

'Baby Clipper' Thought To Be Over England

Ship Sighted Believed That Of Atlantic Flier

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—The British Press association reported tonight that a plane believed to be Thomas H. Smith's "Baby Clipper" was sighted off Sain Bees in Cumberland county, Northern England, about 5:30 p. m. G.M.T. (11:30 a. m. CST).

The plane circled over the coast guard station where it was given a ground signal and made off south, keeping to the coastline. Saint Bees is in a direct line from northern Scotland where a previous report said a plane like Smith's was seen.

A small airplane flying very high had been sighted at 1:15 p. m. GMT (10:15 a. m. CST) over Wigtownshire, on the western tip of Scotland, headed toward England. The plane which was coming from Ireland was seen about three miles inland.

Nearly two hours earlier a high-flying airplane similarly described was seen passing over Londonderry, northern Ireland, in the direction of England.

Into yesterday's dawn, the Los Angeles birdman nosed his 670-pound monoplane (Aerona) with its four-cylinder, 65-horsepower engine on a course from Old Orchard, Maine.

The former transport pilot had 190 gallons of gasoline—he calculated it was enough to take him 3,600 miles at a cruising speed of 100 miles an hour.

Smith had the equipment to fly blind, if necessary, but no radio. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith expressed themselves as "amazed" when news of their son's solo take-off reached them at Clarksburg, W. Va. "We had no advance notice," said the father, a lawyer.

Nor did the Civil Aeronautics Authority, officials said at Washington, adding they had given no permission to the flight.

Saturday-Sunday Oil Shutdowns Are Ordered

Commission Changes Regulations For June; Says There's Too Much Crude

AUSTIN, May 29 (AP)—The railroad commission issued an order today shutting down Texas oil fields on all Saturdays and Sundays in June.

The order substituted for one promulgated weeks ago closing the fields on all Saturdays and two Saturdays in May and June. Chairman Lon A. Smith of the commission said the change was based on new information and to meet altered conditions.

Average production in Texas for the week ending May 27, with Saturday production included, was 1,496,290 barrels daily, while the average for the week ending May 20, with wells closed on Saturday, was 1,379,000.

The estimated demand for crude output from Texas, made by the federal bureau of mines, was 1,405,100 barrels daily in May and 1,426,000 in June.

A hearing on conditions in fields will be held in Austin June 2. "Oil has been accumulating in Texas," Chairman Smith said. "We simply are getting too much. The people who wanted the commission to permit production on Saturdays now are saying that if we do not stop Saturday production the industry will be in trouble."

The order was signed by all members of the commission. Other commissioners, in addition to Smith, being Ernest O. Thompson, also chairman of the Interstate Compact commission, and G. A. Jerry Sadler.

"More oil was being produced than the market could consume," was Thompson's comment. In a statement, State Senator Joe Hill of Henderson said the commission was to be congratulated on the new order.

"The market situation had become very unfavorable and oil was being sold in great quantities at less than the posted price," he stated. Hill represents a district in the big East Texas field area.

Lauds State's Program For Soil Saving

Chief Of Conservation Service Speaks At Temple Meeting

TEMPLE, May 29 (AP)—Conservation-minded Texans showed their determination to stop "wholesale land wastage" by enactment of the state soil conservation law.

Dr. H. H. Bennett, chief of the U. S. soil conservation service, said in a speech prepared for delivery today to a statewide soil-saving rally.

Thousands of farmers and business men from over the state were here for the rally which will be followed by a Central Texas farm chemurgic conference tonight and tomorrow.

First order of business was a closed meeting of the new state conservation board—its first since enactment of the law referred to by Dr. Bennett. The act enabled farmers to organize for cooperative attacks on the erosion problem, and its administration is in the hands of the board.

"The passage of the districts law is the culmination of a conservation movement which has grown from a mere dream of a few years ago to an active force winning a battle against land decline," Dr. Bennett said.

In this big state the settlers went about the job of wasting the land in a big way. Land that never should have been cleared was put into cultivation. In the cotton belt the land was farmed year in and year out in a way that wasted soil.

MEN TELL OF CANYON SWIM

SANDERSON, May 29 (AP)—Two adventurers from ordinary life, conquerors of the treacherous Rio Grande in a swimming and wading exploration through the 21-mile Santa Helena canyon, went back to their jobs today.

Roy L. Swift, 27, editor of the Robstown, Tex. Record, and his brother, W. E. Swift, 37, Brownwood, Tex., salesman, spent 13 hours Saturday going through the wild canyon where several lives have been lost and boating parties have come to disaster. Both are good swimmers.

Editor Swift said they wore bathing suits, heavy hats, knee pads, and tennis shoes. They drove nearly 1,200 miles to the canyon Friday and entered it Saturday morning.

City Starts Digging Out Mud And Silt Deposited By Flood

DAMAGE WIDESPREAD; LAKES ARE FILLED

Big Spring Monday set about the task of repairing sharp damage resulting from Saturday night's "flash flood" resulting from a two inch rain and hail in 40 minutes.

Working in 10-hour shifts almost continuously since the freakish deluge subsided, city crews had cleared the worst of the pavement wreckage and restored traffic to normal movement in the downtown area.

Hotels and business houses were well into their job of repairing water damage and cleaning out mud and silt. Insurance adjusters were busy figuring damage claims to houses and cars, some of which were subjected to flood overflow.

Worst single damage appeared to have been to the new Shroyer Motor Co. annex in the 400 block on E. 3rd. Company officials said that evidence showed that collapse of the front portion of the roof was not due to weight of water as at first reported but to a bolt of lightning.

Havoc was widespread at the city park where the swelling current crawled out of banks to spread several hundred yards of destruction. Two dozen massive rock posts were overturned and washed downstream, large patches of turf were gnawed away, evergreens overturned and uprooted, flowers stripped of foliage, and the premises littered with debris.

Water rose well above the floor of the monkey cages, but the creatures saved themselves by clinging to the top of the cage.

Would Abolish O'Daniel Veto Dual Taxation Overridden

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—George M. Morris of the American Bar association asked the house ways and means committee today to eliminate what he termed "double taxation on the profits of business reorganizations."

Morris, chairman of the association's finance committee, testified that as a result of a recent supreme court decision the commission of internal revenue may levy a tax on the profits accruing both to the absorbed company and to that company's stockholders in a merger.

Solons Reply To His Radio Outburst

Governor Assails House Group Opposing Amendment

AUSTIN, May 29 (AP)—Governor W. Lee O'Daniel was accused on the house floor today of "trying to use a big stick" on the legislature in an effort to revive the sales-natural resources tax constitutional amendment.

Denounces Omnibus Tax The sharp criticism of the governor was voiced by Rep. Odie Weldon, 24-year-old farmer from Mabank. It came on the heels of O'Daniel's Sunday radio talk in which he denounced the omnibus tax bill passed by the house and reiterated his support of the proposed constitutional change.

"The governor yesterday preached funeral services," Weldon said, "for the sales-natural resource tax constitutional amendment. I don't believe it will be resurrected because anything as bad as it is does not have a single spark of soul."

The East Texas said he "resented" O'Daniel's attack on many house members as "obstructionists." "Some of the men—I am not referring to myself—who have opposed the governor," Weldon contended, "know more in a week than he does in a year."

"The omnibus tax bill is not perfect but it is 100 times better than the sales tax constitutional amendment. At least it doesn't put a lid on natural resources taxes, a thing that the oil, gas and sulphur people would like to see happen."

"I don't see how the governor can talk about tax dodgers when he has been one. For several years he refused to pay his poll tax. I too would like to abolish the poll tax but I will keep paying it as long as the law says it should be paid."

Vandenberg Says He'll Be In Race For Senate Seat

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) announced today he would seek re-election to the senate in 1940, but added that "if there are subsequent responsibilities of a broader nature, I shall meet them to the best of my ability."

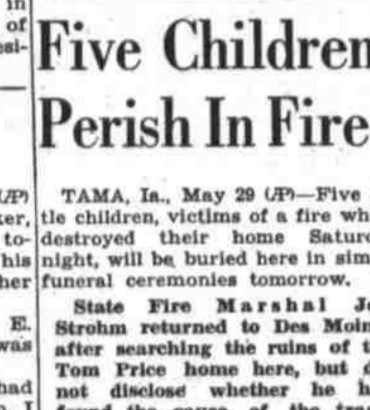

Vandenberg's statement was made in a letter replying to request from Michigan republican officials that he be drafted for the party's presidential nomination next year.

Vandenberg's statement today said the next republican convention "must first set down clear-cut, constructive, courageous principles which dependably promise to save the American system of free enterprise under the renewed spirit of constitutional democracy, and to recapture prosperity for our whole people under a government restored to solvency."

THE SINKING OF A SUBMARINE

As long as men dive into the sea—which probably will be as long as there are men—accidents are going to occur.

That same statement applies as well to every undertaking which man may attempt, no matter how safe or how dangerous it may appear. Many people are killed each year in such seemingly accident-proof acts as rocking in rocking chairs or getting out of bed.

So there is no reason to become discouraged because of such deplorable tragedies as that to the United States submarine Squalus in which more than a score of men lost their lives. That tragedy tends to emphasize how relatively safe the submarine has become as compared with not many years ago. It reminds that the work of the submarine man has become almost as safe as any dangerous occupation can be. It reminds, too, that the United States' record for submarine safety surpasses that of any other nation.

The Squalus was the first U. S. submarine tragedy in 12 years. On Dec. 1927, the S-4 went down with the loss of 40 lives. But that was due to surface collision—and collisions are apt to occur to any type of craft which moves. Prior to that, on Sept. 25, 1925, the S-61 carried 37 men to their deaths, but that also was due to a surface collision. Not since the World War, has an American sub "just gone down" without rising.

This record is unmatched by that of any other nation. Several such disasters have occurred to British and French U-boats. They also have occurred to those of Italian, German, Japanese and Russian submarines, although efforts are made to censor those disasters when they occur.

These facts do not lessen the sorrow of the survivors of victims of the Squalus disaster. Nor did it ease the experience of those who died or those who survived. But they should tend to ease in considerable measure the fears—which always will be present—of the families of those who man United States submarines.

Prison Halts Pendergast Career After A Long Climb To Top Place In Politics

By the AP Feature Service KANSAS CITY—When Tom Pendergast goes to prison, what's going to happen to his famed political machine? Friends say it will keep on running—under the guidance of Nephew Jim, who led the Democrats throughout most of Missouri in 1936 when Tom was sick.

Opponents say it was smashed even before Pendergast, one of the last of the old-time city bosses, pleaded guilty to evading income tax laws.

Any way it's certain that the organization, which was started back in 1892 and stayed in power after New York's Tammany, has received a shaking up these last few years such as it never had before.

The sentencing of 66-year-old Pendergast to 15 months in prison was only one of many blows since the 1936 election victories. Among the others were the federal grand jury investigation into the same election—resulting in 200 indictments and only a few dismissals and the resignation under fire of City Manager McElroy and other Pendergast men.

Tom's bean in the thick of Kansas City affairs since his brother Jim, father of Nephew Jim, left the city council in 1910 to make room for him.

But Tom soon figured that wasn't the life for him and he stepped out. He operated saloons until prohibition came. He organized a concrete paving company which has bid successfully for many profitable city contracts.

And he expanded his biggest business—politics. Jim had been content to be king of the north side. Tom moved out to a luxurious $150,000 residence in the country club section of the south side. He marshalled an army of organization workers which gave him power over the whole city.

Everything wasn't easy—there were some intra-party fights so bitter that they resulted in Republican triumphs. But usually Tom rode high.

Now he's down, and Kansas City wonders whether there can possibly be a successor.

3. INSTEAD OF BUCKING reform waves in 1926, Tom rode along—and got the city managership for one of his men. After '26, his power rose steadily and he swung elections for governors and senators.

2. AS PRECINCT CAPTAIN, Tom looked after newcomers' needs. Later his clubs supplied the poor with food and coal—and lists of Pendergast candidates. His paving company got many city contracts.

1. YOUNG TOM Pendergast learned about politics from his brother Jim, who founded the organization in 1892. Tom kept accounts in Jim's saloons. Jim was member of Kansas City council till 1910.

4. PENDERGAST AIDE, John Lutz, invested in gambling, became force in police department, was convicted of evading income taxes. He was slain in '34. Lizzie Case brought city under federal government's eye.

5. EXPOSE by Kansas City Star in 1936 showed voting lists heavily padded. Even dead people were registered. Then a federal grand jury indicted 200 election workers, many of them Pendergast allies.

6. THE BOSS himself was indicted in April this year on charges that he received a $315,000 payoff in a fire insurance rate case but paid no taxes. Month later, he pleaded guilty, was sentenced to 15 months.

Wheat Harvest Is Under Way CHICAGO, May 29 (AP)—Harvesting of the half billion dollar United States wheat crop of 1939 is under way in southern sections of the belt.

Thrashing of the first golden grain of the season already is proceeding in early fields of Texas and Oklahoma, where railroads have directed their annual early summer concentration of cars to haul wheat to market. First yields ranged from poor to good, indicating, grain experts said today, spotted, irregular conditions.

Harvest crews augmenting the estimated 500,000 farm hands already to employment rolls since the first of the year, soon will be working their way northward.

The 1939 wheat harvest, with a market value in excess of $600,000,000, was the basis of current prices, as expected to bring American farmers a cash return approximately 16 per cent less than last season, even though prices are considerably higher than a year ago. This is due largely to the fact that the crop might be about 800,000,000 bushels smaller than last year's record production. Before trading began today July wheat here was quoted around 79 cents a bushel compared with below 70 cents a year ago. On the basis of government loans, which may retard the movement of new wheat to market, the value at Chicago is around 80 cents for good grades.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

(Mr. Lippmann's column is published as an informational and news feature. His views are personal and are not to be construed as necessarily reflecting the editorial opinion of The Herald—Editor's Note.)

A REPORT ON THE OPPOSITION

It begins to look as if May 8 to May 12 will turn out to have been the turning point in the politics of this session of Congress. On the 8th the Senate added almost 400 million dollars to the agricultural appropriation for fiscal year beginning on July 1 next. The total was made up of nearly one hundred items which were adopted without a roll call.

Senate adopted the bill as a whole, with only fourteen Senators recorded as opposing. Among the opponents was Senator Vandenberg. But Senator McNary, the Republican leader, and Senator Taft, the outstanding Presidential candidate in the Senate, were not among those who went on record as opposed to a spending measure which has increased by 48 per cent the appropriation asked for by the New Deal.

This was more than a spectacle. It was an event which marked not only the moral collapse of the so-called economy bloc but, very probably, it marked also the disintegration of the organized political opposition in this Congress to the President and the New Deal. At the polls last November public sentiment expressed itself by a vote which, on the face of the statistics, indicated that there was a popular majority against the New Deal. The sentiment has been represented in Congress by a loose coalition of conservative Republicans and conservative Democrats. Between May 8 and May 12 this coalition fell to pieces.

Mr. Roosevelt has not been slow in recognizing that the political opposition was demoralized, nor did he fail at once to take advantage of the opening. With the collapse of the opposition in Congress, the opposition from the Treasury within the Administration lost its effectiveness. Then, the President, with a few face-saving concessions to Mr. Morgenthau and Mr. Hanes plumped for the policy of continued and unbridled spending. He took the New Deal into its fourth, or its fifth, phase. For the ideal of a budget in which income and outgo would balance, an ideal to which he had always hitherto paid lip service, he substituted the conception of large-scale public investment as a permanent national policy. This newest phase of the New Deal will probably be signalized and confirmed by a new system of Treasury bookkeeping so as to separate the ordinary budget for current expenses from the budget for capital outlays.

The political position in Washington has very suddenly been transformed, in that the President and the New Deal have regained their initiative which they lost in November, and the opposition is disorganized and demoralized. If the Administration succeeds, as it may, in forcing Congress to take a record vote on the Townsend plan, the plight of the opposition will be pitiable.

This reversal of the political position during the past two weeks is almost certain to have very far-reaching consequences in the elections of next year. For with the collapse of organized resistance to public spending, with the demonstration that the Republicans, with few exceptions, will, in fact, vote to spend when they are put to the test, there is no very important concrete issue on which a factional or party fight can be waged. Since it is axiomatic in politics that you cannot beat a horse with a horse, Mr. Roosevelt's political position is very greatly strengthened.

Barring events that are now unforeseeable, he will dominate the next Democratic convention, and he can create a discord in the Republican convention by confronting it with issues, measures and acts on which the Republican politicians are greatly divided.

That the Republicans in Congress were headed for trouble has been increasingly evident to any one who has observed them since they arrived in Washington last January. To those who realized the tremendous need of effective opposition, the spectacle of the Republicans as a body, certain individuals excepted, has been thoroughly depressing. They have misjudged the real situation just about completely, and their policy, such as it is, has been based on amateurish illusions.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

BROKEN ENGAGEMENT

Chapter 37 "I'm sorry, Tally," Jocelyn said sincerely, meeting his bewildered eyes. "If I can find out anything for you, I will. I've known George Lawson since I was a child. His daughter, Edith, is one of my closest friends. I think I'll drive into town right now."

"Don't mix in anything on my account," he said stiffly. "I probably wouldn't like being cooped up in a cubbyhole all day, anyhow. I like being a farmer."

Jocelyn flashed a smile at Gramp. "While I'm gone, Gramp, will you please tell this grandson of yours the story of Bluebeard's wives? And how their woman's curiosity lost them their heads?"

In her own room she changed swiftly into a dark tailored suit; picked up her bag and car keys and hurried out to the garage. Women not only were curious, she thought, they were also intuitive, and she did not need much intuition to guess the identity of the person responsible for Tally's disappointment.

"Mr. Lawson," she began, perching on a corner of his desk and holding his glance firmly. "I want the truth about this Talbot Mack affair. Just why did you hire him and then fire him?"

George Lawson, an elderly man, dignified and kindly, met her eyes with twinkling indulgence. "Business reasons, Jocelyn. Strictly business. Our bookkeeper's report discouraged us so."

"Please—," she implored. "Don't pipe off with courtroom suavety. Mr. Lawson. Perhaps I should tell you happy that it's merely propinquity, infatuation for his good looks that's deluded you. So I decided to put a stick in his wheel. The only reason he ever tried to practice law was because of you. He knew he wasn't good enough for you and he figured his name lettered in gilt on an office door would bring him up to your level. Of course he wants you."

"Are you quite through, Geoff? If you are, you may trot along to your silly polo ponies!"

He opened the door and stepped out. "When you regain your senses, Jocelyn, please phone me."

"I will not," she promised herself shoving the gear in low and turning the car around. "I'm going straight home and tell Tally I love him. I'm going to tell him I've been a fool and a horrible little snob and I'm sorry for everything and to please forgive me and... and just love me if he can..."

As she ran into the house Thorn called to her from the library. "Come here, Lyn," he said. "I just found out where young Mack raised the money for the taxes."

"Well, tell me," she urged, impatiently to go to Tally.

"I went down to the city hall and talked to the county assessor. Talbot paid the taxes with a check signed by Nola Cranston!"

"I... I don't believe it!"

"Thorn shrugged. Why should he lie? And why should Nola lend money to Tally? I thought I was mistaken about them... but Mrs. Mack told me a little while ago that Nola wrote them she is coming to Santa Barbara in a few days and is anxious to see Tally."

Jocelyn experienced a humbling let-down of spirit. There was a hollow ache in her throat. No wonder Tally had kept away from her; been absent. He loved Nola. He had been patiently waiting for her return from Hawaii. It was for Nola, not for her, that he had wanted to make something of himself, wanted to practice law.

"A mocking laugh twisted her lips. How naive she had been. How unforgettably and egotistically stupid. Because he had kissed her she had thought he loved her. A... a kiss meant nothing to him. She should have known that.

"Emotional Hangover" Thorn took hold of her hands; felt their stiff coldness. "Lyn, are you ill? You look so strange."

street she was trembling with indignation. She backed her car out of its parking space, rasped the gears, and roared recklessly out of town toward the Dunsmuir Country Club. Geoff, she remembered, it was only one o'clock, and the game would not have started yet.

"Head Over Heels" Coming to a halt about fifty feet from the entrance to the men's locker rooms, she leaned on the deep-throated horn of her car until Geoff, recognizing its peculiar tone, came running out, his polo helmet in one hand.

"I want to talk to you, Geoff," she said with ominous steadiness. "Get in and close the door."

"What is it, honey?" he asked uneasily.

"This." She pulled the engagement ring from her finger and tossed it into his up-turned helmet. "I will not marry you, Ever. You're mean and jealous and thoroughly contemptible. No... don't say anything. I found out what you did to Tally and it's unforgivable. Geoff! He's had a hard, frustrated life. This was his first opportunity to use his ability; to make something of himself; and you, because of pettiness, spoiled it!"

Geoff, put on the defensive, admitted: "All right. I did it. But it's as much your fault as mine. You told me for months that you wanted to get the whole damned family away from Seattle; away from California. You couldn't stand them. Farmers. Peasants. Squatters. You resented them. So did I... because of you. Then you fall head over heels in love with your former boy-friend and I see what's happened. I know he can't make you happy, that it's merely propinquity, infatuation for his good looks that's deluded you. So I decided to put a stick in his wheel. The only reason he ever tried to practice law was because of you. He knew he wasn't good enough for you and he figured his name lettered in gilt on an office door would bring him up to your level. Of course he wants you."

"Are you quite through, Geoff? If you are, you may trot along to your silly polo ponies!"

He opened the door and stepped out. "When you regain your senses, Jocelyn, please phone me."

"I will not," she promised herself shoving the gear in low and turning the car around. "I'm going straight home and tell Tally I love him. I'm going to tell him I've been a fool and a horrible little snob and I'm sorry for everything and to please forgive me and... and just love me if he can..."

"Emotional Hangover" Thorn took hold of her hands; felt their stiff coldness. "Lyn, are you ill? You look so strange."

"I know he is," she agreed, an undertone of harshness in her voice. "Gramp, you know a lot of things about people, but did you know that Tally wanted to practice law and make something of himself because of Nola Cranston? He loves her, Gramp—and I guess she—the loves him. She's coming back."

"Betcha it ain't so, say, Josie, you ain't feelin' bad 'cause you broke off with Kenning, are you?"

"No," she denied vehemently. "I'm glad I found out how petty and contemptible he is before I married him. But now... I don't know what to do. I—I feel so lost. I—I guess I'm having an emotional hangover. As you say, Gramp, I've got to have time to get my bearings. I'll be all—." She broke off as the door burst open and Thorn swayed into the room. His face was ashen; his eyes were distended with shock.

"When he saw old Mack his expression changed to one of scowling rage. 'You're responsible!' he accused, shaking a forefinger at the old man. 'You got me into this and ruined me! You did it on purpose!'"

Hoover Seeks Power In Next Convention

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover was described by intimates here today as working quietly to line up a large bloc of uninstructed delegates to the republican convention next year.

In recent talks with republican leaders, it was said, Mr. Hoover has made two suggestions—that republicans pick a candidate who will wage an uncompromising fight against the new deal and that state delegations go to the convention uninstructed.

Mr. Hoover has said he himself is not a candidate for the presidential nomination and that he is not working in behalf of any candidate.

Persons in a position to know said the former president's principal desire was to command sufficient convention strength to enable him to play a major role in selection of a nominee and in drafting the party platform.

Mr. Hoover was reported to feel there should be no effort by republicans to "beat the new deal at its own game" but that the campaign should center on a direct attack against the present administration's program.

It was said authoritatively he probably would oppose the candidacy of any individual who did not share his fundamental political philosophy.

The most feared club in the league at bat, Tony Rego's Big Spring Barons have proved they are no world beaters afield. How to plug the weaknesses without choking out the mace might is giving the little skipper plenty of insomnia.

His charges threw one away last night despite collecting 17 hits and 11 runs, have done it plenty of times before. Wild throws this time and not bobbles penalized the club's chances, chilled their opportunity to take over undisputed third place in WT-NM loop standings.

The situation is reversed from that of a year ago when the Barons finished with the best fielding average of any club in the family, were last in batting.

The Little Yankees are rocking along with a clouting average perilously close to the .300 mark, by rights should be scrapping with Lamesa and Lubbock for first place in the standings, will hustle back into the scrap if they right their defensive machine.

Jimmy Kerr, released outright by the Midland baseball club, has caught on with the Odessa Permian Basin league club, where he's substituting for the injured Walt Butler. Jim's contributions while in Midland playing teggery was satisfactory to club officials.

Lefty Janicek, who debuted as a Baron fliker last night against Midland, was known as Goldman while with Jodie at Lamesa where he covered the initial sack.

The balmy southpaw boasts all the characteristics of a typical wronghander. His mound antics are sometimes mirthful, oftentimes tragic.

Night play at Amarillo will be inaugurated June 5 when the Gold Sox oppose the Lamesa Browns. Neal Babe's club has been drawing exceedingly well for day time baseball, the turnstiles having clicked for an average of 500 customers a game.

Two former Barons, Joe Saportto and Marvin Keller, returned to Big Spring Sunday after an extended visit on the coast. Both played semi-pro ball with George Quigley, another former Big Spring'er, in Washington. Jo-Jo has been offered a tryout with Midland.

Tip the old fedora to Billy Capps, the local third sacker, who, despite two near fatal injuries at his station this year, continues to go after any and all of the rocks that bound his way. The American lead was knaved by the Dodge menagerie. Rumor foundry now has Fred Haney due for the ax. Probably about as much truth to it as to the Detroit-Greenberg phoney. The Yanks will have to struggle along a bit longer without DiMaggio, whose bum foot is acting up again.

He saw stars. It's a pity Joe Sawyer, pro at Rip's Sutton Place tennis courts, don't give a darn for autographs. The other day he played against Katherine Hepburn, Helen Wills Moody and Rudy Vallee in succession.

Today's guest star. George M. Varnell, Seattle Times: "Tony Galento says he'll quit drinking beer until after his fight with Joe Louis. His health might be better if he'd pass up Louis instead of the beer."

Cocktail Hour: Elmer Layden, fishing around Minoqua, Wis., got his limit every day, just as he does during the halfback season. Frank Winchell, Florida's No. 1 baseball fan, is in town and can be reached at the Stork club, day or night. Fordham will tee off at football practice August 25.

Long John Woodruff, counted on as the four minute miler of tomorrow, says he'll do no more galloping after the Olympics. Old Boko Nagurski is trying to decide whether to stick to wrestling or play one more season with the Chicago Bears.

Leo, you said it. Leo Durocher: "We bought Poff-sberger on Easter Sunday and I'm afraid the Easter bunny laid us the biggest egg of all."

BARONS RETURN HOME TO OPPOSE ABILENE Schumacher Gunning For National Title

Regomen Drop 10-Frame Go With Midland

Waddies Come From Behind; Ladies To Be Honored Tonight

By HANK HART

Tony Rego's Big Spring Barons teed off on the offerings of three Midland flingers with a 17-hit assault but their defense went berserk in the late frames and they dropped a 12-11 decision to the Cowboys who were making their first start under their new manager, Charley Smith, here Sunday night.

A six-run advantage the Barons had built up by the ninth inning went into discard as the Waddies tied the count on three free passes, a costly error and two bingles and the Midlanders won out in an extra frame. Jodie Marek, Al Berndt and Tex Walton all combined to lose the game away. After Lynn Everson had singled sharply to open the stanza Marek cut loose with a wild pitch and the runner was away. Berndt picked up the pellet and promptly tossed it into center field. The crippled Everson didn't stop. Walton attempted to catch him at third base and completed the comedy of errors and the game by throwing into the Midland dugout.

The Cowboys had gained a 4-2 advantage by the termination of the third inning and led until the eighth when the Big Spring gunners went to work in earnest, chasing Fiddin' Joe Piet, the Cowhand righthander from the hill. They continued to work over Oscar Tero in the ninth, collecting three runs with as many hits and two costly errors by Sam Malvica.

Billy Capps started the whole thing in the eighth frame when he dispatched the stitched grape over the centerfield wall for a home run. It was Capps' only smash of the night. Curdell Loyd, Pat Stacey, Dick Hobson, Al Berndt and Lefty Janicek were the Baron power hitters, Janicek, who twirled until he lost his control in the ninth, drove in four runs. The others had three hits each.

Bad Afield Malvica looked bad afield but collected two doubles and two singles to feature the Midland 12-hit attack in his new role as lead off man.

The Barons returned home to face the Abilene Apaches in a game scheduled to get underway at 8:30 o'clock tonight at Baron park. All women will be admitted free.

Edson Bahr, who has recorded two victories in three decisions, was scheduled to get first crack at

Trojans Could Well Represent U. S. In The Olympic Games

Woodruff And Coast Stars Unbeatable

By HANK HART

NEW YORK, May 29 (AP)—Purely as a suggestion, why not just let the Southern California Trojans take their spears and things over to Helsinki and represent us in the Olympic games next year?

The idea has its virtues. It wouldn't cost near as much to send this group of blond giants from the coast because they're already organized and ready to move at a moment's notice. There wouldn't be all the expense of holding try-outs.

The Trojans, of course, wouldn't win all the track and field events, but they probably would give Uncle Sam a comfortable margin of points. They could stop off at Pittsburgh and take along Long John Woodruff, as he would come in very handy in the 400 and 800 meters.

The suggestion is prompted by the way Coach Dean Cromwell's little young men swamped the field again in the intercollegiate championships here Saturday. They set a new record point total of 71 1-2. Pittsburgh was second with 26. There were 17 other teams that should have stayed at home and saved carfare.

Gala Lead

The Cowboys had gained a 4-2 advantage by the termination of the third inning and led until the eighth when the Big Spring gunners went to work in earnest, chasing Fiddin' Joe Piet, the Cowhand righthander from the hill. They continued to work over Oscar Tero in the ninth, collecting three runs with as many hits and two costly errors by Sam Malvica.

Swims To New Mark

NEW YORK, May 29 (AP)—Lorraine Fischer, captain of the New York University women's swimming team, holds a new American long-course record of 35.7 seconds for the 50 yard breaststroke.

She set the mark in the opening outdoor A.A.U. meet yesterday.

The lod record was 35.5 seconds set by Mrs. Katherine Rawls Thompson on May 14, 1937.

ALLEN, DEAN AND NEWSOM IN SUNDAY WINS, MUNGO STARS

Cards Fail To Gain On Reds; Yankees Cop

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The happiness boys are riding right side up again.

If you don't remember the happiness boys, they're the fellows who get fun out of baseball—which is a bitter business for a lot of their associates.

That makes it easy to single them out of Sunday's big major league show:

Johnny Allen, the temperamental righthander whose tattered shirt caused a furore in the American League and ended up in a department store window.

Dizzy Dean, the ex (?) popoff whose $185,000 pitching arm has been the most debated wing in all baseball.

Van Lingle Mungo, the lean Carolinian who probably has had more fights, fines and suspensions than any current big leaguer and who set some kind of a record last year by drawing a salary of approximately $1,000 an inning.

Buck Newsom, much-traded, much-misunderstood mace maestro who once undertook to pitch two games of a doubleheader and in six seasons has played with four different American League clubs not counting the St. Louis Browns twice.

Goes The Route

Allen went the route yesterday for the first time this spring to give the Cleveland Indians a 6-shutout over the Chicago White Sox on three hits. This was encouraging to the Cleveland people because Allen had a bad year last season and an operation on his arm during the winter hadn't helped him previously.

Similarly Newsom's seven-hit 6-2 performance against his recent teammates, the Browns, gave the Detroit folks something to cheer for, too. It was Newsom's second triumph within a week.

The New York Yankees, who saw a winning streak broken at 12 games only last week, already have built themselves another five-game string. They beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 9-5, Sunday in a hitting session featured by George Selkirk's two homers.

The Boston Red Sox also snatched a free-hitting game—their fourth in a row—in a 12-7 affair victimizing the Washington Senators.

Dean had his string of shutout innings broken at 13, but he held the Pirates to eight hits to give the Chicago Cubs a 6-2 victory.

Mungo was bombed out of the box in the Brooklyn Dodgers' 16-12 triumph over the Boston Bees. Each team used four pitchers and Mungo not only stood up well in his four and a fraction innings, but contributed two timely doubles.

Cincinnati retained its lead in the National League by splitting a doubleheader at St. Louis, 6-5 and 5-4. Curt Davis bested Johnny Vander Meer in the first, but Paul Derringer was as steady as ever in taking the nightcap.

Dallas Loses But Retains Loop Lead

By the Associated Press

San Antonio struck two lusty blows from the Texas league cellar yesterday, slapping down Beaumont 9-2 and 2-1.

A few more such exhibitions and the Missions would step over the Exporters, but on the top of the league the Dallas Rebels maintained a comfortable margin although they were whipped 7-4 by Oklahoma City's Indians.

Manager Homer Peel hit three doubles and a homer as his Shreveport Sports beat Houston 9-3 in the first game, homered again in the nightcap which ended in a 4-4 tie, called because of darkness.

Fort Worth's Cats rapped Vern Olsen of the Tulsa Oilers for ten safeties while Stan Corbett was limiting the opposition to four hits and won 4-2.

Scratch hits and an error brought the Cats three runs, enough to win, in the second inning.

San Antonio and Beaumont played their game originally scheduled today as one of yesterday's twins.

Barnum Loses In Finals Meet State Meet

Dallas Star Gains Startling 8-6 Triumph

By WILLIAM T. RIVES

DALLAS, May 29 (AP)—Unruffled Don Schumacher, The Texas Golf association champion safely cashed with a chilling performance yesterday, went back to the links today—to practice.

Not content with the state title—which he earned by blistering John Barnum of Edinburg, 8 and 6—Schumacher, a Dallas product, is gunning for the National Amateur championship and a Walker Cup team place.

Golfing experts gave him a stout chance to do both after he strode calmly through the field here.

Leaders Beaten Twice By Liners

By the Associated Press

Texarkana moved up within seven percentage points of East Texas league leading Henderson yesterday by a double victory over the Oilers, 4-2 and 5-2.

Thomas Pullig pitched masterful ball in the opener, permitting only three hits, and Bill Douglas bested Steve Rachunek in the second game in which Douglas' double scored the winning run.

Palestine slugged Tyler hurlers to win a doubleheader 10-3 and 4-1; Longview's Edmund Lopat bested Kilgore's Mule Totten in a pitchers' duel 3-0, and Jacksonville, winning a 15-inning opener 6-5 through Catcher Fride's single which scored two, dropped the second game to its Marshall opponent 5-2.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By EDDIE BRIEZE

NEW YORK, May 29 (AP)—Dug-out dope: They are pulling wires to get a left-hand hitting outfielder, who can really slug, out of the American league and into the Dodge menagerie. Rumor foundry now has Fred Haney due for the ax. Probably about as much truth to it as to the Detroit-Greenberg phoney. The Yanks will have to struggle along a bit longer without DiMaggio, whose bum foot is acting up again.

INFLUX OF LOU NOVA MONEY LOWERS ODDS ON HEAVY GO

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, May 29 (AP)—The 15-round get-together of Lou Nova and Max Baer in Yankee stadium Thursday night is the "betting-est" fight this town has seen in many a moon.

There's certainly more heavy "sugar" being laid on the line than for any piece of cauliflower business since Joe Louis mashed this same Madcap Maxie four years ago. And the odds in Maxie's favor have been cut considerably since a sudden influx of Nova money from the Pacific coast.

The fight odds-layers are taking no chances on this one. They've had a mighty poor indoor season, what with some 75 per cent of the shortorders coming through, so they've shaved half a point here and a point there and now will give you $3 to your $2 if you like Maxie to win the decision, or 3-1 if you favor the other guy.

The better known members of the betting fraternity have had lengthy cards printed on which are listed almost any wagering "proposition" you care to make, except which night club Maxie will head for after the brawl is over.

For instance, you can get 5 to 1 that Baer knocks out the ex-collegian in the first five rounds; 7-1 that he does it between the sixth and tenth and 9-1 that he'll put Lou to sleep in the last five. Nova, on the other hand, is less-liked as a knocker-out.

Meantime, each of the principals was head over heels in love with his own chances. Maxie predicted he would flatten his fellow Californian in six heats or less. Nova figures the fight will go the route, and at the end he'll be the winner, thus getting the chance to take a crack at the heavyweight champion in September.

Watson, Morgan Winners

Charles Watson and Jake Morgan gained Sunday victories in the Muni spring golf tournament at the Municipal course to join six other city masher welders in the second round of championship play.

Watson turned aside Horace Wallin, one up, to earn the right to meet O. G. Craig while Morgan, medalist and favorite, qualified to oppose H. E. Har dy by disposing of L. N. Millon, 5 and 6.

In other quarterfinal matches last week Frank Morgan will test Guy Rainey while Ode Bristol will square off with Lee Coffey.

All second round matches must be completed by Sunday.

In Sunday's other duals Bert Shive and Harry Rosenkordoff gained first flight triumphs, turning aside L. E. Barber and Frank Duley, respectively. Barber was trimmed, one up on 18 holes while Rosenkordoff ousted Duley, 3 and 4.

In second flight play Lee Young shot a B. E. F. Freeman out of the running, 6 and 8.

Hoppers Are Not So Bad This Year

Although first battles in the fight against grasshoppers have already begun in the Panhandle where severe infestations are forecast, County Agent O. P. Griffin said Monday that indications were that grasshopper damage this summer was not expected to prove serious here.

The government will provide 225 carloads of bran and sawdust for poison mash in the 23 counties afflicted with migratory hoppers. At least four counties have provided mechanical mixers with a ton per six minutes capacity. Hartley county, most acutely affected, is equipped to handle two carloads daily. The poison bait is spread by hand or machine.
