The American flag, in a real hope for individual freedom ever permitted to blossom in the world. It came into being during the dark days of the American conflict with King George III, our own monarch. It is a revolutionary piece of bunting signifying that no king or potentate of any kind or description may with impunity in-flict his will on Americans. And the important thing about the flag is that this fact be remembered.

We heard an interesting story from a father in another town a couple of weeks ago. It seems that his son had gone out to work on the drive for selling flags just ahead of Flag Day.

bored zealously for the establishment in the House of a Special Committee on Captive Nations. His resolution asking for such a committee was first introduced in March 1961 and reintroduced in the present 89th Congress as H.R. 14. His efforts and those of a scattering few colleagues in both the House and the Senate brought about the first national observance of Captive Nations Week, which was proclaimed in 1959 by Presiresolution Congress stipulated that the third week in July of each year shall be designated as Captive Nations Week and the President shall so proclaim it. It will be interesting to note President Kennedy's proclamation of Captive Nations Week this year. In last year's proclamation there was the trite mention that Congress has so requested that the President call attention to the plight of the people in the captive nations and that we should hope for their eventual liberation. He completely emitted reference to the Soviet or any of the Red regimes in the Soviet colonies that hold millions in serfdom. From the President's words it might be imagined the people were held in captivity merely because they themselves made no effort to throw off the communist yoke, or that they are quite content with their lot. In fact Mr. Kennedy's so-called "proclamation" last year was infinitely worse than if he had said precisely nothing on the subject. Because it was very apparent that he was merely voicing the sentiments of the State Department and the covey of counsellors who, apparently hold the President in captivity. Another giaring reason why there should be a thorough probe and purge of some in that sacroscant State Department. Congressman Flood's efforts to establish a special House Committee on Captive Nations has been condemned by Sec. of State Dean Rusk. That official went on record with objections that were so puerile they might even have evoked a gloating smile from Khrushchev. To establish such a committee, Rusk endeavored to explain, might very well cause in their efforts to effect more con dial, harmonious and one may say friendly relationships with the Soviet and we may assume all the puppet communist regimes of he nations now being held captive. Besides, as Rusk indicates and has been solemnly proclaim-his tiroless effort to at least establish a permanent committee which will delve into the theme of Soviet or communist-imposed slavery. It will en courage and strengthen the hand of Rep. Of course Mr. Plood made him self unpopular with the State De partment and especially the Penagon potentales over 10 years ago. As a member of the Madden Committee he assailed the offorts of the then administration and the one before, for concealing the evidence of Soviet guilt in the Katyn Forest massacre of some 15,000 Polish officers and inteller. tuels. That committee's report requested the Defense Department to consider court - martial proceedings against Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell who hid the evidence that was filed in his office.
