Canadian Dam Progress, Effects Outlined

Industry, Tourists Discussed

In his speech before the monthly membership luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce in the Coronado Inn yesterday, Britt Swain, executive vice-president and general manager of the Lake Texoma Association, stressed to the Chamber and guests that when the Canadian River Dam is complete Pampa and other towns served by the reservoir will have to double their efforts to attract industry and tourists.

"It is a mistaken belief that when a reservoir is completed industry will come running to the area. With a reservoir, Pampa is in a better position to bargain with industry, but you must have the roads, labor and transportation as well as rich recreational facilities to ensure industry can have content, settled, well-adjusted employees," he said.

Pampa will be in a much better position to keep its young people at home and will be able to attract executive ability, according to Swain.

"The tourist traveler is a sophisticated person. He demands services and facilities," Swain said. "Tourists bring new money into an area. In the Lake Texoma area, tourists trade has brought in about $60-million. If fishing and skiing facilities are in the area tourists will come, whether you want them or not," Swain commented. "To increase their trade, however, you need to have roads that will make the resort areas accessible," he said.

"The best advice I can give you is to cooperate and work with the other communities that will be around this lake," Swain said.

In a question and answer period following his address, he stressed that private enterprise desiring to provide resort facilities should not be "hampered" with restrictions that prevent them from making a fair return on the investment.

He advised that long term leases would make it easier for private enterprise to get loans, thus entering the resort business with a greater advantage.

"Our Lake Texoma experience has shown it is to advantage to let these people bid on what they will do, rather than on what they will pay off in gross business. If not, the resorts will be changing hands every other year," Swain said.

Even though Pampa is 44 miles from the Canadian Dam, it can expect a great deal of tourist trade, because it is a proven fact (See INDUSTRY, Page 3)

Rotary Slates Installation

Humorist, philosopher, Delbert Downing, of Midland, will be the featured speaker at the Pampa Rotary Club's installation banquet today at 7 p.m. in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

The incoming club president is Cameron Marsh. Retiring president R. D. Jimmy Wilkerson will serve as vice-president for 1963. The new secretary-treasurer will be Bill Atkinson.

Members of the board of directors to be installed are Loyal Davies, Art Holland, Arthur Smalley, Jimmie E. Thompson, Gordon Lyons and Lee Fraser.

Downing is a former businessman, former overseas field director for the Red Cross, former member of commerce manager and now devotes practically full time to lecturing and writing.

In recognition of his services to others, Downing has been honored with the Silver Beaver award from the Boy Scouts of America, honorary member of the state organization of Future Homemakers of America and a State Farmer. He is an honorary member of Lions, a past president and active member of Rotary and a Life Member of the Jaycees.

WORK ON SCHEDULE Pampa tourists, part of the 35-car Chamber of Commerce caravan that visited the Canadian Dam project yesterday, are shown in the picture above watching work on the dam's flood control outlet works (left arrow) and spillway, (right arrow). Phil Kenney, resident engineer, and Vern Grantham, assistant project engineer, who narrated the tour, said workers have started pouring concrete for the flood control outlet, and concrete for the spillway will start next week. ★ The picture below shows the foundation for the intake tower for the river outlet works being laid. Engineers said construction of forms and installation of reinforcing steel for the second major placement of concrete in the tower will be made in two weeks. The concrete tunnel leading off to the left, is the river outlet works tunnel, the beginning of the aqueduct system that will provide water to the 11 cities serviced by the reservoir. The dam site is located near Sanford, 44 miles west of Pampa. (Additional Photo, page 9) (Daily News Photos)

State to Seek Death for Suspected Slayer of Evers

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The state will seek the death penalty for a white segregationist charged with the sniper slaying of Negro civil rights leader Medgar Evers.

The suspect, Byron De La Beckwith, was scheduled to appear before City Judge James Spencer today at 4 p.m. EDT, in a preliminary hearing on a murder charge.

Dist. Atty. William Waller said Monday night he would ask the Hinds County grand jury when it convenes next Monday to indict Beckwith for murder.

"I will ask for the death penalty if, and when, he is indicted and tried," Waller said.

Beckwith, 42, of Greenwood, was turned over to Jackson police Monday afternoon by U.S. Commissioner John R. Countiss III on instructions from the Justice Department.

He is charged with the June 12 sniper slaying of Evers, who was state field secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Beckwith was arrested by the FBI last Saturday night at his attorney's office in Greenwood on a federal warrant. He had been held since early Sunday as a federal prisoner.

Beckwith, a salesman for a Greenwood fertilizer firm, was arrested after the FBI said a fingerprint found on a rifle believed used to kill Evers matched one of his. A telescopic sight of Japanese make which was attached to the rifle also was traced to Beckwith.

Several hours after the murder, the rifle, a World War I Enfield, was found in a honeysuckle thicket in a vacant lot across from Evers' home.

Barring some stunning political upheaval, the Democratic convention will be devoted largely to renominating Kennedy for a second term and hammering out a party platform.

Site Visitors Are Told Work Is on Schedule

At the Chamber of Commerce Membership Luncheon preceding a tour of the Canadian River Dam site yesterday, Vern Grantham, assistant project engineer, outlined the present excavation and construction progress at the dam. He said the dam is currently 41 per cent complete, in 40 per cent of the time. This means the dam project is on schedule in dollars and time spent, he explained.

Closure of the diversion channel is scheduled for late fall 1964, at which time the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority can begin storing water. Contract date for all work is June 1965.

Excavation of the river outlet works tunnel and gate chamber was completed during May. Concrete lining has been placed in the tunnel upstream of the gate chamber and placement of concrete lining in the bottom quarter section of the tunnel downstream from the gate chamber will probably begin within two weeks, Grantham said.

Construction of dam embankment is continuing, particularly ones one and two across the north part of the river from the diversion channel to the north abutment.

Zone two elevation is now about 885 feet and should be completed to elevation 2,890 feet within the next few weeks. Zone one embankment is near 2,865 and zone three embankment is nearly 855 feet high. Excavation in the river bed for the embankment foundation was completed in February.

Construction of the foundation for the 200-foot intake tower for the river outlet works is proceeding. The intake tower draws water from reservoir and starts it through the outlet works.

Construction of forms and installation of reinforcing steels for the second major placement of concrete in the intake tower is underway and the placement should be made within two weeks, Grantham said.

Excavation for structures on the north abutment is proceeding and includes an outlet channel and flood control outlet works. Grouting, a process using cement and water under high pressure, is underway to prevent water from seeping through the abutments, the canyon walls on each side of the river.

Other work underway includes construction of the 750-foot regulating reservoir northeast of Amarillo, preparation of foundation for four large surge tanks between the dam and Amarillo and erection of a large pipe fabrication plant in Amarillo. The surge tanks, or towers, will be joined with the pipeline and are designed to minimize surges of pressure on the pipe line.

JFK Pledges U.S. Will Risk Itself To Defend Allies

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — President Kennedy pledged today that the United States would risk its own cities to defend its allies.

"A threat to the freedom of Europe is a threat to the freedom of America," the President said in a speech at the historic Paulskirche (St. Paul's Church), which is regarded as the cradle of German democracy.

A million cheering Germans greeted the President as he arrived here to make the speech that was billed as the major address of his 12-day tour of West Germany, Berlin, Ireland, and Britain. Reporters who have traveled with Kennedy said it was perhaps the most enthusiastic welcome he has received abroad.

An Enthusiastic Welcome
The 20-mile route from Hanau, where the President reviewed 15,000 American servicemen, was lined three to five persons deep all the way.

The crowd in front of Frankfurt's city hall, where the President climbed out of his bubble-topped car and went inside to sign the famous "golden book" of celebrities, was so enthusiastic in its welcome that it almost got out of hand.

While he emphasized defense matters, the Chief Executive also called for economic unity and common political purpose as requisites to successful Western resistance to Communist penetration.

Council, Police Tackle Stray Animal Problem

A report compiled from police department records showed today that 4,699 dogs and cats have died in Pampa during the past three years.

City Manager Harold Schmitzer reported that the records, dating from May 1, 1960, to June 21 of this year, show that of this number 2,682 dogs and cats were destroyed by asphyxiation in the city pound.

The stray dog and cat problem again came up for discussion at today's meeting of the city commission. It wound up with Mayor H. R. Thompson urging city officials and police to get out the city's ordinance on dogs and give it thorough study with a view to establishing enforcement of its provisions.

Police Chief Jim Conner told commissioners the present police department policy was for the city to take no legal action against violators unless complaints are filed by citizens.

The report released by the city manager shows that during the 3-year period 2,013 cats and dogs were killed on the streets or died of natural causes and were picked up by police. Twenty-four hundred and seventeen dogs and 587 cats have been picked up by police during the same period. Of this number, 318 have been returned to their owners upon payment of the pound fee.

So far this year, 424 dogs and 77 cats have been picked up and 439 of them have been asphyxiated at the city pound.

Pampa has had only one rabies case in the three-year period covered by the report. That was in August of 1961 when a youth was bitten by a skunk, was given rabies shots and suffered no ill-effects.

Discussion also was entered into following today's commission meeting that the city should have an all-inclusive ordinance covering strays cats as well as dogs.

Commissioners Decide

City To Invest Funds

The City of Pampa is going to invest $174,424.36 that has been lying dormant in the Water and Sewer Revenue Bond Reserve Fund and $40,000 from the Emergency Fund.

The money can earn 3 1/2 per cent interest when invested, Schmitzer said.

The commission also agreed to give further study to a proposal for the paving of N. Hobart St. from Perryton Pkwy to W. 24th Ave.

Some discussion has arisen among commissioners regarding the method of accepting the property owners' portion of the payment for the paving project in land donation or in cash. A former commission had entered an agreement for the paving to be done in exchange for a 10-ft right-of-way easement for the original property owner. City Manager Harold Schmitzer was instructed to discuss the matter with current property owners.

The commission approved on second reading an ordinance providing for the annexation of an area of the Jarvis-Sone Addition in northwest Pampa.

The best method of handling Pampa's financing of a sanitation plant and water treatment plant and necessary water and sewer lines will be discussed with J. Carr Forrest of Forrest and Cotton, Dallas consulting engineers at next week's commission meeting. Officials of bond companies from Lubbock and Dallas also will be at the session.

City Manager Schmitzer was authorized to investigate the appointment of a third arbitrator for settling a $5,941.26 contract dispute between the city and the Brody Construction Co. of Amarillo over payment for construction of sewer lines. The city and the company each appointed an arbitrator who were to name a third neutral party. The city manager reported to the commission today that the construction company's attorney had written to District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich asking him to appoint the third

$550 Taken in Food Market Repeat Robbery

Burglars pulled a successful "repeat" at the Fite Food market last night when they made off with at least $550 in cash.

Pampa Chief of Police Jim Conner and Captain Dennis Roan, investigating the case, said the method of robbery was very similar to a still unsolved robbery of the same store last Oct. 11.

In that case, the burglar or burglars had broken into the building, used a crowbar and a cleaver taken from the meat department, to pry open two cash drawers in an office filing cabinet. The previous theft had netted the thieves some $552.24 in cash, plus some meat and cigarettes.

In last night's theft, according to owner Elmer Fite, the haul was approximately $550 cash plus some small checks, although the burglars did not stop for supplies this time.

Conner and Roan pointed out that the means of entrance, the use of the same tools, including the cleaver from the meat department both times, and especially the prying open of just the two cash drawers of the four drawer cabinet, indicated very strongly that the job was done by the same thieves who robbed the store last winter.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Our wife just said, "Do you realize we are married almost six years?" which is the kind of statement that makes a fellow take out his revenge on something innocent.

In television, something innocent is public affairs programming. To discuss it negatively is like attacking the flag. One reason for this is that, as with the current network specials about President Kennedy in Europe, it sometimes offers something that is mighty fine, which is an expression we stopped using about six years ago.

Nevertheless, a close examination of the scheduling of even some of these specials reveals some cold and hard facts for the viewer about the real position of public affairs programming in commercial television.

We can begin with a public affairs series, "Focus on America," which ABC-TV runs each summer with prestige ballyhoo, and which was supposed to start tonight with its half-hour grass-roots reports.

Well, of course the President is in Europe. And of course ABC-TV is filling in with specials left and right. And of course the rule in network television is, whenever possible, to substitute one public affairs show for another rather than knocking off too many straight entertainment programs, even if they are reruns. So "Focus on America" was bumped until next Tuesday to make way for the presidential special.

Well, then it turned out that that ABC decided to have another special about the President next Tuesday as well, so at last report, "Focus on America" is now scheduled to debut on July 9.

Over at NBC-TV, there was a similar situation. A new summer series entitled "Report From..."—with public affairs shows originating in various cities around the world—was to have bowed in July 2, which is next Tuesday. But NBC also decided on another presidential special for that day and at the same time, so "Report From..." is delayed until July 9.

I know there are some exceptions to the subbing of public affairs for public affairs, especially on CBS-TV this week. But I suggest one of the main reasons for these exceptions is that there aren't many public affairs shows on in the first place to be substituted for.

There is much clever scheduling. The "CBS Reports" hour slot is utilized. So is CBS' "Eyewitness." At NBC, presidential specials fill the time normally reserved for "David Brinkley's Journal." ABC operates similarly. A good deal of this scheduling is in the 10:30-11 p.m., EDT, air slot, which is the fringe area of the night's prime-time, which is to say that a great many of the affiliated stations that do business with the networks pass up the shows they offer at this time.

The Channel Swim: President Kennedy's proposed reduction in federal taxes is the subject of a CBS-TV one-hour report July 3; the Chief Executive will appear in a segment filmed at the White House. ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports" offers the first American telecast of the Wimbledon, England, tennis championships July 6.

Two noted Italian movie figures, director Federico Fellini and actor Marcello Mastroianni, are guests on CBS-TV's "Calendar" Wednesday; they worked together in "La Dolce Vita." Actor Jason Robards Jr. is the narrator of this Sunday's NBC-TV documentary, "Opening Night," about preparations for a new play.

To date, 4,600,000 cubic yards of excavation for dam embankment and structures have been completed. 5,600,000 cubic yards of embankment placed and 6,750 cubic yards of concrete laid.

Approximately 100 Pampans participated in the Chamber of Commerce sponsored tour of the construction areas. Grantham and Phil Kensley, resident engineer, Department of Interior, narrated and guided the tour.

"We are happy to have prearranged tours through the site, but unauthorized tourists are not permitted in the area," Grantham said.

The city manager also recommended to the commission that an ordinance be drawn to establish Pampa's population so that the city could be placed in its proper class under the recent annexation bill passed by the Texas Legislature.

Under the bill a city of Pampa's class, from 25,000 to 50,000 population, would be given extra-territorial jurisdiction for annexation within a 2 1/2-mile area around the city limits.

The Sheriff's Office said today three fire extinguishers and three master padlocks were found behind an empty warehouse in the 2000 block of Alcock St.

The items will be retained to the owner's upon proper identification, officers said.

Pampan Takes Top Honors

Capt. Bill Caffee of Pampa and 1st Sgt. Stanley Barn of Amarillo, two members of the 3rd Howitzer Battalion, 78th Artillery, took top honors in firing the 45-caliber pistol at members of the 90th Division Artillery Team, during the recent summer training camp at Fort Hood.

The unit, commanded by Lt. Col. Albert Wimberly of Amarillo, includes Pampa, Amarillo, Borger, and Plainview Army Reservists. Headquarters Battery of Amarillo, commanded by Lt. Ford Verma, was recognized as the second best battery in the division.

The 3rd Howitzer Battalion 78th Artillery was named the "best artillery battalion in the 90th Division."

The 90th Division is commanded by Maj. Gen. Earl Rudder, President of Texas A&M College.

Dear Abby... Emily Postmortems On Spaghetti Eating

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Shame on you for suggesting that spaghetti be eaten by twisting the forked-up spaghetti into the hollow of a large spoon. That's like condoning drinking coffee out of a saucer after fanning it with your hat!

SPAGHETTI AFICIONADO

DEAR ABBY: Where did you get the idea that one uses a fork AND A SPOON for spaghetti? According to Emily Post it is not considered etiquette either here or in Italy. Please correct yourself in your column before millions of Dear Abby fans start eating their spaghetti like Italian peasants.

Don't put off writing letters. Send one dollar to Abby for her booklet, "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

DEAR VELIA: All right, so I was taught to eat spaghetti like an Italian peasant. But it's easier to eat that way and, in my book, common sense and convenience transcend "etiquette", so let us not have any Emily Postmortems.

DEAR READERS: I finally became so exercised over the spaghetti-eating controversy that I sent the following cable to a well-bred Italian friend in Florence, Italy: "In Italy, it is considered proper etiquette to eat spaghetti with a fork and large spoon?"

ABBITA VAN BURENINO
By return cable, this reply was received:
"Only the middle-class southern Italian eats spaghetti with a fork and large spoon. Aforementioned technique strictly excluded by good society throughout the whole of Italy."

GIORGIO GIANESE
DEAR ABBY: I followed through on your memo, telephoned a number of the leading Italian restaurants in the Los Angeles area, and asked, "How do your customers eat spaghetti?"

The replies:

Daily leg and foot care is essential to summer grooming. These models make it a part of their bathing routine. The model (left) applies baby oil to her heels and feet to soften hardened skin areas and discourage pump bumps. It is best to shave legs right after bathing and the model (center) uses a razor designed for women. It has a longer handle and special blade setting. The model (right) concludes her beauty routine by smoothing on a scented dry skin oil.

Care Of Feet Essential To Summer Grooming

By ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise
Beauty Editor

For years shaving, legs and underarms was something a woman did but didn't talk about in polite company. However, as the skirt hems began their roller-coaster course, the need for sleek-looking legs became an outspoken grooming campaign.

Today, one safety razor manufacturer claims, 56 million women use this device. In fact, they've specially designed a feminine safety razor to keep us from borrowing from husbands, brothers or fathers. A blow to togetherness but good for business.

Over-all leg grooming, though, goes beyond this one important step. Those extremities are on parade daily and in summer the amount of public exposure depends upon your preferences in the length of your shorts. Even the new long hostess gowns and shifts that often are slit to the knee call attention to legs and feet.

Much of your leg care begins in the bathtub. Baby oil added to your bath water or a perfumed dry skin bath oil will help maintain your skin's proper oil balance and keep your legs from getting that scaly look. Scrub legs and feet briskly with warm, soapy water. If you plan to shave, do it right after your bath. Dry thoroughly after shaving and smooth on a dry skin lotion. In addition, you may find your knees need extra attention since the skin in this area tends to get rough. Rub them with a pumice while bathing and smooth on extra lotion or a cream after toweling.

Your feet also need additional treatment during summer months because they are exposed to view in the chic, bare shoe styles. Keep your toenails trimmed, straight across, and smooth them with an emery or file just as you do your fingernails. Cuticles should be pushed back with a towel; the best time to do this is while drying your feet. Incidentally, your feet will look prettier and you'll feel more relaxed if you give each foot a stimulating massage after you bathe. Cup some baby oil in each palm and massage; soaping the movements toward the ankle and heel.

The few minutes you spend each day for leg and foot care will bring dividends in compliments and admiring glances.

Tact Can Fill Those Difficult Jobs

A recent issue of a woman's magazine featured an article called "Tact—Can Get Things Done."

Truer words were never spoken. We women are forever letting ourselves be persuaded into doing things that we don't really want to do, because some tactful person sweet-talks us into it.

Who would take the job of treasurer of an organization, if frankly told, "This is a hard and thankless job that nobody wants. Will you take it?" Nobody would take it, that's who.

But a tactful nominating committee chairman can get her treasurer by some such line as, "You're so good at financial matters and so business-like that you're really the only member capable of making a good treasurer." That kind of tact gets the vacancy filled—even if it has to be used on several different members before one swallows it hook, line, and sinker.

Who would take on the job of homeroom mother or den mother or Brownie leader, if told candidly, "Any mother, almost, could do this job, but most mothers are so quick on the excuses it is hard to find leaders." Nobody would, of course.

Summer's group activities call for give-and-take decisions, not for a major-domo to take over and run them.

Ford-Atwood Wed In St Paul Church

WHEELER (Spl) — Miss Glenda Louise Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Ford, and Walter Joe Atwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Atwood of Wheeler, were united in marriage in St. Paul Methodist in Pampa recently.

The impressive single-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Jack Riley, uncle of the bridegroom.

The bride chose a street-length dress of blue lace and chiffon over taffeta with white accessories. She carried a white Bible topped with a corsage of white carnations.

The best man and matron of honor were, Mr. and Mrs. Tex Atwood, uncle and aunt of the bride.

A small reception was held in the Tex Atwood home immediately following the ceremony with relatives of the bride and bridegroom attending.

The couple will make their home at 317 South Archer in Spearman, Texas, where the bridegroom is employed at Strawn Farm and Ranch Supply.

The teen-ager who sits and sulks at a party usually finds few take notice, and the party whirls on.

WRONG ADDRESS
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Bob Broeg, sports editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, tells one on Los Angeles Laker Coach Fred Schaus.
Broeg says Schaus, in town for the National Basketball Association playoffs with the St. Louis Hawks, asked a cabbie to take him to Concordia Seminary. That's the place where the Lakers were working out.
Broeg said the cabbie took Schaus to Concordia Cemetery.

Foreign Commentary

By STEWART HENSLEY
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Long term American military aid to bolster India against possible attacks by Communist China is going to fall far short of what Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and his defense experts wanted.

Officials say the long range program is beginning now on a project-by-project basis and no price tag has been set for the total to be provided. They estimate, however, that barring unforeseen developments the final figure will be in the neighborhood of $300 million.

It had been hoped that Britain, Canada and Australia could come close to matching this amount but indications are they will not be able to provide more than a fraction of the U.S. assistance.

The total program will fall far short of the $1.5 billion which some Indian officials hoped to get in the first flush of their panic after Red China's border attacks last fall.

No Jet Fighters
The military aid program will not include the supersonic jet fighters sought by India, nor is it planned to provide any tanks. Emphasis will be placed on radar equipment, infantry and artillery arms, and stand-by arrangements for British and American aircraft to help defend Indian cities and installations in event of Chinese air attack.

One idea is to station a U.S. squadron of fighter planes in Thailand earmarked for the defense of Indian cities if needed, with a similar British squadron stationed in the Middle East.

The Pentagon also said the Department some time ago came to the conclusion that India's request, which included equipment for 21 field divisions, was unrealistic. They also feel India's own defense budget is far larger than the country actually can use with any efficiency.

Overestimating Danger
The view here is that India, after years of downgrading the Chinese danger, now has swung to the opposite extreme and is overestimating her peril and the amount of military aid she needs.

The United States has just completed deliveries under the $60 million "emergency" military aid program which President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan agreed on last December at Nassau. The British share also was $60 million and she has delivered more than $50 million of this. Under the emergency program the United States supplied light arms, communications equipment and recently C-119 transport planes.

U. S. reluctance to pin any specific price tag on long-range military aid to India stems from two considerations:

Michigan State Schools Hurlers

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The good professors must pass out rubber arms along with the diplomas at Michigan State University.

Exhibit A is Dick Radatz of the Boston Red Sox—the American League's relief pitching marvel. And Exhibit B is Ron Perranoski of the Los Angeles Dodgers—perhaps the No. 1 relief ace in the National League.

Both attended Michigan State in the late 1950s and then went on to careers in big league baseball. Radatz is a huge right-hander and Perranoski a slim left-hander but both get the job done in remarkable fashion.

Perranoski, sometimes overlooked because of the presence of Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax on the Los Angeles staff, has compiled a 7-2 record. He's relieved in the Dodgers' last five games, pitching a total of nine innings without allowing a run.

Preserves Victory

The 26-year-old native of Paterson, N.J., hustled out of the bullpen for the fifth straight game Monday night and pitched two scoreless innings to preserve a 5-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds that lifted the Dodgers to within one game of the National League lead.

His airtight hurling also enabled the Dodgers to end the Reds' seven-game winning streak.

Drysdale, battling to stay over .500 this year after his 25-9 record in 1962, pitched a no-hit effort, five innings and a two-hit shutout for seven before he suddenly lost his stuff. Perranoski yielded two hits but pitched his way out of the jam and then closed out the game in the ninth.

Willie Davis homered after walks by Maury Wills and Jim Gilliam in the third inning and the Dodgers added a fourth run in the frame on singles by Tommy Davis, Wally Moon and Ron Fairly. Joey Jay was the victim of the rally and suffered his 11th loss against three victories.

Giants Regain Lead

The San Francisco Giants regained the NL lead with a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and the Milwaukee Braves defeated the Houston Colts, 3-0, in other National League games.

Juan Marichal went 6 2-3 in innings before Billy Pierce took over to win his 12th game for the Giants, who scored all their runs off Lew Burdette in the first inning. Chuck Hiller and Jim Davenport had two hits each for the Giants and Julian Javier homered for the Cardinals.

Dennie Lemaster pitched a four-hitter and struck out six as the Braves extended the Colts' losing streak to nine straight games. Lee Maye and Eddie Mathews homered for the Braves. The Colts, who went 40 innings without scoring a run before they tallied one in the second game of a doubleheader Sunday now have gone 16 more without denting home plate.

Michigan State University has a long history of producing top-notch relief pitchers. Dick Radatz and Ron Perranoski are just two of the many who have excelled in this role. Their success at Michigan State and in the major leagues is a testament to the quality of coaching and training they received at the university.

The Michigan State baseball team has a strong tradition of producing successful pitchers. The coaching staff has done an excellent job of developing young talent and preparing them for the rigors of professional baseball. The success of Radatz and Perranoski is a reflection of the high standards set at Michigan State.

Michigan State's baseball program has a rich history of success. The university has produced many of the best pitchers in the history of the sport. The coaching staff has been instrumental in the development of these players, and their success in the major leagues is a source of pride for the university.

Pampa Rebs Slam Amarillo, 12-3, Take First Place In District 18

By JEFF COHANE
Pampa News Sports Editor

The Pampa Rebels moved into undisputed possession of first place in the District 18 American Legion race last night with a 12-3 vengeance victory over Amarillo at Optimist Park, the only team to beat them this season in seven outings.

The win puts the Rebs, with a 4-1 district mark, half-a-game ahead of Tascosa, and almost kills the Sandies' chances for a loop flag as they now have a 3-2 record with three league games to go.

CLEAN-UP—Kenny Hebert (left) and Larry "Shotgun" Gregory, the Mantle-Maris combo of the Pampa Rebels, got six hits between them last night, three of them doubles; batted in seven runs and scored five.

Pampa again featured red-hot pitching and even hotter batting. Instead of waiting for their usual late-inning rallies, the Rebels opened up with a three-run first frame off Stanley "Spider" Dodge, and moved from there.

The Rebels were without the services of ace first baseman and slugger Ricky Maynard, who fell from a moving car yesterday and had 20 stitches taken in his face when he landed in gravel. Maynard is hopeful of returning to action before district play is over. Jim Arthur took the "Munchkin's" place at the initial sack and fielded flawlessly, as well as emulating Ricky with two long hits.

The clean-up clouters, Kenny Hebert and Larry "Shotgun" Gregory, again came through. Hebert continued his league-leading batting with a perfect night at the plate, three hits and a walk, personally accounting for Pampa's first six runs. Gregory continued his long-ball clouting with three hits, two of them doubles, one of which bounced high off the left field fence, failing a home run by inches. Eugene Madrid also came through at the plate. The Bandit piling lead-off hits in Pampa's first two big innings.

The pitching saw Carl Harnsberger and Blazin' Bobby Price again come through. Harnsberger became the winning pitcher in the loop with his third-straight win as he gave up four hits, three unearned runs, walked six and struck out six. Harnsberger weakened in the sixth after a two-out error opened the floodgates, and Price came on to get the next four outs, blazing his fast ball past three of them for strikeouts.

Madrid opened the bottom of the first with a solid single into right field, stole second, and moved to third when Rickey Stewart was safe on an error. Hebert then lashed a double into left field and went to third on the throw home, scoring as Gregory connected for a single.

Harnsberger pitched no-hit ball through the first three innings, aided by Hebert's catch of Dodge's long fly to dead center, but Jim Raglin walked to open the fourth, and with one out, Bob Pitts got the first Sandie hit. With two out, Larry Tueto beat out a little grounder down the third base line to load the bases, and Hunt came to load the bases, but Harnsberger got Jerry Hunt personally to retire the side. Amarillo threatened in the fifth, but Stewart started a double play to wipe them out.

Pampa then exploded for a six-run fifth. Madrid again led off with a right-field single, all hands were safe on Stewart's fielders choice, and Hebert once more came through with a hit. Gregory then bounced a double off the left field wall. Arthur hit a long belt into center field to score the Shotgun, but was out on Ronnie Oler's fielder's choice. Claude Middleton was hit by a pitch, and Harnsberger then clinched his own win with a smashing double up against the center field wall, bringing Rusty Alexander to the mound.

With two out in the top of the sixth, a Pampa error enabled Amarillo to break the shutout. It was followed by a single and walk to load the bases, and Hunt came through with a single. Madrid's rifle arm kept the runners glued to the bases as Pitts scored, but Harnsberger walked Rickey Hill and Dodge to force in two more runs. Blazin' Bobby then appeared on the scene and fielded his hard one past Don Howell to retire the side.

Pampa gave the ace fireman a bigger working margin with another three-run inning as they jumped Alexander in the sixth. Stewart started with a walk and Hebert completely crossed up the Sandies as he laid down a perfect bunt for a single. Gregory then came through with another double to clear the sacks. Arthur slammed a long belt to score Gregory, but was out trying to stretch it to a double.

Blazin' Bob then mowed down the Sandies in a hurry and the Rebels were in first place all by themselves.

White Sox Stop NY, Move Within 1 Game

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The Chicago White Sox have come up with a number for which American League teams searched for years — the Yankees' number.

It's an old Yankee tradition to play their best against their chief rivals — to knock off the contenders themselves.

The defending world champions may eventually get around to doing just that this season, but they'll have to make up for lost time. Here it is almost the halfway mark of the season and they've yet to score a victory over the White Sox!

The White Sox made it three in a row for the season Monday night when Johnny Buzhardt and Hoyt Wilhelm combined in a six-hitter that gave them a 5-2 victory over the Yankees. The win was the White Sox' fourth in their last five games and boosted them to within one game of first-place New York.

Yankee Nemesis

Buzhardt, a low fast ball pitcher whom the White Sox acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies in 1961, has now beaten the Yankees four straight times over the last two seasons. He yielded five hits in seven innings Monday night to raise his overall season record to 9-3.

Catcher Camilo Carroing's three-run double off Al Downing was the big blow of a four-run fourth-inning rally and Pete Ward weighed in with his ninth homer and a single to extend his hitting streak to 18 games. A crowd of 42,748 in Chicago saw Downing suffer his first loss after two wins.

The Minnesota Twins beat the Baltimore Orioles, 6-4, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians, 7-5, the Los Angeles Angels nipped the Washington Senators, 3-2, and the Kansas City Athletics downed the Detroit Tigers, 6-3, in other American League action.

Pace Twins' Attack

Zoilo Versalles' triple, doubles by Jim Kaat and Vic Power and singles by Power and Bob Allison were the big blows of a 10-hit Minnesota attack. Kaat went 7 1/3 innings to receive credit for his seventh win with Bill Dailey, making his seventh relief appearance in nine days, finishing up.

Gary Geiger's two-run ninth-inning homer enabled Red Sox reliever Jack Lamabe to win his third game after the Indians had tied the score in the seventh on a two-run homer by Willie Kirkland. Chuck Schilling and Lou Clinton also homered for the Red Sox while Kirkland had three hits for the Indians.

Jim Fregosi's single scored Ed Sadowski and capped a three-run game-winning rally in the eighth after Claude Osteen had pitched

STOLEN CARS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Most of this city's auto thefts occur between 9 p.m. and 4 a.m., reports the Chicago Police Department. More than 60 per cent of arrests for auto theft in past years were persons under 18. The department said 73 per cent of auto thieves are riders who steal because the opportunity exists. But it adds that motorists make it easy for the thieves. More than 50 per cent of stolen cars have keys left in the ignition of the doors unlocked at the time of the theft.

Intellectual Pope Has Interest in Peace, People

By United Press International
Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, the slight, dark-eyed prelate and noted intellectual who was elected Pope Paul VI, is known for his "liberal" tendencies.

He is expected to follow the forward-looking lead that the late Pope John XXIII set for the Catholic Church with the historic Ecumenical Council and his preoccupation and hopes for a lasting world peace.

Montini is an austere man, but with a tremendous interest in people and what he can do for them.

Born in 1897.
Born Sept. 26, 1897, at Concesio, a small hamlet five miles north of Brescia and not far from the little village of Soito il Monte where Pope John XXIII was born to a peasant family, Montini is one of three brothers — all of whom have "made good" despite the varied paths they have taken. His father was Giorgio Montini, a crusading lawyer and journalist who for years was the leader of the Catholic party in Brescia, a member of the Italian Parliament, and manager of Brescia's Catholic newspaper, Il Cittadino (The Citizen). His mother was Giuditta Alghisi. Both have been dead for several years.

The family was well off, and the Montini brothers were allowed to follow whatever calling in life they wanted. Ludovico became a lawyer, then a deputy in Parliament and in this year's elections a Christian Democratic senator. Francesco became a doctor, and is now a surgeon at the Brescia hospital.

Chose Priesthood
Giovanni Battista chose the priesthood.

His early schooling was with Jesuit priests in Brescia, first at the "Cesare Arici" College, then at the "Cristo Re" (Christ the King) Seminary. According to what his teachers said later, he was "a well balanced boy, determined, and very intelligent."

While in school he wrote articles for "La Fiorda," (The Sling) a student newspaper.

Giovanni Battista Montini was ordained a priest on May 29, 1920, at the Church of the Graces in Brescia and later that year came to Rome to study simultaneously at the Gregorian University and at the University of Rome.

He later studied at the Ecclesiastical Academy in preparation for the Vatican diplomatic service and in May 1923, when only 26 years old, he was sent to Warsaw as secretary to the papal nunciature.

Montini returned to Rome later that year to continue his studies at the Ecclesiastical Academy and the following year began work in the Vatican secretariat of state, where he was to spend the next 30 years. In 1925 he also was nominated ecclesiastical assistant to the Federation of University Catholics and founded the movement of Catholic graduates.

Succeeded Tradino
He prospered in the atmosphere of the secretariat of state and in 1937 succeeded Msgr. Domenico Tradino as substitute of the secretary of state, a post he held until November of 1952 when Pope Pius XII named him pro-secretary of state for ordinary (internal) affairs.

There was no doubt of his close friendship with Pope Pius. When Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli was elected pontiff in 1939 Montini, according to Vatican insiders, was one of the first men he telephoned following the conclave. And when Pius went through the streets of Rome to inspect the damage of the allied air raids in 1943, Msgr. Montini was the only person to accompany him.

He soon earned the reputation of being efficient—and, on occasion, of being a stumbling block for those who wished to take up problems directly with the pontiff.

Montini, as pro-secretary for internal affairs, generally is credited with being the man who convinced Pius to throw the entire weight of the church behind the Christian Democratic party—and against the Italian Communists—in Italy's crucial 1948 elections.

TOTAL PERFORMANCE:

FORD GALAXIE 500XL SPORTS HARDTOP

IF YOU KNEW WHAT THIS "CAR KILLER" KNOWS...YOU'D BE DRIVING A SOLID, SILENT SUPER TORQUE FORD

This steel-edged pothole is probably the world's toughest test of a car's suspension. We drive into this car killer at 30 mph, locking our brakes as we go so the wheels can't roll through the hole as they normally would. The car slams against the far edge of the hole with such impact that it literally bounces out. If you added up the cumulative effect of all the jars and jolts your car's suspension system experiences in years of normal driving, it wouldn't match the impact of one trip through the hole. Yet—a Ford must run this test three times to prove its strength.

How can a Ford take it? Because Ford's front suspension has extra beef in spindles, springs, suspension arms—in fact, it's about 20 pounds heavier than the front suspension of our principal competitor's car.

We don't expect you to abuse your car the way we do our test cars. But, however you drive, you'll welcome the extra strength of a total performance Ford. Ford strength is tested in a thousand ways in Ford's laboratories and proving grounds—and in open competition in the world's toughest rallies and stock car events.

Look at Ford's astounding record in open competition this year in the grueling Daytona, Riverside, and Atlanta 500's, the World 600 at Charlotte, N.C., and in the demanding Pure Oil Performance Trials. Only a car with total performance—the best combination of strength, balance, precision control and road-clinging suspension—could roll up so many wins.

Before you buy any new car, test-drive the solid, silent Super Torque Ford. If you haven't driven one lately, you can't really know what a new Ford is like. Make this important discovery: if it's built by Ford, it's built for performance...total performance.

The Right To Decide

Decision making is a human function.

While it may be true, and on the basis of new evidence it appears to be undisputedly true, that all living things exercise some degree of choice-making, only man can be called a true decision maker.

Because of man's enormous conceptual capacity, man and man alone can be called a decision maker. Man is able to construct whole bodies of thought and to collect whole bodies of knowledge. These things he is able to weigh both subjectively and with some degree of objectivity. He and he alone makes decisions.

Some of today's problems relate to this matter of decision making. For one of the major areas of concern today relates to the question of who is going to make the decisions for you. Functionally, you are able to make decisions for yourself. But in the world we live in, government has assumed a larger and larger role as a decision maker.

Government, of course, is little more than the men and women who inhabit its hallowed halls of compulsion. But because of our age-long belief in some kind of super-power residing in the hands of men and women in government, there is a strong tendency, even today, to defer decision making to the state.

It is assumed, almost automatically in many quarters, that somehow the men and women in government will "know best" what to decide. When government issues a decree or a ukase demanding certain kinds of performance and behavior, we almost automatically assume that government is in a superior position to know what should be done. We assume an elevated position exists in government. We seem to believe that the men and women in governmental posts somehow have an exalted view of mankind as a whole.

Therefore, we submit to their decisions even when they are obviously contrary to our own best interests.

A man earns a living. The living he earns, functionally speaking, is his own. He wishes to spend a portion of his earnings on food, another portion on shelter,

Still another goes for clothing, of his own choice. Then there are things he wants with some degree of intensity. He wants a new hi-fi set, or he wants a date with a particular lady of his choice.

He hopes one day to save up enough money to buy a fine car, or to travel to Europe, or even to have a new carpet on the floor, a dishwasher in the kitchen, or a vacation at a luxury motel, hotel, or resort.

Decisions along these lines are his own. It is for these things that he labors for he finds a sense of fulfillment whenever he is able to accomplish some particular objective or goal.

Government people are prone to consider these decisions as both selfish and unworthy. What right does a man have to spend his honest earnings as he sees fit when the government holds to a political objective which may run counter to an individual choice?

The government may decide that a certain portion of this man's earnings should be taken from him and sent to Tito of Yugoslavia. Or it may decide that some portion should be taken to provide a European junket for a congressman. Or it may decide, more mundanely, that some of this man's money should go for roads he will never travel on, or for schools he will never attend, or for a cemetery in which he will never be buried.

And because government is government, it will swoop in upon the luckless wage earner and confiscate a portion—either of his earnings, his savings, or both.

This, the government contends is a governmental right. Government may substitute its decision-making powers for the decision-making function of the individual. How many of your decisions do you wish government to veto?

To the extent that it may intrude upon you and force you to fulfill its own decisions, to that extent are you lacking in freedom. For freedom is little more than your right to make decisions which are personal in nature, and which, in the final analysis, do not infringe upon the decision-making function of others outside of the governmental structure.

Blowing Up The World Twice

Dr. Samuel P. Hayes, president of the Foreign Policy Association, recently-discussed the immensely difficult problems presented by arms control and disarmament. He made this important observation: "Today, the ideas of arms control and of national defense no longer contradict each other. As technology races ahead to ever more powerful and faster means of mass destruction, the security these weapons provide becomes less dependable."

We are told that both we and the Soviets now possess sufficient weapons to destroy the world. But both sides go ahead in further building up their arsenals, at unimaginable cost in money, energy, resources of every kind — which led one grim minded wit to observe that before long, no doubt, it will be possible to blow it up twice.

The problems associated with acceptable arms control and disarmament are formidable. But did the world ever face problems to which workable solutions were so sorely needed?

Barnum was right because even in 1963 you still read of gypsy-fortune tellers fleeing the gullible, the fake money-finding swindle (called the handkerchief trick) and the ancient Spanish prisoner story. But we never seem to hear of the "badger game", or has it a different and modern name? The sucker population apparently continues to increase or else how could those slick salesmen, during the past year, sell arid land in Arizona and New Mexico as homesites, far removed from water? Whenever you hear an incredulous sales pitch, call your Better Business Bureau for advice before acting.

The television rating services are just blue sky systems as far as we are concerned, because we believe it is impossible to tell how many people view certain shows every day in all parts of the country. We have never had a call nor do we know of anyone who has had one from the rating services and the sampling they take is much too thin for any degree of accuracy. We thought the Merv Griffin show was loaded with great talent and, fine entertainment but NBC dropped it because of "poor rating". Just how many people were sampled? Few we think. So the network apparently could not afford to put on this wonderful show for just our household!

He prescribes a tall, well-diluted drink of an ounce and a half of whisky, rum or gin about 30 minutes before the evening meal.

Miss Rachel Carlson in her best seller, "Silent Spring," has some excellent conclusions about pesticides, but we think she presses the panic button in some sections regarding their effect on nature. An example of how good use is made of these chemical controls appears in Today's Health, which points out that our agricultural production increased about 50 per cent by their use last year. It also mentions that pest damage to livestock and forests were greatly reduced by insecticides. So we now how our and let the experts carry on the controversy, which will be with us for years.

Edson In Washington High-Living Red Captain In Trouble at Home, Too

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — As interest in former British War Minister John Profumo's relations with 21-year-old party girl Christine Keeler now focuses on the third leg of the triangle — Soviet Naval Captain Yevgeniy Mikhailovich Ivanov — the wonder grows in Washington diplomatic circles that the Russian was allowed to continue his scandalous conduct openly for nearly three years.

When Ivanov was assigned to the Russian embassy in London in 1960 as a military attache, he was already a known intelligence agent with a long record of espionage and playboy scandals at his previous post in Oslo, Norway, from 1953 to 1958.

This is what now appears to be the major breach in British security. It is recognized he should have been kicked out as persona non grata long before.

What finally forced Capt. Third Class Yevgeniy M. Ivanov's recall to Moscow last January was not his notoriety as a drunk and a woman chaser. It was his association with Col. Oleg Penkovskiy, recently executed in Russia after a trial in which he was accused of having given Soviet secrets to western intelligence agents.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question: "What kind of newspaper performs the most useful service to its readers? What means does it use to do this?"

It would seem that the most useful service a newspaper can render to its readers is to be a watchman trying to keep its readers informed on any acts that interfere with their rights to private property. And, of course, private property includes their lives, their ideas, their consciences, their right to make a contract, and their right to freely exchange their goods with anyone who wants to exchange, thereby benefiting both parties. And in producing wealth where there is a profit everybody gains. This is true because the owner must distribute it in order to benefit thereby.

A newspaper, first, should be a watchman, to save the readers' time in knowing what means are being proposed to initiate force against them to deprive them of what they have honestly earned. It does not permit the politicians or the larger advertisers or the labor unions or the employers to prevent it from publishing the news and the opinions of those who will rationally answer questions. Its objective should be a long-range objective in trying to make the community an even better place in which to live.

This, of course, would mean that it is trying to promote good-will and trying to furnish a medium of communication between the citizens of the community. It must permit its opinions to be challenged by those who will rationally answer their challenge. It will not permit one reader to reflect on the honesty and sincerity of another letter writer or person without giving evidence. It has, of course, a perfect right to permit the judgment and the logic of a person to be challenged.

A newspaper should save time for its readers so they can be better informed, and should be a

The Doctor Says

SIMPLE VIGILANCE CONQUERS TRAGIC CHILDREN'S DISEASE

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT

The relatively new term, phenylketonuria, describes a condition that used to be lumped together with other forms of mental retardation for which no cause was known. This disease is a perfect example of the ability of medical scientists, once the cause of a disease is known, to come up with a cure.

In babies with this hereditary disease one of the basic amino acids (builders of body protein) known as phenylalanine is not changed to tyrosine, another amino acid, as should occur in the normal course of metabolism. For this reason the concentration of phenylalanine builds up in the blood. When it reaches an abnormal level it is excreted in the urine.

Tests of the blood or urine will reveal this defect even in the first week of life. This is a blessing because the sooner the disease is discovered and treatment started, the better the results. All that is required is strict observance of a diet that is practically free of phenylalanine. This consists chiefly of vegetables and fruit and a specially available protein supplement. No milk, meat or eggs are allowed.

Without these dietary restrictions the mental retardation in these children is severe, but with the recommended treatment the development is normal. In order to be effective, the treatment must be started before the child is 3 years old and preferably in infancy.

Unlike diabetes in which treatment must be continued throughout life, the treatment for phenylketonuria must be followed only until the child reaches the age of 5 or 6. This apparently permits the delayed development of normal metabolic processes and there is no further danger of mental retardation. Tests for phenylalanine in a baby's blood are made in most hospitals before the mother and baby are discharged.

Many people wonder how the disease can be called hereditary when neither parent has it. This is because it is carried as a recessive gene or hereditary determinant and will not show up in the offspring unless both parents carry the gene, and even then the gene is not present in all of their sperm and ova.

Q — My baby girl is just a week old and is as yellow as she can be. The doctor says she has jaundice. I never heard of a child having it so young. Will she have any bad effects from it?

A — About 60 per cent of all newborn babies have some degree of jaundice. It is deeper in some than in others. The jaundice is due to the fact that the liver has not yet developed to the point where it can remove the bile pigment in the child's blood. This type of jaundice appears on the second or third day of life and gradually fades so that when the child is 2 weeks old there is no trace of jaundice. If the yellow discoloration grows deeper or if it doesn't disappear by the end of the second week you should report it to your doctor. If the jaundice is present at birth, this may indicate RH incompatibility or some other serious condition, but the ordinary jaundice of the newborn is of no importance.

A thought for the day—European philosopher, Friedrich Nietzsche wrote: "Distrust all in whom the impulse to punish is powerful."

ROBERT ALLEN ALLEN SCOTT

Allen-Scott Report

Hundreds of Moscow-Trained Agents Infiltrating U.S., Latin America Among Refugees

WASHINGTON — Hundreds of Moscow-trained agents are entering the U.S. as Cuban refugees. These Spanish-speaking Communists, some of them veterans of the Spanish civil war, have come in with the thousands of Cuban refugees who have been admitted to the U.S. since last fall's missile crisis.

According to sworn testimony before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee by reliable, anti-Castro refugees, the Red agents are concentrating on infiltrating the splintered refugee groups and are a principal reason for the seething dissension among them.

A highly regarded attorney in Miami, representing a number of these Cuban organizations, has turned over to the senators detailed evidence that Dictator Castro and his Russian henchmen personally selected about half of the passenger list of one Red Cross ship that recently brought approximately 1,000 refugees to the U.S.

This startling information is supported by intelligence reports that the Kremlin is using the Cuban refugee traffic as a means of infiltrating Moscow-trained agents into the U.S. and Latin American countries.

The Miami attorney, who requested that his identification be kept secret because of the classified nature of his activities, bluntly blamed this extraordinary situation on the lax screening of refugees by immigration authorities.

He flatly charged that policies of the Kennedy Administration, as formulated by the State and Justice Departments, are permitting hundreds of Red agents easy access to the U.S. while barring anti-Castro raids on Cuba.

The Senate committee, headed by Senator James Eastland, D-Miss., plans to ask FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover for his expert views on the number of Russian agents who have entered from Cuba and the danger they present to the country's internal security.

INTELLIGENCE CONTROVERSY — The Kennedy Administration has no "hard intelligence" to support the State Department's curious claim that Russia does not have sufficient troops in Cuba to exert control there.

According to the latest estimate of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Soviet still has "between 12,500 and 17,500" troops in Cuba. The most recent report of the Defense Intelligence Agency places the number as high as 32,000.

Neither the CIA nor DIA estimates support the State Department's disclaimer on the control of Cuba. Instead, both intelligence agencies have considerable evidence that Cuba's foreign policy splendid medium for exchanging ideas. It should be like a watchman — always on guard to see that no one is being deprived of his God-given rights.

A newspaper of this kind is of splendid service. It is a newspaper that has courage and will take a position against popular beliefs and try to get more people to realize that any combination or any initiated force or threats of same will be harmful, not only to those having force initiated against them, but even to those initiating force.

It would seem the logical, precise way of expressing the service of a newspaper is to say that it should be a watchful, fearless newspaper.

"Christine Keeler Ltd., may we ruin you?"

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
When President Kennedy has a chance to take his mind off the race relations crisis he will discover that he has another domestic crisis in his lap.

The Kennedy tax reform program is floundering in the House Ways & Means Committee. The committee has rejected many of his reform proposals outright. It has re-shaped others into wholly new patterns. His proposal for revision of the oil and gas depletion tax allowance was sunk by the committee without a trace.

The President has not made a hard-nosed, consistent fight for his tax reform proposals. The word got around, true or not, that Kennedy would accept tax reduction without tax reform. As his reform proposals began going down the drain, the President delivered an early spring speech to a group representing the American Bankers Association.

Explained As Warning
When this speech was interpreted as another reform retreat, administration spokesmen passed the word that the intent was otherwise. The President was trying to warn the bankers, these spokesmen explained, that business and the well-to-do among Americans would be compelled to pay the cost of a $10 billion tax cut if tax reform were junked. They would be compelled to pay through continued high individual and corporate income tax rates.

Tax reform continued to lose ground, however, and the President has been too busy with civil rights to reverse the trend. Much time remains, of course, before the House itself will act on the tax bill. Thereafter the Senate will begin committee hearings. Kennedy may hope to recoup some of his reform losses in the Senate. To do so will require an all-out effort by all hands of the Kennedy administration. The Senate as a whole probably is nearer to the new frontier than is the House of Representatives.

Byrd Substantial Roadblock
But, barring the Senate door to the Kennedy tax bill is the formidable figure of Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) Byrd is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. He considers the whole concept of the Kennedy tax reduction-reform bill to be daft. Kennedy's concept is that taxes may be reduced substantially without an accompanying reduction of government spending. More simply: that the U. S. government shall reduce taxes, continue a high rate of spending and borrow more money to pay the deficit difference between income and outgo.

The President told the Advertising Council in March that a balanced budget in the current fiscal year would adversely affect the national economy. This is the theory of Walter W. Heller, chairman of President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers. Others in the administration estimate that a balanced budget might be achieved in fiscal 1967.

This chills Byrd. If the Kennedy tax proposals are having trouble in the House Ways & Means Committee, they may expect catastrophe in the Senate committee presided over by Harry Byrd.

Heller sharply discounts the insistence of a great many American citizens that government should live within its means, balance the budget and under no circumstances borrow money to pay for a tax cut. Heller complained that this old-fashioned theory of fiscal responsibility was a hangover from a puritan ethic absorbed into American thinking long ago.

Doubt Grows That Mindszenty Will Ever Leave Hungary

EDITOR'S NOTE: UPI's chief European diplomatic correspondent is touring the Soviet satellite nations, reporting on conditions there. In the following dispatch from Hungary he describes the life of Jozsef Cardinal Mindszenty, who is an exile at home, and speculates on the possibility that he will leave Hungary.)

By K. C. THALER
United Press International
BUDAPEST (UPI) — There is growing speculation that Jozsef Cardinal Mindszenty may never leave Hungary.

Despite the many recent widespread reports that he would give up his seven-year asylum in the United States legation and go to the Vatican, the odds are growing that he will stay.

He is reported to feel that any departure or compromise with the Hungarian Communist regime would be a betrayal of his Catholic countrymen.

Of course, all this is guesswork, as there is no authoritative indication of the cardinal's actual views.

There is a studied silence by all concerned. The Hungarian Communist authorities profess they are not interested in his plans. Church authorities claim they don't know. American legation staff members say their lips are sealed by instructions from higher up.

The cardinal himself is not available for comment. He stays out of touch in his quarters on the third floor of the legation. He remains incommunicado and sees no one from the outside, in accordance with the terms set down when he was given asylum after the 1956 Hungarian uprising.

Changing Minds
Those who had speculated that Mindszenty might go to Rome for the conclave of cardinals who will elect a new Pope next week are changing their minds.

Those who had suggested he would go later this year—in September—also are no longer quite so sure.

When and if he goes is a moot point, with the answer perhaps to be found only at the Vatican—and it is not about to disclose its secret.

Recently, two emissaries of the Vatican are believed to have carried back to Rome news of the cardinal's plans.

Two months ago, Mindszenty conferred for several hours with Francis Cardinal Koenig of Vienna, who ostensibly came on instructions from the Vatican. He had further talks with the Vatican's special emissary, Msgr. Agostino Casaroli.

Whether the cardinal figures that by staying on here he may eventually be able to resume his functions in Hungary is an unanswered question. Mindszenty is left much to his own devices at the U.S. legation. He has been equipped with radio and television and a choice of books suitable to his needs.

Learned English
The cardinal has learned English and is believed to be writing the memoirs which should disclose eventually some of the grim experiences he went through before and during his trial in the rough days of the regime of Matyas Rakosi, now expelled from the Communist party and an exile somewhere in Russia's Ukraine.

He converses with members of the American legation, some of whom speak Hungarian.

He takes his daily walk in the legation's small courtyard.

Once in a while, the cardinal is said to celebrate a Mass at the legation or to officiate in some religious ceremony, such as the occasion as christening of a child of one of the members of the American or some other friendly Western mission.

But on such rare occasions, he has been noticed to retire almost immediately after the function and any conversation remains strictly limited to a few courtesies.

Outside the legation, police keep a steady eye on comings and goings as, in principle, they do with other legations.

Observation Is Strict
But the observation is believed to be stricter at the American building. This correspondent admittedly was neither stopped nor questioned when entering or leaving the mission. But what other devices of identification are practiced is not ascertainable with any degree of accuracy.
