saturday.

Wichita, ranked third, may soften Loyola for UCLA when the Shokers play the Ramblers Friday night. On Saturday, it's Missouri Valley Conference foe Louisville.

Games On Tap
 The remaining schedule involving the top 10 ranked teams this week finds St. Joseph's (Pa.), rated fourth, playing Centenary and Xavier (Ohio); San Francisco (No. 6) competing against Arizona and Arizona State; Providence (No. 7) meeting Rhode Island and St. Bonaventure; Davidson (No. 8) against East Carolina and Wake Forest; and St. John's (No. 9) against Marquette.

Indiana and Duke, ranked fifth and 10th, respectively, still are vacationing from hardwood exercises.

Michigan clung to its conference lead as all five Wolverine starters hit in double figures. The Wolverines made it 3-0 in league play as Oliver Darden led the attack with 27 points.

St. Joseph's, Providence and St. John's were the only other members of the elite to see action Saturday.

The Hawks raised their record to 15-1 with a well-balanced attack led by Tom Duff with 22 points. Billy Oakes scored 20 points for the Royals in the game, with Oscar Robertson and Jack Twyman each scoring 24.

The Warrior's Nate Thurmond took game scoring honors with 31 points.

Baltimore got a 31-point performance from guard Don Ohl to pace its win over St. Louis. Elgin Baylor of Los Angeles took game-scoring honors with 30 points while Sam Jones paced Boston with 27.

Cincinnati's victory over San Francisco extended the Warrior's losing streak to 16 games. Four players went over the 20-point mark for the Royals in the game, with Oscar Robertson and Jack Twyman each scoring 24.

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Winston Churchill: Illustrious Life

Most men live their lives on a plain. A few may accomplish deeds outstanding enough to place them on the hills or mountains among their fellows. Still fewer — a mere handful a century — reach Everest heights during their time on earth. Such a one was Sir Winston Leonard Spencer Churchill, whose death at 90 brings to a close one of the longest, richest and most significant lives ever lived by any man.

Churchill's adult life spanned all the way from the battle of Karoum, which he witnessed (and which to us today seems like something out of a medieval history), to the launching of a space probe to Mars.

A soldier and correspondent in his early manhood, Churchill by birth and talent was destined to find his career in government. Yet it was not until 1910, at a time when most men would be thinking of retirement, that his greatest days began.

It was Hitler's boast that he was Germany and Germany was Hitler, but truly, in those dark days of the battle of Britain, Winston Churchill was Britain — to the world and to his own people.

It was "Winnie" — with his always present cigar in one hand, the other making the "V" sign of victory — scrambling over the rubble of what was once a London building, or following behind troops training in the field or inspecting the landing beaches in Normandy, or — at last — inspecting Hitler's death bunker in Berlin.

Churchill in his long life knew most every measure of success and fame which any man could reasonably hope for — as well as the ignominy of military blunders and political exile that would have broken a lesser man.

He received as many honors as any man could reasonably expect from a grateful and admiring world. But if the list of his titles and honors is long, the list of his accomplishments is longer.

Satesman, painter, Nobel prize-winning historian, he enriched our lives and language with his memorable speeches. To find his equal in the ability to stir men's souls with words, one must go back at least as far as Lincoln, perhaps to Pericles of Athens 2,300 years ago.

And if men walk this earth 23 centuries hence, and still praise greatness, they will know the name of Winston Churchill.

Highway Robbery
The powerful highway lobby is at work again. This time the target is a part of your American heritage and it makes a mockery of the 90 per cent public financing of interstate highways.

Several years ago the lobbyists argued successfully for construction of the Theodore Roosevelt Bridge to connect Route 66 to Washington, D. C. Across from the Lincoln Memorial one half mile of Federal park land on the Virginia side of the Potomac was denuded of trees and covered with a concrete spaghetti of connecting ramps and approaches. The result is a cement octopus in the middle of "our" River which will be viewed with horror by every American who makes a Washington pilgrimage for generations to come.

Traffic on this new bridge is still very light. Downstream the 14th Street Bridge stands unused as traffic flows over another new bridge beside the old. A newly opened highway around the Greater National Capital area has diverted 90 per cent of previous through traffic around Washington.

Nevertheless, once more the builders of bridges and the sellers of cement are determined to slash across the beautiful Potomac. Now proposed is an inter-state truck route which would obliterate the lushly wooded Potomac Palisades on the Virginia side spread diagonally across one-quarter mile of Potomac and disgorge trucks upstream from historic Georgetown, two miles and a city away from their terminal destination. Ironically, only months before his assassination President Kennedy blocked a similar proposal in almost the identical location on the ground it was unneeded and a desecration of the national park lands.

Supporters of the bridge say it will be needed by the year 2,000! Eat some say by the year 2,000 transportation methods we cannot now conceive may make additional bridges unnecessary and certainly a rapid transit system is inevitable in the Nation's Capital where already air pollution is second only to Los Angeles.

Some go so far as to say that "free" Federal money (your money) costs every taxpayer, including you and me, and that highway funds can better be used in areas where the interstate program is falling far behind than for unnecessary additional construction in Washington.

As a matter of fact, some even think it is time for us to call a halt to the highway lobbyists before they suggest we run the Potomac underground a mile and a half over the river bed in the name of transportation necessity. A good many of your fellow Americans are writing to Secretary of the Interior Udall, Washington, D. C. to tell him they want no more desecration of the Potomac Palisades park and by an unneeded bridge across "our" Potomac River.

Unless you are a cement maker, you may want to write a letter, too.

Basic Needs
Congress will decide which of the programs laid down in the President's State of the Union Message will be adopted, which will be rejected, which will be modified and changed. But one thing is obvious — the costs, at best, will be enormous. And it must be repeated over and over again that such costs can be borne without the risk of massive inflation only if two things are done.

First, waste and duplication of effort within the government must be curbed. Efficiency and economy is absolutely essential.

Second, a "climate" must be steadfastly maintained that will encourage business investment and expansion to the maximum degree. This is the way to create the millions of new jobs the nation will require. And it is the way to increase government's tax income and to minimize inflation breeding deficits.

Now and in the future these will be basic needs and will be constantly more inescapable.

Never Let Go Boys
Chalk one up for the persistence of boys in the old battle of man versus advertising.

A new kind of "canned commercial" has just been patented, reports Science Service. It is a method for putting an inside label in a container. When the buyer tears away the outside wrapper to open the package, an inner foil liner with yet another selling message appears.

Maybe this is what is meant by the double whammy.

James — Why is your car painted blue on one side, and red on the other?

John — It's a great scheme. You should hear the witnesses contradicting each other.

President Predicting Smooth Passage of Program — Except for Trouble on Immigration and 14 (b) Repeal

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — It could be due to the heady hoopla of the biggest and most costly inauguration in history, but President Johnson is pinning a good picture of the prospects of his wide-ranging "great society" legislative program.

Exuberantly and confidently, he is telling the army of Democratic governors, mayors, national committeemen and assorted other party leaders who swarmed into the capital that smooth sailing is definitely ahead for his numerous multi-billion dollar proposals — with two exceptions.

The doubtfuls are his immigration bill, extensively revising the decades-old national quota system, and the measure to repeal Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Harley Act empowering the states to enact right-to-work laws.

The President is admitting these two proposals face powerful opposition and their fate is extremely uncertain. But regarding his other "great society" projects, he is cockily bullish that Congress will vote them without undue delay. The "sure thing" list he reels off consists of the following:

- Multi-billion dollar medicare plan under Social Security.
- $1 billion Appalachia aid.
- $1 billion accelerated public works.
- $1.2 billion educational aid for impoverished areas.
- $3.38 billion foreign economic and military aid.
- Water pollution control.
- Establishment of a Department of Housing.

Not only is the President voicing rosy assurance that all these measures will be approved, but he is firmly attributing similar optimism to the Democratic leaders of the Senate and House. He is crediting them as being just as certain of that as he is.

HOW THEY'LL DO IT—One reason for this airy positiveness is a backstage plan to "pack" two key House subcommittees which will handle several of the most controversial measures — foreign aid and immigration.

On the former the President is getting the potent help of a fellow Texan, Representative George Mahon, head of the influential Appropriations Committee.

Mahon is seeing to it that two Democrats favorable to the President's multi-billion dollar foreign aid budget are added to the Appropriations subcommittee in charge of this legislation. These two extra votes will provide the margin to block Representative Otto Passman, D-La., chairman, from drastically slashing foreign aid as he has done for years.

With this hurdle overcome, the President and Mahon figure they will have relatively easy sailing the rest of the way in the House — they hope!

But the story is far less promising on the controversial immigration bill.

Like Mahon, Representative Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, is set to "pack" the Subcommittee on Immigration, headed by Representative Michael Feighan, D-O.

Feighan, no rubber stamp, is not against modifying the national quota system. But he is vigorously insisting on adequate safeguards to bar the entry of subversives, criminals and tens of thousands of unscrupulous refugees now living in Algeria and behind the Iron Curtain.

Also strongly challenged by Feighan is the shifting of authority over immigration policy from Congress to the Executive branch. The Ohioans view this as an unacceptable change.

The behind-the-scenes tug-of-war between Feighan, Celler and the administration is heated and stormy. Its outcome is a loss-up. Feighan, a tough scraper, has important allies in and out of Congress. He also has some explosive ammunition ready to use if he has to.

Foremost is the Justice Department's failure to assist Feighan's subcommittee to investigate a $200 million "traffic in human lives" operated by the Communist regime in Rumania.

Sworn testimony before Feighan's committee revealed that Henry Jakober, a Hungarian with Rumanian citizenship, functioning from a swank apartment on Park Lane in London, is directing an international "shakedown" ring that is extorting tens of millions of dollars from Rumanians seeking exit visas.

Between 70,000 and 100,000 refugees so far have bought their freedom through this racket.

The millions netted from this traffic are being used by the Rumanian Red regime to buy plants, machinery, equipment and other capital goods from Western countries — latest, among them the U.S., with the active approval and assistance of the State Department.

When Feighan asked Acting Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach to crack down on this sordid traffic in human lives, the latter replied that the government had no legal authority to stop it.

"A review of the available facts and of the statutes which may be relevant," wrote Katzenbach, "does not disclose any violation of the laws of the U.S."

In these circumstances, therefore, I do not see how the Department of Justice can appropriately undertake the investigation you request."

With 22 states having right-to-work laws, the opponents of the President's bill to repeal Section 14 (b) have a hard core of some 40 per cent against it in Congress. This is deemed a hefty roadblock to the President's measure.

In addition, Representative Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., head of the House Labor Committee, has served notice on AFL-CIO leaders that he will stall the proposal until segregation.

JARRING NEWS—President Johnson has an unpublished poll showing Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman as the least popular member of the Cabinet.

Made by Louis Harris, who has conducted numerous polls for the President, this survey credits only 19 per cent as favoring Freeman's policies.

Senate members of the Joint Committee on Defense Production are checking on leaks of inside information reputedly by a staff employe. This has happened before and the senators are aroused over it. The staff man's background is under scrutiny on the basis of reports that he was once employed by a now-deposed Latin American dictator.

This Joint Committee, established during the Korean war, has held no hearings for years, and its only apparent output is an annual report that no one pays any attention to. Yet it has a sizable staff drawing high salaries.

The U.S. as World Banker

During the past two decades the U.S. has become, partly by design and partly as the unintended result of circumstances, a banker to the rest of the world. Although the term is used figuratively, there is a close analogy between our financial relationship with other nations and the relationship between a bank and its depositors.

First, business firms around the world keep a substantial part of their working cash balances in the form of dollars—either deposits in American banks or short-term claims against other American financial institutions or the U.S. Treasury. Second, foreign nations keep a portion of their official reserves in dollars, alongside the reserves they hold in gold. It is on these reserves that they depend to maintain the convertibility of their own currencies.

Advantages
Our position as world banker confers certain advantages on this country. Just as a bank operates with the funds made available to it by its depositors, so we are enabled to use the resources made available to us by those who are willing to provide us with a service of international services to the rest of the world. One of the services we provide is the protection of our foreign "depositors" through holding a reserve in the form of an unproductive hoard of gold.

The analogy with ordinary domestic banking lies in the fact that a commercial bank must keep a part of its assets immobile in its official reserve.

There is nothing wrong with being a world banker. The other nations find it to their advantage to have us act in that capacity for them. In turn, we derive an income from our activity—just as an ordinary bank earns a profit in return for the services it performs for the community.

Responsibilities, Too
But being a banker entails certain responsibilities—the chief of which is the duty of always being in a position to meet claims when they are presented.

Of course, no bank has cash in its vaults to pay its depositors if they all appeared at once to withdraw their balances. But it must conduct its affairs in such a way as to inspire the confidence which prevents its depositors from behaving in that way.

The short-term dollar claims held abroad now exceed, by a considerable margin, the gold stock of this country. This is not in itself alarming. The source of concern lies in the fact that foreign claims are growing while our gold stock is shrinking.

If foreign nations began to suspect that these trends would continue indefinitely, they might start the "run on the bank" which would destroy the whole international financial fabric.

The restriction which this puts on our domestic monetary practices is on the whole salutary. It serves, in a way, as a substitute for the discipline imposed prior to 1934 by the fact that our own citizens could convert their dollars into gold. Let us hope that, in seeking solutions to the balance-of-payments problem, we respond to this discipline instead of evading it.

Now, UPI correspondent Henry Shapiro reports from Moscow that the Khrushchev is moving comfortably at a government country house called Usovka, some 25 miles from Moscow.

He is still furious over his downfall, but apparently he has no hope of a comeback. The Communist control over all channels of publicity being absolute, Khrushchev can get only such personal publicity as the Kremlin allows him, and his chances of building up a well-publicized agitation for his restoration to power are nil.

When you reflect on this man's utter and thankless rejection after devoting a lifetime to Communism, you wonder whether any sane person ever becomes a Communist, and, if so, why.

Cannel At Bay

By Ward Cannel

It's Back to the Basics, Brother

NEW YORK (NEA) — Actually, we were not even going to mention Charlotte Moorman or her cello recital.

In the first place, we do not really know how the Bach sonatas should be played, and so could not tell whether Miss Moorman was helping the effect by stopping from time to time to take off her clothes.

Moreover, the piece did not sound appreciably different when she finally got down to bra and panties and lay on the floor with the cello on top of her.

And besides, we feel it is way or another on new art forms. To our way of thinking, an eternity of oblivion is far more alluring than the prospect of spending your posterity as an asterisk in a history of the civilization.

The folly of judging art in its own time can be seen best in the stupid remark made by Ward Cannel, a journalist of that day, who said:

So, as we said, it was hardly our intention to refer to Miss Moorman's recital. Nor, for that matter, to any of the other aesthetic experiences presented that evening at the New School For Social Research.

But as we were leaving the auditorium, we came upon an item that seemed to us worthy of mention, even at the asterisk of all eternity.

It was a sort of temporary split-level dog house made out of two pine packing cases pushed together face to face. As we passed by, two young fellows were beating on it with broken coat hangers in what was doubtless a regular rhythm in the infinite scheme of things.

And while we were deciding whether to wait and find out the beaters stopped beating and pulled the crates apart, revealing two women sitting inside — one reading poetry to the other.

"Thank you so much," the listener said, standing up and disappearing into the crowd before the sentence was quite finished.

The reader smiled modestly and said, "Not at all." Her name, she told us, was Carol Berge. And it was her very own poetry she had been reading aloud in the box to the coat hanger accompaniment.

"What for?" we asked, trying to make it sound intelligent.

"Communication of course," Mrs. Berge said. "Basic, one-to-one, person-to-person communication. The whole trouble today is that everybody and everything are all covered over with layer upon layer of —"

(We have forgotten the exact word she used, and have employed the dash only to capture the interest of the purist.)

"My 9-year-old son could probably give you the real diagnosis of what's wrong with people today," Mrs. Berge said.

"He could explain better than any other grownup what tonight's happenings in this auditorium are really about. You can learn a lot from kids. They haven't been all covered over yet."

Well, that may be. We have probably learned a great deal from kids, although it is a little hard to remember just what, since our childhood was so long ago. But it seems to us that if we had known then what we know now, things might have been a lot better all around.

And as for Miss Moorman under her cello and Mrs. Berge in the crate — well, we have had considerable experience with this matter of stripping off the layers and getting down to basics. Sooner or later, every young fellow who comes to New York gets to know a basic girl or two. And we have discovered that there is very little percentage in it.

Oh, it is interesting enough at first to court a basic girl. You do basic things (such as ride the ferry). You discuss basic issues (sex), read basic works ("Winnie The Pooh"), consider basic people (Simone Signoret and Samuel Gompers), listen to basic English (—).

But by and by, as we recall, it becomes almost impossible to remember which basic girl you brought to the party, and you are very likely to take the wrong one home and never even know it.

That is the whole trouble with basics. One — is identical to every — One bare lady under a cello is just about the same as any other.

The only way to tell them apart, it seems to us, is by the way they play Bach. All the im-

U.N. Weak Can Outvote U.N. Strong

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

Washington Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (NEA) — Amid the dangers which beset the United Nations, many practical diplomats are struggling quietly to reshape it into an instrument more fitting to the altered times.

One shift of consequence already is under way. Others are merely proposed or just approved, and important though they be, a few of these propositions lie nearly buried beneath tons of dry U. N. verbiage.

What the reshapers really are driving at is a kind of United Nations re-apportionment.

The central fact underlying the proposals for change is this: The engulfing numbers of new African and Asian member states have thrown the U. N. "out of phase," giving these lands a voice and a General Assembly vote (recommending only) far beyond their responsibility for executing and financing vital U. N. action.

Sturdy diplomatic friends of the agency believe that if it is not soon "reapportioned" to bring power and responsibility into close bond, the United Nations may truly become a futile debating society in the important arenas of peacekeeping and economic development.

SPECIALISTS IN U. N. AFFAIRS hopefully contend, however, that the world body already has instituted one highly significant change. The 11-member Security Council, once discredited as totally hamstringing the Soviet veto, had its busiest year in 1964 since 1948.

Last year the Security Council met 105 times, roughly once every three days. Only in the 1947-48 crisis over Palestine was it ever busier.

U. S. officials say the 1964 step-up in council activity represents a natural swing of the pendulum away from the swelling assembly and back to the agency's real-power centers — dominated as it is by the great nations.

Not since the Lebanese crisis of 1958, it should be noted, has Russia used its council veto to block a peacekeeping operation.

THE HOTTEST NEW PROPOSAL under U. N. consideration at this critical crossroads is for creation of a standing special finance committee to recommend General Assembly outlays for peacekeeping. It would act in this field only if the Security Council failed.

This finance body would include all council members and, according to one working paper, a "relatively high percentage of those member states in each geographical area that are large financial contributors to the United Nations."

The intent is clear: to get around roadblocks of the sort Russia currently is erecting in the U. N.'s path, and at the same time avoid commitments arrived at by irresponsible force of numbers in the General Assembly.

As a sort of halfway station between the assembly and the council, diplomats here think the proposition has a fair chance of approval. Russia, of course, wants council control of peace outlays.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT STANDS second to peacekeeping today as a U. N. function. In December, the U. N. made permanent — on a triennial meeting basis — the United Nations Conference to Trade and Development.

Most important, perhaps, is the fact that on its 55-member board a high proportion of the 20 countries with 80 per cent of the world's trade will have a place.

And, quietly, a special U. N. committee met for a month last fall to work up proposals for "conclitacion committees" whose task would be — upon special call — by a handful of nations — to harmonize economic plans, trade and aid policies and other matters affecting the developing countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

This is the pragmatic U. N. diplomat's answer to militant Africans and Asians whose often unrealistic economic demands and symbolic posturings can only outrage the advanced nations whose help they need.

These proposals and some lesser ones, plus the new Security Council emphasis, represent the crucial yet unheralded program of the U. N.'s determined advocates to bring it into tune with the problems and the shifting power realities of 1965.

Important differences are on the surface.

The Life of Sir Winston

WINSTON CHURCHILL
By United Press International

To the end of his life Sir Winston Churchill personified the tough English bulldog. Plane crashes, three strokes, a run-in with a New York taxicab and the pressures of leading his nation in war and peace had taken their toll. But his indomitable spirit enabled the old warrior to amaze doctors with his remarkable recoveries. Statesman, soldier, author, painter—Sir Winston was one of the great figures provided by destiny in moments of supreme world crisis.

He was the last of the trio—Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill—which guided the fate of the allies in World War II. He was a man who sprang to the leadership of Britain in her greatest hour of peril in 1940, and who led her to the victory over Germany in 1945.

A good and old friend said of Churchill on his 85th birthday that he was the greatest man in the world for 500 years. On his 86th birthday, London's national newspapers echoed that sentiment with one calling him: "The world's greatest man."

For all the last years of his life, few would deny that he was the greatest Englishman, American Citizen.

One of his dreams was an English-speaking union. He loved the United States—and his mother was American—and one of his fondest hopes was finally achieved when he was made an honorary citizen on April 9, 1963.

President Kennedy said, in making the presentation to Churchill's son, Randolph: "He is the most honored and honorable man to walk the stage of human history in the time in which we live."

But in accepting the honor, Churchill let it be known that Britain doesn't take a back seat to the United States or any other country.

"Our past is the key to our future, which I firmly trust and believe will be no less fertile and glorious. Let no man underrate our energies, our potentialities, and our abiding power for good," he said.

Churchill, who always described himself as "a child of Parliament," was persuaded by his family and medical advisers not to stand for re-election in the general election of 1964. He thus left the historic chamber in which he had figured for most of 64 years.

He was the oldest living member in years and in length of service. He was the last survivor of those who sat when Victoria was queen-empress.

Lord Kitchener tried to keep him out of the Sudan campaign but Churchill managed to get a commission from another general as well as a journalistic assignment from the Morning Post. It was 1898 and he participated in the last classic cavalry charge in British military history, when 400 men of the 21st Lancers rushed to Sudanese positions at Omdurman, and were almost cut to pieces.

Captured by Boers
On Nov. 15, 1899, an armored train in which he was touring the front was derailed by Boer commandos and Churchill was among those taken prisoner. He soon made a spectacular escape by climbing a wall and hiding on a train. Two Britons hid him in an unused mine for several days while posters were put up offering 25 points for his apprehension.

Dispatches sent to England by other correspondents recounting his adventures made him a national hero.

His war record won him a seat in the election of 1900. In March 1901, he broke with the Conservative party over the question of free trade versus protection and when he rose to speak he received the singular insult of having his entire party walk out of the chamber led by Prime Minister Arthur Balfour. Churchill crossed the floor to the Liberals. The break was said by many to have postponed his rise to premiership by 20 years.

In 1908 he married beautiful Clementine Hozer, daughter of Col. Sir H. M. Hozer and Lady Blanche Ogilvy, daughter of the seventh earl of Airlie. "I married and lived happily ever afterward," Churchill once said.

They had three daughters—Diana who married a rising conservative politician, Duncan Sandys; Sarah, an actress, and Mary who married Christopher Soames. His only son, Randolph, had a distinguished record with his father's old regiment in World War II, sat for a time in Parliament, and describes himself as a lecturer and journalist.

His supreme accomplishment was to have the navy ready to fight the day war was declared. After normal maneuvers in mid-July 1914, Churchill failed to give the sailors their usual post-maneuver holiday and ordered them to stand by. On Aug. 2, without the authority of the cabinet, he jeopardized his whole political future by ordering complete mobilization.

Forty-eight hours later Britain was plunged into war.

Churchill moved again without cabinet authority in 1915 when he ordered the construction of the first tanks—"landships" as they then were called—after he had foreseen their great value in static warfare.

However, he was badly damaged at home by the fumbling execution of the Dardanelles campaign which missed shortening the war by years because of human errors of judgment.

In February 1915 a squadron of battleships destroyed the outer defenses of the Turkish straits and the assault proper began on March 18. But unfortunately the squadron ran into a minefield and three ships were lost and three damaged. The British commanders broke off the assault at what they learned long after could have been the moment of victory because the Turks had used up almost all their ammunition.

The cabinet was re-constituted and the Tories insisted that Churchill would have to go.

It was not until 1917 that a formal report showed he had taken expert advice and was not to blame for the disaster.

Churchill's theme in Commons—the Epping district elected him invariably after 1924—was that aggression must be stopped, Britain must be prepared. He bitterly denounced the rape of Abyssinia, the war in Spain.

Fearful of Nazis
He warned year in and out that Nazi Germany was preparing for aggression and that a disarmed Britain was unprepared to meet it. But his warnings mostly went unheeded.

Of Munich he cried: "We have sustained a total and unmitigated defeat."

For a long time the country had been demanding Churchill's inclusion in the cabinet and when war was declared on Sept. 3, 1939, he was given his old post at the Admiralty. Chamberlain, whose prestige had been irreparably ruined, slid more and more into the background while the nation listened to one of the great orators of our time.

In his very first statement to Commons as prime minister on May 13, Churchill began the series of extraordinary speeches in which he was said have "mobilized the English language."

"I would say to the House," he said, "as I have said to those who have joined this government. I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

"You ask: 'What is your aim?' I can answer it in one word. It is victory. Victory at all costs, victory however long and hard the road may be, for without victory there is no survival..."

The Finest Hour
Churchill made desperate efforts to stop the rot in France, even to offering France a federal union with Britain, but the collapse had become a panic and the Germans marched into an open Paris.

Then Churchill said: "Hitler knows that he will have to break us in this island or lose the war. If we can stand up to him, all Europe may be free and the life of the world will move forward into broad, sunlit uplands..."

"Let us therefore brace ourselves and so bear ourselves that if the British commonwealth and empire last for a thousand years men will still say: 'this was their finest hour.'"

Atlantic Charter
President Roosevelt and Churchill had discussed the war by radiotelephone and in August 1941, off the coast of Newfoundland, the premier and the President rendezvoused in the battleship HMS Prince of Wales and the USS Augusta.

At this three day meeting the Atlantic Charter of Anglo-American ideals for the postwar world was drafted and the whole problem of supply of munitions for all countries actively engaged in resisting aggression was examined.

To Roosevelt, Churchill was known as "a former naval person"—his code name. He called the president "Frank."

The very qualities that made Churchill a great war leader were those which led to his defeat in the general election in 1945. Traditionally, the British public is suspicious of cleverness in its peacetime leaders.

The world, outside Britain, was astonished at the overwhelming defeat of Churchill's Conservatives by Clement Attlee's Laborites. But it was anticipated by many who knew the British reluctance to trust the reins of peacetime government to men of war. On July 26, he submitted the resignation of his cabinet to the King after 1,092 days in office as Prime Minister.

Churchill's political chance came again on Oct. 25, 1951, when the British went to the polls for the second time in 18 months. This time, a 76, Churchill achieved his lifelong ambition. He was elected prime minister in his own right.

Return to Office
Britain's precarious financial position was the problem that had to be solved swiftly and decisively. The country was "bleeding to death" through loss of its scarce gold and dollars through buying and importing more than it was exporting and selling.

Churchill now cast himself in the role of world peacemaker.

On March 4, 1946, at Fulton, Mo., Churchill had aroused liberal indignation with the famous speech including these lines:

"From Stettin on the Baltic to Trieste on the Adriatic, an iron curtain has descended across the continent."

Now, in May 1953, the man who coined the words "iron curtain" roused worldwide applause and criticism with a call for a big power meeting of the heads of state with Russia. He told a cheering House of Commons:

"At the worst, the participants in the meeting will have established more intimate contacts. At the best, we might have a generation of peace."

But the tremendous burden he had undertaken of handling both the premiership and the British Foreign Office had been too much and he needed a complete rest.

Age Taking Toll
When Churchill returned to the House of Commons, his step was a little slower and he no longer tried to conceal his deafness. Part of his hearing aid consisted of a small microphone on a stick which he waved like a short wand. But in answering the sometimes sharp questions from Laborites he was still the master of the House.

Two strokes suffered in 1953 and 1954 gravely taxed the old man's strength and forced him to quit work for a while. But despite a mounting "Churchill must go" campaign he hung on obstinately, until on April 5, 1955, heaped with public honors and the adulation of the nation, Sir Winston Churchill bowed out and handed over the premiership to Sir Anthony Eden.
